Triangle Play Might Have Altered History

The fickle ladies (bless them) are to find themselves set in more charitable light in "Martha's Vindication", a Triangle-Fine Arts release, for in the course of the photoplay's action there is set forth an instance of female constancy laudable to an extreme and, what is more remarkable still, constancy between women.

To Martha, played by Norma Talmadge, who figures prominently in plot and title, is given the onerous task of caring for the illegitimate child of her friend Dorothy (Seena Owen), and though an enemy tries to make it appear that the child is hers, she reveals nothing of the true state of affairs until Dorothy herself makes the necessary explanation.

The situation is presented with such naturalness and in such a convincing sequence of cumulative scenes that one is disposed to regret that it could not have been shown to some famous women of history and, through force of splendid example, prevented wars that changed the map of Europe.

How much would have been saved Britain, for instance, had this film been shown to Mary, Queen of Scots, before the latter lost her head and started such a lot of trouble!

This play will be seen at the Lyric on Wednesday.

one of the most powerful and most human dramas that has ever emerged from the Fox studios. It is full of dramatic situations that grip and hold the soul of the spectator, and its climax, which, by the way, teaches a great moral lesson, is brought out with the compelling thundering, irresistible force of the steam hammer. Clergymen and educators who have seen "Her Mother's Secret" in script form declare that its potency for good is greater than that of "The Old Homestead".

Mr. Kellard appears first as Seth Cartwright Sr. and later as Seth Cartwright Jr. He is shown from the self-confident, heart-broken father to the blasphemous, plainly ignorant, and finally as a pathetic, broken-down, old man. The latter part of the picture is a masterpiece of dramatic art. The story is a gripping one, and the acting is of the highest order. After a lapse of many years, young Cartwright returns from school Dissipation has ruined his health and his doctor sends him to the seashore where he meets Bernice and her daughter, Lorna (Dorothy Green). Ignorant of his relationship to Lorna, he falls violently in love with her.

In the next scenes the drama is hurled through to its terrific climax. Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne and Dopy Chaplin will be in evidence at the Star July 4th.

"A Million A Minute," with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in the stellar roles, will be the next Metro wonderplay presented at the Star Theatre on Tuesday, July 4th.

In this production both Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne are seen at their best, as they are provided with roles that call for exceptional acting covering many big scenes and situations. The feature was produced by the Quality Pictures Corporation under the direction of John W. Noble, and promises to be one of the best productions in which this stellar couple have appeared. Most of the story is laid in New York and Paris, and there are interesting glimpses of suburban life, on shipboard and in the cafes and restaurants of the two great metropolitan centers.

Dopy in "Woe" in two acts will be shown in addition to the above.

Monte Carlo, Riviera, Venice, Filmed by Ince

Two more from the Triangle Kay Bee studio at Inceville comprise the new release "The Moral Fabric," a picture of unusual interest and high merit.

Frank Mills, the Triangle Kay Bee Star, who is appearing in "The Moral Fabric".

At the Lyric Theatre Friday.

It appears that in the course of filming "The Moral Fabric" Thomas H. Ince, the producer, found himself obliged to depict the interior of the palace that at Monte Carlo, the Riviera, and Venice. He has done this with a character of the picture called for unusual business and a job about accomplishing results that could challenge criticism. Under his direction there presently rose in the studio an interior that would have deceived the most cosmopolitan gambler. This was the work at Monte Carlo.

The Palisades Club was more difficult. It was finally decided to build it on one of the big bluffs of the Inceville acreage, so that the windows present a view of the Pacific ocean where it rounds into Santa Monica Bay, forming a perspective that tourists say is an exact duplicate of the view of the Riviera. The cafe was furnished with characteristic Ince attention to detail and disregard of expense.

The "Venice of America," not far from Inceville, provided the Grand Canal, with the bridge of the Rialto already in place. This picture will be shown at the Lyric Theatre on Friday.

Victor Moore, a Famous Comedian Wonderful in "Chimmie Fadden out West." At the Star, Thursday.

In bringing before the photoplay public again, the popular American comedian, Victor Moore, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company presents the two of a series of comedy photoplays based on the character of E. S. Townsend's "Chimmie Fadden." Mr. Moore's third Paramount vehicle is "Chimmie Fadden Out West," said to be a fitting successor to the very entertaining production, "Snobs" and "Chimmie Fadden."

Chimmie Fadden is a character of American literature likely to live as long as Tom Sawyer or other famous youths of fiction. Chimmie is a bred. He is a product of the bowery, with all the instincts and mannerisms of the city ragamuffin, whose vision of life is limited to skyscrapers and some pavements.

What happens to Chimmie when he goes west, becomes a subject of interest and the simple life is most interestingly told in "Chimmie Fadden Out West."

Mr. Cecil B. DeMille, Director General of the Lasky Feature Play Company is the producer of "Chimmie Fadden Out West."

Lesson of Life in New Triangle Play

"Martha's Vindication," a new five reel Triangle-Fine Arts release, contains a warm welcome and rare variation of the much used theme of the betrayed and deserted girl. Mrs. Fiske appeared some seasons ago in a Norwegian drama having the same variation, playing the part of a young woman whose fisherman lover is drowned before he can marry her, the betrothal being broken by a disaster.

Although the plot is somewhat simple, the picture is so well acted that it is a most interesting study of their lovers to wed.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the picture is the scene in which the young man, who is a fisherman, is shown in a scene of great interest and high merit.

"Martha's Vindication" will be shown at the Lyric on Wednesday.

Pauline Frederick Supreme in "The World's Great Snare"

Pauline Frederick, whose splendid dramatic work in the picture "The World's Great Snare" has won her the reputation of being the most beautiful woman in the world.

The picture is a masterpiece of dramatic art. The story is a gripping one, and the acting is of the highest order.

In an English opera, a little old lady, her son, Bryan, is at her side waiting for her to breathe her last. She calls him to her and imparts to him the startling information that he is not her son, (telling him how, as a baby, who was left on the doorstep of the Earl of Westmore by the Earl's abused wife. Her mother, the butler, had posed the infant up and brought him to his mother. A mad old woman, the identity of the child to the butler, and Huntley had been ordered to give the baby to some woman. The old lady confesses she is Huntley's mother and that her son has the proofs of Bryan's birth.

Huntley lives in San Francisco with his wife, who loathes him for his drunken temper and cruel treatment. She finds the Earl's marriage certificate among her husband's papers, but it is snatched from her before she can grasp its meaning. Myra, Huntley's wife, is tired of his brutality and asks her former employer and proprietor of the Montana Cafe for her old position as dancer and singer. Meantime her husband goes to the home of Amies Rutten, a successful gambler and a creditor of his, and endeavors to settle a portion of his debt with the valuable papers proving Bryan's right to the Earldom. Rutten accepts these on condition that Huntley leave his wife. With Miss Frederick's exceptional acting the story is brought to its wonderful close.

Laura Jean Libbey's TALKS ON HEART TOPICS

A MISSENT YEAR.

The storm had not yet passed. And we were not yet in the bay. Over the years we have seen...

The plants of a young man who is unfortunately disturbed by conflicting doubts that confront matrimony.

What economy he must practice with this project in view, which he will carry out to the letter, she must never know. Many nights when he was sacrificing the pleasure of her company by being hard at extra work, the thought of how lonely she must be crossed his mind regretfully. What if some day she were changed to cross her threshold and prefer his escort to her for some amusement she had set her heart upon attending. Could he decide that she ought to remain at home, turn her face toward the chair now empty, which he usually sat in by her side, that she would be sensible, though disappointed, and smile, as if she never cared a snap to go?

With unmarried girls, as well as married ones, popular pleasures now and then are the sum and life of their existence. One may be engaged, or wed to the best man the whole wide world holds, yet her happiness will be increased tenfold if she has some good times and happy meetings mingling with those whom she knows will be among the merry-goers. After a betrothed girl, having a little misunderstanding with a very exacting lover, when he pronounces the girl a flirt for going to some place of amusement with a male cousin, or a dear girl-cousin and her escort, if it is impossible for her betrothed lover to take her, feels that her one gleam of joy is merged into watching and waiting for his coming, usually on Sunday evenings. They walk out, arm in arm, and hear the quiet church bells ring, return home, after listening to an hour's sermon on duty.

No girl who has plighted her troth need fear to be thought less loyal, loving, true or dutiful, if some one time or so she passes an hour rightly among friends, when they have all sought a comfort to her and she a ray of sunshine in their midst. Engaged couples who cannot be together often should consider that it is just to enquire whether, once in a while, the one at home should have recreation in the watch-care of some trusty company.

Never would that privilege lessen the love of a faithful heart. Always endeavor to make your sweetheart feel assured of having your perfect trust. He who has misgivings and who snaps at domestic meanings when his stay-at-home girl hints that everybody is going on some occasion and she might go, too, if it was all right in his opinion, is the cause of her dissatisfaction over their mispent year. The glamor and romance of courting she finds is not for her. The weeks which invariably slip by quickly, as if on wings, to her may be long and lonely. She loves him, and turns her thoughts to the time of their merry-making which is coming, and the wedding bells which the sequel tells. All is forgotten except the memory of words he says and writes to her when busy: "Though lost to sight, you are still in this heart and memory dear."

IDEAL HELPERS.

Love seeketh not itself to please Nor for itself hath any care, But for another gives its ease, And builds a Heaven in Hades' despair.

Many young women who build at castles of what they would consider a happy married life for a woman do not exactly know what they should have in a heartmate or understand fully what varied experiences a loving household unfolds.

If they marry young they do not stop to consider the serious step. There are those who marry because they want a good home provided for them, a nice rig to drive about, a maid to do the housework. In short, a lazy life for them. Every man should be certain that the woman he leads to the altar loved him for himself alone, even if wealth or the little bank savings should take wings.

When a couple is poor, we find that they welcome the coming of a number of children. Deplorable this may appear to be to rich outsiders who have plenty of this world's goods and few if any little ones. But the day comes when the miserable overtaxed family sees sunshine and a beautiful reward from the number of brothers and sisters who have come to the front and are comfortable supporters in the home where once the wolf could hardly be kept from the door.

Parents realize that the best part of their children's lives is yet to come. As they see them enter into young manhood and womanhood they proud to own that they are possessed of great energy and youthful strength and from this time on they know that each will go forth to do the best of his or her life.

Nothing can spur on children to be so great as to perceive that thoughtful parental days when they happened to be and were shy and in a post-prandial room. They have no will to do outside relatives who would only lead them to a helping hand. This is the foundation of their ambition, the basis of their future success.

It is when they drift apart, as alone into the public world or marry and get together homes of their own, that the loss of the large family of grown children proves strongest. There are always some who are unfortunate in making their way. Failures and friends who have turned from them in adversity have made them discouraged and scarce able to hold their heads up. Then come the uplifting brothers and sisters, their hearts filled with pity, their hands and pockets methodically distributed to give them a helping hand to get up and start afresh.

Many of the saddest discouragements which human beings have to face are steps from which they cannot recover themselves. They grow out that the one wish of their lives would have been to have had brothers and sisters who would have comforted them in their pitfalls and troubles were theirs. Instead of looking back over the years of heartache that large numbers of us have thought and we should realize that the future of each child may bring a loving reward, proving an ideal help when the shadow days are outlived by sunshine.

The Man Who Wins.

No two men can take a thing just alike, and very few can sit down quietly when they have lost a fall in life's gamble and say "Well, here I am, beaten, no doubt, this time; by my own fault, too. Now, take a good look at me, my good friends, as I know you all want to do and say your say, for I am getting up again directly and having another turn of it."—Thomas Hughes.

First Cartoon.

The first cartoons printed in America were drawn by George Horace Lorimer's predecessor as editor of the Saturday Evening Post, Ben Franklin pictured the disunited colonies as a man with his arms and legs cut off. Again he represented them as a bundle of sticks—unbreakable when bound together, but easily broken when taken separately.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ventilation of Engine Rooms.

For ventilating engine rooms, large electric fans are employed. So, too, the coal bunkers have to be ventilated, owing to the gas which the coal gives off. This gas when mixed with air forms an explosive; so, in order to prevent the possibility of injury to men or ship, a supply and an exhaust pipe are fitted in such a manner as to cause a current of air.

Fertilizers Give Protection.

Potash fertilizers seem to give protection from frost. A French market gardener has found that plants in a field strongly fertilized with kainit suffered little from a series of heavy frosts, those on a lightly fertilized area were more injured, and those on unfertilized land were much damaged.

IN CHANGE AND STAMBOUL

Herbert L. Luman, of Jacksonville, has returned from a business trip through the north. He reports that the business section of the city is in a most prosperous manner. He has received in a most courteous manner, and has received many favorable compliments on our county and city and has been assured by a hundred people that they will stop over in Sanford this winter and in every case seem to regret that they had not heard about our county and city before. They seem to think it very strange that they have not heard more about our section of country. I have given them to understand it isn't the last they will hear of us. I have given them the truth and they seem to take a great deal more interest in it than I really expected. The photos are what make them set up and take notice.

ANGLOFRENCH RECOUNT SECOND MAKE GAINS CHOICE BY ASSAULTS VOTES BEGIN

SECOND LINE OF TRENCHES TAKEN AFTER BOMBARDMENT

London, July 7. Having captured the whole of the German second line defenses south of the Somme from the river to Belloy, the French have resumed operations north of the river, and have cleared the bank almost to Clercy. The British still are heavily engaged from Hargreave to Commercourt. They have maintained their gains and extended them some.

Evidence of the deadly execution of the artillery was found in the trenches taken. In some, 80 per cent of the defenders were killed. British losses were heavy. They are heavy where the machine guns were undamaged by bombardment, in other places they were slight.

British observers believe that German resistance has been weakened by the heavy casualties if the bombardment and summer attacks. The taking of sixteen thousand prisoners and a great quantity of war material.

RECOUNT SECOND CHOICE VOTES BEGIN

KNOTT'S ATTORNEY THINKS RECOUNT WILL ELECT HIS CLIENT

Recount of the second choice vote for Governor in many precincts in three counties of the state, Madison, Suwannee and Hamilton counties, has begun according to T. B. Adams, of counsel for W. V. Knott. Write of mandamus, authorizing a recount of these precincts were made returnable and Mr. Adams is confident that the recount will proceed without delay.

A previous statement issued by counsel for Mr. Knott who is contesting the nomination of Sidney J. Catts of DeFuniak Springs, declared that in the three counties of Madison, Hamilton and Suwannee enough discrepancies and inaccuracies to overcome the 260 majority of Mr. Catts were expected to be discovered. Just how long it will be necessary to count the vote is not known, but it is probable that it will not be more than a week.

MEXICAN NOTE MEANS PEACE ON BORDER

WASHINGTON BREATHES EASIER AS WHITE DOVE ALIGHTS

Washington, July 7. The reply of the de la Cuesta government of Mexico to the demands of the United States conciliatory in terms and giving assurance of a desire to reach a friendly adjustment of the difficulties between the two countries was delivered to the State Department by a Mexican embassy attaché.

As soon as a translation of the Spanish text could be made it was sent to the White House. Until Secretary Lansing and President Wilson have had an opportunity to confer there will be no formal comment, but some state department officials did not attempt to conceal the fact that they considered the note most satisfactory and likely to remove all danger of war.

The note gives notice that Mexico has accepted in principle Latin-American offers of mediation and awaits only a final decision that the United States is disposed to accept mediation. It also states that the United States will not attempt to conceal the fact that they considered the note most satisfactory and likely to remove all danger of war.

THE BAPTIST TEMPLE NOTES

SUNDAY SCHOOL AT THE TEMPLE

The Sunday school at the Temple Sunday morning was very largely attended and it is believed that there were more 100 per cent average cards made for the month of June than for any of the previous summer months. Mr. Eugene Reid, the supply pastor was present and made a short talk for the school, after which A. P. Aldridge was called to the rostrum and made quite a talk on the work that Dr. Hymen had done for the Sunday school and suggested that the school give a rising vote of thanks to Dr. Hymen. Miss Clara Milroy was suggested as the one to convey to Dr. Hymen who is away on vacation the many kind words and thoughts that his parishes have for him.

made them lose a nice bunch of money on the job.

Thus one thousand dollars went from Sanford and the Green Book is still here ready for distribution. It means nothing to a prospective homebuyer. It has a small description of Sanford on the front page and the balance of the book is taken up with advertising that will not bring results to the merchants or to the city in any manner in one thousand years. The solicitor had no way of distributing the books and did not even care whether they ever reached the hands of people outside of Sanford or not. He was not worrying about that. He wanted the easy money and he obtained it and fitted to pastures new where the suckers were biting good but it is doubtful if he ever strikes a town quite as soft as Sanford again.

ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS OF GOOD MONEY GONE NEVER TO RETURN IN ANY MANNER AND TEN DOLLARS LEFT HERE.

It is not surprising that many business firms who never advertise in the newspapers took space in this so-called advertising booklet. We expect that. But that sensible business men who realize the value of real advertising should lend themselves to such a scheme is beyond belief.

Glance through the booklet and see their names.

Look over the Green Book and see where the green comes in.

HEART TOPICS

EXPERIENCE OF THE FICKLE BEAU

THE FICKLE BEAU.

In the dark, in the dew,

All my heart cries out to you

As I stand in your feet

Sweet indeed but not too sweet

Wondering will you hear it beat

"Whom first we love we seldom love" So sings a poet who knows something of love and the ways of men. A maid every girl who has had many beaux knows by experience that not one out of half a dozen young men who were eager to make love to her was to be dependent on. If she did pick out one she thought was sincerely in earnest, inviting him to call on her she found to her chagrin that he was of the disappointing kind—that he never came when he said he would.

These girls who have been disappointed by the men who have led them to believe that when they have made an appointment it was sure to be kept have not the blindest conception of what the average girls really think of them for their lack of consideration. Did this particular fact ever occur to us that over half of the young women who have found their beaux ideals as they really supposed, will make all sorts of excuses for their having broken their engagements repeatedly? Scarcely ever will they come out openly and lay the blame for their hours of waiting alone in the parlor until their going upstairs in dejection to just where it belongs. Other young women and girls might consider it a disgrace to be so dependent on a man, but they do not. It takes a young woman's staunchest courage to face her girl friends as well as gentlemen callers and admit that the beau who had won her fancy from all others had suddenly turned a cold shoulder to her for some trifle, perhaps young or more attractive maiden, whose charms he valued more than hers.

When that first little spark of interest crosses the border of the young woman's mind, she is usually a little pleasing, that he is already trying to change his evenings of visiting, making them two or three weeks apart, before she becomes more attached to him, she should try to as-ertain if he has other engagements.

It isn't fair to her if he does her the injustice of concealing the fact that he is a free bird, roving from bed to flower as his fickle fancy leads.

A young woman is usually afraid to make an enemy of a one-time beau, if she discourages his calling on her after his disappointments, realizing for the reason that he knows too many of her little confidential discuses of some of her girl friends who might welcome him to their homes, finding an opportunity to get even.

Really, no one can avenge the steps which the girl will take toward the beau who is not to be depended on.

She must judge for herself as to her pitiful waste of time, let alone affectionate women whether it will be a case of her being left heartless when one is most needed. Half the women have been led astray by wrong advice as to Cupid. They should have a heart-to-heart talk together, as to mating engagements, keeping or breaking them as their own sweet will prompted them.

Items of Interest for the Man Behind the Plow

Fodder Pulling Lowers Corn Yield

The man who pulls fodder is the one who needs the greatest yield of grain. Yet by pulling fodder he is cutting the yield of grain at least 25 per cent. Now what is the use in planting corn, cultivating it and doing everything to produce a big yield and then curtailing the yield by pulling the blades off before the ear is mature? It looks like trouble for nothing and it is.

Fodder pulling is one of the heritages of a mistaken age. Some time ago some farmer possessed a magnificent tract sought to make a dairy pasture plant of his corn. The practice was born then and it has been continued. Every year he pulls his fodder and the result is a shorter, less nutritious crop. It only contributes to a smaller yield of grain and a smaller yield of silage. The Florida Experiment Station has compiled data on fodder pulling and the statistics are as follows: In a field of corn the yield of grain was 40 per cent higher when the blades were left on the plant than when they were pulled. The yield of silage was 25 per cent higher when the blades were left on the plant than when they were pulled.

The yield of silage was 25 per cent higher when the blades were left on the plant than when they were pulled. The yield of grain was 40 per cent higher when the blades were left on the plant than when they were pulled.

haul a ton of any of the hays that can be grown in the state. And even when the fodder is harvested it is very low in feeding value. It is not as good as crab grass hay, which is comparatively low.

Silo Saves Feed

The silo is the most economical place for feed, and silage is probably the most economical form in which to store feed. John M. Scott, animal industrialist to the University of Florida Experiment Station, compares the advantages of silage as follows:

Silage conserves the nutrients of the crop. There is no loss of moisture or nutrients. About 60 per cent of the feeding value of a crop is lost when it is cut and dried. When silage is made, the entire 100 per cent of the feeding value is preserved. It is a more economical form of feed than any other. It is a more economical form of feed than any other.

It is a more economical form of feed than any other. It is a more economical form of feed than any other.

It is a more economical form of feed than any other. It is a more economical form of feed than any other.

Animals demand a succulent food to keep them in best condition. This is not hard to supply in summer, but during winter or spring, grasses or other green foods are not always available. The silo is the only means of keeping summer feeds in succulent condition until they are needed most.

Plant Cowpeas In July

There is no better hay than good cowpea hay. Folks hear a great deal about alfalfa these days, but if cowpeas are cut at the right stage and properly handled, they make just as good hay as alfalfa.

The greatest trouble with cowpea hay is curing. This is especially true in Florida during the rainy season, and it is during the rainy season that the Florida farmer wants to raise cowpeas. But if they are sown during July, they will mature in the fall when there is not so much danger of rain. In fact, the rainy season will have passed.

John M. Scott, animal industrialist to the University of Florida Experiment Station, recommends that cowpeas be planted in rows 4 feet apart. This will allow the farmer to use a tractor for weeding and cultivating. The rows should be 4 feet apart.

of the contact insecticides. Ammoniacal solution of copper carbonate may be used if bordeaux is not available, but an additional spraying may be required if the ammoniacal solution is used.

The same spraying will also help to control melanose in those groves where pruning has not been done.

Spray for Melanose

Melanose in Citrus groves may be controlled in two ways. The better is by pruning out the dead wood which harbors the disease. But in some cases pruning has been delayed or could not be done. In such cases H. E. Stevens, plant pathologist to the University of Florida Experiment station recommends spraying. The same sprays can be given for scab with bordeaux mixture or ammoniacal solution of copper carbonate will tend to control melanose.

BIG LOSS BY STORM AT MOBILE

PROPERTY LOSS SAID TO REACH THE MILLION MARK

Atlanta, Ga., July 10. Reports reaching here tonight from what were believed to be authentic sources at Mobile, Ala., made the loss from destruction of property, including the loss of property, estimated to be in excess of $1,000,000. The loss was estimated to be in excess of $1,000,000. The loss was estimated to be in excess of $1,000,000.

Much of the merchandise was involved before the water reached it, volunteer rescue parties being formed. It also was said that city authorities did not count on the possibility of the water reaching the city.

Service was resumed today on four trolley lines and electric lights were turned on last night in the business district. It was said few lights were available in the residential sections tonight.

Macon, Ga., July 10. Another serious flood situation has developed at Columbus tonight, where the Chattahoochee river is not only threatening two big dams, but is threatening to flood the city of Columbus. Streets of Girard, Ala., are already under water, according to a direct report to this city.

A rise of two feet in the Chattahoochee river will put the Columbus gas plant out of commission. A five-foot rise will put the Chattahoochee river into the streets of Columbus and there is no forecast tonight but the water may not go to that point.

Reports from West Point at 5 o'clock indicate that a big swell is due to pass Columbus by 6 o'clock Monday morning.

At one point at Columbus the Chattahoochee river is half a mile wide and has overflowed through a creek valley into Girard, Ala., and that town is divided by a rushing torrent of water.

More than a score of negro cabins in Girard are already half submerged. The people are now moving out.

MADE UNDER-SEA TRIP TO AMERICA SAFE

UNDERSEA BOAT FROM GERMANY LOADED WITH GOODS

Baltimore, Md., July 10.—The world's first submarine merchantman, the German underwater liner Deutschland, anchored below Baltimore tonight after coming safely across the Atlantic, passing the allied blockading squadrons and eluding enemy cruisers watching for her off the American coast.

Sixteen days out from Bremerhaven to Baltimore, the submarine reached the Virginia capes at 1:45 o'clock this morning, passing in the surface, covered by darkness which settled over the entrance of the bay with the setting of the moon.

Three hours later the big submarine was seen by the German army.

Reporting his vessel as a merchantman, the submarine was allowed to pass.

Regarding his vessel as a merchantman, the submarine was allowed to pass.

Little was known here tonight about what happened during the epoch-making cruise, which in a small measure at least, breaks the blockade on German trade with the rest of the world.

According to the accounts reaching here, the underwater liner's superstructure was standing fifteen feet above the water when she came in. Until daylight she showed no flag, but the German merchant ensign was raised at sun up.

The boat is consigned to A. Schumacher & Company, local agents of the North German Lloyd Line, and her cargo to the Eastern Forwarding Company, said to have been organized within the past few weeks especially to handle the boats of underwater liners.

Miss Virginia Brady has arrived home after a pleasant visit to friends at Orlando. She also spent a week with a house party at Wekiwa Springs. Oliver Murrell of this city was also a member of the party and arrived home last week.

FLORIDA FIRST CAMPAIGN DERIVE BENEFITS

Orlando, Fla., July 10th.—This city was the first to have in the hands of the treasurer of the "Florida First" Commission its share of the money for the 1916-17 advertising campaign for the state. Explaining why Orlando was so prompt and why there is such enthusiasm here for the work of the Commission, Fred M. Allen, secretary of the board of trade, said today:

"Florida First advertising has proven itself so far as Orlando is concerned, and no city in the state is now a more staunch advocate of the plan. When a man unexpectedly finds a way to purchase a better article than he has ever been able to buy before and at a fraction of whatever he has previously paid, he knows he has found a good thing. Orlando has gained more from 'Florida First' advertising than from any other form attempted before and for a fraction of the cost. Hence Orlando considers the 'Florida First' advertising the best thing that has happened since the war.

BIG RANCH FOR CATTLE IN VOLUSIA

SANFORD MAN BELIEVES IN THE FUTURE FOR STOCK

The raising of fine stock in Florida is becoming one of the greatest assets of the state and many large ranches are being put in shape for the cattle business. It is estimated that the state is producing more cattle than any other state in the south and the raising of fine stock is becoming one of the greatest assets of the state.

Mr. Hayden, who recently through J. H. Tomlinson and J. N. Whitner purchased a large ranch in Volusia county, as the following from the Jacksonville Metropolitan would indicate:

The purchase of two blooded bulls, which cost $1,000 each has been effected for the ranch and other blooded stock will be bought. Mr. Hayden plans to raise only blooded, tick free stock, and to this end will install dipping vats and all modern improvements and accessories. Included will be a number of large sheds for the storage of forage.

How Mr. Hayden came to become interested in cattle raising in Florida was told yesterday afternoon by Mr. Tomlinson. Mr. Hayden attended the South Florida Fair and the Cattle Conference in Tampa last winter, and at the latter heard Mr. Whitner speak on the grasses of Florida and the potentialities of the cattle industry. He requested Mr. Whitner to look for a suitable tract for his account, and Mr. Whitner and Mr. Tomlinson, after investigations recommended the purchase of the piece which was recently sold.

Mr. Hayden intends breeding only thoroughbred cattle, and already has spent considerable money on his property.
