Hospitals merge

Local facility is now part of Columbia

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - RCA Central Florida Regional Hospital is now part of the Columbia/HCA Healthcare Corporation. The announcement was made public this morning.

The merger creating one of the nation's largest healthcare providers took place Saturday, Oct. 2. at Columbia/IICA corporate offices in Louisville. Ky and Nashville, Tenn-

In Sanford, Hospital Adminstrator Roy Vinson held a meeting with his department heads this morning to discuss the merger.

Other hospitals now known as Columbia/HCA are Osceola Regional Medical Center, Lucerne Medical Center in Orlando, and Humana Hospital, at 400 Clyde Morris Blvd. in Daytona Beach.

"As for our employees." Vinson said, "this merger is also a positive move. Our employees' retirement system is connected to investments in HCA stock. The stock closed at $22 a share Friday, and we expect it will be up to about $28. today which will certainly give an appreciation objeturn for our retirement benefits.

Regarding the stocks, boards of both companies have agreed that HCA stockholders will receive 1.05 shares of Columbia common stock in exchange for each HCA share held. Following See Hospital, Page 5A

Fast striping

Sanford company first in state to introduce a new technology

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Sanford company is introducing a new highway striping technology on the Seminole County Expressway Lake Jesup

Called "Vibraline," the process allows a reflective strip and dozerjarring "rumble bumps" to be placed along roadway edges in a single process. About 8,000 feet of the striping was laid Thursday in about 90 minutes.

Tim Parker, operations manager for Highway Valet Inc., said his company is the first in Florida to use the European technology. Although the company has done several demonstrations, the bridge striping is the first major project done in the state. Highway Valet is under contract to bridge-builder Bob Brothers

Parker said the 17-year-old Ohio-based company has been in Sanford stace 1988

Under the process, plastic striping material called "thermoplastic," commonly used for roadway striping, is heated and spread continuously along the roadway in a 12-inch-wide band. Before the strip hardens, a rotating die presses three bumps every 10 inches. Finally, sand-sized glass beads are sprayed on the damp plastic for a reflective night-time and rainy-day surface.

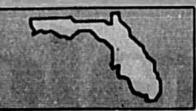

Parker said the process takes about as long as the typical two-step-See Striping, Page 5A

Tampa mayor hurt in wreck

TAMPA - Tampa Mayor Sandy Freedman suffered minor injuries when the car she was in hit a telephone poll after swerving to avoid a collision with another vehicle.

Freedman complained of neck pains after the mishap Sunday, said Tampa Police Sgt. P.B. Hogue. Freedman was transported to Memorial Hospital where she was treated and released.

Freedman was a passenger in a car driven by Tampa police officer Eric Diaz, who was not injured.

The pair was approaching an intersection in Tampa when another car ran a stop sign, forcing Diaz to swerve the car to avoid a collision. The car then slid off the road and hit a telephone poll, Hogue said.

The driver of the other car. Greg Reddick. 29, of Tampa, was charged with violation of right-of-way. Hogue said.

S. Fiorida learning trashy lesson

MIAMI (AP) - The mounds of wood, concrete, asphalt and other wreckage left by Hurricane Andrew are proving to be a valuable laboratory for lessons in disposition of storm debris.

Much of the 24 million tons of the Aug. 24, 1992, storm was wasted because South Florida had no plan to deal with abid waste in the event of a disaster. Berrin Tansel, an environmental engineer and professor at Florida International University, said that meant all of the debris went to landfills, where it depleted five years' space ideally, the debris should have been separated so that useful materials could have been reused, saving about a year's worth of landfill space.

Funded by the National Science Foundation, Tansel and three student assistants have spent months sifting through debris and painstakingly plotting tiny grids. The grids will show exactly how much structural wreckage comes from every little part of Dade County. The idea is that if solid waste management officials know how much wood, concrete or steel to expect from where, the materials can be sorted, reused, or burned for energy.

New surgery restrictions set for state

MIAMI - Unregulated office surgery from wart removal to hernia repair will face tough new restrictions, partly due to the 1990 death of a toddler during laser surgery to remove birthmarks, state medical regulators decided.

"This is going to have a major impact on physicians," the Florida Board of Medicine chairman, Dr. Edward Dauer, said after the adoption Saturday of restrictions, which will take effect Feb. 1.

Before approving the rules, the panel modified a requirement that doctors doing office surgery have hospital staff privileges. said would raise costs.

-But office procedures will be barred unless physicians have appropriate qualifications, trained assistants and resuscitation equipment.

The board set a Feb. 1 effective date to allow time to make Florida's 30,000 physicians aware of the requirements.

Dr. Richard Cavallaro. chairman of the committee that drew up the rules, said they were prompted by errors such as the one that caused the death of 3-year-old Bethany Morris in Palm Harbor.

Before laser surgery to remove deep red birth-marks called port-wine stains, Dr. Dale Massad asked a nearby dentist. Dr. Kleyn Russell Jr., to give the child the anesthetic lidocaine. The child went into convulsions, and later died at All Children's Hospital in St. Petersburg.

The day Sanford honored George Herman Ruth and the "Babe" honored San-ford, March 16, 1948. exactly five months to the day before he died. a number of photos of the event were taken, particularly during a ceremony at home plate at Sanford's long gone Municipal Park.

A photograph of Ruth addressing the crowd, according to the Herald's "Way Back When" editor - and master of ceremonies that day - Julian Stenstrom that apparently no one knew existed, was found recently by Robert Moore, a retiree. He resides at the Town & Lake Apartments on East First Street in Sanford.

He found the picture in a pile of old photos with broken frames and glass in a storeroom at George's Bar on French Avenue. Someone looking at the picture identified both Ruth and Stenstrom, plus the late Sanford Chamber of Commerce Manager John Krider and late Sanford Mayor Bob Williams. But nobody could identify the gentleman in the light-colored sports coat on the left.

Moore contacted Stenstrom who Identified

Stenstrom noted that since the 1993 major league seasons ended Sunday and the league championship series would be getting underway, this was an appropriate time for the Herald to publish this photo.

POLICE BRIEFS

Sexual Battery Charged

A man, who began talking to a woman in a Longwood bar Friday night about their respective children, has been charged with raping her as she walked home.

Tony L. Keck, 31, 752 Tanglewood Drive, Winter Springs was arrested and charged with sexual battery and robbery. The woman told police Keck sat by her and began talking to her after he gave up his seat in the nightspot to allow a group of five people to sit together.

About 9:30 p.m., the woman said good-bye and left to walk to a house where she was staying with friends. The woman said she was grabbed from behind and carried into a wooded area on the east side of East Street. She claims her attacker threatened to kill her and took $15 from her as she repeatedly pleaded with him not to hurt her.

The woman told police she convinced the man to go to her residence and was able to break away and tell friends what happened. The friends chased the suspect until police arrived.

Battery at Jail

Scott David Hodgemire, 21, John E. Polk Correctional Facility was charged late Friday night with battery on a correctional officer.

Hodgemire asked officer Michael Eline to intervene on his behalf because some of his personal property was missing. Eline was escorting another prisoner and told Hodgemire nothing could be done at the time. The inmate then demanded to speak to a supervisor.

Eline told Hodgemire to return to the housing area which he refused to do.

When the officer attempted to return Hodgemire to the area. the jall report states the inmate hit the officer and applied a choke hold. Other correction officers intervened, forceably removing Hodgemire.

Jail officials investigated the incident.

Stalking Alleged

Richard Irvin Beveritt, 22, 2400 Water Street, Sanford, was arrested shortly after midnight Saturday in the 900 block of Cypress Avenue and charged with criminal mischief and aggravated stalking.

The man's former girifriend claims he broke out windows of her car and residence when she refused to talk to him. She claims he has repeatedly tried to see her, called her on the phone and threatened her and her family.

Burglary Charged

Willie James Nelmons, 33, 149 Bethune Circle, Sanford was charged with residence burglary. Three neighbors of a house in the 3700 block of Washington Street reported seeing Nelmons in the shadows on the porch shortly before hearing glass breaking. The homeowner was not there at the time. A VCR and radio was reported stolen. Nelmons was arrested at Main Street and Jitway at 1:55 a.m. Saturday.

Retail Theft

Marvin Raynard Knight, 28, 118 McKay Blvd., Sanford was detained by Publix employees after he attempted to leave the store at 3609 S. Orlando Drive with packages of meat valued at $231 without paying for the merchandise. Police said the suspect cooperated and admitted taking the meat.

• Larr Darrnell Harrison, 32, 100 Scott Drive, Sanford, was stopped by security at Wai Mart after he allegedly removed a camera from a package and left the store through the garden shop without paying for the merchandise. Harrison was detained until Sanford Police arrived. The merchandise valued at $37 was returned to the store.

Domestic Violence

Mariand Lee Grunkemeyer, 59, 205 Aero Lane, Sanford, was charged with domestic battery after his live-in girlfriend reported a verbal disagreement between the two turned into a physical altercation. She refused to file an injunction for protection. The woman said she was struck with fists and feet by Grunkemeyer who was wearing pointed toe boots.

Driving Charges

Freddie Davis, 34, 126 Academy Ave., Sanford, was charged with driving under the influence, driving with a suspened driver license and attaching a tag not assigned to his vehicle by Lake Mary Police Saturday. Police observed the car the suspect was driving run off County Club Road two times, according to the arrest report. His blood alcohol test registered .108 and

DUI. Firearm Charges

Donnie Ray Dowell, 54, 4004 W. State Road 46, Sanford, was charged with driving under the influence and possession of a concealed firearm by Sanford Police Friday. Police stopped Dowell on Laurel Avenue answering a call about an intoxicated driver. After he was arrested, Dowell stated he had $40,000 cash in his car. An inventory by police revealed a quart of vodka, two-thirds fall and a loaded .22 caliber revolver in a plastic bag on the front seat. Dowell's blood alcohol reading at the jail were .292 and .274 per cent.

Resisting Charged

Lance Wiles Flowers, 30, 1415 SW First St., Ft. Lauderdale was charged with resisting an officer without violence by Sanford police at a market on Southwest Road Friday.

The officer was investigating possible drug sale activity when questioning Flowers about how he arrived at the location. Flowers told the officer another man drove him to the location. However, the driver was not found.

Police arrested Flowers because he lied to officers during the initial investigation which also included a possible missing person complaint. The man Flowers claimed drove him to the scene arrived later. He told officers Flowers borrowed his car but called to be picked up because he had a "bad" license.

Marijuana Found

Fredrick Thomas (Tom) Hendricks, 39, 2905 S. Sanford Ave.. was charged with possession fo 70 pounds of marijuana with intent to distribute and possession of drug paraphenalia.

Friday night, agents of the city's Special Investigations Unit went to Hendricks' residence based on a tip. The suspect told police he did not have marijuana in the house but refused to allow a search. A K-9 unit indicated the presence of narcotics at the back door after a perimeter search. Hendricks agreed to a search after officers indicated they were seeking a warrant

Three duffle bags containing packages of marijuana weighing about 70 pounds were found in a bathroom.

Traffic arrest

Steven James Pfeiffer, 33. 1322 Douglas Ave., Sanford was charged with driving with a suspended license, habitual and tag not assigned after a computer check Friday night revealed his license was indefinitely suspended.

Warrant Arrests

Synthoband climbs charts again

By Associated Press

MIAMI - The synth-based Depeche Mode has returned in a big way to the charts after a three-year absence, fueled by an unlikely blistering first single and a more traditional rock sound.

"I Feel You," off the band's 10th-disc "Songs of Faith and Devotion" opens with screeching feedback. Live instruments replaced the familiar Depeche Mode sounds of electronic synthesizers and give the song a heavier sound. "We didn't want to come back with a whimper and we wanted to be noticed," said Depeche Mode's song writer Martin Gore, readying to embark on a 15-month North American tour.

Many top 40 stations gave the song only limited air play, feeling it sounded too much like heavy metal.

"The D.J.'s were annoyed by the opening sound because they like to do there opening spiel and found they couldn't do it over said in a telephone interview experiment more and more Limited airplay obviously didn't hurt the group as the British band's new album was No. 1 with a bullet on the Billboard 200 and also reached the top spot in the United Kingdom and Germany.

"I never placed any importance on chart condition before but for the first time I got carried away." Gore said. "When I heard we hit number one on England. Germany and America charts at the same time, me and my girlfriend celebrated for hours."

Gore attributes the album's success to the fact that the group is always trying to grow and challenge themselves without sacrificing what has made them popular. Fans may notice the use of more traditional instruments on the album, but Gore feels that people are making too much of that.

"We are still very much an electronic-based group, but we're open to other instruments as well," he said. "Each record our heavy guitar sound." Gore we've improved, and we have to

Bald man shines Mr. Clean

PENSACOLA - Since C.W. "Buddy" Thomley Jr. suddenly lost his hair 16 years ago, he has been called Slick, Curley, Kojak and Mr. Clean.

"You get all the bald names;" recalled Thomley, 46. But that last one proved pro-

The Pensacola businessman won a look-althe contest in 1985, and ever since he has been touring the United States and Canada as the real-life Mr. Clean. the bald genie in the cleaning compound bottle.

With his head waxed to a sparkling shine, false bushy white eyebrows attached to his forehead and a single gold loop in his left earlobe, he appears at trade shows, sales meetings and stores on behalf of the product's manufacturer, Cincinnati-based Procter & Gamble.

Thomley autographs Mr. Clean bottles, answers questions, extols the virtues of the all-purpose cleaner and sings the television commercial jingle:

"Mr. Clean gets rid of dirt and grime and grease in just a minute. "Mr. Clean can clean your whole house and everything that's in it.

"Mr. Clean, Mr. Clean, Mr. Clean."

"I always say God took my lemon and made me some lemonade." Thomley said. "I was a pretty hairy guy. I didn't even have a receding hairline. I was pretty conceited. I was always combing my hair."

The former heavy equipment operator and part-time nightclub singer wore a beard and hair down to his shoulders. But within a five-week span in 1977. when he was only 30, he lost every hair on his body.

"It was pretty traumatic at first," Thomley said. "It was a shocker. They put me in a hospital and ran every kind of test."

Doctors blamed nerve shock. It is a rare reaction to traumatic experiences. It sometimes happens to soldiers shocked by the horror of battle. In Thomley's case the shock was the death of his father-inlaw and the responsibility of taking over his auto parts stores in Pensacola and Mobile, Ala., where Thomley then lived. "It was having 60 employees thrown on you overnight, 10 retail stores, three corporations," Thomley said.

Cooperation: law and media

News reports, on local and nationwide TV as well as in the print media, are helping in the battle against crime. An excellent example is unfolding between Florida and Colorado.

The case involves Casselberry police who are searching for the prime suspect in the murder of a woman and the murder and rape of her granddaughter on Sept. 20.

The willingness of Casselberry police to seek media cooperation is commendable.

Even though the department is responsible for solving this case, it is willing to admit public assistance can be a valuable assist.

There are times when some law enforcement agencies tend to hold back information on such matters as descriptions of burglars or license numbers on escape vehicles. They may believe such information, if made public, would alert the perpetrators and hinder the Others however, are willing to provide details which may assist in obtaining information or finding eye-witnesses which could lead to an arrest. This is the type of cooperation extended by the Casselberry Police Department.

There are other agencies in the Central Florida area who cooperate. They make themselves available to the press, and are willing to share information.

Unfortunately, some cooperate only when they want public praise for solving a crime or doing something in support of the community. While this is noteworthy, it is not the only cooperation which should exist between law

The public is willing to become active in helping to battle crime. All they need is information furnished by law enforcement.

Through the years, the press has shown its willingness to help. It can serve as a recruitment service in obtaining additional eyes and ears.

A few suggestions

About six weeks ago I wrote a letter published in the Herald suggesting the closing of the Naval Training Center in Orlando could be a blessing in disguise. I proposed that since there is a large number of growing older retired career military and naval personnel in the area that the NTC hospital could be used as a veterans' facility. It could be a hospital, since there is one already there, and barracks easily could be converted into facilities to provide nursing home-type care. Not all old veterans will need to be hospitalized. I also suggested that such a move would eliminate the need for spending millions of dollars for a VA hospital the central Florida area needs.

Well, well! A couple of weeks ago the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Veterans' Affairs toured the facility in Orlando. The newspapers reported his

That's right! He proposed exactly the same thing I suggested in my letter to the Herald. I just wanted some folks around here to know I still have a few marbles in my old bag. Now I've got another proposal to share with you. The Herald recently reported that the Board of County Commissioners and the Seminole County school board were thinking about merging some of their purchasing programs to save taxpayer dollars. It made a lot of sense until the story said the two boards may have to buy some land and build some new buildings. There is really no reason to do that and spend a lot of taxpayer dollars. Everybody knows the school board is or has outgrown its facilities at 13th Street and Mellonville-the old buildings once used by the New York Giant farm system and later the Sanford Naval Academy for its junior school. At one time the school board was thinking about buying the old National Cash Register building in Lake Mary for several million dollars and spending million converting it into offices. I thank the good Lord they didn't do that.

Right now there's a move afoot to revitalize downtown Sanford. It's called the Main Street Program. Folks are looking for ideas. The first move that could be made is for the school board to buy the old Seminole First Federal building downtown and move its headquarters to that structure. Then utilize the space vacated on Mellonville for the proposed merger of the purchasing departments for the county commission and the school board. That would accomplish three things:

It would nove taxpayer dollars for the purchase of new land and the construction of purchasing department facilities. It would provide a new use for the vacant school board offices on Melionville and it would go quite a way to enliven downtown Sanford.

And. I can't think of a better first step for the Main Street folks to make.

Julian Stenstrom.

Innocent until forced to confess

There is an intense conviction throughout the country that defendants in criminal cases certainly those accused of murder - have too many rights. From what I have seen of the current Democratic and Republican crime bills. this is also a bipartisan view in Congress that is shared by the president.

Since Ted Koppel's "Nightline" is one of the few television programs that occasionally checks out our system of justice around the country, it is encouraging that his ratings are up 15 percent over last year and that he usually attracts more viewers than Jay Leno and, more recently, David Letterman.

A particularly useful illustration of how "Nightline" casts some light into the shadows of the criminal justice system was the recent "The Railroading of the Tucson Four."

On Aug. 10, 1991, nine members of a Buddhist temple on the outskirts of Phoenix — including six Thai monks — were robbed and murdered. The case received wide national and international attention, and there was mounting pressure on law enforcement officers to catch the technically taken into custody, they could be questioned for many more hours than that. While this was going on, the suspects had no access to a lawyer.

The questioning of these men - who, as Koppel put It. were 'innocent until forced to confess" -was tape recorded, and excerpts were playedon "Nightline."

At one point, suspect Mark Nunez asked if he was under arrest. A detective said he was not. At that point, Nunez could have refused to certainly were not going to tell him.

They also — as Dave Marash reported on "Nightline" — put him in a room with photographs of the scene of the crime. Thereby specific details might be planted in his mind.

Why did Nunez and the others confess? "You were half asleep," Mark Nunez says. "You were starved, confused. After a while you just get it into your mind that they're not going to give Along with constant pressure, the detectives gave the unsophisticated suspects assurances that would not be met. "Nobody else is hearing what you are saying to us or what we're saying to you." one detective had said during the questioning. "It's not going to go any further than this room. Police are permitted to ensuare a suspect into a confession by going beyond the truth. On "Nightline." Jeffrey Higginbotham, an FBI special agent who teaches police officers about interrogations, says to a class: "It's OK, under certain circumstances, to con the con, to tell a lie, to overstate the strength of your case."

That is why a defense lawyer I know tells his clients, "No matter what they say to you, do not say a word until I get there."

Murder outrage closer to home

As of late September, nine foreign tourists had been murdered in Florida during the preceding 11 months it is an appalling statistic in human terms and a potentially devastating one in economic terms. Tourism is Florida's No. 1 industry, and foreigners make up about 7 million of the annual influx of 42 million tourists. Official reaction to the alayings was as decisive as it was vocal. The mass media have treated them as among the year's most important stories.

With that as the background, imagine a different scenario. Suppose that instead of nine deaths of foreigners over the past year, there had been about 5,000 in the Sunshine State. What would have been the response? What kind of coverage would they have received?

Now, drop conjecture and deal with facts. The homicide death rate among young black Americans was 76.8 per 100,000 in 1988. That comes down to well over 700 per million and over 5,000 per 7 million, which is the number of foreigners who visit Florida annually. It is also roughly seven times higher than the national homicide average.

And what is the response to these figures? In the white community, hostile apathy mixed with apprehension, as reflected by the threeparagraph write-ups on an inside page usually given to most black murders in our daily newspapers. White politicians looking for a rhetorical issue talk tough and offer crackdown legislation bills they know are unconstitutional. Overwhelmed urban police departments feel they are successful if they are able to contain the violence within the ghetto and clean up the streets after each killing. To put it another way, there is a crime crisis of epic dimensions in America today, but it has virtually nothing to do with foreign visitors. It is centered within the black community in particular, it is getting worse and no one seems willing to do what should be done or even to know what that might be. It is not coincidental that Florida's violent crime rate is the nation's highest, at 1,184 per 100,000 people, and that a disproportionate number of these crimes are black against black and Hispanic against Hispanic.

In the 1980s, the answer was to expand the number of crimes, particularly drug-related, for which mandatory jail sentences could be imposed, and then to build more jails. The Pirst, the number of Americans behind bars went from 195,441 in 1970 to 1,100,000 in 1991. Going to jail is more probable for black American males than going to college. Almost 3,400 blacks are in jail or prison for every 100,000 in the population. The comparable figure for all Americans is 455. For Japanese, it

Second, the violent crime rate continued to rise even as the overall crime rate evened off and began to drop. The upward trend defled all predictions, since it was widely believed that with the aging of the baby boom cohort, violent crimes would go down. Illustratively, however, the overall murder rate went from 4.6 per 100,000 in the mid-1960s to over 10 per 100,000. As a group of post-baby boom spokesmen declared in their "Third Millenni um Declaration" last July, "During the past three years. more Americans have been murdered on our streets than were killed in the 16 years of the Vietnam War."

to think of violence as both inevitable and casual. Human life is devalued, worth less than the opinion of your peers and your own self-esteem. Vast sweeps of America's cities are like so many prisons, ruled by their most violent inmates and subject only sporadically to the rule of law.

As Dr. Alvin Poussaint, a Harvard psychiatrist, put it a year or so ago. "In the past five years, we've come to feel that anything goes. There is an immunity to violence and an acceptance of it by the perpetrators as a legitimate way to deal with things. The perpetrators use violence as a tool to negotiate the environment." More polgnantly, a fifth grader told a Washington Post reporter, "I don't go outside."

A little less than three years ago, a reporter for the Baltimore Sun put his finger squarely on one of the central problems. As Jerry Bembry put it: "It seems that only when a white person is killed violently is it considered a crime that shocks a community and spure outrage. If a difference is going to come about in the black community, that same community pession is going to have to come out every time they wheel the bodies of our black youths away in body bags.

Little needs to be added. Some of the killers of the foreign tourists have already been apprehended in Florida. Others will be.

DOE should clean up own nuclear mess

'waste capital of the world." But it's not the U.S. Congress nor an abandoned landfill in Mexico City. Rather it lies in the pristine state of Washington, a sordid monument to Cold War excess. It's the Hanford Nuclear Reservation, and for decades it has built bombs in frantic competition with the Soviet Red Menace. Now that the nuclear arms race has subsided, the cleanup poses political challenges as daunting as any arms race.

"We're not doing much better than the Russians" in terms of nuclear cleanup, Rep. Peter DeFazio, D-Ore, told us. "They (the Russians) dumped a whole bunch of waste into a mine and ultimately ... (there was) an explosion and it destroyed an area of the Soviet Union and turned it into a nuclear wasteland. We actually have that threat at Hanford." in an age when laws like the Clean

monument to Cold War

While DOE readily admits its nuclear facilities do not comply with federal standards, they maintain they're doing all they can to correct the problems. Much of the damage was done long before corrective laws were passed, they told us. Since then, DOE has avoided regulatory compliance by Justifying their mess in the name of national defense. Now environmentalists are calling for DOE's compliance with the government's own regulations.

At the Hanford site, comprising an area half the size of Rhode Island, investigators in the Office of Technology Assessment found an underground plume of contaminated water stretching 122 square miles and moving toward the Columbia River. Hanford is also home to 177 underground storage tanks. most of which have been filled with contaminated waste since the early 1940s.

DOE officials told our associate Andrew Conte they believe some of these tanks have started to leak into the ground, making Hanford "one of DOE's top priorities." Perhaps that's also because of a track record that includes pouring more than 200 billion gallons of liquid wastes into unlined, open dirt retainers at the site. Environmentalists charge that this water then seeps into the ground water below.

At another site, 20 miles north of Cincinnati. DOE has released more than half a million pounds of uranium into the air and water, raising radioactivity levels in nearby drinking wells to 250 times the level considered safe. In December 1991, DOE released contaminated water from a nuclear reactor into the Savannah River in South Carolina.

DeFazio admita that getting his bill approved by Congress would be "lough" to say the least. Nor has he received much help from the eco-sensitive Clinton administration. When he wrote a letter recently to Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary, he received a form letter in reply to thank him for writing.

Russian rushhour mixes with guns

By Associated Press

MOSCOW - The shooting began about the same time as the morning rush hour.

When early bursts of gunfire broke out today around the Russian White House, dog walkers on the embankment opposite the building ducked for cover behind kloaks and trees.

Buses full of wide-eyed passengers raced past the armored personnel carriers that lined up along the embankment with their guns trained on parliament and the rebellious lawmakers inside.

But as the morning wore on and the gunfire became more constant, crowds of curious Russians gathered, only occasionally looking for cover when the bullets zinged close by.

"I know it's very serious and yet it feels very absurd," said Sergei Yelkin, 33, nodding his head as he watched the heavy artillery roll past his klosk at the foot of Kalinin Bridge, near the center of the firefight. "It's a paradox."

The bridge was closed to traffic, and at mid-morning two tanks rumbled onto it and parked. Pillars of black smoke rose from burning buildings on the White House side and the air tasted bitter.

Still, a steady stream of pedestrians continued to cross the bridge. Commuters ran hunched over, clutching briefcases and swastika on his lapel.

Pregnant cheerleaders spawn sexism debate

By Associated Press

HEMPSTEAD, Texas - Four pregnant girls were forced off a high school cheerleading squad this fall, sparking complaints of sexism and questions about the quality of sex education.

Four of 16 girls on the Bobcat cheerleading squad at Hempstead High School were removed after getting pregnant. One of the four was allowed to return after she had an abortion under a new policy adopted by school district trustees.

Parents of other cheerleaders said the removals endorse abortion. They chided school officials for not taking similar action against the girls' sexual partners, if they are students.

"All the burden has so far been put on the girls," said everybody feels about safe-sex

The tempest over the pregnancies has also spurred debate over whether the school should step up sex education in this town of about 3,500 residents, 31 miles northwest of Houston.

"I don't think a lack of sex education created this problem," school board President Betty Vines said Friday, "Personally, 1 think the school should address (only) the health aspects of the Issue and encourage students to abstain."

Student Council president Amberly Wagner disagrees.

"I want to meet with the rest of the council and see how education and the other issues about what has happened," she said. "Some parents complained in the past, but it is on the minds of students here. Maybe it is time for us to take it up ourselves."

The policy adopted last week sets sanctions against both sexes. Students can't hold elective office at school if they are pregnant or parenting - and parenting covers prospective fathers, Ms. Vines said. holding the males accountable is not easy. The pregnant girls haven't revealed their partners.

"I don't want to play the part of any vigilante group or committee on morals." Ms. Vines

"We can't get into policies about blood tests any more than we could do it for pregnancy tests. If there were accusations about the father, it would be her word against his."

Amish ways clash with school laws

By ROBERT IMRIE Associated Press Writer

AUGUSTA. Wis. - The new schoolhouse is snug and bright. Fifteen desks fill a single room warmed by a wood-burning stove. Lunch pails are neatly lined up on shelves in the entryway. The Amish think it's quite modern enough.

But officials in Eau Claire County say that unless the little school adds electricity, exit signs, smoke detectors and a frewall behind the stove, it will be closed for violating state law.

This culture clash, which includes threats of lawsuits and arguments about religious freedom, may result in changes to the 1991 law that requires all rural schools to meet stringent health and safety standards.

The dispute also is galvanizing this town of 1,500 in westcentral Wisconsin. Town leaders say the Amish should be allowed to preserve their simple, unadorned way of life.

"I am certain the school is as safe as the one I and my father attended," said Henry Grottke, a 63-year-old farmer who rents land to Amish. "Whatever happened to government of the people, by the people, for the people?"

The 100 local Amish families have seven other one-room schools, but all were built before the 1991 law took effect.

Last Thursday, a state Senate comittee came to Augusta to hold a public hearing. After taking testimony, the panel voted in favor of a bill to exempt Amish schools from rigid building codes. The bill next goes to the full Senate and could come to a vote late next month.

threat, not hurting people, why legislate down their throats?" sald state Sen. David Zien, who as a first-grader attended a one-room school.

'We are correcting a wrong," Zien told the hearing. The Amish wear plain, dark clothing and travel by horsedrawn vehicles. They shun most modern conveniences and contend that connecting electricity to the school would violate their religious beliefs. We try to be humble people, so we want humble buildings." sald Harvey Kurtz, an Amish school board member who testified at the hearing. The Amish have clashed before with state government over modernities, such as systems to sterilize dairy equipment, permits for outdoor tollets and reflective triangles they must hang on the back of their buggles to designate a "slow-moving-vehicle." Another sort of sign is at issue in the school dispute. The building has just two doors - one to enter and one that leads to the outhouses behind the school. Neither has the state-regulred sign identifying it as an exit. Such signs would be silly, said Kurtz - the youngsters know what a door is for.

The requirement to run electricity to the school strikes the Amish as similarly uscless and intrusive. The school measures Just 24 feet wide and roughly 36 feet long, and six tall windows three on each side - let in plenty of daylight and provide a view of still-green cornstalks rustling just beyond the

Softball players, parents faced with decisions

At the risk of repeating myself, what do we do now?

Nothing Or everything

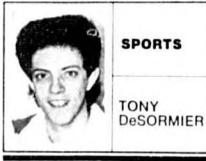

While nothing has been implemented at the school level yet, 1 believe it's safe to assume that Seminole County high schools will be playing fastpitch softball this spring

There's also a chance that Sennnole County high schools could be playing slowpitch softball as well-

Dr. Tom Marcy-executive director of high school education for the Seminole County School District, said in an interview Friday that if Seminole County high schools play softball, they will play fastpitch. Healso said that if the interest exists, to be and resources are there, the schools may also play slowpitch.

That's not as ridiculous as it may sound, Certainly, Seminole County parents repeatedly have shown the ability to accept and meet bigger challenges than this that fastpitch softball is the primary suggest that one be installed.

The question is, how much do you sport and that the schools are obligated to do their best to field fastpitch teams. That means the coaches, equipment, and school fields will be committed to that

> Wail and moan if you will, but that's the way it looks like it's going

> Again, the question is, what do we do now?

My suggestion to the girls is to start taking batting practice. I'm not sure if the batting cages at Fun-World or the Seminole Batting Range have a fastpitch softball cage. Before we get ahead of ourselves. It not, it would be a good idea for a let's start with the basic premise concerned parent or two to strongly

Also, make your way to the localbook store or sporting goods store and find a copy of fastpitch softball rules. Check if there are any "how to" video tapes on the sport. Schools can begin conducting organized practices on Jan. 10, just 15 weeks away. Don't wait for someone else to tell you to start getting ready.

Meanwhile, parents are faced with a decision: support the program or support the program.

Despite the fact that there have been Seminole County athletes who have gone on to play fastpitch softball in college after playing slowpitch in high school, athletes on the college track now will find it all but impossible to get the opportunity to play softball in college if they ignore the opportunity to play it in high school.

That being said, there's certainly room for more than one sport

Most schools end up with more athletes than they can accomodate. dressing between 30 and 40 players. between their varsity and junior varsity squads. Anything more than that is counterproductive to the girls and the team.

Now consider those girls who have no desire of pursuing athletics beyond high school and therefore have no interest in the advantages or challenges of playing fastpitch. For them, participation is para-

Would it be difficult to come up with another 15 to 20 girls who would be interested in playing slowpitch? I doubt it:

Do not, I repeat, do not interpret this to mean that I advocate presenting the girls with an "either/or" scenario. If a school has the interest and financial support to field a slowpitch team along with its fastpitch program, it must be a coordinated effort, not a competitive

Keep in mind that because of the gender equity bill that Governor Chiles signed into law last spring, fastpitch softball will come first. If there's no fastpitch, then there will be no slowpitch. I see no reason, other than spitefulness, why it wouldn't work. Without a doubt, it'll take a lot of effort on the part of many individuals, but it can be done. The parents and supporters of boys volleyball have proven that

It's the season for lovebugs

Harmless non-stinging insects cause car damage

Most of us are all too familiar with lovebugs. They are small black flies with a red thorax that have been invading our lives for the past several weeks. We consider them a nuisance mainly because they congregate in unbelievably large numbers along highways and splatter on windshields and grills of our cars.

Our windshields soon become covered with the fatty remains that can become thick enough to obscure vision. The flies can also clog radiators and cause our cars to overheat. The fatty tissue can pit our car's finish if not removed within a few days. Lovebugs also enter cars and stain clothing if sat on by mistake. In addition, lovebugs can enter our homes and mar freshly Adult lovebugs are harmless - they do not sting or bite. They feed on the nectar of various plants, especially sweet clover, Brazilian pepper and goldenrod, which is in bloom now. At night, lovebugs nest on low growing vegetation.

Two flights of lovebugs occur each year in central Florida. The spring flight occurs during late April and May. A second flight occurs in fall around late August and September. Flight periods generally last 4-5 weeks. Mating takes place almost immediately after emergence of the females. Adult females live only 2.3 days.

There ar several effective insecticides available for lovebug control, but spraying can be impractical because infestations occur over such a vast area and for a short period of time. You can control lovebugs in confined areas like porches and around your home with acrosol sprays available for other household insects.

It may seem hard to believe since it seems we are in the midst of a swarm, but, predators have substantially reduced the population of lovebugs in central Florida during the past several years. Lovebug larvae populations are extremely high in pasture areas, making an ideal environment for certain bird predators like robins and qualls. Armadillos are thought to be predators as well, but scientific data has yet to back this up. Lovebugs are predators as well, feeding on certain beetle larvae. carwigs and centipedes.

There are several things a motorist can do to lessen the lovebug nuisance. First, travelling at night can reduce the incidence of lovebugs since they are active only in the day, usually after 10 a.m. Also traveling at a lower speed will reduce the number of bugs splattered on your car. There are many types of screens available that can be placed on the front grill of your car to protect the finish and prevent the radiator from becoming clogged. If a large screen can't be used on the front of the car, a smaller screen can be put behind the grill but in front of the Splattered lovebugs should be washed off the car as soon as possible. The lovebugs are easier to remove then and there is less of a chance of damage to the finish of the car. Cars that have been waxed recently are more protected from damage by lovebug residue. Soaking the area with water for several minutes will aid in removal too.

When lovebugs are numerous, or you now you will be travelling at the peak times, you can spread a light film of baby oil or use an aerosol oil spray over the front of the hood. above the windshield, and the grill and the bumper. This practice will make lovebug removal easier.

Yard of the Month

Lake Mary Garden Club has presented its October "Yard of the Month" award to Randall and Vicki Jackson, 200 Ciermont Road. The green and colorful yard features a variety of plants and shrube as well as a vegetable garden and beautiful rose garden.

DEAR BEREAVED PARENTS: Please accept my condolences on the loss of your beloved son. Most people expect to bury their parents eventually. but for a parent to bury a child - of any age - is probably the most painful experience of a parent's life.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago, you printed a letter from a woman who was distressed because a young man, apparently trying to reach his father on Father's Day to bury the hatchet after a longtime dispute. reached this woman's answering machine, but did not leave his own telephone number; so there was no way of letting him know that he had reached the wrong number.

Abby, this unfortunate situation was partly the woman's fault. Her answering machine must have had one of those messages that says. "Sorry, we are not at home" without saying who "we" are.

Abby, please spread the word that all answering messages should begin with: "You have reached the residence of John and Jane Doe at 555-1234." Then, this kind of confusion risk essociated with lead and copper in the water.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain exposure levels. Materials that contain lead have frequently been used in the construction of water supply distribution systems, and plumbing systems in private homes and other buildings. The most commonly found materials include service lines, pipes, bress and bronze fixtures, and solders and fluxes. Lead in these materials can conteminate drinking and bronze fixtures, and solders and fluxes. Lead in these materials can contaminate drinking water at a result of the correction that fakes place when water comes into contact with those materials. Lead can cause a veriety of adverse health effects in humans. At relatively low levels of exposure, these effects may include interference with red blocd cell chemistry, deleys in normal physical and mental development in bables and young children, slight deficits in the attention span, hearing, and learning abilities of children, and alight increases in the blood pressure of some adults. EPA's national primary drinking unter regulation requires all public water systems to aptimize team that exceeds the correction of plumbing materials. Public water systems serving $6.500 pages or fever that have lead consentrations babe its period free team serving $6.500 pages or fever that have lead consentrations below its period treatment. Any level must also undertake a public education program to inform consumers of weys they can reduce their exposure to potentially high levels of lead in drinking water.

can reduce their exposure to petentially high levels of lead in drinking water.

The United States Environmental Profection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that capper is a health concern at certain exposure levels. Capper, a reddled-brown metal, is offen used to plumb residential and commercial structures that are connected to water distribution systems. Capper contaminating drinking water as a corrosion byproduct occurs as the result of the corrosion of copper pipes that remain in contact with water for a prolonged period of time. Copper is an essential nutrient, but at high desses it has been shown to cause stemach and intestinal distress, liver and kidney demage, and anomics. Persons with Wilsen's disease may be at higher risk of health effects due to capper than the general public. EPA's nettends primbry drinking wefer regulation requires all public water systems to install optimal corrosion control to minimize capper cantemination resulting from the corrosion of plumbing f corresion central to minimize capper contemination resulting from the corrector of plumbing materials. Public water systems serving 59,000 people or fewer that have copper concentrations below 1.3 parts per million (ppm) in more than 90 percent of top water samples (the EPA "action level") are not required to install or improve their treatment. Any water system that exceeds the action level must also monitor their source water to determine whether treatment to remove copper in source water is needed.

See specialists about sinus ailment

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a condition I feel is sinus-related. Sometimes I feel I have rhinitis, other days my eyes will feel thick and burn with a dull pain behind them. This affects my appetite. I've also had nosebleeds twice that require packing for control. Is everything related or do I have several separate problems? DEAR READER: Your symptoms could well be due to sinus congestion or infection that is related to swelling and irritation in the nose (rhinitis).

Because I am more suspicious of an allergy than an infection, I suggest that you see an allergist to identify - through blood and skin tests - any factor in your environment that could be linked to the pressure in your sinuses and your nosebleeds. (These symptoms could reduce your appetite by affecting your sense of smell and by causing a mucous post-nasal drip that you may be swallowing.)

You should also be examined by an ear-nose-and-throat specialist who will check you for nasal polyps, which will worsen the situation, and for infection that may require antibiotics.

I suspect that by working together, the two specialists should be able to solve your problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a 10-month-old baby who has had a stroke and is affected on one side. The doctors can't confirm why this happened and I've never heard of it in an infant. Is this common and what factors could cause something like this to happen?

DEAR READER: This is a highly unusual circumstance, a real tragedy because it was unpredictable and is untreatable. Children who suffer strokes frequently have congenitally weak blood vessels in the brain. Such blood vessels may rupture without warning, causing bleeding into the brain, with resulting weakness in one part of the body.

You are in your semi, cruisin' down 1-95, when over the CB radio you recognize your call sign. "Come in Trump Coup.

Backward Finesse nere. Over. Roger, Backward Finesse. Trump Coup here. Over." "Time to solve a bridge problem? Over." "Roger." You throttle back to 65 as the dummy and your hand come over the airwaves.

You are in four spades and West leads the club 10. How do you plan the play? Over."

Delighted that you bid only one spade, not two, because you learned so much more about the defenders' hands, you analyze the situation. It looks as though West has led a singleton. But what would that mean? You can't handle a 4-0 trump break. so assume West has three spades. East must have six TERPRISE ASSN.

hearts, so West has three. That would give West six diamonds. and probably he would have rebid two diamonds. So it looks as though West must be 3-3-5-2.

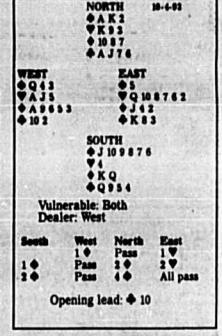

Now the way home is clear.

"East wins with the king and switches to the diamond two. West wins with the ace and returns a diamond. Over."

"After winning, I play a spade to dummy's king. Assuming the queen doesn't drop from East, I ruff a diamond in hand and finesse the spade jack. Over." "Well played, Trump Coup.

This deal was reported by Hungarian Gabor Szots. Since he gave no one credit, I think he was the declarer. Over."

"It was lucky West opened the bidding. 10-41" (C)1993, NEWSPAPER EN-

By Bernice Bede Ocel YOUR BIRTHDAY Oct. 5, 1993

Your probabilities for greater material security are very strong for the year ahead. Your chart shows once you get on track. this will have a long range effect.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your chances for success will be greatly enhanced today if you truly believe in what you're doing. Conversely if you try to sell or promote something that isn't meaningful, it could fall flat. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, selfaddressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York. N.Y. 10163.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There could be some changes occurring today which will work out to your ultimate benefit once all of the factors are exposed. Flow with events, instead of fighting the tide.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec.

21) Partnership arrangements should work out advantageously for you today even though there's a chance someone other than yourself will be calling the shots.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There are indications you might do something impressive today, because once you focus on an objective, you are not likely to settle for second best.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In developments today where you feel you'll have to exert your authority, don't be reluctant to do so. Persons with whom you're involved will welcome your steadying influence.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Don't be dismayed today if you feel you've gotten off to a bad start. Being a stretch runner is your greatest asset and when others begin to tire, you'll be just getting your second wind.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
You're likely to be more effective today dealing with others on a one-to-one basis than you will be in coping with committees or groups. Keep your contacts in-

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Trying to help another today could turn out to be mutually profitable. Arrangements where you are primarily looking out for your own interests might not pay the same dividends. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is a good day to discuss friends you know socially. They could be more receptive than usual and willing to help you in your endeavors. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Efforts you expend on behalf of others today will be duly noted and applauded, even though your reasons for helping wasn't your personal objectives with focused on a claim. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have the ability today to sway groups to your way of thinking, especially if it involves a progressive project or venture that has exciting elements.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Give priority today to situations which are meaningful to you careerwise or financially. Relegate your other interests and activities temporally to the rear
