

WAR WILL BE DECLARED BY PRESIDENT

CERTAIN THAT CONGRESS WILL ACT WITH HIM TODAY

Washington, April 3.—President Wilson urged congress to declare a state of war existed between the United States and Germany...

There seems to exist in Washington today no doubt but what congress will back the President in his position and that war will be declared in the next twenty four hours.

The objects of the United States in entering the war, the President said, were to vindicate the principles of peace and justice against "selfish and autocratic power."

The President's address was sent in full to Germany by a German official news agency for publication in that country.

To carry on an effective warfare against the German government which he characterized as a "natural foe to liberty" the President recommended:

Almost practical cooperation in counsel and action with the governments already at war with Germany.

Extension of liberal financial credits to those governments so that the resources of America may be added so far as possible to theirs.

Organization and mobilization of all the material resources of the country.

Full equipment of the navy particularly for means of dealing with submarine warfare.

An army of at least 500,000 men, based on the principle of universal liability to service and the authorization of additional increments of 500,000 each as they are needed or can be handled in training.

Raising necessary money for the U. S. Government so far as possible without borrowing and on the basis of equitable taxation.

All preparations, he urged, should be made in such a way as not to check the flow of war supplies to the nations already in the field against Germany.

Washington, April 2.—Clark was elected speaker over Mann by a vote of 217 to 105. It is understood the President's message will refer to the traditional friendship for the Germans and that the Americans differentiate between the German government and her people.

Washington, April 2.—One of the most important periods in the nation's history occurred today when an extraordinary session of the national legislature met at the call of President Wilson to consider the relations existing between the United States and Germany.

President Wilson in his message to congress is making a personal fight as well as a fight for the rights of the citizens of the country. He not only wants congress to recognize the fact that a state of war exists, but that he be clothed with full authority to employ the land and the naval forces of the United States in defence of American rights.

The many friends of Hamel Tolar were delighted to see him here for a few days. He and his family are residing at Live Oak and like old Suwannee county immensely.

COTTON CROP IN SEMINOLE WILL BE BIG

CELERY FIELDS AND OTHER SOILS PUT TO MON- EY CROP

Some time ago in the columns of The Herald we asked why the farmers could not grow cotton on the celery lands for a summer crop. We can now answer the question by pointing to a number of farmers who are making preparations to plant their celery lands in the fleecy white, and with still others cultivating places that have heretofore been considered fit for naught but to hold the world together.

L. A. Brunley, one of the prosperous truck farmers has, seemingly taken the lead in the cotton situation, and while making extensive preparations to plant his trucking lands with cotton has recently purchased one hundred and sixty acres of higher land and has the major portion of this large tract now growing in cotton.

The road to the Lake county line should be completed this month and when thrown open the pleasure seekers will be able to make a circuit from Sanford to Eustis to Mt. Dora to Plymouth and Orlando, then back to Sanford, a distance of 102 miles.

Mrs. R. J. Holly, Miss Thelma Herber, Mrs. James Taylor, Mrs. C. H. Dinger and Mrs. Fred Waldman motored to Orlando Monday over the new road and thoroughly enjoyed the trip.

BRICK ROADS OPENED UP FOR TRAVEL

SANFORD TO ORLANDO OVER FINEST ROAD IN STATE

The connecting link of brick highways (gouted with concrete) has just been finished between Seminole and Orange counties making a complete brick roadway of some twenty five miles through the richest and most beautiful part of Florida.

Acting under a resolution passed the 2nd day of August, 1915 and ratified by the vote of the tax payers on September 6th, 1915, the commissioners of Seminole county are now building approximately 27 miles of gouted brick roads.

With the completion of the Ojiedo road some of the best agricultural land in the state will be accessible to the settler and will prove the equal in productivity with the famous celery lands of the Sanford district where annual returns from an acre will average $800 to $1,000.

The road to the Lake county line should be completed this month and when thrown open the pleasure seekers will be able to make a circuit from Sanford to Eustis to Mt. Dora to Plymouth and Orlando, then back to Sanford, a distance of 102 miles.

Seminole county will have FIFTY TWO MILES OF BRICK ROADS completed by July 1st, making some of the finest automobile tours in the state of Florida.

NO STAND BY GERMANS IN FRANCE

HINDENBURG HAS NOT REACHED SUITABLE PLACE YET

North of St. Quentin the British are surging along the 20 miles front where their advance for the past few days, unaccompanied by any major fighting proved that General Haig is not yet in touch with the main German force.

The French seem to have relinquished the initiative to the British who are driving a wedge in the direction of the important town of Le Cartel, 10 miles north of St. Quentin and now just outside the outposts.

The Germans have attempted raids in the Arras sector, official statements indicating that there are important movements on foot on this the extreme north end of the French battle line.

Fighting is mainly in evidence northeast of Soissons where the German lines are being attacked, the breaking of which will lay bare the Gramme plateau the most formidable barrier to General Nivelle's further advance.

In the other theaters of the war interest centers in Mesopotamia, where the Turks have suffered further reverses and the union of the British and Russian armies appears to be on the eve of consummation.

An attempt by Turks to take the offensive has been crushed. Although official reports are meagre indications are that General Maude's forces are within 50 or 60 miles of the Russians.

A greater outside offensive predicted by the Germans has failed to materialize and there is nothing to show where such a blow will fall.

With the thaw of the eastern front there is little danger of German aggression in that direction and neither Paris nor London pays much attention to Rome reports that a great Austro German drive is in preparation on the Italian front.

There are persistent rumors, however, of mighty efforts by Germany to mass reserves back of the fighting lines and allied observers still predict that von Hindenburg will try to offset the effect on public opinion of his withdrawal in Picardy by a tremendous blow in some other direction.

WOULD MOVE STATE HOUSE TO ORLANDO

STRONG DELEGATES AT TALLAHASSEE FOR CAPITAL REMOVAL

The Tampa Tribune contains the following special from Tallahassee, under date of April 1 date line:

State capital removal will be made an important issue in the 1917 session of the Florida legislature, according to a delegation which arrived in the capital tonight from Orlando, having made the trip by automobile.

These gentlemen will confer with Senator Crawford and Representative Seth Woodruff and C. A. Roberts, in preparing the necessary measure for introduction during the session of the legislature.

One hundred thousand dollars has been guaranteed and a site for the buildings assured, with a probable quarter million more in cash to assist in defraying the expense that would fall upon the state if the legislation goes through.

Mr. Griffin was very successful with every measure that he introduced in 1915, and feels confident that some favorable action on the capital removal will result from this session. The party will remain in the city for several days, working on the matter.

Death of Carol Marlowe

The news this morning of the death of little Carol Marlowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Marlowe brought the tears to the eyes of the many who knew and loved this little darling so well.

Carol was just two years of age last February when the Baby Parade of the Seminole County Fair awarded her a prize for the float representing the daughter of Seminole and many of the visitors to the city at that time will remember this sweet and winsome child.

The funeral services will take place today from the residence on Fifth street, interment being made in Lakeview Cemetery, Rev. Hyman officiating.

The sympathy of the community goes out to the grief stricken parents in their dark hour of affliction for it would seem that the joy and light of their life has been suddenly taken away.

Interest in Waterways

Messrs. William G. Geier, J. C. Palmer and H. S. Lyons came to Sanford Friday to consult with Secretary E. T. Woodruff in regard to several lakes at and in the vicinity of Windermere which they wish to connect by navigable canals and to determine whether their enterprise would work in well with the plans of the Navigation District Committee and thus one bill be drawn for presentation to the legislature, covering their as well as the other proposed enactments.

Chairman of the Committee C. R. Walker was called into the conference and Secretary Woodruff has taken up the matter with P. A. Vans Agnew of Jacksonville, who is at present engaged in drafting the desired documents.

Waterway interest in Florida is increasing, growing and spreading rapidly, just as it should, for it is certain to culminate in the development of one of the greatest assets of our beautiful state.

Dr. Oliver J. Miller and Hon. F. L. Woodruff left Sunday for Tallahassee to attend the session of the Florida legislature.

It is gorgeous from a scenic standpoint and the story told is marked by high spots of romance, intrigue and intensely dramatic situations. In this drama Miss Brady appears as the big star of a Russian ballet and there makes a tremendous hit. The impresario of the ballet becomes infatuated with her, but she is in love with a young man. Love triumphs, but only after many obstacles have been overcome.

ALICE BRADY—"A number of people have asked me if I like act in motion pictures. I love it! And I love my roles in "The Dancer's Peril" particularly because they run up and down the entire emotion scale. I portray the part of a frivolous, fun-loving girl and I also play the part of a worldly wise adventuress who is the mother of a girl. They are splendid roles and I hope that my friends will like me in them."

TRIVERS VALE who directed the picture—"The double exposure effects in 'The Dancer's Peril' are something out of the ordinary" in fact they are very unusual. I believe that every one who sees this production will agree with me that these effects are remarkable. Like all such double exposures they were perfectly timed and we used several stop watches to get the correct time."

Alois Kosloff Of the Russian Imperial Ballet, who appears with Miss Brady in several scenes of "The Dancer's Peril." "Miss Brady is an artist. I have never seen such a success in motion pictures. I know that she could easily become one of the world's most famous dancers. She is grace itself!"

Those gentlemen on the outskirts of the mob are flabbergasted" by this move on the part of Patricia, especially when the strikers accept the proposition she makes them with vociferous cheers. Spied by the mob, they start to run, followed by their erstwhile friends, hurling volleys of curses and other things, and barely escape with their lives.

Patricia and Don return to New York wondering what fresh villainy Huroki will attempt. They are not kept long in doubt. The conspirators, sadly the worse for their experience with the strikers make arrangements to set fire to the docks at Black Tom where $7,000,000 worth of munitions in railroad car-await shipment to the Allies. Huroki seeks to it that Donald and Patricia are informed of the plot, feeling sure they will go to Black Tom in the endeavor to prevent the explosion and expecting that they will perish in it.

Donald does go, but refuses to expose Patricia to the danger. She, ever persuaded Riley, Donald's chief assistant in the Secret Service to go with her in the launch. The fire is started and there is a great explosion before Patricia reaches Black Tom. Donald has been knocked senseless by the explosion and is lying between two lines of burning freight cars in imminent danger. Patricia and Riley rescue him and the three make their way to a schooner moored at the end of one of the burning piers.

The piers are cast off but not before the schooner catches fire. The flame makes rapid headway. Donald, with Patricia takes refuge at the head of one of the masts. It too is enveloped in flame and finally falls overboard, and the lovers go down into the waters of the bay clasped in each other's arms. Donald manages to lay hold of a piece of wreckage and support Patricia on it. Lyric, Tuesday.

The Purple Mask!

Scissors of the great Universal Serial—"The Purple Mask." So that you may know what the story is about. Written and produced by George Cranand and Francis Ford.

Patricia Monton, in Paris, a society girl and niece of the wealthy Eleanor Van Nuts, takes her aunt's jewels to fool Detective Kelly who has snubbed her at their introduction. Going to her room to return her aunt's jewels, Pat notices the butler sneaking down the hall. On entering the room Pat discovers that the jewels have been stolen from her. Suspecting the butler, she disguises as a girl of the slums and follows him to the Latin Quarter.

Detective Kelly, hired by Mrs. Van Nuts, and knowing nothing of Pat's part in the jewel theft follows the butler to the Apache den. Pat, with her aunt's jewels recovered, bumps into him, dropping the jewels at his feet. Pat gives Kelly the slip and escapes through the sewers of Paris, and Kelly, satisfied with the recovery of the jewels returns home.

Mrs. Van Nuts' jewels and mounting Pat remarks on the likeness to the Apache den, being told that Mrs. Van Nuts does her laundry. Pat confronts her aunt and accuses her of being a spy. Detectives Kelly is again summoned. The Apaches, admiring the thief's exploit and try to locate her for their chief. Kelly is informed that the Apaches are going to crown their new leader, a woman, and tries to gain an entrance but is overheard by Pat and the Apaches, who escape.

Pat, through her desire to help the poor and needy and to keep her promise to her aunt, passes through many adventures, either outwitting Kelly or helping them out of tight holes. Enroute to America after straightening out a situation in an imaginary principality and helping Kelly to escape when ordered to prison by the ruler, Pat meets a young mother and her baby who is following the father of the child and his new bride, a wealthy society girl. The girl tells her story to Pat who helps her by taking the wife's pearls and making the husband buy them back from her for ten thousand dollars which Pat turns over to the young mother toward the education of her child.

In her new home in America Pat starts out with a new system, that of helping unfortunates by stealing from the rich, turning her proceeds over to the unfortunates and keeping out a small part as her "commission." Her adventures put her in all sorts of perilous situations, as they are not entirely "within the law." Pat's system would have involved others who were innocent, so she always left a Purple Mask after each theft or adventure so that the police would know that it was done by one person.

Pat regains the largest part of her aunt's lost fortune and returning her "commissions" she repents and casts aside her "system." "The Purple Mask" becomes a nonentity and the highly respectable Mrs. Philip Kelly takes her place. First Episode, Lyric Saturday.

Mrs. John H. Leathers
Noted Confederate Leader (formerly 2nd Virginia Infantry, Stone-wall Brigade, says:

"The Crisis" is a wonderful production and magnificently displayed. The "Crisis" portrays faithfully all the conditions of the times it represents, and today the sober judgment of our people is that Abraham Lincoln was one of the greatest characters that ever figured in human history and in that sentiment I believe that all my comrades who wore the gray will join. If the Union soldier is generous and liberal enough to accord to our own beloved Chieftain, General Lee, one of the highest places in American history, we surely who wore the gray can be equally liberal and generous toward Lincoln." Lyric Monday.

Col. Andrew Cowan
Noted Union Leader (Brevet Lieut-Col. U. S. V.) recommends to all admirers of a sweet love story, "The Crisis."

"The influence of 'The Crisis' is good," says Col. Cowan, "for the illustrations are pure and fit for the young and old to see. They inspire love of our country and veneration for great men who lived and wrought in the years of the great Crisis when the Union was in peril." Lyric Monday.

Mayor J. E. T. Bowden
Of Jacksonville, said, after seeing "The Crisis":

"I have never witnessed a picture in my life that I was so enthused with from start to finish. The acting in 'The Crisis' was without fault, and there is hardly a criticism that could be made. "In my mind 'The Crisis' has a great moral and will tend to alleviate a great extent the sectional feeling of animosity which has so long existed between north and south. I predict for this picture a wonderful success." Lyric Monday.

TO KEEP YOUTHFUL

ALWAYS MIX WITH YOUR WORK
A CERTAIN AMOUNT OF PLAY.

New York Expert Physical Director
Tells How to Avoid Growing Old
—His Treatment for Tired Business Men.

An advocate of play as a prevention of old age is Dr. Louis R. Weizsaecker, physical director of New York's West Side Young Men's Christian association, says Hawthorne Daniel in the World's Work.

"A man was in here just this morning," he said in answer to my question as to what he did to keep young. "who is in the 'old man' class, and in years he is young. Let me see," and he looked at a card covered with data concerning the man in question. "He was born in '81. That makes him thirty-two but he is as old as most men of fifty. With him it is overwork, resulting in 'nerves.' He finds it almost impossible to concentrate. When he starts along a certain line, when he wants to run along a single track, so to speak, he finds that his mind is continually turning switches that put him out of the sub-tracks. I am going to make him play. I am going to make him play until he stays on the main line. I'll give him a medicine ball and teach him to become so interested in that ball that everything else is out of his mind."

He stopped for a moment, and looked out on to the busy gymnasium floor. "Then some other men," he continued, "got into a rut and can't get out. Instead of being switched on to every sub-track by their minds, they are kept diligently at work on the main line. You have seen business men who could not forget their business. All the time their business problems are uppermost in their minds. When they come to me I make them play. I get them interested in something else. "Did you ever see a filter clogged by reversing the flow of water? The water going in one direction leaves sediment behind it until the filter does not operate at all. Then, when you reverse the flow, the sediment 'bolls' out, and always you are surprised to see how much was there. That's what play does. It reverses the flow, and it takes out of you all the groutiness and worry. "When I find that I am getting short and crusty in my answers to the boys around here, I go out and play hand-ball. When I come back I feel younger. I believe that a man is as young as he acts. He grows old because he does old things. You must have noticed how the mother of a large family stays young when her husband grows old. I believe the reason is that she plays young games with the children, while he sits with his newspaper and his troubles."

The Armenians.
The New International Encyclopedia says: "By language the Armenians, or, as they call themselves, Halk, are entitled to rank as a very old branch of the Aryan stock, in some respects intermediate between the Aryans of Europe and the Aryan peoples of middle Asia. Physically also they are of a primitive type, short and thickset, dark-skinned, and of exaggerated brachycephalism, in part artificially induced. They are thought to be related, on the one hand, to the 'Alpine' stock of Europe, and on the other to the Gatchas, etc., of central Asia. They inhabited in early prehistoric times a considerable portion of Asia Minor, and have contributed to, or borrowed from, Aryans of other types, Semites, Caucasoid peoples, and later intruding Europeans and Turks. Prof. F. von Luschan (1911) is of opinion that the modern Armenians are the descendants of the pre-Semitic population of the region, whom he identifies with the old Hittites. He also believes that from this same Armenian race came the so-called 'Alpine race' of Europe."

Women Win in Russia.
Moscow university, the oldest and most authoritative university in the empire, has ever kept its doors fast against feminine ingress. Now, at last, this barrier has been swept away, and the Russian ministry of education and the faculty council of the university have announced that hereafter women will be admitted in full equality with the men, in all courses.

The faculty council, in providing for this new arrangement, has stipulated that the woman students desiring to matriculate into the university, must do so by examinations held in the laws' gymnasia. The gymnasia, in Russia, cover the curriculum under and

The women's institutes prior, not as rigid as the gymnasia, and it is for this reason that the university demands that the women be put on absolutely the same standard as the men.

Heating Water by Electricity.
Water in a kitchen tank may be heated in the summer time without starting a fire in the range, provided there is electricity in the house. A tank in inch and a half pipe of the fifty inches long and of the one inch diameter, with a distance of 18 inches between the electric wires of the tank. When the current is turned on all the energy supplied to the rod is dissipated in the water in the form of heat.

French Operas.
The earliest operas in France were composed by Lully at the end of the seventeenth century and began at the beginning of the eighteenth century, but they were little more than imitations of the Italian style. The basis of the French opera was laid by Gluck in the latter half of the eighteenth century. (W. A. McRAE, Commissioner of Agriculture)

I have before me a copy of a letter written recently by a concern engaged in the manufacture of corn products. In effect the letter said that the firm could not supply new customers with syrup because the demand exceeded their factory's capacity, and that prices were advancing. Corn syrup is made from glucose, a form of sugar present in most forms of vegetation, but much less sweet than cane sugar. It is made by treating starch with diluted sulphuric acid and the resultant solid product is called grape sugar and the syrup glucose. The latter term applies to a large group of sweet compounds and is symbolized in chemistry as C<sub>6</sub>H<sub>12</sub>O<sub>6</sub>, so Capt. Rose tells me.

The commercial corn syrup is usually mixed with 50 per cent of cane syrup to give it needed sweetness. As easily as corn glucose is made—it being a gummy substance, and needs toning up with the real goods—cane syrup—yet, according to this manufacturer's letter not enough of it is run through the chemical retorts to supply the demand.

Sugar cane is grown in every county of Florida and the world is calling for syrup and sugar. Capt. Rose, our state chemist, has urged the development of the sugar and syrup industry in Florida time and again. Instances are common where syrup has been produced in Florida to the value of $200 and more to the acre. Why is there not more cane syrup made in Florida? Cane forage, too, is a good feed crop for live stock, made of syrup and ground forage and grain is brought into the state by the car load. Why cannot this condensed feed be made here? The freight north on the syrup, and the freight south on the finished product could be saved.

Incidentally, soil grown in the gardens, in the form of onions, cabbage and the like, is equally scarce and commands high prices. Under proper methods something can be grown in the open air in Florida in every month. The moral is, why are we not doing it and help to keep down prices and have more to eat? Never was there a time when there should be more activity in the back yard behind every town home in Florida and on the farms.

It has been well said that the average farmer keeps his garden on the grocery shelf, selling his own product at wholesale and buying everything at retail. That is what the one crop farmer does. Just as long as our farmers live out of the grocery, buy hay and feed for mules and burn stubble, leaves, weeds and refuse, intended by nature to make humus, just that long will Florida remain poor. The farmer who gathers his crops and burns the refuse is not unlike the burglar who carries away the valuables and then sets fire to the house.

An onion of ordinary size now is worth as much as an orange right here where we can grow both. With the smallest surplus of staples on hand known in our history, and unprecedented conditions abroad, which promises to push prices still higher, the year before us may witness more hunger riots in our cities. Hungry women and children have already made demonstrations in New York and Chicago.

Here is a country with 100,000,000 people, and more wealth—the banks bulging with funds accumulated from the sale of munitions of war and foodstuffs—with a greater variety of resources, and more intelligence and energy, than has ever been marshalled together in any civilized nation in all time, and yet there is widespread suffering. Another year of short crops as was the case last season and famine conditions will prevail. Does not the outlook demand more time and consideration to the opportunity Mother Nature offers to tickle the ground and create more stuff to eat?

Florida is an agricultural state, and yet staple food products are scarce, the daily rations are being unsmallled, and some of the necessities are not to be had. With millions starving in Europe, and the supply of foodstuffs in America smaller than ever before, and added millions more to feed than ever before the situation demands serious attention.

Playing golf and base ball, walking around a pool table, joy riding, talking politics and going to the picture shows are all well enough when the pantry is full. One available source to supply the pantry is from the garden, where not only exercise can be had, but profit. The old fashioned garden of our fore fathers seems to have gone out of fashion.

Why not offer prizes in every Florida town for the best garden? In an Oklahoma city last year an automobile was given to a young man who produced on his lot an equivalent of $1,200 worth to an acre. There were over 500 contestants and a total of many thousands of dollars of foodstuffs was grown, an amount which otherwise would have gone to buy canned goods from the north.

COACH DOBIE WOULD RETIRE

Great Pilot of Washington University Makes Annual Declaration Threat to Quit.

Gilmour Dobie, the great coach of the Washington university, is singing his "Good-by, Boys" song—again. Dobie "retires" at the end of each football season. But the opening of the next always finds him back on the job. Dobie's chances of retiring are what you call nil. He has been piloting football elevens for something like ten years and, as we recall, only one of his teams has been beaten in that decade. And Washington needs him.

Industrial Canvass Complete.

Both the war and navy departments have available the report of the committee on national defense, headed by Herbert Coffin, which made a thorough canvass of the industrial facilities of the country with a view to their utilization and mobilization in time of war. It became known only recently that the government was making a careful inventory of munition-making machinery in the hands of manufacturers throughout the country. Whether this report has been completed at this time cannot be said.

Absurd Old Laws.

An article in the Revue des Traditions Populaires in 1890 told how a glacier was excommunicated on account of the damage it did to life and property in the valley. In English law there was for many years a statute compelling owners of personal chattels which had caused the death of a man to give them to God. This was accomplished by turning them over to the crown to be sold and the proceeds applied to pious uses.

Island Ruined by Goats.

St. Helena, famous as the island prison of Napoleon, was at one time covered with thick forest. Cattle did not do there, and goats were imported to give meat and milk for the settlers. They soon ran wild, and broke themselves to the hills, where they multiplied by thousands, and browsed on the young trees and shrubs. Today the island is little better than a desert.

886,000 WOMEN DO MEN'S WORK

British Government Appreciates Efforts Put Forth by Gentler Sex.

ARE NO LONGER DOMESTICS

Scarcely a Trade But What Has Its Female Employees — They Are Even Replacing Men in Building, Mining and Quarrying.

London.—The far-reaching effect on the industrial and commercial situation caused by the formation of an army of almost five million men cannot be underestimated, and the government was not long in realizing the vital importance of maintaining the output of articles required for the war and export trade. The wonderful efforts accomplished by the women of Great Britain in taking the places of men who have joined the colors are known in a general way to the American public, but it is impossible, with Special efforts are now being made by the British government to give to the world a more adequate knowledge of the success attained by women in nearly all branches of men's work.

According to official statistics which have just been issued by the war office 800,000 women and girls have stepped forward to take the places of men in various occupations. This figure does not include domestic service or employment in the millinery or dress-making trade, nor does it comprise the women who have taken so active a part in Red Cross work since the beginning of the war. The latter alone include more than 27,000.

Women Munition Workers. A very large proportion of the total mentioned is, of course, due to the advent of the woman munition worker, and while it is quite true that many of these women are not, strictly speaking, taking the places of men, it is nevertheless an undeniable fact that they are doing what before the war was regarded as strictly men's work. Munition work, however, is only a part of women's industrial activity.

A high authority of the British government, to whom the Sun is indebted for these facts, is authority for the statement that there are very few industries or occupations in which the number of women has not increased. There are few in which some direct substitution of female for male labor has not taken place. The chief instances of decline in numbers of women employed are domestic service and employment in small dressmaking workshops.

Other important industries which show a numerical decline are laundry work, dressmaking, confectionery, printing and bookbinding, linen, lace and silk, but in all these groups some women are directly replacing men, and in many individual firms in these and other groups a decline in the number of women simply means that some of the women have left to go to men's work and have not been replaced.

In Every Trade. Women are doing the men's work in almost every industry. In the case of building, mining and quarrying they are replacing them in considerable numbers in most of the metal industries, though not on the main processes in iron and steel works. In the cotton trade no less than 25,000 females are returned as directly replacing males, though in other textile industries (except hosiery) progress has been less marked.

In the food trades there have been very important cases of substitution. In grain milling the number of women and girls employed has risen since July 1914 from 2,000 to 4,000, and in sugar refining, from 1,000 to 2,000, and in brewing, from 8,000 to 18,000; the increase in these trades is almost entirely due to the direct replacement of men by women.

Women are doing men's work in an unparalleled degree in tanning and leather working, sawmilling and wood-working, glass, china, earthenware and rubber.

One of the most striking new developments in the introduction of women workers into lands and financial houses. In agriculture the process of substitution made slow progress during the first 18 months of the war, but an acceleration is now noticeable. Besides the regular women workers there is a large increase in the number of fruit pickers, harvesters and other casuals.

Railway employment furnishes a particularly interesting series of experiments in woman labor. Before the war the British railway companies only employed about 11,000 women—mostly clerks, telegraphists, etc. Approximately 23,000 are now employed. The kind and amount of substitution carried out varies from one railway company to another. One has increased the number of its women clerks from 70 to 2,500, and employs also 18 women ticket collectors, 18 engine cleaners, 55 engine cleaners and 47 porters. Another, with neither women ticket collectors nor porters, has 120 women carriage cleaners, 175 engine cleaners, 220 laborers in the work-shops and 37 other women laborers. Yet another, with no women engine cleaners or laborers, has 142 ticket collectors.

Big Easter Edition Tuesday

Next week we will either be in the war or in the stew.

Sanford will have that tourist hotel started this summer.

Keep the White Way fever up to the right temperature and we will have it.

One way to keep the taxes down in Sanford would be to own the public utility.

If the merchants of Sanford would make next week a trial in Sanford Week there would be something doing here.

No, dear reader, the success of the Sanford colony camp has nothing to do with Bob Holly's nerve.

But, Chris, Codrington has a whole lot to do with "D." Land.

Germany's military might in Florida is higher here than in any city where he has resided. This kick is becoming universal in Sanford and something should be done.

Every city in the country is forming a public safety league, or reserves of some kind. Would it not be well for Sanford to wake up to the fact that war is here?

The Herald hereby nominates Capt. George J. ... of Arcadia to be commander in chief of the Florida Reserves. We served three years under him and know his worth as a commander.

Next week war will be declared and the Florida legislature meets. Subscribe for The Herald and get all the news as Newton Newkirk would say in the Bingleville Bugle.

If you can't take space in The Herald for the sake of your city don't take space in the fake advertising schemes that are being foisted on the public every week. At least keep your money at home.

"It is the patriotic duty of every farmer in South Florida to raise every sweet potato, every ear of corn and every hoof of live stock that he can produce for the next twelve months," says the Plant City Courier.

JUST ONE SAFE PLACE

An exchange says a wise nut has discovered that it is unhealthy for two persons to occupy the same bed, regardless of the fact recorded in the Book of Books, that Moses slept with his forefathers and lived to an over ripe age of seven or eight hundred years.

We are sure that no special significance should attach to the fact that the first forecast of Gov. Catt's message, said to be inspired and authoritative, appeared in the Palm Beach Post.

Please state, Bro. H-thorington, that Joe Earman WAS engaged in the liquor business in Jacksonville but is the squarest man who ever engaged in any business and when the prohibitionists wanted to know the facts and want a square deal they went to Joe Earman and received that kind of treatment.

Probably he was too much of a man to stay in the liquor business but by that as it may no man who knows Joe Earman will ever share the liquor business in his town with the idea of making it a good business. If now engaged in the newspaper business it will become other newspaper men to knock him on his past record.

THE SEARCH LIGHT

Billy Parker has quit the Free Press and started a little paper in Jacksonville called the Searchlight and promises to give out some news on the inner circle that will prove interesting reading.

"No one can fight the devil if he is under obligation to the devil. So if J. V. Burke took money from the whiskey ring he is under obligation to use his office and influence to have the Governor let up on that ring. Can he do it? Time will tell."

THE TAX QUESTION

Since the time that Noah landed the ark on Mt. Ararat and was taxed on the ark and animals thereof as soon as the land dried off the question of taxes has been agitating the public mind.

Our taxes are too high here and they are not conducive to more building. Equalization of city and county taxes will work wonders for all of us.

We hope the city fathers and the county fathers will give more of their time and attention to the assessment of taxes this year than they have in the past.

SHOULD BE NO DELAYS IF WE WAR

AMERICA WILL CLIMB RIGHT IN WITH BOTH FEET

Washington, D. C., March 29.—Senator Saulsbury, president pro tem of the senate foreign relations committee, issued a statement today saying the United States should loan its credit to the allies as a first war measure, abrogate the old Prussia treaties which Germany sought unsuccessfully to renew and do nothing to bring the war to an end.

"In my opinion this government would do its full share when it makes common cause with the allies. I know of no better way than that of furnishing the allies with all their food equipment and munitions until we are able through our own army and navy to exert at least the power of a million men."

Chairman Chamberlain of the senate military committee, with a white house engagement for late today, said he would ask President Wilson in his address to congress next week to endorse universal military training as a preparedness measure of first importance.

Impetus was given the movement for universal training legislation today when a call went out to Republican house members for a conference on the subject tomorrow.

Many administration officials believe public sentiment will not permit a long drawn out session for organization and committee patronage at present.

The President's recommendations would first be considered in the house, it is believed, leaving the senate to take up the matter. Various forms of resolutions to meet the executive recommendations will probably be the first work. Another reason for house action is that the resolutions adopted will carry an emergency appropriation.

A peculiar situation in the senate foreign relations committee with Chairman Stone opposed to action which would lead to war and the opposition of Senator Hitchcock, the next ranking Democratic member, to steps further than an armed neutrality manifesto, was another factor in the tentative plan to have it originate in the house.

The President has received recommendations from several cabinet members on points to be included in his address, and is preparing it in a preliminary way.

GERMAN ARMY SLOW RECOIL FROM FRENCH

SPRING WILL WITNESS BIG OPERATIONS ALONG THE FRONTS

The southern wing of the retreating German army is slowly recoiling along a ten mile front under the furious onslaughts of the French. The first section of the great Coucy St. Gobain forests have been completely cleared of the invaders and General Niox's troops are face to face with the last formidable natural barrier which lies between them and Laon.

traverse it but an important railroad sweeps around its southern border and runs north to Chauny. This road is in the hands of the French up to within about three miles of Anizy which is 10 miles west of Laon.

No change has taken place in the neighborhood of St. Quentin, where the Germans are still making desperate efforts to wrest from the French the Essigny Benay plateau, undisputed possession of which will in the opinion of military critics render the fall of the city inevitable.

Further north the French have made some slight progress but bad weather is reported to have seriously affected operations on this part of the front.

Sporadic fighting has taken place in several of the other war theaters but nothing to indicate the commencement of major operations.

Apparently the Russians have no need to apprehend a German drive on the northern front towards Petrograd in the near future. Warnings that such an attack was impending recently were issued in the Russian capital, but on German concentrations along this front and it had been thought that Berlin might take advantage of the disorganization of the Russians due to the radical change in the form of government and press censorship. The spring thaw has set in along the whole front, however, and operations on a large scale are impossible for some weeks.

Attention is attracted to the Austro-Italian front by rumors of a great drive. The probability of such an operation is being widely discussed in Rome. Some consideration in this connection is also being given points in the Franco-Italian front outside the zone of the great retreat. The Germans, however, are displaying notable activity in the Champagne region and Italy Berlin reports the capture of trenches south of Ripon.

Tango-Phases New York, March 29.—Investigating the strangling of Mrs. Eddie Lee Hillair, which took place in a New York hotel several days ago, the police department is taking a census of so-called "tango" dancers who make a profession of dancing women, especially those who are in dancing places, playing in compromising positions and then extorting money from them. Sixty-six names have already been obtained of whom nearly fifty are said to be former convicts. No others have yet been made.

BUSINESS COLLEGE NOTES

Modern Penmanship

The business theory that "bad writing is the sign of a great mind" has probably been the cause of a great deal of poor penmanship. Although the theory is losing ground there are still some who believe in it. This theory doubled came to life when public attention was called to the fact that certain men of great ability had a very poor penmanship. It is the fact, however, that good penmanship has been shown to be a sign of a good character.

A report was made on the handwriting of the students. A handwriting that was good in form, uniform in size, neat and spaced was considered good, no matter how slowly written or with what laborious effort produced.

There were several instances of handwriting that was not only good in form, but also in the use of the pen. A student who writes rapidly and neatly is a great asset to the business world.

The handwriting of the students was found to be generally good, but there was still much to be learned.

Mr. C. E. Nelson is doing good work in penmanship, and is now finishing his May work.

Mr. A. M. McDaniel entered the penmanship class last week. We are glad to have him with us and shall use every effort to help him in acquiring "Touch Typewriting." He has been taking bookkeeping for several weeks.

The test given in Gregg shorthand last Monday night was very satisfactory. Miss Faulkner averaged 98 per cent, Mr. Geo. McLaughlin 98 per cent, and Lovell Neuton 92 per cent. It is a pleasure to help people who are eager to succeed.

Our night work is surprisingly good and our record book shows that Mr. McLaughlin has not missed a recitation, and several others who have only missed one night. This is a splendid record for night students after serving the public all day, and is also very encouraging to the teachers.

The English class is confident that it thoroughly understands conjugation of verbs since we have been giving special work on this subject.

Mr. Hugh Tillis, who has just recently entered college is making good progress with his new work, especially penmanship.

Mr. C. M. Rayburn has been absent from school several days on account of illness.

We were glad to have several inquiries from young people concerning the advisability of taking a business course. This shows an interest on their part, and Mr. Van Gelderen is at all times ready and willing to give advice on the subject.

DIAMOND DUST

BY HANS WAGNER

The Outlook

The big league clubs will open their seasons on the 12th of April, that is providing congress doesn't send them all to war. Many a good player would make good soldiers for they all know how to shoot the bull.

Hans Wagner

While now rounding out his twenty-first year as a big league ball player Hans Wagner is now playing last base for the Pittsburgh National. Hans is now forty-three years of age and his record has been one of the best in the league.

Wagner was born in Germany and came to this country when he was a boy. He has been married and has a family. He is a very good player and has been in the league for many years. He is now in the best of his career and is expected to play for many years to come.

Looking 'Em Over

While out yesterday looking over the "events" candidates for position on the High School team we found two midgets playing together like clock work. One of these players was Robert Cobb and the other was Bob Hard. They were both very good players and were expected to play for the High School team.

Cobb though not a weak hitter can very much improve on his style of batting, and with this remedy to his style of hitting has a great future before him. One can first take a glimpse of his playing and very readily agree that great prospects are staring him in the face. Cobb keeps his steady playing mixed up with plenty of life and his voice is always heard around the diamond. He never has a harsh word to say to any of his team mates when they make an error and this alone has caused many players to stay in the game longer than the "crabs." Encouragement is a necessity in the game, and to have such a player on any team is a pleasure to the fans as well as the management. The High School may have had better third sackers in the past year than Cobb; if they did, they must have had a jewel. The writer has seen many a High School player perform, in fact some of the largest cities in the south, and we will have to say as an infielder, Cobb is just about as good as any of them.

LABOR UNIONS WILL HELP

American Federation of Labor Offers Assistance
Washington, March 29.—Mobilization of labor for government service in event of war with Germany was planned today at a conference of officials and labor leaders in the office of Secretary of Labor Wilson. Means were outlined and agreed upon for making readily available enough workmen to insure operation of government shipyards and arsenals and of plants working on government contracts.

Officials, profiting by the experience of England are determined that if the country takes an active part in the European war it shall not be embarrassed by labor troubles and inability to obtain skilled and unskilled workers.

The American Federation of Labor, which has pledged its membership to the support of the government, was represented today by its president, Samuel Gompers.

Through the Federation the government expects to get its supply of trained workmen. The United States Public Employment Service will furnish unskilled men and the Civil Service Commission will supply clerical help. The postoffice department will advertise the country's needs. The Council of National Defense, of whose labor committee Mr. Gompers is chairman, also will cooperate.

"The purposes of the conference," said Secretary Wilson after the meeting, "were to find ways and means to prevent overlapping of efforts in mobilizing the resources of industries for the support of the government. We are planning to work together, first, to find where help, male and female, can be quickly located for the navy yards, arsenals and for other factories of the government; second, to ascertain the fitness of any offered workers and where they best can be employed; and, third, to smooth their way to work where they are needed. In doing this we are working to avoid duplications of effort and to save time."

In obtaining men for men for service the Civil Service Commission, it was announced, will waive scholastic qualifications and will examine applicants for physical fitness and mechanical experience only. There will be no technical test.

In reaching the country, Secretary Wilson said, "the whole power of the Federal government of the American Federation of Labor will be available. Their officers and business agents have personal knowledge of the men and localities needing work and can speedily advise the working force. The Postoffice Department has agreed to transmit information and aid by posting advertising material also. The Civil Service Commission has a list of 4000 thousands of examiners and the country is divided for their purposes into twelve districts, the whole available force in each of which can serve in examining men. The field forces of the bureau of immigration, naturalization, labor statistics and children's bureau will be directed by the Department of Labor, to work as temporary examiners for the time with the regular officials and will largely increase the available force."

Beam in the Eye.
Many a child, as well as some older persons, has puzzled over that "beam" in the eye of which the New Testament speaks. It is not always understood that this means a beam of light. But it was left to Solomon Bernhard, in his wood cuts illustrating the Bible, published at Lyons in 1553, to picture this beam as one of wood, rectangular in section, and several feet in length!

RECOGNIZE THE WOMEN

England in Favor of Granting Equal Rights London, March 29.—Former Premier Asquith said in the House of Commons today that he and other members no longer regarded the question of woman suffrage from the standpoint occupied before the war. Mr. Asquith made this statement in moving the adoption of a plan for the electoral reform. Mr. Asquith said his opposition to woman suffrage had been based on reasons of public expediency. The women had "now worked out their salvation," he said. The war could not be carried on without them. What moved him, especially, he added, was the problem of reconstruction after the war. He considered it to be neither just nor expedient to withhold from women the power or the right to make their voices heard directly.

The fact that for three years there had been no recurrence of the "detestable campaign that had disgraced our public life," said Mr. Asquith, "would make it impossible for anyone to say that the women had changed their manner of campaign. With the exception of the actual bearing of arms in the field there was hardly a service which had contributed to maintenance of the Allies in which women had not been active and efficient as men.

Wherever one turned might be seen women who, without detriment to the prerogatives of their sex, were performing work which three years ago would have been regarded as falling exclusively within the province of men. "After the war questions would arise with regard to women's labor functions and activities in which the women must have a voice," said Mr. Asquith.

Mr. Asquith also supported strongly the other proposals for electoral reform and expressed the opinion that the recommendations that all elections should take place on one day, dealt with one of the greatest reforms which could be induced. He understood that the life of the Parliament would be extended further until the end of November and hoped that a new register on the basis of the present one would be made before the next election.

Two tables of bridge were played, at which the prize, a pair of silk hose, was won by Mrs. Norma King McLaughlin. Other members and visitors enjoyed a social time with their refreshments were served in the late afternoon. A variety of spring flowers beautified the auditorium and reception hall.

MAY BAR MOLLA BJURSTEDT

Proposed Rule to Prohibit Clubs From Paying Traveling Expenses Will Keep Her Out.

The tennis officials have become so badly affected by the "amateur mania" that they probably will adopt a rule at their coming meeting which may bar Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the Scandinavian star and champion, from appearing in exhibition matches throughout the country. The girl net wizard is comparatively poor. By profession she is a nurse.

Molla Bjurstedt.

Her income from that source is sufficient to meet her ordinary expenses of living, but not much more. Certainly it does not prove enough money to enable her to pay traveling expenses whenever she is asked to appear in an exhibition game. But that is not what the officials aim to force her to do.

Since she became a tennis sensation in America, Miss Bjurstedt has appeared in many cities in exhibition matches. In all such instances her expenses were paid. Being an amateur, she never received pay for her playing. She was glad to do that for the good of the sport, and there is no question but that the publicity gained for lawn tennis through her wonderful playing ability has brought a large increase in the number of women devotees of the game.

Heart's Necessity.

Welfare requires one or two companions of intelligence, probity and grace, to wear out life with—persons with whom we can speak a few reasonable words every day, by whom we can measure ourselves, and who shall hold us fast to good sense and virtue.

Well Hidden.

James, three, had a couple of pennies and forgot where he put them. He asked his mother if she knew where they were. She said: "I don't know, James, where did you put them?" He said: "I don't know, mamma, but it will be a good place, anyway; nobody will find them."

First Baptist Churches.

The name Baptist was first given to certain congregations of English Separatists which had recently restored the ancient practice of immersion, in 1644, but the congregations were several years older than that. There were two bodies of Baptists founded before that date—the Arminians, established by the followers of John Smyth, who had been a clergyman of the Church of England, founding the first General Baptist church in London in 1611, and the Calvinistic, or Particular, Baptist church established in London in 1616.
