

ENGLISH GOLFER LAUDS JONES AS FINEST EXPONENT

Captain Of Walker Cup Team Gives Description Of Players From Britain And Compares Them With U. S. Stars

By Copeland C. Burg. Bob O'Link Golf Course, HIGHLAND PARK, ILL., Aug. 23.—T. P. Perkins, only 23 years old, is the best player on the British Walker Cup team...

"Perkins is the best player we have on our team in my opinion," Dr. Tweddell declared in an interview today. "He is a very steady brilliant player."

"What do they think of Bobby Jones in England," asked the young Briton. He seemed very eager to answer. "Bobby Jones is the idol of England. He isn't only an American favorite but a favorite everywhere in the British Isles. We think a great deal of him. He is perhaps the greatest all-around golfer any country has produced."

"He is such a crack player but still he is so modest about it," other Americans playing in England have won many friends but they have failed to win the many followers Jones has claimed.

"I don't think any player for a long, long time will have the personality of Jones and be such a star golfer," Dr. Tweddell said.

Major C. O. Hazlet, next to young Perkins, will probably attract the most attention among the visitors in the coming matches. He is a big fellow, weighing more than 240 pounds and takes the widest stance probably ever seen on an American golf course.

Captain C. N. Martin of the British army, is another interesting member of the team. He is the type generally accepted in America as typically English. Having a very fair skin, light hair and blue eyes. Captain Martin smokes a pipe constantly while on the links. Before each shot in a very English and deliberate fashion, he places his pipe on the grass. He plays a steady game and excels on the greens.

All of the visitors, with the exception of Hazlet, play with a decidedly loose swing, which is the very opposite of the compact American stroke. Suttace Storey, who is playing in America for the second time as a Walker Cup star, has attracted attention by his loose swing and like the other Britons he gets distance.

FORMER BUTCHER BOY IS CHICAGO'S BASEBALL HERO

Pitching Recruit Of White Sox Carves His Niche In Hall Of Fame By Winning 15 Inning Contest From Yankees Outfit

CHICAGO, Aug. 22. (INS)—Grady Adkins, the former Little Rock, Ark., butcher boy, is Chicago's newest baseball hero.

The White Sox pitching recruit, long suspected as having "as his very own the stuff of which heroes is made, finally carved his niche in the hall of fame when he won a 15-inning contest here against the hard-slogging New York Yankees.

How he might still be a "butcher boy" down in placid Little Rock, had he not discovered when he was 16 years old there was a "lot of fun in pitching ball games, was told by Adkins today.

"I used to pitch when I was 16 years old on Sunday afternoon," said the Pale Horse hurler, "and it wasn't long before I looked on this recreation as the high spot in my life as a butcher boy."

Rickard To Stage No Heavy Battles For Several Months

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (INS)—Back from a brief sojourn at Saratoga, where his proverbial luck returned to him, Tex Rickard indicates that he is going to continue the heavyweights on vacation from Madison Square Garden until a number of attractive matches in the lighter classes can provide a restful interlude and possibly develop the new headliners Tex needs in his business.

The disablement of Jack Sharkey, the setback administered to Johnny Risko by Roberto Roberti, the shackles of disputed management of Knute Hansen, Jack Delany's involuntary withdrawal, Paulino Uzcudun's preference for the gaiety of foreign capitals to the lure of American gold, Tom Heeney's home going from which he does not return until next January, Phil Scott's decision to remain in England and Jack Dempsey's stage venture has, temporarily at least, eliminated the veteran wing of the heavyweight army from local competition.

The usual replacements promise to be heavy, now that Tunney has abdicated the throne, and there are a few sophomores who are ready to step in at any time. Rickard has them all tabbed in his book and expects to have the best of the lot on exhibition before the holidays.

Girl Debaters From England Will Meet Teams In America

LONDON, Aug. 21. (INS)—Three girls representing English universities will sail for New York in October to meet the leading debaters of women's colleges in the United States.

This is the first team of women to be sent on such a mission from England. The three picked debaters, chosen at the annual congress of the National Union of Students, held in Oxford in April, are: Miss Nancy Samuel (daughter of Sir Herbert Samuel, formerly Cabinet Minister and Governor General of Palestine), of Somerville College, Oxford; Miss Lockhart of Girton College, Cambridge; and Miss Sharp of Bedford College, London.

They were chosen from 15 candidates from the leading universities of England. They will visit all the principal women's colleges in the United States including several in the Middle West where co-education is in force.

The women are to take part in 25 debates and are expected to remain in America until Christmas. Their debating ability, personality, ability to represent the traditions of England, and their standing in student circles were among the qualifications considered in choosing them.

The merits of co-education will be one of the chief features of the debates.

RECEPTION FOR KELLOGG

PARIS, Aug. 23. (INS)—An official reception will be accorded American Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg when he arrives at Havre tomorrow upon the liner Ile de France. Aside from United States Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, he will be the first American diplomat to set foot upon French soil in nine years.

The cabinet met today to make plans for the international conference at which the anti-war treaty will be signed. It is probable that this year will go down in history as the "Kellogg treaty" as Secretary Kellogg was completely responsible in bringing it about.

The attention of the St. Louis Browns of the American League and played with them for two weeks but failed to make good.

"I was discouraged and determined I would give up baseball and spend the rest of my life in a Henrietta meat market," declared Grady.

But he changed his mind and decided to stage a comeback in 1921 as a manager of the Vicksburg team in the Cotton States League. He continued with Vicksburg and Shreveport, La., until the spring of this year, when he joined the Comiskey club.

His Longest Game Adkins' 15-inning victory over the Yanks was not especially thrilling to him, as he once pitched an 18-inning contest.

"The longest game I ever pitched was 18 innings," he boasted. "I was in Henrietta at the time and we were playing a team from Springfield, Mo. We won two to one—some game. They got 10 hits off me."

"And here is some kind of a record—when I was with Vicksburg I once pitched 54 innings in six days, winning five games and tying another. Our team was crippled and I had to pitch pretty often and worked every position in the club that season except catcher."

MITCHELL MAKES FINE RECORD AS HARVARD COACH

Baseball Mentor Gives Crimson Team That Scores 30 Victories And 25 Defeats In Period Of Three Years

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 23. (INS)—"And we'll show the sons of Ell, that the Crimson still holds sway."

So sang Harvard men of four undergraduate classes and fifty or more Alumni groups of the past at the last Harvard-Yale series. And down in the Crimson dug-out, chewing away at a blade of grass as he issued crisp orders to members of the Harvard nine, the man who had kept the Crimson afloat in the baseball breezes of the collegiate world, pulled another series out of the Yale fire.

Fred Mitchell, Crimson baseball coach, is the Miracle Man of the college game. Harvard men will tell you. They compare him to George Stallings who brought the Braves from a July 1 last place to a September pennant winner and October and to the late Percy Houghton, peerless coach of undefeated Harvard eleven of many years.

Well Remembered

Mitchell is well remembered in the baseball world as a former player of high standing and many years experience, a manager and a club executive with both the Boston Braves and the Chicago Cubs.

"Mitch," as Harvard men draw out his name in their discussions of Harvard baseball, first came to Cambridge in 1916, just after the 13 to 9 defeat by Yale at the close of the 1915 season. His first season at Soldier Field resulted in 23 victories and three defeats. He defeated both Yale and Princeton and with the famous Eddie Mahan in the box turned back the then World's Champion Red Sox, 1 to 0.

Harvard men will whisper after they tell you of that victory over the Red Sox, that those were the days when Babe Ruth, Ernie Shore, Harry Hooper, Duffy Lewis, Deacon Scott and others of like ilk played for Boston.

Ten years later "Mitch" returned to Harvard as baseball coach after a decade of managerial and executive work in the big league. His material was poor and his outlook worse than that. The Crimson in the three years prior to his re-appearance had won only 35 games. 347 Yale had won three series in while losing 40 for an average of a row.

Yale Succumbs

At Yale succumbed for the first time in five years that spring and continued to succumb the next spring and again last June.

Mitchell's record for the three seasons follows:

Table with 4 columns: Year, Won, Lost, P. C. 1926 15 7 .682, 1927 25 5 .833, 1928 14 10 .583

His total record for the four years at Cambridge includes 50 victories and 25 losses for an average of .662. Baseball critics give Mitchell high praise for his results because Harvard students come from exclusive prep schools and do not play sandlot baseball. They are decidedly "iron" when "Mitch" gets them.

This past year, the Crimson won 11 of the first thirteen games on the list, then indulged in a slight slump and came back strongly in the Yale series with the usual Mitchell victory.

FIND MESSAGE IN BOTTLE

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 23. (INS)—A note which may have been written by Mildred Doran, one of those who perished in the Dolis Eight, was being scanned by authorities today at Aberdeen, Wash., according to word received here. It was found by two youths on the beach at Westport, South of Aberdeen. The paper on which the message was scrawled was in a perfume bottle. It said: "Gas gone. Water running low. Been floating on wing tip four days, October 2, 1927."

British Net Fans Seeking To Change Wightman Cup To International Trophy

LOONDON, Aug. 23. (INS)—The victory of the Australian women lawn tennis players over their British rivals in the international match at Bournemouth aroused tremendous interest in the British lawn tennis world.

A suggestion is now being made in numerous quarters that the Wightman Cup, now annually competed for by teams of women players from Britain and the United States should be thrown open to general competition, and in the same way as the Davis Cup.

Extend Wightman Play

The majority of tennis players on this side believe that the donor of the Wightman Cup would welcome such an extension in connection with the trophy and would be only too pleased to show her appreciation of the way in which her original gift has benefited lawn tennis among women of all nationalities.

Since Mrs. Wightman donated the cup, women's lawn tennis has become revolutionized, and the general standard of play is well worthy of a great international competition. There is no doubt that such an event would rival the popularity of the Davis Cup itself.

English Reporters Decline To Leave Tunney To Himself

LOONDON, Aug. 23. (INS)—Being a celebrity does not please Gene Tunney, former heavyweigh boxing champion. He wants privacy and lots of it. The existence of the gold fish in the bowl means nothing to him.

Ever since Tunney arrived in London yesterday morning he has been the center of attraction. Very much to his disgust. When he started for Ireland this morning he said he hoped to avoid any publicity on the trip. His desire was disregarded entirely.

Before leaving London Tunney gave his own son to an audience of the newspaper correspondents. "My chief desire is to sink as far into obscurity as possible," said he. "I am through with public life and I cannot understand why newspapermen should be trying to give publicity to me. I am a private citizen now. I am going to Ireland to visit the scene of my parents' birth. There is nothing sensational about that. That is an ordinary trip."

Tunney checked out from the Savoy Hotel unobserved. He caught the 8:30 boat train at Foston station traveling as unobtrusively as possible. He was due to reach Dublin in the middle of the afternoon.

For A Bean-Like Silhouette

WHEN the doctor looks at you and says with a twinkle in his eyes, "What you need is to sit less and to exercise more," just read him this dietary aid when he approves it, go home with the assurance that in a few days the roly-poly tomato will help to give you a bean-like silhouette.

What more joyful feeling is there for a woman than to notice how a handsome fellow she has as she saunters along forest walks, or gallops down the road a horseback.

Tomatoes Aid Slimness

In this regimen one has the benefit of the healthful tomato which is high in vitamin content, and which contains healthful, soluble minerals. These help keep the body in comfort during the dieting process. Another pleasant feature of this diet is that it is not a hard drawn out process, lasting over months. Instead, it is followed faithfully for four days. Then ordinary meals are taken—only don't make them too large. The next week the diet is adhered to for only one day. Following that, the one day a week system is followed until the weight is as it should be and remains stationary. Water may be drunk as desired between meals.

And here is the diet, itself, of which a few cans of tomatoes, spinach and stringless beans are the mainstay.

Breakfast: Sliced or stewed tomatoes without salt or vinegar. Clear coffee.

Dinner (at noon): Spinach, string beans, lettuce, two boiled or poached eggs. Salt and pepper. Tea with lemon.

Supper: Sliced or stewed tomatoes. One boiled, or poached egg. Clear coffee.

COTTON FIGURES GIVEN WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. (INS)—The Census Bureau today issued the following report showing the number of bales of cotton ginned to Aug. 16, from the crops of 1928 and 1927, respectively: Total running bales, counting 289,520 and 455,200 round, as half bales. Round bales included 5,844 and 10,940.

men over the British team came as no surprise. It had been foreseen by the Wimbledon victories of Miss Akhurst and Miss Boyd over Miss Eileen Bennett and Mrs. Watson in the singles.

Puzzling Player Miss Akhurst, the Australian champion, is the most misleading and puzzling woman player seen for years. When she beat Miss Helen Jacobs and Miss Bennett at Wimbledon it seemed to the on-lookers that her opponents need only advance to the net to drive her clean off the court. Then it gradually dawned that the apparently "soft" stuff that was coming over was of the "attacking" order. However it came from the base-line and that, combined with this, was one of the most obstinate and efficient defenses ever displayed by a woman.

Miss Akhurst retrieves practically every thing, and, after all, this is 90 per cent of championship match winning. Her colleague, Miss Boyd, is almost equally hard to beat, and she fights every stroke from the start to the finish. In addition, the merry sporting demeanor of both players on the court makes them a pleasure to watch.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

A HAPPY FATHER—The father of the righteous shall greatly rejoice; and he that begetteth a wise child shall have joy of him. Prov. 23:24.

PRAYER: For fathers that are happy and children that are worthy we thank the Lord.

Heavens and Hells
 By the Great God, gave us power and choice—
 Each for himself with but the still small voice

Of ourselves as a tutor, here to make our own
 Eternal Hells and Heavens—
 And on us alone—
 Each for himself depends the kind

Of Hell or Heaven we may hold in mind,
 And build—to live in through the ages yet
 To be, Oh, we must never once forget

They are unfinished here—the rudiments,
 The frame and the foundation of intents
 And purposes, of love and hates, of all

Even in the pictures on the living wall—
 The inner spirit-nature of us—
 And we take
 This Hell or Heaven begun with us

To make
 It fit—and fitting through the worlds to come
 Of quality and size to match us—for a Home!

—D. C. Hickey

The Dixie Association of Deaf is holding a convention in Raleigh, N. C. They ought to have a nice, quiet session.

Now they are proposing a monument to the former Kaiser. But that's not any worse than the suggestion that a memorial tablet be erected to the guy who invented the wheel.

Our office boy says did you ever notice how quickly these husbands who are always emphasizing the fact that they are boys in their families, respond to every beck and call of their wives?

Numerous papers have carried pictures of Gene Tunney about to board a ship sailing for Europe. Let's see, now, wasn't it Mr. Tunney who said he wasn't going to be photographed any more?

With two knockouts in one evening to his credit, it would seem that Tom Mix should, by all means, be included in the list of contenders for the title recently vacated by Gene Tunney.

Miami Beach's building permits for the first six months this year totalled more than those of any other southern city except Atlanta. That's a pretty good indication of what they expect to do down there this winter.

All Smith is awaiting the nation's reaction to his bold stand in behalf of modification of the Dry law, and despite the fact that he received several thousand congratulatory messages, the Government may learn that there is also a widespread resentment to his wet views.

The Marianna Florida says Senator J. Parrish of Titusville is already being mentioned seriously for governor in 1932. Senator Parrish has made an outstanding record as a legislator and we can think of no one any better qualified to follow in the footsteps of Doyle Carlton four years from now.

Charlie Bachman's announcement that in the future the Floridaators will play at least one international football game will be received with approval by university supporters, who feel that the school and state can receive much favorable publicity from such contests. In 1929 the Gators will journey to Cambridge to play the Crimson for the first time since 1923.

Climbing "The Ladder" To Failure

The curtain is about to be rung down on the most colossal failure ever recorded in the theatrical world. On November 1 "The Ladder," a play that has been on Broadway for two years, will close after more than a million and a half dollars have been lost on its production. Back of its ill success lies a story unique in the annals of Broadway.

It was in October, 1926, that "The Ladder," written by J. Frank Davis, a Texas newspaperman, was first shown in New York. Edgar B. Davis, a wealthy oil man, became its financial backer because he was a staunch believer in reincarnation, the theme of the play. The production attracted little attention from the public and was given less encouragement by the critics. Shortly after the opening it was decided to offer large cash prizes for the best letters on the offering from persons who had witnessed the performance. This plan stimulated an attendance for awhile but it later slumped badly.

During the summer of 1927, Davis announced that his play would be on the free list. The public, which figured "The Ladder" as a paid entertainment while it browsed listlessly from one theater to another, flocked to it in great numbers when no admission charge was made. Encouraged by the packed audiences day after day, Davis ordered the play rewritten and put back on a cash basis. The box office awaited patrons in vain, and the throngs that filled the theater when the show was free, dwindled to a mere handful. A few days ago, the financial backer called from Warsaw that the production would close soon.

Davis' persistence in staging the show forms an interesting chapter in the history of blasé Broadway. It was the first production ever to have played free; it is the first play ever to have lost such a huge sum. Incidentally it is the first time Mr. Davis has ever given up anything as a failure. He waited for fifteen years to make his fortune in a rubber venture in Sumatra, and later drilled for oil in Texas at a location that experts said could not possibly yield anything but sand. His persistence was rewarded by a well that pushed forth twelve millions in cash. Thus we find the wealthy oil man admitting defeat for the first time. He has had enough, but it cost him a fortune to permit his idealistic and artistic aims to overcome sound business principles.

Florida Agriculture Compared

In enumerating the advantages of this state it is always well to have some basis of comparison, and this basis has been found abundantly in figures showing Florida's average yield per acre on some of the staple crops raised also in the north. A survey of the figures, which have added meaning in having come from the banking interests of the state, illustrates the variety of farm products for which Florida is fitted agriculturally and shows also the extent to which Florida excels in their production.

Some figures in the comparison are:

	Average For Florida	Average For U. S.
Tobacco	328.00	159.68
White Potatoes	194.24	110.66
Celery	936.03	418.00
Sugar Cane	155.55	146.00
Cabbage	152.49	132.00
Strawberries	547.75	265.10
Watermelons	85.80	58.00
Cantaloupes	180.95	174.00
Snap Beans	188.96	140.37
Eggplant	404.75	144.11
Lettuce	234.35	147.50
Tomatoes	244.45	206.00
Peppers	478.50	241.70
Green Peas	170.00	165.00
Cucumbers	250.27	166.70
Hay	12.21	17.36
Corn	12.61	20.31
Cotton	28.30	31.40
Oats	8.83	12.80
Cowpeas	5.20	5.71
Peanuts	23.68	31.09
Sweet potatoes	78.00	83.26

Let no one assume that these figures tell a story of the ease with which farming may be carried on in the sunshine state. Florida farmers have to work as hard as do farmers in the north, perhaps harder. But the farmer who shares work has already ceased to farm and doesn't count. They mean that the farmer's work in Florida will bring greater returns. This is not a new discovery here in Florida. It is an old truth being constantly re-discovered.—Daytona Beach Times.

PRESIDENTIAL CHARACTERISTICS
 INDIANAPOLIS STAR

Much talk is being made about the personality of the rival nominees for the presidency—more than is usual in campaign years, because both men are well known to the public in general. Presidential candidates usually are the most intelligent Americans, of course, have heard of Alfred E. Smith as a popular governor of New York state and of Herbert Hoover, who did remarkably efficient relief work in Europe during and after the war, and who for seven years, as secretary of commerce, has served business interests of the country with much ability. But they do not know either of these men as well as presidential candidates are usually known in advance of their nomination.

These two men have been known to the public as men of official life, not as individuals, and it is because the voters of the subject are curious about them and wish to know that so much biographical matter and so many estimates of their character are being written and read. The public notes that each one is recognized even by members and leaders of opposite parties as a man of high ability in certain lines, and also learns that each is a man of marked characteristics not at all resembling the other.

Who chooses of these men becomes president will become known to the American people as they have known other presidents at the end of their terms. And how unlike and distinct in temperament and individual quality these earlier men have been! Yet each one in his own way has been a representa-

NEXT TO GODLINESS
 LAKE WORTH HERALD

Cleanliness, referred to in an old adage as being next to godliness, is also good business. If anyone doubts this let him try the cost of building with unkept surroundings to a prospective tenant while another center has one to offer that is spick and span. From a purely mercenary standpoint there is every reason to be clean in more ways than one.

Civic organizations of Lake Worth have undertaken the commendable task of a general clean-up over the entire city, the work starting Monday morning. Cooperation has been offered by city officials in having the communication posted off or burned, the only requirement being that it be placed near the curb, so that the fire department be called in case the trash is to be burned. The city has been divided into man whose thoughts when he did not run such his own and his acts were in line with the own—a man who understood them.

districts by the clean-up committee with one club in charge of each district. But every property owner should regard his property as an individual district and see to it that all trash, weeds and undergrowth is removed, provided such things exist in his property.

Within a few weeks Lake Worth's winter visitors will begin to arrive, and as first impressions are always lasting, it is to our advantage that their first view of the city be a favorable one. Nothing recommends a town so much as clean streets and well kept lawns. All of us cannot have lawns but we can have a clean yard.

Only by united effort can the clean-up campaign be a success and every citizen should pitch in his hands, grab a rake, or a broom, and beat the dust and weeds fly. It will take only a few hours if everyone does his duty. The improved appearance to each individual home and to the city as a whole will be well worth the effort expended.

QUALITY BAKERS
 AMERICA
 This Mark Stands for Bread Goodness

Here is a bit of information that we are sure will give you a pretty good idea on why the Bakers of America, counting the membership of our organization, got together in a sound plan at the time of the war. It is a sound plan because it is with the human mind, and that means that all know that if we have rivals or competitors we would not get along any more than two men living under the same roof and in the same quarters get along without frequent jars.

Therefore, we began our friendly battles and our understanding, because we are strictly cooperative and mutually helpful.

So we get along peacefully and harmoniously.

After all, is not this the way to get along anyway, whether in business or in our contacts?

What is the use in wasting time in trying to be friendly with people who don't want to be friendly with you? Don't quarrel with them; just let them alone. Your example will help eventually.

We are the only members of Quality Bakers of America in this territory, and we mind telling you that we are very good about it. It is an honor that we prize. Let us upon invitation of our reputation had been to the acid test.

We were selected, not surely because we thought to occupy a place in this section. Our qualifications were determined in one very important conclusion, namely, we found to have HONESTY to co-operate in sincerely with others in order to become a better institution, so the ways we could give the very best quality products and regular and efficient service—moral and intelligent.

Quality Bakers of America insist that every member must consider first—and ways thereafter—giving public the best possible service and never to Quality Production.

We regard our members in Quality Bakers of America as having brought us a better and higher concept of our responsibility to people of this section that we have not always done our best by. Now, through the friendly kind of co-operation of other members, we feel that we are able to give a better service than we could if we tried to give it alone.

Our membership is as big a piece of good to you readers, as it is to us.

You get Quality Production from us every day—and one day and indifference next, but good all the time. This is an advantage to you and to us. You can depend on us and we can depend on you.

Claire Windsor To Be Seen In Picture, 'The Opening Night'

Claire Windsor has two leading roles in Columbia Pictures' "The Opening Night," which is to be shown tonight at the Milane Theatre. Through a strange coincidence, these two have many points in common and their careers touch at many places. E. Alyn Warren portrays the role of the husband, a theatrical magnate, who does the Enoch Arden stunt. John Bowers interprets the character of a matinee idol, leading man in a stage production playing opposite the heroine. He weds the wife of the producer when the latter is supposed to have died a hero martyr.

Both these popular screen players started their careers on the spoken stage in childhood, both began a long series of motion picture engagements under the direction of D. W. Griffith and both have appeared before in Columbia Pictures' productions.

Fate seems to have taken a special interest in moulding the careers of these two on similar patterns. They both have brown eyes, Bowers has always played leads in pictures, and similarly Warren has always interpreted character leads. Both invaded Broadway as featured players, Bowers sailing under the banner of W. A. Brady and Warren under contract with Frankman.

The Star 1915 was also an important one in both lives. At that period Warren played his first picture engagement and the same year Bowers made his first stage appearance as leading man in "Little Miss Brown."

Similarly, in private life both are interested in large commercial projects. Bowers is the organizer of a company to build airplanes and airplane motors, and Warren is the inventor of a fireproof building material which is bringing him in a comfortable income.

CITY ATTORNEY FILES CHARGES IN LIBEL SUITS

editorial "Public Confidence Must Be Restored." A paragraph published the same day is also cited. It reads: "What everyone is asking, 'Why is George DeCottes so at the Herald?' Because The Herald is trying to stop his gray train." Meaning to infer, according to the declaration, that The Herald thought Mr. DeCottes charged the City excessive and exorbitant fees for his services, and thereby further injuring his reputation.

The third count again quotes the same editorial but adds a cartoon entitled "Help! Help!" and subtitled "The struggle with the octopus." "The cartoon," says the declaration, "was that of an octopus with the head of a man, wearing spectacles, and smoking a cigarette, said head being an attempt to depict, picturize and characterize the head of the plaintiff (Mr. DeCottes), and the body of said figure formed as a money-bag with a dollar mark prominently displayed thereon, and wherein and whereby said figure depicted, picturized, and characterized as an octopus is represented as reaching out its tentacles and drowning certain unfortunate bathers in the sea—labeled 'Chase National Suit,' 'Excessive Bond Fees,' 'Exorbitant Taxes,' 'Paving Assessments,' and another of said tentacles is picturized and characterized as about to engulf another bather entitled Herald $25.00. The said defendant (The Herald) meaning thereby to depict the plaintiff (Mr. DeCottes) as base, vile, contemptible, villainous, and money grasping in his office and position as City Attorney—as a person of far reaching capacity for harm."

The fourth count cites the cartoon entitled "There Are None So Blind" which pictures the City Attorney as a "dog leading the City Commission blindly into oblivion," according to the declaration.

The fifth count cites the paragraph of July 12: "We understand that Forrest Lake is highly impressed at the linking of his name with the name of George DeCottes in that editorial last night." In this paragraph, states the declaration, The Herald as good as said that Mr. DeCottes' character and reputation was such that one whom had been previously four times convicted of felony would not deign to have his name linked with the name of the plaintiff (Mr. DeCottes).

The sixth count quotes an editorial entitled "Costly Advice" and alleges that The Herald charged Mr. DeCottes was and is incompetent and unfit as the legal advisor of the City Commission. The count alleges that The Herald charged Mr. DeCottes with advising the payment of questionable claims to the Hutton Construction Company, with advising the increase of the City's bonded indebtedness, with advising the Chase National Bank to accept un-sold City bonds as security for a loan to the Seminole County Bank, and with advising against the best interests of the City.

another editorial, is quoted in the seventh count as insinuating or charging that Mr. DeCottes was no fit associate for S. O. Chase, a member of the City Commission, and as charging that the City Attorney was conducting his office "with dishonesty and want of integrity."

The eighth count quotes the "William Henry" letter published in The Herald on July 17. Three exhibits are attached to the declaration. One is the cartoon "Help! Help!" another the cartoon "There Are None So Blind" and the third, the two tables published in The Herald "How City Paid DeCottes" and "What City Attorney Got Year by Year."

Mrs. W. T. Langley, her sister, Mrs. W. J. Clough of Mountville, S. C., and Martin Teague formed a congenial party motoring to Titusville and Miami for the weekend. They will be the guests of Mrs. Walter Larriore in Coral Gables.

Mrs. Claude Ogilvie and her young son left Friday for their home in Fort Myers after spending a week in Sanford as the guests of Mrs. Ogilvie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Henry at their home on Magnolia Avenue.

No Credence Placed In Radio Messages From Missing Fliers

place. As no other airplane was known to be in the region, it was assumed that the machine was the Greater Rockford.
Daggaard Jansen, general director of the Danish government for Greenland, said that every effort would be made to run down and verify the report that the Greater Rockford had been sighted.
"Fikonesset has a population of only about 200 persons and there is only one white family in the community," said Jansen. "The village has no wireless communication, which would naturally delay news from reaching the outside world."
"It is significant that the villagers should have sent out word of sighting a plane at the very time when the Greater Rockford was missing. As soon as the news spread that a machine had been sighted a boat was sent to Gotho where there is radio station. From that point the news was spread."
Gotho is only 60 miles from Fikonesset but the trip requires two days by boat, which is the only means of transportation in that isolated region.
Director Jansen believes that a long search will be necessary before it can be definitely proved that an airplane actually was sighted on Sunday morning. This is due to the fact that there are so many inlets and boats on the Greenland coast that would have to be investigated. Fikonesset lies in a district which is dotted with small inlets in any of which the plane may have come down.

Danish officials said they did not want to create too much hope, as they are not yet actually sure that a plane was sighted, but they are inclined to believe the report.
It may be some time next week before there is any definite word. Hassell and Cramer carried supplies for sustenance so that, if they really did land in some isolated region, they will be in no danger of starvation for the time being.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24 (INS)—"We are safe, but food is getting low and we are using a generator for communications. Our position is on a small island near Newfoundland."
This is the gist of a radio message which Rufus Harris, amateur operator, declares he received at station, 9ccj, about 12:30 o'clock this morning, from Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, Rockford fliers lost enroute to Sweden.
Harris said that he sent A. C. A. (general inquiry message) and received an answer on a wave length of 49.9 meters.
According to Harris the call letters KHAH were used and the location of the transmitters was established as about 50 miles off the Newfoundland coast. A promise to "call tomorrow" was given in the sign off which added: "Regards to all."

Coveleskie Fails In Comeback Role; Yanks Release Him

NEW YORK, Aug. 24 (INS)—Stanley Coveleskie's dream of a come-back is over.
As the gray shadows settled over the stadium yesterday and a few hardy baseball perennials hung about the gates waiting for the game that couldn't be played, old man Covey sat in front of his locker, his head in his hands.
After a while he rose wearily to his feet, took a package of chewing tobacco from the locker shelf, and for a moment half fondled the dirty gray uniform that hung listlessly from its hook.
Then he closed the locker door with a bang, shoved his cap jauntily across his eyes and turned with a smile.
"Well," he said, "I guess I couldn't do it. Goodbye boys."
And Stanley Coveleskie left the big leagues stilling-smiling as he smiled when he came in.
For Stanley Coveleskie yesterday ended his Yankee career. He was given his unconditional release to make room for the new blood that Miller Huggins feels is necessary to the winning of a pennant.

William Denies He Abdicated Throne Of Balkan Country

BERLIN, Aug. 24. (INS)—Prince William of Wied, who was formerly king of Albania, declared in a statement to International News Service today that he had never abdicated his throne. This statement was called forth by the news that the third constitutional assembly, which will meet at Tirana on Saturday, would proclaim Ahmed Zogu king of the Balkan country.

Prince William of Wied telegraphed the following statement to International News Service: "Prince William never abdicated the Albanian throne and still considers himself king of that country. He maintains that his claim to the throne is legal and binding for himself and for his heirs and descendants. This claim is made despite the effort of Ahmed Zogu to obtain the Albanian throne. The majority of Albanian people still cling to Prince William of Wied as the ruler of the country. A free plebiscite for the return of King William should be held but it is impossible at this time."
