License Dept. examined

SANFORD — Gretchen Mason, a licensing official for the City of Sanford, was placed on administrative leave with pay Friday.

City Manager Bill Simmons declined comment on what caused the leave to be requested and how long it may last, "but I am requesting an internal investigation of our licensing department be made," he said.

Simmons commented, "At this point, this will be a purely internal investigation, and I'm not at liberty to discuss what may be examined or what problems may have brought it on."

Simmons said he will be in contact with the city attorney and other officials as the investigation gets underway.

Crossing guards wanted

SANFORD — The Seminole County sheriff's office will be accepting applications for school crossing guard positions through Sept. 30.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, an applicant must be 18 years old, have a high school diploma or GED and must be available to work morning and afternoon hours Monday through Friday. All applicants will be fingerprinted and undergo a criminal history check. They will receive eight hours of training.

All school crossing guards are employees of the Seminole County sheriff's office, and are paid $8 per hour for 2 or 4 hours a day, five days a week.

For additional information, phone the sheriff's office at 330-6650.

Fire education

SANFORD — The National Fire Safety Council (NFSC) will be coming to Sanford during Fire Prevention month in October. "They will be distributing information, educational material and other items to possibly between 5,000 and 8,000 youngsters in our school," said Sanford Fire Chief Tom Hickson.

"The way we look at it, if we can help educate a child on fire safety, the child will take the information and materials home, and the family will also gain. In that way more fires and fire losses can be prevented," he said.

The cost to the NFSC is estimated at $48 for 30 children, $64 for 40 children, and upward to $160 for 100 children.

In the Firepup Program on fire safety and burn prevention, the NFSC estimates 3,800 children can be protected, with 7,400 materials distributed at a total cost of $3,990.

"They will be distributing this no matter what," Hickson said, "but what we would like is for donations to be sent in to help them defray their costs."

Donations are now being accepted. Hickson recommended making a check payable to "National Fire Safety Council" and mailing it to Sanford Fire Dept., 1303 S. French Ave., Sanford, 32771.

The project and activity manuals are being labeled as, "Provided as a public service by people who care."

The local People Who Care includes 24 individual businesses in the Sanford area.

Victims of crime

Putting a local face on statistics

Across the nation, Americans focus on the explosion of crimes committed. We are ranked the most violent country in the industrialized world. And more felonies are committed in Florida than in any other state.

Lawmakers and law enforcement agencies are waging war. The juvenile justice system is being revamped and the president's crime bill is about to be implemented. In Seminole County, deputies and police continue to battle drugs and prostitution, setting up periodic stings in blighted areas. The host of other crimes they face, assault, theft, robbery, murder, can often be linked to drugs, greed or poverty. They fight them, too.

We've reported the numbers and the crimes in the past. Today, we introduce you to your neighbors, your friends: some of the victims of crime in Sanford.

Art chosen, scholarships awarded; ready for 1994

By SHARI BRODIE

HEATHROW — As 18 local high school graduates prepared to begin their college careers this summer, they took into account many things necessary for success in their academic endeavors. For those who traveled to distant colleges and universities, their preparation entailed the packing of domestic belongings to set up "households" in apartments or dormitories. For those who stayed closer to home, there were still the responsibilities of books and supplies, tuition and lab fees.

But all of these 18 took with them something better than a care package wrapped and bound by a loving mother. They took with them a scholarship for $1,000 given to them by the Lake Mary Heathrow Festival of the Arts.

The scholarship presentations were made this summer to graduating seniors of the six area high schools, by the scholarship committee of the seventh annual festival.

Each year, as the proceeds of the festival have grown, so have the number and amount of awards given to qualified students. This year, $21,450 was awarded to the 18 seniors. See Festival, Page 6A.

Cities grapple with laws, problems

Sanford black neighborhoods want action

By NICK PFENAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Westside Homeowners Association and Academy Manor Neighborhood Association are demanding the city take action to improve their communities.

Both groups have been scheduled to speak at Monday night's Sanford City Commission work session and commission meeting.

Johnell Jackson, representing the Westside Homeowners, is objecting to what he considers a lack of law enforcement in the black communities.

In a letter sent to Mayor Bettye

Smith, Jackson wrote of various state, county and local laws regarding protection of the people. "When the application of these laws are not applied," he wrote, "one feels that he or she is allowed or permitted to injure the morals and manner of the community, and therefore, the community becomes manifestly injurious in morals, health, and any other manners described in the statutes that govern the nuisance."

He concluded his letter by saying, "It is hereby requested in urgency, that appropriate actions be taken by law enforcement officials to insure just and equal application of the laws so that we as minority communities can have a more stable environment morally for our youthful generations."

City Manager Bill Simmons has responded to Jackson's letter, saying that he plans to invite the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. See Action, Page 6A.

Lake Mary to revise alcohol sales rules

By NICK PFENAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary city staff is looking into revising present regulations pertaining to establishments serving alcoholic beverages.

A preliminary plan was presented to the city commission during this past Wednesday's meeting. After discussing a number of the proposals, Commissioner Gary Brender commented, "This is good. It helps clean up and better define some of our restrictions."

The newly planned ordinance will give a better definition of bars, cocktail lounges, night clubs or saloons. It also divides restrictions between places which conduct the majority of their business through alcoholic beverage sales, versus those which make a majority of profit through the sale of food.

Bars and cocktail lounges will be determined to have beverage sales exceeding 30 percent of sales. To be classified under restaurant codes, the establishment must have an alcohol profit of under 30 percent. The designation of family restaurant will be not more than 15 percent.

For each, limitations on how close similar businesses will be allowed from each other, churches, schools and residential areas will be established.

The percentages of alcohol sales will be determined for six month time periods. When asked who would maintain this information for the city, City Planner Susan Deines told commissioners the percentages. See Alcohol, Page 6A.

Voters to decide on casinos

Staff and Wire Reports

TALLAHASSEE — Floridians can decide this November if they want to take a chance on casino gambling, which would bring a new revenue source to Sanford, the state Supreme Court ruled Friday.

In a 5-1 unsigned decision, the high court said a proposed constitutional amendment known as Limited Casinos meets standards for scope and clarity.

The court's review was the last hurdle the citizen's initiative needed to cross to make the Election Day ballot.

Backers of the measure got the required 429,428 signatures from around the state verified by mid-August. Leaders of the campaign, Proposition for Limited Casinos, said they had collected more than 900,000 signatures but election officials didn't need to verify them all.

"I think it's basically right now about a 40-40 race with a swing of 20 percent in either direction," Patrick Roberts, campaign leader, said Friday.

Floridians can expect to see an intense effort. Roberts said the campaign expects to spend at least $5 million and will probably start TV ads in a couple of weeks.

No Casinos, a group of opponents, has set a goal of $2.5 million for advertising, according to executive director John Sowinski. But No Casino starts with a strong, solid base of veteran opponents, he said.

"We're not going to win a fund-raising contest with them, but we're going to win a political contest," Sowinski said, predicting a defeat for the amendment on Election Day.

Roberts said he stands by his prediction of a victory in the range of 53 to 55 percent.

The amendment would allow existing horse tracks, dog tracks and jai-alai frontons to open casinos.

Seven urban counties — Duval, Escambia, Hillsborough, Lee, Orange, Palm Beach, Pinellas — would also be allowed one casino each.

More-populous Broward County would be See Casinos, Page 6A.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Piper losses take bite out of taxpayers

MINNEAPOLIS — Derivative investments by Piper Jaffray of Minneapolis have resulted in paper losses of about $90 million of Florida taxpayers' money.

Piper is the biggest loser among about a dozen private investment firms that handled nearly $3 billion in Florida state funds for the office of Florida treasurer and insurance commissioner Tom Gallagher.

The value of a derivative is connected to fluctuations in currency, commodities, stock prices or mortgage-backed securities. Derivatives are considered relatively risky investments.

Piper's $337 million share of treasurer's funds was managed by two people, one of whom was Worth Bruntjen. Another fund managed by Bruntjen has lost 23 percent of its value this year after two years as one of the nation's top-performing funds.

After peaking at a value of $434 million, Piper's Florida portfolio has drifted down since early this year to its current value of $344 million. It could not be immediately determined if part of the drop in market value was the result of withdrawals by the state.

Jill Chamberlin of the Florida treasurer's office said state officials were aware of the risks of derivatives.

"Bruntjen was very candid from the beginning about the risks of these investments," Chamberlin said. She said the dramatic downturn was a surprise, but "we are not unduly alarmed."

A Florida consumer action group also is critical of Piper's $10,000 contribution to a political group of which Gallagher was the spokesman, at a time when Gallagher was deciding whether to run for governor.

Monte Belote, executive director of the Florida Consumer Action Network, said Piper's contribution "clearly has the look of a conflict of interest, especially at a time when it was losing money hand over fist."

But Chamberlin said election laws permitted such a contribution. She said she saw no conflict of interest.

A Piper spokeswoman said the company has a long history of making contributions in communities where it does business.

Shuttle crew readies experiments

CAPE CANAVERAL — Discovery's crew began its first full workday in orbit today on a mission that includes a laser show, robotic manufacturing and the first free-flying astronauts in a decade.

The shuttle and its six-member crew rocketed into orbit nearly two hours late Friday because of thunderstorms.

"We didn't think for a while we were going to do it, but you all came through for us," commander Richard Richards told Mission Control.

The astronauts were awakened at midmorning by a parody of the Beach Boys' "Fun, Fun, Fun" piped up by Mission Control. The main chorus went: "And we'll have fun, fun, fun 'til we gotta put the shuttle away."

"Luckily, we have a lot of science to do yet before we put the shuttle away," Mission Control told the crew.

"Yeah, we are going to have some fun, fun, fun," replied astronaut Susan Helms.

Today's activities include cranking up Discovery's long mechanical arm for a study of exhaust plumes. The shuttle jets will be fired as part of the experiment.

Late Friday, astronauts Mark Lee and Carl Meade switched on one of Discovery's primary experiments — a $25 million laser that will beam fluorescent green pulses of light to Earth.

The study, designed to help scientists understand atmospheric conditions, began today with ground controllers sending up remote commands. It is a space first. Atmospheric measurements with lasers have been conducted from airplanes, but never from spacecraft.

The shuttle also is carrying the first U.S. space robot, which will try to load semiconductor crystals into furnaces. Scientists want to test the robot while demonstrating the possibilities for manufacturing computer chips in space, where weightlessness allows the growth of purer crystals.

The crew is scheduled to drop off a $14 million satellite Tuesday and retrieve it two days later. The satellite has two telescopes that will focus on the sun's corona, the outer part of the solar atmosphere.

Next Friday, Lee and Meade are scheduled to take turns testing a new $7 million jet pack by venturing into space without a lifeline to the shuttle.

The last spacewalk without safety tethers was in 1984, when astronauts used an older, bulkier jet pack. The new unit is designed to be used as an emergency rescue device by crews building a space station.

Discovery is due back at Kennedy Space Center on Sept. 18, but NASA could extend the mission a day if there's enough power.

This is NASA's 64th shuttle mission and the fifth this year. Endeavour was supposed to lift off on an environmental research flight on Aug. 18, but the mission was bumped into October because of a last-second engine shutdown.

How Seminole voted in the primary

Winners prepare for face-off in November

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County voters gave enthusiastic endorsements to the gubernatorial campaigns of incumbent Lawton Chiles and leading GOP challenger Jeb Bush.

With 100 percent of the county's 125 occupied precincts tabulated, Chiles edged out Democratic challenger Jack Gargan in all but three precincts. Bush beat second-place challenger Jim Smith in all but two precincts.

North Seminole County voters followed the countywide trend, with the majority of precincts going to Chiles and Bush.

Countywide, Chiles received 6,833 votes to Gargan's 2,625. Bush received 9,499 votes to Smith's 5,393. The remaining five GOP candidates fell far behind the pair.

The Democratic primary race for the District 2 county commission seat was extremely close between incumbent Carlton Henley and chief challenger Adrienne Perry. Perry edged out Henley in 60 precincts, with Henley moving to the lead in 60.

In north Seminole County, Henley was the favorite in most precincts, including the four precincts which take in most of Longwood, where Perry lives and served as a city commissioner and mayor.

In the GOP District 4 primary, come-from-behind champion Winfield Adams edged out Andrea Dennison in 60 precincts, with Dennison moving ahead in 56. In north Seminole County, the pair evenly split 26 key precincts.

The late afternoon downpour

Louise Ray (left) and Marvin Couch did not face opposition in the primaries but will face each other in the general election in November. Ray would like to have Couch's seat in the 33rd district of the State House of Representatives. They met recently in a debate on juvenile justice.

New home starts continue to rise

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Construction in the unincorporated areas of the county continued its upward climb with a 26 percent increase in housing starts compared to last year.

A total of 126 new home permits were issued by the county Building Department in July. That's 26 more than the 100 permits issued in July 1993, according to the department's monthly report. For the first 10 months of the county fiscal year, which runs from Oct. 1 to Sept. 30, there was an 11 percent increase in new home starts outside of city limits.

A total of 922 new homes were permitted during those 10 months, compared to 826 during the same period a year ago.

Commercial construction continues at an improved pace over last year, according to the report. Eight new commercial structures were permitted by the county last month, compared to five the year before. New commercial starts are up 70 percent over last year, 68 to 40.

Commercial remodeling ebbed a bit last month, 12 to 14, but for the year are up 17 percent when compared to last year.

And the "Other" category which contains roof replacement permits have arrived at normal levels again. Spring 1992 hailstorms sent those numbers skyrocketing for more than a year as thousands of south-county residents scrambled to replace leaky house tops.

For the first time since April 1993, the current month totals for miscellaneous permits exceeded the prior-year total for that month.

And for the first time since April 1993, the total number of permits was higher for the cur-

Crime is just a phone call away

By MICHAEL PAPPAS
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Neighborhood Watch groups, merchants and shopping center groups, and individual residents of Lake Mary will now be able to keep in touch with criminal activities.

The Lake Mary Police Department has begun operating a special dedicated telephone line which residents may call, and receive a report of crimes which have occurred during the past few days, and the location in which they took place.

"This way, people in a particular neighborhood can keep track of what has been happening," said Police Chief Richard Beary, "and by doing so, they may be more cautious or aware of possible problems, when they do their neighborhood watch tours." "The way we see this," he said, "is that the more we can keep our citizens involved, the more we can help reduce crimes in Lake Mary."

By dialing 333-8244, citizens of Lake Mary hear a pre-recorded report of what happened and where. The reports however, will pertain only to criminal activities or incidents within the actual Lake Mary city limits, the area patrolled by Lake Mary police. Surrounding residential communities, some of which are the scene of many sheriff's department calls, will not be included.

At the beginning, the messages will cover as much as a week of criminal activities, but in the near future, or depending on the number of reports, the messages may be changed several times a week.

The project is called Neighborhood Watch Information Line.

The special dedicated phone line was purchased through crime prevention funds. "This was relatively expensive," Beary explained, "but the way we see it, it is going to be a winning situation for everybody, the citizens, and the police."

No record of how many people call the special line is being maintained because it is completely automated. "But whenever we are around the machine," Beary said, "we can hear the click-click when it is turned on, and even though the number has only been released to the general public, it is already proving to be well used by our people."

Readers speak: Local view of topics discussed at population conference

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

As United Nation delegates continue to meet at the International Conference on Population and Development, in Cairo, Egypt, population control and abortion has been, once again, spotlighted in the news.

Third world countries have been overrun by starving and diseased families. Numerous individuals have pointed out the overcrowding that may exist by the year 2100. Some have felt abortion or birth control may eliminate the problems. Still others point out that the solution could be in regulating family sizes.

Local citizens expressed their views on population control.

Mike Norris stated, "I think population control is wrong. A lot of people won't use birth control so abortion would be the alternative. I feel abortion is wrong."

Charles Lindsey said, "I don't know what can be done but something needs to be done."

Suzanne Rogers said, "I don't think abortion should be the answer. There needs to be more abstinence. There's too many teen-agers getting pregnant."

POLICE BRIEFS

Shooting case

Sanford police arrested one of two men Thursday in Higgins Terrace. Police said they are believed to have been connected with a shooting on Aug. 30, at a residence in the 1100 block of Pecan Avenue. Police said the two men reportedly forced their way into the home, then into the bedroom, where one of them shot the resident twice.

Michael Keith Isaac, 33, of 87 Castle Brewer Court, has been charged with armed burglary, and two counts of use of a firearm in the commission of a felony. Another man believed to have been involved in the incident was still being sought by police as of Friday afternoon.

Stolen vehicle

Sheriff's deputies arrested Delano Antonio Frazer, 28, of Brooklyn, N.Y., on Thursday. A deputy said he saw Frazer in a Jeep in the westbound Interstate-4 rest area near Longwood. He said the headlights and flashers were both on, at the time. Frazer was found to have no valid driver's license. The deputy subsequently found the Jeep had been reported stolen out of New York. Sophomores can't drive to school

By WESLEY BUCHHEIM
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The students were not happy, but the principal said there was simply no other choice.

Driving to school, once as much a part of the high school experience as English, math and science, will be a privilege limited only to seniors and some juniors on the Lake Mary High School campus.

More and more students are getting not only their driver license, but also their own cars the day they turn 16-years-old.

"And we only have so many parking spaces on campus and no place to put any more," said principal Raymond Gaines.

As much as he hated to do it, Gaines said, he had to call a meeting of sophomores this past week and tell them they could no longer park on campus.

The 15 and 16-year-olds will have to join their younger counterparts who travel to and from school on the buses, with their parents, on foot or with older students.

"We encourage carpooling," Gaines said. "We want the kids to come together to keep spaces available."

Gaines admits the students did not cheer him when he made the announcement.

"After all, they never react positively to something like this," he said. "I can understand that, but what choice did we have?"

Seniors will be given the priority when it comes to issuing parking permits. After all the seniors have their permits, the remaining spots will be allotted to the juniors on a first-come-first-serve basis.

When the spaces are filled, no more passes will be issued.

There are 800 parking spaces available to students at Lake Mary High. There are more than 800 students in each class. Not all the students will need or want a parking space, but there are enough students who do want to drive to school that it has created a problem, Gaines said.

Sophomore drivers who are members of school teams or clubs or who are involved in other activities will not be excluded from parking, however. Temporary parking permits will be given to those students on the days they need to be on campus before or after school for practices, meetings or other activities.

Again, Gaines encourages students to carpool with older students or to be dropped off and picked up.

Gaines said the students are still grumbling about the new arrangements, but most see the necessity in it. He does not foresee any problems as a result of the change.

Lake Mary's crime line

The City of Lake Mary and the Lake Mary Police Department have done something few other cities could, or would do. They have set up a recorded-message telephone which residents can call to keep apprised of crime.

By dialing 333-8244, Lake Mary residents can hear a message of criminal activities which took place within the city limits during the past few days. By keeping aware of these activities, Police Chief Richard Beary hopes neighborhood watch groups and others can be more aware of problems, and possibly avoid them from happening elsewhere.

This is an excellent service to the people of Lake Mary. It would also be of service to other cities, except Lake Mary is smaller in size, and therefore has less criminal incidents to report.

If Sanford, a bigger city, had such an information phone for example, just listening to the criminal arrests and incidents for one day would take 20 to 30 minutes of holding that phone to your ear. If it were on the county level, there would be no way to include everything in one message.

Lake Mary has many residential neighborhoods. Most of them have established neighborhood watch groups. If the person or persons assigned to patrol the neighborhood on any given date will call the dedicated phone line at Lake Mary police headquarters first, they will know that there have been vehicular burglaries in some specific area, home burglaries, car thefts, breaking and entering situations, rapists, or other things taking place.

With this information, they will know more about what to look for, and what to report to the authorities.

As Chief Beary indicates, it will not only be of great benefit to neighborhoods, but to the police as well.

Individuals should also make use of this new phone line. It may serve as a reminder to double-check to see if the car has been locked, or the windows and doors closed and locked on one's home.

Some residents who may not learn of crime through other means, may be surprised at what is transpiring in their city. But by spreading information regarding criminal activities, everyone can be made more aware, and in-turn, be made more cautious.

This is an excellent move in helping combat crime. The city and police department are to be commended in establishing this phone. Give it a try. Dial 333-8244.

Thanks for coverage

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Shari Brodie for her featuring Camp Challenge often in the Sanford Herald. Most recently, I saw the photo and culline of the Popeyes' painting party. You are too kind!

I am a parent of a camper and live in Sanford. Believe me when I tell you your support does make a difference. My daughter, Leigh, has visited camp for well over 10 years, and "spreading the word" does give ability a chance!

Shari, thank you from a parent of a Camp Challenge camper and as a resident of Sanford. You are an honor to have behind our efforts.

"How do you stand on employer mandates?"

Some thoughts after primary election

Weatherwise the first primary election day was a washout in Central Florida. Citizens visiting the polls early were spared the deluge that confronted those of us who voted later in the day.

Every candidate who entered the primary should be congratulated for their efforts. The American system wouldn't work if there were no contenders for the various offices. Anyone running for political office commits himself, herself and their respective families to great personal sacrifice. In essence running for political office is a family affair.

Naturally, the focus statewide and nationally was on the governor's office. Incumbent Gov. Lawton Chiles had only one challenger whom he soundly defeated. The Republican gubernatorial primary was a literal free-for-all encompassing seven viable candidates. Jeb Bush, the front runner in all of the polls, continued in that position with a 46 percent vote. His three closest rivals had a combined total of 43 percent accordingly. Jim Smith, 18 percent; Tom Gallagher, 13 percent, and Ander Crenshaw, 12 percent.

Perhaps it is time for the Republicans to analyze where they plan to go from here relative to the governor's race, before continuing to attack each other. The general election is practically upon us and the second primary is imminent. Egos need to be harnessed and serious reflection and projection engaged in, if there is any hope for placing Florida in the Republican column in November.

SEMINOLE OPINION

The District 12 Senate seat held by Gary Siegel was won by millionaire diamond importer John Ostalickiwicz who obtained 56 percent of the vote cast. The disturbing factor in this particular race was the amount of money expended by both candidates, over $200,000 each. Ostalickiwicz was the biggest spender. Does this race signify omens of future races? What does it reveal about the prospects of an ordinary citizen without great financial backing running for public office? This kind of spending heralds a need for a cap on political spending at the state level. Examining the results of the races in Seminole County we find that Adrienne Ferry, former mayor of Longwood, obtained 43 percent of the votes and Carlton Henley 42 percent of the votes in the District 2 Democratic Primary race. Robert Webster, the third candidate in the fray, received 15 percent of the vote. Hence, this promises to be a hotly contested second primary race, October 1994.

There will be no second primary runoff for the District 4 commission seat occupied by Democrat Larry Furlong. He was unopposed in the primary and Win Adams won the Republican Primary by a 51 percent vote to 49 percent for Andrea Dennison. Therefore, Furlong and Adams will face each other in the general election.

Judicial elections results placed Ralph Eriksson on the bench to fill the newly created judicial position. Judicial races to be decided in the November election will find Bravo challenging Stephenson and Hurt challenging Jacobus.

Election time is an exciting time of year. Let all of us participate fully. By so doing we affirm the principles upon which this nation was founded and march forward into the future as citizens of the greatest nation in the world.

Debasing entire news industry

Take out a piece of paper and number from one through five. We're going to have a little quiz.

Ready? List the most egregious trespasses routinely engaged in by the broadcast press.

Where in the world would you start? With the fact that television news shows have taken a startling turn toward sensationalism? With the fact that foreign correspondents are so few these days that they usually present their stories as voiceovers of someone else's film? With the fact that television has lowered journalistic standards so dramatically that you wonder which is news and which is the boob show?

The latter is the sin that most irritates me, and CNN is the worst perpetrator of it. No news organization has been more adept at cheapening professional standards than CNN, and no critic has been more courageous at pointing it out than Tom Rosenstiel, media reporter for the Los Angeles Times and author of "Strange Bedfellows: How Television and the Presidential Candidates Changed American Politics," published last year.

Writing in the Aug. 22 and 29 edition of the New Republic, Rosenstiel lists what he considers to be CNN's worst traits: It has broken considerable technological ground but no journalistic ground; it has served as a mouthpiece for iniput dictators, from Ferdinand Marcos to Muammar Qaddafi; it has lessened journalistic standards across the board.

Here are some of Rosenstiel's specific comments:

"The network has even had a pernicious effect on the rest of journalism: It has accelerated the loss of control news organizations have over content, which in turn has bred a rush to sensationalism and an emphasis on punditry and interpretation at the expense of old-fashioned reporting."

"CNN has hastened the trend among news organizations toward opinion and interpretation over hard reporting."

"The network still has a mentality of airing everything, occasionally without adequate reporting."

Notice how the phrase "without adequate reporting," or words to that effect, keeps popping up. CNN is boldly taking us where journalism has never gone before -- into a spinning, whirling world where fairness and balance and responsibility are utterly irrelevant. Pictures matter. Sensational stories matter. Big names and hot celebs matter. But truth? Truth is irrelevant and a pain in the posterior.

The story that pulverized the darn of journalistic prudence was the tale Gennifer Flowers told during the 1992 campaign of her alleged dalliances with Bill Clinton. Most of the networks sensed something wrong with her story, but not CNN, which covered her sobby press conference live.

She played tape recordings of telephone chats with Clinton; they were heavily edited. She said she was a former Miss Teenage America; it was not true. She said she was a former "Hee Haw" actor; it was not true. She said she was a former University of Arkansas student; no evidence to support the claim was ever turned up.

All of this could have been verified with a little old-fashioned reporting. CNN did not do it.

When the Arkansas state troopers came forward with their salacious tales of Clinton's liaisons, they had no evidence to back up their story, were hazy on specifics and had a history of lying. CNN turned on the cameras and told them to talk.

Courage to dream, and follow it

I saw an interesting sign on the side of a truck yesterday. I was over at the post office taking care of some business, and when I came out, there it was, emblazoned in big bold letters upon the door panel. "Horse Drawn Carriages and Equipment, Bought and Sold." What a neat way to spend one's life. I mean, how did the guy ever choose to go into such a business? Was it a matter of turning a youthful hobby into a full grown adult's career? Perhaps a business started generations back, and continued this day more out of love, than profit.

Well, I was in a hurry and didn't have a piece of paper or a pen to write a note, or I would have tried to talk to the unknown but enterprising owner of that business. But it did get me to thinking about such people and occupations, and just how many of our fellow residents on this planet actually do have the wherewithal to take a dream and turn it into a full-time business. Most of us seem to prefer the guarantee of that weekly paycheck, health insurance and the like, and so compromise our ideals and work in someone else's dream rather than pursue our own. Nothing to be ashamed of, but to actually sally forth into the cold cruel world and risk it all out of love for a bit of self-fulfilling personal satisfaction, well, to me, that takes guts.

When I was younger, my brother had a dream. He was employed as a production supervisor for a multi-national company up north, making a pretty good income, providing security for his family and all; but he had a dream. My brother who had lived most of his life in the suburbs of New York and New Jersey, wanted to be a dairy farmer. As his only experience with such matters was a passing association with cows during annual summer visits to my grandfather's "Gentleman's" farm, it was sort of a rather drastic career switch, but nonetheless, it was what he wanted to do. And after infusing our father and myself with a wee part of that dream, he began his search for his little "Green Acres."

To make a long story short, he/we eventually found a suitable place, ran it for nearly 14 years, and subsequently sold the cows out during a government buyout, just before his debt load was about to force him into bankruptcy. I don't know if it was his fault or not. Within a year after he had started, the first oil embargo had hit, the price of tractors tripled and that of feed quadrupled. It's real hard to fight your way out when the deck is suddenly stacked that much against you. A year after the cows went, he sold the farm to another dreamer, and my brother ended that phase of his life for good.

Was he sorry he'd taken his shot? Not one little bit. Sure, he wished he'd been able to keep things going, would have preferred to have passed it all on to his kids someday; but sorry? He looks back upon the whole affair as being the happiest time of his life, and I truly don't think he'd ever undo his decision. I applaud him for that.

To go with your dream takes a special kind of courage, and it's something which is hard to find support for from one's friends and neighbors when the first bills come due. Me, I'm a writer. I think I write reasonably well. But so far, I have yet to sell that ever important first novel, or to secure a multi-paper syndicated column with which to ensure some semblance of financial security within my life. And that has led to a conundrum in my personal existence, of whether to pursue my dream or to go for security.

My other brother is a very talented composer who continually has espoused throughout his life the premise that if one truly has a love of their craft, then pursue it. Be a waiter or a day laborer if you have to, live in a hundred dollar cold water apartment if necessary, but go for it. Personally he went for the security, and now lives in an apartment where while he has his piano, he can't play it for fear of getting complaints from the neighbors. Fortunately, he loves the kind of work he does, but he chose not to follow his own advice. Too many risks, I guess.

As for me? Well as I said, I'm a writer. I determined some time ago that such was my calling, and even when things don't go according to plan, well I can't shuck the creative urge in any event. I've had lots of temporary and part-time jobs; I've taken jobs knowing I wouldn't stay there long simply in order to pay the rent, and I'll be charging my rent this month in order to eke out just a few more days of creativity despite the consequences to my credit rating. My resume looks like st, I don't have the foggiest idea what I'd do should some major illness overcome me, and I have lost most friends due to inattentiveness while doggedly stuck to my typewriter than I care to even think about. But you know what? I'm happy. Not secure, but happy. And I wouldn't have it any other way.

So hats off to all you entrepreneurs out there, all you dream chasers and driven artists. Life remains interesting because of people like you, even to those who couldn't quite take the plunge. They may make fun of your unrealistic goals. They may decry your less-than-traditional ways of dealing with life. But in the long run, I think they're also just a bit jealous.

Oh, and folks remember to keep those cards and letters coming in. I'm trying for a job with this paper, and if enough of you support me, well ... (my editor's name is Lacy Loar by the way).

Analysts: No economic downturn

By JOHN S. BOGLAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — In a bit of good news for President Clinton and other incumbents, a panel of top economic forecasters sees no recession likely until after the 1996 elections, according to a survey released today.

Most of the economists making a prediction in the early September poll by the newsletter Blue Chip Economic Indicators contended the next recession will not arrive until after the ballots are counted.

"Of the panel members willing to make a guess, about six out of 10 felt the ax would fall in 1997 — the year after the next presidential election," said Robert J. Eggert Sr., an economist who conducts the monthly surveys and edits the Sedona, Ariz., publication.

"None expected a recession to begin next year and only one in five now believes a recession will begin in 1995," Eggert added. "However, it should be noted that four out of 10 panel members said the next recession was too early to call."

The previous recession, which lasted eight months, ended in March 1991. The gross domestic product, the total output of goods and services produced in the United States, grew 2.6 percent in the following year and 3 percent in 1993.

The survey consensus predicts the GDP will grow by 3.6 percent this year and 2.7 percent in 1995, unchanged from the results of the August poll. The 1995 growth rate would approximate the average annual advances in the last 10 years, Eggert said.

But the consensus of the 51 panelists foresees economic growth slowing to a 2.2 percent annual rate during the current quarter from a 3.8 percent rate in the second quarter and 3.3 percent in the first. It projects growth at a 2.8 percent rate from October through December.

Much of the slowdown was attributed to five interest-rate increases engineered this year by the Federal Reserve to keep inflation from accelerating, and to improvements in productivity.

Indeed, panel members are forecasting relatively benign inflation this year and next.

"The consensus forecast of the year-over-year percent change in the Consumer Price Index in 1994 was unchanged from the August survey) at 2.7 percent," Eggert said. "In 1995, the CPI is now expected to increase 3.3 percent, up a tenth of a percentage point from a month ago."

Consumer prices rose 2.7 percent in 1993, the smallest increase since a 1.1 percent advance in 1986. They had risen 6.1 percent as recently as 1980.

But the survey found the forecasters keeping a wary eye on several factors they fear could cause an inflationary flare-up.

They included factories nearing full capacity that could cause bottlenecks and inability to meet demand, rising raw materials prices that could make finished goods more expensive and skilled labor shortages that could drive up wage costs.

The government said Friday that rising commodity prices did help push its Producer Price Index up 0.6 percent in August, the biggest advance in four years. The PPI measures prices a step before they reach the consumer level.

But Labor Secretary Robert H. Reich maintained there was no sign of inflation stemming from wages, which represent two-thirds of a product's cost. "Wage increases have been very, very slow," he said.

Vote

Thursday obviously dampened the civic enthusiasm of most Seminole County voters. Of the 137,044 potential voters, only 31,990 came out to vote, a 23.3 percent total turnout. Another 1,415 voted by absentee for a total participation of 24.4 percent. Elections supervisor Sandra Goard had predicted a 30 percent turnout — barring rain.

Precinct 5 in Oviedo, while not a large one, turned out 37.7 percent of its 562 Republicans and 33.6 percent of its 372 Democrats.

It was the top turnout in the county.

The top unless you consider Precinct 106 in Altamonte Springs, which had a 48.3 percent turnout. Fourteen of the precinct's 29 registered voters cast ballots Thursday.

Federal crackdown yields dozens of trafficking arrests

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Secret Service investigators say they uncovered massive food stamp fraud during a summer-long sweep of merchants suspected of trading the coupons for cash and other benefits.

Known as "Operation Stamp Out," the agency's investigation targeted merchants in several cities who buy food stamps from recipients at half their face value, and then redeem them for the full price from the federal government.

Investigators also discovered that food stamp recipients who sell their benefits for cash often use the money to buy illegal drugs, frequently in open-air drug markets "outside the corrupt stores or even at the grocery store check-out counter," the Secret Service said this week.

"In several instances during this roundup, undercover agents purchased drugs directly from the merchants, using food stamps instead of cash as their currency," the agency said.

More than 150 store owners and employees were arrested in several raids on grocers and other merchants.

Some 27 million Americans receive $24 billion in annual food stamp benefits. The Secret Service estimates that $2 billion is illegally laundered.

Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., who chairs a House subcommittee on regulation, said Friday that the investigation underscores the need to beef up food stamp enforcement at the Agriculture Department.

Phil Shanholtzer, a spokesman for the department's Food and Nutrition Service, disputed the Secret Service estimate of the cost of trafficking, saying that Agriculture officials do not have a reliable figure on fraud. "But we applaud the Secret Service for ferreting out people who are defrauding the program," he said.

Operation Stamp Out was launched June 16 in Akron,

Ohio. A sweep of 42 area stores resulted in the arrest of 50 merchants. Many were redeeming food stamps worth twice as much as their inventory.

Agents arrested nine merchants in Las Vegas. After citizens complained that food stamps were being accepted by merchants as payment for any item.

The agency said it also thwarted a conspiracy in Omaha, where agents identified 21 individuals who had allegedly conspired to illegally obtain food stamps and then sell them for illicit purposes.

The scheme involved an employee of the Nebraska Department of Social Services, who used his access to case files to obtain information that allowed others to fraudulently apply for food stamps. Those recipients then traded the coupons for cash and cocaine through brokers, who redeemed the food stamps with knowing merchants.

The final raids were this week in Dallas-Fort Worth, Detroit and Joliet, Ill. A total of 83 store owners and employees were arrested.

In Texas, undercover officers made more than 170 food stamp sales to the merchants, exchanging stamps for cash, narcotics, alcohol, an assault weapon and other contraband, including counterfeit vehicle inspection stickers.

The Secret Service is helping design a system to deliver food stamps and other federal benefits electronically.

think it might be a good idea to tell a married couple they can have two children. A couple can have a couple."

Marion Rogers stated, "Basically I'm against abortion but I do believe in birth control. Once a child is conceived, it's wrong to do anything. Education would help. Sterilization may be part of the solution."

Hamid Pakniat said, "I don't think mandating and limiting families is the answer. If people see there isn't enough food they might take control. Education is the key."

Vicky Hayes stated, "I don't think the United States needs any control measures. Teenagers need birth control. I don't agree with abortion and limiting family size."

Janet Gordon said, "I don't think there should be any mandates. Each family should determine on their own."

Patrick Berndt stated, "I've been all over the world. It's not that small to overworld. We just need to pop a few rafts that are coming here."

Steve Green stated, "I don't think telling people to limit family size, have abortions or birth control is right. That's Marxist!"

Beth Ray said, "I don't think population control should be an issue."

Allen Anderson said, "I think the solution is education. Abortion and birth control should be determined on an individual basis."

Richard Dattori stated, "Birth control is an answer. I'm tired of paying for people to be on welfare. Mandating the size of families would help."

Sam Moore said, "Forcing abortion, birth control and family size restricts freedom. I don't know if there is an answer."

Angie West stated, "Education is the key. Help people work together and understand the world's problems."

Faye Bates said, "The diseases in the world will take care of things. No control is needed."

WORLD BRIEFS

Marchers clash with police in Milan

MILAN, Italy — Thousands of youths demanding a place to hold meetings pelted police with beer bottles, stones and firecrackers in clashes that closed off most of central Milan. Recent talks between youth leaders and city officials had failed to settle on a site for a youth center, so more than 10,000 protesters took to the streets Saturday. At least 25 received minor injuries, including 18 police officers, and over 25 protesters were detained, said a police spokesman. The demonstration, organized by a leftist group, turned violent when police tried to force the demonstrators off main streets. Marchers smashed some windows, and dozens of cars were damaged or destroyed. Young people were evicted last year from a social center they had occupied in central Milan. On Friday, police cleared youths from an abandoned factory they tried to occupy. City officials contend the unregulated sites have become havens for drug dealing and other illegal activities.

The last disputes

CAIRO, Egypt — Thousands of delegates came to the U.N. population conference to discuss managing the growing ranks of humanity. With only a few days left, the talk has come down to how to phrase a few lines of their 113-page proposal. The last disputes — and they are contentious ones — are whether immigrants have a right to reunite with families, whether individuals have reproductive rights and whether abortion is among them. The Program of Action document that the conference delegates are drafting aims at setting guidelines for the next 20 years for slowing the world's population growth. It is complete, except for a few phrases. The toughest question remaining involves the concept of reproductive rights. The Vatican argues that the current phrasing in the plan could be construed as declaring abortion to be a reproductive right.

Support won for first peace talks

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Since coming to power last month, Prime Minister Chandrika Kumaratunga has won rebel support for the first peace talks in four years in Sri Lanka's brutal ethnic war. But after 11 years of bloodshed and frustrated peace efforts, and with a key presidential election coming in November, few people believe that negotiations will begin soon. During the August election, President Dingiri Banda Wijetunga's United National Party lost control of Parliament for the first time in 17 years to Mrs. Kumaratunga's leftist coalition. But as president, Wijetunga remains the most powerful official in the government, and he controls the military. Sri Lanka has a French-style of government in which the president, who is chief executive, may be from different parties and at odds with the prime minister and the cabinet.

Muslim head scarves forbidden in school

PARIS — Bucking court decisions, Education Minister Francois Bayrou has come down firmly against the wearing of Islamic head scarves in classrooms and will instruct school officials to forbid Muslim girls to wear them. "We can accept discreet religious signs at school ... but not ostentatious signs that separate youths from each other," Bayrou said in an interview published Saturday in the news weekly Le Point. He said the Islamic head covering fell into the category of "ostentatious." The minister's stance risked reopening a venomous debate that has in the past created divisions between France's Christian majority and its large Muslim minority. A principal's 1989 decision to expel three students from a junior high school in Creil, outside Paris, for refusing to take off their head scarves became a national drama. There have been a dozen similar incidents since.

U.S. begins talks in North Korea

SEOUL, South Korea — The first official U.S. delegation to go to North Korea began discussions Saturday on opening liaison offices, a major step toward establishing formal diplomatic ties. Liaison offices in Washington and Pyongyang, North Korea's capital, also would open a channel of communication that could speed resolution of the nuclear impasse. U.S. officials say relations will not be fully normalized unless North Korea lets in inspectors to see for themselves whether the North has been secretly building nuclear weapons at clandestine installations. A simultaneous round of technical talks on nuclear issues began Saturday in Berlin, which has significant expertise in nuclear matters. The United States has never had diplomatic relations with North Korea since its founding as a Communist state in 1948. A similar pattern was followed with China. Former President Richard Nixon ended decades of U.S. isolation of China by opening liaison offices in Beijing and Washington. Former President Jimmy Carter subsequently established full diplomatic relations in 1979.

IRA-led prison escape fails

LONDON — Prison and police officers recaptured five IRA men and another inmate after an armed breakout from Britain's maximum-security prison, authorities said Saturday. Leaders of Northern Ireland's pro-British Protestant community said the IRA-led operation proved that the outlawed group hadn't changed its ways despite its 10-day-old truce. But the British government and Sinn Fein, the IRA's political partners, said the escape bid wouldn't be allowed to undermine the current push for a peace settlement. The six escapees overpowered guards within the inner top-security section of Whitehall prison about 110 miles north of London late Friday. Armed with a pistol, they shot several times at pursuing prison guards and wounded one, then scaled the 30-foot-high outer wall, according to the prison's governor, Brodie Clark. On the far side of the wall, guards with attack dogs ran down four of them. A police helicopter later cornered the two others hiding in a drainage ditch a half-mile away. The violent incident was the first attributed to IRA members since Aug. 31, when the group halted its bloody 24-year campaign against British rule of Northern Ireland. It hopes the gesture will lead to negotiations involving Sinn Fein, Britain and other parties.

Sharon: Israel to give up Golan Heights

JERUSALEM — Israel has agreed to return most of the Golan Heights to Syria within three years, said Ariel Sharon, a former defense minister and leading figure in the right-wing opposition. Sharon's comments Saturday mirrored claims by Jewish settlers earlier this week that Israel has agreed to withdraw in three years from the strategic plateau, which it captured in the 1967 Mideast war and annexed in 1981. The claims and denials revolve around a question that has heated up lately: How much will Israel concede for peace with Syria, its most potent Arab foe? Foreign Minister Shimon Peres insisted Saturday that Israel has not told President Hafez Assad of Syria how much of the Golan it is willing to give back. Syria has demanded the return of all of it before it agrees to peace.

the 1983 Student Art winners and in students currently attending Seminole Community College. The scholarships were at first given to students pursuing a career in art but the focus of the program was expanded a couple of years ago, to include a variety of disciplines. "We wanted the festival to reflect all the people from all walks of life who live in Seminole County and participate in activities here," festival chairman Joanne Lucas Bourg said in a 1981 interview with the Sanford Herald. One of the SCC programs that benefited this year was the Seminole County Youth Deputies.

The Student Art winners, who received recognition for the artwork displayed at the 1983 festival, were Kelle Hollida, 2250, Holly Baumhofer, 8100, and Son Young Park, 8100. From SCC, $1000 scholarships went to James Whittington and Jackie Ogden.

The high school students, with their college of choice were: Terence Lawson, Lake Mary High School, Seminole Community College; Travis Bennett, Lake Mary, Florida State University; Wendy Charron, Lake Mary, University of Missouri; Shannon Lee Russell, Lake Howell High School, University of Florida; Steven Greer, Lake Howell, Columbus College of Art and Design; Sam Sunny Park, Lake Howell, Columbus School of Art and Design; Jody Teixeira, Seminole High School, Valencia Community College; Danyell Gray, Seminole, Seminole Community College; Leonard Boyle, Seminole, Seminole Community College; Christa Graves, Lyman High School, Seminole Community College; Christopher T. Guy, Lyman, Seminole Community College; Melissa M. Simon, Lyman, Seminole Community College; Jeffrey Goldberg, Oviedo High School, University of Florida; Angel Bender, Oviedo, Colorado College; Tiffany Marie Rinter, Oviedo, Lindenwood College; Julie A. Nadler, Lake Branley High School, University of Florida; Nataasha Mochuk, Lake Branley, School of Visual Arts; Joshua D. Cain, Lake Branley, Valencia Community College.

Frank Kemp, Bud Rahl, John Blair, Larry Lucas, Dr. Karen Copp, Debrae Lash and Joanne Lucas Bourg. As the 1984 festival draws ever nearer, the festival's board of directors met last week to unveil this year's poster artwork. The selection is a multi-hued almost idyllic waterfront scene painted in acrylics, by Atlanta artist Pham Hung. Pham immigrated to America 10 years ago from North Vietnam and celebrated his first Fourth of July as citizen this year. The poster artwork will also be available for purchase on t-shirts and calendars at the festival. The eight annual Lake Mary Heathrow Festival of the Arts will be held Saturday and Sunday, October 1 and 2, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the L & L Acres Ranch, Interstate 4 and Lake Mary Boulevard. Parking is free and admission is $1, with all proceeds going to the scholarship fund.

forfeiture and estate attorney to be represented at the meeting. The Academy Manor Neighborhood Association is requesting city action regarding lotterings in the park, installation of sidewalks, problems with stormwater drainage, and excessive speed on neighborhood streets. The matters were first approached during one of the city's Access-94 meetings, at which time commissioners and department heads met with citizens in the Academy Manor neighborhood. Joan Campbell, president of the association, has outlined recommended problems the organization believes should be addressed by the city. One of the items was a complaint about the Academy Manor park. The association has recommended it be closed at night, to eliminate a problem caused by young people loitering and panhandling in the park after sunset. The solution they recommended is, "Lock gates on each side of the park at night." Police Chief Ralph Russell however, has sent a letter of response saying, "I do not feel that locking the park at night will resolve the problem." The grounds maintenance coordinator for the city has issued a memorandum saying the staff does not recommend locking up the park at night. Another complaint regards drainage. City Manager Simmons has observed that overall, drainage has been a constant problem over the past 15 years. A memo from the city's civil engineer however, says, "To my knowledge, I have never been called to this subdivision for drainage problems." Additional requests include recommended construction of sidewalks along Academy Avenue, Bethune Circle and Carver Avenue, and a recommendation for the installation of speed bumps every one-tenth of a mile within the subdivision to help reduce speeding. Both the Westside Homeowners Association and Academy Manor Neighborhood Association requests are scheduled at the beginning of the commission work session Monday beginning at 4 p.m. Simmons has indicated that if the attendance be beyond what can be handled in the City Manager's Conference Room, the work session could be moved to the commission chambers to accommodate members of the public who wish to attend the discussions.

The Academy Manor requests regarding lotterings, sidewalks, stormwater drainage and excessive speeds are also listed for consideration during the regular commission meeting, which is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Monday, in the commission chambers.

would be monitored through occupational licensing reports. Both the city staff and Planning and Zoning Board have recommended approval of the ordinance. Commissioners voted unanimously to have Deane and City Manager John Litton prepare the formal ordinance, and bring it back to the commission at a future meeting for formal hearings and adoption.

allowed three: one on the southern tip of Miami Beach in the South Pointe Redevelopment Area, one elsewhere in Miami Beach and one elsewhere in the county. Five riverboat casinos also would be allowed, but only in counties without a standing casino. One riverboat concern has already leased space at the Port of Sanford in anticipation voters will OK the move.

The grand total, according to Limited Casinos, would be 47. Opponents say there are more than 30 parimutuels that would qualify for a casino and that the total number of casinos could be anywhere from 56 to 67. Florida voters last rejected efforts to approve casinos in 1978 and 1988. Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet adopted a resolution against casinos a few weeks ago.

Limited Casinos was one of four active citizen initiatives trying to get various casino measures on the ballot. It was the only one to make the mid-August deadline for signatures.

Initiative backers said the casinos would generate $800 million in new revenues for the state, create 68,000 new jobs and add 1 1/2 million tourists. Opponents say the promises are empty, that the casinos would hurt existing businesses, increase crime and create gambling addicts.

The court doesn't judge the merit of initiatives, but reviews them to make sure that they deal with just one subject and that the language voters will read Election Day clearly describes the changes to the constitution. "The sole subject of the proposed amendment is to authorize privately-owned casinos in Florida," the court wrote Friday.

The court rejected arguments of casino opponents that the ballot title — "Limited Casinos" — and the summary would mislead voters. "We find that the ballot title and summary clearly and unambiguously describe to the voter the purpose and substance of the amendment," the court wrote.

Chief Justice Stephen Grimes, the dissenter, wrote that he generally agreed with the majority. He said he dissented only because the ballot summary doesn't mention that one casino is reserved for the South Pointe area of Miami Beach.

"I believe the voters are entitled to know that the owners of land within such a precisely described location may stand to benefit from passage of the amendment," he wrote. In the last year, the justices have approved two other proposals and rejected three. The measure will be designated Amendment 8 on the ballot.

Film crews, stars shine on Sanford

Television crews pulled into Sanford this past week, lured by the exotic locale suitable for a variety of scenes. Left: Bob and Suelene Phipps, along with son, Tommy, watch outside their Myrtle Avenue home in the historic district, as film crews get ready to do location shots for Dolly Parton's new show 'Heaven's To Betsy.' Right: More filming for Fox Network's 'Fortune Hunter' took place last week. Downtown Sanford was transformed into a mythical South American country where a covert team was set to rescue hostages. Seated: Elizabeth Gracen, who plays Tracy Burrell; David Ackroyd, as Paxton Leeds and Raphael Gomez, playing Miguel Rojas. The familiar figure standing right is Phillip Michael Thomas, best know for his role opposite Don Johnson on 'Miami Vice.' Thomas plays Gary Colt in 'Fortune Hunter.'

Chiles talks move with exec of hospital giant

Staff and Wire Reports

Columbia/HCA Healthcare Corp.'s chief executive listened to a pitch from Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles to move its headquarters to his state, but the hospital company has no plans to leave Louisville, a company spokeswoman said.

Columbia/HCA spokeswoman Lindy Richardson said Chiles brought up the move with Columbia's Richard Scott during an Aug. 31 meeting the governor had initiated to discuss health-care issues.

"Moving the headquarters was not on Rick Scott's agenda," she said.

Columbia owns several hospitals in Florida, including Central Florida Regional in Sanford and interest in Winter Park Memorial Hospital in Yulee.

Asked about Scott's response to Chiles' proposal, Richardson said: "He listened." She added, "Columbia has made a commitment to stay in Louisville. We have no plans to move." She said the company's Louisville employees had no reason to be concerned.

A Florida official familiar with preparations for the recent meeting said the sole item on the agenda was the possibility of Columbia/HCA's move to Florida. It was reported in a Louisville newspaper Saturday.

The official, who was not authorized to discuss the meeting, characterized the talks as preliminary, the newspaper said. The newspaper did not identify the official.

Richardson said it was not unusual for Chiles to bring up the headquarters move during the meeting, held in the Gulf Coast city of Tarpon Springs.

"That is just part of what a governor does — economic development," she said. "There are states all over this country still calling that are interested in Columbia Healthcare."

Chiles' office confirmed the governor met with Scott but refused to discuss details. In a prepared statement, Chiles' press secretary, Jo Miglino, said, "For competitive reasons, HCA has requested the substance of that meeting be kept confidential. The governor's office is honoring the request."

Chiles, who is seeking reelection, won the Democratic nomination for governor Thursday.

After long negotiations with Kentucky, Columbia/HCA announced last March it would keep its headquarters in Jefferson County.

Two weeks ago, however, Scott complained in a speech to Nashville, Tenn., business leaders that Kentucky's provider tax would cost his company $13 million this year, and he accused Gov. Brereton Jones of calling him "a liar for not building a building I never said that I would build."

Jones announced in March that Columbia/HCA planned to build a 150,000-square-foot headquarters in Jefferson County — with assistance from the state — but Scott has said the company made no such promise.

Louisville Mayor Jerry Abramson's press secretary, Kathleen Partlow, said she hadn't heard about the meeting between Scott and the Florida governor. "I doubt that Rick Scott would confide that in the mayor," she said. "I hope that it is wrong."

W. Patrick Mulloy II, secretary of the Kentucky Finance and Administration Cabinet, also said he had not heard about it. Mulloy, who negotiated the deal to keep Columbia/HCA's headquarters in Jefferson County, declined to comment on the possibility the company might be thinking of leaving.

The way we were: Updates on old times

By GRACE H. STREIBER
Herald Correspondent

Thanks to so many of you who have contacted me, most of the unknowns in the recently printed vintage photographs have been identified and I also have further information on the band trip, so today I'll pass this on to you. First, get out your vintage views and I'll identify the unknown people for you.

1946-47 7th grade class
This photo that was printed on July 25, prompted calls from Janette Ratliff, Cara and Mary Ann Baker Bruce, and a letter from Edwin Tison who lives in Newport News, Virginia. Here are the additions and corrections that were given me: First row: Between Bob White and Phyllis Shames is Rene Wilson. Second row: Next to Bob Morris is Bobby Welton. It is Hank McLaughlin, not Frank. (That wasn't my mistake, Hank!) After Hank is Dorothy Bridges. It is Sylvia Hayes, not Brown. (Brown is her married name; I knew that, it was just a slip.) It is Rosa Coke (Byrk, no "s.") Back row: The first two girls are Mary Lou McDonald and Shirley Lisk.

1961 Elwanika Club
Mack Cleveland was the first to call me about this picture that was printed Aug. 8 and he was able to identify several of the unknowns. Beryl Stevens Dyal was also helpful with other identifications. Front row: Mr. Cornell's initials are L.M. Second row: Between Forest Breckinridge and Lester Tharpe is Arthur Grier; after Mr. Tharpe is William Dawson. Third row: To the right of Marion Harmon is Otto Borsdorf; after A.L. Collins is Bill Castle; and after Judge Ware is Col. Harriman. Back row: The first man is Mervyn Ozer; after Herman Morris is George Williams; Mr. Nicholson's first name is Hugh. Both people told me that the next man was pastor of a church but they couldn't remember his name. The Herald inadvertently left off the next four names: Ralph Smith, Rupert Strickland, and then two unknowns. (I knew both Mr. Smith and Mr. Strickland very well, so you know that wasn't my mistake.)

So we still need the pastor, the white-haired man a tad in front of Mr. Strickland and the man next to him. Call me if you remember them.

1946-47 7th grade class
This picture of Mrs. Thornley's class published Aug. 15 prompted a call from Edward McC. Call who identified the two unknown boys. The one next to Jimmy Krider in the back row is Perry Dorton and the one between Lawrence Skates and Billy Park is David Marcel. A few days later, the name David Marcel began to ring a bell with me. Not as a grammar school classmate, but as a member of my Satson graduating class! It has to be the same person, but I don't remember going to school with him here. In addition to also knowing Perry Dorton, Billy Park remembers that the first name of the girl next to Betty Jo Sparkman is Edith.

Chase and Company employees
Mrs. Frances Meriwether, Harold Chapman, and Martha Johnson Walland all identified the man between Al Duxbury and Larry Johnson as Bob Hickson. Tom Sheibenberger called with the information that the man I identified as John Callahan is, in fact, Archie Betts. Mr. Callahan is the first person in the third row. This picture was printed Aug. 22 and has created quite a bit of interest.

Mardi Gras trip additions
As I knew he would, Ernie Cowley called with more tidbits about the Seminole High School band's trip to Mardi Gras. He particularly wanted it to be known that Mr. Alvin Calhoun, the Sanford Greyhound bus agent, was instrumental in getting the buses for the trip at a reduced price.

A few days later, Mr. Calhoun himself called from Charleston, S.C. He continues to subscribe to the Sanford Herald and said that the recent article brought back lots of good memories. He said that he donated his 10 percent agent's commission to the band. His daughter, Marilyn, was a member of the band and Mr. Calhoun stated that she was the one who selected the bus drivers. I have in my records that they were Roger Wamsley and Johnny Hartley. Mr. Hartley's wife also joined the group.

Speaking of Marilyn Calhoun, her dad relayed the news that she has had three strokes in the past six months and is quite ill. Mr. Calhoun is now staying with her and her family to be near his only child and to help out. She would appreciate hearing from her friends: Marilyn Hanson, 533 Yale Drive, Charleston, S.C. 29412.

Some of you may be wondering how a band from Sanford received the invitation to Mardi Gras. Well, Mr. Cowley explained this. Mr. Beamis of Beamis Bag Company who sold bags to Chase and Company had heard our band play somewhere and was impressed. Evidently he mentioned this to my dad, a Chase and Company employee, who just happened to be president of the Band Parents Association. Mr. Beamis was a former King of Rex so had the influence to get us the invitation. He also got us the Rex Ball invitation; we were the only high school band to be invited to that.

Mr. Cowley reminded me that we almost didn't get to go into the civic center for the ball. We had the invitation, but were told that we couldn't come in as our men weren't in formal attire. Mr. Cowley explained that while dinner jackets were considered formal wear in Florida, and that we were the special guests of Mr. Beamis. The officials conferred and probably contacted Mr. Beamis, and we were finally allowed to enter the ballroom. As mentioned before, our boys were quite conspicuous in their white jackets.

The Sanford Museum
While we are talking about photographs, the Sanford Museum has a large number of pictures (mostly from the Vincent Collection) that need identifying. The majority of these are from Sanford in the 1940s and 1950s, though there are a few much older. They are of civic groups, parades, business groups, commercial buildings, houses, etc. If you would like to do a good deed, Curator Alicia Clarke would appreciate your help in identifying them. Just come to the museum anytime during operating hours (the museum is open Tuesday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Beginning Sept. 10, it will be open on Saturday afternoons, 1-4 p.m. and will be closed on Sunday and Monday.)

And when you are cleaning out drawers and closets, keep the Sanford Museum in mind. They don't want your antique clock or rocker, they want the more mundane things of life.

When you find items with Sanford or Celery on it, donate them to the museum so we all can enjoy them. And Alicia gets ecstatic over items from former Sanford businesses such as a company letterhead or anything with their advertising on it, old Sanford telephone books, maps, directories, Rita Theater brochures, graduation or other programs, scrapbooks, photographs, and the like. Start digging for these treasures — and when you bring them to the museum, you can help identify pictures!

Further information needed
I have had an excellent response to my article on Sanford's drugstore and exterior. I am getting further information, pictures, and memorabilia. People are also giving me information on some I didn't mention such as Roundell and Anderson's, Lenoys and Homers. If you have any pictures or remembrances of any of Sanford's former drugstores or restaurants do contact me as there will definitely be another article on them. Each little tidbit is helpful and appreciated, and I'm enjoying hearing from so many old friends and acquaintances.

I'm still looking for someone to tell me more about the beginnings of the Celery Crate. We've figured out that it became or was reorganized during the 1944-45 school year and I've gathered some information from old Sallys and Celery Peds, but who was instrumental in the organization, including securing the city hall, etc.? What was our agreement with the city? Or any other Celery Crate remembrances will be appreciated for a future article.

And if you have any old Sanford photographs of general interest that you'd like to share with the Monday Herald readers, do get them to me and we will consider publishing them.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Prelude to invasion of Haiti

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon says it will put Army infantry troops aboard an aircraft carrier and another ship in what is billed as a Caribbean training exercise but which could be the prelude to an invasion of Haiti.

The command ship Mount Whitney was due in Norfolk, Va., today and the carrier Dwight D. Eisenhower is to arrive there Monday to pick up soldiers from the 10th Mountain Division and return to the Caribbean, the Defense Department said in a statement late Friday.

It was not known immediately where the exercises, described in the statement as "training operations in the Caribbean as part of the U.N. multinational force," would take place. U.S. Marines have been training since Wednesday on Vieques, an island just east of Puerto Rico.

The number of troops in the deployment likewise was not announced, but it was believed to be in the thousands. Officials said the ships probably would leave Norfolk late next week.

Twenty-three seconds to disaster

ALIQUIPPA, Pa. — Twenty-three seconds and 6,000 feet from disaster, the crew of USAir Flight 427 prepared for a routine landing.

Then the plane started dropping. "Oh God," the pilot radioed. "Traffic emergency. Oh shit. Ahhh."

Moments after that desperate scream, the Boeing 737 turned a quiet Pennsylvania hillside into a fiery morgue littered with twisted metal and broken bodies. All 132 people aboard were killed.

Investigators struggled Friday without success to find answers to the deadliest plane crash in the nation since 1987 and USAir's fifth fatal crash in as many years.

The transcript of the crew's final radio transmissions, released by the Federal Aviation Administration, yielded a snapshot of heart-wrenching terror but few clues.

Virtual end to exodus of Cubans?

WASHINGTON — The U.S.-Cuban migration agreement is expected to bring a virtual end to the exodus of Cubans in rickety boats — a phenomenon that brought freedom to some but detention and death to others.

In the agreement reached Friday, Cuba promised, with the help of "persuasion," to halt the exodus while the United States said it would continue to bar any Cuban who succeeded in fleeing from resettling on American territory.

Hours after the agreement was reached in New York, the Cuban government gave rafters 72 hours to remove their rafts from the beach. Authorities "will block the exit (of rafters) even resorting to force if necessary," the official news agency Prensa Latina quoted a statement as saying.

In Havana, some disgruntled Cubans said earlier they would try to leave, regardless of the consequences.

Guess who's talking about unwed moms

WASHINGTON — In the calm before the electoral storm, guess who is talking about babies born out of wedlock and other social ills.

Dan Quayle, yes. Bill Clinton, too.

In recent speeches, the president has been appropriating a pet Republican theme — the one that Quayle characterized as America's "poverty of values."

At the National Baptist Convention in New Orleans on Friday, Clinton reeled off recent incidents to support his theme: Children are losing their childhood, their innocence and their future.

He cited the 11-year-old boy in Chicago suspected of killing a 14-year-old girl and was killed himself; the 13-year-old in New Jersey who stole a gun to end an argument and the life of his 11-year-old friend; an 82-year-old woman in his hometown, brutalized and sexually molested by teen-agers.

"These aren't Baptist problems or Catholic problems or Jewish problems," the president said. "Contrary to what some people say, they're not black or white problems. No, the 11-year-old in Chicago was black, but the teen-ager in New Jersey who killed and the victim were both white."

The problems that brought those children to the point where they did what they did "are the things that are gnawing at our spirit," Clinton said. "We can make change our friend if we know that we are grounded. That is what your faith is about, but it is also now what our citizenship must be more about."

If convicted, O.J. won't die

LOS ANGELES — O.J. Simpson won't die in the gas chamber or by lethal injection if convicted of murder, and prosecutors are muddied on whether politics or pragmatism convinced them not to seek the death penalty.

In a terse news release Friday, District Attorney Gil Garcetti's office said he "does not intend to make any further statement about this decision until the trial is concluded."

Black leaders who argued the death penalty is sought disproportionately for black defendants applauded Garcetti's decision. Women who pressed for the death penalty because of Simpson's record of spouse abuse claimed he got special treatment.

Some legal observers said the decision made strategic sense.

UCF stunned

ORLANDO — Quarterback Chris Hatcher completed 26 of 34 passes for 287 yards and two touchdowns Saturday to lead Valdosta State to a 31-14 upset of Central Florida.

The 17th-ranked NCAA II Blazers (3-0) knocked off the Golden Knights (1-1), who ranked seventh in NCAA I-AA.

Marquette Smith, injured earlier in the week, started the second half and finished with a team-high 51 yards on 10 carries.

AROUND THE STATE

Gators rumble

GAINESVILLE — Second-ranked Florida, making a powerful statement for returning to No. 1, took no chances against Kentucky.

The Gators, who needed a last-minute touchdown to beat the Wildcats a year ago, shrugged off losing the nation's top ranking and scored on five of their first six possessions en route to a 73-7 rout of their SEC rival.

Terry Dean threw four touchdown passes and left the game late in the third quarter, finishing with 15 completions in 22 attempts for 201 yards. In five quarters this season, he has 11 TD passes and no interceptions. Florida (2-0, 1-0 in the SEC) led Kentucky (1-1, 0-1) 21-0 before it managed to make a first down.

AAU confirms move to Orlando

INDIANAPOLIS — The Amateur Athletic Union has decided to create an alliance that would send several events to Disney World.

The union's board of directors voted Friday in Tulsa, Okla., to create the alliance and to relocate the AAU national headquarters from Indianapolis, where it has been since 1970, to Orlando by the fall of 1995.

The AAU will use a planned 160-acre Disney World sports complex that is scheduled to open in 1997. At first, it will host 40 AAU events and by the year 2000, it will host 80 events.

Offices would be near the facility. "an instant rotational site for the AAU Junior Olympic Games — and a great site for many of our other events," said Bobby Dodd, AAU president.

Starting in 2000, the AAU Junior Olympics will be at the complex once every four years.

The AAU has 32 sports, 112 national championships, more than 1,500 sanctioned events and a national fitness program.

FSU rallies to win

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Danny Kanell had another sensational game against Maryland and No. 4 FSU rebounded from a stunning halftime deficit with 35 straight points in a 52-20 victory.

The heavily favored Seminoles trailed 13-3 early in the second quarter and 20-17 at halftime against a Maryland team coming off a 33-point loss to Duke.

But Kanell, in a performance reminiscent of his effort against Maryland last season, directed the Seminoles on two third-quarter scoring drives that put the defending national champions in command. Kanell was 28-for-44 for 417 yards and a touchdown.

Zack Crockett, Rock Preston and Warrick Dunn each scored twice for Florida State (2-0 overall and in the Atlantic Coast Conference), which amassed 725 yards.

Scott Milanovich was 17-of-34 for 188 yards and two touchdowns for Maryland (0-2, 0-2).

Jordan shines once more

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan, in his first public basketball appearance in 15 months, showed he's lost none of his skills in the 11 months since he retired and took up baseball.

He scored 52 points in an exhibition for charity sponsored by former Chicago Bulls teammate Scottie Pippen. It was the final basketball game at Chicago Stadium, where Jordan led the Bulls to three straight NBA titles.

Fox gets NHL contract

NEW YORK — The Fox Broadcasting Co. topped rival CBS with a reported $155 million deal with the National Hockey League.

The New York Times, citing unidentified sources, reported in today's editions that Fox will pay to broadcast games in up to 20 dates, starting with 11 this season.

Patriots march on

Ritenour leads Lake Brantley over Lake Mary

Lake Brantley's Heath Ritenour (No. 34, white) ran over, around and through the Lake Mary defense for 204 yards and three touchdowns Friday night as the Patriots topped the Rams 34-15 in a Class 6A-District 4 contest.

LAKE MARY — Playing away from home on a wet field against their biggest rival, Heath Ritenour and the Lake Brantley Patriots stepped out of the shadows of the past Friday night and went a long way towards earning a name for themselves.

Led by Ritenour's 204 yards rushing and three touchdowns, the Patriots constructed a masterful 34-15 win over the Lake Mary Rams in a Seminole Athletic Conference and 6A-District 4 football contest at Lake Mary's Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

"These kids play with heart," said an elated Fred Almon, head coach of the Patriots. "They're overachievers, just like last year's team. These guys follow in their footsteps. Our seniors are leading this team like I've never seen. I love these kids."

Ritenour, who has the dubious honor of following All-State selections David Sprinkle (Harvard) and Jeff Butler (North Carolina State) as the Patriots' fullback, scored all three of his touchdowns and rushed for 172 yards in the first half alone.

"I've never felt so good in my entire life," said Ritenour. "Give credit to the offensive line. The holes were there. All I had to do was get there."

"David and Jeff were great backs. I spent the whole summer working in the weight room so that I'd be ready to step in and continue the tradition they started. Tonight, all that work was worth it."

Young Lions roar in drubbing Lyman

By RYAN ARONSON
Herald Correspondent

OVIDEO — Long time followers of Oviedo High School Lions football may be scratching their heads right now trying to figure out just who it was that were wearing those orange and black uniforms Friday night. Whoever they were, they ended up trouncing the Lyman Greyhounds 35-10 in the first home game at the newly redecorated John Courier Field.

The mystery for the fans comes from the fact that many of the Lions have never played varsity football, some have never even played football period at the high school level. Graduation took many familiar faces, but if Friday night was any indication, the new generation at Oviedo is ready for the challenge carved out by their predecessors.

Before the season, Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said that he and the other Oviedo coaches had designed a game plan that best utilized the youth of the team. Sitting on a 2-0 record it appears for now they have been successful.

"We are still a very young team and we still have a lot of work to do before the season is over," Blanton said. "We only have two returning starters on defense but they came together and got the job done for us tonight. Coach Register has really put a lot of time and effort into shaping our defense and it has really paid off." Register moved up to the varsity coaching staff this year after coaching the freshmen and junior varsity teams.

Brian King, returning to the Lion lineup for the first time since his freshman year, paced the Oviedo offensive assault with 137 yards on 17 carries rushing, 79 yards on three receptions and three touchdowns. William Jennings and Mike Glummo also added touchdowns for Oviedo on runs of one and four yards respectively. Glummo finished the night with 60 yards on eight carries against his former team. Kellan Eslich went 5-5 on extra points to account for the remainder of the Oviedo points.

The Lions offensive line dominated the line of scrimmage for the entire first half and the first Oviedo drive of the second half scoring touchdowns on their first five possessions.

While the Oviedo offense was dictating where the ball would go on offense, the Lion defense put pressure on the Greyhounds offense the entire game, giving Lyman little opportunity to answer the scoring. Jeff Calim, Scott Dedlow, and Chris Martin each recorded sacks on Lyman quarterback Tommy Dixon who was hurried in the pocket. If not forced out of it, the entire game. The Oviedo defense held Lyman to 178 yards total offense and six first downs.

Seminole survives big scare

SANFORD — The "Branch to Shaw passing show" was on target again and the defense was its usual outstanding self as Seminole High School won a sloppy, penalty filled contest, 14-13, over Gainesville-Eastside at Thomas E. Whigham Stadium Friday night.

Playing without star running back Robert Kuffin, who missed the game with a bruised leg, the Tribe's offense was pretty much limited to punt returns and passes from quarterback Cliff Branch to Derriko Shaw.

Seminole scored on its second possession as sophomore Phillip Eubanks returned a punt 11 yards to the Eastside 27 and Branch immediately hit Shaw for the score. Phillip Falk hit the extra point, but a procedure call brought the ball back and the second try was wide left.

Eastside (0-2) marched right back down the field, with Marion Clark eluding a sack to hit Edward Gordon with a 12 yard scoring toss. The first extra point try was missed, but another Tribe penalty gave Lonnie Ward a second try and he did not fall again.

Later in the half, Charlie Farmer gave Seminole excellent field position as he returned a punt 45 yards down to the Rams nine. Two plays later, Branch again found Shaw, who made a great diving catch of a tipped ball for the eight-yard score. D.D. Hampton ran the ball in for the

This was about the only thing Seminoles Derriko Shaw missed Friday night as the senior transfer from Lyman caught a pair of touchdown passes in the Tribe's 14-13 victory over Gainesville-Eastside.

Rams rally to defeat University

LAKE MARY — As soon as his team beat University 15-5 in the first game of their best-of-three boys' volleyball match, Lake Mary High School coach Bill Whalen knew the Rams were in a trouble.

"A lot of times, if you're play a very good team and beat them easily in the first game, it comes back to haunt you," said Whalen. "It really wakes up the other team. Volleyball is a strange game when it comes to momentum."

Just as Whalen feared, the Cougars stormed back in the second game to take leads of 6-0 and 13-1, then weathered a Lake Mary rally to win the second game 15-10 and force the third and deciding game.

University, the defending Metro Conference champions, raced out to a 13-2 lead in the third game before the Rams began their comeback. This time, Lake Mary came all the way back, rallying for a 16-14 win.

"This win says a lot about this team," Whalen said. "There were a lot of times in that third game when all it would have taken was one bad pass and we would have been out of it. But the guys kept their composure and made good passes. They SANFORD — Local truck and van dealers report a marked increase in sales this year. In many cases, the vehicles are out-selling cars.

"We can't keep enough of them in stock anymore," said Oscar Redden, sales manager at Ken Rummel Chevrolet, 3455 Orlando Drive.

Nationally, major automakers say they are shaking off some of the inventory problems that produced a flat July and finished August with sales of cars and light trucks 10.3 percent ahead of a year ago.

Much of the industry's strength continued to be in light trucks, the pickups, vans and sport-utility vehicles dealers can't keep enough of to meet customers' demands.

In fact, Ford Motor Co.'s passenger car sales were down 9.4 percent from August 1993 and Chrysler Corp.'s were down a fraction, but strong truck sales kept both companies from losing ground.

Don Dithmer, new truck sales manager at Seminole Ford, 3786 S. Orlando Drive in Sanford, said the increase in truck sales is due in part to a restructuring of the vehicle to appeal more to female drivers.

"The truck type vehicles in the past have always been aimed at the masculine gender, but now Ford is slanting its sales approach more toward the female buyer," Dithmer commented.

He agreed that the national trend in pickups, vans and sports vehicles are selling better than ever before in the Central Florida area. "More people are accepting them as the vehicles to drive," he said.

Ken Rummel's Redden said people are now accepting the fact that these are family vehicles during the week, but can be used as utility vehicles on the weekend. "One of the big improvements recently," he said, "is the extended-cab pickup, which allows people to take more people in the vehicle, but still have the power of a pickup."

General Motors Corp. rebounded from a July report that showed its overall vehicle sales down from a year earlier. The No. 1 automaker's August car sales were 18 percent ahead of last year, truck sales nearly 15 percent.

"We think that's a good recovery," GM Executive Vice President William Hoglund said after sales figures were released Tuesday.

Industry executives and analysts agreed that sales were still being held down because manufacturers don't have the factory capacity to satisfy demand for the better-selling models.

"We're still moaning about availability, but it's better," Hoglund said. "We're still selling what we build." He said GM expects the industry will finish the year with sales of 15.3 million vehicles, compared with 14.2 million last year.

Several car companies will bring high-profile new models to showrooms this fall, setting the stage for what many hope to be a strong fourth quarter.

"We expect our momentum to accelerate further starting Sept. 29, when we unveil most of our 1995 car and truck lines," said Robert L. Rewey, Ford sales and marketing vice president.

Japanese carmakers showed more growth than the industry as a whole in August. Toyota's overall sales led the pack, up 23.4 percent from a year ago, and Nissan and Honda also gained.

Honda's Accord pulled ahead of Ford Taurus as the country's best-selling passenger car of the year through the end of August.

Crime victims are neighbors, friends

A group of Lake Mary teens trashed a home in Lake Mary earlier this summer, doing about $1 million dollars in damage. Priceless religious documents were destroyed along with art and electronic equipment.

Merry Lachay reported someone spray-painted a swastika and the word 'Yehudi' on the side of his car parked in the 2300 block of French Avenue sometime between 10:30 p.m. Tuesday and 6:50 a.m. Wednesday.

Victims

Wendy
you're vigilant and when you're not. Crime is an equal opportunity destroyer. In Sanford, like most other cities, there is no escaping it. It is happening to our mothers, our daughters, our fathers and our sons. Here are some of their stories. (Their names have been changed to protect their identities.)

Wendy

SANFORD — On a Saturday afternoon about a week ago, Wendy strolled unconcerned along Sanford Avenue near 11th Street. A soda and a fresh pack of cigarettes were all that were on her mind that afternoon, she said.

The 38-year-old woman said she saw them out of the corner of her eye. Behind her, five black youths were starting to follow her. As she walked faster, they picked up the pace.

A little faster. A little faster. Until she took off running with the group close behind. An old injury to her left leg made running difficult and Wendy soon found herself sprawled, face first on the sidewalk.

The boys, who she believes are 14 to 16-years-old, descended on her. Kicking and punching, they called her "white trash" and "Cracker."

Wendy offered them the $5 she had brought along to pay for her refreshments, but they did not take it.

"They didn't want my money," she said. "They just wanted to beat on me."

Wendy's right eye is still bloodshot four days after the attack, a pool of red in a sea of bile-colored skin. The bruise covers the full side of her face, stretched over a pair of bumps and a cracked scab.

"It was really bleeding," she said, pointing to the cut. "It was bleeding down my arm, dripping off my elbow, soaking my underwear and running into my shoes."

The boys were laughing as they kicked her, she said. Then she remembers nothing.

Later, three teeth were missing, sirens were blaring and the youths were gone. Her vision remains blurry and her hearing comes and goes.

"The city has got to do something about this problem," she said, looking at her gnawed fingernails. "They've got to stop crime like this or everyone is gonna leave."

Police are still investigating the incident, Wendy said she can identify the boys, one of whom she said also stole a bicycle from her a year ago.

Last week when investigators asked her to assist them by looking over some photo line up books or by driving around town to see if they might spot the group or any of the individuals, she still did not feel up to the task.

"We are still following up on the information that we have," the Sanford Police investigator assigned to the case said. "We are not through with this one."

Opal

It's been six months since Opal was brutally beaten in her own home, but she's still in pain. Scars, both mental and physical, are with her daily, even today.

The 76-year-old grandmother said she learned a very painful lesson last February when standing inside her kitchen, enjoying a cool breeze through the open door.

A black man, a stranger to her, approached the door and asked to borrow some lawn equipment.

Opal went to the door and was pushed violently aside by the man who was much larger than her.

"I was so startled," she said. "Then he grabbed me and started dragging me down the hall."

He pulled her, kicking and screaming to the bedroom. When she tried to bolt away, she said, he grabbed her and punched her directly in the face, smashing her nose and damaging one of her eyes.

Opal was forced to open a safe in the bedroom. The man gathered up the contents, which included some Canadian coins and some American currency, before he pushed her down, kicked her in the face and escaped on a white bicycle.

A month later an ex-con, with 15 previous arrests was charged by Sanford police in connection with the assault.

Opal is still awaiting the trial, though she said she wishes "he'd just plead guilty and get it over with." The anticipation makes her nervous, she said. The legal system has "strung along and strung along and strung along." Still, the case has not been resolved.

Opal said she still can not see properly. She has to hold the hymnal close to her nose to be able to see the words, she said.

A self-described "fiesty woman," Opal said she is recovering from the attack. "Before all this happened, I'd had two open heart surgeries and a stroke," she said. "I can get through this."

Many of the medical bills for new dentures and new glasses to replace those destroyed in the attack remain unpaid. Victim-Witness Services has said they will pay some of the bills, but so far Opal has seen nothing.

"My insurance has been very good about paying for some things, but some of it they just can't pay for," she said. "And what am I going to do? Sue a man in jail? He hasn't got anything."

Sanford Police officers arrest a suspect in a robbery earlier this year, finding his pockets stuffed with money that became evidence.

So Opal and her husband wait. Locked inside the home they have owned for nearly 80 years.

It's for sale, though Opal said the decision to sell was related more to their age and ability to keep up the large yard and three bedroom home than to the attack.

"We make sure we keep the doors locked," she said. "But we're not leaving because of him."

Eileen

She doesn't really know what to feel.

Anger that they could have done this. Uneasiness that strangers had been in her home. Dissatisfaction with the service from her insurance company. Annoyance with the lack of cooperation, or even interest, by the police.

"All I know is that this really upset my 6-year-old son," she said. "He had to sleep with us for a month after it happened."

One day in June, while she and her husband were at work and her son was at school, someone broke into their locked back porch and kicked in the back door of their historic district home. Once inside, they went through drawers, closets and cabinets and took every piece of gold jewelry and some other items of value.

With an ironic laugh, Eileen notes they left behind the less valuable pieces.

When the police came to investigate, she said, they were in a hurry.

They did not want to take the time to allow her to inventory her belongings to see what was missing. Despite the fact that it was locked from the inside and undamaged, police announced that the front door "must have been" the point of entry and exit for the burglar. Eileen's husband, who walked around the outside of the house (something the police had not taken the time to do, she said), discovered the broken porch and damaged back door.

"Just little things, but it seemed like they really weren't all that interested," she said. "We had to call them back and ask them to check for fingerprints." Eileen said she feels a little uncomfortable still.

Her elderly neighbor was robbed at gunpoint recently. She watches people she doesn't recognize carefully. She said, sometimes she'll engage strangers in conversation just so she can get a good look at their faces.

At her son's insistence, she carries mace with her if she ventures out into the yard after dark.

"He thinks the 'bad guys' might still be out there," she explained.

In a sense, they are. No suspects have been found in the case, despite the fact that the police told her at the time of the incident that there had been several other similar burglaries in the neighborhood.

Meanwhile, she fights the insurance company.

Despite the fact that she checked with her representative to be sure she was adequately insured, she is receiving a check for less than 10 percent of the value of her items.

She admits she did not read all the fine print in the policy, but she brought photos of the items she thought needed to be insured to her representative and asked if he thought she had enough insurance. He said she did.

"When I complained about the amount of money we were getting for the claim, he told me I should have read the policy more carefully," she said.

Eileen and her neighbors are taking their Neighborhood Watch duties more seriously now. They know who belongs in the neighborhood and who does not. And they make sure the police know too.

Still, Eileen is a mix of emotions.

"First you get robbed by these people," she said. "Then you get robbed by the insurance company and the police."

All three of the women interviewed still harbor feelings of uneasiness after being victimized.

Brown-Jones-Simmons family stand together at 3-day reunion

"United We Stand, Divided We Fall" was the theme for the three-day Labor Day weekend celebration of the Brown, Jones, Simmons family reunion. The Brown family of Sanford can trace its roots back to the union of Randall and Elvey Jones of Thomasville, Ga. somewhere around 1875 or 1880. This union brought four daughters and two sons. One of the daughters, Ellen Jones, in 1892 married Elbert Brown, who had migrated to Thomasville from Orangeburg, S.C.

Around 1910, Ellen and Elbert Brown moved to Sanford with their five sons and his daughter, Drew, Coley, Willie, Alonzo, Johnnie and Sadie. This family became one of the three major branches of the Brown, Jones and Simmons family tree.

Attending and representing the Brown family was Willie (Pocket) Brown Sr. and Coley Brown Jr. The Joneses were represented by Blanche Turner, Rayford Allen, Annie Mae Allen, Annie Marie Morris, Danette Turner, Cooper Turner, Cicely Turner. The Simmons' were represented by Elijah L. Hill, Doris Hill, Elaine Daniels Hill and Precious Hill. Local Brown children and grands were Willie (Billie Boy) Brown Jr. who traveled the farthest to attend the reunion. Willie is from Boston, Mass. where he is in the practice of law. Dallas Brown of Hurston, Texas, former great football star now in the computer business. Betty Brown, Anthony Brown and Bernard Brown are in the field of education here in Sanford. Receiving the award for being the oldest couple in the family was Mr. and Mrs. Willie Chair who had been married 53 years. The oldest student award went to Eldrena Myers. The Brown, Jones, Simmons families will remember a beautiful weekend of family unity.

Minnie turns 90 Pretty girl and sailor celebrate 50 years

Nobody would ever guess that Minnie Strickland is 90 years old. The Southern Belle of Georgia still reflects that endearing charm and grace of a real lady.

If Minnie had not had such a good heart, she may have heeled over last Sunday afternoon at a surprise birthday party given in her honor at Timacuan Country Club. Her birthday was Saturday, so telling Minnie the family was getting together for pictures seemed credible to Minnie.

She still did not suspect what was going on inside upon arriving and speaking to several friends (her party guests) in the parking area. Minnie had never been to Timacuan and she thought, "My, this must be a popular Sunday spot."

"Oh, it was beautiful, just beautiful," she exclaimed. "A real surprise to me. I had no idea it was such a shock to me."

Minnie was radiant in an electric blue crushable silk dress enhanced with three rhinestone bows down the front. She wore an ornate orange fashioned of a white orchid surrounded by white rosebuds.

The decorations matched the lovely invitation which was designed by Minnie's daughter, Fran Kemp, of Mt. Dora. The large artistic masterpiece was bordered in shades of purple and gold with runners of pastel flowers decorating the left side and bottom. Just beautiful!

Fran also had several photographs of Minnie from her childhood until today enlarged and placed on easels at strategic points. The birthday cake table held a large photograph of Minnie when she was about six playing with a doll. In one photo from her younger days in Georgia, Minnie looked like a debutante all dolled up in a flowing gown just ready to be introduced to Georgia society.

Other decorations included gold ornaments, snowflakes and gold and bronze metallic confetti. A little girl's birthday party was depicted in the overall theme.

From noon to 2 p.m., about 70 guests were served a continuous buffet of Coconut Chicken, Spinach Alfredo, Quiche, and a variety of fruits, crudites and finger sandwiches. Minnie was also toasted with champagne.

Arriving in time to sing the "Happy Birthday" song were Gerald Casanova, assistant principal of Oviedo High School, and his sister, Cindy Casanova, a teacher at South Seminole and a Disney employee. The guests were enthralled with the lively rendition belted out by the talented duo.

Another surprise came with the arrival of Minnie's niece, Margaret Anne Whitaker, and her husband, Robert, who flew in especially for the occasion, from Atlanta.

Among the others attending from out-of-town were Missa Stemper Agent, New Smyrna Beach, and her son, the Rev. William Stemper, from Oxford, England. Also attending was Kay Ivey Alderman, formerly of Sanford, who now lives in Mt. Dora.

Minnie's other daughter, Marianne Barr, lives in Casselberry. There are three grandchildren, Becky Barr and Meade Owens, both Gator grads and John Barr who attends FSU.

Born in Madison, Ga. on Sept. 3, 1904, Minnie grew up there and graduated from Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville. She taught school before her marriage to Rupert Strickland. The couple came to Sanford in 1932 to open the Strickland-Morrison Ford Agency, after which Minnie taught school for a year at Southside Elementary. Their two daughters attended schools in Sanford from grades K-12.

Minnie is a former member of the Woman's Club of Sanford Inc., the First United Methodist Church, the United Daughters of the Confederacy and of the oldest continuous bridge club in Sanford.

Fran was carried away with the lively group attending her mother's party including several songwriters. "It just did your heart good to see so many over 90 having such a good time," she said.

Fran added that Minnie's future goal is to travel and have a good time. She said for Thanksgiving she is taking her mother to Madison to attend the Tour of Historic Homes. Minnie's former home is on the tour and what a thrill this is going to be.

Minnie has seen a lot of changes in her 90 years and has exercised flexibility and independence as the winds of change rage constantly. She's a 20th century woman all the way.

Fran concluded, "The reason I'm so proud of Mother is that she's a woman of the 20th century — the next century — 2000."

Golden anniversary

When the handsome sailor from North Carolina laid eyes on the pretty girl from Montana, it was love at first sight. Then, soon there was a wedding in Seattle where he was stationed. That was way back on Aug. 26 in 1944 when Franklin Roy and Dorothy (Roy and Dottie) Thomas said their "I Do's."

It has been an exciting and happy 50 years for the Thomases. Not only did they travel while Roy was in the Navy, but today, they are still traveling. The couple are avid campers and have traveled the United States. Dottie said while Roy was in the Navy, they were transferred seven times in one year.

The Thomases arrived at Sanford Naval Air Station in 1955 where he was a gunner assigned to the VC squadron. Roy was transferred from Sanford twice, but returned. He retired from the Navy in 1960 and in 1967, the family moved back to Seattle where he was employed by Boeing. A year later, they moved back to Sanford where they have since remained.

Sweetwater women

The Sweetwater Oaks Development was conceived and broke ground in 1970. The community was quiet, peaceful and beautiful, but the people who moved there were totally isolated from one another. In order to provide social contacts with the new and existing neighbors, the residents founded the Sweetwater Oaks Women's Club. All women residents of Sweetwater were invited to join the group for the "purpose of promoting friendship and assisting in the community's improvement and development," according to Betty Jean Cochran, a longtime club member.

The women have contributed significantly over the years to the community through the See Longwood, Page 3C

Clubs back in action after summer break

Civic groups and clubs in Lake Mary will take a collective "yawn" this month as activities begin anew after a summer respite.

She wore a barrette decorated with purple silk flowers, leaves, and satin beads. She carried a round bouquet of white carnations, purple statice and baby's breath interspersed with iridescent ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Cori Dahl and Vanessa VanNatta. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's.

career with the space program at Cape Canaveral where he worked on the first moon shot. He later went to work as terminal manager at the then Sanford Airport until he retired in 1985.

Dottie was employed at Sanford Naval Air Station, Seminole Memorial Hospital and later for two local doctors. The couple are active members of the First United Methodist Church and enrolled in the late Judge Ware's Sunday school class when they arrived in Sanford. She also sings in the choir.

Dottie has been very active in Seminole Chapter No. 2 Order of the Eastern Star. During the time she was Worthy Matron, Roy was her Worthy Patron. He is also past master of the Sanford Masonic Lodge No. 62.

The couple are the parents of two daughters, Carole Thomas of Tampa, and Barbara Anne Peoples of Orlando. There are four grandchildren, Dottie said. "The oldest is 25 and the youngest is 12."

In celebration of their 50th anniversary, the couple and a group of friends gathered at a favorite dining spot of the honored couple, the Cracker Barrel in Sanford, for dinner on Aug. 25.

Following dinner, the entourage headed for the Wilson Place home of Joyce and Bernard Fitzgerald where the Fitzgeralds and his mother, Vivian Fitzgerald, entertained at a reception. Dottie said, "Everybody was in a congenial mood, with lots of stories to tell." Following the traditional toasting, cake and ice cream were served in a festive atmosphere.

On the actual anniversary, their daughter Barbara arrived bearing armloads of food which she prepared for her parents including roast beef with all the trimmings.

This weekend, Carole will be arriving to help celebrate her mother's birthday on Sept. 12.

Dottie mentioned how she and Roy are very close and how they are together "a lot." She added, "We enjoy doing things together and have mutual friends we get together with. We really enjoy living in Sanford."

And Dottie doesn't regret a day of her 50-year marriage to Roy. Would she do it all over again? "Yes, I would," she emphatically declared.

Bridal tea

The fall social season is getting under way with a lovely bridal tea next Saturday honoring a very popular bride-elect, pretty and vivacious Nancy Terwilliger. Nancy will become the bride of Noy Rivers on Dec. 3.

"Nancy comes from a long line of party hostesses who revel in doing things up just right. So guests receiving an invitation to the afternoon fete can expect elegance with a touch of class."

Hostesses are Jane Morgan, Selma Williams and Mary Beth Donaldson.

Celebrity corner

For those who want to see a Sanford celebrity in action, switch channels to Nickelodean Sunday nights, at 8:30, to the "Adventures of Pete and Pete."

Sanford's Hardy "Buddy" Rawls plays the father in the quirky and quick-witted series that is sure to delight the entire family.

Hope nobody tried to call Lourine Messenger last Sunday night because she had her eyes glued to TV Channel 18 to watch her nephew, John Schneider, along with Melinda Clarke, star in a new series, "Heaven Help Us."

Hopefully, the show will continue in the same slot. It is a real charmer.

Mother should forgive couple

DEAR ABBY: Please advise the daughter of "Mother of the Bride" that she can find a pastor from another Christian church to marry her and her fiancé. I know lots of people who have lived together before marriage (and people who have been divorced) who have found sympathetic pastors who allow God's presence to be part of their marriage ceremonies. She just needs to look outside of the Catholic Church. It is ironic that in an effort to punish this couple for living together before marriage, the mother and the Catholic Church refuse to allow this couple to marry, which means they must continue living together outside of marriage, a position which makes it impossible for the couple to end the "sin."

Unfortunately, the church is too focused on maintaining authority. It forgets that the message of Christ was one of reconciliation and love. What is important about this couple's relationship is that they are committed to each other, and that their life together is an expression of their commitment to God.

Mother and the church should take this opportunity to be a witness to their faith by offering the couple forgiveness. Living their lives in the presence of God means much more than obeying the rules of the Catholic Church. ANOTHER POINT OF VIEW DEAR A.P.O.V.: Thank you for this opportunity to suggest that the Unitarian Church responds to situations like this in a most enlightened way. Many readers have also felt strongly about that column. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: In response to the letter from "Mother of the Bride," Marsha and Brad seem like normal young adults, trying to live, love and marry according to God's law. Their condemnation by her mother is tragic, unwarranted and undeserved. It's interesting that after all her self-righteous babble, she was too ashamed to sign her name.

I am a staunch Roman Catholic — educated by the Jesuits throughout high school and college — and I can tell her with certainty that most of the Jesuits who taught me would condemn her profoundly. In this entire premarital mess, the mother is the only sinner. Her only obligation in this matter is to stand by her daughter, and support her psychologically and in every way possible. In 20 years when she goes to visit her daughter and her family, and they throw her out, she'll ask, "What did I do wrong?"

I speak with authority. I was there in 1980, my wife and I married in the face of considerable opposition. Betty was a superb wife and mother. She raised three beautiful children, but we could never forget the cloud that hung over what should have been one of the happiest days of our lives. Betty died three years ago, during the 31st year of a wonderful marriage.

For God's sake, Mother help your daughter, please! LEONARD J. DE CARLO, M.D., OLLABONA CITY

DEAR DR. DE CARLO: Thank you for a wonderful letter. I hope Mother sees it, and gets your message. Some readers wrote asking why I had assumed that this conservative mother had not shared her feelings with her daughter when she was maturing. In her letter Mother said she was "thrilled" when the church refused to provide a priest for the nuptials "due to the fact that Marsha and Brad were living together unmarried," adding, "I haven't shared my feelings with Marsha because it would cause a fight."

The club will hold several carwashes to raise money for their trip to Europe.

IN BRIEF

Open houses planned

Several Seminole County schools are planning to host open houses to introduce parents to the school, to their youngsters' teachers and to the curriculum.

High schools and other schools on the non year round calendar have been in session for less than a month, so they are still getting into swing. Open houses were held at the year round schools last month.

The upcoming open houses are:
 ●Croome School of Choice, 2200 W. 13th St., Sanford: Monday, Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. in the media center. There will be a brief PTA meeting dealing with the $2,100,000 renovation project prior to the open house activities. New principal Karen Coleman and new assistant principal Lowman Oliver will be on hand to meet the parents.
 For more information, call the school at 322-6022.

●Lyman High School, 1141 S.E. Lake Ave., Longwood: Monday, Sept. 19 at 7 p.m. in the auditorium. The evening will begin with a short PTA meeting where new principal Pete Gorman will discuss key issues and plans for the school.
 For more information, call Doreen Rochefort at 831-8600.

●Seminole High School, 2701 Ridgewood Ave., Sanford: Monday, Sept. 19. At 6 p.m. parents of the Advanced Placement students will meet in the media center for a special meeting; the general meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the auditorium. There will be performances by various groups.

POP CULTURE™ by Steve McGarry

When Soundgarden formed in Seattle in 1986, the band members decided that punk rock wasn't daring anymore.

So to recreate the raw energy of the original punk music, Soundgarden elected to cover songs by the likes of Kiss and Black Sabbath and provoke a suitably hostile reaction from pro-punk audiences.

Seattle also gave birth to:

a.) a left-handed guitarist who spent three years as a paratrooper before his superstar career was launched in London
 b.) "Jeremy" outfit
 c.) trio featuring Croatian-born Kris Novoselic on bass

Academy offers Tech Prep challenge

Across the country you will find an enormous rise in the number of students receiving a post-secondary education.

There are still students who do not go on to receive any education more than a high school diploma.

Some high schools are beginning to offer programs that teach employability skills to students. These classes are called Tech Prep.

Seminole High School is a cutting edge of technology, offering several different selections.

The classes include Principles of Technology, Construction, Communications and many others.

The biggest Tech Prep program to hit Seminole High School is the Academy of Health Careers.

This is a program that offers skills and preparation for students wishing to be involved in the medical field.

The Academy goes through an application process which allows the students who are willing to participate in a rigorous curriculum program to apply and, hopefully, be accepted.

Students in the academy are put on an academic track which gears them toward a job right out of high school, a training school, or a college or university.

They receive the skills needed for many types of careers and a bundle of knowledge to help you in situations you face after high school or college.

Many students enjoy this type of tech prep program because someone helps you each year to develop an academic schedule to in your needs. Tech Prep is a wonderful accessory to Seminole High School.

It is a great way to get students motivated and to enable them to get an education at the same time.

For more information about the academy stay tuned to this column.

Tech Prep classes are open to everyone.
 Lindsay Hodges is a sophomore in the Academy of Health Careers and a reporter on "The Herald," the 9th grade newspaper.

Two local students graduated from the university with honors earlier this summer.

Atina A. Salameh of Altamonte Springs earned a bachelor of science degree, graduating with honors.

Douglas William McKelvy of Longwood earned an associates degree, graduating with honors.

●Idyllwild Elementary School, Sanford

The following students were named as officers in the Idyllwild Elementary School student government:

The scholarship is given to students who have a grade point average of 3.0 or higher in their first two years of college and have 90 hours of transferable credit from an accredited junior or senior college.

Our Seminole County students are among the best in the country.

They excel here and at colleges and universities around the country. Awarded with certificates and scholarships and placement on the dean's lists and president's lists of their schools, the students are outstanding in their work.

Here are some of the tops in school and school-related activities from Seminole County.

Class 'cut up' has important message

By The Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. — An ex-carpenter making a point about wheelchair access used an electric saw to cut away part of a desk to fit her wheelchair alongside her classmates' seats.

"I'd like to take my place among you as your classmate," Bridget McGuire, a student at the University of Wisconsin-Madison Law School, told the class before she started sawing.

Dean Daniel Bernstine said Thursday that the school might discipline McGuire, a former carpenter who broke her back in an industrial accident.

"There is no basis to her claim that we have refused to provide her appropriate space in the classroom," Bernstine said.

The school complies with the Americans With Disabilities Act, he said.

But McGuire said she was forced to sit in front or back of the class "like a student who's been punished," and that she had a problem seeing the blackboard.

The classroom has long desk tops that extend from one side of the room to the other, and McGuire was unable to get her wheelchair behind the desks.

After cutting the desk top in the front row Wednesday, McGuire made space for her wheelchair and was about 3 feet closer to the center of the room, Bernstine said.

The students then debated whether the action was appropriate, said classmate Jennifer Rogers.

IN BRIEF

Hemlock Society will convene

ORLANDO — Hemlock Society of Central Florida presents an update on "The Right to Die in Florida." Tuesday, Sept. 13, 8:30 p.m., First Unitarian Church, 1815 E. Robinson Street (corner of Robinson and Hampton).

John Lees and ACLU Attorney Burton Green are heading up the state chapter's legal effort to bring a lawsuit based on the current state constitution. The suit is modeled after Washington's successful strategy. Mr. Lees will outline the situation as it is now, what's being done nationally, and what they're trying to do here in Florida. The presentation is open to the public and is the perfect format for bringing someone who may be interested in becoming a member or simply wants to know what's going on.

The meeting will be held in the new sanctuary at the church. Parking is available at the church and additional parking is allowed on Hampton Street.

TLC for Caregivers at workshop

WINTER PARK — Many Central Floridians have the responsibility of caring for a parent or spouse. Too often those caregivers are so caught up in the daily activities they forget to take care of themselves. The Winter Park Adult Day Center, a service of the Winter Park Health Foundation, is sponsoring a three-week series of classes entitled "Remembrance Workshop for Caregivers" on Tuesdays, Sept. 13, 20 and 27, 2-4 p.m., in Education Room 10 of Winter Park Memorial Hospital, 200 Lakemont Ave. These classes will help caregivers learn to find a balance between their personal needs and the responsibility they face. The fee for the series is $25 and reservations are required. To register call (407) 829-5771.

It's time for flu shots

CASSELBERRY — Nurses PRN of Orlando, Inc. with the support of the American Lung Association, has embarked on a nationwide flu vaccination program to provide flu clinics for the American public. A portion of the proceeds from their community clinics will be donated to the American Lung Association.

Registered nurses licensed in the state of the on-site locations give the vaccinations. Nurses work under a physician's orders and in compliance with universal precautions and OSHA standards. All potential recipients are asked about allergies and other medical conditions to identify possible contraindications to the flu vaccine. Recipients then sign an informed consent form and are directed to remain with the nurse for a 15-minute observation after their vaccination. Anaphylactic shock reaction kits are on hand in case a reaction occurs.

The "kick-off" clinic is scheduled for Sept. 19, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Gooding's, 1024 E. Hwy. 436. The cost is $10 per vaccination. For an additional $1, a new type of needleless injection can be administered.

Sun rays can damage the skin A good sunscreen is necessary for protection

By RONALD RAYTON
Herald Columnist

LAKE MARY — You're 83 million miles away from the sun but its rays can cause serious damage.

The American Academy of Dermatology recommends that everyone use a sunscreen all year round with a SPF (sun protection factor) of 15 or higher to help prevent premature aging of the skin and skin cancer.

Dermatologists say that most accumulated sun damage comes from incidental exposure such as running down to the mailbox or out to the parking lot — not from two weeks on your summer vacation.

While it takes some cancers 10 to 20 years to develop, skin cancers may be triggered by blistering sunburns received at any time in your life. There is no better time than the present to prepare and educate yourself with some defensive tactics to protect your skin.

Here are a few facts to keep in mind from Dr. Ron J. Forconi, a dermatologist with an office located in Lake Mary.

• Everyone can benefit from using a sunscreen all year round with a SPF of 15 or greater.

• You can use a cream, oil or lotion for sun protection but keep in mind that most oils do not contain sufficient amounts of sunscreen and usually have a SPF of less than two.

• Apply sunscreen to dry skin about 15 to 20 minutes before going outdoors so your skin has some time to absorb the protective ingredients.

• Reapply sunscreen after perspiring heavily or after swimming. Even so-called "waterproof" sunscreens may lose their effectiveness after 80 minutes in the water.

• You can apply sunscreen under makeup.

• Regular use of sunscreen actually allows some repair of damaged skin.

• Protect your lips with a lip balm that contains sunscreen with a SPF of 15.

• Wear a hat with a brim.

• Be especially careful to protect your skin from the direct rays of midday sun.

• Be sure to protect yourself in all weather. Even on a cloudy day, 80 percent of the sun's ultraviolet rays pass through the clouds.

• Avoid tanning booths and tanning beds. The American Academy of Dermatology says exposure by these methods can cause the same damage as the sun itself — cataracts (eye damage), sunburns, skin cancer and premature aging of the skin. "Remember, there is no safe way to tan. A sunburn is the skin's response to an injury."

said Dr. Forconi. See your doctor if you notice any unusual changes to your skin or new skin spots.

The new school of thought about asthma

Making the adjustment from spending the day at home with a parent or in day care to spending it at school is a big step for children even in the best of circumstances. If your child has asthma, it is even more difficult — both for parent and child — to make the transition. To keep your child with asthma healthy throughout the school year, send him to school with these three special "P's": Recognize, Record and Reassure.

Recognize
Begin by helping your child to recognize and identify his asthma triggers, which may include pollen, chalk dust, animal dander, mold or even cold air. In addition to triggers, you can explore together how your child can alert to activities (e.g., outdoor class trips, strenuous games or sports, etc.) that may expose him to triggers.

Next, help your child recognize the signs of an asthma episode: wheezing, tightness or "funny feeling" in the chest, and difficulty breathing. Then discuss the steps your child should take when an asthma attack is imminent:

- Take medication.
- Alert the teacher or school nurse.
- Call parent or doctor if episode is particularly severe.

Depending upon the severity of asthma, your child may be taking several different asthma medications. Anti-inflammatory medications such as cromolyn sodium or inhaled corticosteroids treat inflammation, the underlying cause of asthma. When used before exposure to allergens or exercise, cromolyn sodium can prevent an asthma episode from occurring. Inhaled beta-agonists, which open airways immediately to alleviate symptoms, should be used in the event of acute episodes.

Record
"One of the best ways to help your child gain control of his or her asthma is to keep an asthma diary," says Phillip E. Korenblat, M.D., Professor of Clinical Medicine, Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis.

"By recording when and where an asthma episode occurred, what caused it, medication taken, and the outcome, your child will begin to recognize the patterns of asthma episodes."

A peak expiratory flow rate (PEFR) meter, which measures the maximum velocity of air during exhalation, is an effective tool for gauging lung function. A declining PEFR meter is a sign your child's asthma is not well-controlled and that you should contact your physician.

Reassure
Whether overseeing the medication schedule, helping to fill out an asthma diary or tracking daily peak expiratory flow-meter readings, your child will need your reassurance and support.

Encourage your child to ask questions. Your child may also feel reassured if both of you meet with teachers at the start of each term to discuss triggers, treatment and what to do if your child develops symptoms at school. Emphasize to your child that the teacher is there to help.

By Bernard Bodo Good YOUR BIRTHDAY Sept. 12, 1994

The year ahead appears promising for you in two unrelated areas. One pertains to your social standing, the other to your career.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might not have an easy row to hoe today if you permit another to make a critical decision for you. It will be done from this person's perspective, not yours, so seal the day, Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A difficult objective can be achieved today, but you must be both patient and tenacious, because your progress might be measured in inches instead of yards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Before involving yourself in a joint enterprise today, first be certain that there is equality in what each has to offer. If there isn't, the venture might not fly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today, persons with whom you're involved might take advantage of your easygoing nature if you don't stand up and defend your basic rights. Be friendly, but firm.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your possibilities for success might not be as strong as they should be today owing to your negative attitude. If you won't see yourself as a winner, who will?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone who is a very nice person but forgets to repay what he/she owes might try to tap you again today. If you succumb, you'll be sorry.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Guard against inclinations today to do everything the hard way. Conditions are tough enough at this time without being self-defeating.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There is a specific individual you've been wanting to consult about a problem, but you've

Answers to Previous Puzzles

Answers to Previous Puzzles

By Bernard Bodo Good YOUR BIRTHDAY Sept. 12, 1994

In the year ahead, you should be able to initiate constructive changes that help you eliminate some bad habits. Once these impediments are removed, success is indicated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are in a leadership role today, you must be prepared to lead by example. Nothing less will suffice if you hope to get others to do your bidding. Major changes are ahead for Virgo in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, if you make an embarrassing blunder, bite the bullet and own up to it rather than trying to cover your tracks. It can only be corrected out in the open.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) For the moment some of your pals might be able to afford to do something you can't. Instead of pretending you can, let them know the activity is beyond your means. They'll understand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Individuals who have the clout to grant you favors today might not be in the mood to do so. Don't place yourself in an embarrassing position by begging for assistance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid involvements today with persons whose presence makes you feel uncomfortable. Instead of subjecting yourself to discomfort, make a graceful exit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be careful today when negotiating with a shrewd bargainer. Don't delude yourself into thinking you're dealing from strength when you really are not.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A strong-willed person might try to intimidate you today into accepting his/her precepts. You know what is right for you, so reject that which does not serve your best interests.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you might be inclined to enlarge your problems, especially if they are work or career related. If you permit this to govern your actions, you may wind up overwhelmed.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) If you pretend to be more assured than you really are today, you may create a climate for one-upmanship. The only thing anyone will gain is discomfort.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This might be one of those days when it's better to yield 100 percent to your mate instead of battling for a 50-50 position. All can be balanced later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Use kind words and gentle suggestions when dealing with your peers or co-workers today. Soft replies will not only turn away wrath, they'll spawn allegiance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Self-discipline will be required today in order to control extravagant or wasteful inclinations. When it comes time to pay the bills later, you'll be glad you were prudent.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

If you bought and enjoyed "Bridge With Jackie," you'll want to get the second volume that has just been published ($6. The Bridge World, 39 West 94th Street, New York, NY 10025-7124). It is imaginatively titled "Bridge With Jackie, Book Two."

The author, Alphonse "Sonny" Moysa, did have a wife called Jackie, but these are fictional stories. The book opens with Jackie's having discovered high-card points. Sonny still uses honor tricks and is nervous of his wife's using this new-fangled and untried method.

Things didn't start well. They went down in a no-play game and missed a laydown game. Then came today's deal, where Jackie was up against Howard Schenken in the East seat. West led the spade 10 against six no-trump. Jackie won in the dummy and called for the diamond two: eight, 10, three.

Pleased with this turn of events, Jackie cashed the diamond ace: five, seven, nine. Taken in by Schenken's smooth falacards, Jackie now played a diamond to dummy's king, getting the bad news. She played a heart to her 10 and West's queen, but the contract could no longer be made. In the end-game, dummy had to discard from a red suit before East.

Sonny said, "I don't understand it. Here we had 34 points and we needed only 33..."

"You could have made it on a squeeze," interrupted Schenken. (It isn't the right line, but do you see how?)

"Cut that out!" snarled Sonny. "It doesn't say a word in the point-count books about needing squeezes. This is a gyp! We had 34 points, and I want our six no-trump! We've been robbed!"

You get the idea.
