Take two minutes today-

Today—have the oil in your crankcase checked at a Texaco Service Station. Let the Texaco man draw off a pint. Examine it with him for body—for purity.

If it is still in good shape he will tell you so honestly—frankly. If it is "winter-worn," thinned out by an excessive use of the choke and by "wet" gasoline he will suggest that you allow him to drain off the old oil and refill your crankcase with fresh Texaco Golden Motor Oil—clean, clear, pure. It has the full body to lubricate efficiently at any speed, at any temperature.

For the long run it pays to insist on Texaco.

The Governor's Message

The biennial sixty-day session of the state legislature is always a period of great apprehension for the people of Florida and, more particularly, for the taxpayers. On the whole our senators and representatives are men of intelligence who are conscientiously working for their constituents, but it is so easy to tack a rider on a bill or successfully camouflage an entire measure that one never knows when the state is going to be the unsuspecting purchaser of a gold brick.

There will, however, be no Connors Highway bills or salary raising bills in this session if the recommendations of Governor Carlton, as expressed in his message to the legislature yesterday, are carried out. Since the announcement of his candidacy for the governorship, Mr. Carlton has almost formed the habit of ringing the bell upon every state occasion, and his message yesterday was in our opinion no exception.

He has taken a sane view in regard to tax reduction. Calling to the attention of the legislature that the expenditures of the state government in 1928 exceeded its revenues by $2,500,000, the Governor suggests that certain costly and apparently unnecessary offices should be abolished, that the salaries of certain officers be reduced, and every possible economy in the operation of government should be enforced. At the same time a more equitable distribution of the tax burden should be effected, and a more efficient means of collecting taxes already in force should be found.

If Mr. Carlton's statement that "it is well to keep government out of business, but business principles should be employed in government," is to be allowed any interpretation, he is opposed to the plan for the operation of a state printing plant. The Herald has no job plant, and does not receive a cent from the state for this kind of printing, but purely in the interest of economy and firm in the belief that government should referee, not engage in, business, we are glad to believe that the Governor will veto any measure which would set the state up in the printing business.

Of equal strength and intelligence is his attitude toward lawlessness in Florida. He says, "Florida must make no surrender to nor compromise with the enemies of constituted authority. Agencies to establish legal proof of crime and enforce the law should be strengthened and not weakened. Florida should build on permanent values and not risk her future on a game of chance or a program of legalized gambling." Only in this way, it seems to us, can we hope to have a state safe enough for home building and attractive enough to tourists.

Governor Carlton will doubtlessly make additional suggestions to the legislature from time to time and if his other speeches are as sane and constructive as this one which officially opens the session, we at home can rest easily that matters of importance will be properly handled at Tallahassee.

Florida's Congresswoman

During the 1928 campaign the least that Ruth Bryan Owen's bitterest enemies could say of her was that she couldn't be any worse than Joe Sears, and in addition to that she would get for this state a great deal of valuable publicity. She has not yet been given the opportunity of proving exactly how she will compare with Mr. Sears in legislative matters, but she has already given this state more publicity than many a congressman could have in years of service. Among those that are singing the praises of Mrs. Owen is the Atlanta Constitution which recently said:

"When congress convenes next month Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of modern democracy's 'Great Commoner,' will occupy a seat on the Democratic side of the house of representatives. She will, with Mrs. Norton of New Jersey and Mrs. Oldfield of Arkansas, constitute the party's three Graces in the congressional arena. They will face five Republican lady members across the dividing aisle. The significance of Mrs. Owen's advent in a body in which her father once gave distinguished service is that she purposes to be somewhat of a 'commoner' herself, whether it be great or small. She has given it out that she intends to represent, to her utmost effort the vital interests of her Florida constituents, independent of party caucus dictation, if necessary.

A LESSON IN CONTRAST

It takes, as you may have heard, all kinds of people to make a world. A Boston newspaperman, visiting Miami recently, took a peek at two widely separated parts of Miami society and wrote a little story contrasting them. First he went to an exclusive night club, where expensively-dressed men and women were dining and dancing in one room and playing games of chance in another. There was a table with a roulette wheel. Most of the players were betting thousand dollar bills. One bored-looking woman in an evening gown sat nonchalantly in her chair and lost $15,000 in less than half an hour. Rising, stifling a yawn and lighting a cigaret, she remarked: "It's amusing how foul my luck is to night."

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II

The cryer tells the knell of parting day, The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea, The ploughman homeward plods his weary way And leaves the world to darkness and to me."

Editor Hanson of the Titusville Star-Advertiser won the Florida Press Association prize for the best editorial of the year. His editorial, entitled "Florida's Greatest Asset," will find that Editor Hanson is no small asset to Florida himself.

Someday, when hurricanes are harnessed and sold at a price per horsepower they will be worth advertising. According to Times the 1928 Miami hurricane had enough power to run every dynamo, motor and steam engine in the world for twenty years.

If the mouth is an index of traits of character Senator Parrish, who has been elected president of the upper house at Tallahassee, has poise, humor, concentration and a will of his own. He is glacially presentable in any sort of public chair.

The importance of being a member of congress depends on the member. Ruth Bryan Owen, enlightened, enthusiastic, distinguished, is making her own membership vastly important.

The most sensible thing Mrs. Owen ever did was to develop a style of public address and political method totally different from her father's. Where the Great Commoner was eloquent in speech his daughter is charming. Where he was sentimental she is scientific. She has convinced her countrymen that she is not simply William Jennings Bryan's daughter but a vivid, compelling personality in her own right.

Washington's Farewell Address was short but not nearly so short as that of Calvin Coolidge. "Say goodbye to the American people, Mr. Coolidge," urged a moviegoer at the railroad station. Jacksonville, rustling with springtime and better business, is acquiring a strange Miami complex. Florida's most conservative city is about to admit that the sun is shining again.

Removal of the fish houses and the railroad dock, which have for years occupied a prominent location on the city's waterfront, a long long desired and long worked for by many interested citizens is now an accomplished fact, the dealer having completed the transfer of their equipment and offices early in the week to the new municipal terminal in the western part of town where they now have what is probably the most modern equipment and facilities to be found in the state. The first shipment of fish from the new location was sent out Tuesday.

HATTON HAS EYES

What can be done by a Sheriff with eyes to see and ears to hear to check gambling was demonstrated Tuesday night in Tampa by Sheriff L. M. Hatton, of Hillsborough county, when he swooped down on the bolita joints and put them out of business. He worked quietly and arrested an even dozen taking over $5,000 seized in the game to the county jail to be kept as evidence. Hatton worked on the big bolita places, Benzin's and Pote's and when the little fellows heard that the big ones had been taken in tow they took to cover.

When Hatton and his men walked in and saw men gambling with money all over the place they did not stand in doubt as to whether actual gambling was being done. They began to confiscate the bolita and grab up the cash. Bolita gambling has been going on so long in Tampa that many people there have doubted whether it could be stopped. Some months ago the big three bolita operators were arrested, but when ops were acquitted, cases against the others were postponed. It seems, though, that Sheriff Hatton was not discouraged. Perhaps there will be a different outcome when the men are tried on the evidence he has gathered.

Sheriff Hatton has set a good example for the Sheriff in counties where race track gambling is wide open. If he can check bolita gambling in Tampa, the sheriff in Dade, Seminole and St. Johns counties, it would seem, could do the same thing around their districts instead of delimiting in doubt and doing nothing. Hatton went to the front and took the men to jail. The same kind of action where the tout and book-makers operate would do more in a couple of hours than a year's worth of telegrams and answers to telephone calls that could be sent in a year.

USES FOR COTTON

Although cotton growing doesn't mean as much to Florida as it once did, this state is still considerably interested in the fleecy staple and, along with the entire south, concerned about the development of new uses for cotton. Since women have almost stopped using cotton goods for wearing apparel, and D's supplanted the long drawn out type of underwear among the men, babies are the only ones in the family to stand up for cotton—and babies are almost out of style. There would be an ovulation of cotton mounting to the top of the tree if it were not for the uses of it in the manufacture of automobile tire fabrics and a few other things. The use of cotton for the making of hats instead of felt is being encouraged, while cotton bagging for bales of cotton is also a potential outlet for much of the staple—though this was tried two or three decades ago and resulted in state failure. In one of his later reports before retiring from his secretaryship of agriculture Secretary Jardine said that there is the strongest possible case and world demand for milled and strict middling cotton from 15-16 to 1-16 inches in length, and there is no competition from other countries on the length. So it seems that concentrating upon the production of this cotton would be much better for southern farmers than to compete with the short staple product of the Orient. Experiments continue with making cotton bags for fertilizer, while the use of cotton bags in the wholesale grocery trade can be trebled according to Secretary Jardine, who continues: "According to the best estimates available from three million more than a quarter of a million bales of raw cotton and cotton waste go into the manufacture of cotton bag in the United States each year. Most of these bags are used as containers in the wholesale grocery trade, since more than 200,000 bales of cotton are consumed by the trade each year. These studies reveal a large potential field for cotton bags were late in bagging is now used, and it is believed the potential consumption of cotton in the wholesale grocery trade is more than 600,000 bales of raw cotton and waste each year. It is possible the 170,000 bales of low grade cotton now eventually used each year for making fertilizer bags, while the demand of agriculture is in fertilizer bags, the use of cotton bags and other materials by power laundries, cotton products as refiners for sport trade and

IF YOU VALUE YOUR DOG

It has been announced that the inoculation of dogs against rabies by the city authorities will soon begin and that all dogs in the corporate limits of Columbia must be inoculated before May first. It is advisable that dogs be offered for inoculation well in advance of the date for closing this undertaking so that no dog owner in the city may forget or neglect to get his dog inoculated before the weather sets in. Enforced inoculation is comparatively a new institution and this ordinance has not yet had time to become a part of the consciousness of citizens to the point that it is promptly observed. Therefore there is always a last minute rush to get dogs inoculated and sometimes it is necessary to impose fines upon forgetful dog owners. Warning well in advance of May 1st such as has been given should bring prompt attention to inoculation in ample time. Last summer there was an unfortunate accident in the downtown section involving the severe mauling of several persons by a dog. It happened that one of the victims was well known to us and we observed that he was kept from his work for several days and had a bad head and arm for some time as a result of the attack, not to mention the pain, inconvenience and expense of submitting to the Pasteur treatment. Such shocking and dangerous accidents are not likely to occur when all dogs are inoculated at the very beginning of the summer season. It may be a trifling inconvenience to submit dogs for inoculation but it seems to us that such inconvenience should be the last thing in the world to consider when a dog's life is concerned. We cannot give anything more distressing than heart-racking than the thought that he has been the cause of the death of a child, or a woman strangled by a mad dog, or a child attacked upon a sidewalk, or the danger of rabies, which is a severe shock to the nervous system that sometimes takes place before the little victim reaches his pole. And sometimes he is left with an unconquerable fear of dogs that follows him through life. Without doubt every dog owner, when he thinks of the possibilities of danger connected with a pet that escapes inoculation, will not only to neighbors and passers-by but to his own family or child, will hasten to submit his dog to the veterinarian as soon as the period of inoculation begins. The large Frigidaires and other equipment for making ice cream arrived at the creamery this week and the store building just west of the creamery, which is to be used for this purpose, is being remodeled inside and renovated and the equipment placed.—Monticello News.

Cranberries All the Year

CRANBERRIES are not simply an autumn food which can be bought only at Thanksgiving time. To be sure, fresh cranberries are limited in point of time, but did you know that cranberries are commercially canned as jelly or sauce, so you can have them any time of the year? Cranberry jelly, just as it comes from the can, is a real conserve ready to use with game or food. Cranberries in either of these forms save the housewife from all the drudgery of picking over and washing them, boiling them, and for the jelly, rubbing them through a sieve.
Tart, but Sweet
The cranberry is one of the few fruits which has a fresh, delicious flavor and yet has a suggestion of tartness about it which is welcome in desserts and salads which might otherwise be too sweet. Cranberry ice, molded cranberry salad, and many other cranberry dishes may be made. Here is the way to make:
Cranberry Jelly Salad: Heat one can of cranberry jelly with one-half cup orange juice and two table-spoons lemon juice. Cook four table-spoons gelatin in two table-spoons cold water and then dissolve in the hot, melted cranberry. Strain and cool. Add one-fourth cup dried celery and one-fourth cup chopped nuts when beginning to stiffen. Pour into molds wet with cold water, and chill. Turn onto lettuce leaves, and serve with celery hearts stuffed with cream cheese.

Elks Minstrels To Be Presented Here Thursday, April 11

Rehearsals are well under way for the Elks Minstrels, the local theatrical attraction, which will be staged at the Milane Theater, Thursday night, April 11, and which will be presented on the following nights, which are being held in the city auditorium, where the "Elks" are going to put on the most profitable show of the season. The Elks Minstrel production of "The Land of Nod" will be presented here for some time. There are over 100 persons in the cast, which will be augmented by singers, dancers, and comedians from neighboring Elks lodges, and nothing will be left undone to make this their first annual minstrel show, the best ever attempted by a local organization, according to the announcement.
The first act, entitled "The Land of Nod," will present many comic costumes, and special lighting effects will be used throughout the act to give it a professional atmosphere. It is during the action of this part of the program that many Broadway musical hits will be introduced, interspersed with good comedy. A chorus of twenty-five girls will lend color to the entire production.
The advance sale of tickets has gone beyond expectations. It was stated, and indications are that the Elks Minstrels of 1929 will play to a capacity house. All seats will be reserved.

The Governor's Message

The biennial sixty-day session of the state legislature is always a period of great apprehension for the people of Florida and, more particularly, for the taxpayers. On the whole our senators and representatives are men of intelligence who are conscientiously working for their constituents, but it is so easy to tack a rider on a bill or successfully camouflage an entire measure that one never knows when the state is going to be the unsuspecting purchaser of a gold brick.

There will, however, be no Connors Highway bills or salary raising bills in this session if the recommendations of Governor Carlton, as expressed in his message to the legislature yesterday, are carried out. Since the announcement of his candidacy for the governorship, Mr. Carlton has almost formed the habit of ringing the bell upon every state occasion, and his message yesterday was in our opinion no exception.

He has taken a sane view in regard to tax reduction. Calling to the attention of the legislature that the expenditures of the state government in 1925 exceeded its revenues by $2,500,000, the Governor suggests that certain costly and apparently unnecessary offices should be abolished, fees and salaries of certain officials be reduced, and every possible economy in the operation of government should be enforced. At the same time a more equitable distribution of the tax burden should be effected, and a more efficient means of collecting taxes already in force should be found.

If Mr. Carlton's statement that "it is well to keep government out of business, but business principles should be employed in government," is to be allowed any interpretation, he is opposed to the plan for the operation of a state printing plant. The Herald has no job plant, and does not receive a cent from the state for this kind of printing, but purely in the interest of economy and firm in the belief that government should referee, not engage in, business, we are glad to believe that the Governor will veto any measure which would set the state up in the printing business.

Of equal strength and intelligence in his attitude toward lawlessness in Florida. He says, "Florida must make no surrender to nor compromise with the enemies of constituted authority. Agencies to establish legal proof of crime and enforce the law should be strengthened and not weakened. Florida should build on permanent values and not risk her future on a game of chance or a program of legalized gambling." Only in this way, it seems to us, can we hope to have a state safe enough for home building and attractive enough to appeal to tourists.

Governor Carlton will doubtless make additional suggestions to the legislature from time to time and if his other speeches are as sane and constructive as this one which officially opens the session, we at home can rest easily that matters of importance will be properly handled at Tallahassee.

Florida's Congresswoman

During the 1928 campaign the least that Ruth Bryan Owen's bitterest enemies could say of her was that she couldn't be any worse than Joe Sears, and in addition to that she would get for this state a great deal of valuable publicity. She has not yet been given the opportunity of proving exactly how she will compare with Mr. Sears in legislative matters, but she has already given this state more publicity than many a congressman could have in years of service. Among those that are singing the praises of Mrs. Owen is the Atlanta Constitution which recently said:

"When congress convenes next month Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of modern democracy's 'Great Commoner,' will occupy a seat on the Democratic side of the house of representatives. She will, with Mrs. Norton of New Jersey and Mrs. Oldfield of Arkansas, constitute the party's three Graces in the congressional arena. They will face five Republican lady members across the dividing aisle.

"The significance of Mrs. Owen's advent in a body in which her father once gave distinguished service is that she purposes to be somewhat of a 'commoner' herself, whether it be great or small. She has given it out that she intends to represent, to her utmost effort, the vital interests of her Florida constituents. Independent of party caucus dictation, if necessary.

"What induced her declaration is the need of the Florida producers of fruits, vegetables and other native market goods to have positive tariff protection against competitive producers in Cuba, Mexico and other nearby countries. She means to fight zealously for that protection, and in her decision to do it over and above the prescriptions of party leaders playing politics she will have many sympathizers and not a few Democratic supporters.

"Mrs. Owen may not become a 'great commoner,' but she will find comfort and continued popularity in being the friend and protector of the commoners who have first call of American markets."

A LESSON IN CONTRAST

PALM BEACH POST

It takes, as you may have heard, all kinds of people to make a world.

A Boston newspaperman, visiting Miami recently, took a peek at two widely separated parts of human society and wrote a little story contrasting them.

"I had to go to an exclusive night club, where expensively-dressed men and women were dining and dancing in one room and playing games of chance in another.

"There was a table with a roulette wheel. Most of the players were betting thousand dollar bills. One bored-looking woman in an evening gown sat nonchalantly in her chair and lost $15,000 in less than half an hour. Rising, strolling a yawn and lighting a cigaret, she remarked:

"It's amusing how foul my luck is to night."

"Her money, as it happens is derived from a great business enterprise—a concern that is noted for the low wages it pays, in which, as the reporter said, 'a request for a two dollar raise is front office business.' So you see she could afford to lose $15,000 in half an hour.

"Then the reporter went back to his hotel. There he fell to talking with a chambermaid—a middle-aged woman who is sending a boy to college. (ed whose home was owned by pieces by the last hurricane, and who buried out to her out, after a hard day's work at the hotel to a hammer and saw and try to build a new one. One hopes, somehow that the newspaper containing that report is story won't survive for future generations to read. For we have our pride and we would like to have people of the future think as highly of us as possible.

Some day, you know, archeologists will go poking about America looking for things that will tell them what sort of people the Americans of the early twentieth century were. There are a lot of things that will impress them (either favorably) hospitals, schools, laboratories, beautiful buildings, accounts of gallant deeds. It isn't hard to imagine some graybeard of the year 2500 concluding his researches with a burmured, "Hmmm—fairly civilized, those people."

No let's hope that the story of the two women in Florida isn't preserved. For the historian, reading it, would be moved to ponder rather deeply. He would discover that we had a topsy-turvy kind of world; a world in which all values were jumbled, in which money was the only thing that mattered, in which some people could never get enough while other people had far too much. He would see the essential rottenness of our dollar civilization more clearly than we-course you can see it.

And it may be, too, that he would say, after reading the story: "I can understand better, now why they finally went to smash."

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II

The editor tells the knell of spring day, The howling herd winds slowly o'er the sea, The ploughman homeward plods his weary way And leaves the world to darkness and to me."

Editor Hanson of the Titusville Press-Advertiser, has the Florida Press Association prize for the best editorial of the year. Those who read this editorial, entitled "Florida's Greatest Asset," will find that Editor Hanson is no small asset to Florida himself. This state, he says, "may pause at times to look back upon the passing years, and they will record eras of speculation, periods of rise and fall, in the tide of prosperity and happiness; but through it all will remain an unbroken chain of accomplishments from the pioneers of today and yesterday—of the men of the soil who live and build upon the simple philosophy that man's mission is to create for today and 'his future.' There's music in that—and marvellous good sense too.

Someday, when hurricanes are harnessed and sold at a price per horsepower they will be worth advertising. According to Time the 1926 Miami hurricane had enough power to run every dynamo, motor and steam engine in the world for twenty years.

If the mouth is an index of traits of character Senator Parish, who has been elected president of the upper house at Tallahassee, has—poise, humor, concentration and a will of his own. He is distinctly presentable in any sort of public chair.

The importance of being a member of congress depends on the member. Ruth Bryan Owen, enlightened, enthusiastic, distinguished, is making her own membership really important.

The most sensible thing Mrs. Owen ever did was to develop a style of public address and political method totally different from her father's. Where the Great Commoner was eloquent in speech his daughter is charming. Where he was sentimental she is scientific. She has convinced her countrymen that she is not simply William Jennings Bryan's daughter but a vivid, compelling personality in her own right.

Washington's Farewell Address was short but not nearly so short as that of Calvin Coolidge. It was almost worth while for the Palm Beaches to have their storm last fall since it has given them an opportunity to show how beautifully and wisely they can rebuild in six short months.

Removal of the fish houses and the railroad dock, which have for years occupied a prominent location on the city's waterfront, a long long desired and long worked for by many interested citizens is now an accomplished fact, the dealer having completed the transfer of their equipment and offices early in the week to the new municipal terminal in the western part of town where they now have what is probably the most modern equipment and facilities to be found in the state. The first shipment of fish from the new location was sent out Tuesday.—Punta Gorda Herald.

HATTON HAS EYES

What can be done by a Sheriff with eyes, to see and ears to hear to check gambling was demonstrated Tuesday night in Tampa by Sheriff L. M. Hatton, of Hillsborough county, when he swooped down on the bolita joints and put them out of business. He worked quietly and arrested an even dozen taking over $5,000 seized in the game to the county jail to be kept as evidence. Hatton worked on the bolita places, Bergin's and Peto's and when the little fellows heard that the big ones had been taken in tow they took to cover.

When Hatton and his men walked in and saw men gambling with money all over the place they didn't stop to think as to whether or not gambling was going on. They began to collar the boys and grab up the money. Bolita gambling has been going on so long in Tampa that many people there have doubted whether it could be stopped. Some months ago the big three bolita operators were arrested, but when one was acquitted, cases against the others were prosequed. It seems, though, that Sheriff Hatton was not discouraged. Perhaps there will be a different outcome when the men are tried on the evidence he has gathered.

Sheriff Hatton has set a good example for the Sheriff in counties where race track gambling is wide open. If he can check bolita gambling in Tampa, the sheriff in Dade, Seminole and St. Johns counties, it would seem, could do the same thing around their diggings. Instead of deliberating in doubt and doing nothing Hatton went to the front and took the game to jail. The same kind of action where the louts and book-makers operate would do more in a couple of hours to end play the ponies than all of the telegrams and answers to telegrams that could be sent in a year.

USES FOR COTTON

Although cotton growing doesn't mean as much to Florida as it once did, this state is still considerably interested in the fleecy staple and, along with the entire south, concerned about the development of new uses for cotton. Since women have almost stopped using cotton goods for wearing apparel and U. P. D's supplant the long drawn out type of underwear among the men, babies are the only ones in the family to stand up for cotton—and babies are almost out of style. There would be an overplus of cotton mounting to huge proportions but for the new uses of it in the manufacture of automobile tire fabrics and a few other things. The use of cotton for the making of bags instead of burlap is being encouraged, while cotton bagging for bales of cotton is also a potential outlet for much of the staple though this was tried two or three decades ago and resulted in stark failure.

In one of his latest reports before retiring from his secretaryship of agricultural Secretary Jardine said that there is the strongest possible case and world demand for middling and strict middling cotton from 15-16 to 1-16 inches in length, and there is no competition from other countries on that length. So it seems that concentrating upon the production of this cotton would be much better for southern farmers than to compete with the short staple product of the Orient.

Experiments continue with making cotton bags for fertilizer, while the use of cotton bales can be tried, according to Secretary Jardine, he continues. "According to the best estimates available from these studies more than a quarter of a billion bales of raw cotton and cotton waste go into the manufacture of cotton bag in the United States each year. Most of these bags are used as containers in the wholesale grocery trade since more than 200,000 tons of cotton are consumed by the trade each year. These studies reveal a large potential field for cotton bags were burlap or bagging is now used, and it is believed the potential consumption of cotton in the wholesale grocery trade is more than 600,000 bales of raw cotton and waste each year."

It is possible that 170,000 bales of low grade cotton may eventually be used each year for making fertilizer bags, while the development of agriculture is in-creased cotton bags as containers for fertilizer would be the use of cotton for other materials by power laundries, cotton product as a retainer for export trade and

It has been announced that the inoculation of dogs against rabies by the city authorities will soon begin and that all dogs in the corporate limits of Colquhoun must be inoculated before May first. It is advisable that dogs be offered for inoculation well in advance of the date for closing this undertaking so that no dog owner in the city may forget or neglect to safeguard his pet before hot weather sets in. Enforced inoculation is comparatively a new institution and this ordinance has not yet had time to become a part of the consciousness of citizens to the point that it is promptly observed. Therefore there is always a last minute rush to get dogs inoculated and sometimes it is necessary to impose fines upon forgetful dog owners. Warning well in advance of May 1st, such as has been given should bring pets up for inoculation in ample time.

Last summer there was an unfortunate accident in the downtown section involving the severe mauling of several persons by a dog. It happened that one of the victims was well known to us and we observed that he was kept from his work for several days and had a bad hand and arm for some time as a result of the attack, not to mention the pain, inconvenience and expense of submitting to the Pasteur treatment. Such shocking and dangerous accidents are not likely to occur when all dogs are inoculated at the very beginning of the summer season.

It may be a trifling inconvenience to submit dogs for inoculation but it seems to us that such inconvenience should be the last thing in the world to consider when danger to life is concerned. We cannot give anything more dramatic than heart-racking than for one to be that he has been the cause of the death of a child, or a woman mangled by a mad dog, or a man attacked upon a sidewalk, or the danger of rabid animals, a severe shock to the system, or a case that sometimes makes one tremble before the little victim's eyes. And sometimes he is left with an unconquerable fear of dogs that follows him through life.

Without doubt every dog owner, when he thinks of the possibilities of danger connected with pets that escape inoculation, should not only to neighbors and passers-by, but to his own family of children—will hasten to submit his dog to the veterinarian as soon as the period of inoculation begins.

Cranberries All the Year

CRANBERRIES are not simply an autumn food which can be bought only at Thanksgiving time. To be sure, fresh cranberries are limited in point of time, but did you know that cranberries are commercially canned as jelly or sauce, so you can have them any time of the year? Cranberry jelly, just as it comes from the can, is a real conserve ready to use with game or fowl. Cranberries in either of these forms save the housewife from all the drudgery of picking over and washing them, boiling them, and, for the jelly, rubbing them through a sieve.

Tart, but Sweet
The cranberry is one of the few fruits which has a fresh, delicious flavor and yet has a suggestion of tartness about it which makes it welcome in desserts and salads which might otherwise be too sweet. Cranberry ice, muddled cranberry salad, and many other cranberry dishes may be made. Here is the way to make:

Cranberry Jelly Salad: Heat one can of cranberry jelly with one-half cup orange juice and two tablespoons lemon juice. Cook over a spoon of gelatin in two tablespoons cold water, and then dissolve in the hot, melted cranberry. Strain and cool. Add one-fourth cup dried celery and one-fourth cup chopped nuts when beginning to thicken. Pour into molds wet with cold water, and chill. Turn onto lettuce leaves, and serve with celery hearts stuffed with cream cheese.

WOMEN WITHIN FAMILY BECOME LIGHTER Modern Conveniences And Culture Aid In Avoiding Drudgery

DENVER, Apr. 4. (INS)—Loneliness and hardships of pioneer women on homesteads have been lightened by modern conveniences, culture and advancement, according to Dr. Elwood L. Mead, national reclamation bureau commissioner, who recently visited Denver in the interest of undeveloped regions of the Rocky Mountain section.

"In the early days of homesteading shortly after the Civil War, conditions were extremely severe," said Dr. Mead. "Many women deserted their families or committed suicide because they felt that poor shelter, grueling work, and worst of all, the unaccustomed isolation were driving them crazy; loved ones became hated through constant association."

Automobile Helps
"In many sections, there were only four families to every square mile therefore every family was a unit in itself. But the automobile has changed that. Now they can drive over to see neighbors in a few minutes. The population in the most sparsely settled neighborhoods has increased to about eight families to the square mile."

Women's clubs have also helped in relieving monotony of homestead life according to Dr. Mead. In many, every community exists in a ladies' organization of some sort. In the older settlements, the clubs have gained much size, a few of them owning their own club houses, while many of them use church buildings or private homes for meeting places.

Blame for extreme hardships of pioneering was placed on the federal government. The United States system provides that a person must have $2,000 with which to get his start on the homestead.

Need For Loans
This is not sufficient, according to Dr. Mead, for the man to build a comfortable home, buy a work team, and make the proper improvements on the piece of land prior to the time it becomes productive. Most countries, Dr. Mead said, make loans to homesteaders until their land becomes productive.

The average age of a man who applies for a homestead is between 40 and 45. They do not apply at younger ages because the average family does not have that much money saved until then. Never is an application granted until it is determined whether the wife is willing to endure the hardships of the homestead. It is almost impossible for either a man alone or a woman alone, to prove up on land. It takes the combination of man and housekeeper, although rarely a man or woman does accomplish the task. Widows with a family of boys do better.

HOOVER MAKES FINE RECORD IN FIRST MONTH

Hoover has established a cordial relationship with party leaders, many of whom opposed his nomination.

To a question today as to how the new administration had started off, Senator James E. Watson (R) of Indiana, minority leader of the Senate, who opposed Mr. Hoover's nomination at Kansas City, said:

"In my judgment, the new administration has made a splendid start. His first month augurs well for the future of his administration. What he has one advantage, a comprehensive grasp of the situation, both as to governmental affairs as well as those of the Republican Party."

Several Democratic senators, asked the same question, declined to comment as did Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, the insurgent leader.

REBELS BRING DOWN PLANE

NACO, Arizona, Apr. 4. (INS)—The pilot and a mechanic on a federal bombing plane were killed today when a rebel anti-aircraft fire brought the plane down just south of Naco. Soldiers on the ground saw the plane drop and the pilot was seen falling. A terrific explosion in mid-air demolished the plane in a black cloud of smoke.

Sanford Bid For Industries Told In Trade Paper

dusty alone has caused many kindred and dependent industries to become established in this section.

"Create mills furnishing crates for celery shipments turn their cutting in the summer months to adjoining states' handling, drying and vegetable shipments near center market."

"Large up-to-date, electrically operated processing plants impossible to turn out, especially in large quantities of choice celery, automatically delivered to the refrigerator car door, ready for the Southern market."

"Hundreds of car-beds being loaded out each week create a heavy demand upon the railroad facilities, since Sanford has become the central point for the Atlantic Coast Line through and division headquarters."

"For the operation of all of these industries, there is electrical power in abundance, two large power plants being located just across Lake Monroe from the city of Sanford. The plant which furnishes power to the city is owned by the Florida Power and Light Company and has a capacity of 10,000 K. W. with an ultimate capacity when completed of 100,000 K. W. and furnished by the Florida Power and Light Company. The other plant, owned by the Florida Public Service Corporation and has a capacity of 15,000 K. W. and serves the city."

"The payroll for these various industries aggregates over four million dollars annually."

"Summing up Sanford's advantages from a business standpoint, it is apparent that the city enjoys an enviable position for the development of an important manufacturing and distributing center in the future."

"Sanford is provided with the best of water, highway and rail transportation available for bringing in raw materials and distributing the finished manufactured products. Two big electric power stations right at hand can furnish unlimited power for manufacturing enterprises. Both these power plants compare favorably with the best in the land. Labor conditions are good and Sanford's mild winter climate makes providing power fields weather unnecessary and also makes the housing problem of factory employees comparatively simple and inexpensive. Such work as is usually done out of doors can be carried on throughout the entire year."

Baton Rouge: La., Apr. 4. (INS)—The second round of the fight to oust Governor Huey P. Long of Louisiana began in the House of Representatives at 10 a. m. today. Fifty-five judges including the entire personnel of the supreme court were on hand to testify regarding article one of the proposed constitution.

The first article alleges that the 36-year-old chief executive boasts that he controlled the judiciary, and that he attempted to control the judicial department of the state government. His testimony caused that of a number of witnesses yesterday who declared Governor Long offered them rewards in an attempt to swing their support to his proposed gasoline bill.

At the second day's hearing got under way hundreds of Long supporters were pouring into the historic old capitol city for an all day rally in an attempt to show that the populace, if not the legislature, all supporting the Governor.

Administration leaders stated in International News Service as the second day's hearing got under way that they expected fully 20,000 Long supporters to attend the mass-meeting tonight.

GASTONIA, N. C., Apr. 4. (INS)—More than 5,000 textile employees through the industrial belt of the Carolinas were on a strike today in protest against the introduction of a so-called "efficiency system."

The latest major strike in the area occurred here at the largest textile center of the South, when five companies of the state militia were ordered but to thwart violence. Several hundred employees of the Lenoir Mill of the Manville-Jepkes walked out yesterday. The troops were ordered to Gastonia when local officers feared they could not cope with the situation. However, since the arrival of the troops there has been no violence of any sort reported.

At Greenville, S. C., employees of the Brandon Mills, rejecting concessions made by company executives, were still on a strike. Another strike was in progress at the Monarch and Otway Mills at Union, S. C. Mills at Buffalo, near Union, also were idle. Striking employees of the Brandon Duck Mill and the Woodruff Mills, in South Carolina, refused to return to work unless the "efficiency system" is abolished.

LARGE COTTON CROP PLANNED THIS SUMMER

It was a large quantity of the crop had to be plowed under to make way for the celery.

In order not to interfere with celery planting, cotton should be planted this month, according to those who have engaged in making the crop. The harvesting would end in September or October. Most of the cotton grown here in the past has been the short staple variety, which usually commands a price of 15 to 20 cents a pound. Efforts are being made now, to encourage the production of a longer staple product, which is described as being between the short staple and Sea Island cotton. Such cotton sells for between 25 and 30 cents, it is said.

A bushel of seed for the amount needed for sowing. The price is $2 to $2.50. Labor costs, including the price of picking, and ginning expense would push the expense per acre to between $40 and $50.

Insane Husband Kills Wife With Axe Blows

REYNOLDSVILLE, Pa., Apr. 4. (INS)—Driving into an insane asylum by Dr. J. J. Chiffen, 55, physician in a Reynoldsville mill, killed his wife, Gertrude, 49, with an axe early today and then shot himself to death.

Chiffen attacked his wife as she lay in bed, raining blows of her head with the axe which he had previously sharpened to a razor-like edge. The woman screams awakened their six children, the oldest of whom, Frank, Jr., struck the father as the latter fled to the living room. Placing a crucifix in his left hand, Chiffen then seized a revolver and fired a shot through his brain. Mrs. Chiffen's head was almost severed by the blow, while the husband died about an hour later.

BIG PROFIT

Classified Ads are popular for a number of reasons, they get RESULTS quickly, they are easy to use and they cost ONLY A FEW CENTS a day.

This small cost offers big profit to advertisers. Let us say you have a house that is empty; you have been renting it for $35 a month. If it stays idle for a month you have lost $35.

The average classified ad run for a month costs less than $5.00. Granting that you spent that much to get your house rented, you still have a good profit left... a sum you would not have had otherwise.

DANCING ENJOYS FINE POPULARITY AMONG TOURISTS

Old-Fashioned Waltz Is Being Revived By Riviera Orchestras

NICE, Apr. 3. - (INS) - Whatever may be the case in London or Paris, there seems to be no wane in enthusiasm for dancing on the Riviera where it is now taken as a matter of course in the day's pleasure at all the resorts around here.

A look-in at any of the smart amusement places at Cannes, Nice, Monte Carlo, Menton or Antibes, Hyeres and Juan-les-Pins, show plainly that the all-time small space given up to dancing in the center of the cafe, restaurant or tea-room has never been so much in demand as this season.

French and Americans seem to prefer one-step, fox-trots and waltzes, while the French, Italian and Spanish visitors do the tango. Billy Arnold's popular orchestra has re-introduced old-fashioned waltzes such as "The Blue Danube" and "The Merry Widow" and now and then an old-time polka is played which makes even the old folks want to wiggle their toes.

Interest in small yachting this season has been very much stimulated by the fact that the King of Denmark, on his annual visit to the Riviera has taken up racing at Cannes. He made his second triumph recently, when, steering "Dana" he won the race for six metre boats by one minute 15 seconds.

This victory was all the more remarkable because the "Dana" is a very heavy weather-boat and not suited to sou'west breezes. Upon his arrival, the King signed in the Golden Book and distributed the prizes.

The royal couple which is undoubtedly one of the most popular in Europe, is very often seen around the "louis" table at roulette at one of the Casinos or the Sporting Club at Monte Carlo. The King and Queen are also very fond of polo and frequently attend the matches at Mandelieu. The Queen is particularly fond of tennis and has her game every morning, seldom breaking the rule, even on Sunday.

Another royal visitor who has been attracting a great deal of attention this season is Prince Carol of Rumania, who is very much seen on the Croisette or the Promenade de Anglais with his famous red-headed friend, Mue Lupescu.

Mrs. Hooyer Runs Her Car, Sets Precedent

WASHINGTON, Apr. 4. - (INS) - Another Washington precedent was knocked galley-west today when Mrs. Herbert Hoover got under the wheel of her own private automobile and took several women companions for a ride in her new car, unaccompanied by chauffeur or the usual secret service operative. Old Washingtonians could not remember when the wife of a Certainly none has ever driven streets of the Capital. The new car is a dark sedan and has no distinctive markings or number plate. Mrs. Hoover plans to make extensive use of it. Accompanying Mrs. Hoover on this morning's ride were Mrs. Alphon Ochs, wife of the New York publisher; Mrs. Edgar Rickard and the latter's daughter.

New Spring Styles Will See Increase In Feminine Attire

PARIS Apr. 4. - (INS) - New spring undies are not as scanty as a few seasons ago, for they are following the general trend of feminine frills, ruffles and circular flounces. They are also much more elaborate, with heavy trimming of lace or embroidery.

A lovely new lingerie material is called "tigresse," which is a very fine silk voile but as durable as its name implies. It comes in all the charming new shades used for undies as well as new printed patterns which will be very popular for lingerie this spring. White satin is also being much used, trimmed with bands of fine linen.

The three-piece model continues to be the most popular, knickers bodice and slip in one article, with
