

AN AFRICAN TITBIT.

Hippopotamus Meat Has a Strong Odor and Flavor of Musk. To the African traveler the hippopotamus is a species of game particularly desirable, for its ivory and its hide are both valuable, while the not inconsiderable danger involved in its pursuit provides the delicious emotion without which every kind of hunting is tame and insipid. Moreover, the obligation under which the leader of the expedition lies to feed his servants and carriers adequately makes one of these enormous beasts, twelve feet long or so and disproportionately wide, a perfect godsend. Not only does the hippopotamus furnish a formidable amount of meat, but that meat has the inestimable merit of keeping fresh much longer than any other, principally owing to the fact that principles seem to have an insurmountable horror of it. I must admit that for a long time I thoroughly sympathized with the flies. Alive, the hippopotamus has a peculiar odor, somewhat resembling musk, which discloses the presence of the animal from afar when he happens to be to windward of one. In the flesh of the dead animal this odor—or the taste of it, rather—persists and is much appreciated by the natives, though for signs take a long time to get accustomed to it; some are never able to support it.—Wide World Magazine.

Fasting in Japan.

From time out of mind, says the Japan Times, certain devotees of that country have visited a celebrated temple at Narita twice a year to perform the pious act of fasting within its sacred precincts. A "fasting hall" has been specially erected for their accommodation. Observations kept on 226 men and 82 women who fasted showed that of the whole number 59 fasted less than a week, 174 fasted one week, 10 continued fasting two weeks, 14 fasted three weeks, and one went without food for five weeks. Inquiry as to the motives of the fasters showed that 109 men and 25 women desired to rise in the world, 13 men and 2 women wanted to increase their business profits, 10 men prayed for the safety of their families, 13 men and 4 women sought cures of diseases and 10 men wanted general good luck. Only three persons, two men and one woman, fasted in gratitude for the fulfillment of former prayers. "It need scarcely be said," remarks the Japan Times, "that the period of their fasting was the shortest."

Snowball Showers.

More than one explorer in cold climates has noted the curious phenomenon of a "snowball shower." The balls, it is true, are not very big, the average being about the size of a hen's egg, but they are true snowballs for all that—compressed globes of snow, not little lumps of ice or hail. A fall of the kind occurred in north London in March, 1850, and at the time it was observed that the balls seemed five times as dense and compressed as ordinary snow and in no way to be told from the usual handmade missiles. They had fallen during the night and were strewn many layers thick over a very large area. No cause—except a doubtful electrical one—can be ascribed for this strange phenomenon, and mountaineers are apt to discredit the stories of snowball showers told them by the old guides till suddenly in the midst of an ordinary storm they find themselves assailed as though by myriads of mischievous schoolboys.—London Standard.

A Patient Judge.

A western judge, sitting in chambers, seeing from the piles of papers in the lawyers' hands that the first case was likely to be hotly contested, asked, "What is the amount in question?" "Two dollars," said the plaintiff's counsel. "I'll pay it," said the judge, handing over the money. "Call the next case."

He had not the patience of Sir William Grant, who, after listening for two days to the arguments of counsel as to the construction of a certain act, quietly observed when they had done, "That act has been repealed."—Argonaut.

Up Against a Hard One.

The great deliver into the secrets of nature who had accumulated a fortune and retired from active business in order to be able to give his whole time to study and experiments was observed to be cogitating profoundly.

"What are you giving your mind to now?" inquired one of his laboratory assistants.

"I am merely wondering," he answered, "what becomes of all the corks."—Chicago Tribune.

The Other Way.

"So you refuse me admittance," complained the newly arrived spirit to St. Peter. "You turn me off into the cold." "No," replied the old saint, "into the hot."—Boston Transcript.

A Suspicion.

She—How is it your sister did not sing tonight? He—Oh, the doctor has forbidden her. He says she must not sing for six months. She—Does he live near her?

An error gracefully acknowledged is a victory won.—Gasconne.

The Irritating Mississippi.

The Mississippi is the greatest irritant in the United States. Its sickliness, conscious power and taunting eddies bring oaths to the lips of the most respectable and law abiding residents along its lower course. The greatest admirers of the river, the people who sing its praises with the most emphasis, are the ones who go off on a tangent of temper quickest when they find a new caving of river bank headed toward the newest and most expensive levee, built to protect great plantations, while just across the stream rise worthless bluffs and useless sand bars. Talk to a Mississippi river man—shanty boater, pilot, raftman, plantation owner or city merchant—and he will brag about the river wonders. Its bigness charms him and makes him feel large and elated. Bring him around to his own experiences with it, and suddenly a shade of resentment crosses his face as he recalls a shanty boat wrecked by a cyclone, a steamboat snagged, a raft torn up in some bend, a plantation undercut and washed away or a season's trade spoiled by an overflow and crevasse.

"We love the river, damn it!" is a literal expression.—R. S. Spears in Atlantic.

A Queer Test.

The grocer said to the applicant: "Your references are good. Show me your style of weighing out five pounds of sugar. There's the scale."

The applicant wreathed his face in the amiable smile all salesmen wear and weighed out the sugar with dispatch and accuracy. He put on too little sugar at first; he added gently a full half pound before the scale balanced.

"You'll do," said the grocer. "You understand the scale trick. It is plain that you learned your trade in the thorough old school way."

"Yes, sir," the other answered. "I learned in the country, and almost my first lesson was that in weighing. You must add, add, add, till the beam tips, because all that adding pleases the customer—seems to him almost like a gift. But if, on the contrary, you subtract from the quantity on the scale the customer is affected in the opposite way—you seem to be robbing him. He goes away convinced that you are a stingy cheat."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Beaten at His Own Game.

"A few days since," relates a solicitor, "as I was sitting with my friend D. in his office a man came in and said:—"

"Mr. W., the livery stable keeper tricked me shamefully yesterday, and I want to be even with him."

"State your case," said D.

"I asked him how much he'd charge me for a horse to go to Richmond. He said half a sovereign. I took the horse, and when I came back he said he wanted another half sovereign for coming back and made me pay it."

"D. gave his client some legal advice, which he immediately acted upon, as follows: He went to the livery stable keeper and said, 'How much will you charge for a horse to Windsor?'

"The man replied, 'A sovereign.' 'Client accordingly went to Windsor, came back by rail and went to the livery stable keeper, saying:—'"

"'Here is your money,' paying him a sovereign. 'Where is my horse?' said W. 'He's at Windsor,' answered the client. 'I hired him only to go to Windsor.'"—Pearson's Weekly.

One Recompense.

"That sheet iron clothing a chap had to wear during the middle ages must have been far from comfortable."

"Still, a fellow could have a permanent crease put in his trousers."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Not a Bark.

"Then you don't have any dog-watch on this craft?" inquired the anxious passenger, according to a writer in Life.

"No. This is a catboat."

NOVELTY WORKS FOR SANFORD

Well Equipped Plant Will Soon Be In Operation

Sanford's money has long enriched the coffers of business men in different cities in certain lines of trade, but little by little the industries are seeking Sanford, and money that was used to seek other channels is now being diverted to the home product. The latest industry, and one that has long been needed, is a novelty works, and in a few weeks the Pope Contracting Co. of this city will have a large building erected and machinery installed fully capable of supplying everything needed in builders' supplies.

The building will be located on their property at the corner of French avenue and Commercial street, where they are now manufacturing pressed brick and artificial stone.

Mr. Hammond has been in Jacksonville several days this week, where he negotiated for the best machinery and equipment on the market, and when this is installed another large industry will be added to Sanford's constantly increasing list.

A complete novelty works will be erected for the manufacture of colonial columns, newells, brackets, scrolls, screen doors, mantels and all builders' supplies.

Gospel Boat For St. Johns River.

R. W. Parrott and wife, who are by this time known to practically everyone in Sanford on account of the gospel work they have been doing, have not only the plan but a part of the material on the ground for building a boat which will be fitted comfortably into living quarters for himself and family, that they may reach with the Gospel even the smallest and most remote settler on the river. The boat will be supplied with a five-horse-power engine with which to move from point to point.

Mr. and Mrs. Parrot, while having a membership in the M. E. Church, are decidedly union workers. Their first consideration is to get people to accept Christ, and then become connected with whatever organization they feel will enable them to serve Him best.

They have been doing missionary work for the past ten years in different states, but during the past two and a half years in the State of Florida. Their work is such as should commend itself to all, as they bring people in touch with the gospel, who will not trouble to go to a place of worship until a desire for these things is created in their hearts, then they in many cases become connected with some church.

Their work will continue to be as much in the interest of one as the other, consequently they feel free to call upon all to help them with the expense of fitting out their boat which will consider Sanford its home port. The expense of material, etc., will amount to about $150.

Solicitation will be made by Mr. and Mrs. Parrott.

New Grocery Store

L. P. McCuller has opened his new grocery store in the room next to L. R. Phillips' drug store on First street, and is ready to receive his friends and patrons, having installed a first-class stock of fancy and staple groceries. Mr. McCuller is no stranger to the people of Sanford, having been with the Sanford Grocery Co. for the past eight years.

Before coming to Sanford he was with T. C. Darby in Apopka for five years and in Lakeland for three years, and is an experienced man in the grocery business. Coupled with this, Mr. McCuller is endowed with a most jovial disposition and numbers his friends by his acquaintances.

THE BAND MINSTREL

Home Boys Give Good Show Tuesday Night

SANFORD HAS GOOD TALENT

Large Crowd in Attendance and the Boys Accorded Warm Ovation—Minstrel a Big Success

A large crowd was in attendance at the opera house Tuesday night to witness the minstrel given by home talent for the benefit of the band. In fact, the attendance was so large that the house was taxed to its utmost seating capacity.

The minstrel was a revelation to the people of Sanford, as few had any idea such excellent home talent could be found here, and such credit to the boys and lovely young ladies who constituted the cast, for the high character of the program.

The house began to fill rapidly about 8 o'clock, and at 8:30 the curtain arose showing the entire company in grand ensemble, and an overture from the Sanford Band was the first number on the program. The scenery, though not elaborate, was very pretty, and the costumes appropriate. The boys were grouped on the stage in crescent form, and slightly elevated above them were six pretty young ladies all attired in pink—truly a lovely and pleasing picture.

J. Albert Davis made an ideal interlocutor, officiating in that difficult capacity with much grace and dignity, introducing each and every number on the program in unexcelled manner.

Walter Beatty rendered in fine style the pretty ballad entitled "Only a Bunch of Violets," and was the recipient of a very complimentary encore. Mr. Beatty has a good voice and his selections are always appreciated by the Sanford audience.

Homer Hurt, in pleasing manner, sang a coon song entitled, "You're in the Right Church but in the Wrong Pew," and as an end man got off some very good jokes. The ballad, "As Long As the World Rolls On," by Mr. Phillips, was sung with much credit and listened to attentively by an appreciative audience.

Eugene Rommilt (pop man) delighted the audience with a funny song entitled, "Dat Friend of Mine," and his rendition was appreciated so much that he was required to "do" the chorus several times. Jeff Carruthers (while not participating in the song fest) convulsed the audience with laughter with some very "original" jokes of a local nature, and was ably assisted in this laudable work by Will Stringfellow, who also had several good jokes.

Frank Grayam favored the audience with a pleasing vocal selection, while L. E. Whitehouse was the star soloist of the evening. This young gentleman possesses a splendid voice and his vocal work was a complete surprise to everyone.

Messrs. Geo. Adams and Warren Presson were certainly the premiere comedians on the program, and their work as end men could not have been excelled in professional circles. Mr. Presson sang in attractive manner, "All I Get Is Much Obligated to You," which elicited several encores, while Mr. Adams with his "Old Time Rag," fairly brought down the house. These young gentlemen further enlivened the evening with some good jokes especially manufactured for the occasion and delightfully "original"—nothing to offend, but conducive to good, wholesome laughter.

The "big hit" of the evening, however, was the pink chorus—consisting of little Miss Anna Stiles, ably assisted by Misses Maud Biggers, Mary Walker, Agarna Stout, Edith Bothalmy, Irene Murrel and Marie Stout. These young ladies were handsomely attired, and sang the pretty and popular song, "You're Just the Boy for Me." They were encored time and again, and it required continued repetition of this song to satisfy the audience.

At the conclusion of this number, the closing chorus, "You've Got to Be American to Feel That Way," was sung by the entire cast and the curtain descended amid much applause.

Moving pictures by the management of the Pastime was the next feature, which culminated the program. The show was eminently satisfactory, and the boys deserve much credit, for they all worked hard for the success of the venture.

CELERY DISPLAY TAKES PRIZES

Sanford Product Was Finest Exhibited—At State Fair

C. H. Hoffner the enterprising commissioner in charge of Sanford's display at the state fair succeeded in carrying off the premiums for the county making the largest and best display of celery and the individual making the best and largest display of celery.

Mr. Hoffner had a nice display of celery, fruits and vegetables and was attentive to the crowds thronging the display at all times, even going to the length of keeping cut up stalks of celery and salt for the people to have ample proof of the rich flavor and other good properties of Sanford celery. Mr. Hoffner reports a very large attendance at the fair and is well pleased with the attention that was attracted toward the Sanford display. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Mr. Hoffner who represented us at Tampa and Mr. C. H. Leffler who is doing the same good work at Jacksonville. The duties of these representatives are arduous and varied and the questions that must be answered are numerous. There is no doubt about the results of these displays being made by Sanford as they are easily seen in the numerous people coming into the city every day and buying property.

Reception to Dr. Kirkland.

A goodly company of Sanford people attended the reception rendered to the Rev. R. L. Kirkland, the new pastor of the People's Congregational Church, and his wife on last Monday evening at the church.

Invitations had been sent to the other pastors of the city and all of them responded either by their presence or with regrets that other engagements prevented attendance.

A short program under the direction of Chairman C. R. Walker, who in well chosen words welcomed the friends who had assembled in this fraternal way.

Members of the M. E. Church choir rendered an anthem in fine style, which was followed by short speeches of welcome by Rev. Householder and Rev. Boyd of the M. E. and Baptist churches. Mrs. Herrick sang a solo, after which the incoming pastor voiced his pleasure at the welcome extended to him and pledged himself to be heartily in accord with anything that would uphold the best interests of Sanford. After the doxology a half-hour was spent in social intercourse and all present agreed that a delightful evening had been spent and a further step taken to cement the forces working for the spiritual interests of our city.

Will Build New Residence

Prof. N. J. Perkins, principal of the Sanford High School, has great faith in the future of this city, and has purchased a desirable building lot on Magnolia avenue, upon which he will erect a modern residence in the near future. This will be most gratifying to the people of Sanford, as it is indicative that we will have Prof. Perkins and his estimable wife with us always. In all the Southland there is no able man in educational circles than Prof. Perkins, and Sanford is proud to have him at the head of an efficient corps of teachers, and also as a resident.

Make Sanford His Home.

Harry Ward of Decatur, Ind., who has purchased celery land on Beardall avenue is so well pleased with Sanford that he intends to come down with his family next fall and make Sanford his winter home. Mr. Ward is president and general manager of the Ward Fence Co., one of the largest concerns of the kind in the North, and is well known as the organizer of several wire and nail companies whose capital totaled up to the millions. Mr. Ward is very enthusiastic over Sanford's future prospects, and he and his family will be heartily welcomed by the people of Sanford.

Prominent Party Here

Irvin E. Burdick and Charles Webb of New York City, accompanied by Hon. B. Beacham of Orlando, were in the city on Tuesday, and escorted by J. N. Whitner were taken through the celery delta. These gentlemen are well known captains of industry and were attracted to Sanford by the glowing accounts of our prosperity. Mr. Beacham has always been Sanford's friend and is thinking of investing here in the future.

I Hate To Hear Him Pray

I hate to hear him pray, Upon the bended knee, Who lives from day to day, Just like the Pharisee.

I hate to hear him pray, Who does oppress the poor, Who often drives away The hungry from his door.

I hate to hear him pray, With long and solemn face When his life every day Is badly out of place.

I hate to hear him pray, For the poor needing bread, And have the neighbors say, He helps them not a red.

I hate to hear him pray, In meeting long and loud, Like the Pharisee's way, To be heard by the crowd.

I hate to hear him pray, Who's close with his money, When the hat goes that way Throws in just a penny.

Why don't the business men of Sanford organize a Business Men's Association? It is a lack of enterprise on their part or a matter of simple carelessness. The latter, I should judge. Every other town of the size has an association of this character. They have organized because their own interests have demanded it. Would not the business interests of Sanford be best subserved by such a movement? There are innumerable matters that arise every year needing the combined attention of all our business men. The welfare of Sanford would be largely benefited, too. Let us have a Sanford Business Men's Association.

Have you ever noticed the jolly, whole souled fellows in Sanford and other places and how their very appearance exudes good nature and makes you cheer up when you are afflicted with an aggravated case of the blues. And yet there is such a thing as overdoing the cheerful act.

Good humor is a predominant quality of character which, to the personality is as much of a badge of refinement as neat dress and spotless linen. Supercilious condescension and perpetual frivolity are no more an indication of good humor than flashy apparel is an indication of a gentleman. A man or woman who would cultivate the spirit of good humor should bear in mind that gentility and well-bred consideration for others under all circumstances, combined with reasonable cheerfulness, will bring rich accessions to the joy of living. This is true. Man cannot well be graced with richer heritage than that comprised in the native gift of good humor. God bless the man who has it, and who knows how to distribute its radiance and sunshine among his fellows.

I have often noted the burdensomeness of conventional funerals to the surviving members of the family in which death has been an unwelcome guest. The natural feelings of sorrow suggest a proper respect for the dead and liberality of expenditure in the expression of love and kindness. But the thought has been advanced that lavish expenditure and an effort to make vulgar show at funerals detracted from the solemnity of the occasion and plunged the family of the deceased into extravagances that taxed their means to the utmost. Grief paraded before the world hides the solemnity of the occasion and makes a farce of well-meaning efforts to show genuine sorrow and respect.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage uttered great truths, with his usual force, in a recent Sunday sermon on sham funerals and senseless usages by which grief, real or artificial, is paraded before the world. Dr. Talmage has spoken before the world using the following language:

"I believe that there are more shams, more farces, more hypocries at the average funeral than anywhere on earth, and that the people who howl the most care the least."

We sometimes see a long line of carriages returning from the cemetery with their occupants hooting and smoking, and laughing and cursing, all beastly drunk. It is an important duty to die.

To me one of the most horrible, hideous and repulsive sights is to see a woman walk down the streets all covered up with a mass of crape. Everybody shuns her as though she were a leper. I say it is a burlesque upon decency and a crime against common sense.

While "dressing in black" may not be generally considered the worst feature of the modern funeral, there are some features that need reforming. Humility, decorum, genuine sorrow, and an expenditure of money at once moderate and decent, are the demands of proper respect to departed friends. Beyond that sham and hypocrisy obtrude themselves and degrade expressions of love and affection.

A young man had better live and die an old bachelor than marry a girl who is above learning domestic duties, who does not know how to cook a meal, who cannot make a garment, who spends her time in acquiring the frivolities of society, a little spattering of music, a little knowledge of romance writers, a little poor French and a beautiful complexion. These things won't count as a wife and are very poor capital to build true womanhood on. It is a fact that the girl who becomes the most accomplished woman in society is the girl who first learns the important duties of a home, and then acquires other accomplishments.

Fee fo-fi-fum, we smell the blood of an Englishman. His scalp dangles at the belt of Secretary Olney, and we believe that his name is Dennis Salisbury Mud. The Monroe doctrine is too much for him.

The legislature of Missouri has seen enough blood letting in that state and will pass a law making football playing a felony on the same plane as prize fighting. Shades of Jesse James, say what things be and overcome us like a summer's cloud?

Old Mizoury, the home of Tom Allen, the ex-champion pugilist, and the rendezvous of the Youngers, the Hildebrands and ten thousand other disreputable cutthroats who have made a veritable hell of that commonwealth for decades, is the first to place football where it belongs—on the shelf with prize fighting. Football, your name is pux vomica and a relic of arnica.

Good for the late Dr. Parkhurst. He was a man after mine own heart. In a Thanksgiving sermon he gave the so-called bargain-hunters particular Jessy. He said that a great deal of the hard times was caused by that pernicious branch of society. Shoppers who continually haunt stores for cheap snaps cause the dealers to ransack the universe for so-called bargains. The operatives at the factories and mills are scaled down in their wages, already too meagre to live properly. This is done to give the employers margin to compete with other wholesale houses, and thus it goes. Starvation wages is the inevitable result for the poor, hollow cheeked girl whose young life is made devoid of hope through the grasping of cruel bargain hunters. Countless innocent lives are poured into the fruit of the loom as sweetness wasted on the desert air. And all for the penurious, heartless pursuers of that phantom they call happiness in bargain getting. It is again the "Song of the Shirt." Every Monday witnesses the weekly and ever recurring stampede in the large cities of the vast army of female cormorants chasing the delusion of special cheapness, so to speak.

Don't do it ladies. Don't tempt merchants to become a party to an infamous crusade against a helpless class of women and children and men who have already too slight a gleam of hope in their lives.

Do not kill the sewing girl by inches, but kill her outright if you must, 'twere a kindness. Don't help to pave the way for cheap labor, squalor, misery and shame worse than death.

A man from New York was placed in room number, Thirteen at the Clifton House, Chicago, one night last week. When he learned it was the apartment Tillman occupied when Bryan was nominated, he had an epileptic fit and bit three inches off his tongue. Thirteen and Tillman are a combination that would cast devils out of men and scare witches out of the entire community. Cross yourself and turn around three times.

Some very excellent people occasionally favor me with quite thick, closely written sheets of advice upon this, that and the other matter, all tending to show how much better they would arrange and manage THE HERALD, "if I were you." Of course they would!

One of them came to hand last week, and I can only remark to my well-meaning correspondent:

"If you were me," I make no doubt Things would languish as awful lot; The world would be convulsed with grief "If you were me"—but then, you're hot. You would do this, and also that, And make things spin remarkably "If you were me," but then, you see, You still are you—and I am I.

A Portland (Ind.) man, a former school teacher, writing to a Florida paper, gives expression to the following thoughts: "Relating to the school book law, Mr. Moore's amendment may fix the value of a 'series' of text books too high at $8.50, considering the trifling character of the books. But I, although a poor man, would rather pay $8.50 for Ray's arithmetic alone or McGuffey's readers for my children to use, and be taught from than receive the whole Indiana series as a gift and have my children taught incorrect principles and dragged through an impractical course, and their time fooled away as is being done. I have as little cause for complaint as any parent, for the reason that I am able to correct and supply a part of the needful information, and my children are well advanced. But I do not feel that it is time to quit buying schoolbooks at so much a page or a pound and to select them first as to their scientific merits and their adaptation. The board may need more power, and it might need more personal ability or honesty or energy. Something is certainly needed.

To all of which I heartily subscribe, for it was from these great text books that I learned that which has stood me in good stead in a practical business career. They are so far above the average run of school text books now used that they are not to be mentioned as being in the same class.

The Lenten season is again with us and society has halted its festivities and pastimes for this solemn period. The closing days were gay indeed and filled with events and functions that made its head whirl and its step unsteady. But society, at least the feminine portion, has donned sack cloth and ashes, metaphorically speaking, and retired from the glare and the blaze of social life. Some, possibly have retired temporarily from sight, thankful for this respite from the never ending round of receptions, bridge parties, dances, and all that, and are doing a little household cleaning up and arrangement, left undone from lack of time. The responsive reading of the prayer book has kept ringing in ears, solicitously, but solemnly droning, "We have done those things which we ought not to have done, and left undone those things which we ought to have done, and there is no health in us." And this can be construed to mean household duties as well as religious duties. So some of the members of society whose income are not counted in more than four figures, have put on their aschenputtel clothes and proceeded to knock the dust off the mantel and kick the flat into order, revise costumes, and count up their remaining shekels, drachmas, and denarios, to see how far they will go in providing something stunning with which to overwhelm and crush their dear sisters at the Easter procession to divine service, and customary clothes and millinery display at Eastertide.

These dear sisters will also dine on lentils, mollusks, fish and inarticulate in easy slippers and negligee gowns. With misal and breviary close at hand for private study and meditation, and with attendance upon Lenten services at the various shrines, the Lenten period will be passed to the soul's good, and to health of body, repeating the angelus domine at the ringing of the bells, morning, noon and night. With much reading of the miserere and repetitions of Kyrie Eleison. Mea culpa.

The season passes slowly forward to the solemn and bleak days of Holy Week, until again the bells go ringing joyously, the altars buried, beneath a forest of flowers, grand peals of organ notes, and choir voices raised in glad Te Deums to a risen Christ. Jesus hominem salvator. —THE SAUNTERER.

We extend a pressing invitation to visitors and working men.

On Sunday, March 31st, Rev. R. Lee Kirkland, the new pastor of the Congregational church, will begin a ten days or two weeks revival. The series of subjects will be published in a later issue of this paper.

The reception given by the People's Congregational church to their new pastor and wife on Monday night was a good success. All who were present reported an enjoyable time and Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Kirkland were made to feel that they had fallen into good hands. The pastors of the different churches, including Father Fox of the Catholic church, had been invited to be present and take some part.

CHILUOTA CHRONICLES
Special Correspondence to The Herald.
The weather continues to be warm and pleasant.

Rev. R. Lee Smith, of Longwood filled his appointment in the Baptist church Sunday morning and afternoon.

Mrs. J. P. Taylor, of Geneva spent a few days in this section last week visiting friends.

Mr. G. W. Simmons, of Ft. Taylor, visited relatives here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Raulerson and little son Alfred, of Fort Pierce, arrived Saturday on a visit to Mrs. Raulerson's brother, John W. Jacobs, who has been quite ill for several days. Mr. Raulerson has returned home, while his wife and son will stay for some time with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Sorry, of Conway attended church here Sunday.

Mr. C. E. C. Wheeling, of Nashville, Tenn., who has been spending the winter months at The Palm left for home Friday.

The public school on this place will close with a picnic dinner at the Owen bridge between here and Geneva on Saturday, March 13th.

Extensive Improvements in Home
M. M. Stewart is having his home on Park avenue greatly enlarged and improved. He will add six more rooms, and porch with colonial pillars. When finished this will be one of the handsomest structures on the avenue, already famous for its fine dwellings.

Mr. Stewart is a well-known grower and has great faith in the future of Sanford as a place of residence.

See C. A. Reed for furniture and piano moving.

THE SANFORD HERALD

Published Every Saturday Morning at Sanford, Fla.
R. J. HOLLY, Managing Editor

Subscription Price, $1.00 a Year in Advance

Entered as second-class mail matter August 22nd, 1908, at the Postoffice at Sanford, Florida, under Act of March 3rd, 1879.

Burbans Advertising Company, Jacksonville, Representative.

Office First Floor in the Bishop Block, First Street
Telephone No. 148.

Write It President Taft.

How do you like Sanford, the Brick City?

Along with other good things Sanford is to have electric lights.

Taft is all right.—He like's possum and taters and knows how to get rid of the the Crums.

Every one is kicking against the convict lease system including convicts themselves.

Ohio now takes the place of Virginia as the "mother of Presidents and what a husky youngster is the last.

We hasten to congratulate Gainesville upon securing the new government building and brick street paving.

With the departure of Roosevelt and Foraker, the negro pie counter at the White House will be abolished.

Lent being here does not signify that the fellow who is broke can stretch his credit and make another borrow.

With the many new stores and industries starting in Sanford the 10,000 mark in population will soon be reached.

A large number of plain and colored republicans from Florida attended the inaugural ceremonies at Washington this week.

If any section of the United States can show more profits than the Sanford growers this season, such section has not yet been heard from.

The banks are good trade barometers and the large increase in business in both Sanford banks is a sure sign of the city's marvelous growth.

The government navy yard at Pensacola has been closed by order of Roosevelt.
Trying to curtail expenses of the navy at the expense of the South.

The city council at the last meeting granted a franchise to the Sanford Light & Fuel Co., for electric light privileges.
This insures electric lights for Sanford and a plant will be installed in the near future.

Florida oranges are now selling for $2 and $2.50 per box, which means a good profit to the grower. Had those fool shippers of green fruit the brains to realize their mistake, THE HERALD would like to point out the error of their ways. But they go on and on, every year ruining their own market and giving California a better chance. Had the growers waited with their fruit until later in the season, they would have realized a handsome profit. Florida would have been richer by thousands of dollars and Florida oranges, instead of being despised, would take their rightful place in the market as the best fruit in the world.

PRESIDENT TAFT

Here's to Taft!
Large of body, large of mind, large of heart.

William Howard Taft, twenty-seventh President of the United States. A lawyer, professor, an upright, firm judge; ruler of the Philippines; Governor of Cuba; diplomat; Secretary of War, and the more the world knows of him the greater he becomes in the estimation of the people.
He accepted the office instead of obtaining it and he can be depended upon to administer the affairs of office in such a way that the whole nation will be more firmly welded together. He knows no
North, South, East or West.

He comes to the office with strong heart and energetic will—a man fit for service. Here's to you, Taft!

PRINTING BY THE GOVERNMENT

The postoffice is active these days in soliciting orders for the printing of government envelopes. The postmaster is not to blame for this, as he naturally wishes to swell the receipts of the office, and is compelled to sell the envelopes when Uncle Sam dictates. The government printing office prints envelopes very cheap and goes in debt every year doing this cheap printing. As citizens and tax payers all of us are helping to pay the government printing office debt, while it continues to grind out cheap printing in competition with the aforesaid tax-paying printer. These government envelopes are very nice for the business man who wants to send out several thousand letters at once and avoid stamping each one. But no merchant should ask the local printing office to compete in price with the government.

If Uncle Sam started in to compete with the grocery store, dry goods store, drug store and other places of business, there would be a large sized howl and the chickens would come home to roost.

"JUST AS GOOD"

A good deal of celery is used in Starke and it comes from Sanford. This is not because celery will not grow here, but because very few try to grow it. The finest celery the writer has ever seen was grown in Starke and we have the very soil for this esulent. The same intensive cultivation used here for strawberry production would produce fine celery and the supposed difficulty in growing it exists only in imagination. It is hoped that some of our intelligent truckers will try celery and take enough pains to make the venture a success. Others would then do likewise, and another money crop would be added to those we already have.—Starke Telegraph.

We hope we do not arouse the ire of our Sanford cotemporaries when we make the statement that the soil in and around Kissimmee produces more celery, lettuce, cabbage, strawberries, pineapples and anything else than any other section of this country, and that the ground can be purchased for a few dollars an acre, but it is a fact that everyone subscribes to who has investigated the matter.—Kissimmee Gazette.

Thanks, dear brothers! We are advertised by our loving friends. Send in your bill.

PATRONAGE OF HOME INDUSTRIES

Volumes could be written about the benefits accruing from each and every individual resident of a city spending their money at home and helping the home industries. Sanford people, as a rule, have stood manfully by the home merchants, because they take a pride in their own city and the prices on the different commodities are very reasonable, and there has never been any excuse for sending out of Sanford and helping to enrich other sections. But there is a growing tendency on the part of some of the newly-rich to make their purchases elsewhere, and one instance has been impressed very forcibly upon THE HERALD.
With two well equipped job offices in Sanford, there is no valid reason for sending orders for stationery out of the city, and yet one of our prominent officials, whose name will be given later in a special write-up, sent the order for all the stationery used by the city to a Charleston, S. C. firm. THE HERALD was not even asked for a bid, nor was The Chronicle plant.

This gentleman is supposed to be very active in building up Sanford, although after an active search into his history we find that while very zealous in spending the taxpayer's money, he has never spent any of his own not so that you could notice it. His example is very unworthy and THE HERALD will later prepare a special article for his case that will show him up in his true colors. Our job plant has been rushed with orders since the day of its inception and this order was not missed, but the principle of this slap in the face cannot be overlooked.

There are one or two other very distinguished gentlemen who send away for all their goods, and they are also on the list soon to be compiled.

SAFE-BLOWER SCARED OFF

Was in Act of Robbing the Postoffice Safe,

Last Friday night Harold Haskins, the assistant postmaster, and Mr. Thornton stepped into the postoffice in order to get something that had been forgotten and found the door leading into the room locked. Mr. Haskins had his suspicions aroused, by hearing some one moving around inside, and rushing around to the back door found that some one had been at work upon the safe, but had flown at the first noise of approach. A complete kit of burglars' tools were found near the safe and the yeggman had just started to work with a drill. Up to this time no trace of the daring intruder has been found.

Cold Snap Benefited Celery

The celery crop is looking fine and beginning to move in large quantities. The large shippers have not started yet, but within two weeks carloads will start to move North. It is claimed by some growers that the cold snap improved the celery.—New York Produce News.

Increasing Their Efficiency

The Sanford Machine and Foundry Works have added to their plant a complete outfit for repairing automobiles of all kinds.
This will be found of great convenience to the many people in Sanford who have automobiles, and it is no longer necessary to go to Orlando with machines for repairs.

TAFT IS PRESIDENT

Another Ohio Son Takes Highest Gift

INAUGURATION WAS BRILLIANT

Inclement Weather Forced Crowds to Seek Inside of Capital

William Howard Taft of Ohio and James Schoolcraft Sherman of New York were Thursday inaugurated, respectively, president and vice-president of the United States.

The inaugural day ceremonies, however, were sadly marred by the blizzard which raged all night, and which for hours during the early morning weighted the telegraph wires with sleet to the breaking point and cut off communication with points east and south.

Pennsylvania Avenue, from the capitol building to the White House, was a sea of slush and ice. The parade, which was to have formed such a brilliant part of the ceremonies, was a partial failure. The reviewing stands were unfit for use, being filled with snow and ice and slush. When Mr. Taft saw the weather today he smiled rather forlornly but said cheerfully: "I knew that it would be a cold day when I was made president of the United States."

The oath of office was administered in the senate chamber, in the presence of as many people as could crowd into the historic room. It was here, too, that Mr. Taft made his inaugural address.

When all were assembled the oath of office was administered to Mr. Sherman by Vice-President Fairbanks. After prayer by the chaplain the new vice-president delivered his inaugural address, which was listened to with close attention by the audience. It was not of great length. Then he administered the oath of office to the senators-elect. Mr. Taft was then sworn in and delivered his address.

The Two Widows

Last night at the Orpheum theater the Two Widows was presented by the Wills Musical Comedy Company, and the funny musical piece kept the large audience in a continuous roar. It was easily the best bill yet presented by the Wills Company.

The Two Widows was written for laughing purposes only, and it serves its purpose well. The dialogue is funny and the musical numbers bright. The musical portion of last night's bill contained several of the latest and most popular selections. The crowds that are greeting the Wills company show that they appreciate the pieces that are being offered. They see good entertainment at popular prices.

The roles of the Two Widows were played by Harry Gilbert and Dick Thomas and their comedy work was good. Their funny sayings and songs made them favorites the minute they stepped on the stage in the first act.

One of the prettiest musical numbers in the entire bill and a number that deserved special mention, was the "See Saw Girls," in the second act. This number brought several encores. The Two Widows is the best that has yet been given by the Wills company. The same bill will be presented tonight and tomorrow, matinee and night.

Thursday night, and for the remainder of the week, Sweet Sixteen, one of the company's favorites will be the bill.—Times-Union.

This great company of stars will appear at Sanford Opera House next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, entire change of program each night.

Shipped First Celery From South

William Gracy, representing the commission firm of C. V. Smith & Co., of Baltimore, is in the city this week. Mr. Gracy claims to be the first man that ever shipped celery from the South. He was a truck grower at Savannah over 21 years ago and some northern firms were desirous of getting celery in the early spring, and had Mr. Gracy ship them a small consignment. The celery brought 10 cents per stalk to the grower.—Mr. Gracy is greatly surprised at the wonderful development in the vegetable growing around Sanford, and is especially interested in the prospects for strawberry culture.

Make A Fine Appearance

The Sanford Grocery Co., under the able management of W. W. Stripling, is one of the neatest and most up-to-date in the south. Mr. Stripling believes in good appearances and his window displays are works of art. The clerks are now garbed in white coats and add much to the general appearance of the store. "Everything good to eat" is the motto of the Sanford Grocery Co. and a walk through the store will thoroughly convince one of the truth of this statement. Mr. Stripling is determined to give the people the best of service.

CHRISTINE GILES RECITAL CO.

Fourth Number Of Lyceum Course At Opera House Next Thursday

Miss Christine Giles, soprano-violinist; Miss Evelyn-Lewis, reader-pianist; Mr. Leon G. Batchelder, flute soloist.

This company is composed of the above metropolitan artists who have been tried and found not wanting; Miss Giles, who successfully perfected the unusual accomplishment of playing artistic violin obbligatoes to her own soprano numbers; Miss Evelyn Lewis, than whom there is no cleverer exponent of artistic reading on the platform; and last but not least, the great Batchelder, whose work upon the solo flute has made him a reputation in musical circles second to none in America.

This company will appear in the opera house Thursday, March 11th at 8:30 p. m. This number will be one of the best of the entire course, and a treat is in store for those who will go.

The holders of season tickets will take them to Newlan's drug store where the seats will be reserved. The price of admission is 50c, reserved seats 75c. School children 35c, reserved seats 50c.

Uses a Stump-Puller

A. W. Brown, the owner of twenty-five acres of fine land on the west side, has ten acres in stumps and is now engaged in clearing up the balance. Mr. Brown is not content with the ancient method of grubbing out the stumps, but has installed a Hercules stump-puller, and the way the stumps are yanked out when the machine starts is a revelation. The stumps are taken out clean, roots and all, and the method greatly resembles a dentist extracting a tooth. By this method Mr. Brown expects to clean up his land in half the time generally expended on this work.

New Deputy Clerk

City Clerk Scott finds that the arduous duties of the city clerk's office are impairing his eyesight, and accordingly has engaged the services of Fred Housholder to act as deputy clerk, while Mr. Scott will attend to the collections and other duties that will relieve him from the regular strain of book-keeping.

Mr. Housholder is the son of Rev. A. E. Housholder, pastor of the Methodist church, and is a bright and intelligent young man, well qualified to fill the responsible position to which he has been appointed.

Important to Investors

Tracts of land of 1, 2, 3, 5, 10, 40, 70 acres, at prices $300, $500, $650, $800 and $1,200, at Altamonte Springs, Orange county, Florida—the most desirable residence or winter home location in Orange county. Pure water, high rolling land of best quality, interspersed with innumerable clear water lakes; one of the most healthy locations in South Florida. Apply to N. H. Foss, 23-tf Altamonte Springs.

An Innovation at Yowell's

N. P. Yowell & Co. have installed a patent button machine that will make buttons from the goods and thus match any and all shades and materials. This will be a great boon to the ladies and will obviate the necessity of a tiresome hunt through a large stock of buttons to match certain shades. The public is cordially invited to call at Yowell's store and see the new machine.

Madame Calve at Seabreeze

The world's greatest Carmen, Madame Emma Calve, will appear at Wilman's Opera House at Seabreeze, March 13. This will be a great opportunity to hear this famous singer, and several Sanford people are arranging parties to attend this great event in musical circles. Reserved seats will be $5, $3 and $2 each, on sale at Hankins' drug store, Daytona, and the Wilman's Opera House at Seabreeze.

A. C. L. Officials Here

J. R. Kenley, third vice-president, and M. Riddle, general superintendent of the Atlantic Coast Line, were in the city Monday on a tour of inspection.

They were taken over the city and through the celery delta and expressed themselves as well pleased with the company's property and the city in general, being greatly surprised at the rapid growth of Sanford.

Will Improve His Property

Henry M. Hays of Nashville, Tenn., was in the city Thursday on a visit to his brother-in-law, W. D. Holden. Mr. Hays owns a valuable tract of land on the west side and will put it into cultivation at once. He is greatly impressed with the bright prospects of Sanford.

SANFORD, THE LUCKY!

Interesting Article on Spiritual and Material Development

The following article on Sanford appeared in the last issue of the Florida Christian Advocate:

"The good fortune was ours to visit again, after a lapse of years, Sanford, the 'Celery City,' the 'Queen City,' the 'Lucky City.' We do not know by how many other good names this thriving center of human life and energy might be called. Perhaps no town was hurt worse by the freeze than Sanford. Before the freeze, it was a center of fruit growing and commercial enterprise. Being at the head of navigation on the St. Johns, and half way between Tampa and Jacksonville, Sanford has always enjoyed a good share of what railroads and steamboats can do for a place in the way of commerce. Besides this, her rich lands and beautiful location on her lovely lake invited a fine class of citizenship, who went there to make their homes. Brick stores and hotels were built, beautiful residences erected, and Sanford was a great place. Then came the freeze, when fortunes were destroyed in a night, and the savings of a lifetime took wintry wings and fled. Many said Sanford was dead. On our former visit, we saw practically a whole brick block turned over to the owls and bats. This was sad.

"But what a transformation one beholds now on entering that little city! Every store and residence occupied. Stores full of choice goods, shoppers thronging the streets, men talking of celery and lettuce in terms of thousands. Mark our prediction, Sanford's prosperity is just begun. Let us all watch her grow.

"We saw one relic of the old days, the sign, 'Colored Bar.' We wish the W. C. T. U. women or the Town Improvement Association would tear that reminder of the old dark days of the saloon away. Sanford is another illustration of how removing the saloons hurts a town. Let us all remove that old badge of shame.

"But we must not write too much about Sanford celery and material prosperity. Ours is a church paper and our people are most concerned, as well they may be, with the chief assets of any community, its godly people. We will not say more about the excellent Sunday school, but will speak of the Sunday services. We were greeted at the morning hour by a large congregation. Bro. Housholder says it is that way every Sunday. They listened patiently while this editor told them some things pertaining to the advancement of the Kingdom. Some of them out of the tenderness of their hearts told us the sermon was helpful. This helped us, we are sure. At the conclusion of the sermon Bros. Housholder and Mettinger, pastor and Sunday school superintendent, helped to increase the already large list of subscribers to the paper. Sanford now has one of the largest lists, with the fewest arrears of any charge in the Conference.

"At the evening service we spoke on the Layman's Missionary Movement. We had more men in the congregation than we have had at any service since we have been traveling around. They gave good attention, and we believe good will come from the service.

Advertising Lucky Sanford
William Temple and J. A. McIntosh old printers, formerly in the DeLand offices, passed through DeLand yesterday. They are on the road for the Sanford Board of Trade, sticking up signs advertising Sanford.—DeLand News.

Messrs. Temple and McIntosh of Sanford, who are touring the state for the purpose of advertising the "Celery City" have been in Palatka this week tacking up "Lucky Sanford" signs everywhere. That city has indeed been lucky in securing to itself a reputation as the center of celery culture in the south.—Palatka News.

Messrs. J. A. McIntosh and W. J. Temple were here Wednesday tacking up "Lucky Sanford" placards by order of the Sanford Board of Trade. They will make a tour of Central and West Florida towns before returning to the "Celery City."—Palatka Times Herald.

A Card to the Public
I desire to inform my former patrons, and the public in general, that I have taken charge of the City Restaurant (in the Hines block). I believe that the experience gained by me in Jacksonville the past few months, will enable me to please my customers even better than I did when I conducted the old Central Cafe.

Although I cannot just at present give the business my personal attention, my assistant, Mrs. Hicks, will be on hand at all times, and will take great pleasure in giving the best of service to all who may call at the City Restaurant. —H. E. Wise.

Winner Washing Machines
A few more of these still left, sold strictly on guarantee. If they do not do what we claim, money is refunded. Harry J. Wilson Attention, Ladies! A new and up-to-date millinery store will be opened up here soon.

TO AILING WOMEN

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many a Sufferer in Sanford

No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off in the secretion when the kidneys are well, are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder become inflamed and swollen and worse troubles quickly follow. This is often the true cause of bearing down pains, lameness, backache, sideache, etc. Uric poisoning also causes headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy that cures sick kidneys. You will get better as the kidneys get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a Sanford woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. William Goss, Laurel Ave., Sanford, Fla., says: "Kidney trouble in my case was made evident by an almost constant backache. It was hard for me to stoop, lift or rest well on account of the pain. My kidneys were also disordered and the secretions very unnatural. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills, I obtained a box and am pleased to say that they soon stopped the backache. They also restored my kidneys to their normal condition and benefited me generally."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Gray-Messenger Nuptials

A quiet church wedding took place last Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Baptist church, Rev. J. W. Boyd officiating.

The contracting parties were Miss Alice Gray and Mr. Will Messenger. Only a few friends were present to witness the ceremony and few were aware that the wedding had taken place as the couple had decided to steal a march on their friends and had guarded their secret well.

The bride is a native of Orangeburg, S. C., and during her residence in Sanford has made many friends who love her for her sunny temperament and kindly disposition.

As for the groom, well everybody knows Billy Messenger and it is safe to say that no one has more friends than he. For the past twelve years he has been a resident of Sanford, being identified with the printing business and the publication of the Chronicle.

Mr. and Mrs. Messenger will reside in the Carraway cottage on Magnolia avenue where they will be at home to their many friends.

The Herald joins in extending congratulations to the happy couple. May their bark of happiness ride safely upon the troubled sea of matrimony and never strike the rocks of adversity.

Married

At the home of the bride's parents at Monroe, Florida, on the 28th of February, 1909, Mr. William E. Hawkins of Sanford and Miss Mattie Wynne were joined together in matrimony, A. E. Householder officiating.

The contracting parties are well known in Sanford, having grown up in this vicinity.

The bride is one of Sanford's most winsome young ladies and her sunny nature and genial disposition has won her a large circle of friends. She is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Wynne, well known residents of Monroe and a sister of Mrs. J. H. Bruton of this city.

The groom is a young man of sterling worth and character and is well known in Sanford where he passed the greater part of his boyhood. The happy couple, after a trip to Jacksonville and points in South Georgia, will make their home at Monroe, where Mr. Hawkins will engage in the dairy business and farming.

The best wishes of their many friends follow them.

Levering-Ballard

"Glen Ginn," the country home of Mr. Wilbur A. Ginn, was the scene of a pretty wedding Thursday afternoon when Mr. George Ballard and Miss Ruth Levering of Columbus, Ohio, were united in marriage by Rev. Boyd of the First Baptist Church.

The drawing room was a bower of palms and orange blossoms with pansies lending color.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding dinner was served. Covers were laid for fifty.

After March 15th Mr. and Mrs. Ballard will be at home to their friends at 1224 Park Avenue.

Party at Leesburg.

On Friday evening a "Valentine Party" was given at the residence of Mrs. M. W. Lovell. Misses Lucile Cottrell and Carrie Lovell were hostesses for the occasion and charmingly filled the role. It was a "Hearty Party," hearts were in evidence everywhere, some of the young ladies even wore theirs on their sleeve. As each guest entered the hall punch was served by Miss Agnes Arnold and Luta Frierson. The time was delightfully spent with music and games. A progressive conversation game was much enjoyed. Misses Mattie Howell and Miss Hattie Stevens tied, in votes, as to which was the most entertaining young lady. Miss Cottrell favored the guests with two recitations which were very amusing. At 10 o'clock a salad course was served followed by chocolate and cakes. Here hearts were found galore, both in cakes and sandwiches. Oh! we forgot to mention that the invitations were written on red hearts and issued to the Cupids and their Valentines, who heartily responded as over forty were present. The spacious verandas surrounding the house were brilliantly lighted with a score of Japanese lanterns. Among the guests we must mention Albert Brady, Braxton Perkins and Geo. Lovell, all of Sanford. Leesburg Commercial.

A certain young lady in this town, not now so young in reality or in impulses as she was before her marriage, was speaking recently of her early experiences in the social world. She said the best time for thinking was after a ball, and she was never more serious than when she reached her room after a night of gaiety. She thought the same applied to all girls. Her views may be a revelation to many, especially the men, and she told them in a very impressive and entertaining manner. She said that many a young girl coming home from a night's gaiety sinks into a big chair before the fire and dreams for an hour or two before going to bed. Pretty speeches are recalled, a look from this man which seemed to mean so much, a dance with that one merely to recall which sets her pulses beating, a girl's kind word or the feeling of commendation of an older woman—all this comes up as the girl rests her head in her hands and gazes into the fire. As she takes off her flowers and puts them in water to keep for a day or two, perchance her fingers may linger about the petals, and all of a sudden, life appears to be sweeter even than before. Then as the party dress is taken off and the negligee put on, the girl glances about her room.

The flowers of last week's ball she has laid away on the shelf of the secretary, withered they are, but still recalling pleasant memories, and a smile comes as her eyes rest upon them. The smile deepens as she sees this token, and that one, souvenirs of happy times, pictures of many a good friend, and an open memorandum page of happy times still in store. "Ah, yes," the girl thinks as she sinks into slumber, "life is sweet indeed. With so many friends and such friends, who can say it is not worth the living?"

Into the secrecy of that gentle maiden's chamber one would not go with aught but kindly thought. But life is such with its lessons that always they must be learned and sometimes learned quickly. Perhaps a year has done it all, and as the girl lays aside once more the dainty dress, her face becomes thoughtful and earnest, then wistful for the feeling of glad assurance which can never return in the fullness of the past.

Going to the dressing-table she takes several photographs—perhaps she looks especially at one as she lays the pile away. Surveying the few that are left: "Yes, these at least are true, true friends," she whispers softly, and gives each a look of fondness and trust. Into the waste-basket she throws little trinkets, once so full of value, but now meaningless, although a tear falls into the basket, too. The light is put out, and as she raises the curtain she looks out into the night, and the expression of sadness deepens. "Well, I suppose these things must come," she thinks, "life has its bitter as well as its sweet, some are untrue and unworthy, but still how many are left."

The group of faces on the dressing-table grows smaller and changed from year to year. Faces are not banished as carelessly as at first and a new one among the few is the marking of an event—an event which is the making of a new friendship. The girl's own face among the group is sweeter and more womanly, and it changes, too, from year to year. It may be that it takes on the radiant smile of the bride, then the gentle look of the mother. Or, perhaps, it carries its impress of a story and a tinge of sadness for the one thing which was not to be. But over all other expressions is the one of reserve, of control, as if the deep inner life of the soul were a secret not lightly to be disclosed.

"I know I am changed," she continued, "and people are frank enough to say so. I probably am more distant, surely less enthusiastic, and make friends less rapidly. Of course, to you, and several others I may always appear the same, notwithstanding that you say I have been a revelation to you since my engagement. Now many acquaintances enter more or less into my life, yet my friends are few. Friendship, how much it means to me now! That sympathetic bond of heart life, which, in my foolish youth, I sought for everywhere, I now expect to find but seldom. And my friends—up and down the world they are scattered. And you can count them on the finger of one hand."

LARGE SHIPMENT OF FISH

One of the Many Great Industries of Lucky Sanford

A representative of The Herald called upon C. R. Walker of the Florida Produce & Commission Co., Tuesday, and found him busily engaged in superintending the unloading and packing of thousands of fish. There were over 3,000 pounds of herring alone, and as many more of trout, blue, bream, catfish and perch.

Very few people are aware of the vast proportions of this industry in Sanford and that many varieties of salt water fish come up the river as far as Sanford. The herring are found here in greatest numbers in February and March, coming up the river to spawn. Mr. Walker stated that the largest haul was made near the old flour factory last year, when a solid carload was caught, and as many more were thrown back in the water because they were unable to load them, and they did not believe in useless slaughter. The water was so fully alive with herring at the time that the whole river looked like rain drops as the fish floundered about and congested the stream.

The herring are shipped to the western markets, and, while not commanding as good a price, are nevertheless a marketable commodity when caught in large quantities. To anyone who has resided inland the sight of men scooping up fish in shovels and shipping them by the carload is one long to be remembered.

Several other firms in Sanford also enjoy a lucrative trade in the shipping of fish, among them being W. N. Leller, Frank Hatch, Speer & Malcolm and J. E. Vincent.

On Sanford Celery.

R. J. Holly of The Sanford Herald left at The Times office Saturday some very remarkable celery. It is not strange that Sanford has become famous as the "Celery City," if this is a fair sample of the product of its farms. It is not only of very unusual size but beautifully bleached and very tender and finely flavored.—Tampa Times.

R. J. Holly, the enterprising editor of The Sanford Herald, was among the visitors at the Fair yesterday. This year Sanford had an excellent exhibit of celery, for which the town and contiguous territory is famed. Mr. Holly was among those contributing to the celery display and yesterday paying an appreciated call at the Tribune office, he left some of the choice plant.—Tampa Tribune.

The Return of a Former Resident

A visitor of more than ordinary interest in the city last week was Mr. David A. Caldwell, a leading business man of Sanford, Fla., who came back to Greensboro to renew old acquaintances after an absence of forty-two years. Mr. Caldwell is a son of the late Dr. Andrew Caldwell, who is remembered by the older people of this community as a prominent physician of his day. Dr. Caldwell moved to Florida soon after the civil war and died there nearly fifteen years ago. His aged widow resides with her son, Mr. David A. Caldwell, who, with his two sons, Messrs. D. D. and H. W. Caldwell, conduct a department store in Sanford.

While in Greensboro Mr. Caldwell met many friends of his boyhood days. He left Saturday evening on his return to his home.—Greensboro (N. C.) Patriot.

More New Residents

Dr. and Mrs. Delameter and Mr. Hilton of Chicago have arrived in the city and purchased part of the fine tract of land of Mr. Prouty on Cameron avenue. Dr. Delameter is a well known physician of Chicago, who on account of ill health has sought Sanford's equable climate and with Mr. Hilton will get next to nature in earnest by tilling the earth with a hoe and pulling the hell cord over a mule. We welcome these estimable people to our midst and hope they will gain health and wealth by their residence in the celery delta.
