Kaplan competent to stand trial

SANFORD — Doctors have declared former state representative candidate Eric Kaplan competent to stand trial three months after he entered a Gainesville forensic hospital.

A Feb. 25 hearing has been set by Circuit Court Judge Alan A. Dickey to hear arguments in Kaplan's case. Kaplan, 30, is charged with attempted first degree murder of Judith Starks, the wife of Rep. Robert Starks in September 1992. Kaplan is also charged with armed burglary and shooting into an occupied building.

On Sept. 10, 1992, Dickey found Kaplan incompetent to stand trial based on testimony by a court appointed psychiatrist who said Kaplan had "depressive disorder."

A great deal of the testimony at the competency hearing involved Kaplan's inability to get along with defense attorney James Russ. Russ asked to withdraw from the case and has been replaced by attorney Chandler Muller. On Nov. 15, Kaplan was transferred from the John E. Polk Correctional Facility to the Forensic North Florida Evaluation and Treatment Center in Gainesville.

Amnesty Day set for Saturday

SANFORD — Seminole County will sponsor the next Amnesty Day to collect household hazardous waste this Saturday, Feb. 19, at Zayre Plaza at U.S. Highway 17-92 at Airport Boulevard. The collection will be held from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Residents may bring old household and auto batteries, cleaning agents, pesticides, lawn chemicals and fertilizers, pool chemicals, paint products and other chemicals which should not and cannot be discarded in the household garbage. Such chemicals may leak through the lining of the dump and contaminate the underground drinking-water supply.

At the Amnesty Day last February, people in more than 1,000 vehicles delivered nearly 37,000 pounds of materials, including 3½ 55-gallon drums of flashlight batteries, and nearly 6,500 gallons of paints.

For anyone unable to make it Saturday, the county now collects household hazardous wastes daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. at the county dump on Osceola Road in Geneva. The county also collects the materials from Monday through Saturday at the Central Transfer Station on State Road 419 from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

Singletary to visit Sanford

SANFORD — The Seminole County Department of Corrections Probation and Parole office will feature Harry K. Singletary, state director of the Department of Corrections, as guest speaker for a luncheon on Friday, Feb. 18, at 11 a.m.

In celebration of Black History Month, the event will be held at the Sanford Armory, East First Street, Sanford.

Tickets are available for $5 by calling Linda Mills at 330-6740.

Developing downtown

U.S., state Main Street officials help forge plans

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — State and National Main Street officials are in town. A series of meetings are being held to begin drawing up plans for downtown development.

State Main Street Director Bob Trescott, and National Main Street officials Doug Loescher and Ann Abernathy, who serve as the Main Street Reconnaissance Team, are meeting with city leaders and officials for two days.

Trescott and Loescher were in Sanford last year in mid-September. At that time, they met with a number of local leaders, made a walking-tour of the downtown area, and presided over a public meeting at the breezeway of the Sanford City Hall.

They returned later in the year to present the official Main Street designation to the city. At that time, they pledged to return again to Sanford to begin a study toward developing plans and pointing various committees in specific directions.

Sanford's Main Street program presently has three committees: Economic Restructuring chaired by Helen Stairs; Promotion, headed by Kay Bartholomew; and the Design Committee headed by Laura Strachla. Trescott also suggested establishing a fourth committee which would deal specifically with fund-raising and public relations.

Cops: Two girls victims; rape charges may be next

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Randall Edward Boston remains in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility today on $25,500 bond.

He has been charged with lewd and lascivious activity with a child under the age of 16.

Still pending are charges of sexual battery on a child stemming from allegations that he raped an 8-year old girl.

Boston was arrested yesterday after the parents of a 13-year-old neighborhood girl alleged that he had been fondling her for about a month. She told deputies that she had been afraid to report the incident because she feared retaliation.

During the investigation of the fondling incidents, a police spokesman said investigators believe they found enough evidence to charge him with sexual battery See Charges, Page 5A

Students glimpse black life in early days of Sanford

LAKE MARY — The history of African Americans is being celebrated throughout the country and locally this month.

At Lake Mary High School on Tuesday, students learned about the kings and queens who ruled Africa before the Europeans arrived on that continent in the mid sixteenth century.

They learned about the art and literature of African Americans throughout the history of this nation.

And they learned about the settlement of the black neighborhoods of Sanford and about those who fought for the rights of blacks in the early days of this community.

SANFORD — There are still seven months before Sanford City Commission election qualifying time begins. A.A. "Mac" McClanahan, 68, isn't waiting. He has already announced his plans to seek reelection to represent District 3.

McClanahan set up his campaign account this morning at Sun Bank in downtown Sanford.

"There are so many things on the verge of being completed," he said. "With the Seminole Towne Center Mall, Main Street project and Waterfront Development plans, Sanford is on the edge of booming like never before in its history."

"I not only want to continue playing a direct part in this continued growth," he said, "but I believe that now, possibly more than ever before, the citizens deserve the opportunity to have someone on the commission with experience."

McClanahan was first elected to the commission for a three-year term, taking his seat in Jan. 1972. He subsequently won reelection for See City, Page 5A

Former mayor to bid for county seat

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Former Casselberry mayor Andrea Dennison has joined the growing GOP field for the District 4 county commission seat, now held by Democrat Larry Furlong.

Dennison, 43, said after nine months of considering a commission bid, she decided to do so because she believed Furlong did not represent his district in the recent Casselberry annexation lawsuit. Dennison said she also believed the entire board wasn't doing enough to attract new businesses and develop the county job and tax base.

Dennison will face Altamonte Springs' Robert Bernys in the September Republican primary. No Democrats have announced bids against Furlong as yet.

Dennison served as mayor of Casselberry from 1989 to 1990, when, through in large part her own efforts to change the city's charter, she stepped down to be replaced by See County, Page 5A

Teens trial in tourist murder delayed

MONTICELLO — A judge postponed for at least 30 days the trial of four teen-agers accused of murdering a British tourist after defense lawyers said they haven't seen all the evidence in the case.

Circuit Judge F.E. Steinmeyer on Tuesday extended the March 29 trial date a month while lawyers wait to receive information about the murder investigation from the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

One of the youth's lawyers said he didn't expect to be prepared for trial until the summer.

Four teens, ages 14 to 17, have been charged with killing Briton Gary Colley and wounding his companion, Margaret Ann Jagger, Sept. 10 at a rest stop on Interstate 10 east of Tallahassee.

Colley's murder drew worldwide attention and helped damage the state's image as an international tourist destination. It was the ninth tourist killing in a 12-month period.

Hospital allowed to stop treatment

SARASOTA — A state prosecutor has advised a hospital it is allowed by law to withdraw treatment from brain-dead patients, and said it would stay out of any court action involving the case of a 13-year-old girl.

Physicians at Sarasota Memorial Hospital and consulting neurologists from St. Petersburg's All Children's Hospital said three separate brain scans on young Teresa Hamilton have revealed no activity.

But the parents of the girl, Scotty and Sharon Hamilton, alternate 12-hour shifts with their daughter to ensure hospital personnel do not try to turn off the machine which pumps air into the Teresa's lungs.

State Attorney Earl Moreland said Tuesday if attending physicians had performed required tests, and the results were conclusive, there would be no prosecution for withdrawing treatment.

"Anyone has access to the courts," Moreland said, "but there is no state interest in this case."

The girl's parents insist Teresa is not dead but merely has shut down her brain while she heals, and Sharon Hamilton said the girl responds to her voice. They say they have spoken to psychiatrists and other people who say they have survived deep comas.

"Anyone has access to the courts," Moreland said, "but there is no state interest in this case."

Pregnant woman dies when struck

WEST PALM BEACH — A pregnant woman was killed and her 2-year-old son critically injured when a man driving with a suspended license ran a red light and slammed into her car.

Lisa Montague, 27, was due to give birth to her third child Saturday. Doctors were not able to save the child she was carrying after the accident Tuesday.

Montague had just dropped off her 6-year-old daughter, Alexandria, at school and was returning home when Charles Lewek, 26, ran a red light and slammed his car into the passenger side of her car, said Palm Beach County Sgt. David Johnson.

Lewek suffered minor injuries. His license had been suspended indefinitely in June 1992 after he failed to attend driving school, reports show. In November 1991, he was ticketed for driving while impaired by alcohol.

Montague was not wearing a seat belt. Her son, Michael, remained in critical condition early today at St. Mary's Hospital.

Charges were pending against Lewek.

Teen arrested for poisoning teacher

TAMPA — A ninth-grader was charged with attempted first-degree murder after authorities said he dropped rat poison into his teacher's coffee mug.

Mary Chasot, 29, was being treated Tuesday at Town 'N Country Hospital as if she had ingested the poison, but Hillsborough County sheriff's spokesman Jack Espinosa said it was unclear if she drank the tainted coffee pending the results of toxicology tests.

Chasot found out about the poisoning after another teacher told her she overheard students talking about it at Webb Junior High School. She drank several cups on Tuesday, and investigators are not sure which cup contained the poison, Espinosa said.

Investigators said they had found no reason why the 14-year-old boy would want to poison Chasot, who has been teaching physical science since November.

He apparently found the poison in a classroom cabinet, Espinosa said.

The boy was immediately suspended pending the outcome of the investigation. He did not have a history of problems at the school, said Webb principal Angelina Ripple.

The student was being held at the county's juvenile detention center, charged with attempted first-degree murder.

Airport noise talks continues Lake Mary agenda

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The problem of noise connected with the Central Florida Regional Airport flights over Lake Mary will continue to dominate discussion at this Thursday's City Commission meeting.

The first of two public hearings was held during the Feb. 3 meeting. At that time, Airport Director Steve Cooke gave an overview of proposed progress, with some examples of studies undertaken regarding flight paths and other matters.

Rick Alberts, of Transportation Solutions Inc., also was on hand to review recommendations being made which might affect the Lake Mary area.

During that public hearing, several citizens stepped forward to voice their objections, mostly to noise of low flying aircraft.

"I was a student in Seminole High School when the Navy was still in Sanford," said Mayor Lowry Rockett, "and I am well aware of noise planes can make."

As an example, he explained that during peak flight times, one of his teachers was forced to stop her lecture at least every three minutes because of the aircraft noise.

Tomorrow night, the discussion continues. This time the special guest will be Wilburn T.

Mowdy, manager for the FAA of the Air Traffic Control tower at Orlando International Airport.

At the present time, a noise and flight pattern study known as FAR-150, has been almost completed. Additionally, a Land Use Compatibility Plan will be submitted to the Federal Aviation Authority in November or December.

The LUCP will contain noise reduction recommendations based in part on studies and tests conducted at six noise monitoring locations surrounding the airport.

The noise studies however may not prove to be conclusive as a portion of the actual document indicates the report was undertaken for a limited time of monitoring at each site.

The presentation tomorrow night before the Lake Mary City Commission is for public input. The commission has previously said it wishes to obtain information with which to consider a possible direction for objections which might be filed on behalf of the city regarding noise and approach and take-off areas which pass over several Lake Mary residential areas.

The public hearing is scheduled early in the meeting agenda of tomorrow night's meeting.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., in the commission chambers of Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

Haitians win suit against former dictator

By RICHARD COLE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — One of six democratic activists who were tortured by the Haitian military lauded a multimillion dollar damage suit against a former dictator as precedent-setting victory for human rights.

Former Haitian Sen. Serge Gilles, who suffered a dislocated back disk and a broken eardrum in the torture, was jubilant upon receiving news of the decision from an Associated Press reporter in Petionville, a suburb of the Haitian capital Port-au-Prince.

"We have gotten what we sought — a precedent, an example. Now dictators will have to think twice before violating human rights," said Gilles, head of the socialist National Progressive Revolutionary Party.

Gilles is still recovering from back injuries from the 1990 beating, and has undergone an eardrum transplant in France.

U.S. Magistrate Peter Palermo in Miami ruled in favor of the six activists in a decision released Tuesday.

The torture included "severe beatings, being dragged up flights of stairs, having lit cigarettes inserted in the nostrils (and being) beaten with particular attention being paid to the skull and groin," he wrote.

The suit was filed in February 1991 against former Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril, who led Haiti in the late 1980s. He lived briefly in Florida after he was deposed, but returned to Haiti following the 1991 coup that returned the military to power.

Palermo had ruled Avril must attend a deposition set for last October. The former Haitian president failed to show up, however, and his defense attorneys withdrew from the case.

In the decision released Tuesday, Palermo ruled Avril had defaulted, and awarded judgement to the six activists, who include Evans Paul, the elected mayor of Port-au-Prince. Paul was forced into hiding after the military takeover.

"As far as we know, this is the first court anywhere to hold the Haitian military responsible for the torture of civil activists in Haiti," said the activists' attorney, Matthew Chachere. "We seek to establish that there should be no refuge for people who commit torture."

The magistrate's ruling still must be approved by a federal judge, said Chachere. The suit asked for $3 million for each of the six plaintiffs plus $10 million in punitive damages, but a hearing on the exact amount will be held later.

Avril has refused contact with reporters since his return last year. He has supported new elections to replace elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, who was ousted by the military in 1991 coup.

Rolling had gotten reduced sentence in Mississippi

By RON HARRIST
Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. — Danny Harold Rolling could still be in a Mississippi prison had his armed robbery sentence not been reduced. Instead, the drifter has pleaded guilty in Florida to the 1990 murders of five college students.

Rolling was sentenced by Mississippi Circuit Judge William F. Coleman on March 20, 1986 to 20 years in prison, with 12 years suspended plus five years probation on an armed robbery charge, court records show.

A week later, records show that sentence was trimmed to 15 years, with 12 suspended plus probation.

At the same time, Rolling pleaded guilty to a grand larceny charge and sentenced to four years. That sentence was to run concurrently with the armed robbery sentence.

Ken Jones, a Department of Corrections spokesman, said Rolling was released from the Mississippi State Penitentiary at Parchman on July 31, 1989, and placed on probation.

With the sentence reduction, Rolling served about three years in the State Penitentiary for holding up a Kroger grocery store in Clinton in 1986, instead of the eight years he originally faced.

Coleman said that when he made the reduction in sentence, he was told that Rolling had no previous record. But Rolling had spent nearly three years in a Georgia prison.

State law requires inmates to serve every day of an armed robbery conviction if the sentence is under 10 years.

Judge Coleman said that at the time he originally sentenced Rolling he was told the defendant was a first-time offender and felt the sentence recommended by the district attorney's office was too harsh.

The judge said he met with the Rolling's court-appointed attorney, William B. Kirksey, and representatives of the district attorneys office, including District Attorney Ed Peters, to express his reservations about the original sentence.

Coleman said he believed that all were "in agreement with me that the plea bargain agreement was excessive under the circumstances."

Coleman said he then instructed Kirksey to draw up a motion to reduce sentence, which he accepted.

Coleman said in making the reduction, he understood that Rolling was a first-offender and because "he impressed me that he was just passing through, got hungry..."

Retail theft alleged

John Murphy Rowe, 31, 174 Lakeside Drive, Sanford was arrested for retail theft by Sanford police Monday. Store security guards at a large discount store on U.S. Highway 17-92 said the suspect took a VCR from the store merchandise then went to the men's department. Rowe attempted to get a refund sticker put on the VCR then attempted to leave the store without paying for the merchandise, the arrest report states. Store security guards detained Rowe until police arrived.

Shoplifting charged

Lavasher Shadale Williams, 23, 24 Cowan Moughton Terrace, Sanford was arrested by Lake Mary police Monday for petty theft in a convenience store shoplifting incident. Police were called to the store in the 4000 block of West Lake Mary Boulevard. The vehicle the woman left in was described by the store clerk and was stopped by police in a nearby home improvement store parking lot. Two cartons of cigarettes were seen by police in the car after the occupants left the vehicle. The cigarettes taken from the store were valued at $32. The store clerk identified Williams out of the four adult women and two juveniles in the car, as the woman who was in the store. Williams was arrested.

Theft, property charges

Richard Orville Evans Jr., 28, 142 Lakeside Circle, Sanford was arrested by Sanford police and charged with theft, possession of stolen property and dealing in stolen property. Evans allegedly sold two police investigators a stolen air compressor and battery charger earlier this month for $100 cash. Evans works at a garage.

Behavior leads to arrest

William Morgan, 29, 3170 S. Cameron, Sanford was arrested by Altamonte Springs police at a restaurant bar and charged with battery on a law enforcement officer, disorderly intoxication, possession of drug paraphernalia and criminal mischief. In attempting to apprehend Morgan one officer was kicked in the left foot, another in the right leg, according to the police report. The report stated Morgan had been drinking. A potted plant at the bar was broken and speakers dislodged. Morgan reportedly told police he used a pipe they found on him after he was arrested to smoke marijuana.

DUI charged

Robert Lee Katzberg, 63, 2082 Judith Place, Longwood was arrested by Lake Mary police at nearly 1 a.m. Monday and charged with driving under the influence. The arrest report states a city policeman followed Katzberg's vehicle west on Lake Mary Boulevard to near the Rinehart Road intersection. The suspect was traveling under the posted speed limit but allegedly had difficulty maintaining a single lane. The policeman determined the suspect was too intoxicated to perform field sobriety testing so he was arrested and the car towed.

Warrant arrests

- Michael Leon Williams, 22, 1703 W. 15th St., Sanford, violation of probation/purchase of cocaine.
- Courtney Leon Fredrick, 21, 1875 Sepulchre Court, Orlando, failure to appear/theft Violation of Probation.
- Peter M. Newmes, 37, 320 N. Lakeview St., Orlando, contempt of court/writ of attachment.

Incidents reported to deputies

- A father in the 2400 block of Byrd Ave., Midway reported his son took his car to the store and did not return it.
- A man reported someone threw a brick through the driver's side window of his vehicle Monday in the 2900 block of W. 23rd Street, Sanford.
- A 14-old youth reported his mother hit him with a board on his back and shoulders. An examination by fire rescue personnel showed no physical signs of abuse. The mother told police her son was ungovernable. The HRS was aware of the situation but had not assisted the mother, she claimed. The youth has been arrested a number of times for drug possession, according to the woman. The daughter corroborated the mother's story. The youth is staying with his grandfather.
- A man allegedly took three cartons of cigarettes from a convenience store in the 4100 block of Orange Blvd. without paying for them. Monday about 11 p.m.
- A car reported stolen in Daytona Beach was found west of Airport Boulevard near Jewette Lane in an open field. The vehicle which had been hot wired was still running. The tires and wheels were missing from the car.

- A woman in the Lockhart area reported seeing two men dispose of property apparently belonging to Lake Mary High School students. Five backpacks containing books and clothing were found. The students also reported cash and jewelry missing.

- Several lockers in the boys physical education locker room were broken into Feb. 11 at Lake Mary High School and a number of items including cash, jewelry, wallets and drivers licenses were taken. Locks were cut off the lockers to gain entry but the locker room doors were open. Some items were taken from the multipurpose room near the gym. Two students, who were not in their assigned class during the time, are suspects.

- A woman on Queensbridge Drive, Lake Mary reported after a verbal fight over money with a former roommate, a beeper was missing from her home. The former roommate had gone to the residence with two males to get some of her clothing.

- A Longwood woman found a wallet containing $78 belonging to a Lake Mary woman near the Woodlands and turned it over to the Seminole County Sheriff's office.

- A man living in the Sabal Club Apartments reported his car stolen.

- A Longwood man living on Birdsong Court reported a number of items including a cellular telephone, camera, and cassettes were stolen from his garage.

- A business owner in the 1900 block of Corporate Square reported a soft drink machine was broken in to and money taken.

- A Lake Brantley High School student reported his bike was taken from a Longwood country club.

- A Longwood used car lot manager reported two cars were broken into over the weekend. The business is on U.S. Highway 17-92.

- Another used car employee reported an equalizer was taken from a vehicle after the driver's side window was broken, on state road 600.

Incidents reported to Sanford police

- A man entered a discount store in the 2600 block of Orlando Drive Monday and walked out with $144 worth of underwear without paying for the merchandise.

- Someone entered an office on San Marcos Ave., between Sunday and Monday and took over $300 in property.

- Over the weekend, someone broke into a business office in the 2600 block of South Orlando Drive and stole an undetermined amount of cash.

Residential burglaries were reported at:

- Meadow Hill Drive, entry gained by breaking out a window, no determination yet if anything was taken.

- Hays Drive, entry gained by breaking a window and removing a blocking bar, jewelry and two VCR tapes taken.

- Country Club Road, a porch plate glass window was removed and a $2,200 central heating and air conditioning unit taken.

There was an attempted business burglary in the 300 block of E. 5th Street. Someone attempted to gain entry by prying a door with a screwdriver. A screwdriver handle was found at the scene and entered as evidence.

A pocketbook was taken from a locked car on Magoustine Avenue after a car window was broken.

An air compressor valued at $900 was taken from the back of a pickup truck in the 2700 block of S. Orlando Drive.

Burglary suspects

Sanford police arrested three men early Monday, when they responded to a call regarding a burglary in progress, in the 2500 block of Princeton. Thomas J. Wallace, 24, of 3645 Marquette Avenue was charged with burglary. Two others, both 18-year olds, whose names were not released, were also reportedly taken into custody in connection with the incident.

Charged with escape

Sanford police arrested Michael Sean Beaty, 27, 301 W. 10th Street on Saturday. Officers said they were responding to a disturbance call, and were arresting Beaty, when he broke away, handcuffed, and fled from the area. Police said they found him hiding in another building in the 300 block of W. 10th Street. He was charged with escape, disorderly conduct, and resisting an officer without violence.

Vehicle burglaries

Gordon Thomas Scott, 18, 222 E. Lake Mary Blvd., was arrested in the 200 block of Melissa Court early Monday, following a series of reported vehicle burglaries. He was charged with vehicular burglary, and burglary to an automobile. Reports indicated at least three vehicles were burglarized in approximately the same block. From one, a flashlight was reported missing. From another, several cassette tapes were said to have been taken.

Dodd arrested twice Tuesday; charged with sexual battery

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Longwood man charged with secretly recording the voices of job applicants at his travel agency was arrested twice Tuesday afternoon and charged with sexual battery on a woman and sexual acts performed by a 17-year old.

Arthur C. Dodd, 42, is being held in lieu of $50,000 on the sexual battery charge. He is scheduled to make his first appearance on the charge in court this afternoon.

Dodd turned himself in at the John E. Palk Correctional Facility early Tuesday afternoon on charges of use of a child in a sexual performance, promoting a sexual performance by a child and possession of photographs of a sexual performance by a child in connection with a 17-year old girl. Dodd was also charged with illegal recording of the teen's voice which is a third degree felony. Dodd posted $10,000 bail on the charges related to the teenager.

About two hours later, he was arrested again for sexual battery on a woman in her 30s. Although Miller declined to give much detail about the alleged rape, he said from watching the tape and talking with the woman, she was incapacitated and unable to resist. The bond on that charge is $50,000.

Dodd was initially arrested Feb. 8 after police found hundreds of photographs and video tapes of women in Dodd's office. Travel Service Network, 1728 County Road 427 in Longwood. Police claim Dodd advertised for office help, then asked some of the applicants if they would model bathing suits or other revealing clothing. Hidden video cameras with the audio on were operating in the room where the women changed for the still photo sessions.

Under Florida law, it is illegal to secretly record voice communications, but it is not illegal to video tape someone without their knowledge.

Miller said the investigation is continuing as more females who knew Dodd or interviewed with him contact police. Police are going through about 1,000 photographs and hundreds of tapes trying to identify the women. "We hope to meet with the state attorney," Miller said, "to resolve a lot of the issues." The cases of illegal recording of the women's voices continue to increase as police review the tapes. Some of the tapes appear to have been made elsewhere, including in Minnesota where Dodd resided in 1988. After discussing the case with the state attorney, Miller said, a decision will be made on the number of voice taping charges which will be filed.

For the good of community

The special WMFE Channel 24 and FM 90.7 fund-raising drive is underway. If it proves successful, the local population stands to gain.

People watching WMFE programs for even a brief time, are fully aware of the multitude of appeals for money. While these fund-raisers are held at specific time periods, some may think they go on all the time.

The quality and continuation of programs purchased by money from these drives depends directly on the amount of financial support given. 90.7 and Channel 24 both make this clear, and to date, even though it may take pleading, it is working.

The drive which began yesterday however, is different. It has a local flavor. The aim here is to have local programs.

The only local connection the stations have now are some area news, and listings of educational and cultural events.

If equipment can be purchased with which to produce local programming, we will have a much better view of our own lifestyles. Likewise, with program distribution to other public broadcasting affiliates, the local area will be seen across the nation.

People applauded the start of WMFE and FM 90.7 many years ago. Audiences have grown tremendously because of the constant improvements in programs.

If this special campaign manages to obtain the money needed for the local equipment however, the role of the stations in the life of our community will expand by leaps and bounds.

For this particular fund raising effort, we urge you to make a generous donation. Think of the words "Public" and "Educational." The job these stations are doing in helping to educate the public is excellent. We can help make it better.

I asked the Muse what I might be or who? For answers were not spelled within my name and mirrored views I saw reflected through, were backwardly reversed to feign the same.

Like portraits seen appearing slightly strange, in points of time that mold the subject sat; too small of scale to note the bend of change; evolving yet from where the truth is at.

My ego said: "You think to know you are; to love or hate or worship, praise or damn."

The Muse replied: "You are but earth and star, that think you are that you may think; I am!"

A copy made of copies seeking face; creating void to house a realm of thought; converting time to Universe and place, where seekers are the substance of the sought.

A dreamer dreaming other people's dreams; connecting threads from many spinning spools to sew a quilt of endless crooked seams that twist the mind but please the eye of fools.

Reality is what you choose to be; controlled by those who held the living spark and what you are is all there is to see until you are a shadow in the dark.

Unreversing reversed Reagan

Could it only have been last August when we were told that the Clinton budget package would "reverse Reagan"? Funny. Now we are told that the new Clinton budget will be tight and stringent because there will be "caps" on discretionary spending, due in large measure to the 1990 budget deal, which was part of George Bush's legacy. And the 1990 caps themselves were necessary (so it is said) because Ronald Reagan heavily cut taxes in 1982. Is it then possible that the new Clinton budget "reverses Clinton"?

Fact is, we often tend to get out of synch and out of touch when we label and characterize our times by the name of the president who happens to be in office. Thus we hear about the "Roosevelt Years," the "Johnson Years," the "Reagan Years," and now, of course, the "Clinton Years."

It's silly. Who the president happens to be is not necessarily the most important hallmark of what's going on in America, or the world. Perhaps history will see Roosevelt's 1930s as "the era of antibiotics" -- when modern medicine took off. Perhaps the historical signature of Reagan's 1980s will be the remarkable restructuring of American industry. But more than that, the system of naming-by-president has a built-in time warp.

Consider, for example, that little matter of the Civil Rights Act of 1991. Conservatives lambasted Bush for signing it, saying it moved America toward a quota society. But there is another interpretation: that it won't push quotas (or not too much). Who will decide its operative meaning? The Supreme Court. And five of the nine members of the current court were appointed by either Reagan or Bush. Three others were appointed by Richard Nixon or Gerald Ford.

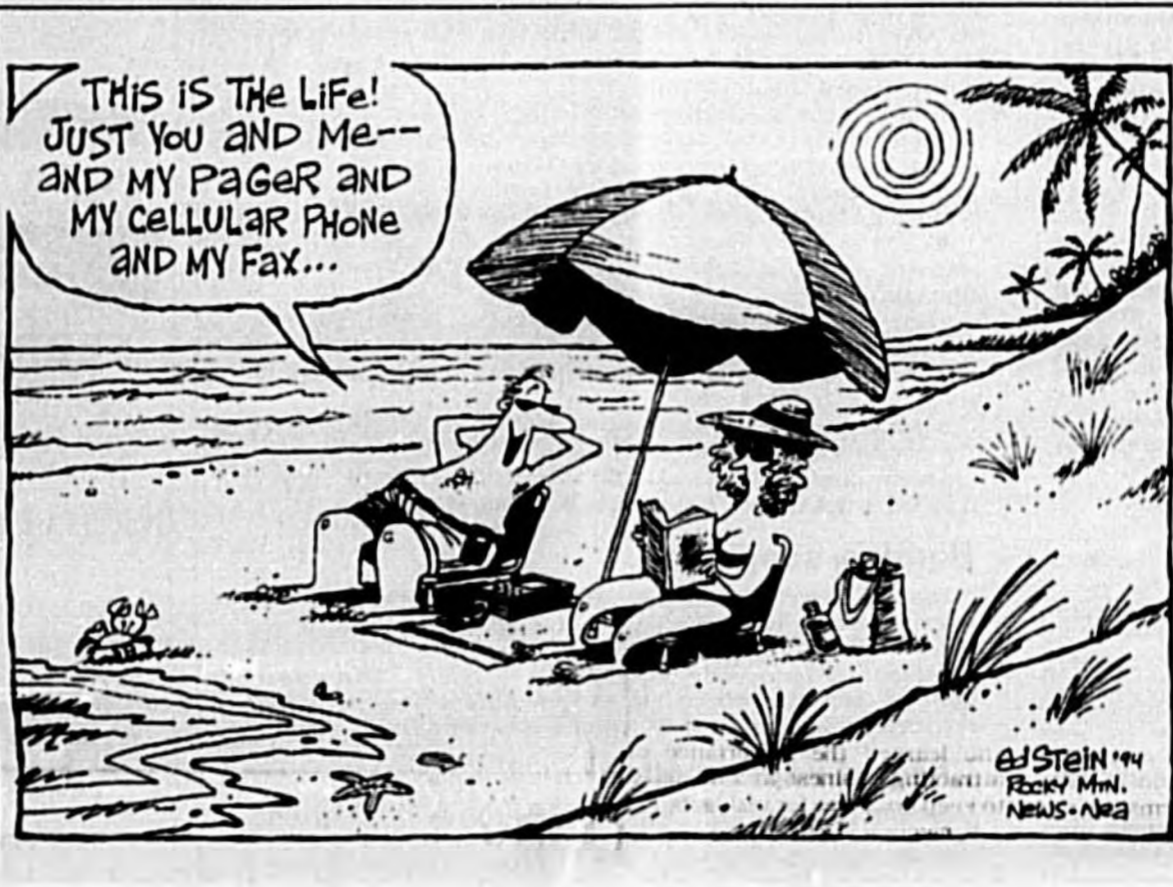

Is it then possible that the new Clinton budget 'reverses Clinton'?

This is nothing new. When Gen. Eisenhower was elected in 1952, there were conservatives who thought he would "reverse Roosevelt." But Roosevelt's domestic reforms were here to stay, and most of Eisenhower's foreign policy was actually set in stone by the early Cold War actions of President Harry Truman.

It was also said that Nixon would reverse Johnson. Not even close. As Nixon's Attorney General John Mitchell said: "Watch what we do, not what we say." And much of what they did was to ratify Johnson's Great Society, both the good and the bad of it.

Governments in great and successful nations tend to change only gradually, as Clintonites are learning. The analogy has been made to changing the course of a huge ocean liner.

Recall just what that idea of "reversing Reagan" was all about last summer. The military budget was cut, taxes on the rich were raised, and there was increased domestic spending. But it was the collapse of the Soviet Union, not Clinton, that cut the military budget. The top tax rate went to 39.6 percent -- but it was 70 percent when Reagan took office, and it is not likely to grow again soon.

Legal defense funds another outlet for PACs

WASHINGTON — Three days after a federal judge threw out an indictment of Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., his supporters gathered to show their respect for the man who had been charged with billing rent to the taxpayers for an apartment he already owned.

But the "Tribute to Durenberger," as the evening was billed, was less about reverence than the $250,000 raised. Even if he avoids re-indictment this spring, Durenberger's legal defense fund will owe most of that money to his Washington lawyers.

Durenberger enjoys what might be called the spoils of scandal. Washington-style, legal defense funds can be another form of influence-buying, according to various government and private experts.

Only four senators launched legal defense funds during the 1980s, but in the last four years, 10 senators — six this session of Congress alone — have tapped contributors to help defray legal bills that often run to $400 an hour in Washington.

"There is the question of whether this is just another way to shake down special interests," an aide to Durenberger told us. He defended the senator's fund-raising practices by adding, "I would challenge someone to come in and show where they think there has been improper influence if that's the implication which is given."

This is a corner of campaign finance that goes unaddressed by any of the current reform proposals. Unlike campaign contributions, which are limited to $1,000 for individuals and $5,000 for political action committees per election, annual donations to legal defense funds may be as high as $10,000 in the Senate and $5,000 in the House. When a supporter or special interest has "maxed" out on the amount allowed for campaign contributions, they can still pay into a member's defense fund.

Legal defense funds offer another opportunity for interest groups to insert themselves between a member and the people who they are representing," a spokesperson for the Center for Responsible Politics told us. "No doubt people who are supporting a member in a time of need will be remembered even more."

As a ranking member of the House Armed Services committee, former Rep. Nicholas Mavroules, D-Mass., profited from having both campaign and legal funders two years ago. When defense contractor Raytheon Co. had given the maximum allowed to Mavroules' campaign fund, he opened up a legal defense fund, allowing Raytheon to give another $5,000.

The case of Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., who is touting it out in the Senate despite allegations of sexual harassment, is another example of how disgrace doesn't dry up fund raising. As the ranking minority member of the Senate Finance Committee, Packwood continues to make his presence felt for a variety of special interests.

The Packwood legal defense fund has generated more than $240,000, much of that coming from big business. According to public record, the Airline Pilots PAC, the Lumber Dealers PAC, the Turner Broadcasting PAC and the Southern Pacific Transportation PAC have all contributed to Packwood's legal defense coffers. Philip Anschutz, who owns the Southern Pacific Rail Corp., chipped in $9,000 of his own. Southern Pacific often relies on the decisions of the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation, on which Packwood is the second-ranking Republican.

Durenberger enjoys what might be called the spoils of scandal.

Tailhook: They got away with it

BOSTON — Maybe they ought to teach this as a case study at the Naval Academy or at Officer Candidate Schools. It could be a lesson in the value of closing ranks, the importance of military bonding, or the power of loyalty in the face of opponents.

That's what it has come down to. About two and a half years ago, some 90 women were assaulted at the infamous Tailhook convention. Now the last cases to reach court have been dismissed. Not a single man has been court-martialed, or seriously disciplined.

In the scheme of things, we should be grateful that we know what happened on the third floor of the Las Vegas Hilton. If the men had not assaulted the wrong woman, we might never have heard about the gantlet, the streaking, the leg shaving, the butt biting. We might never have seen the photographs of the aviator with a rhino hat, or the one with the T-shirt that read "He-man Woman Hater's Club."

It was a young admiral's aide, Lt. Paula Coughlin, who filed the first complaint. It was Coughlin who had the courage to go public. And on Thursday it was Coughlin who announced her resignation.

The woman who had been passed down and mauled by a gantlet of men said, in well-chosen words, that Tailhook "and the covert attacks on me that followed have stripped me of my ability to serve."

From the very beginning the Navy has worried more about getting over Tailhook than getting to the bottom of it. Their early investigators talked to 1,500 men and turned up two suspects.

After the Pentagon took over the case, 140 fliers were accused of indecent exposure, assault or lying under oath. Seventy of these cases were quickly dismissed and only 50 men were ever fined or moderately disciplined. Here, a wrist was slapped. There, a letter was written into a man's record.

Last fall, Paula Coughlin's own case was dismissed after mixed evidence on the accused's identity. Leaving court, the aviator said he wouldn't hesitate to go to the next Tailhook because "you've got the best and the brightest people there."

Then, last week, the charges against three high-ranking officers were also dismissed. This time, the judge stated that their superior, the Navy's top admiral, Frank B. Kelso II, had manipulated the investigation "to shield his personal involvement in Tailhook '91." Kelso was there, said the judge, he knew, he did nothing.

So the case appears closed. The mess remains as open as a wound.

I will leave it to others to assess Admiral Kelso. Last fall, the secretary of the Navy asked for his removal and Les Aspin saved his job. Now a military judge has called him a liar.

There are some who see him as one who let the debauchery go on. Kelso swears that he wasn't on the third floor that Saturday night. Witnesses have sworn that he was and that as a gang of men urged a woman to strip, he said only, "Am I hearing what I think I'm hearing?"

There are others who praise him as a leader in the post-Tailhook Navy, a man who took the problem seriously and made changes. Pat Gormley, head of a research project on women in the military, describes him as "a good guy who had his head in the sand."

Either way, his story is only a piece of a larger picture. In this picture, nobody is taking responsibility. Nobody is being held responsible.

Since Lawrence Garrett resigned his post as secretary of the Navy at the outset of the scandal, the mutual protection society has held.

It's notable because we live at a time when people talk angrily about the lack of individual responsibility. We talk about the Bobbitts, the Mendez brothers welfare mothers. We talk scornfully about the victim defense.

But nobody described Tailhook in these terms. We don't talk about the failure of the military men to take responsibility. We don't talk about the 1,500 men questioned and the mere handful who saw evil, heard evil, did evil. The men who stamped themselves and each other "not responsible."

Indeed, even those who suspect Admiral Kelso's complicity or at least his lack of leadership, often portray him in terms used to defend Bob Packwood: as a victim of changing mores. There is more solidarity among men in the Navy than the Senate. Ask Paula Coughlin.

This is not a search for vengeance. I'd rather the Tailhook scandal produced wholesale change in the military culture than a handful or a hundred punishments.

But a very different message is emerging from a failed investigation and a young lieutenant's resignation. It says: Tailhook '91. They Got Away With It.

Not a single man has been court-martialed, or seriously disciplined.

Suit says airline discriminated and kept AIDS and HIV list

By Associated Press

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. — A former Delta Airlines manager says he was fired for having AIDS and that the airline kept a list of local employees suspected of having the disease.

In a lawsuit scheduled for trial next month in San Mateo County Superior Court, Joseph A. Sullivan, a 33-year-old Delta employee, said the airline harassed him, invaded his privacy, and fired him in October 1991 in violation of state anti-discrimination laws.

Delta said in court documents that Sullivan was fired for unreliability and for excessive absences.

Sullivan, 38, said he told his supervisor at Delta's San Francisco airport office in November 1990 that he had tested positive for HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

In his lawsuit, Sullivan said he was present at an April 1991 management meeting when office manager Donna O'Leary discussed employees that she knew had or suspected of having the AIDS virus.

"He had to sit in the meeting ... and listen to himself be stigmatized," said Sullivan's lawyer, David Mattingly. According to minutes of the meeting, Mattingly said, "Donna O'Leary referred to all of them as people with a terminal disease, people who had a duty to tell others of their condition, (and said) it was uncertain how the virus was transmitted."

A document prepared by O'Leary, obtained after the lawsuit was filed in 1992 and circulated to the airline's Atlanta headquarters, listed 13 employees, their known medical problems, appearance and attendance record, Mattingly said. In the memo, part of the court file, O'Leary also said management believed another six employees may have AIDS but could not demonstrate it from their attendance or work records.

Mattingly said he did not know anyone else on the list who was fired. He also said he did not know of any Delta offices that had a similar policy except the San Francisco office, which was closed last summer.

Gilmore Diekmann, the airline's lawyer, said Monday that Delta was "very sympathetic and understanding" to HIV-positive employees, and treats all its employees equally "based upon their ability to do the work."

Delta spokesman Bill Berry denied that disclosure of the AIDS list to airline management was a violation of privacy. "This is a manager communicating what is critical information to another manager," he said.

extremely interested in plans that may be developed for Main Street. "We have been sort-of holding back on SHDWA plans until we find out more about Main Street," he said. "We don't want to get involved in any duplication of efforts between these two organizations."

Layer plans to meet with Main Street President Chris Cranias later this week to examine how the two organizations can work on a cooperative basis.

Regarding the visitors, Bartholomew explained that the Reconnaissance Team is trying to determine what various people feel are the needs, strengths, weaknesses and critical issues affecting the downtown Sanford area. After determining those points, additional meetings are being planned.

One meeting was held yesterday afternoon at the Senior Center at the Sanford Civic Center. Another is scheduled for this evening.

Last night's gathering saw approximately 40 persons in attendance. They included members of various committees, and many of those who were personally contacted during the day by Trescott, Loeschler and Abernathy.

They included Bartholomew, Cranias, Layer, Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, City Manager Bill Simmons, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Dave Farr, Romance Cruises President Nanci Yronis, John Lombardi of AutoTrain, County Commissioner Daryl McClain, and Waterfront Steering Committee Chairman Larry Strickler.

Cranias explained that the purpose of the visit was to gather information, formulate it, and use it in developing a specific business plan.

At this morning's meeting, additional suggestions were made, with the final meeting this evening, which is expected to begin the local project with specific goals.

This visit by the Main Street Reconnaissance team is part two of four major purposes established by the National Trust for Historic Preservation which oversees the Main Street programs.

According to a statement of goals, the first part was the introductory period. Part two is, "...the collection of baseline data to be used to design services to be delivered, and establish a tracking system of results."

The third move is, "...to help program leaders articulate where they want the community to be in five or ten years and how they might want to get there."

The last part, which involves another team visit, will begin public relations concepts and clear up any misconceptions about the program services which may have emerged.

At the present time, no specific dates have been set for part three and four. They will be based on the progress accomplished on the local level.

Housing starts off 17.6 percent

By JOHN D. McCLAIN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Housing starts got stuck in inclement weather and the rubble of the California earthquake in January, according to a government report today showing that construction plunged 17.6 percent.

The Commerce Department said construction of new single-family homes and apartments totaled 1.29 million at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, down from a revised 1.57 million in December — even stronger than the initial 1.54 million estimate.

Residential construction was off in every region except for the West, where, despite the earthquake, starts edged up 0.3 percent.

The December rate was the highest since 1.62 million foundations were laid in January 1989. Still, starts in January were 10.6 percent higher than a year earlier.

economist with Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corp. in New York.

In fact, the National Association of Home Builders is forecasting housing starts will total 1.39 million this year. If so, it would be the highest since 1.49 million units in 1988. Starts totaled 1.29 million last year.

The forecast found support in the Home Builders latest survey of its membership. The poll found 54 percent of the sample of 375 builders expecting "good" sales of new homes in the next six months, providing an incentive for increased starts to meet demand.

But the Commerce Department's report showed applications for building permits — often a barometer of future activity — fell 7.9 percent, the first decline in seven months.

Single-family starts dropped

15 percent, to a 1.15 million rate from 1.35 million in December. This component comprises nearly 90 percent of residential construction.

Apartment construction fell 33.8 percent, to a 147,000 rate from 222,000 a month earlier. Despite the drop, many analysts believe the multi-family sector, which had been plagued by overbuilding in the late 1980s and subsequent vacancies, has bottomed out.

Regionally, starts in the Northeast fell 32.8 percent to a 90,000 annual rate, lowest since an 85,000 rate in February 1991. They had been down 2.2 percent in December.

Construction declined 22.9 percent in the Midwest, to a 282,000 rate after a 3.7 percent advance a month earlier.

Starts also fell in the South, down 21.6 percent to 565,000, wiping out a 15.9 percent gain the previous month.

Seminole County Forester Mike Martin watches as the City of Sanford celebrates being named as Tree City USA for the seventh consecutive year. On hand to plant trees at the Crooms School of Choice in Sanford were Barbara Kirby, principal of Crooms; Terry Richardson, Crooms' teacher of the year; Howard Hawkins, a physical education teacher at Crooms, Mayor Bettye Smith and district Commissioner Bob Thomas.

Housing has been one of the stronger elements of the recovery recently. Starts began to surge in August, buoyed by the lowest interest rates in two decades and a steadily improving economy.

Although rates have inched up from their October lows, they remain affordable for many Americans. They averaged 7.21 percent last week, down from more than 8 percent as 1993 began.

But analysts had said in advance of today's report the recent performance would be curbed in January by severe weather and the Los Angeles earthquake. Their consensus was for starts totaling just 1.40 million units.

"We think that when the weather finally reverts back to normal, the improvement in the housing industry will continue," said Marilyn Schaja, an the city's new manager in 1991. Previously, she served nearly two terms on the city commission from 1986 until 1989, when she resigned to run her successful campaign for mayor.

Dennison is past executive director of the Arthritis Foundation of Central Florida and former general manager of Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce. She has lived in Seminole County since 1972 and central Florida since 1962. She is a native of Baltimore, Md. She and her husband have two children in Seminole County schools.

Dennison said during her tenure on the city commission, she learned to make the state's restrictive growth management laws work for the city while a shopping center development was under review. Dennison said she learned the importance of attracting business and industry to keep taxes low for residents.

If election, Dennison said she will focus on developing positive accomplishments of building a quality job pool and broader taxbase for the county through economic development measures while being sensitive to environmental needs. Dennison said she will also work to bring the cities and county closer together and support the sheriff's budget and youth programs.

Dennison said Furlong should have worked to resolve the county's opposition last year over a city annexation of commercial property. Furlong called for the vote to sue the city last Feb. 23, but Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor said the annexation was legal.

a four-year term, and stayed on the commission until Jan. 1979.

"Then I took an eight-year breather," he said, "before running for office again. I took the vote, and resumed my District 3 seat in January of 1987, where I am still serving."

McClanahan was born in Minneola, Florida, Sept. 13, 1925. Although he spent some time in Daytona Beach, he formally moved to Sanford in 1953, while in the U.S. Navy, and served as a recruiting officer.

His military service also saw him involved as a Navy technical skills trainer, Aviation Weapons officer, Public Information Officer, Personnel Officer, Legal Officer, Military Traffic Judge, and finally Officer in Charge, Advanced Undersea Weapons Unit.

He retired from the Navy as a lieutenant commander and immediately became involved in the business life of Sanford. He is a licensed real estate broker, real property appraiser, and state registered residential building contractor.

He served as executive director of Seminole Self-Reliant Housing, Inc., a non-profit corporation until he retired from that organization in April of 1993.

He has also served on various city, county and state boards, councils and task forces.

In addition to McClanahan's Dist. 3 seat, the Dist. 4 seat of Commissioner Whitey Eckstein will also be on the ballot in 1994. Eckstein has not publicly commented at this time on whether he will seek reelection.

The official qualifying time to run for election in the City of Sanford begins Sept. 7. The city election is scheduled for the first Tuesday following the First Monday in December, which will be Dec. 6.

jects to life for the students," said guidance counselor Janet Floyd, who helped organize the events. "History is more interesting when the students are involved in it."

Students have been studying black history all month. They've done research papers and created posters that are on display in the halls.

"But, I think they really enjoy this," Floyd said.

In a classroom on the second floor, Alternese Bentley told an attentive class about the history of the black people in the Upsala area of Sanford and some of the history of the Georgetown neighborhood.

"There isn't enough time to tell all I can tell," said Bentley.

Bentley told the students about how the introduction of Swedish workers spelled trouble for the black workers.

Gen. Sanford and his son did try to fight for the rights of the blacks in Sanford.

The younger Sanford had been asked to serve as mayor of the young town, but declined the offer. In a letter to his father who was in Brussels at the time, he explained that he could not accept the offer to lead a town that would not allow full representation to all its citizens.

Fully a third of the population of Sanford was comprised of blacks who met the requirements for voting, that is, they were landowners, they were law abiding citizens and they were men. Still, simply because they were black, they were denied the vote.

Bentley told stories of the time, when as a very young child, she saw the Ku Klux Klan march down Sanford Avenue.

"The only thing my sister and I knew to do was to hold on behind my daddy," she said. "And he told us that they would not hurt us. They did not, but it was frightening."

The Klan in the 1920s took up any cause "that made the white people uncomfortable," she explained.

She said the Klan was a noticeable presence in this area at that time, but she does not remember any specific violence, but does remember the intimidation.

"We were frightened by them," she said.

Bentley encouraged the students to visit the Sanford Museum, to do research and to make their own studies of the history of the area.

"Don't wait as long as I did to learn," she said. "Start reading and learning now."

The Black History Month celebration continues at most of the area schools through the end of the month.

on an 8-year-old in the neighborhood as well.

The little girl was examined by a doctor and interviewed by an HRS sex crimes expert yesterday. That evidence was turned over to the State Attorney's office Tuesday afternoon.

"It's up to them to press charges," Ed McDonough, public information officer with the Seminole County sheriff's office said. "We've concluded the investigation and now it's up to them."

Boston, 19, who listed his occupation as landscaper, has been somewhat transient for some time, but recently had settled in the home of a family he had met at church.

According to McDonough, the children involved in the incidents knew one another and knew about the activity, but were both afraid to come forward. It was not until the parents of the 13-year-old found out about the incident that law enforcement officials were notified.

Lawmakers, courts weigh abortion rights

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Lawmakers talked about harsh measures after a doctor was slain during a Pensacola abortion protest last year, but a bill to keep abortion foes from harassing clinic patients died.

The legislation is expected to fare better this year in the Senate, where a power-sharing agreement has given Democrats a larger say-so.

"I'm not using the power of the president's office to kill a bill," said Senate President Pat Thomas, D-Quincy.

Last year's bill won easy approval in the House, with 61 co-sponsors, but sank in the fractious Senate in the final moments of the session.

Opposition from former Senate President Ander Crenshaw and former Rules Chairman Tom Jennings prevented a vote.

This year, Rep. Elaine Gordon, D-North Miami, has lined up new Rules Chairman Ron Silver, D-North Miami Beach, as a Senate sponsor for her clinic-access bill.

Sen. Jim Boezar also is sponsoring a clinic-access bill and also predicting success.

"I don't think most people hold grudges," said Boezar, who angrily tossed his rule book in the wastebasket when the Senate didn't get to vote on the measure last year. "Someone you had a fight with this morning may very well be your ally this afternoon on a different piece of legislation."

If the Senate votes, the bill should pass, Gordon said. "I had the votes the last time."

And lawmakers still will have last year's murder of Dr. David Gunn in Pensacola fresh on their minds. The trial for his accused killer, Michael Griffin, is scheduled to begin Monday.

Gordon's bill (HB 3) compiles state statutes already on the books on trespassing, disturbing the peace, harassment, assault, stalking and abuse, and clarifies they are to be enforced in cases of interference with access to a medical facility.

"My bill specifically states that it in no way interferes with anybody's right to free speech, picketing, singing, praying," Gordon said.

With the change in the Senate, she said, "The chances are good, given the attitude of the U.S. Supreme Court."

Neither the House nor Senate criminal justice panels have set a date to debate the bill, but Gordon hopes to see it start through committee by the end of the month.

This time, the debate follows U.S. Supreme Court decisions that improved the climate for clinic and patient protection, she said.

The court has agreed to review a case involving Seminole County Circuit Judge Robert McGregor's injunction setting up a buffer zone at Patricia Baird-Windel's Aware Woman Center for Choice in Melbourne.

The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta questioned whether that was an unfair denial of free speech rights and ordered more hearings. The Supreme Court agreed to review that order and clarify how far courts and local governments can go in restricting protesters.

Meanwhile, the Florida Supreme Court upheld McGregor's order, which barred protesters from the zone and limited the noise they could make and the kinds of signs they could carry. The state court said that protected patients' rights to privacy and access to health care.

In another case, stemming from protests in Chicago and other cities, the U.S. Supreme Court gave abortion clinics another defense. The justices said protesters who blocked access conspired to violate patients' rights and could be sued under the federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations law.

Lobbyists criticize bill to pay women for birth control

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Lobbyists running the gamut from the American Civil Liberties Union to the Catholic Church are opposing a bill to pay welfare women to use a long-term birth-control device.

The measure (HB 1451) would set up a pilot project to pay women $200 to take a long-term birth-control measure such as Norplant implant or intrauterine device. The women would also get $400 annual payments.

Norplant — first approved for use in the United States in 1991 — is inserted into a woman's upper arm, just under the skin. Six match-sized capsules provide contraceptive protection for up to five years.

The legislation is sponsored by Reps. Ron Glickman, D-Tampa, and George Albright, R-Ocala.

The House Health Care Services Subcommittee took no action Tuesday after hearing from the ACLU, the Florida Catholic Conference, the National Organization for Women, and Florida Impact, an inter-religious group that works with poor people.

Several lobbyists — all of them women — said it was a mistake to focus so strongly on women and disregard men. Some of the lawmakers agreed with them.

"It takes two to tango," Rep. Anne MacKenzie, D-Fort Lauderdale, said. "A woman doesn't get pregnant all by herself."

Glickman and Albright said they were open to suggestions about how to make the bill include men.

Albright told the panel he has a related bill that would make birth control more affordable for middle class people by making it available through county public health clinics on a sliding scale.

But the implant bill may run into trouble — money. The measure doesn't explain how to pay for the grants and could be started only if money is found later during the legislative session.

A staff analysis estimates it would cost the state $894,000 annually if 300 women received the grants. The federal government would kick in another $111,000.

The proposal also could be nixed by the federal government, which doesn't provide money for family planning programs that coerce people to choose one method of birth control over another. The federal analysis of the bill has not yet been received by the state.

The $16 million Florida spends on family planning now provides services to only one-third of the people seeking them, according to Dr. Leslie Beitsch, who oversees family health services for the state.

Beitsch said he hadn't reviewed any research that confirmed serious side effects to the use of Norplant.

Gardner, Moorefield lead Pats over Saints

By KURT LUTTERMOSE Herald Correspondent

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Kelli Gardner sank home two timely three-pointers, one coming with just one second left in the first half, to lead the Lake Brantley Patriots to a 52-47 victory over the Jacksonville-Sandalwood Saints in Class 5A sub-regional girls' basketball action Tuesday.

The win, Lake Brantley's seventh in a row, advances the Patriots to the 5A-Region I tournament this Friday and Saturday at Glen St. Mary-Baker County High School. Most of Gardner's team-leading 16 points came from long range. When double team pressure met her near the three-point line, she would look underneath the basket for Patriot star center Lysa Moorefield.

Even though she was forced to the bench with foul troubles, Lake Brantley center Lysa Moorefield (No. 31) still scored 10 points Tuesday as the Patriots knocked off Jacksonville-Sandalwood in Class 5A sub-regional play.

OCS Rams hold off Pine Castle

From Staff Reports

MAITLAND — Playing what Coach Bob Dougherty described as their "best game of the year," the Orangewood Christian School Rams pulled out a 52-44 victory over Pine Castle Academy Tuesday in a sub-regional girls' basketball game.

While the Rams lead most of the way, Pine Castle stayed close, pulling to within two points late in the fourth quarter. But Julie Bradburn came up with a huge defensive play for Orangewood Christian, diving on a loose ball in the lane under the Pine Castle basket. She then converted a layup at the other end of the floor to give the Rams some room.

As a team, we had 22 assists on 23 field goals, which is hard to believe. But we played probably our best game of the season. They (Pine Castle) played well, too. It was a great battle. Amy VandeStreek led Orangewood Christian with 16 points, 13 rebounds, and five assists.

JACKSONVILLE — Trailing by four points after one quarter Tuesday, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks took control of the game with an 18-9 second quarter and went on to beat the Jacksonville-Parker Braves 56-50 in their Class 5A sub-regional girls' basketball contest.

Deanna Graves scored a game-high 21 points for the Silver Hawks, who were ranked sixth in this week's Florida Sports Writers Association's Class 5A state poll. Christine James added 13 points while Lori Marchisella had 11.

ORLANDO — Just when the Raiders had hit top speed, they ran out of gas. Playing in the first round of the Mid-Florida Conference women's basketball tournament, the Seminole Community College Raiders fell victim to their lack of numbers in a 60-55 loss to the Valenica Community College Matadors.

play with just five or six kids. But it was a good game. I can't complain. We were in it all the way. "Phase I of the rebuilding process is over. Now it's on to Phase II." Not only was SCC outnumbered 11-7 by the Matadors, the Raiders received limited play from Sheri Reddicks (who arrived at the Valenica gym just before tip-off and missed several minutes in the second half with a sore hand) and Irina Haltonen (sidelined repeatedly because of foul troubles).

Cook of the Week

Former teacher credits Mom for culinary expertise

LONGWOOD — A former educator, Mary Anne Cleveland, who now calls herself a "community volunteer" is well-qualified for the Cook of the Week.

A Florida native, Cleveland and her family now make their home in the Ravensbrook section of Longwood. She has lived and worked in Seminole County for the past 25 years — the first 10 years in Sanford (1968 to 1978) and from 1978 to the present, she has lived in Longwood. Cleveland has taught elementary students at Lawton Elementary School, Southside Elementary School and Wekiva Elementary School. Her teaching career spanned from 1968 to 1984 during which time she took an extended leave of absence to start a family and she did not return to teaching until her youngest was 2 years old.

Although Cleveland is very active within her community and her church, there is absolutely nothing that has or ever will take precedence over her devotion to her family. She is a very proud mother and rightfully so. Her oldest son, Darwin Boothe, 21, will graduate from Florida State University in April. "I can't believe he's going to be graduating already," said Cleveland. Her 19-year-old daughter, Bekah Boothe, is a junior at Stetson. "She's going to be a teacher," Cleveland said. And Robert Boothe, 16, is a junior at Lake Mary High School.

The long list of activities that keeps Cleveland busy is impressive. She is a deacon at Longwood Hills Baptist Church as well as the media center chairperson and is on the board of directors for the counseling center and Genesis pre-school. She is the secretary for the board of directors at The Grove Counseling Center and a member of the Sanford Woman's Club and the Isora Garden Club of Sanford. The list goes on. However, as Cleveland said, "To sum it all up, I'm a community volunteer."

One of the many hobbies that

COOK OF THE WEEK

RENEE KEITH

Cleveland enjoys interior decorating. There is no doubt of her professional expertise when it comes to her taste and ability in this field. Her stunning home is a magnificent display of perfect blends of colors, fabrics, and furnishings. She carries her color theme throughout the house in a very tasteful fashion. Still, with all of the loveliness of the Cleveland home it has always been "a warm and lived-in home," she said.

Cleveland has been married for nine years to former state senator and Sanford Attorney Mack Cleveland Jr. Together, they have blissfully blended everything in their lives to bring about a happy family atmosphere. However, "the Baron Von Cleveland is the one member of the family that everyone would relate to," said Cleveland. "He's the king of the mansion." She went on to say, "This boxer is our Cleveland child."

Cleveland credits her mother, Mary Williams of Lake Mary, for teaching her and helping her to develop the cooking skills she has today. Cleveland's recipe for Pecan Pie is her daughter Bekah's favorite. Darwin and Robert's favorite is Cleveland's own creation, Broccoli Casserole.

"Really, this is an all-around family favorite," Cleveland concluded.

BROCCOLI CASSEROLE

- 2 (10 oz.) packages chopped broccoli, defrosted
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup (may use low-fat)
- 1 cup mayonnaise (may use reduced calorie)
- 2 eggs (may use Egg Beaters)
- 2 cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese (no substitutions)

Combine the mayonnaise, undiluted soup and well beaten eggs, mixing well. Add drained.

Celebrate everyday with special desserts

February gives us many opportunities to celebrate with special desserts. All of the ones we'll use are red and white and use the microwave oven for the preparation. If it's supper for the family, Cherry Bread Pudding is ideal. Or, if the occasion is more elaborate, Berries-on-a-Cloud or Cherries Jubilee are festive concoctions. Whatever the date, one of these desserts will do it justice and the preparation will be made easier with the assistance of the microwave oven.

This is delicious served warm from the oven.

CHERRY BREAD PUDDING

- 1 can (21 oz.) prepared cherry pie filling
- 4 slices bread, cubed
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 Tbsp. lemon juice
- 1 cup milk

MICROWAVE MAGIC

MIDGE MYCOFF

- 3 eggs
 - ½ cup sugar
 - ¼ tsp. almond extract
 - Cinnamon
- Spread pie filling evenly in shallow 1½-quart glass casserole. Top with bread cubes. Microwave (100 percent power) butter in 4-cup glass measure 45-60 seconds or until melted. Drizzle evenly over bread; sprinkle with lemon juice. Combine milk, eggs, sugar and almond extract in 4-cup measure; beat well. Pour slowly over bread. Press cubes into milk to coat evenly. Sprinkle with cinnamon.

Microwave on 50 percent power 17-19 minutes or until bread mixture is just about set in center. Serve warm or cold. 6-8 servings.

Crisp meringues do not cook in the microwave oven, so rely on the conventional oven for that portion of this luscious dessert.

BERRIES-ON-A-CLOUD

- 6 egg whites
 - ¼ tsp. cream of tartar
 - 1½ cups sugar
- Filling:
- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese
 - ½ cup sugar
 - 1 tsp. vanilla
 - 2 cups (1 pint) whipping cream, whipped
 - 2 cups miniature

marshmallows
Sauce:

- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen sweetened raspberries
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen sweetened strawberries
- 1 Tbsp. cornstarch
- 1 Tbsp. Grand Marnier, if desired

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar in large mixing bowl until frothy. Gradually add 1½ cups sugar, continuing to beat until mixture holds stiff peaks. Spread in ungreased 13x9 or 12x8-inch baking pan. Bake at 275° F. for 20 minutes. Then bake at 300° F. for 40-45 minutes or until browned. Cool. (Mixture will collapse as it cools.)

Microwave (100 percent) cream cheese in 2-quart glass batter bowl 45-60 seconds or until softened. Beat until creamy. Beat in ½ cup sugar and the vanilla. Fold in whipped cream and marshmallows. Spoon onto cooled meringue, spreading evenly. Cover and refrigerate at least 12 hours.

Remove cover from frozen fruit. Microwave on 100 percent power fruit in packages 3-3½ minutes or until just about thawed. Drain juices into 1-quart glass batter bowl. Blend in cornstarch. Microwave (100 percent) uncovered, 2½-3 minutes or until mixture boils, stirring twice. Cool slightly. Stir in Grand Marnier and fruits. Cut dessert into squares. Spoon cooled sauce onto individual servings. 15-18 servings.

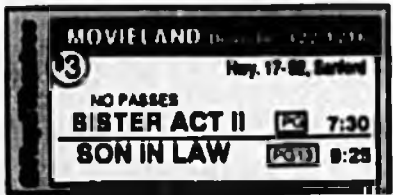

A flaming dessert can turn an ordinary occasion into a spectacular! Cherries Jubilee has been enjoyed for years. For a new twist on an old favorite, try this variation.

CHERRIES JUBILEE

- 1 (10 oz.) jar currant jelly
- 2 cups Bing cherries, pitted and drained.
- 1 Tbsp. orange marmalade
- ½ cup light (100 proof) brandy or rum

Combine jelly and marmalade in 1½-quart casserole. Microwave on 100 percent power 2 minutes. Stir and add drained cherries. Microwave on 100 percent power 2-4 minutes or until bubbling. Remove from oven and add liqueur. Take to table. Ignite and spoon flaming fruit mixture over ice cream balls.

Replaying songs mentally common

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a continual tune going through my head, which I accompany at times with the clacking of my teeth to the rhythm. I can consciously change a song to another at will, but I cannot stop a song from running through my mind at all times. I can control myself so that others do not realize I have a problem, but I'd like to improve the quality of my life.

DEAR READER: This is a surprisingly common complaint that affects many people for short periods - especially after the conclusion of a concert or other musical entertainment.

My neurologist consultant tells me that a consistent symptom such as yours is often the result of an obsessive neurosis, meaning that it may have an emotional basis that should be addressed by an appropriate mental health professional. Nonetheless, I hasten to add that some types of seizures may cause rare and bizarre symptoms. Thus, I urge you to be examined by your doctor and, if indicated, a neurologist. In my view, you need blood tests, a CT scan and a brain wave test to rule out a serious physical disorder.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please explain androgenic disorders, their effects, treatments and side effects. I'm a 15-year-old black female who has not yet experienced a menstrual period.

DEAR READER: All men and women produce both male and female hormones in their bodies. Obviously, in men, the effects of testosterone are paramount; these include hirsutism (hairiness), deep voice, increased muscle mass, baldness, decreased breast size and the predictable effects on the genitals. (In women, the effects of estrogen are more pronounced and include hairlessness, breast enlargement, menstruation and other female characteristics.)

Occasionally, women may develop male characteristics, such as increased facial and body hair, heavier muscles, acne, loss of breast tissue, cessation of menstruation and increased sexual urge. Called virilization, this condition may be caused by various types of tumors.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

P.G. Wodehouse was an accomplished amateur pugilist. As he wrote, "In boxing, the right cross-counter is distinctly one of those things it is more blessed to give than to receive." And after you have given the right cross-counter, keep your opponent trapped on the ropes.

It is the same in bridge. When you are heading for a juicy penalty, don't slip up and let declarer escape - as West did on today's deal.

West, with his potentially useless singleton king, might have opened with a weak two-bid.

Whenever your partner makes a penalty double at a low level, lead a trump. East overlooked the spade king with his ace and drew three more rounds of spades. West, with three discards to make, played high-low in hearts and then threw a low diamond.

East returned the heart 10, which declarer covered with his jack. How should West have defended?

At the table, he won with the ace and exited with a heart to dummy's king. Declarer, who couldn't misguess diamonds after West's discard, played on that suit. When East ruffed, he had to lead a club into dummy's A-Q tenace. Declarer won seven tricks: one heart, four diamonds and two clubs.

This redouble usually shows a misfit with partner's suit. In the hope that East started with a doubleton, West should have played the queen or a low heart at trick five. Then when East ruffs the third round of diamonds, he has a heart to lead to West's three winners. East-West are plus 500 instead of minus 100 (tournament scoring). Fight to keep communication with your partner.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Feb. 17, 1994

Some influential contacts you've developed over the years might be in a position to help you in the year ahead. Do not dilute their efforts by modifying situations to suit your conceptions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Just because you know your family will tolerate it, it doesn't give you justification for venting your frustrations on them today. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. $19.92 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today if you're inclined to read more into things people say than what was intended, you might create hard feelings and problems for yourself where none need exist.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) On your own assess the cost in time and money before committing yourself to a group involvement. If the figures are too heady, bow out gracefully.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If things haven't been going too well for you recently, it could be due to poor timing on your behalf. Before rushing forward, be sure you have all your ducks in a row.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Persons with whom you'll be involved today will reflect your attitude towards them. If you find them likable, they'll respond graciously. If you view them unkindly, expect rejection.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll not go unnoticed today, but just make sure you attract attention for the right reasons. Don't be self-serving or a showoff.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An agreement you're trying to facilitate can be beneficial and enduring for all concerned if each makes minor concessions. Set the example.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Today you might have to work in close proximity with someone who, like yourself, has his/her own way of doing things. Don't lock horns.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Upon occasion your scales need adjusting to restore proper balance. This might be one of those days where you could come on a bit one-sided with others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Before becoming overly agitated with your mate today, total up his/her pros and cons and you may discover there is more to praise than to condemn.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your objectives must be clearly defined today if you hope to be successful. Fuzzy outlines could lead you to unproductive dead ends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today if you suddenly decide to take a holiday from your work, it might turn out to be an expensive recess when you miss an opportunity for which you've been waiting.

Let's talk turkey

Sausage adds Italian flair to dishes

What do you look for in recipes? If you're like most people, you want a number of things. In a recent survey of grocery shoppers, it was taste and nutrition that ranked the highest. But that sounds like "having your cake and eating it too," doesn't it? Is it possible to have taste and nutrition in the same dish? The answer is definitely yes.

Penne with Eggplant and Turkey Sausage, for example, delivers rich Italian taste. It looks too delicious to actually be good for you, but it is lower in fat, calories and cholesterol than you would expect. With Penne with Eggplant and Turkey Sausage, Italian Turkey Sausage with Pasta, and Turkey Spaghetti, you will discover the secret to preparing delicious, nutritious recipes — it's selecting the right ingredients.

The secret to combining good taste with nutrition is to use foods such as Italian turkey sausage, eggplant and pasta. You can create recipes so delicious that you probably won't even think of them as nutritious — just delicious.

Serve these Italian dishes to your family and friends and let them savor their flavor. Then, after they have enjoyed these sumptuous recipes, go ahead and tell them that they are better for them.

PENNE WITH EGGPLANT AND TURKEY SAUSAGE

(Serves 8)
1 lb. Italian turkey sausage, cut into 1-inch rings
1 medium eggplant, cut into destroed broccoli and stir. Mix three-quarters of the cheese with the ingredients, pour in a Corningware or glass 10-inch casserole dish. Sprinkle the remaining cheese on the top and cook in 350° F. oven for 45 minutes to an hour. It will bubble in the middle and be golden on the sides when cooked.

PORK CHOP CASSEROLE

4 to 6 lean, boneless, center cut pork chops

1 can cream of mushroom soup (may use low-fat)
¾ cup skim milk
1 medium onion
¼ tsp. minced garlic
Seasoned salt (Lawry's)

Arrange pork chops single layer in a shallow baking pan (2-inch sides). In a bowl mix together soup, milk and garlic until smooth. Cut onion into ¼-inch slices and separate rings. Sprinkle pork chops with seasoned salt and arrange onion rings on top of the meat, then cover the pork with the soup mix. Bake in 350° F. oven for approximately 45 minutes. Serve with or over yellow or white rice.

PECAN PIE

1 cup sugar
½ cup white Karo syrup
¼ cup melted butter
3 eggs well beaten
1¾ cups chopped nuts
1 9-inch deep-dish pie shell, uncooked

Using hand beater at low speed, mix sugar, syrup, butter and eggs. Pour nuts in mixture and stir. Pour mixture into pie shell and bake 350° F. for approximately 1 hour. Serve when cooled.

PURPLE DELIGHT

First layer:
1¼ cups crushed graham crackers

¼ cup softened butter
¼ cup sugar

Second layer:
8 oz. cream cheese, softened
½ cup sugar
2 eggs

Third layer:
1 can Comstock blueberries

Fourth layer:
1 medium container Cool Whip

Use a glass 9-inch cake pan. Mix graham crackers, butter and ¼ cup sugar. Press down in cake pan to form the crust (first layer). Mix cream cheese, eggs and ½ cup sugar until creamy eliminating all lumps. Pour on top of crust. Bake in oven 25 minutes at 325° F. Remove and cool. Pour blueberries on top of second layer and top with Cool Whip. Refrigerate for several hours and serve.

FRIENDSHIP TEA

¾ cup instant tea
2 cups sugar
2 packages instant lemonade
1 large jar Tang (14 oz.)
2 tsp. cinnamon
2 tsp. clove powder

Mix well, store in air-tight container. Use 2 to 3 tsp. of mixture with 8 oz. of boiling water, stir and serve.

Creating, molding lives gives joy to many parents

DEAR ABBY: I enjoyed your tongue-in-cheek column on "The Childless Couple." The author offered a "cup is half empty" version of parenthood. I respectfully submit a "cup is half full" version.

STEVE PARKER, CHICAGO
DEAR STEVE: I'm sure many will thank you for your cleverly written rebuttal.

PARENTS
What a pitiful lot parents are. How any soul can survive the daily monotony of nurturing a child from innocent infancy to flourishing adulthood is beyond me. It's a boring life.

Imagine actually experiencing a child's birth and then having to pretend the animalistic ritual was a breathtaking, unbelievable miracle never to be forgotten. Consider the shallow pride parents feign as junior becomes the spitting image of Dad, acts just like Mom and laughs like Grandpa. Meaningless, egocentric images.

Rather than putting in those extra productive hours at work, parents must spend nights and weekends at home with children. Oh, the burden of children. They deal with their kid's overexcitement at scoring a goal, getting a part in the school play, or earning an "A" on a report card. They put up with the never-ending disappointments kids are bound to have knowing that consolation is only found in the warm arms of parents who love them anyway. Why would you want to weigh yourself down with the joys and emotions of a child when you could spend all your time concerned with yourself?

ADVICE

When the kids finally fly the coop, parents suffer the ultimate indignity. A little wearier. A little grayer. A few more laugh lines to show for the child-rearing years. Parents put on their best poker face and swear up and down that these physical side effects were a small price to pay for giving life, knowledge, character and faith to children who will sacrifice just as much for the next generation.

Astronauts head to Russia with...oatmeal?

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — They're pros at traveling light. But for this trip — a space program first — they want to be prepared.

When astronauts Norman Thagard and Bonnie Dunbar leave next week for a year of cosmonaut training in Russia, they'll be taking along some of the comforts of home.

For Thagard, 50, a physician who designs amplifiers in his spare time, that means a stereo, TV and VCR.

For Dunbar, 44, a biomedical engineer, that means a tool kit, batteries, film, and — oh yes — instant oatmeal.

"There are no 7-Eleven stores over there," Dunbar explained Tuesday.

Thagard and Dunbar are the first Americans assigned to Russia's cosmonaut training program. It's part of the same agreement that had Russian cosmonaut Sergei Krikalev flying last week on space shuttle Discovery.

Under the astronaut-cosmonaut exchange program, Thagard will be rocketed into orbit aboard a Russian Soyuz in March 1995 and will spend three months on Russia's space station Mir, conducting mostly medical experiments. Dunbar is his backup.

Neither volunteered to go. NASA asked them, and they happily obliged.

"Being the first American to fly in the Russian program offsets any disadvantages," Thagard said Tuesday.

"Since I'll have my family there, the thing I would miss most won't be missing," he added. Only about a dozen or so of the 100 astronauts expressed a strong desire to go to Russia; many were reluctant for family reasons. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced its final selection on Feb. 3.

The Russian Space Agency is handling all the arrangements, just as NASA did for Krikalev and his backup, Russian cosmonaut Vladimir Titov, when the two arrived at Johnson Space Center in Houston in 1992.

Thagard and Dunbar, who plan to leave Monday, will have their own furnished apartments at the cosmonaut quarters in Star City just outside Moscow. That's quite a change from the early 1970s when the Soviet Union built a high-security hotel in Star City for occasional visits by the three American astronauts assigned to the 1975 Apollo-Soyuz docking mission and their NASA entourage.

Thagard will be joined by his wife, Rex, a teacher, and their youngest son, Daniel, 14, as soon as school is out. Dunbar's husband, astronaut Ronald Sega, who's just back from space, will visit as often as he can; they have no children.

Dunbar anticipates there will be "a lot of rough edges to smooth out just because it's a new program." Identifying those rough edges will be an important part of their job — four American astronauts are to follow Thagard to Mir and up to 10 shuttle-Mir dockings are planned before the two countries start building a joint space station in 1997.

Thagard and Dunbar expect language to be their biggest challenge, even though they have been studying Russian since 1992.

Living in a country with political and economic instability doesn't worry them. Neither does spending three months in space.

Thagard, a four-time shuttle flier, has never spent more than eight days in space at a time. Dunbar's longest space trip, her third, lasted 13 days.

"Three months is not so terribly long," Thagard said. "If we were talking a year, I'd probably have different thoughts about it."

But even a three-month trip has its drawbacks. Like all cosmonauts, Thagard will have to spend two hours exercising every day aboard Mir to help prevent the flabby muscles common to weightlessness. He avoided exercise on the shuttle because he hated not being able to wash up afterward.

There are no showers or tubs in space, no matter which ship.

"I guess I'll put aside those misgivings and do the exercise," Thagard said.

Mardi Gras Party's over in New Orleans

By MARY FOSTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS — Pounding heads replaced pounding hearts as the city sobered up and simmered down today, putting Mardi Gras and its raucous revelry behind.

A wedge of New Orleans mounted police staged the city's last parade. Followed by street sweepers, they clopped down Bourbon Street at precisely midnight, bringing the curtain down on the biggest party of the year in the city known as The Big Easy.

It was about time, in the opinion of New Orleans native Marilyn Nonenmacher.

"I've been at it 64 years," she said. "All my life. And believe me, anyone who makes it until midnight is glad to see Lent and a little restraint get here."

One death marred this year's Carnival. A 29-year-old Virginian fell out a hotel window, said police Sgt. Gilbert Johnson. The victim's identity was not immediately released.

Before midnight, when "Fat Tuesday" subsides into Ash Wednesday, more than a million people packed the French Quarter for one last pre-Lenten binge of drinking, dancing and debauchery.

"I'm 73 years old and I've seen things in public here that I never even saw in private before," said Fred Jefferson, a retired grocer from Des Moines, Iowa.

The lascivious showered strings of plastic beads on women heeding pleas to bare their breasts. Costumes ranged from profane to posh, silly to satirical.

Clarinetist Pete Fountain and his Half-Fast Marching Club sashayed down one parade route in tux Tuesday.

A half-dozen people, including a baby, dressed up as a bloody body part and carried signs proclaiming them the "John Wayne Bobbitt family." A roller-skating, baseball bat-toting "Tonya Harding" made her way through the crowd.

Winter Olympics delivers ratings gold

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — A Tonya Harding interview helped CBS notch a ratings victory for the news magazine "Eye to Eye With Connie Chung" and record ratings from the Winter Olympics expanded the network's lead.

For the week of Feb. 7-13, the network won its largest margin of victory so far this season with a 16.8 average rating, widening its margin in the February sweeps.

ABC was second with a 13 rating, followed by NBC with 11.8 and Fox Broadcasting Co. with an 8 rating, the A.C. Nielsen Co. reported Tuesday. One ratings point equals 942,000 television households.

The all-important sweeps are quarterly ratings periods that determine advertising rates for local network affiliates. The current sweeps runs from Feb. 3 to March 2.

Viewers also gave a victory to "Eye to Eye with Connie Chung," which earned its highest rating, 17.4, and an 11th place finish for the week featuring Harding, embroiled in controversy over the assault on skating rival Nancy Kerrigan.

CBS' broadcast of the Olympic opening ceremonies Saturday, the seventh-ranked program for the week, reached the largest audience for the ceremony in the history of the winter Olympic Games, an estimated 64 million people.

The evening's 20.9 rating was an improvement of 43 percent over the ratings two years ago at Albertville, France, when the opening ceremonies drew a 14.5 rating. The next most-watched opening ceremony was for the 1980 Lake Placid games.

The Sunday broadcast reached the largest audience ever for a single night of Olympics coverage — winter or summer — and was the week's No. 1 program.

An estimated 82 million people watched all or part of the show, which included pairs figure skating technical programs and the men's downhill ski race, in which American Tommy Moe won a gold medal.

Another CBS news magazine, "60 Minutes," was the No. 3 program.

ABC counted four series in the top 10: "Home Improvement" in second place; "Roseanne" in fifth; "Coach" at No. 8 and "Grace Under Fire" in ninth place.

NBC counted three of the most-watched shows: the No. 4 "Seinfeld" and "Frasier" and "Wings," sixth and 10th, respectively.

Among the evening newscasts, ABC was in first place with a 12.9 rating, followed by NBC with 11.2 and CBS with 11.

Here are the top 10 shows, their networks and ratings: "XVII Winter Olympics" (Sunday), CBS, 29.4; "Home Improvement," ABC, 23.6; "60 Minutes," CBS, 22.5; "Seinfeld," NBC, 22; "Roseanne," ABC, 21.4; "Frasier," NBC, 21.1; "XVII Winter Olympics" (Saturday), 20.9; "Coach," ABC, 20.2; "Grace Under Fire," ABC, 19.2; "Wings," NBC, 18.
