Lake Mary Police Chief Wants More Staff Pay

—Charles Lauderdale
Lake Mary Police Chief

By Richard Whitaker
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary's police chief says he's having a tough time providing the community with quality police protection because he doesn't have all the necessary tools with which to do the job. And his support personnel need more money than the city's paying them, he says.

And, if the city commission doesn't give him what he's asking for — one request he's making is a flat 18 percent across-the-board pay raise for all in the department — he says he'll still try to give the community the quality of police services it's entitled to, but if it can't be done, he'll be forced to consider other employment.

Police Chief Charles Lauderdale said he has given all city commissioners a memo detailing the "options" the commission has in supporting the police department. How much "support" and in what form the police department gets may determine what Lauderdale does.

The one thing he said has not been done by the commission is bringing the salaries of department personnel up to a level that is competitive with other law enforcement agencies in the county.

A Sanford Herald survey shows Oviedo as the closest comparable city to Lake Mary in population, square miles and number of officers on the police force. The starting salary for patrolman in that city is $15,724.

The city has a population of approximately 7,000 and its police department covers an area of six square miles with 18 sworn officers.

The Sanford Police Department has the highest starting salary for patrolmen in the county at $18,162. The population of the city is 30,000, with the department's 71 officers responsible for covering a 15-square-mile area.

Lake Mary's department starts its officers at $15,228. The city has a population of 4,400 in a nine-square-mile area.

Boater Arrested As I-4 Shootist Shotgun Blasts Close Interstate

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A boater was being held in lieu of $60,000 bond today after he reportedly fired his shotgun Wednesday at three men on shore near Interstate 4's Lake Monroe bridge prompting a traffic tie-up and a flurry of accidents by motorists craning their necks to see what deputies were investigating.

There were no serious injuries reported to either the men on shore or among the motorists but rush hour traffic was stopped on I-4 for 45 minutes backing vehicles bumper-to-bumper for 3 to 4 miles east and west. There were at least three accidents in the 5:30 p.m. incident.

Around 7 p.m. Volusia County deputies arrested a man who lives in a tent near the river and charged him with three counts of aggravated battery. Being held early today in lieu of $60,000 bond in the Volusia County jail was Lawrence A. Sanders, 69, of P.O. Box 4170, Sanford.

Receiving minor injuries from shotgun pellets was Peter Martin, 22, of 735 Little Wekiva Circle, Altamonte Springs. Uninjured in the shooting were Lance Plyler, 18, of 1159 Callie Drive N., Casselberry, and Joe L. Mellvaine, 36, of 140 Lime Road, Casselberry.

Florida Highway Patrol, fearing more accidents and that the gunman could open fire on vehicles on the bridge, blocked east and west bound lanes of the bridge for about 45 minutes after the shooting.

The melee started when a man in a boat paddled near three men on the north bank of the St. Johns River at the west end of Lake Monroe and exchanged words. The men said they had been fishing and drinking and the man had paddled within 20 feet of them. When they asked him how the fishing was he reportedly asked if the men wanted to "start something."

The man reportedly aimed a 16-gauge shotgun into the air and fired into the trees, then said the next blast was going to be at them. The men said they think the man fired eight or nine times at them while they ducked behind trees and brush.

Both Seminole and Volusia county sent sheriff's deputies to the scene. Volusia county deputies followed the man by boat and with the aid of a sheriff's helicopter and spotlight arrested the man.

The incident and accidents at the bridge was the second spate of problems at the site Wednesday. During morning rush hour traffic there were three accidents at the bridge but no serious injuries. One pregnant woman was, however, transported to the hospital for observation.

Sanders was charged with three counts of aggravated battery after being accused of shooting a shotgun at three on-shore fishermen near the west end of Lake Monroe. The incident snarled traffic on I-4 and prompted several accidents by motorists looking to see what the deputies were doing.

Jail Guards' Hearing Begins

Fired Officers Appeal Polk's Edict

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

About 20 persons are scheduled to testify in a Civil Service Board appeals hearing scheduled today and Friday for two fired Seminole County jail guards who are expected to claim they were treated unfairly when fired by Seminole County Sheriff John Polk on Sept. 4.

The appeals of Matthew McGill, a guard for eight years, and Richard Blount, a guard for three years, are scheduled to be heard together, but so many witnesses have been scheduled by to testify that official say they expect the hearings to run late today and into tomorrow.

The hearing has been rescheduled twice.

First, Blount's attorney asked that his hearing originally scheduled for Oct. 27, be postponed until Oct. 29, to be heard along with McGill's appeal. Then, Polk's attorney requested that both hearings be scheduled together today and Friday. The hearing was also moved from the sheriff's office to the jail, because of the large number of witnesses, mainly jail guards, scheduled to testify.

The outcome of the appeals will be decided by the sheriff's Civil Service Board, comprised of sheriff's appointee — Sheriff's Chief Deputy Duane Harrell along with sheriff's Sgt. Ken Starr, who was elected to the board by fellow sheriff's department workers, and Sanford City Attorney Bill Colbert, who was appointed to the board by Harrell and Starr.

If either Polk or Blount and McGill are not satisfied with the board's decision, which might bring reinstatement of the guards, or which may uphold Polk's decision to fire them, their recourse would be to pursue the case through the civil court, Harrell said.

Since 1970 when the sheriff's Civil Service Board was formed the board has heard only three appeals by fired sheriff's workers. In all of those cases the board supported Polk's decision to fire those individuals, Harrell said.

He added that the board is an independent body and would under no obligation to agree with Polk.

The hearing was scheduled to begin at noon today in Courtroom A at the Seminole County jail.

McGill and Blount are expected to testify that in carrying out their duty, which led to their firing, they were only doing their job in the manner in which they had been instructed by jail supervisors and other guards. It is expected that they will say they performed their duty in the manner which is standard for all

Area Hospitals Avoid Overcharge Surge

By Maryann Cross
Herald Staff Writer

A recent national study claimed 96 percent of all hospital bills contain overcharge errors, some costing patients and insurance companies hundreds of thousands of dollars, but several local hospital spokesmen say only two percent of local bills have errors in them.

Marie Constance-Ross, executive director of Med Services Management Co., which analyzes bills for corporations and insurance companies, said overcharging averages from 6 to 11 percent of the bill in most cases. Only one in 50 patients gets a correct, fair bill and one in 50 is undercharged.

The total figure of $17.4 billion in overpayments each year is "far too much money to be complainant about," Constance-Ross said.

According to Mark Sagert, director of patients' business for Florida Hospital, the 96 percent rate of hospital bills with overcharge errors is probably due to documentation errors. Sagert said an average of 1.5 percent of the bills sent out by his hospital contain errors due to documentation.

For instance a patient might be charged for two X-rays, but an audit of the patient's records might only show one X-ray ordered. The auditor might then check with the hospital's X-ray department and find that two X-rays were needed to obtain the necessary information on the patient, but the additional X-ray was not noted on the patient's records.

Sagert said the bills are checked before they are sent out to "see if the charges look reasonable" according to what services the patient required. Sagert also said the hospital has two internal auditors to check the bills, as well as auditors from the insurance companies.

Central Florida Regional Hospital's Comptroller Joe Waechter said the percentage of billing errors is usually less than 2 percent, based on audit reports. Waechter said about half of the errors are overcharges and half are undercharge errors. Waechter attributed the low percentage of errors to the hospital's computer billing service.

"The patient is not charged for a test until the test is completed," Waechter said. "The errors that we do encounter are usually such things as a charge on the wrong bill or a charge for a new program that has not been set up in our billing system yet."

Maureen Kersmarki, director of media relations for Florida Hospital, said the hospital sends patients two line-item bills, one which corresponds to the date of the services and one which is divided up by what services were provided by what department. Kersmarki said the latter bill helps auditors locate possible errors without having to go through the bill by date.

John Heider, comptroller for South Seminole Community Hospital, said about 75 percent of the hospital's patients are billed through medical insurance companies such as Blue Cross. According to Heider, these insurance companies conduct regular audits of the bills submitted to them by the hospital. Although Heider could not say what percentage of bills are found to be incorrect, he did say that most of the time an audit of a bill will reveal that the patient was undercharged on one area and overcharged in another, with the two errors often cancelling each other out.

"It's been my experience that most hospitals end up undercharging (the patient) because the volume of paperwork is so much there's a good chance of something slipping through," Heider said.

Polk May Investigate Fired Oviedo Police Chief

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said today that on Oct. 28, two days after Oviedo fired its police chief, Oviedo's city manager and acting police chief met with Polk and asked him to investigate a list of 28 allegations against Robert Wade Hancock, Oviedo's former police chief.

The list contained the city's complaints against Hancock — allegations such as his allegedly sleeping on the job and falsifying time sheets, which city officials had said were the basis for his having been fired. Polk said that in reviewing those 28 claims there was only one allegation that might have been a criminal violation — the charging of personal telephone calls to the city's bill.

Polk told the Oviedo officials that he would be happy to investigate that allegation, but the other issues in question were apparently violations of city policy or errors in judgement, which Polk said he could not pursue in an investigation.

Polk said he told City Manager Gene Williford to tell Oviedo city officials that he would investigate the telephone use, if the city commission so requested. Polk said he has received a request for such an investigation.

Williford said today that after meeting with Polk he informally discussed Polk's response with some city council members. The city council has not formally discussed Polk's offer of investigation of the phone calls. Williford said, Williford said that Polk told him an auditor would be qualified to pursue investigation of the phone calls.

Polk said he was not asked to investigate the 27-member Oviedo police force and would not conduct a "witchhunt." He said that he could only initiate an investigation into a city police department if he received documentation on specific allegations of criminal activity.

About three years ago Polk said he did investigate alleged use of marijuana by Oviedo police officers. That led to the resignation of one officer.

Williford said Polk was not asked to investigate the police department, only the allegations against Hancock. A published report claimed that Polk had been asked to investigate the department and had refused to do so.

Williford said the request for Polk to investigate Hancock came after Hancock was fired, because

IN BRIEF

Mother Steps In After Son Allegedly Pulls Knife On Wife

Oviedo police report that the mother of Sammie Wiggs, 23, stepped between Wiggs and his wife, Robbin, 23, after Wiggs brandished a butcher knife and threatened to kill his wife at their home.

That gave Robbin Wiggs a chance to run to a bedroom and lock herself in. Mrs. Wiggs told police her husband said she "was dead" if she came out of the bedroom. Mrs. Wiggs said her husband alleged attack came when she returned from her sister's home at about 8:30 a.m. Tuesday. She said her husband grabbed her, slapped and kicked her before arming himself with a knife. She said her mother-in-law stepped between she and her husband when her husband brandished the knife.

Police arrested Wiggs at his home at 1150 Jackson St., Oviedo, on a charge of aggravated assault at 8:40 a.m. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Suspect Linked To Burglaries

Seminole County sheriff's deputies reported linking a 19-year-old Sanford man to four burglaries to Flea World, south of Sanford on U.S. Highway 17-92.

The burglaries occurred between Sept. 1 and Oct. 15 and on two occasions items valued at more than $300 were stolen. On the other two occasions the goods stolen were valued at less than $300. There are other suspects in the Flea World burglaries, but no report of additional arrests.

Philadelphia Suspect Accused of Murder

Man Chooses Seminole For Trial

A man arrested in Maryland over a year ago will be tried for murder by Orange County prosecutors temporarily assigned to Seminole County on a case in which the victim died somewhere between Orlando and Georgia.

Seminole County was chosen as the trial site by the accused, Kenneth Tongue, 20, of Philadelphia. The geographical, and jurisdictional, hop-scotch is expected to be approved by Florida Supreme Court Justice Parker Lee McDonald and Gov. Bob Martinez. Trial is tentatively set to begin Dec. 7.

The case has been delayed a year because of legal considerations, said Don West of Longwood, Tongue's lawyer. Maryland held Tongue for prosecution then dropped charges and Florida took over.

Dead is Petty Officer Stephen Rosa, 35, of the Orlando Naval Training Center.

On Oct. 30, 1986, police say Tongue was arrested for not paying a $1 toll on the Fort McHenry Tunnel on Interstate 95 in Maryland. At that time, police say a belt was seen hanging out of the trunk of the car. When police investigated, they found the rest of the belt around Rosa's neck.

Police believe Rosa picked up Tongue while he was hitchhiking in east Orange County Oct. 29. The question complicating the case is where did Rosa die. An autopsy indicates he had been dead about 18 hours when found. Prosecutors believe that means Rosa died somewhere in the state of Florida so Rosa was charged with murder in the counties between Orlando and the Georgia border along or near 1-95 including Seminole. Seminole county was chosen by Tongue for "tactical" reasons but West declined to elaborate.

•A camera and photo gear with a combined value of about $580 were stolen along with $9 from the car of Craig S. Janzen, 27, of 1266 Forest Lake Drive W., Altamonte Springs, Monday or Tuesday, a sheriff's report said.

Father, Son Arrested After Oviedo Accident

An Oviedo father and son were arrested by police in the aftermath of a Tuesday accident on State Road 434 when the father allegedly scuffed with officers.

Oviedo police reported that when they were arresting Stacy Howell Greene, 23, on a drunken driving charge following the accident, Greene's father allegedly pushed the officers and tried to pull his son away.

Both Greens were charged with resisting arrest with violence at approximately 10 p.m. Tuesday, on SR 434, Oviedo. The father, James Maxwell Greene, 44, of 218 Graham St., Oviedo, also faces a charge of battery on a policeman. The son has additional charges of careless driving and driving with a suspended license.

The trouble began after Stacy Greene, of P.O. Box 508, Oviedo, drove his car into a telephone pole off SR 434 at DeLon Street. As Greene was being taken to a patrol car, police said he tried to pull away and his father allegedly grabbed him and shoved a policeman in the chest in an attempt to free his son.

The Greens have been released on $1,000 bond each, and are scheduled to appear court Nov. 23.

North Braces For Brisky Breezes

Staff And Wire Reports

Up from the grave that thing may arise! What? Geri's reincarnation, that's what. Professional, "official" meteorologists wrote off that tropical depression which would have been called Geri had it developed. Well, it kinda disappeared near Cuba.

But try to convince the folks around Sanibel Island and other parts of Lee and Collier counties that something's strange isn't happening. Raining cats and dogs and pressure is low. Like back in the olden days before they built the bridge to Sanibel. If nothing more, it'll expose more shells along the nation's best shell-finding strand of sand.

Around Seminole County, no shell-finding beaches but plenty of water and we'll probably get a lot more before Saturday's dawning. Probably clear over the week-end. If that low pressure area is real down south, and if it moves up the Gulf coast, then surfing should be great this week-end. Surf alert.

Our temperatures will remain balmy, unlike what our cousins up north are experiencing.

Autumn briskly returned to the Midwest today, chasing away an Indian summer with pre-dawn temperatures that dipped below freezing in Minnesota, while forecasters predicted highs would not climb out of the 30s and 40s from the Dakotas to the upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected to continue today from Southern California to New Mexico, as well as over northern New England, while rain changing to snow was predicted for parts of New York state and Pennsylvania. National Weather Service forecaster Lyle Alexander said.

Widely scattered rain showers were reported early today across the Northeast, the northern Appalachians and the Great Lakes, with snow showers reported over Michigan's Upper Peninsula, the NWS said. Rain was also reported over parts of Texas, from Florida to North Carolina and along parts of the Gulf Coast.

U.S. Forest Service officials hoped for rain as firefighters battled wildfires in 13 states — Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

In Tennessee and Kentucky, some 120 National Guard troops were activated to battle more than two dozen uncontrolled fires covering more than 4,000 acres.

Highs today were not expected to climb out of the 30s and 40s from North Dakota across the upper Mississippi Valley, over the Great Lakes and into the upper Ohio Valley. Early morning temperatures in the 20s were reported over the Dakotas and Minnesota, the weather service said.

Pre-dawn readings in the 60s were reported across much of New England, with 50- and 60-degree readings covering most of the eastern and southern parts of the nation.

An Indian summer has warmed much of the nation in the first days of normally nippy November. Temperatures Wednesday afternoon tied or broke record highs for the date in 32 locations in 19 states from Texas to Maine. Temperatures were in the 70s and 80s from the southern Plains to the Atlantic Coast.

Feds Say High Tech Drug Ring Is Now Broken

MIAMI (UPI) — Federal drug charges have been announced against 30 people, who law officers said were involved with perhaps the most sophisticated illegal drug smuggling ring ever cracked.

Authorities said they seized about 1,100 pounds of cocaine, 135 pounds of marijuana and more than $5 million in assets, including 12 planes, 21 vehicles, 28 boats and 17 pieces of real property.

Those arrested included Lloyd Frink, 37, promoter of the Grand Prix of Palm Beach, a major International Motor Sports Association race.

"Among the traffickers for which this organization ... provided services, was a group of individuals based in Medellin, Colombia, and known as the Medellin Cartel," said U.S. Attorney Leon Kellner.

The 3-year investigation, named Operation Beacon, uncovered a network using sophisticated electronic equipment, including radio scanners to monitor law enforcers, night vision goggles and infrared devices, radar detectors and radios which scrambled communications to prevent detection.

Authorities also said the suspects used high-rise condominiums in Miami as look outs for law enforcers.

Patrick T. O'Brien, U.S. Customs special agent-in-charge, said it was "the most sophisticated organization Customs has encountered."

The indictment alleges pilots would fly from the United States to the Bahamas posing as legitimate charter flights and hired women — "cover girls" — who were paid to act as passengers as the plane passed through Bahamian and U.S. Customs.

After leaving the women in the Bahamas, the pilots would fly to clandestine strips in Colombia, pick up a large load of cocaine and fly back to drop points in the Bahamas where the drugs would be picked up by boat crews.

The boats would then take the drugs to the United States under air cover provided by the organization. Sometimes, they would also fly directly from the United States to Colombia, pick up a load of cocaine and then fly directly back to the United States in an air strip in Lakeland built at a ranch owned by members of the organization.

Customs officials said they infiltrated the organization and produced two beacons for the suspects, canisters about 3-feet high and a half-foot in diameter. Equipped with infrared lights and special radio frequencies, they were to be attached to drug shipments for pick up. The beacons were never delivered, Customs officials said.

An indictment charging 30 people with conspiracy to import marijuana and 20,000 pounds of cocaine into the United States was unsealed Wednesday.

The 13 arrested Wednesday were: Steven Bucchiere; William Cossin; Frink; Jesus Haim; Albert Harris; C. Leslie Hudson; David Marcus; Alp Martin; Wes McCutcheon; Robin McNamee; Nancy Sims; Daniel Sims; and Phillip Cardilli.

Seven people indicted were already in custody on other charges. They are: James Coley; Laureano Rodriguez; Richard Bahmann; Frank Bahmann; Deborah Starwalt; Wilson Lyons; and Jack Bryant.

Ten still being sought are: Michael O. Munday; John Doe, known as "Uncle Bill"; Sheila Strenski; William Englehard; John Doe, also known as "H. Quintero"; Donald Sumrall; William Casey; Jon Roberts; Lisa Cardilli; and Janice Mayfield.

Class For Police Volunteers Will Be Held At SCC

Those who would like to be volunteer law enforcement officers can qualify for that duty through a five week course offered by Seminole Community College.

The 97-hour auxiliary officer's course is scheduled to be held from Jan. 4 through Feb. 4 at the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, Building 310 at the Sanford Airport.

The classes will be held Monday through Thursday evenings from 6 to 10 p.m. in the sheriff's classroom, with an additional four Sunday's training on the shooting range.

Cost of the course is about $60 and registration can be made through the sheriff's personnel office, Room 121, at the sheriff's department. For more information call 322-5115.

Postell Is New Museum Employee

By Maryann Cross
Herald Staff Writer

Jean Postell, a native of Sanford, is the new clerk-typist for the Henry Shelton Sanford Memorial Library and Museum and the second full-time member to join the museum's staff this year. She started work Monday.

After graduating from Seminole High School in 1977 Postell, 28, attended Seminole Community College and studied office procedures and secretarial skills. Her first job was acting as a clerical aide for Grove Drug School.

After college Postell worked for Sanford's Parks and Recreation Department part-time as a secretary. She was offered a full-time position after two months and stayed in that job for five-and-a-half years. Postell said six months ago she left to work as a secretary for the Chamber of Commerce. When she heard about the museum job she applied and was offered the museum position Oct. 14.

Postell said her responsibilities as clerk-typist at the museum will be varied because its a small staff. In addition to her clerical duties, she will greet visitors, conduct tours, and assist researchers in finding material.

Other employees include Curator Alicia Clarke, who was hired in July. Mildred Caskey, who has served as part-time curator for the museum for 15 years, is now the part-time associate curator.

Clarke said Postell will type some of the museum's manuscripts that are in longhand and put together a history of the museum.

"The materials (relating to the museum's history) are already there, but they need to be collected and organized," Clarke said. "Jean will also be putting a list of the museum's collection on the computer for better research access." Clarke said the new computer will be arriving within a few months.

Clarke said the museum's phone is now connected to the city's switchboard. The new number is 322-3161 ext. 264.

Truth And Consequences

It's the stuff of soap operas.

Their ranks already thinned by two candidates for president are tiptoeing through a mine field of gaffes and past mistakes in the race for their parties' nominations.

H.L. Mencken would have loved it.

First came Gary Hart's liaison with Donna Rice.

Next, Sen. Joe Biden's belief that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.

The word leaked out that the two top campaign aides to Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis were responsible for dropping the dime on Biden.

They were sent packing, and the astonished Dukakis told everyone who would listen that he had no knowledge of the foul deed.

Lightning struck Jesse Jackson and Pat Robertson when it became known they had conceived their firstborn children out of wedlock. That was just the openers.

Jackson acknowledged he had signed a lucrative contract to endorse a chain of business schools, and has since bailed out of the deal.

And another controversy clatters on about allegations that Robertson's family pulled strings to keep him out of harm's way in the Korean War.

Meanwhile, Albert Gore conceded he exaggerated his work as a reporter in the mid-1970s.

The Tennessee senator falsely claimed his reportage "got a bunch of people indicted and sent to jail."

The apologetic Gore was sent to the doghouse.

Even George Bush, who has his hands full fending off the "wimp factor," hasn't escaped:

Returning from a 10-day trip to Europe, the vice president offended Detroit autoworkers by lauding Soviet Workers and denigrating the quality of American cars.

There is nothing new about politicians finding their mouths convenient receptacles for their feet.

A cursory look at American history shows that candidates, even presidents, have been guilty of worse offenses than Messrs. Hart, Biden, et al.

If today's political news sometimes seems fit only for the supermarket tabloids, that's because the press has been merciless in ferreting out the peccadilloes of those who would be present.

That, too, would have delighted Mencken.

Minus Ethics

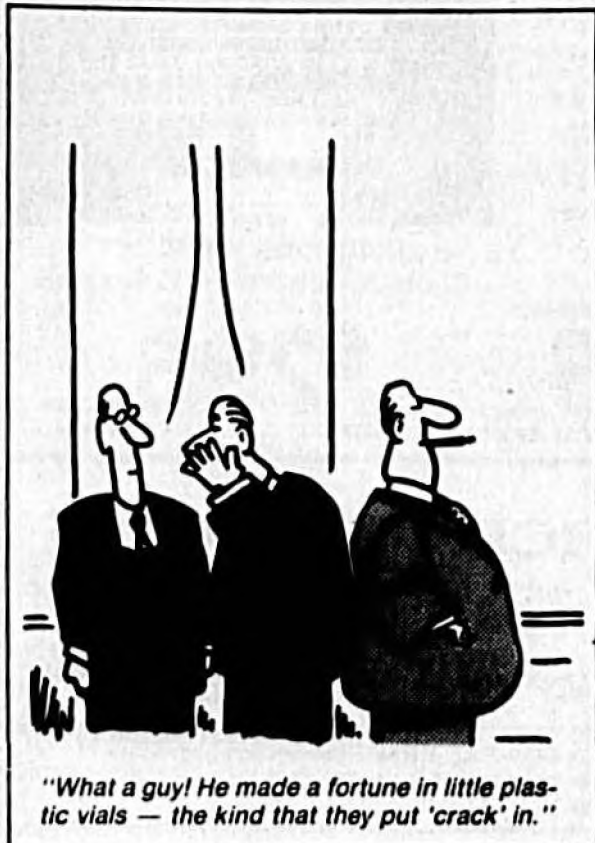

There's a nasty squabble going on at Columbia University's business school. Seems an instructor who was hired to teach a course on corporate raiding offered a $100,000 finder's fee to the first student to uncover a company for him to buy. The school's dean was not amused.

The teacher, an expert in corporate takeovers, thinks the idea is a great way to introduce the entrepreneurial spirit to his students. The dean demurred, mumbling something about the inviolability of the academic environment.

The dean won, of course, and the prof's offer was rescinded. But the issue has sparked debate in business schools across the country over how realistic classroom exercises should be.

Common sense suggests that paying students for achievement, especially so lavishly, distorts the learning process and raises serious ethical questions. But then, ethics have rarely troubled most corporate raiders.

BERRY'S WORLD

CHUCK STONE

Shere Hite: The P.T. Barnum Of Sex

If we didn't have Gary Hart, Donna Rice and Jim and Tammy Bakker to kick around, Shere Hite wouldn't have us to hustle her books.

Hite, a self-styled "cultural historian," has parlayed a national obsession with libidinal foreplay into a personal accumulation of queenly fortunes. And with her just-published third book, "Women and Love, a Cultural Revolution in Progress," Hite brings gender equality to P.T. Barnum's boast, "There's a sucker born every minute."

She analyzed written responses from a self-selecting sample of 4,500 women, then compiled a literary con job that is as scientifically accurate as the fraudulent Hitler diaries.

Four years ago, you may recall, Newsweek magazine published a cover story on the Hitler diaries and then had to eat journalistic crow. Four weeks ago, Time magazine published a cover story on the Hite Report. Now, a just-released scientific ABC News/Washington Post poll questions Hite's findings, contradicts her conclusions and indicts her methodology.

Time isn't eating crow yet, but it concedes that the Hite Report is "murky in methodology." Murky? It's as reliable as a textbook on morality in politics by Gary Hart, Joe Biden and Mike Dukakis.

In Hite's skewed sample, she depended on 4,500 responses from a mailing of 100,000 questionnaires (4.5 percent). Her respondents were mainly literate middle-class women who could spare the time from job or family and weren't turned off by Hite's lengthy questionnaire. Black, Hispanic, low-income and poorly educated women were not represented equitably.

According to Hite, 70 percent of her respondents who had been married five years or longer have cheated on their husbands. But only 7 percent of the married women who were part of the ABC News/Washington Post scientific sample, have been romping in the hay with another man. (I'm sure you can appreciate the Socratic dialectic that this delicate subject provoked in the Stone household.)

While 84 percent of Hite's respondents said they were dissatisfied with their marriage or male relationship, 83 percent of the women in the ABC/Washington Post poll said they were satisfied with their marriage or male relationship.

Somebody's lying. And science rarely lies. Given Hite's unrepresentative sample, unscientific methodology and clumsy questionnaire, her conclusions can be neither validated nor defended. "We set out to see if her results could be duplicated scientifically," said Jeff Alderman, ABC's polling director, "but they could not."

Hite protested that the two polls' different questions caused different answers. "That wouldn't affect the outcome," Alderman told this reporter.

But something else is operating here. It's the sociology of prejudice. Hite starts out with a lopsidedly biased framework in her determination to liberate a repressed — and oppressed — female libido.

That intention is commendable. A male bastion that has kept women in a sexual dungeon for centuries should be demolished. On the other hand, Hite's methods misrepresent the many-plundered complexities of the female psyche.

Calculus Is In Trouble

By Jan Singer
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 300 years ago, Sir Isaac Newton, the English scientist and mathematician, and Gottfried Leibniz, the German philosopher and mathematician, invented a particular form of mental gymnastics known as calculus.

This system of mathematics was developed in part to calculate the movement of the planets. Now, anyone who wants to be a scientist or engineer must learn it.

The bane of some students and the joy of others, calculus is the branch of mathematics that deals with change. It can be used to calculate velocity and acceleration, areas and volumes of irregular figures. It is used in space shots and the measurement of minute reactions in physics.

Recently, however, mathematicians have become disturbed over the state of calculus in this country.

Or, as Ronald C. Douglas, dean of physical sciences and mathematics at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, put it, "Calculus is big. Calculus is important. Calculus is in trouble."

"The good news is we have the opportunity to do something about it."

For nearly two years, mathematicians have lamented that students were flunking or dropping calculus courses in disturbingly large numbers. A new study indicates just under half those enrolled in two-semester basic college calculus courses may be expected to complete the year with a D or better.

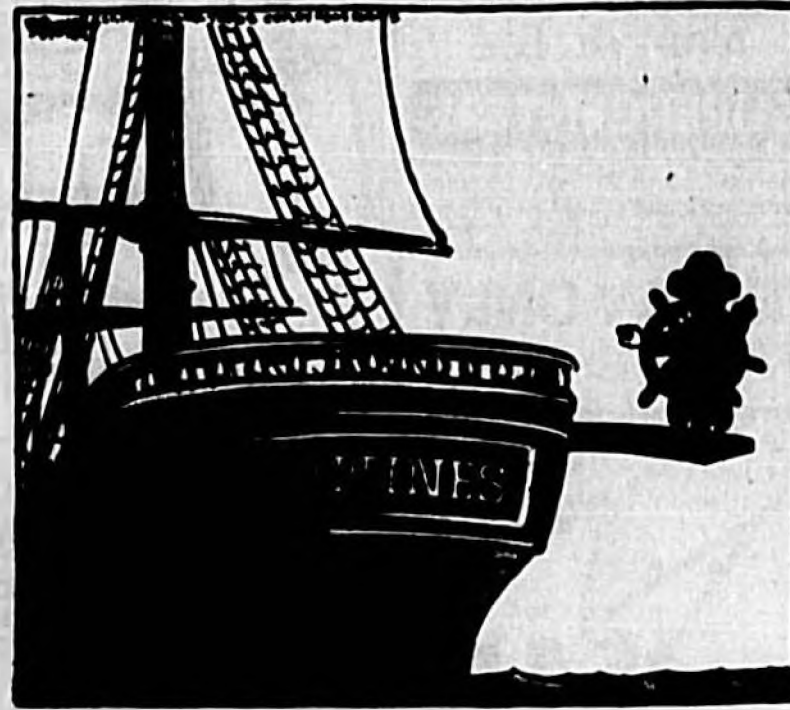

Now, leaders in mathematics education have identified specific problems and have begun formulating plans to deal with them.

Perhaps the most comprehensive is the brainchild of a special committee of the National Research Council, a branch of the National Academy of Sciences, which recently launched a review of the state of college and university math.

Among the complaints receiving attention: Calculus teaching is too often dull and filled with uninteresting exercises. It is lacking in consistency and does not prepare students to handle problems the way they actually arise in the everyday world.

Most important, the teaching of calculus does not make adequate use of computers and hand-held calculators, which can eliminate some of the drudgery in figuring equations.

"We haven't made it nearly as interesting or made it relate nearly enough to the rest of the world as we should," Douglas said.

Reagan Taps Unknown

By Helen Thomas

UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When it appeared that his Supreme Court nomination of Judge Robert Bork was going down the drain, President Reagan vowed that his next appointment would be one Bork opponents would "object to as much."

One wonders if he had that in mind when he selected Douglas Ginsburg, a little-known federal appeals judge, age 41, to the high court the second time around. Whether it was or not, Reagan's startling threat has remained in the minds of many Americans.

His selection of Ginsburg is puzzling but not surprising. He was determined to name a conservative, one who believes in judicial restraint rather than flexibility to meet the times, and he apparently has done that.

But no one really knows how Ginsburg feels about a multitude of current issues that he will face as the years go on in that lifetime job if he's confirmed.

He is said to be an expert on antitrust and business law. His experience in the courtroom is almost nil. His tenure on the appeals court amounts to one year although he was confirmed unanimously by the Senate for that post.

In a world of winners and losers as Washington often is portrayed, Atty. Gen. Edwin Meese was the winner and White House chief of staff Howard Baker is the loser.

Baker is a moderate, who if he chose to push his luck, may have been able to guide Reagan toward the center in the twilight of his presidency. But Meese, Reagan's longtime mentor, was determined to make sure that the replacement for Bork would be cut from the same cloth.

Meese, for all his own troubles, prevailed with Reagan, and when the surprise choice of Ginsburg was announced, the East Room was filled with conservatives and organized "Right to Life's."

Much is riding on the American Bar Association and the opinion it will render next month on Ginsburg's qualifications. Opponents have little to mine in his record because as Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., put it, he has "no paper trail."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said that Reagan was "impressed" with Ginsburg's scholarship. He also noted his "sense of humanity," but when asked to be specific, he simply said that those who interviewed him felt that he had compassion.

White House strategists briefed Bork and put him through mock hearings to prep him for his ordeal before the confirmation committee. Bork did not hesitate to express his views and opinions, and his positions that have changed over the years.

Ginsburg, a much younger man, undoubtedly will be put through the same litmus test now that it is established that a potential justice can be questioned about his legal philosophy — that it is not off limits.

To most senators and the country at large, he is an unknown quantity. Reagan did not interview him before his appointment. That was left to Meese, Assistant Attorney General Bradford Reynolds, Baker and other White House staffers. But Fitzwater said that Reagan was familiar with Ginsburg's work in the drive for deregulation.

Like Reagan, Ginsburg has a "get the government off our backs" philosophy, according to some reports.

DICK WEST

Disease For The Oldtimers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The medical folks call it Alzheimer's disease in honor of the German physician who years ago first isolated and identified a premature aging syndrome.

I suppose they are technically correct but a better name, I submit, would be Oldtimers' disease.

Some of us are doddering at age 50, some 60, some 70 and some 80. And some make it all the way into their 90s or older before senility sets in.

It is my suspicion that physicians use Alzheimer's as a sort of catch-all. I suspect that if you are above a certain age and your complaint does not readily lend itself to diagnosis, then doctors tend to call it Alzheimer's disease.

If you wish to quote me to your physician, be my guest. Everybody is entitled to a second opinion these days, however uninformed. (I mean the second opinion is uninformed, of course; not the days.)

My suspicion is based on nothing more substantive than personal experience. You can't get much more uninformed than that.

It says in one reference book I saw that heredity plays a role in up to 35 percent of the Alzheimer cases that begin before age 70. After that, presumably, you are on your own.

It also says one manifestation of the "disease" is loss of memory.

I also recall that some time ago I went for a physical by a doctor I had known for years.

In the course of reviewing what he called a "laundry list" of complaints, I confessed I didn't know which required immediate medical attention and which were part of the natural process of getting older.

"Three things happen to you in old age," he told me.

"One is loss of memory, and I forget what the other two are."

I have since gotten a lot of mileage from his little joke. If it was a joke, He may have been suffering from Alzheimer's disease.

Speaking of Oldtimers' disease, I note it has been 58 years since the stock market crash touched off the Great Depression, but I nevertheless was asked by a colleague what it was like in those days.

I replied that I had no personal experiences, but heard later about a newspaper headline that read: "WALL ST. LAYS AN EGG."

That about sums it up, I guess, although if I had been borrowing from a Broadway reviewer, I might have written: "STOCK MARKET BOMBS."

JACK ANDERSON

A Man Against Injustice Department

By Jack Anderson
And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — This is the story of justice gone awry. It is also the story of one man's ordeal.

His name is James M. Beggs, once a top executive for General Dynamics, who gave up big business for public service. He wound up running the space program for President Reagan. Those who know Jim Beggs describe him as "a straight arrow" and "unbendingly honest."

"He would rather lose his right arm than his honor," said an associate.

Yet Beggs was wrongfully indicted by overzealous Justice Department prosecutors. In December 1985 they called two press conferences — one in Washington, the other in Los Angeles — to trumpet the false accusations. The news was splashed on front pages and television screens across America. Overnight, Beggs' proud reputation lay in ruins.

A year and a half later, when an embarrassed Justice Department had to drop the indictment and acknowledge it was all a terrible mistake, the announcement was tacked inconspicuously on a bulletin board in a Los Angeles courthouse.

What in the world went wrong? Sources who have followed the case closely say the Justice Department decided to crack down on the defense industry. The prosecutors selected General Dynamics, the source say, before they decided exactly what the charges would be. They zeroed in on a contract dispute over the development of the DIVAD antiaircraft gun, which was eventually scrapped by the military as a failure.

This got the eager support of Robert Bonner, the publicity-wise U.S. attorney in Los Angeles, who had jurisdiction over Pomona, where the gun was developed. The Justice Department sent a trial attorney, Gary Black, to Los Angeles to determine what laws might have been violated.

Black told his superiors at Justice that they had only a 50-50 chance of making the charges stick. Justice won't release Black's findings and he would not talk with us. But shortly after evaluating the case, Black transferred to a different division at Justice.

His replacement, Randy Bellows, plunged into "a web of laws and regulations," in the words of the court, "that almost defy understanding." He brought in auditors from the Army, Navy and Air Force. He piled up stacks of papers loaded with technological and accounting data. He created a costly computer data base to sort out the complex details. He enlisted lawyers, investigators and technicians to help him analyze the accumulating material.

He still got it wrong. Court records suggest he simply did not understand the contract, the applicable laws or the Pentagon procedures. The contract merely asked for General Dynamics' "best effort" to meet the terms. Under the contract, the company probably could have delivered a bucket of bolts.

Nevertheless, Bellows obtained an indictment against Beggs, the executive who approved the contract, and three other company officials. The indictment charged that they conspired to defraud the government by shifting $7.5 million in cost overruns to other accounts.

Friends say Beggs was devastated. He was stripped of his security clearance, humiliated in front of associates and publicly disgraced. He resigned from the space program and spent the next two years without income trying to clear his name.

NATION IN BRIEF

Iran-Contra Dissent Says Reagan Not Told About Fund Diversion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As the congressional Iran-Contra committees organized a vote today on their final report, a Republican dissent lambasted the mostly Democratic majority for suggesting President Reagan might have known about the diversion of money to Nicaraguan rebels from secret U.S. arms sales to Iran.

A new draft of the biting 300-page dissenting report asserted the president did not know about $3.5 million in profits from the arms sales were going to the Contra rebels. It denounced the proposed majority report as "a weapon in the ongoing guerrilla warfare" against the Reagan administration.

Extensive portions of the top-secret dissent, scheduled for release with the majority report Nov. 13, were made available to United Press International Wednesday. The excerpts revealed key findings of the final draft conclusions by the Democratic-led House and Senate committees, which were also classified top secret.

The majority draft left open the question of Reagan's role in the possibly criminal diversion, according to the dissent. But while the majority found no evidence to indicate Reagan's awareness, it noted the committees were denied access to thousands of pertinent documents destroyed by White House aides.

Reagan: Protectionism No Answer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is hammering away at Congress with a message that protectionism is not the way to attack the trade deficit casting a shadow over investor confidence in the U.S. economy.

Reagan seized the opportunity not once but twice Wednesday to warn Congress against the dangers of protectionism as he ballyhooed a free trade agreement with Canada and removed $84 million in trade sanctions against Japan.

"To those still tempted by protectionism, who would retreat into economic isolationism, we'll show there is a better and more expansive way," Reagan said in touting the U.S.-Canadian trade pact before business supporters.

North Makes Grand Jury Showing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lt. Col. Oliver North, making his first appearance before the federal grand jury of independent Iran-Contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, refused on Fifth Amendment grounds to turn over records linked to the scandal.

The fired White House aide, dressed in his Marine uniform and accompanied by a bodyguard and his lawyers, Brendan Sullivan and Harry Simon, went briefly before the jury at the U.S. District Court building Wednesday to invoke his constitutional right against self-incrimination in refusing to cooperate.

North was not subpoenaed to testify by the grand jury, courthouse sources said, but it could not be learned what records the subpoena requested. Sources said he referred to a black, loose-leaf notebook possibly connected to the information at stake.

Weinberger To Get Formal Bye

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, awaiting the formal resignation of Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger today, said he will miss the longtime confidant as he misses all his friends "when they're not here."

With Weinberger back in Washington after a meeting of NATO defense ministers in Monterey, Calif., Reagan was expected to preside at a ceremony in the White House Rose Garden to bid a formal farewell to the 70-year-old Pentagon chief, announcing his retirement after nearly seven years on the job.

National security adviser Frank Carlucci, Weinberger's chief deputy early in the administration, was widely expected to be named defense secretary, with Army Lt. Gen. Colin Powell succeeding Carlucci in the White House.

Demos: Deficit Talk Progress At Slow Creep

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional Democrats report "some small progress" in their deficit reduction talks with the White House, but each side says the other is not being cooperative enough in drawing up plans for new taxes and lower spending.

House Democratic leader Thomas Foley of Washington said after Wednesday's meeting that bargainers had "agreed generally to broad outlines" that will govern some of their decisions. But he predicted the private talks moving into their ninth day today could drag on into next week.

"There was some small progress," said House Budget Committee Chairman William Gray, D-Pa. "But we're still a long way from wrapping up a plan and we're still working feverishly."

Earlier in the day, House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, hinted he was upset by a lack of cooperation from administration officials participating in the talks, aimed at trimming at least $23 billion from the federal deficit for fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1.

"It would be very nice if we could just get some modicum of consideration from the executive branch," Wright said.

President Reagan, informed of the Democratic complaints, replied, "Maybe they're looking for excuses for having created all these deficits."

Wright said time is running out on the negotiations, noting that automatic spending cuts totaling $23 billion will take effect Nov. 20 unless political leaders can reach agreement on an alternative deficit reduction package.

One of the negotiators, Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., told reporters Wednesday the talks have been "far more difficult than any of you could believe."

"It's kind of like the chicken and the egg," Domenici said. "Who wants to agree to the tough things and who wants to be the first ones out there [when] they are afraid they will be blamed?"

Before Wednesday's session, White House chief of staff Howard Baker had said negotiators "have got a lot of work ahead of us. We've covered a lot of ground and examined a lot of ideas and we'll continue to do that."

The record federal deficit under Reagan has been blamed largely for recent upheaval in the world's financial markets. Estimates place the fiscal 1988 deficit between $163 billion and $179 billion, but those numbers do not take into account the effects of whatever reduction package is eventually imposed.

House Expects Furious Debate On Contra Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans threatened a debate that would "absolutely blow up the House" today on the issue of aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

The threat came down before a report that President Reagan has decided to seek $30 million in new non-lethal aid to the rebels and following a House Rules Committee vote to send to the floor a short-term spending bill with restrictions on $3.2 million in already approved non-lethal assistance.

The spending bill, needed because Congress has not passed any of the 13 money measures needed to run the government through fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1, would extend current spending levels through Dec. 16. An existing short-term bill will expire Tuesday, so debate on the new measure was scheduled today.

Meanwhile, The New York Times today quoted unidentified officials as saying the administration has decided to seek in the near future another $30 million in "humanitarian" aid to the rebels fighting Nicaragua's Marxist government.

Wednesday, on a party-line vote, Democratic Rep. David Bonior of Michigan won Rules Committee endorsement of an amendment barring the CIA from delivering any of $3.2 million in recently approved non-lethal aid for the Contras.

The amendment would require the money to be sent through private relief agencies such as the Red Cross so it would comply with terms of the regional peace plan signed Aug. 7 by Nicaragua and four Central American neighbors.

"We don't want any more 'humanitarian' aid being given out by the CIA," explained Rep. John Moakley, D-Mass., who opposes Contra aid in general.

Republicans were furious, and having lost in committee, they vowed to fight Bonior's amendment bitterly on the floor.

"We are willing to go to the wall on this one," warned House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois.

Jessica Could Lose Toes, Will Walk — Doctors

MIDLAND, Texas (UPI) — Jessica McClure, the toddler who tumbled into a dry well last month and was trapped for 58 hours, may lose a second toe from her injured right foot, but doctors predict she would still be able to walk.

Doctors amputated the little toe on the 19-month-old child's right foot Wednesday and inserted special skin stretchers on her forehead to repair a pressure wound she suffered as she rubbed her forehead against the rough stone well chamber.

Midland Memorial Hospital spokeswoman Sue Ristom said doctors will decide later whether to remove the big toe on the same foot, which was wedged under her in the 4-inch-diameter well shaft and suffered reduced blood circulation.

Dr. Charles Younger, an orthopedic surgeon, said last week doctors were not certain whether they would amputate the two toes because they believed the toes might fall off on their own. He added that the child should have no trouble walking if she loses the two toes.

The girl's first session of plastic surgery began about 8 a.m. Wednesday and ended about four hours later, Ristom said.

Dr. Terry Tubb, Jessica's plastic surgeon, inserted two tissue expanders under the skin on her forehead and stretched the skin so it could be surgically placed to cover the wound, the size of a silver dollar.

Ristom said the forehead procedure and the amputation "all went very well."

Doctors have operated on the foot a total of six times.

Stocks Open Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks quickly erased small opening losses Thursday to move higher in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues as two of the nation's largest banks announced a quarter percentage point cut in base lending rates.

Chase Manhattan Bank cut its prime rates to 8 3/4 percent from 9 percent but the market opened and several other of the nation's largest banks followed almost immediately.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 18.24 Wednesday, was up 11.11 to 1956.40 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 702-531 among the 1,624 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 30,080,000 shares.

Stock prices posted a modest decline Wednesday after a rebound from earlier losses faltered and failed to overcome Wall Street's worries about the budget deficit.

Traders said the political outlook in Washington restrained prices Wednesday because of the apparent lack of movement in talks between the Reagan administration and Congress on reducing the budget and trade deficits.

Dollar Goes Down On World Markets

The dollar continued its fall in Tokyo, opened lower on major European money markets, but edged slightly higher in New York Thursday. Gold was sharply lower.

"With little prospect of Reagan and Congress agreeing soon on what to do about the trade deficit, there's just no strong reason to buy dollars this week," said David Purpora, a foreign exchange trader with Union Bank of Switzerland.

Congressional Democrats reported "some small progress" in their deficit reduction talks with the White House, but each side says the other is not being cooperative enough in drawing up plans for new taxes and lower spending.

House Democratic leader Thomas Foley predicted the private talks, moving into their ninth day Thursday, could drag on into next week. The talks are aimed at trimming at least $23 billion from the federal deficit for fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1. Estimates place the fiscal 1988 deficit between $163 billion and $179 billion.

Japan Criticizes Sanctions

TOKYO (UPI) — The Japanese government criticized President Reagan Thursday for lifting only part of the sanctions levied against Japan for alleged violations of a part on computer chip trade.

Reagan lifted $84 million in sanctions against Japan Wednesday but left $165 million in place to force more U.S. access to the Japanese market.

"There are no grounds for any measures against Japan," said Hajime Tamura, the minister of international trade and industry. "At every forum for dialogue ... we shall urge the United States to withdraw all of the measures at the earliest date possible."

Reagan said the $165 million in sanctions remain in place "because of the lack of sufficient progress to date" in increasing Japanese purchases of American memory chips.

Tamura said U.S. manufacturers are partly to blame for the limited sales of their semiconductor chips in Japan. "Increase of access to the Japanese market can be realized only through the coordinated efforts of Japanese users and foreign manufacturers," he said.

Caspar Weinberger Resigns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, as expected, announced his resignation today after nearly seven years of fighting for increased Pentagon budgets and presiding over a massive military buildup.

President Reagan named national security adviser Frank Carlucci to succeed Weinberger and deputy NSC director Lt. Gen. Colin Powell to replace Carlucci. Powell, a black, would be Reagan's sixth national security adviser.

Weinberger's departure had been rumored for weeks, and except for his official announcement, had been confirmed by administration sources since Monday.

It leaves only Samuel Pierce, the secretary of Housing and Urban Development, from Reagan's original Cabinet that came into office with him.

Reagan opened a Rose Garden ceremony, flanked by Weinberger, Carlucci and Powell, saying, "We're here to say goodspeed to the finest secretary of defense in the history of our nation, Cap Weinberger."

Reagan praised the secretary as a man of "courage, constancy, loyalty, together with uncommon brilliance, decisiveness and determination."

Reagan attributed the discovery of abuses in Pentagon spending to Weinberger's efforts along with improved morale in the armed forces.

"I've been listening to his advice for more than two decades," Reagan said, lauding his "cool and sure judgment."

Weinberger, reading from his letter of resignation, said, "With profound regret, but with unbounded admiration for all that you have accomplished for the country, I ask that you relieve me of the responsibilities of this great office that you entrusted to me nearly seven years ago."

This was the second Cabinet change this week, following by two days Reagan's nomination of Ann McLaughlin as secretary of labor.

Weinberger, the last of the hard-line national security aides to the president, fought incessantly for higher defense spending within administration councils, losing more often than he won but nevertheless overseeing one of the largest military build-ups in history in terms of money spent. Military spending jumped from $181 billion in 1982 to $274 billion in the 1987 fiscal year ended Sept. 30.

Spending will continue to increase somewhat for several years even though the defense budgets have declined slightly in the last two years because of the "savings" built up in large budget authorizations in the early 1980s.

Weinberger has been accused of only spending for more of the same, and not changing strategy from the previous Carter administration. Prominent are the build-up to the 600-ship Navy and the B-1 bomber, which was canceled by Carter.

Weinberger also was at the helm when 241 Marines were killed in the Beirut bombing in 1983 — followed immediately by the invasion of Grenada — and the current U.S. presence in the Persian Gulf. Last year, American forces bombed Libya in retaliation for a terrorist bombing of a nightclub patronized by GIs in West Germany.

Weinberger, one of the president's closest friends in government, has served his boss since 1987, when he headed California's State Government Organization and Commission on Economy during Reagan's stint as governor.

Asked Wednesday if he would miss "Cap," as Weinberger is known to associates, the president replied, "Yes, I always miss my friends when they're not here."

Weinberger's decision has been attributed to the poor health of his wife, Jane, but in an interview with The New York Times Wednesday, she said, "All of the stories you hear about my general health are not true."

Nonetheless, Mrs. Weinberger said she would be happy with his retirement, telling the newspaper, "I've been talking about it for eight years."

Weinberger's departure comes a month before Reagan is scheduled to meet with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Washington to sign a treaty eliminating intermediate-range nuclear missiles. The timing raises questions as to whether Weinberger simply grew tired of internal battles over defense spending and arms control agreements with the Soviets, which he steadfastly has opposed.

Seen as the last national security hardliner left in Reagan's administration, his skepticism of Soviet intentions made for pointed absences from both of the previous Reagan-Gorbachev summits. He also found himself getting less than he wanted from even the president — let alone Congress — in Pentagon funding.

Weinberger's resignation represents the second change this week in Reagan's Cabinet. The president named former government official and public relations executive Ann McLaughlin as labor secretary Tuesday.

A Harvard-educated lawyer from San Francisco, Weinberger's political career began with election to the California Assembly in 1952. He practiced law after his last term ended in 1957 for 10 years before going to work for Reagan, becoming state finance director in 1968.

President Richard Nixon tapped him to head the Federal Trade Commission in 1970.

...Jail

Seminole County jail guards. McGill and Blount were fired along with guards Dean High, a guard for three months, and Douglas Fauls, a guard for 10 months, following the jailhouse suicide of a 17-year-old murder suspect at the jail in the early morning of Aug. 27.

The guards were accused of not making 15-minute checks on juvenile prisoners, as required by the state and Polk. They are also accused of falsifying logs stating that the checks were made as required.

High, along with Fauls, is not qualified to appeal his firing because they each worked for Polk for less than the one year required to be covered by civil service rules. He said that the fired guards performed their duty as they had been instructed and they followed the same practices as all other guards assigned to that same duty.

High said the jail is understaffed and that was a factor that determined how the checks were made. The checks were made from a control booth outside the cell block. The guards admitted they did not enter the cell block alone to make the checks as required by law, but they have said they did their job as they had been ordered. The guards said they had been ordered not to enter a cell block alone, and often only one guard was assigned to watch over a cell area.

The body of Edwin Bateman of Forest City was hanging for about four hours, unseen by guards, before a guard entering the cell block with food at about 6:30 a.m. found his body, according to reports.

Polk said the fired guards were not responsible for Bateman's suicide. He said they were fired for neglect of duty because of the manner in which the checks on juvenile prisoners were made, and for making false entries into jail logs, which showed that the checks were made as required.

Polk said the guards knew they were breaking the law by not making the checks properly and by falsifying the logs.

Initially, the fired guards were the only sheriff's department employees to be punished in connection with the Bateman incident. But one day after Blount's request for an appeals hearing was received by Polk, on Sept. 29, Polk sent a letter of reprimand to jail Sgt. Jimmy Ferguson. Polk criticized Ferguson for failure to supervise the guards in carrying out their duty and responsibility and for failing to ensure the guards were doing their job by the rules.

Overbilling averages $440 per patient and constitutes a big chunk of the annual national hospital bill of $157.9 billion, Constance-Ross said.

She said her estimates are based on Med-Services Management's work in analyzing hospital bills for corporations and insurance companies in 1986 and on research conducted by Hospitals Magazine, a trade publication.

One suspected culprit in the overbilling is the computers hospitals use, she said. "When you err in computer input, your error can be duplicated many times before you discover an error exists." Constance-Ross said. "Simple errors — like a computer clerk punching a wrong key — quickly amount to very large sums of money."

Take the clerk who hit the wrong figure. Instead of punching in the number 002 the clerk hit just 2, multiplying the bill enormously.

"The error was so simple," Constance-Ross said. "The bill, almost $200,000 too high, went through the system and was paid by the insurance company before the error was discovered."

Margaret Musial, manager of Medical Billing Analysts, a firm that defends hospitals in overbilling cases, agreed with Constance-Ross that mistakes are made but said they are just as likely to be underbilling as overbilling.

"There are ample opportunities for error," Musial said. Analysts of $1.2 million in bills of one hospital, she said, uncovered errors of $243,000, of which $107,001 was overbilling and $136,000 was underbilling. —Wire reports were used in compiling this report.

Kidnapped Irishman Freed In Shootout

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Police stormed a suburban house today and freed a member of one of Ireland's wealthiest families in a gunbattle with the abductors who mutilated two of his fingers, authorities said.

A detective was seriously wounded in the stomach and another policeman also was hit, along with a gang member, police said. One member of the gang was captured but five escaped in hijacked cars.

The kidnapers — led by Ireland's most notorious outlaw, known as the "Border Fox" — had cut off parts of two of Dennis O'Grady's fingers and left them in a cardboard box in a cathedral Wednesday to press their demand for a $2.5 million ransom.

But as a Roman Catholic priest was driving to a meeting with a representative of the kidnapers to arrange payment, police tailed a suspicious car to the gang's hideout in suburban Dublin, officers said.

Witnesses said as police surrounded the home, the kidnapers ran out, opening fire and sending onlookers diving for cover.

"It was a very ferocious battle," a police source said. The wounded kidnapper managed to escape along with four other gang members who fled in a succession of hijacked cars, authorities said. One gang member was arrested.

O'Grady, 37, is son-in-law of millionaire Dr. Augustus Parnell the chairman of a leading medical research firm and one of Ireland's wealthiest men. O'Grady was not injured in the blaze of gunfire but was taken for checkup at a hospital, where a spokeswoman said he "appears to be in good condition."

Police immediately erected roadblocks and army helicopters were dispatched over the city to try to catch the escaped kidnapers.

Justice Minister Gerry Collins vowed, "This gang will be hunted down to the end of the road."

Police sources said the box contained cut-off sections of O'Grady's two fingers along with photographs showing they had been taken from him.

IN BRIEF

Central American Peace Pact Takes Effect Today, Hopefully

By United Press International

The Central American peace accord went into effect today, but diplomats held out little hope that it would last long.

Four sections of the peace plan, signed on Aug. 7, will take effect simultaneously today — 90 days after the original signing of the document in Guatemala City by the presidents of Costa Rica, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Honduras and Guatemala.

The provisions call for a cease-fire, amnesty for insurgents who lay down their weapons, halting of aid to insurgent groups and democratic reforms.

The accord is designed primarily to stop conflicts in Nicaragua, El Salvador and Guatemala. The agreement will have minimal significance in Costa Rica and Honduras, which are at peace.

The Nicaraguan government plans a rally to celebrate the occasion and El Salvador prepared to declare a unilateral cease-fire.

Socialists Defend Mitterrand

PARIS (UPI) — A Socialist leader, defending President Francois Mitterrand against accusations his administration permitted arms to be sold to Iran, said such a proposal would have met with "absolute refusal."

The comments came a day after Defense Minister Andre Giraud announced he had declassified and turned over to an investigating judge a report that the previous Socialist government allowed French arms maker Luchaire to sell $120 million in arms to Iran despite a self-imposed embargo against such transactions.

"The facts appear serious, very serious, sufficiently serious that they should not be hidden or blocked from the course of justice," Giraud told a boisterous session of parliament Wednesday.

But Lionel Jospin, first secretary of the Socialist Party, said in a radio interview today Mitterrand's administration was opposed to selling arms to Iran.

Mexico Aids Drug Dealers

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The Mexican Senate passed an amendment that will restrict the ability of the federal attorney general's office to cooperate with foreign governments in combating the country's multimillion-dollar illegal drug trade.

The amendment to the law states that cooperation with other countries "in judicial matters" must not encompass "evaluations or measures which seek to interfere with our capacity of autonomous policy making or try to assert authority on the part of foreign persons or groups."

In taking the action Wednesday, the senators said cooperation on judicial matters with other countries must fall under the scrutiny of the Mexican legislature, and not be "dictated" by foreign countries.

The amendment was added to the "organizational rules" governing the conduct of the attorney general's office and was part of a package of judicial reforms sent to the Senate recently by President Miguel de la Madrid.

Church Said Funding 'Subversion'

PANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — An elderly Roman Catholic priest and his assistant have been sentenced to life imprisonment on charges of sabotage, terrorism and "propaganda against the socialist system," the Vietnam News Agency said today.

A Ho Chi Minh City newspaper said the group's activities were funded by a church in Missouri.

Seventy-three Catholics accused in the case were released without punishment because they confessed to lesser crimes, the agency said.

The Catholic group, led by Father Tran Dinh Thu, 81, was accused of establishing an underground movement called the "Army of Priests for the Virgin Mother."

Iran Bombs Iraqi Troop Centers

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iran announced a nationwide mobilization to confront "American aggression" in the Persian Gulf and said today its warplanes bombed Iraqi troop centers, inflicting heavy casualties.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency said fighter-bombers attacked troop centers during two missions shortly after dawn today in the province of Misan along the central warfront in retaliation for Iraqi attacks Wednesday on non-military targets, including an oil tanker. Iran said the two missions caused heavy casualties and damage.

Iran also claimed today its artillery shelled the Sulaimaniya province, killing or wounding "tens of Iraqi forces" at a garrison, damaging 12 helicopters and destroying warehouses and vehicles.

Iraq did not respond to any of the Iranian claims.

Iraqi warplanes bombed a petrochemical complex Wednesday and struck the 141,883-ton Iranian tanker Taftan off Kharg island, Iran's vital oil loading terminal, the shipping insurance broker Lloyd's of London said today.

Lloyd's said the Taftan, a tanker in the Iranian oil shuttle service, was 70 percent loaded at the time of the attack and that a fire was quickly extinguished. It said two casualties were taken off by helicopter but gave no further details.

Iran said its forces shot down an Iraqi jet over southern Iran, capturing the pilot, and a second jet over Kharg island, the Iranian news agency said. It said fighter planes also bombed Iraqi "troop concentrations" along the war front Wednesday.

Iranian Speaker of Parliament Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaking during nationwide demonstrations Wednesday celebrating the anniversary of the 1979 takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, said Washington had made a "great nation like Iran angry."

Tehran Radio reported millions of Iranians spilled into the streets of Tehran and other cities for the celebrations. President Ali Khomeini led a crowd at the capital's Azadi Square in chants of "Death to America" and in the burning of the Stars and Stripes.

A bomb planted aboard a pickup truck exploded during a march in the northwestern city of Mahabad, killing two people and injuring 26 others, the radio said. Officials blamed "American mercenary agents" for the bomb.

Intelligence sources in Washington, meanwhile, said they believed Iran is preparing to launch a major offensive against Iraq early next year, possibly in February, after spurning United Nations efforts to end the war.

In January of this year, an Iranian offensive brought troops to within 3 1/4 miles of the Iraqi port city of Basra before being repulsed in a bloody battle that left tens of thousands dead and wounded.

Wednesday's protests marked the Nov. 4, 1979, seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and the holding of 53 Americans hostage for 444 days, a humiliating chapter in American history that helped disgrace President Carter and usher in the Reagan presidency.

Iranian Prime Minister Hussein Mubarek, who declared Wednesday a national holiday, said the marches were organized to demonstrate Iran's resolve "to combat the U.S. military presence" in the Persian Gulf.

The United States has led a massive build-up of Western naval fleets in the gulf since July, when the U.S. fleet began providing protection against Iranian attacks to oil tankers owned by Kuwait, an ally of Iraq.

Lebanon's Labor Unions Call Nationwide Strike

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon's divided population, in a rare display of unity since civil war erupted 12 years ago, observed a nationwide strike today aimed at pressuring the government to resolve the economic crisis.

Pharmacies and hospitals were exempt from the strike, called by the General Laborers Union, which represents 85 unions claiming a membership of 300,000. The strike brought Christians and Moslems together in rare unity.

Union leaders toured the streets of Moslem west Beirut in automobiles equipped with loudspeakers, urging people to demonstrate and voice their dismay over the economic crisis.

"Citizens of Lebanon, do not stay idle in your homes," leaders exhorted the populace through the loudspeakers. "Join the strike, defend the source of your living and never allow any business to open until our demands are met."

The union leaders, their cars decorated with milk cans, vegetables and other basic food stuffs that are being sold at soaring prices, also distributed leaflets appealing to all citizens to confront "monopolists, tradesmen and mafias who contribute to starving your children."

Schools, banks, shops, restaurants and public and private institutions throughout the country closed their doors.

Dozens of policemen and soldiers, equipped with rifles and rocket grenades, intensified patrols in Moslem and Christian sectors of the capital.

Traffic at Beirut International Airport, Lebanon's only air facility, was suspended for 24 hours in solidarity with the strike.

An official of Lebanon's national flag carrier, Middle East Airlines, said the company will meet with union leaders today to decide whether to resume flights Friday.

More than 100,000 people inside Israel's self-declared security zone in southern Lebanon ignored the strike call and kept their shops and businesses open, reporters said.

In northern and eastern Lebanon, strikers demonstrated and burned tires, cutting off roads in the Christian market town of Zahleh, about 25 miles east of Beirut.

The union said the strike will continue until a solution is found to curb inflation, which has climbed more than 244 percent since the beginning of the year, and to strengthen the pound, which has lost 100 percent of its value against the U.S. dollar in three years.

The dollar closed at 530 to the pound Wednesday.

The Islamic Higher Shiite Council, the highest traditional Shiite authority, called for a three-day strike, contending the war-torn country could not tolerate having business paralyzed for a long time.

Christian and Moslem militias said they would support the strike.

Angry demonstrators protesting Lebanon's economic problems on Aug. 28 defied the Syrian military presence and attacked currency exchange shops in west Beirut with stones and iron bars.

President Amin Gemayel, a Christian, warned of "an economic disaster" in Lebanon and pleaded for international financial aid in a speech at the United Nations on Sept. 24.

"Where is the strike going to lead us to, I do not know," said an old man outside a bakery. "But in Lebanon we learn to expect the unexpected and who knows, it could signal the beginning of the end of this filthy civil war."

Cavemen Cared For Physically Disabled

By Gayle Young
UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — In their prehistoric struggle for survival, cavemen still managed to care for members of their community too disabled to forage and hunt with the clan, according to evidence found in southern Italy.

A researcher said Wednesday the skeleton of a dwarf who died about 12,000 years ago indicates that cavemen had the time — and the compassion — to care for the physically disabled. The find also provides the first example of a clan caring for one of its members disabled from birth.

"These people were hunters and gatherers," David W. Frayer, a professor of anthropology at the University of Kansas at Lawrence, said in a telephone interview.

The skeleton of the 3-foot-tall youth was discovered in 1963 in a cave in southern Italy but was lost to anthropologists until Frayer re-examined the remains and reported on his findings in the British science journal Nature.

"He couldn't have taken part in normal hunting of food or gathering activities, so he was obviously cared for by others."

Archaeologists have found the remains of other handicapped individuals who lived during the same time period, but Frayer said their disabilities occurred when they were adults.

The remains of one man found in Europe indicated he had a brain infection that would have disabled him for months, and another skeleton was of a man whose arm had been cut off below the elbow years before he died.

"But this is the first time we've found someone who was disabled since birth, who was not a member of a community who suddenly became disabled," Frayer said.

There was no indication the dwarf, who was about 17 years old at the time of his death, had suffered from malnutrition or neglect, he said.

Connection Upends Six Flags, 2-1

Tim Raines led off the bottom of the sixth inning with a double and scored on a two-out single by Bob Jacobs as the Tim Raines Connection upended Six Flags Nursery, 2-1, in a battle of Sanford Men's Softball Association leaders Wednesday night at Pinehurst Field.

The Connection ran its record to 6-0 for the season while Six Flags now stands at 4-2. In Wednesday's second game, Stromberg Carlson broke a 7-7 tie with eight runs in the top of the eighth inning en route to a 15-7 victory over Wrecking Crew.

Six Flags Nursery had taken a 1-0 lead in the top of the second inning when Terry Russel led off with a triple and scored on a TRC error. Six Flags had runners on first and second with one out but could not add to its lead.

The potent TRC offense was held scoreless on one hit through three frames but the Connection tied the score with a run in the fourth. Sam Raines reached on an error to lead off, took second on Rod Turner's fly out and scored on Jacobs' base hit.

Six Flags' only other threat in the game came in the top of the sixth when Ted Miller and Joe Ervin both singled. TRC turned a double play to get out of the jam, though, when Ervin was forced at second on Mike Galloway's grounder and Miller was gunned down at the plate by first baseman Turner.

After TRC broke the tie in the bottom of the sixth, winning pitcher Burnett Washington retired Six Flags in order in the top of the seventh.

In Wednesday's second game, Stromberg Carlson took a comfortable 7-1 lead into the bottom of the seventh inning when Wrecking Crew rallied for six runs to tie it and send it to extra innings. John Castelow's two-run triple, Danny Lombard's RBI single and sacrifice flies by Mike Edwards and Hal Posey put Wrecking Crew back in the game in the seventh.

But as hard as Wrecking Crew worked to get back in it, the roof caved in in the top of the eighth when Stromberg Carlson scored eight runs. John Martin, Tony Kremer and Mike Hartwig all drove in runs in the inning while Stromberg Carlson took advantage of seven walks.

Lady Lions Crank Up Attack, Pound St. Cloud

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Writer
ORLANDO — After a slow start, Oviedo's Lady Lions turned their level of play up a notch and rolled to a 15-9, 15-4 victory over St. Cloud's Lady Bulldogs Wednesday night in semifinal action of the 3A-8 District Tournament before 151 fans at Jones High School.

The Lady Lions, 20-2 on the season, will look to go another notch higher tonight when they go for their eighth consecutive district title. Oviedo takes on Kissimmee Gateway's Lady Panthers tonight at 7 at Jones. Gateway shook off a first-game loss to defeat Kissimmee Osceola, 9-15, 15-3, 15-7, in Wednesday's second semifinal.

"We played much better as a team tonight," Oviedo junior Anna Hollis said. "We were calling the ball and communicating better than last night. If we come out and really play well, we feel we can make the final ours."

St. Cloud used strong serving and a lot of enthusiasm to build a 3-0 lead early and the Lady Bulldogs fought Oviedo to an 8-8 tie before the Lady Lions cranked up their offense and blew St. Cloud's upset bid away.

"It was a little rough for a while in the first game, but we started getting it together," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "I think we'll have it all together tomorrow night."

After St. Cloud reeled off the first three points, Hollis had a spike and a tip to make it 3-2. St. Cloud had a 4-2 lead when junior Kerstin Colon's dink gave Oviedo a side out and senior Jodie Switzer served four points for a 6-4 Oviedo lead. Junior Suzanne Hughes started the rally with a kill and senior Jill Knutson's dink accounted for the fourth point. St. Cloud came back with two points to tie it and the teams then traded points.

With the score tied at 8-8, senior Bobbie Kelley served two points for a 10-8 lead and, after St. Cloud scored one, Hollis put down a spike off of senior Jill Knutson's set for a side out and Hollis then served the 11th point.

St. Cloud had the serve one more time but failed to score and Switzer then served out the game. Knutson had a spike for the 12th point and she also put down a spike off Switzer's set for the 15th point.

Both Knutson and Switzer set up the hitters well in for Oviedo while the back row passers of Colon and sophomore Corrie Lawson were right in the setters' hands most of the time.

In game two, Oviedo took immediate control and never let go of it. Kelley got the Lady Lions off to a blazing start as she served five points in a row. Hughes had a spike and a block for two of the points while Switzer got in a hit for the fifth point.

St. Cloud got as close as 6-2 when junior Anne Wolary served four points for Oviedo, two of which weren't returned. Knutson later served Oviedo to a 13-4 lead, one point being an ace, and, after a kill by Hughes, Oviedo closed out the match on Hollis' serve.

"District is a different kind of game," Carlson said. "We played pretty well tonight, but we have to come back and play better tomorrow. We can't afford to miss serves and we have to keep attacking."

Gateway, which was added to the district less than two weeks ago, ran its record to 16-5 in advancing to the final.

"Gateway has some good servers and they set up pretty well," Carlson said. "They have a few girls who can hit but it was hard to tell how good they are because Osceola gave them so many free balls. If we serve well and keep hitting, we shouldn't have too much trouble."

Expansion: Graham, Chiles Go To Bat For Florida

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Florida's two senators went to bat to bring a major league baseball franchise to the state Wednesday, joining a group of 15 lawmakers urging the first expansion in the sport since 1977.

"We look forward in Florida to having that major league expansion come our way," Sen. Lawton Chiles, a Democrat, said after the announcement of the formation of a Senate task force seeking expansion of the 26-team major leagues.

Fellow Florida Democratic senator Bob Graham is also a member of the task force. The two are seeking franchises for Miami, Tampa and St. Petersburg.

"We hope that our presence and our joint interest will help to encourage major league baseball to move more rapidly than they have on expansion," said Sen. Tim Wirth, D-Colo., the task force organizer.

Baseball

At a news conference in the Capitol, Wirth said the task force has asked for a meeting with Commissioner Peter Ueberroth and the presidents of both the American and National leagues to discuss the matter. The last expansion of the major leagues came in 1977, when the American League added the Seattle Mariners and Toronto Blue Jays.

Wirth said "potential expansion cities" include: the three Florida cities, New Orleans, Denver, Phoenix, Ariz., Vancouver, British Columbia, East Rutherford, N.J., Indianapolis, Buffalo, N.Y., Nashville, Tenn., Columbus, Ohio, and Washington, D.C.

"Miami and St. Petersburg and Tampa are all very interested in the expansion teams. We think it is time the league started moving and we think the added impetus of our task force will help. I look forward to getting a chance to meet with the commissioner and the presidents of the leagues," Chiles said.

The senators have more than a fan's interest in securing major league teams for their states, as baseball franchises historically have funneled millions of dollars into local communities through jobs, taxes and concessions, as well as adding "major league" status to a community.

"It's pretty obvious what a baseball franchise would mean in the tax-base, in jobs, in everything that it brings with it for a community," said Chiles.

Sen. John Breaux, D-La., said the south has been slighted in the allocation of franchises.

"It's interesting to note that when you look at the South that if you exclude Texas, which is very easy to do, you really only have one major league baseball team in the entire South and that's in Atlanta. The south is ready, willing and quite able to bring a team down and show the support that we think is there," Breaux added.

Chiles pointed out Florida has served as the spring training home for many teams over the years.

"Major league baseball is no stranger to Florida. Many of the teams train there in the spring."

Lake Mary Attempts To Spoil Oviedo's Homecoming

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

The Lake Mary Rams are a team that is used to adversity. It seems as though Lake Mary's opponents all have one thing in common: they don't like the Rams and their level of play always is turned up one notch when they see red and white uniforms.

"Everybody gets all fired up when they play us," Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson said. "It seems as though we have had big game after big game this season, and it has been tough on us."

Nelson's Rams will participate in yet another key game on Friday when they travel to Oviedo in a Seminole Athletic Conference clash. Kickoff is slated for 8 in Oviedo's homecoming game.

"It figures, they scheduled us for homecoming," Nelson said. "They must be a good football team because they beat Dr. Phillips, and they are the only ones to have done that."

The Rams, coming off their crucial 7-3 District 5A-4/SAC win over DeLand last week, are 5-2 overall and 4-1 in the SAC. DeLand and Lake Howell are both one-half game behind the Rams with 3-1 SAC marks.

"This is a big game as far as the conference goes," Nelson said. "We have to win this one to stay on top."

Lake Mary is still hoping to make the playoffs. In order for that to happen, the Rams have to beat hapless Daytona Beach Mainland next week, and DeLand has to beat both Spruce Creek and Lyman. If DeLand loses to either, the Rams will be all but eliminated. Lake Mary is hoping for a three-way tie in the district between themselves, Lake Howell, and DeLand. If Lake Mary and Lake Howell end up tied, the Silver Hawks will go to the playoffs because they beat Mary.

"Go Bulldogs!" Nelson said. "If they lose, we are out of it."

The Lions, 3-4 overall, come in riding a three-game losing streak. Oviedo had a chance to put itself in prime contention for the District 4A-7 crown last week, but lost to Seminole, 16-3. The Lions are 1-3 in the SAC.

Nelson, however, still said that he respects Oviedo and is weary of an upset. "Even a dead rattle can kill," Nelson said. "Heck, they have nothing to lose, and I'm sure that they will be ready for us."

Although he was happy to beat DeLand last week, Nelson said that he wasn't all that pleased with his team's overall play. "We got the ball at the 20, and punted it to the 50 a bunch of times," Nelson said. "We had one nice drive, and took advantage of it. Other than that, they outplayed us."

Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said that he is hoping that his team gives a good effort. "We haven't been playing that well lately, and that is no secret," Blanton said. "I am just hoping that we play them a good game."

Lake Mary running back John Curry had led the SAC rushing race for the first six weeks of the season, but was held to 64 yards against DeLand. Curry now has 835 yards for the season and 11 touchdowns. Lyman's Victor Farrier is the new leader with 1,006 yards and 17 TD's.

"My primary concern is the playoffs, not the rushing title," Curry said. "I want to see our team go to the playoffs, and any personal goal of mine comes second."

Curry said that although he feels the offense has been successful this season, it has not yet reached its potential. "We can still get a heck of a lot better," Curry said. "We have had some good games, but we need to play consistently every game."

Nelson said that the Oviedo offense concerns him. "They haven't scored all that many points lately (16 in their last three games), but I still think that they are capable of scoring a lot of points," Nelson said. "They have a good quarterback in (Matthew) Blanton, and their running backs are slippery."

Nelson said that 265-pound tackle Andy Palmer concerns him. Palmer is questionable for tonight's game as he sustained a foot injury last week. "That kid (Palmer) has the talent to be a college player," Nelson said. "He can block well on offense, and he does a pretty good job at defensive tackle."

Phoenix Wants NFL Franchise

PHOENIX (UPI) — Arizona State University and the city of Phoenix have made "a lot of strides" toward joining forces to lure an NFL franchise, but key details remain open to negotiation, school officials said Wednesday.

In a letter to Phoenix Mayor Terry Goddard, ASU President J. Russell Nelson said the school has delayed submitting a proposal to the St. Louis Cardinals for use of Sun Devil Stadium in adjacent Tempe until details of a joint venture involving Phoenix, ASU and Tempe can be worked out.

Tuesday, Goddard proposed that professional football be staged at ASU with a future major-league baseball team going to Phoenix in its proposed downtown domed stadium.

During a news conference Wednesday, ASU's Vice President for University Relations Brent Brown said Goddard's reaction to Nelson's letter was positive.

"We feel like we've made a lot of strides toward closing this gap (of competition between ASU and Phoenix)," Brown said.

There are two key differences, however, between Nelson's and Goddard's proposals: Tempe's role in the deal and the length of a lease at Sun Devil Stadium.

Football

ASU is not interested in offering a short-term lease at Sun Devil Stadium while a downtown facility is built, unless the school's interests are protected, Brown said.

"If somebody has a professional franchise in hand and comes to us and says 'We won't sign a long-term lease' ... then we'll negotiate," Brown said in an interview after the news conference. "If our interests are protected, then we would recommend a short-term lease."

Both sides essentially agree on establishing a regional sports authority, but ASU wants the city of Tempe to participate in its management.

Ram Frosh Rip Brantley

Chris Haney led a 28-point first quarter onslaught with three touchdowns as Lake Mary's Rams ripped Lake Brantley's Patriots, 28-0, in freshman football action Wednesday at Lake Brantley High.

Haney, who ran for over 200 yards in one half of play, returned the opening kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown. Alan Ebaugh's kick gave the Rams a 7-0 lead. Moments later, Haney scored from 25 yards out as Lake Mary took a 13-0 lead.

On the ensuing kickoff, a Brantley fumble backed the Patriots up to their own two-yard line. Kevin Millong then tackled the Brantley runner in the end zone for a safety and a 15-0 Lake Mary lead.

Still in the first quarter, Colby Berger hooked up with Brian Alexander on a 40-yard touchdown pass and Ebaugh's kick made it 22-0. Late in the opening quarter, Haney's 10-yard run made it 28-0. Lake Mary coach Jim Hughes said he play substitutes most of the rest of the game.

While Haney led the offense, Jason Belknap, Millong, Mark Rosenberg and Justin Kingston were the defensive leaders for Lake Mary which finished the season at 5-3. Lake Brantley was 0-8.

Lake Howell's Eva Miranda celebrates a winner in Wednesday night's match against Lake Mary. Lake Howell won the match to advance to tonight's semifinals against DeLand.

...4A-9

Peters got in a pair of hard serves to put Lake Mary back on top, 12-11, and Splatt put down a kill off Snow's set to make it 13-11. Splatt served one point for a 14-11 lead and Lake Mary had a chance to close out the game when Brann placed a spike into the left corner for a side out. Lake Howell pulled within 14-12 on Manuel's serve, then got another side out on an offspeed hit by Hayden.

Brann then came on to serve the last four points of the match. Hayden's spike accounted for the 13th point and she got in another offspeed hit for the 16th point.

Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots were not overwhelming Wednesday night but they really didn't have to be against Daytona Beach Mainland, Brantley, led by the serving of Dawn Gebhart and the net play of Wendy Vickery, came away with a 15-8, 15-6 victory.

"We're going to have to play much better tomorrow night," Lake Brantley coach Stephanie Glance said. "But I'm confident that we will. We played at Mainland's level too much tonight but we will be ready for Spruce Creek."

Raiders Crush Alumni, 127-78

By Chris Pister
Herald Sports Writer

Barry Dunning and Malcolm Houston combined for 48 points Tuesday night as the Seminole Community College Raiders thrashed the SCC Alumni, 127-78, at the SCC Health Center.

The Raiders open the 1987-88 season on Saturday as they travel to Fort Pierce to play Indian River Community College. SCC's first home game is Tuesday, Nov. 10, against Florida College-Tampa. The annual Raider Tournament will be held Nov. 13-14.

Dunning, a 6-7 sophomore forward, connected on 12 of 16 shots from the floor and finished with a game-high 26 points and he also grabbed a game-high 10 rebounds. Houston, a 6-0 sophomore guard, finished with 22 points on 9 of 19 shooting.

including 4 of 10 from three-point range.

Mark Hadden, a 6-2 freshman guard from Fort Pierce, made a successful debut for the Raiders as he pumped in 19 points while Sanford's Ken Gordon, a 6-2 sophomore guard, contributed 15 points and sophomore forward Robert Williams added 11. Vincent Emerson chipped in nine points and Holly Keller, Terrell Barnes and Robert Ricciardelli added eight points each for SCC.

For the Alumni, Carl Hackworth, who played on last year's team, had 15 points and Bill Corso, who played for the Raiders in 1970-72, netted 12. Lanny Grace (1983-85) added 10 points and Greg Robinson, who

NL Rookie: Santiago Unanimous

NEW YORK (UPI) — San Diego Padres catcher Benito Santiago, bolstered by a record-setting hitting streak, fulfilled the potential predicted by many before the season started.

On Wednesday, Santiago was named unanimous winner of the Jackie Robinson National League Rookie of the Year Award.

Santiago, who claimed "every time I bought a magazine it said I have a chance for Rookie of the Year," drew 24 first-place votes, in balloting conducted by the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Pittsburgh right-hander Mike Druce drew 22 of 24 second-place votes to finish second and St. Louis left-hander Joe Magrane wound up a distant third.

Also receiving votes were Montreal's Casey Candaele, Houston's Gerald Young, Philadelphia's Chris James, Chicago's Les Lancaster, New York's Randy Myers and San Francisco's Matt Williams.

"I feel great," said Santiago, who set a record for the longest hitting streak by a major-league catcher. "People mentioned the possibility of winning this award way back in spring training but I never thought much about it. The beginning of the season was tough because of mistakes I was making. I learned to relax after a couple of months and my concentration got better. Everything just seemed to come together."

Santiago assembled a 34-game hitting streak in the closing weeks of the season, becoming the first catcher to surpass 30 games. The hitting streak is also the longest by a rookie. He finished with a .300 average, 18 homers and 79 RBI.

"When it got to be around 30 games, I didn't know when it would stop," Santiago said of his hitting streak.

Santiago's presence in the farm system enabled the Padres to trade catcher Terry Kennedy. Santiago started slowly, making 16 errors in his first 77 games, then made only six in his next 69 games.

"That's a lot of games," Santiago said of the 146 games he Oviedo, Seminole, the District 4A-7 champs, will be looking to tune up its game before hosting the District 4A-8 winner on Nov. 27.

"We definitely want to finish the season on a winning note," Beathard said. "But Lyman is a tough team. I am very impressed with their defense, and with Farrier."

The Lyman defense is led by linebacker Mike Whittaker. Whittaker is the leading tackler in the SAC with a 15.8 per game average. "He can really play," Beathard said of Whittaker, who also has three interceptions. "He is tough against the run, and his lateral movement is great."

The game will feature the SAC's leading quarterback in Jeff Blake. Blake, a senior, has thrown for 967 yards and eight touchdowns. "I've been the head coach at Lyman for 10 years and I have coached for a whole lot longer than that," Scott said. "And Jeff Blake has the strongest arm of any high school quarterback that I have ever seen."

Scott said that obvious task for the Lyman defense will be to stop Blake. "I remember watching him in the jamboree this fall, and he threw a wet ball 60 yards on the run," Scott said. "I don't know how he can stop him."

But Lyman defensive coordinator Jack Bloomingdale thinks he does. "If we pressure Blake, we should be in good shape," Bloomingdale said. "I've seen four or five films of them, and he is not a good passer under pressure. We have to put the heat on him in order to be successful."

Farrier said that he has a lot of respect for Seminole. "They beat us last year (3-0), and we had a very poor offensive game," Farrier said. "But I really feel that we can beat them this season. We are a much different team, and I think that everybody realizes it."

Salvador Refugees Flocking To Combat Zones

By Douglas Farah

LAS VUELTAS, El Salvador (UPI) — Thousands of refugees, anticipating the implementation of a regional peace plan, are returning home and trying to rebuild their lives in rebel-contested combat zones, posing serious problems for the U.S.-backed military.

Two weeks ago, more than 1,000 people returned from the Mesa Grande refugee camp in Honduras to Las Vueltas, a town nestled among the steep hills of Chalatenango Province, 85 miles north of the capital, and are working hard to build their houses and reclaim their fields.

In October, a total of 4,313 refugees returned to Chalatenango and neighboring Cabanas Province from Honduras, according to the United Nations High Commission for Refugees, doubling in one month the number of returnees recorded in the past three years.

In Las Vueltas, people are living in makeshift grass huts or in the remains of some 50 abandoned and bombed out houses, bullet-pocked and blackened by previous fighting. The town church has been set up to shelter the elderly and seriously ill.

Weeds and rubble still own the the only road through, now reopened for the first time since 1982, and work brigades go out each day to repair it.

Many of the refugees spent as much as seven years in the camps, fleeing their homes in the face of incessant combat between the military and guerrillas of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front.

Las Vueltas, in north-central Chalatenango

'Once you have been hurt, you are always afraid.'

Province, has long been a rebel stronghold where residents said the military killed dozens of civilians suspected of being guerrillas and finally abandoned in 1982.

Although the army moves through it from time to time, Chalatenango, along with northern Morazan, remains an area of the rebels' greatest strength and persistence.

"There was bombing and fighting every day, so what else could we do?" said Josefina, an older woman who picked lice from her son's hair as she talked.

"The army was killing everyone whom they suspected of being the enemy. I fled with my three small children because we could not stand it anymore."

Most said they chose to return now because they could no longer stand the mountainous camp sites, where food was short and the nights too cold. While still fearful of the military, they said believed they could live normal lives again.

"Once you have been hurt you are always afraid," said another elderly woman as she cooked tortillas over an open fire. "But what else could we do? We are Salvadorans."

Food and materials for village reconstruction come mostly from the Catholic Church. There is no government aid.

The army fears the refugees will give aid and shelter to the insurgents, and that the resettlement is part of a rebel strategy to make military operations more difficult by flooding the areas of conflict with civilians.

Their concerns may be justified. While reporters were present, a column of more than a dozen guerrillas came to town, buying food and cigarettes at local stores.

"The resettlement is a victory for the people and the FMLN, because we are the army of the people," said a rebel patrol leader who gave his name as Tito. "We have all struggled together for their return."

Tito refused to say if the rebels were actively organizing the peasants, but declared, "This is our area. We control here, and we are of the people."

The rebels come to town almost every evening. They have put up brightly colored posters, some crudely lettered by hand, others neatly printed in blue and white, welcoming back the refugees "in the name of the FMLN."

One man, who would not give his name, said proudly he was a "masa," one of the civilian supporters of the rebels.

"I have worked with the masas since 1980," he said. "I am here to teach these people how to defend themselves and to show them the best lands. I am going to give them some direction, teach them what to do."

But it was not clear if everyone wanted to learn.

A relief worker predicted the rebel presence may bring in the army, making the people's lives more difficult and possibly initiate the cycle of violence all over again.

"It is not too smart," she said.

While distrust of the military runs deep because of past abuses, some, at least, seem to think their situation has improved.

"It used to be the army would kill you if you were not like them," said one old man. "Now it is different. They may not like us, but I do not think they will kill us."

The army has greatly improved its human rights record, in large part because of constant U.S. pressure. Soldiers and officers receive special courses on respecting the civilian population and what human rights are.

The military is also concentrating much more on psychological warfare, such as propaganda and "civic-military" programs in which soldiers give people food, shoes and sometimes medical care in contested areas.

Government troops were in town the day the people arrived, but have not come back since. The regional commander, however, Col. Benjamin Canjura, warned the new arrivals not to get involved in politics.

"I tell the people that if they really want to come back and work like human beings, they are welcome," Canjura said recently. "But if they are manipulated by the subversives or help the terrorists, they will pay the price."

The army has stationed an elite, immediate-reaction counterinsurgency battalion with artillery support eight miles northwest of Las Vueltas in La Laguna, with orders to engage the rebels anywhere they are found in northern Chalatenango Province.

The move by Chase came one week after one of the nation's smaller banks, Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C., cut its base rate to 8 1/4 percent.

Riggs said last week it cut its rate because of a tremendous decrease in the cost of funds in the wake of the stock market's plunge last month and it hoped that by lowering the prime it would stimulate some loan demand.

The prime is a base used to calculate a variety of loan rates, including many to consumers.

Bank rates peaked on Oct. 16, when Marine Midland Banks joined Chemical in raising its prime to 9 3/4 percent. Chemical had raised the rate the previous day. At the time, most major banks were charging 9 1/4 percent.

On Oct. 20, Chemical and Marine Midland recinded the increases and two days later most banks cut their prime rates to 9 percent.

Interest rates rose in the latter part of the summer. On Sept. 4, most banks boosted their primes to 8 3/4 percent from 8 1/4 percent, following the Federal Reserve's increase in its discount rate, which it charges on loans to banking institutions, to 8 percent from 5.5 percent.

On Oct. 7, banks raised the prime to 9 1/4 percent.

there were issues concerning Hancock that needed to be cleared up before a new police chief is hired. One of those issues he said is Hancock's alleged neglect of the investigations of two murder cases.

Polk said he feels that if the Florida Department of Law Enforcement had been approached by the Oviedo city manager with the same list of complaints against Hancock, after he had already been fired, the FDLE would have given the same response to a request for an internal investigation into the allegations against Hancock.

Williford said the FDLE has not been approached by city officials on this issue, which he said is not dead.

Experts: No Widespread AIDS Tests

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Widespread testing for the AIDS virus would divert thin resources from more effective education efforts while doing little to protect the public, a parade of medical and education experts said Wednesday.

Blood tests for AIDS are too inconclusive to offer any long term peace of mind, since the AIDS virus has a long incubation period, and someone could contract the dread disease the day after the test anyway, the experts said in testimony before the House Task Force on AIDS.

"The paranoia, the overreaction, is far more dangerous than the disease," said Rep. Lois Frankel, D-West Palm Beach, chairwoman of the task force.

The task force heard testimony for about four hours Wednesday morning, but was not expected to take any formal action for another couple of months.

Old Favorites, New Delights Fill Abby's New Cookbooklet

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for many years and have enjoyed it, but the best thing I ever got from you was your recipe for pecan pie. I made one, and it was the best pecan pie I had ever eaten.

Last summer I saw you on "Hour Magazine" with Gary Collins. You made a chocolate mousse that looked delicious, and it took you less than five minutes! You listed the ingredients rather quickly as time was running out, then Gary Collins said the recipe would be included in a cookbooklet you were working on. If all of your recipes are as good as your pecan pie, I can't wait to get it. Please let me know how much it costs and how to get it.

MRS. FLORENCE TAYLOR, TOCCOA, GA.

DEAR MRS. TAYLOR: I'm glad you asked. The cookbooklet is ready! It contains many old family favorites, like my mother's chicken soup, as well as choice recipes I've collected over the years from friends, family and first-class chefs. To order, send your name and address, clearly printed, with check or money order for $3.50 to: Dear Abby Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Postage and handling are included.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I found a wallet containing $400 in cash, credit cards, driver's license and various other cards. I immediately contacted the owner and he came over right away, checked the wallet and was delighted to see that everything was intact. Then he asked me if he could offer me anything. Naturally, I said, "No." He said, "Thanks," and left in a hurry.

Somehow I feel the gentleman could have shown his gratitude more adequately by perhaps sending a note of appreciation. I, myself, would certainly have done more than said "Thank you" if that had happened to me. What do you think?

MARGARET W., CINCINNATI

DEAR MARGARET: I think you should have been given (not "offered") something more tangible. The gentleman knows where you live. Let's hope he reconsiders and returns with a little Thanksgiving gift. A turkey maybe—instead of a goose egg?

DEAR ABBY: Here's a family dilemma I hope you can solve: I'm a 30-year-old man who still lives in the same town as my parents. My wife and I have spent every holiday with my family for the last five years.

This year, my wife's family is going to Lake Tahoe for Christmas, and we'd like to join them.

The problem is that my parents expect us to be with them as we always have. My wife feels that she's entitled to a holiday with her parents. Her solution is to celebrate Christmas on Dec. 22 with my family (my mother's birthday) in our home. Does this seem reasonable to you? If so, how do you suggest I tell my family of our plans? I don't want to hurt anyone's feelings, and I am caught in the middle.

SLEEPLESS IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR SLEEPLESS: Wake up.

You are not "in the middle": you are on the side of fairness and equality, which is the linchpin of a solid marriage. Tell your family in plain English that it's your wife's turn to be with her family for Christmas—unless, of course, you communicate better in another language.

DEAR ABBY: I am a male high school teacher. I have a student in class who is 16 years old and appears to be "a little light in his loafers," as we say around here. (In other words, "gay.")

I am convinced that the boy is "straight," even though when he talks, he gestures broadly with his hands, and finds it impossible to drink a glass of milk unless his pinkie is pointing due west.

Is there a school where young men can go to "butch up," so to speak? If there is, his dad would like to know about it. If no such place exists, might I suggest it as a good business opportunity for somebody to start one.

I am signing my name and address to verify that this is a legitimate letter, but please don't print it, as this is a rather small town. Sign me...

HEAVY IN THE HUSH PUPPIES

DEAR HEAVY: I find it very sad that a father would ask his son's teacher to recommend a school where young men can go to "butch up."

A drama coach might be helpful. However, since you have a dialogue going with the father, please tell him that what his son "is" is more important than what the boy appears to be. And encourage the father to work on establishing a closer relationship with his son.

Over-The-Counter Drugs Can Be Objects Of Abuse

Americans spend more than $5 billion each year on 350,000 varieties of over-the-counter (OTC) products to self-medicate everything from headaches and backaches to insomnia and allergies.

And while the public generally regards them as harmless because they're readily available and relatively inexpensive, OTC drugs are frequently abused.

Among the most common OTC drug abusers are the elderly, who are the main consumers of such preparations.

According to a report in Geriatrics magazine, approximately 40 percent of people over 60 use an OTC preparation every day.

The most common method of OTC drug abuse involves the user taking higher quantities than recommended.

For instance, some people assume that if two sleeping pills every eight hours help them sleep better, four pills every four hours will help them sleep even more soundly.

OTC drugs also are commonly misused when taken in combination with alcohol or prescription medications, unless approved by a physician.

In addition, some trying to disguise a drinking problem will frequently substitute a shot of OTC cough medicine with a high alcohol content for their usual scotch and water.

While a abuse of OTC medications isn't as dangerous as misuse of other substances, it can entail troublesome side effects ranging from headaches and insomnia to seizures and hypertension.

The most commonly abused OTC drugs include:

- Cold and allergy remedies. Many of these preparations contain anywhere from 3 to 25 percent alcohol and often are abused by those attempting to conceal a drinking problem.
- Mouthwashes and gargles. Since they often contain as much as 25 percent alcohol, they sometimes are abused by alcoholics trying to appear abstemious.

- Government research has linked PPA, which also is used as a nasal decongestant, with a wide range of side effects, including strokes, seizures, hypertension, insomnia, headaches, nausea and ringing in the ears.

Breast Check

WHAT IS SCREENING MAMMOGRAPHY?

Mammography is a simple X-ray examination of the breast to detect breast cancer before it can be detected by your own examination or your doctor's examination. With breast self examination it affords you the best chance to detect breast cancer early, while it's still curable.

The Breast/Check network understands the needs of ladies to have a place to feel secure and private while having a mammogram. You'll find that our facilities meet these needs, if not surpassing. For a Breast/Check, you don't need a physician's order. But remember, the Breast/Check isn't for everyone, only those ladies who need a baseline or routine examination. If you have a new lump or other problem, check with your doctor or ask for a diagnostic examination, also available from the Breast/Check network.

The Breast/Check screening examination... $45.

Whooping Cough Seems Possible

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — My parents used to talk about how I had whooping cough in 1920. The whole neighborhood went around whooping all winter. My physician says that I could not have had this disease. He also says that I had a tetanus shot as a child. I was born in 1917. Is he right?

discomfort, an orthopedic surgeon is the most qualified expert to give advice.

If you're having an operation, you should know all you can about it. Dr. Gott's new Health Report, AN INFORMED APPROACH TO SURGERY, covers everything from second opinions to outpatient surgery.

DEAR READER — Although diagnoses were often difficult to make in 1920, whooping cough was a common infection in children during the early part of the century, before pertussis vaccine was widely available. In those days, physicians were quite adept at diagnosing common ailments based on "clinical presentation" (how a person with a disease looked and acted) — so you probably did have whooping cough. However, whether or not you did is a moot point now: there are more important things to argue with your doctor about. Remember that you should have a tetanus shot every 10 years to keep up your immunity.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My teenage son is an exhibitionist. What treatment is available for him?

DEAR READER — Psychotherapy and counseling may provide a method for your son to give up his compulsive and inappropriate behavior. Investigate mental-health clinics in your community or urge him to place himself under the care of a psychiatrist. If he persists in exposing himself, he will sooner or later get into trouble with the police. I suggest that your son seek out immediate help before he becomes a tragic statistic.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it a common practice to leave bone plates in place for 40 years or the rest of one's life?

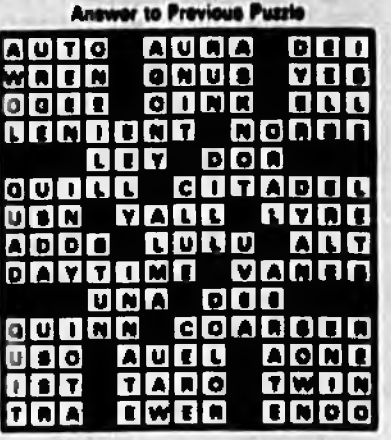

DEAR READER — Metal plates to aid bone healing are usually left in the body permanently because the risks of the surgery necessary to remove them exceed the benefits. Most plates are pinned or screwed to bone; therefore, they don't slip or migrate and they rarely cause symptoms. If a bone plate causes

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Occasionally there is conjecture as to which profession produces the best bridge players. Many of the game's early experts were lawyers. Presently many top players are computer programmers. Certainly the medical profession has produced a host of fine players, including John Fisher, winner of the most master points in competition in 1972. For the rest of the week, we will look at some fine plays made by doctors early in the history of bridge.

hand. East could not gain by rising with the club ace, so he ducked. When Dr. Siegler won the club king, he knew that continuing clubs would require a 3-3 split to net enough tricks for his contract. So he switched to diamonds, playing a low one and ducking in dummy. Now the expected 3-2 division in that suit gave him nine tricks, but he could never have got them if he had not first scored a club trick. It's a simple little play, but one often overlooked.

Lesson: When you need to steal a trick before going about your business, always lead up to the honor holding; give your opponent a chance to duck.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osool
YOUR BIRTHDAY NOVEMBER 6, 1987

Important contacts will be established in the year ahead through your non-vocational involvements. The ones which will prove the most effective will be with people older than yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually, you have a faculty for generating action wherever you go. However, today your presence will have a calming effect on companions. Major changes are ahead for Scorpios in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today, you may be fortunate enough to find someone who is willing to help you complete an old task that you've been neglecting for some time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Socialize with a purpose today. Try to associate with progressive thinkers so that worthwhile ideas and information can be exchanged.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One of your best assets today is your ability to spot a genuine bargain, especially if you are out scouting for a particular household item.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In discussions with others today, everyone will sit up and take notice when you voice your opinions. It will be because your views will be superior to theirs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order to get what is owed you at this time, you are going to have to make your desires known. Otherwise, matters could just drag on and on.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to focus as much time and effort as possible today on situations that can advance your personal interests. This is where you're the strongest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Things have a way of working out to your advantage today if you let them run their natural course. Don't puddle against the current.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A group with which you are affiliated might ask you to take on new responsibilities today. They'll turn out to be more of a pleasure than a nuisance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There's a chance you may take on something today that your associates have been avoiding. The challenge will be stimulating, and you'll rise to the occasion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're in a productive cycle today, and the only thing that can hold you back is self-imposed limitations. Think big, and perform in accordance with your thoughts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be absolutely certain at this time that you are not overlooking something that has profitable potential. There's an opportunity around you that's somewhat veiled.

Library-Museum Board Picks Officers, Defines Terms

Maryann L. Cross
Herald Staff Writer

The new museum board met for the first time Wednesday to elect officers, draw for their length of service, and select the date and time of the board's regular meeting.

Eight of the nine newly appointed members of the Henry Shelton Sanford Memorial Library and Museum board met at 4 p.m. Wednesday in the conference chamber room at City Hall. Bunny Logan was not present at the meeting.

By a unanimous vote, A.B. "Tommy" Peterson, Jr. was elected chairman of the board and Ned Yancey was elected to serve as vice-chairman. Erma Dangleman was elected to be the board's secretary.

The board drew numbers out of a box to determine how long their first term would be. Jim Jernigan, director of parks and recreation, told the board three members would serve for three years, three members would serve for two years, and three members would serve for one year. The three-year members are Peterson, Logan, and Joyce Mikkola. Dangleman, B.L.

Perkins, and Alfreda Wallace will serve two years, and Paul Bordenkircher, Yancey, and Vann Parker will serve one year. Jernigan said the members can serve two consecutive terms. Each board member elected hereafter will serve a three-year term.

After some discussion, the board decided it would hold its monthly meeting at the museum at 4:15 p.m. on the second Tuesday of each month. The next meeting will be held Nov. 10.

Curator Alicia Clarke told the board she thought the museum is now in its third phase of development. The first phase, she said, was when the Henry Shelton Sanford collection was given to the museum. The second phase was when Associate Curator Mildred Caskey began serving as part-time curator 15 years ago and the museum started holding exhibits.

"The third phase, which we are in now, is collection management," Clarke said. "The information has always been there, but because of lack of money and staff the work couldn't be done before."

Clarke said that she plans to put the materials in the museum on computer for easy access and to assist researchers.

"But the board needs to decide what direction it wants the museum to go," Clarke said. "I suggest establishing a collections management policy. This is a legal document that describes the collection, how it is being preserved, and other related information. In addition, the document would be a statement of purpose — why the board exists, what it plans to do, and so on."

Peterson directed Clarke to begin to work on the collections management policy. He also told the board that at its next meeting the bylaws would be drawn up. Jernigan distributed a basic set of bylaws and told the members to feel free to make whatever changes they felt would best suit the board. Peterson said the bylaws will indicate the direction the boards intends to go and can act as a guideline for future boards.
