Clarification

Due to an error in information recieved from the school district offices last week, we mistakenly reported that all Seminole County students would be returning to classes today.

That is true for elementary and middle school students, who are not on the red track, but not for high school students.

The high school students do not return to classes until Wednesday morning.

We regret any inconvenience the error may have caused.

Housing plan resurfaces Nearby residents protested before, plan revised

By NICK PFEIFAUP Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - A controversial plan to have 104 single-family residential dwellings built on property abutting Mayfair Country Club will be coming back before the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday night.

The property is owned by Mack N. Cleveland and Patricia T. Stenstrom, with the contract buyer identified as Park Avenue Development Corporation of Winter Park.

The request already has a lengthy history. The original conditional use application was submitted by Park Avenue Development postmarked Sept. 1 of 1994. It was first brought up before the city's planning commission on Thursday, Oct. 20.

Because of objections connected to the notification of residents in the nearby residential community regarding the P&Z meeting, the matter was postponed. It had not been rescheduled for the P&Z commission until this Bee Housing, Page SA

Thursday's meeting.
When P&Z first heard the proposal, the audience was packed with persons who own homes and property near the proposed development. They voiced objections about several points including what they perceived as the small size of the lots, narrow distances between homes, increased traffic flow in the area, and the possibility of crime which they said could be brought in by this lower cost housing.

Sanford was soggy

Majestic parrot roosts in Sanford

Small colony of birds makes home downtown

Herald Correspondent

Sanford may have a new resident

– a parrot. Variously known as the Monk or Quaker parakect, a small colony of the birds - which favor the parrot side of the family, growing to about a foot in length, with grey heads and green backs, and characteristic parrot noisiness, flight patterns and nerviness - has commandeered a tree in downtown Sanford across from the marina and may have been popping up around town for years.

Calling all other residents - have you seen this bird?

Reportedly numbering 10 to 20 members, the group may be harbingers of good things ahead. like the partridge in the pear tree, or they may have more sinister overtones, perhaps like the winged villains of Alfred Hitchcock's horror classic "The Birds." Of course, the latter would be farfetched but the Monk parakeet has been severely disdained if not outlawed in other places for damaging farmer's crops.

However, it's more likely that the group will continue to delight rather than afright onlookers especially if their numbers remain small. And as Florida Audubon Society ornithologist Herb Kale put it, even if

Monk parakeets don't cat celery

What the parrots do cat is fruit and seed, and are apparently health nuts. Given a choice between white and brown bread, for instance, they would choose whole grain, said city supervisor for ground maintenance Patricio Sanchez, who has seen them in his job tending the lawns at the civic center: the birds perch in surrounding trees. The all-time favorite food to win their hearts is sunflower seeds. Sanchez said.

"Me and my son" — age 5 — "we see them mating." Sanchez said. "Even right there in my country when I grow up" — the Dominican Republic, where different kinds of parrots are in abundance - "I never see that. And I said, 'Okay, now we may have bables."

So apparently entrenched in Sanford are the birds that they have built a rather elaborate stick nest in a tree in front of the Sanford Senior Center which is in a wing of the civic center. "Our parrots." senior center supervisor Chris Usry referred to them, first came to roost for the winter about two months ago, then seemed to have been driven into hiding by tropical storm Gordon and more recently, the cold. But they keep popping up.

Pilot project clears dredged sand

TALLAHASSEE - Sixty-foot sand piles on once-forested Apalachicola River banks are being cleared away in a water management district project that has government agencies working together.

A federal agency had the sand dredged up to aid navigation. But federal and state environmental officials say the dunes

Now a Northwest Florida Water Management District pilot project will let Franklin and Gulf County agencies put the sand to use for landfill maintenance and road building.

"This project reaches across all lines of government," said Douglas Barr, executive director of the water management district.

The sand eventually could go for a variety of other projects such as beach renourishment or sand dune restoration, and commercial uses also will be explored. Harr said. The Chattahoochee and Flint rivers meet at Chattahoochee to form the Apalachicola, which flows through Blountstown and Wewahitchka and south to the Gulf of Mexico.

The sand has been piling up since dredging began in 1957 to maintain a 100-foot-wide, 9-foot-deep navigation channel.

Until two years ago, the Army Corps of Engineers used the river's forested floodplain to dispose of the dredged-up sand. The plies have transformed more than 25 miles of natural river bank into manmade sandbars.

Some of the spoil sites are more than 60 feet high, burying the floodplain forests that once helped retain flood water and improve water quality.

the endangered birds which migrate here are being disturbed by tourists.

Some people use signs marking nesting areas as firewood, said Nancy Douglass of the Fiorida Came and Fresh Water Fish Commission. Others bother the birds and allow their dogs to trample their camouflaged nests.

"I naw people setting up tents in the middle of bird colonies," she said. "I naw children and adults chasing baby chicks."

Some of the birds travel as far as 1.200 miles to law their area.

To protect the birds, Douglass is pushing to get Three Rooker Ber designated a critical wildlife area. The label means a site is vital to a particular kind of wildlife — in this case migratory birds which include the snowy plover and the least tern.

The designation would allow game officers to help state park rangers patrol the area, and simplify prosecution of people who trespase in nesting areas. Boaters still would be able to use most of the island. The state designations are fairly rare. The Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission has named 21 sites since the program

Chiles to take second term oath Turnout for festivities expected to be smaller

By JACKIE HALLIFAY Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - The first day of Gov. Lawton Chiles' second term of office had an agenda packed with events both solemn and casual, beginning with a prayer service and ending with a concert.

In between, Chiles and six Cabinet members were scheduled to be sworn into

The food, entertainment and ceremonies planned for today's inaugural festivities were free and open to the public.

But with competition from New Year's Eve as well as the Sugar Bowl matchup between Florida State and the University of Florida, inaugurai organizers expected a amalier turnout than in 1991.

An estimated 15,000 Floridians came to the capital for Chiles' first inauguration as governor, according to Molly Payne, a Chiles spokeswoman. Nearly 45,000 invitations were sent out to contributors and supportera, but all were welcome.

The bill for the inaugural was expected to be $300,000, Payne said. Private money was raised to pay for the day's events.

The inaugural ceremonies, presided over by former Gov. Reubin Askew, featured music, prayers, oathe of office, and a 21-gun

The "great seal of the state of Florida" was also to be delivered. Incoming Secretary of State Sandra Mortham was to present the scal to Chiles, who was to then return it to Mortham.

The street festival in today's ceremonies was designed to show Florida's ethnic and cultural diversity. Chiles planned to lead the way, with a short "Walkin' with Lawton" stroll in honor of his 1970 run for the U.S. Senate, when he walked the state to win votes.

One of the dishes available at the festival was he-coon stew, concected by the Florida Fruit & Vegetable Association with pork and chicken.

During an election debate with Republican challenger Jeb Bush, Chiles com-pared himself to a he-coon, the wily old raccon who knows how to survive the hunting dogs by preserving his strength.

Besides he-coon stew, the festival festured oposaum, gator meat, mullet, black beans and rice, or paella to name a few.

The day will end with a concert set to include performances by Billy Dean of Quincy. Bo Diddley of Gainesville and the Bellamy Brothers.

The year started off right for Senford police officer, Corporal Rich Pouvey, when he was recognized as the city employee of the month. Poovey receives the recognition from Mayor Bettye Smith as city manager Bill Simmons watches. Poovey is also the sertified D.A.R.E. instructor for the police department.

Cougars blamed in deaths of livestock

But state officials blamed the death on barbed wire. When another of his calves

Now Davis and about 250 other residents of North Florida have signed a petition saying the continued attacks on their livestock are making them fear for their personal safety. They want to see the cougars gone.

The state released 19 cougars in North Florida in 1993 as surrogates to the endangered Florida panthers, who officials believe once existed in the region and now live in the Big Cypress National Preserve in South Flor-

Though they are closely linked genetically to panthers, there is no shortage of Texas cougars. Officials want to monitor how the cougars respond to the area before attempting further restoration efforts of panthers in the region. A plan to crossbreed the two animals also was being considered.

Of the original 19 cougars, only nine still roam the area: four have been killed and six have been removed after stalking livestock or interacting with humans.

Residents accuse game and fish officials of covering up problems that raise doubts as to whether the panther protection program can work.

'They're not being honest," said Michael Carter, who lost seven exotic game animals to the cougars. "It's a lack of integrity."

Lt. Col. Larry Martin, regional director for the Fiorida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, denies any underreporting of trouble.

Binrting Thursday, Superior Court Judge Lance Ito was to hear arguments on DNA teeting. Then he will decide if the prosecution can present its DNA evidence to the jury, based on whether or not the tests are generally accepted in the scientific community.

Last month, Judge Lance Ito sided with prosecutors in ordering the hearing held outside the jury's presence. Jurers are to report Jan. 18, though the DNA hearing could last several weeks and delay opening statements until Fubruary.

Genetic teeting delives into the human cells left at a crime scene in blood states and heir strands. Each individual's DNA encodes unique combinations of genea that determine that person's identity. Only identical twins share an entire DNA blueprint.

Consider what's on screen

WASHINGTON — "Not much happens."

That's the theme echoed by several critics in their otherwise ecstatic review for the new movie "Little Women." "Little Women' is beautifully done," they gush. It is, they say, moving, inspiring and amusing, filled with fantastic performances. "But," they warn, "not much happens."

Could it mean that they feel that birth, death, love, marriage, laughter, tears and transcendence - the process of seeming to lose everything and finding oneself - don't amount to much? Not really, it means that for a whole movie, not one bus, helicopter or human being explodes. No one is shot, knifed, decapitated, maimed, stalked, drowned, raped, beaten or tortured. Not only do characters' body parts remain attached to their owners, but they stay covered by clothes. What the critics are saying is this: "Here's a beautiful film that's passionate, heartfelt and romantic. You may be too jaded and cynical too twisted — to appreciate it."

Considering what's on screen these days, it makes sense. But you know what's more unsettling? The hint that what's compelling and momentous in most women's lives - in most people's lives - isn't quite worth making a movie about. And I almost believed them.

That's surprising, because "Little Women," the tale of four genteelly poor sisters coming of age near the Civil War's end, was my favorite book as a child. My mother gave me a beautifully illustrated copy from her own childhood which I decimated through multiple readings. I subsequently devoured every novel by its author, Louise May Alcott, an abolitionist's daughter who was a prolific writer and early feminist.

But I was healtant to see the movie. These are, after all, the '80s. Who'd see merit in faithfully recreating a book about young women's inner lives — their dreams of love, fears for the future, their struggles with vanity. pride, selfishness and each other? A book about virgins, for goodness' sakes?

Hearing "Not much happens" further lessened my enthusiasm. Like the woman facing a reunion where she'll see the man she loved 25 years ago, I wondered if the story could possibly stand up to the memories.

"Little Women," directed by Australian Gillian Armstrong ("My Brilliant Career") stands up. The classic story revolves around the insights of narrator Jo March (Winona Ryder), a spirited but underconfident would-be writer both awed and challenged by her sisters' gifts: the burgeoning womanhood of Meg (Trini Alvarado), the kindness of Beth (Claire Danes) and the assured selfcenteredness of Amy (Kirsten Dunst).

It's funny how early images burrow into your heart's crevices. How much do the movies, books and magazines of childhood shape who we are? If the answer is "a lot," every kid in America should see "Little Women.

Watching it in a darkened theater on Christmas Eve - with dozens of other Kleenex-clutching women and a smattering of men - I suddenly was 12 again. I pondered that I'm more like the blunt, impulsive Jo than scifiess Beth - and wasn't pleased. I remembered where a phrase that has resonated for decades

- "Don't let the sun go down on your anger" - originated. I held my breath to keep from sobbing at certain heart. aqueezing moments. As characters reflected on gains, losses and missed opportunities, 1 reflected on mine. 1 left 'Little Women" feeling better, wanting to be better. All in all, I had a great, girlish time.

It was

table-turning

Of course, there are lots of men, like the one who first insisted that I see the movie, who honor life's small wonders. But increasingly, the culture refuses to — hypnotized as it is by ever-more-wizardly special effects, stupid sex tricks and the "thrill" of cringing at yet another creative way to kill.

I love a good action pic as much as the next gal. But if there's no balance, no celebration of what's necessary and entertaining in inaction. where will we be?

I made a decision. As a wife and mom in a houseful of guys, I've sat through a jillion movies about trucks diving, kids jiving, athletes triumphing and cowboys, psychos, gangaters and everyday Joes opening fire on each other. It was table-turning time.

I sent my reluctant, macho sona, ages 9 and 12. to see "Little Women." Breathlessly. awaited their verdict. "It was good!" reported my 9-year-old, clearly surprised. "It was funny! But it almost made me want to cry."

"It was good," admitted my jaded almostteen. "I enjoyed it. Even though not all that much happened."

Have a madly happy new year

If you read my recent column oh the Christmas decorations dispute in Galena. Mo., I'm happy to announce that the ex-mayor discovered his Christmas spirit was bigger than his personal hurts and gave the decorations back to the new mayor so the town could sparkle. A former businessman from nearby Springfield also donated decora-tions that used to adorn a business district in that town until city-owned lighted snowflakes replaced them, and checks over the past couple of years (one time recently I filled "1962" in the year blank and have absolutely no explanation for the lapse), I expect it will be a decade before I consistently write "20-" without looking blankly at a clerk for help.

I'm also wondering why we're not making much fuse. When 1980 arrived, a full 20 years from the millennium, I was a reporter in a newspaper features department that treated the approaching century as if it were the landing of a UFO filled with opera-singing aliens on our public square. Speculation was the order of the day, and we milked it for al! It was worth.

Futurists were telling us then that we might expect to live our "natural human life-spans of 120-150 years as medical science got a handle on disease, that we would embrace alternative medicine such as visualization and psychic healing like pigs to a trough and soon see cloning in petri dishes all over the country.

Sexual taboos would disintegrate, and we would begin to have sexual experiences "aimilar to that enjoyed by eating, playing golf, travel or having intimate conversa-tions." The preceding statement came from sex researcher Lonnie Barbach, and, of course, predated the discovery of the AIDS

They predicted we would use these new alternative medical practices to require less sleep, and develop our telepathic senses to contact friends and loved ones. Looking back now, I don't find any futurists who foretold the coming fiber-optic doglight among tele-phone companies and cable TV providers.

One futurist did predict a decade of turbulence, "not only between marriage partners and within families but also in friendships, our work relationships and within the larger society." Woo-woo, big leap, Marilyn Ferguson. However, you missed the mark when you said people will "not expect to 'belong to' or possess another." You obviously didn't interview my girlfriends.

Dear old Willia Harman thought we would achieve an age of "creative work and aufficiency for all." He apparently didn't chat with any of the many folks I know who spend every moment of every work day waiting for the 5 o'clock whistle, then spend every scintilla of every paycheck and cry poormouth.
One lellow, science-fiction author and editor Frederik Pohl, did predict more involvement in politics, and that in a Universal Town Meeting tens of millions of citizens would attend through the electronic media. The aforementioned cable TV and telephone companies are ready with the technology, and the number of subscribers to cable network CNN tells us that idea ian't far

Ancient exploding star may have caused extinction

By The Aseselated Press

WASHINGTON - An exploding star may have caused mass extinction on Earth 228 million years ago by bombarding the planet with radiation that stripped away the protective osone layer, a scientist says.

An explosion of a supernova within 50 light years of Earth would bathe the planet's u atmosphere with powerful samma and coemic ray radiotion, setting off a chemical resction that would destroy the osone layer, says David N. Schramm, an astrophysicist at Recent research suggests that if the caone layer were wiped out, ultraviolet radiation from the aux could seek the un-protected Earth and kill plants, Echrosom said.

This, in turn, would break the food chain leading to mass extinctions, said Schramm, coauthor of a study appearing today in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

An expleding star about 186 trillion miles away would create enough gamma radiation to thin ne for many years, he because he felt it was "time."

During Williams' tenure, outreach programs grew to a record 200 presentations this year, he said. The program of which he was most proud is the Seminole County Third Grade Environmental Studies Program which through a grant allowed the zoo to bring every third-grade class in the county in for a day of

"Animals have class!" thirdgraders were taught, although "I think we lumped the fish together" in the animal kingdom categories "because the children are really more interested in the terrestrial" species, Williams

The zoo's education staff, including its prized docents, takes animals on outreach programs into schools. Of about 400 animals in the 200, some 25 belong to the education department's touring menagerie, Linn estimates.

These include turtles, lizards the most recent acquisition is a Savannah monitor lizard. anakes, hissing cockroaches, alligators — little ones, a screech owl. parrots, opossums. flying squirrels, a hedgehog, three bate, and a kinkajou, from the rain forests of Central and South America. The last, whose closest American relative is the raceoon. is known for its five-point hold including tail. Williams said. 'It's great fun to pick up because it's holding with five points and you're holding on with two," which can make it difficult to pry off.

camp for school children. "Now that schools are on year-round. we have been attempting to match it to intersessions" so that for $50 per week for soo members and $65 for non-members. a child can go to the zoo during the time school is out, Williams

Though Williams is "retiring" to be a docent again - and in a previous life spent 23 years in the Navy as a procurement and contracting specialist - he faces, he says with a certain amount of anticipation. "a rather impressive list of honey-do's" - his wife Ruth co-owns a beauty shop in Long-wood — and also looks forward to doing some serious birdwatchings, which he hasn't done in a long time, and nature photography. Williams betrayed nis "favoritism" when he said he thinks his favorite of the education animals is the screech owl and "I like to say we have four parrots and one real bird - I'm not a great fan of parrots." Why? "They bite me."

Anyone interested in becoming a docent, which is a once-a-week commitment and requires taking a demanding eight-week class , which earns three credits at Seminole Community College, is urged to call the 200 at 323-4450, ext. 121.

"Monk parakeets tend to be rather aggressive." Hylander continued. "If another bird appears, the colony will tend to gang up on it."

'The Quaker parakeet is the most damaging of all parrots," Hylander added, reading from the society's Encyclopedia of North American Birds. "They build their nests in the very tops of trees and are colonial. where they share different compartments for each pair" of parrots. Though officially termed parakeets, the birds, which more resemble parrots, "are kind of on the line between a parrot and parakeet," Hylander said.

Another bird observer unsurprised at their appearance in Sanford is Tom Williams, outgoing education curator at the zoo (see related story) because "I've seen them from time to time at the soo."

"Periodically in the 13 years I've been here maybe five to six different sightings" has Williams made. "One or two birds come in a period of a week. They're foraging." Williams charac-terizes the Monk as "quite a bit bigger than a, quote, parakeet."

Williams said he spotted one behind the SunBank building in downtown Sanford one day, too. "I heard it and I said. 'Wait a minute, that's not one of our birds.' They have a wonderful jungly sound to their vocaliza-

But wait a minute - how can parrot survive in Florida's albeit sometimes tropical, but sometimes very difficult.

going up at Park and Fifth. The Monk is the only parrot that builds a twig nest, according to Audubon ornithologist Kale: most parrots live in tree holes. Said Williams, "They all get in the nest and 'huddle' the cold out.' Additionally, the Monk parakeet is "big in the pet trade." Williams said - probably because they are reputedly "good talkers," especially the males, says the owner of one,

Mildred Coyle of Cusselberry. Coyle's Monk, "Max," whom she obtained in July from the Pet Bazaar in Casaciberry for $129, is "rotten," his family lovingly says - as in spoiled rotten. Though local pet shops deny trapping the birds, saying they come from breeders, there would be nothing illegal about it, the Audubon members say: exotics are not protected. "Monk parakeeta are not indigenous." said Hylander. "The idea of conservation is to protect native species." In fact, according to re-searchers at the Orlando Public Library, the Monk has caused such crop problems in several New England states that they have had their environmental agencies try to wipe them out. Not only hardy out prolific, breeding twice a year, they only make good pets if raised from infancy. "If you get it as a baby, yeah." Hylander said about domestication. "They tend to be nasty (when caught) as an adult. I've had a couple," But like Coyle's was, "they're wonderful as bables." Ornithologist Kale doesn't believe the parrots will pose a problem. For one thing, with crops left to plunder, and "so far nobody's complained." But if they did, residents could always take a time-, er, honored route and shoot them, which is what Sanches said farmers had to do with corn-eating parrots in his native country, and which aimed at birds in general, Kale says, was the impetus behind the Florida Audubon Society's Christmas bird count, which has been held annually since 1900. Kale was explaining how the Carolina parakeet "went extinct" in Florida "in the early part of the century - they were shot out in the late 1800s.

Though not necessarily to blame for its own demise, the bird was "dumb - if one got shot, all the rest came around and people shot them."

"People" in those days "shot and killed everything. On Christmas Day, they would come down the St. Johns River shooting herons and egrets just for the fun of killing something."

The Christmas bird counts got their start because people used to see how many birds they could shoot. They probably got new guns for Christmas and it was an excuse to use them."

But Audubon members and their like "got so fed up they said. 'Let's go out and see how many birds we can count without shooting them." Now done over a two-week period from about Dec. 16 to Jan. 1 in 54 state locales, the court's local tally is to be taken Dec. 31. Perhaps newcomers, the Quaker or Monk parakeets or parrots. will help fill out the bill.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

GOP ready to take over

WASHINGTON — As Republicans prepare to take control of Congress for the first time since the Eisenhower administration, one of their leaders is warning Democrats not to become the party that just says "no."

"We'll make mistakes," predicted Rep. Newt Gingrich. R-Ga., certain to be elected House speaker when the 104th Congress convenes Wednesday. "But the key question is what is it the Democrats would do for America, not just how well can they attack Newt Gingrich."

The flery Gingrich, who has spent much of his 16-year congressional career relentlessly criticizing Democrats, made his remarks in a taped interview broadcast Monday by C-Span, the cable television industry's public-affairs channel.

Emboldened by November elections in which not one of their congressional incumbents was defeated. Republicans are out to reverse the direction in which Democrats have steered the government for decades. They want to eliminate entire programs and agencies, slash spending for others and transfer power from Washington to state and local governments.

Abortion shootings

BOSTON — The man accused in three abortion clinic shootings handed out pictures of aborted fetuses outside a church and told the pastor that the Catholic Church wasn't doing enough to fight abortion, a newspaper reported.

doing enough to fight abortion, a newspaper reported.

John Salvi III is accused of killing two clinic workers and wounding five others Friday in two Brookline clinics, then spraying more than 20 shots into a Norfolk, Va., clinic the next day.

The 22-year-old student hairdresser from Hampton. N.H., was to be arraigned today in Norfolk on a charge of firing into an occupied building. He was to be taken to Massachusetts later this week to face murder charges.

The Boston Globe reported today that Salvi attended an anti-abortion demonstration and prayer meeting May 14 outside the Planned Parenthood clinic in Brookline that was attacked.

New strain of meningitie

WASHINGTON — A new strain of meningitis quietly made its way from Norway to Spain, jumped over an ocean to cause epidemics in Cuba and Brazil — and then somehow sneaked into Oregon and began sickening Americans.

Now the government is setting up the nation's first early warning system for these emerging diseases with regional detection offices whose mission will be to discover exotic new germs, and detect the return of old ones, before they cause deadly outbreaks.

"This country is woefully unprepared to deal with new emerging pathogens," said Dr. David Fleming, Oregon's state epidemiologist. "These regional centers to keep us shead of this evolution are something new and needed if we are going to win that war."

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is starting programs in four states: Oregon, California, Connecticut and Mimesota.

Nation's murder capital

GARY, Ind. — Homicides in the Nation's Deadliest City dropped 30 percent in 1994.

This city of 119,000 just southeast of Chicago had 76 homicides last year, or 64 per 100,000 residents, police say. In 1993, there were 110 slayings, or 92 per 100,000 — putting Gary-first on the FBI's most-deadly list.

The nation's newest murder capital hasn't been officially declared yet. But New Orleans had a record 419 homicides last year, or 88 per 100,000, The Post-Tribune of Gary reported today.

Washington, D.C., topped the homicide list in 1992 with 75 per 100,000.

Detective Lt. Tom Papadakia of the Gary police force said 1993 was "an abnormal year with a lot of drug-related murders." He said several large-scale drug dealers were put away this year by the Drug Enforcement Agency.

nway this year by the Drug Enforcement Agency.

The city also put more officers on the streets and added roving rapid-response units, said police spokesman Bill Burns.

Mayor Thomas V. Barnes could only name two possible causes for the decline: "There's an element of luck and chance involved."

No economic recovery plan

MEXICO CITY — Washington announced it would provide half of an $18 billion international loan package to help steady the battered peac, but Mexican leaders still could not come up with an economic recovery plan.

In an embarrassing development, President Ernesto Zedillo repeatedly postponed and then did not deliver a nationally televised speech on the plan Monday night after business, labor and government leaders failed to agree on wage and price restraints.

The ability of the government to enforce such caps is critical in averting inflation that would further fuel the crisis.

"This doesn't bode well for the markets," independent economic analyst Sergio Sarmiento said early today.

Russian troups regroup

GROZNY, Russia — A three-day pounding by Russian tanks has failed to wrest the Chechen capital from rebel hands, forcing Russian troops to regroup even as they are bolstered by reinforcements.

The badly outnumbered Chechena fought the Russians street-by-street and held on to the the presidential palace in the heart of the Grozny, the capital.

"They'll never take Grozny!" shouted one Chechen fighter. Leche ibragimov, as he fired down a street near the palace. The Russian government press center said Monday that

The Russian government press center said Monday that Russian commanders had made "corrections in tactics." Their forces were regrouping and reinforcements were arriving, it added.

Talks resume

JERUSALEM — Israel and the Palestinians resume talks today with new troubles burdening an already strained relationship; the killing of four Palestinian policemen by Israeli soldiers and the Cabinet's failure to completely halt construction of a Jewish settlement on the West Bank.

Negotiations were already bogged down by Israel's reluctance to pull troops out of the West Bank while Islamic militants were still attacking Israelis. Thirty-two Israelis have been killed in such attacks since Oct. 1.

Monday's clash in the Palestinian-controlled Gaza Strip that left four policemen dead was certain to drive a further wedge into the negotiations. Each side blamed the other for the clash.

The Israell army said its soldiers were chasing gunmen who fired on their patrol from inside the autonomous zone.

Sports

IN BRIEF

Bulls have way with visitors

TAMPA — Jerome Robinson scored 19 points to lead South Florida to a 57-36 win Monday over North Caroline-Wilmington.

The Bulls, now 8-2 and off to their best start since 1980-91, held the Seahawks to 26 percent shooting, a school record. UNC-Wilmington (6-4) only made one of 21 three-point attempts.

Chucky Atkine added 14 points for USF.

FIU dumpe Georgia State

MIAMI — Plorida International opened its Trans America Athletic Conference season with a 75-64 victory Monday over Georgia State.
With the victory, the Golden Panthers improved to S-6 and 1-0 in the TAAC, while Georgia State fell to S-6 and 0-1.
For FIU, Leiand Johnson tallied 19 points, Scott Forbes added 14, James Masyck 12, and Matt Tehir and Marc Dosier had 11 each.
Georgia State's Travis Williams scored 12 points, Rodney Hamilton, Tildon Wright and Terrence Brandon 11 apiece and Tony Rhine 10.

FAU edges Carnegie Mellon

BOCA RATON — Cassar Yeadon scored 16 to help Florida Atlantic erase a 40-20 halftime deficit to defeat Carnegie Mellon 66-66. Craig Buchanan added 11 for FAU, while Rob Ritter and Machael Harvey scored 10 each. Jon Byrne tallied 18 for Carnegie Mellon.

Barry nudges Lenoir-Rhyne

MIAMI SHORER — Marques Tamps scored 15 points to lead Barry over Lenoir Rhyne 57-50. The Buccaneers improved to 10-1, while Lenoir-Rhyne dropped to 4-5.

Shawn Hevel was Lenoir-Rhyne's top scorer with 21 points and added seven rebounds.

Kite back in NBA

NEW YORK - Center-forward Greg Kite, who lives in Orlando, agreed to a one-year contract with the New York Knicks. Kite, 33, spent the last four seasons with the Magic, averaging 2.7 points and 4.6 rebounds in 247 games.

Gators' Jackson opts for NFL

NEW ORLEANS — Fiorida receiver Jack Jackson, who had the receptions for 196 yards in the Cators' 25-17 loss to Florida State in the Sugar Bowl, will pass up his senior year to enter the NFL draft. He had 148 catches for 2,366 yards and 29 touchdowns in three seasons.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Denny Hurley and Donnell Williams combined for IB points early in the second half and Seton Hall won its eighth straight by handing Miami a record 20th straight Big East regular-season loss, 72-54.

The Hurricanes (5-4 overall, 0-2) have not won a regular-season conference game since beating Villanova in the final game of the 1992-93. The Pirates (10-2, 1-1) overcame an early 11-2 deficit because St. Petersburg's Dwight Brown. who led a balanced attack with 16 points, hit two big three-pointers late in the first half and Hurley (14 points) and Williams (11) led a game-breaking 21-8 spurt to open the second half. Roger Ingraham also added 11 points.

Mitchell Dunn, Kevin Norris and Steve Edwards each had nine to lead Miami, which has never won a Big East road game.

Nelly back with Goldon State

OAKLAND, Calif. — Golden State couch Don Nelson, who missed seven games with viral pneumonia, directed practice and planned to coach the Warriors tonight against San Antonio.

with Florida Florida State wins "overtime" battle

AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS — Bobby Bowden

has his way with howl games, with an NCAA-record 10 straight wins. Bowden also has his way with Florida — he's 7-1-1 in his last nine amee against his cross-state rival thanks to Florida State's 25-17

Sugar Bowl victory Monday night.
The Seminoles haven't lost a nostsesson game since the 1981 Orange Bowl, and the only nonvictory during the team's streak of 13 consecutive postsesson appearances was a 17-17 tie against Georgia in the 1964 Citrus Bowl. Bowden's way is a wide-open offense, run from a variety of formations, and a hard-hitting de-fernse that comes up with the big play when it's needed.

"This was great Florida State football." wide receiver Kes Mc-Corvey said. "We got big-time offense. Coach called plays and we were able to execute for the most part. And our defence was great. To hold an offence like Florida to 10 points in the first half and only seven in the second is outstanding. The game, promoted as

"overtime" following Florida State's 28-point comeback for a 31-31 tie in November, saw the Seminoles trail the Cators in every offensive stat. Florida outpassed the Seminoles

449 yards to 325, gained more total yarda (454-401) and held the football more than 4 minutes longer. Florida State's defense kicked in where it counted, however. Florida, the nation's secondhighest scoring team, averaging 43.4 points a game, was stifled as FSU forced three turnovers and stopped the high-powered attack twice on downs inside the 30. The 23 points was a season low. 'It seemed like we dominated a little more than I thought we would," Bowden said. "It was closer than it should have been - if we had capitalised on all our opportunities."

Danny Kanell, who engineered the improbable rally from a 31-3 deficit in the earlier meeting, was 23-for-40 for 252 yards and one touchdown. Halfback Warrick Dunn had 182 all-purpose yards, rushing for 58 on 14 carries, catching nine passes for 51 and throwing a 73-yard scoring pass to 'OMar Ellison. Dan Mowrey kicked three field goals for the seventh-ranked Seminoles (10-1-1).

Two missed field soals by Mowrey - one from 26 yards and the other from 36 - prevented Florida State from putting the game away until the final two minutes.

Florida (10-2-1) scored on Judd Davis' field goal and lke Hilliard's Sugar Bowl-record 52-yard pass reception in the first half. But it was shut out after that until Danny Wuerfiel (who was 28-for-39 for a Sugar Bowl-record 394 yards and one TD) accred on a controversial quarterback aneak to trim a 13point deficit to six with 3:47 to go.

On a third-and goal play. Wuerffel lunged from the 1 and held the ball out. It was knocked loose, Corey Fuller recovered for Florida State and sprinted toward midfield. He then spiked the ball in frustration when officials ruled it a touchdown. The Seminoles were penalised 15 yards on the kickoff, but recovered an oneide kick.

They managed only one first down on a pass interference penalty, though. Floride regained possession at its 19 with 2:27 remaining before seeing it chances for a comeback victory end when linebacker Derrick Brooks stepped in front of Wuerffel's pass at the 34 and return it to the Gators' 22.

The accreboard clock malfunctioned, letting the final 46 seconds to run off prematurely and setting off a wild celebration on the field and in the stands among the F&U faithful in a crowd of 76,234.

Kanell kneeled on the final play after order was restored.

"There's not too much to say right now," Florida coach Steve Spurrier said. "They were better than us and we got beat."

Penn State wins as Nebraska celebrates

Accordated Press

While Nebraska returned home to a salute befitting a national champion, Penn State tried to keep its mind on a game that couldn't lift it to No. 1.

Top-ranked Nebraska returned to Lincoln on Monday for its coronation, even as the second-ranked Nittany Lions struggled through a 36-20 victory over Oregon in the Rose Bowl.
Even before their official designation as national champions, the Cornhusters, led by coach

Tom Osborne, were hailed by the governor and saluted by some 15,000 screaming fans. The celebration was at the Bob Devaney Sports Center, named for the man who coached the Cornhuskers to their only other national titles, in 1971 and Joe Paterno became the first coach to win each of the four traditional major New Year's games - the Cotton, Sugar, Orange and Rose Bowls. His 16th powl triumph overall also broke the record he shared with the late Paul "Bear" Bryant.

It didn't come easily, despite Penn State being a heavy favor-ite. Oregon (9-4), coming off a six-same winning streak and in the Rose Bowl for the first time in 37 years, gave the Nittany Lione fits with their passing game.

Danny O'Neil set Rose Bowl records for attempts, completions and yards with his 41-for-61 performance and 456 yards. He also threw two interceptions and was sacked six times as Oregon ran up 501 yards. Penn State, the best offensive team in the nation, managed 450.

The Nittany Liona were shead only 14-7 at halftime before getting untracked. Ki-Jana Carter ran for 156 yards and three touchdowns, while Kerry Collina was 19-for-30 for 200 yards passing for Penn State (12-0).

For Paterno, it was his fifth perfect record in 19 years at Penn State. The Nittany Lione didn't win the crown in four of those seasons - 1968, '69, '73 and '95.

Colorado 41, Notre Demo 24 At Tempe, Aris., the final college games for coach 201 McCartney and Heisman Trophy close. The Bullaloes (12-1 this season, 93-55-5 overall under McCartney) had too much of everything for Notre Dame (6-5-1), which failed to give coach Lou Holtz his 200th career

McCartney is retiring and Salaam announced after the game he is bypassing his senior season for the NFL.

McCartney was given the obligatory ice bath by his players and then was hoisted on their shoulders. "I feel very humble," he said, "very appreciative in my heart that I — a really average guy — can have this extraordinary opportunity."

Salaam rushed for only 83 yards on 27 carries — more than 100 yards below his average but scored three times. Quarterback Kordell Stewart ran seven times for 143 yards, completed 11 of 20 passes for 205 more and accounted for two

Then Salaam said he was turning pro.

"There are a lot of things going on at CU." he said. "A lot of coaches are bouncing around. and there's not a lot of stability going on. That was the basis why I decided to come to CU, and I signed a four-year deal. But ... I'm leaving with coach Mac."

Woman's lesson: Listen to your heart

DEAR ABST: I remember the letter signed "Nameless" — the widow who attended the reunion of her late husband's World War II buddies. There, she met a widower who had lost his invalid wife just six weeks earlier. It was love at first sight and they wanted to marry. I'm glad you

After 23 years of marriage, my husband left me for another woman. I was 44 and heartbroken — and then out of the blue, I met "Pete," a 48-year old bachelor. The chemistry was unbelievable! We dated for four months. Seven weeks after my divorce was final, Pete and I were married. Abby, I had never known such happiness!

Only nine months after our marriage, Pete died of a massive heart attack.

I will always treasure the short time we had together. If I had listened to my firends and not gone with my heart and feelings. I would never have had those wonderful months of marriage. You are right. Abby. Life is short, and we never know what's around the corner.

DEAR GREVING: My con-dolences to you, dear lady. Thank you for reaffirming that mature people should listen to their feelings, and pay less attention to what "people" might think or say.

DEAR ABBY: Our 21-year-old daughter still lives at home. We have a major problem. Prior to her 21st birthday, we never charged her anything for living at home. She has worked full time since she graduated from high school, and now she clears $250 a week.

When she turned 21, my husband insisted she start paying rent. I thought she should give us $25 a week. My husband says $50 a week would be more like it. We are not poor; it's the principle of the thing. She needs to learn responsibility.

"I feel we were competing with 3 million other people for 50,000 infants," said Sheaffer, who lives in this Dallas suburb. "I really wanted to search for something novel or that hasn't been

Since the ads went up in Dallas — one on a highway, the other on a main road — hundreds of people have called from across the country to offer the names of adoption agencies, stories and encouragement.

The Sheaffers met with one woman Monday who is four weeks pregnant. Sheaffer said they "clicked," but he remained cautious. "No one really can promise you a child," he said.

He was speaking from experience. Last year, a pregnant woman agreed to give the Sheaffers her child. But she changed her mind six weeks before she was due and decided to give the baby to her aunt and uncle.

"That was a tough experience for us," said Sheaffer, president of a company that distributes electrical and mechanical industrial products. "It wasn't like having a child die. I would never say it was anything that serious. But we did lose a child. We made the mistake of naming the child. which even bonded us further."

The Sheaffers have been married for six years. They found out about four years ago that Mrs.

Sheaffer, a homemaker, couldn't have children. They ruled out a surrogate mother because of religious beliefs. Foster parenting seemed too painful because they would eventually have to give up the child. Orphanages seemed to offer even less hope.

Some adoption agencies said they weren't accepting any more adoptive parents. Other agencies said Sheaffer, 44, and his 36-year-old wife were past the age limits for adoption.

So they turned to the billboards, which were to run for three days, and rented two cellular phones to take the calls.

Only a few people called before a story on their quest appeared in Sunday's Dallas Morning News. Then came a barrage of calls, starting with about a half-dozen while they were in church. "We were saked to move into the crying baby room." Sheaffer said. Merritt Turner, a counselor at Adoption Access in Dallas, said the Sheaffers should stick with an agency. "The networking is not as successful — that's my understanding," she said:

A NEW YEAR 15 50 DISAPPOINTING.

Is Epstein-Barr virus contagious?

DEAR DR. GOTT: A teen-aged friend has been diagnosed with Epstein-Barr virus. Is it con-tagious and how can it be cured? DEAR READER: Epstein-Barr virus causes mononucleosis, a disease of adolescents marked by fatigue, swollen glands, sore throat and an enlarged spleen. The disease is diagnosed by blood tests.

Mononucleosis, sometimes called the kissing disease, is not particularly contagious, although it can be spread by the saliva of infected individuals. The disorder is not curable with any known medicine. Youngsters improve gradually and are usually pretty much back to normal in about four

In the past few years, the Epstein-Barr virus has been implicated as a cause of chronic fatigue syndrome, a peculiar allment marked by constant exhaustion, recurring sore throats and periodic glandular enlargement.

However, many experts doubt that "chronic mononucleosis" exists. As yet, the final word is not in.

In most cases, a single attack of mononucleosis grants lifelong immunity: nonetheless, second and even third attacks have been reported.

Patients with mononucleosis should est well-balanced diets and obtain as much rest as they feel they need. If the sore throat is excruciating or if the liver is inflamed (an unusual complication), treatment with cortisone drugs will relieve symptoms and aid healing.

Such drugs are not, however, generally recommended for the average, uncomplicated case of

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'd be most interested in your views on laser. surgery for snoring. Is it safe and does it really work? I've un-dergone sleep studies and don't have sleep apnea: however, I'm contemplating laser surgery because my snoring has become a real problem for my husband. DEAR READER: For many people, laser surgery is an appropriate treatment for snoring. As we age, the skin of the soft palate (at the back of the throat) sags and may partially block the airway during sleep. Snoring energies ensues.

During surgery, the laser is used to cut away and trim this superfluous tissue, thereby opening up the airway. The technique is safe and really

By Phillip Alder
If you would like to read a workmanlike analysis of the major signalling methods, buy Kit Woolsey's "Modern Defensive Signalling in Contract Bridge" (Baron Barclay, 800-274-2221, 87.95). In 60 pages. Woolsey discusses standard, upside-down, odd-even and Lavintnai i vides good example deals to highlight the possibilities and he notes the drawbacks of each.

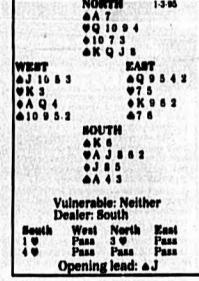

Many players would fall to defeat this four-heart contract. for fear of switching from A-Q-4. But Woolsey explains why it is the only play in this deal. West leads the spade jack.

After declarer wins with dummy's ace. East drops a discouraging two. Now comes the losing trump finesse, producing the critical moment. Afraid that partner has the club ace and declarer the diamond king, many Wests would passively return a major. Yet, as you can see, this defense doesn't defeat the contract. Declarer draws trumps and runs the clubs. However, if West has confidence in his partner, he will switch to diamonds at trick obvious to East that diamonds is the logical switch for West to make. If East cannot stand a switch to that suit (for example. he has the club ace and not the diamond king), he should encourage in spedes, even if he knows another spade lead will serve no constructive purpose. Later, when East wins with his club ace, he will switch with effect to diamonds.

Always bear in mind this "logical switch" situation when sitting over the dummy.
