

Commissioner Mayo Principal Speaker At Ceremonies Near New $30,000 Market

(Continued From Page One) intended to Governor Sholtz, the State Marketing Board, the Chamber of Commerce, FERA officials in and out of Florida, and the growers and business men of Sanford and Seminole County whose constant efforts had been rewarded with the award to Sanford of the first of the markets also were heard during the program.

The speakers included W. R. Smith of Tallahassee, representing Governor Sholtz; State Treasurer W. V. Knott; State Marketing Commissioner E. M. Rhodes; Congressman Joe Sears of Jacksonville, and others.

Before the out-of-town speakers were presented to the audience, Chairman Papworth introduced several of the persons who are associated with the plant as its managers, assistants, or cooperating officials.

This group included members of the Supervisory Board, Market Master J. G. Michael, Secretary-Treasurer S. M. Lloyd, Architect E. J. Moughton, Seminole County FERA Administrator T. K. Apgar, Peter Thurston, and E. B. O'Kelley of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

Commissioner Mayo's opening remarks were in reference to his present motor tour of the state, viewing the effects of last week's freeze. "My heart is too full of sympathy for the thousands of citrus, fruit, and vegetable growers upon whom has been visited the worst calamity since 1895," he said.

"When you take into consideration what the grower has lost in his crops, the set back of his trees, the shortage of production for the next several years, to say nothing of the loss to the laboring class in gathering these crops, the crate factory for crates, the packing houses for packing, the transportation companies for transporting, this freeze will run into unestimable millions of dollars lost to our people," he continued. "I was wondering if the opening of this market would not be postponed to a later date," Mr. Mayo continued, "but when I called the Chamber of Commerce here by telephone, I was informed that everything was ready and would go off on schedule. I want to congratulate you people upon having such an organization assisting you and such an energetic citizenry backing it up."

"I am here today to join you folks in celebrating and rejoicing with you over the first State Marketing warehouse," he continued. "The success of this one will decide whether more are to be built in other sections of the state, and to this end I trust we will have the fullest co-operation of every agency in this section to make this one a success."

Continuing, he said that "if this market is successfully operated it will prove a great benefit to our farmers and to business in general for when the farmers make money, all other interests are helped by their success."

Before concluding, Mr. Mayo stressed the part which the county and city played in donating the market site, the FERA for its donation of labor in the erection of the market, and the Coast Line railroad for its contribution of the side track on the northern edge of the property.

"The State has done its part by contributing the funds for its construction," he said, adding that "many of our citizens and various organizations have put their shoulders to the wheel in their fine effort to bring about the market's erection."

"It stands here today, nearly completed," he concluded, "and I now appeal to you growers of Central Florida that you use it in grading and marketing your crops. It is yours, yours to make a success or yours to make a failure. I am happy to say that I have never been conged with a failure, and I know that with your full co-operation this project will maintain my past record. Again let me repeat, it is yours, and its success and its future is up to you."

was attending an important meeting in Orlando. Mr. Housholder stressed that "We want the people to know that this is not a local project but one that the entire state should participate in. Florida's farmers and growers always will find in Sanford a city that is constantly working to help the growers."

Mr. Papworth declared that "It is a great honor to have the privilege of thanking Governor Sholtz, Commissioner Mayo and Commissioner Rhodes for what they did to bring the Market to Sanford."

Recalling the freeze of 40 years ago and the general belief that Florida would never recover, Mr. Papworth stated that the recent freeze would have but little effect upon the progress of Florida.

"My advice to you is that you dig in and not be discouraged," he said. "Prosperity will come back again and this latest freeze may prove to be a God-send. Florida never will be ruined until the sky and the earth meet on God's great judgment day."

In his two minute talk, Mr. Dorney emphasized his appreciation and that of the members of his Association to "those who have seen the dawn of a new day for growers and farmers." He pointed out that "This is a new type of co-operation abroad at this time, all directed at the betterment of our growers. On behalf of the Association, let me thank those who contributed their time and efforts to make this Market possible."

State Senator Parrish expressed himself as happy to have had a part in approving the act which made funds for the Market possible. As he concluded he remarked that "We sometimes do not appreciate our state officials enough and what they do in our behalf, and for them I bespeak greetings and congratulations."

Mr. Smith, speaking for Governor Sholtz, declared that "Only an illness in his immediate family prevents Governor Sholtz' appearance here today. He requested me to say, however, that he will come to Sanford at his earliest convenience so that he may inspect the Market and note its progress. May I wish you the best of success in this pioneering in a wholesale market in Sanford and Central Florida."

State Treasurer Knott congratulated the "community and Commissioner Mayo in accomplishing and attaining this fine Market you will dedicate today." He referred to the recent freeze as "A light one" in comparison to the one of 40 years ago, and concluded with an extension of congratulations to those who made the market possible.

Congressman Sears' words were addressed to Commissioner Mayo and the other officials who made this market experiment possible for your people in Central Florida.

"The erection of markets of this type," he said, "has been a Too Late To Classify" dream of mine for over 20 years and I believe that today's dedication marks the dawn of a new day for our growers and shippers. This trucking center of Florida has the privilege of presenting Florida its golden opportunity. I feel sure that you growers will grasp it and make it a success from the start."

Commissioner Rhodes opened his short talk by declaring that "We have met today to celebrate the opening of the . . . Market, and to dedicate it to the services of the people of Central Florida and the buying public."

"This market," he said, "is destined to perform a very important function in marketing food products of this and other counties in Central and South Florida. We have arrived at a period in the life of our state and nation when food marketing is one of our largest and most necessary vocations or industries."

After citing the rapid growth of production and marketing in the nation Commissioner Rhodes said that "Since 10 percent of the fresh fruits and vegetables produced in the United States are grown in Florida, and from 25 to 35 percent of that is produced within 80 to 100 miles of Sanford, we feel fully justified in building a market here to assist in more efficiently and profitably selling the 25,000 to 45,000 carloads of perishables shipped from Central Florida territory."

Concluding with a reference to the "abundant production" within a 100 miles of Sanford, Commissioner Rhodes said "We bespeak for this Market a useful service and great success." Commissioner Mayo's short talk included his reference to the fact that "This is certainly one bright spot in Florida at this time for their are more green vegetables growing here than in any other section of Florida."

Congratulating the "people of this county and its Chamber of Commerce upon their successful efforts to bring the Market to Sanford," Commissioner Mayo also credited Seminole County, the City of Sanford, the FERA, and the Coast Line Railroad as having contributed "something definite and valuable to the success of the enterprise."

In conclusion he declared that "This market is now the property of the growers of Central Florida. Its success and its future is up to them."

Police estimated 5000 joined the throngs which repeatedly threatened the cordons. The mob was dispersed only after all available police reserves concentrated at danger points, urging the people to go quietly.

Today railroad tracks have been constructed, hard surfaced roads have been built, buildings have been erected, and the Farmers' Market which we have visualized for a long time is an actual reality. My experience over a number of years is that we have some of our most profitable seasons following unfavorable weather. The market will provide a common trading ground for our farmers and buyers. It will add to the prosperity of our people. To those who have had an active hand in the conceiving and execution of the market, we extend our congratulations. The Market is now a reality, and its completion is I know, a source of satisfaction to those who have given their time and efforts to it.

Japs Finally Denounce Old Naval Treaty

Move Opens Way For Unrestrained Competition In Armaments For Navies

TOKIO, Dec. 19.—Japan yesterday denounced the Washington naval limitation treaty.

War Vets Warned About Applying For Certificates

The final date on which World War veterans may file applications for adjusted compensation certificates has been set for Jan. 2, 1935.

Any veteran who had more than 90 days service in the World War or any independent of a veteran who is dead, who have not applied for "bonus" certificates, is requested to see Mrs. A. W. Knox, chairman of Seminole County Chapter of the Red Cross, on or before Jan. 2, with proper honorable discharge, so that an application may be filed.

Veterans eligible for the "bonus" certificates must have served more than 90 days during the war period—Apr. 6, 1917-Nov. 11, 1918—and have been honorably discharged. Certain high ranking commissioned officers, civilian employees of the Army and a few other similar classes are not eligible.

Dependents of veterans who died in the service, or since, who failed to apply for the certificate, should make application before it is too late. Widows and children have preference over dependent parents. If there is no widow or child, dependent mother may file, or if neither is not entitled, dependent father may file. Dependency of parents is presumed after age 60, and before that the age evidence of dependency must be presented.

Roosevelt Still Faces Huge Job In Renovating Business

Industrial Employment And Payrolls Up But 17,000,000 Still Are Indigent

Ed. Note: This is the second in a series of 12 articles presenting water developments during the year drawn to a close.

By JOSEPH L. MILLER (AP)—President Roosevelt still faces a tremendous job in his attempt to rehabilitate the nation's business and industrial machinery. A 1934 comes to a close, government figures show industrial employment and payrolls are a great deal higher than they were when the President took office. Similar figures, as well as reports on dividends show business generally is in a healthier condition. But, more than 17,000,000 persons still are dependent on relief for at least part of their food, clothing and shelter. The American Federation of Labor estimated that at the state of winter there were 10,671,000 unemployed workers, 500,000 more than a year before.

Future of NRA What should be done about NRA and relief? These closely related problems are two of the principal new year's worries at the administration's doorstep. The Recovery Act expires on June 16, 1935. What will replace it? What has been good and what bad about this recovery partnership among business, labor and government? Can NRA be expected to ease the government's relief burden that totalled more than one and one-quarter billion dollars in 1934? Is the present relief system good? How far can it be extended? Woman Sues Railroad For Loss Of Liquor

TALLAHASSEE, Dec. 19.—Refusal of the Seaboard Air Line to deliver three cases of liquor shipped from New York to Mrs. Lillian H. Hoffman, of Noroton, Conn., who has a winter home at Waverly plantation here, reached the supreme court in application for a writ of mandamus to compel the road to let her have it.

Setting forth that the liquor was for her own use and for her family and guests and was not brought here for sale, Mrs. Hoffman attacked the validity of the old state law which prohibits such shipments into dry territory. The court took the case under advisement.

Dern Proposes World's Finest Rivers System

War Secretary Would Spend 8 Billion In Development Of Nation's Waterway

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Picturing a United States with "the most magnificent system of improved inland waterways in the world," Secretary Dern announced yesterday the Army Engineer Corps is spending $343,274,000 on them and has plans to spend $5,000,000,000 more, if approved.

A descriptive travelogue of improvements was given in Dern's annual report on civil activities of the engineers. He reviewed projects which he said would provide a nation-wide network of waterways employing thousands, help business recovery, and make cheap transportation possible. The $343,274,000 he said is being spent on 126 projects.

An actual expenditure of $153,119,798 on river improvement work was reported for the 1934 fiscal year.

The department has studies, Dern added, providing for 1,400 other projects to cost $8,000,000,000 if and when approved.

The work, he said, also means navigation and flood control improvement "which will be of continuing benefit to the economic life of the nation."

He said funds approved in 1934 provided employment for 269,224 persons directly and over 2,000,000 indirectly.

U. S. Policy On Aid For Power Plants Settled

Any City Can Borrow If Possibility Of Low Operation Cost Can Be Established

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP) President Roosevelt is ready to loan federal funds to New York or other cities for the construction of municipal power plants if investigators prove they can be operated cheaper than by private companies.

The President took up the question today with Mayor LaGuardia of New York and City Commissioner Davidson. They have refused bids of private companies to supply next year's power on the ground that they are exorbitant.

Amid grumbling from the industry and new threats of municipal power operation, President Roosevelt's power policy committee yesterday arranged for a meeting to determine how much farther the government should travel down the power production path.

The question of the constitutionality of Tennessee Valley authority, raised by Edison Electric Institute, still simmered as the summons went out for the power policy committee to meet today.

While no member of the power policy committee would discuss the nature of the recommendations that will be made to the President during the next few weeks, there have been definite indications from President Roosevelt and Chairman McNichols of the Federal Power Commission that there would be no traveling in reverse. From both of them, there has been an invitation for private companies to reduce rates.

 Breaking of land settlements, the Eagle Bay drainage district in Okechobee county recently settled $100,000 worth of steam age bonds, and secured interest of $30,000 on the nominal basis of five cents on the dollar. Now there's something to shout at.
 France, England, and the other European nations again defaulted on their war debts, except little Finland, which is about the only one of our creditors most of us would be willing to fight in order to collect.
 When Edward Fowler, New York millionaire, thought his actress wife was unfaithful to him, he had detectives break into her apartment one night where she was, and a stranger man was. The actress was disgusted, "I thought my husband was a gentleman," she said.
 Cuban agents hurriedly dispatched from Havana to Miami, took a former Cuban government official to the woods and beat him up. Now they are accused of violating the "Lindbergh law" against kidnapping for which the penalty is death. Forcibly seizing a map on the streets and taking him out for a little sympathetic treatment is not the trivial offense it used to be. Federal state use now make that sort of thing serious, something which persons who do not keep up with news rapidly changing laws should consider.
 A petition is being circulated here this week in the interest of the proposed $2000.00 per month old-age pension bill. It would seem that anyone, giving the matter a little thought would know that any such amount is entirely out of the question, and while President Roosevelt has expressed a personal interest toward a pension of $500.00 for anyone 65 years of age, that plan is a pipe dream. The proposed $2000.00 per month pension for all over sixty. A pension of $500.00 a month would cost the government $300,000,000 a month or $3,600,000,000 a year, or the equivalent of all the money which the federal government put together.

California Advertising

In placing advertising it is always well to analyze results. In 1907 when the California Fruit Growers Exchange first began its advertising campaign, it "risked" $7,800 on what was then a frankly experimental venture. The campaign that year was concentrated in and around Des Moines, Iowa. When the season was over and the sales were checked, it was found that the sale of oranges in Iowa had increased 50 percent over the previous year, while throughout the rest of the United States orange sales increased only 17 percent.

That was pretty convincing proof to the citrus growers of California that it pays to advertise and ever since then they have been advertising in an increasingly big way. During the past 27 years the California Fruit Growers Exchange has invested $19,582,541. During the last ten years alone, the per capita consumption of oranges had increased, in spite of the depression, by more than 27 percent, or from 5,863,874,400 to 5,427,729,800.

The method by which California works its advertising campaigns is explained by Ken Taylor in a recent issue of Editor & Publisher, as follows: "The Sunkist advertising story is directly opposite to that of most large advertisers in this respect: The funds available for this purpose are secured by a fixed assessment against each box of the season's estimated crop. This assessment varies according to the fruit—5 cents a box for oranges, 3 cents for grapefruit, and 10 cents for lemons. Thus it will be seen that the amount expended for advertising does not depend upon the demand existing for the product, or the previous season's revenue. It depends entirely upon the size of the crop. The return to shippers does not necessarily increase because the advertising expenditure has grown. This is because the prevailing prices change from season to season. In a year when the crop is large, the price may be down and there may be a considerable increase in the funds available for promotion, although the crop itself brings a lower gross than previously.

"Likewise, with a small crop, the prevailing price is likely to rise, and although the advertising budget would be down, the gross income would be higher than average. This situation is well illustrated in two years, 1930 and 1931, in the following table of advertising expenditures and returns to shippers:

Year	Adv. Expenditures	Returns to Shippers
1930	$1,312,163	$104,902,616
1931	2,171,181	77,327,358
1932	1,400,173	59,856,459
1933	1,313,335	52,238,077
1934	1,531,503	73,298,730

"It is seen here that in the year when the smallest advertising appropriation was made, the greatest revenue was received, and in the year when the advertising budget reached its highest point, the revenue had begun a slump which did not make an upturn until this year. In 1934, however, both the advertising appropriation and the gross revenue have again started to climb. Whether they will continue depends entirely upon the California climate as to the advertising budget, and upon the market condition as to revenue from the fruit."

Brady's Take-All Tax-Inclusive Plan

Declaring that he has at last decided upon a legislative program which will guide his activities in the next session of the Legislature, E. E. Brady, one of the representatives from this county, has presented The Herald with the following outline of some of the proposals which he hopes to see enacted into law. Mr. Brady explains that his is a "tax spread" program, as follows:

Tax the farmer, tax his dad,
 Tax what's he ever had,
 If he's broke it's just too bad,
 Go ahead and tax the man,
 Tax his dog and hired hand,
 Tax his cow, tax her milk,
 Tax his bed, tax his quilt,
 Tax his pig, tax his pen,
 Tax his flocks, tax his hen,
 Tax his corn, tax his wheat,
 Tax his wagon, tax the squeak,
 Tax his wife, tax his boy,
 Tax whatever gives him joy,
 Tax his baby, tax the crib,
 Tax his all who gives a fib?
 Get his point 'n' tax his ass,
 Tax his horses out at grass,
 Tax his fiddle, tax the bow,
 Tax what he intends to sow,
 Remember the Forgotten Man,
 In your so-called taxing plan,
 He has income, so they say,
 Most of which he ought to pay,
 Tax the man that's up the dale,
 Get him in a deeper hole,
 Tax the manufacturer, too,
 He is more than getting through,
 Tax the man who works for him,
 Fore his pay check gets too thin,
 Tax his buildings, tax his chattels,
 Tax his Ford and all its rattles,
 Tax his stock, tax his cash,
 Tax him double if he's rash,
 Tax his light, tax his power,
 Tax his payroll by the hour,
 If he's making more than rent
 Add another five percent;
 Tax whatever he has to sell,
 If he hollers—tax his yell.

In supporting this program Mr. Brady insists that he is acting strictly in the interest of his constituents. Of course, if there are any flaws in it, Mr. Brady might be induced to change his mind as his desire really is to serve the majority. We would suggest that, if there is anyone opposed to this "tax spread" plan, he get in touch with Mr. Brady right away.

WHERE'S EXEMPTION NOW?

SINCE the Supreme Court has ruled that home tax exemption cannot apply to refunding bonds, granting a continuation of a former obligation, and since all such obligations must be taken care of by taxation, regardless of the amendment, as was predicted by those who studied the exemption proposition from an unbiased and reasonable standpoint, there will be increase in all assessed valuations.

In fact, the Tax Assessor of Duval county, who is the President of the state organization of tax officials, has already announced that he will assess all property at full value in that county, instead of, as in the past, at 25 percent of real value. It is reasonable to expect that other Tax Assessors will adopt the same plan.

What this means to the home owner is plain. If his home is worth $5000, it is now assessed for tax purposes at $1250, the average tax on which without exemption would be about $50. When the assessment is raised to $5000, granting that 20 mills will take care of bonded indebtedness and exempting for other purposes, the home owner will pay $100, or double his present payment—to what good exemption? On his "exempt" home he will pay twice the tax he has been paying on his non-exempt home and the milking bondholders, who knew what they were doing when they invented and promoted the exemption amendment, will get the whole $100 instead of as now, only a part of the taxpayer's bill. And besides that, the disappointed home owner will find himself paying an indeterminate amount of additional special taxes, imposed to meet deficits in operating expenses of state, county and city.

The picture was slowly drawn to warn home owners before they voted on the exemption amendment—but they refused to see. We refrain from the bromide "We told you so."

With a few exceptions, labor's fight to shorten industrial working hours by code revision failed. The relief administration, headed by Harry L. Hopkins, did a gigantic job of caring for the needy during the year.

Efforts toward the edge of the year showed 4,200,000 families and 860,000 single persons on relief rolls.

Change in A. F. of L. Policy
 About 1,500,000 are on work relief. As fast as states and municipalities help with materials and supplies, others are being transferred from direct to work relief rolls.

After years of fostering the development of trade unionism, the American Federation of Labor in September approved the organization of workmen in mass production industries by industry rather than by trade.

There was much tinkering with NRA during the past year. That tinkering, however, largely affected administration. The hundreds of codes operated throughout the year essentially as framed.

Hubert S. Johnson's departure, after a bitter battle over the issue of whether private business should have a greater hand in code administration, was the high spot.

Citrus Growers Advised To Bank Trees At Once

row so as not to disturb the feed roots."

Mr. Mayo stated, "Further, it is imperative that growers should immediately take steps to be able to fire their groves at a moment's notice. Keep in close touch with the Weather Bureau and its reports, and communicate at once with the State Experiment Station at Gainesville or with your county agent if you are in doubt as to when."

Your own situation and its treatment should be discussed with Commissioner Mayo's attention as to the need for protection of this type was directed to him by the Chase brothers, pioneers in the some of the finest groves in the citrus industry and owners of trees.

J. C. Chase offered a copy of a booklet entitled "The Climate of Florida," and written by Meteorologist A. J. Mitchell of the U. S. Weather Bureau some years ago.

Covering the period from 1891 through 1927, the booklet recorded the weather conditions in Florida during every month of these years, and gave many observations as to the unusual.

The record indicated that during the 36 year period the temperature in Florida during December has reached 90 degrees.

Collective bargaining guarantee gave unionism brought the change in A. F. of L. policy.

Newly inspired to bring all American labor into its ranks, the federation looked to industrial unionization of the big mass production industries for a start. Autos, steel and aluminum were among the first.

Chief among the labor board's important decisions was the "majority rule" order. The board found that collective bargaining rights, meant to foster collective bargaining. To make that bargaining successful, the board reasoned, an employer should deal with the representative of all his employees. The representative chosen by the majority of a unit of employees, it continued, should speak for all the employees.

This ruling was bitterly contorted, and at the end of the year was heading toward the supreme court for a final decision.

The federal government played an increasingly important part in the dealings of employees with their employers.

After the President asked for an industrial truce, early in the fall, the number of strikes fell off.

Bank failures during 1934 reached a new low in 14 years, under the administration's new banking laws. Only 57 banks closed their doors in the first 11 months of the year, treasury department figures show.

Deposits in banks affiliated with the federal deposit insurance corporation mounted $1,250,000,000 from June to October.

Loans Guaranteed

Efforts to prime a pump which would pour millions of dollars of private capital into building projects, and thus stimulate the lagging heavy goods industries, were continued throughout the year.

One move toward that end was Congress' guarantee of loans made by private financial institutions for rebuilding and renovating homes. Later the federal housing administrator attempted to bring private capital to the aid of low-cost housing projects, to clear slum districts and give low-income workers decent living quarters.

Private investment in such projects, the administration hoped, eventually would replace public loans. The PWA, however, continued to pour millions into construction, and a notable increase in building permits indicated the results.

The public works administration also continued its policy of leading for park projects, local sewer, road and water supply construction, and the like.

or below 21 times—that during January, since 1891, the temperature has dropped to 20 or below 20 no less than 28 times, and that a 20 or below reading has been made in 12 Februaries since 1891.

It was this information which prompted Commissioner Mayo's warnings and also recalled for him the Florida just before and after the Big Freeze of 1894-'95.

"In my opinion," he concluded, "we have just passed through a period similar to that of 1894-'95 in the climatic conditions which have been our lot for the past several weeks. It has been dry and hot and there has been little rain. In my opinion, our growers should prepare now to protect their groves from any future weather conditions."

ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PALMS

Editors Note: This is the second installment of an article read by Mrs. Strange at a recent meeting of the 1934 Gardeners' Circle of the Garden Club.
Much will depend on the local situation, where trees are wanted, as to which of the numerous species is best suited. The great variety in the size when mature, habit of growth and foliage and flower characters, make some especially well suited to street or roadside planting, some to grouping, and others to specimen planting. Thick foliaged types usually are preferred for shade, but because of the difficulty of growing lawn grasses and many shrubs in densely shaded situations, there are conditions to which those with more open tops may be best fitted.
If planted about a building, its size and style of architecture, will have a bearing on the kinds chosen. Tall growing, narrow headed trees may be used to enhance the beauty of many types of larger buildings, but usually are not appropriate to small, low cottages. Palms seem to be ideally suited to the Spanish styles, but not so well to the English, while the reverse is true of the oaks. There is a wide range of both in leaf and in habit of growth, including palms, cypresses, broadleaved evergreens and deciduous sorts, with wide diversity in size, shape and coloration of the foliage, flowers and fruits.
The number of native tree species is exceptionally large, but it is not at all improbable that the number of introduced ones is even greater. Many of the latter are well adapted to the conditions now growing in many places. Trees from all continents have

Local Negro Singers Praised In Chicago

Those who heard Zora Hurston and her company of Negro choristers in Sanford last winter will be interested in the report of her reception in Chicago where she has been for the past two months.
Her first program which she now calls "Singing Street" was presented at Mandel Hall with the University of Chicago. It was under the auspices of the Humanities Society of the University, and among the spot songs were "President and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins" and more than two score other prominent Chicagoans.
The same program was later presented at the Chicago Woman's Club theater. In the reporting it for the Chicago Daily News Lloyd Lewis, the critic, said: "Brought up from the Florida slashes by Zora Hurston, an anthropologist of and for her race, the program of songs accomplished quickly and easily what a generation of Tin Pan Alleyites has vainly tried to do." "Under the direction and training of Zora Hurston her company produced these songs credited by negro authors in Florida, with an earnestness that made their show more authentic than professionals could possibly have made it. Extremely interesting were the work songs as the men laid railroad tracks, their hammer blows timed to the rhythm of their work. The evening program was made up of two hours of song hits."

of today, the new plant continued to attract local and out-of-town persons, just as it did yesterday. It is estimated that fully 2,000 persons were on the grounds during the deliberative services yesterday, and that at least another 1,000 paid a visit to the plant during the morning and late afternoon.
The honor of having made the first sale supervised by Master J. G. Michael was credited to Edward Williams of Ocala, who sold a quantity of East Coast home and window shades and vegetable grown by Ed Bullion on his Garden Farm near here to S. I. Stover of Ocala.
The second "official" sale was made by H. J. Chase of Sanford, who sold a quantity of vegetable for the Sanford Florida Truck Growers, Inc. and Peter Houston to Jack Swordin, out-of-town trader.
The deliberative services were in the hands of Mr. Papworth as chairman of the committee. The speakers were W. R. Smith of Tallahassee as a personal representative of Governor Sholtz, Commissioner Nathan Mayo, Marketing Commissioner J. M. Rhodes, State Treasurer W. W. Knott, Congressman Joe Sears, State Marketing Commissioner W. B. Davis of West Virginia, and F. J. Danner, president of the Seminole County Agricultural Association.
