

Greenwood Lakes Principal Chosen On 3-1 Vote

Ted Barker was selected principal of the new Greenwood Lakes Middle School Wednesday, despite the complaints of school board member Bill Kroll who pointed out that Seminole County has no women principals of middle or high schools.

Barker will transfer to the new Lake Mary school from Lakeview Middle School, where he has been principal since the school opened in 1968. The announcement was made during a school board meeting in which the board chairman and superintendent were absent.

The appointment came despite the objection of Kroll, who questioned the selection process. Kroll stood alone in voting no on Superintendent Robert Hughes recommendation to transfer Barker to the new school, board members Pat Telson, Jean Bryant and Joe Williams voted for the appointment. Kroll said he was not questioning Barker's credentials, but the selection process.

Kroll twice moved to delay the discussion and appointment until 4:30 Thursday afternoon, and twice the motion died for the lack of a second. Today Hughes and Mrs. Warren and board attorney Ned Julian are expected to return from New York, where they were completing the sale of the first $15 million in bonds from the schools' bond issue.

"We say we are an equal opportunity employer, and yet we have no women as middle or high school principals," Kroll said. "Is there a reason why?" he questioned.

Marion Giannini, the district Superintendent for Instructional Services and member of the selection committee, responded that there were women applicants for the position, but that none had middle school experience.

Kroll said in reviewing the applications, he had found a woman candidate that he felt was qualified for the job, and he was "curious to find out how she was eliminated in the process. What were the subjective reasons she was eliminated?"

Giannini said Barker was selected "because of his broad experience in dealing with parents and students; because he has shown his ability to maintain a large facility in a clean and orderly way; because he has expressed willingness to work with the community and neighboring Lake Mary High School; and because he has expressed an interest in dealing with exceptional education students."

Some of the applicants met some of the criteria, and some

Bank Pledges To Comply With Board

Atlantic Bank "will live up to any and all legal requirements" to meet Sanford's historic board requirements, Atlantic President Howard Hodges said today.

Hodges said he "didn't know" of the city mandate when he and the bank's building superintendent removed two bronze plaques from the exterior of Atlantic's 1st Street headquarters last week. The 24-inch by 18-inch plaques date back to 1934 and carry the bank's name. Hodges said although he "hated to see the old things go," the removal was necessary as part of the bank's preparation to change its name to First National Union Bank following a recent merger.

One of the plaques will be placed on display at the General Sanford Memorial Museum and Library, while the fate of the other has yet to be determined, Hodges said.

According to City Planning and Engineering Director Bill Simmons, the removal "was in violation of a city ordinance," and thus, "technically could be taken before the code enforcement board."

The matter, he said, "should be discussed by bank representatives with the Historic Preservation Board."

Hodges said he will take the recommendation "under advisement."

"We want to do what's right as far as the city is concerned," he said. He also expressed mild surprise when told that historic board approval is necessary to fix the holes left by the plaques' removal. The plaques themselves would not have to be returned, but something aesthetically complimentary to the historic structure

Spots where plaques were mounted on Atlantic Bank pillar can be seen today, as well as empty holes where they were fastened.

would have to be put in their place, according to the Sanford Historic Preservation Board guidelines.

Hodges said he had planned to simply "finish boring out the holes and fill them in with concrete."

However, "anything" that's planned for a historic district structure must be reviewed by the board, Simmons said, "whether it be a new coat of paint or a new building."

Bank representatives, he said, "should come to the board to talk about the plaques as a whole; what was already done and what the bank wants to do now." The plaques' removal was spotted by board member W.E. "Duke" Adamson, who brought the matter up during Thursday's historic board meeting.

The board decided a letter would be sent to the bank to bring attention to the violation. Members also acknowledged that although the board received its city charter five months ago, many property owners in the historic district are apparently unaware of its existence or unwilling to voluntarily seek its approval for their projects.

Lake Mary To Discuss Police Chief Vacancy

Belfiore Backers Want Him On List

By Paul Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary's city commission is slated to discuss the vacant police chief's position tonight, and residents could again fill city hall.

The city has been without a chief of police since Harry S. Benson retired March 1. The commission appointed department Lieutenant Samuel Belfiore acting chief.

Belfiore, 32, a seven year veteran of the Lake Mary force, applied for the position along with 45 others, but he was not among the six finalists for the job recommended by the Central Florida Police Chief's Association screening committee.

During the commission's March 6 meeting, many citizens argued that Belfiore should be added to the list of finalists. Petitions were also submitted in support of adding Belfiore's name to the list. The commission delayed a decision on making any addition until tonight, when a full commission was to be present.

The meeting is to begin at 7:30 p.m. at Lake Mary City Hall, 158 N. Country Club Rd.

March 6, Mayor Dick Fess and Commissioner Ken King were absent.

'...I will make a motion to add Sam Belfiore's name to the list...'

—Charlie Webster
City Commissioner

'...I would feel that it (the motion) is out of order...'

—Russ Megonegal
City Commissioner

Tonight, Commissioner Buzz Fess will be in California on business, leaving four commissioners, and a possible tie vote on the issue. In that event, Fess would cast the deciding vote. Fess was not available for comment Wednesday.

"If the opportunity arises, I will make a motion to add Sam Belfiore's name to the list," Commissioner Charlie Webster said.

"If someone comes up with that type of motion, I would feel that it is out of order," commissioner Russ Megonegal said. See CHIEF, page 3A

Andrew And Sarah Plan Wedding At Westminster

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Andrew and Sarah Ferguson, their engagement finally official, today faced the mammoth task of planning a royal wedding.

The couple still must decide a date and a place, but indications were the wedding would take place in the summer at Westminster Abbey.

Buckingham Palace announced Wednesday that Andrew, 26, second son of Queen Elizabeth II, and Sarah, a red-haired, freckle-faced commoner, were engaged to be married. The announcement ended weeks of speculation over what was called the "world's worst kept secret."

Andrew, who admitted proposing on both knees, said in a television interview he and his future princess want to get married in July or August in London.

"Get on with it," Sarah chimed in.

"Get on with it and get it out of the way," Andrew said.

"Sarah's already charging

'We're Over The Moon'

around looking for a dress or ideas for one," said the prince.

The wedding was expected to generate a souvenir and tourist industry of its own, but nothing on the scale of the "wedding of the century" in 1981, when Prince Charles married Lady Diana Spencer.

"We're over the moon," said the former playboy prince, fourth in line to the throne after Charles and his two sons. But he said he and Sarah, the daughter of Charles' polo manager, realized married life represents "a mighty upheaval for most people."

The two first met when they were children and the romance blossomed last summer over a chocolate dessert at Ascot. The love affair, kept private for months and said to be fostered by Princess Diana, made the headlines in February.

The prince gave his 26-year-old princess-to-be a

Camilla Bruce

Ex-County Official Camilla Bruce Dies

Former Seminole County Supervisor of Elections Camilla D. Bruce, 71, was found dead this morning at her home on Hibiscus Court, Sanford.

Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said her body was discovered at 9 a.m. today. She apparently died of natural causes.

Mrs. Bruce, who retired from the office on March 1, 1983, was appointed by Gov. Fuller Warren in 1951 after the resignation of Lourine Messinger. The mother of three children, Mrs. Bruce had returned to Seminole County after working for a time for the FBI in Washington, D.C.

A Democrat, she was opposed only four times in eight elections over the years. First in 1960 by a Democratic opponent and in 1968, 1972 and 1980 by Republicans.

During her tenure, elections records went through an evolutionary process from handwritten records through the use of an ancient addressograph to the ultra-modern punch computer process.

When instituted in 1978 the computer gave almost instant results. During the county's second primary election, Mrs. Bruce's office was the first in the state to speed election results to Secretary of State George Firestone's office.

An autopsy is planned Friday, according to the county medical examiner G.V. Garay.

New Rules Complicate Effluent Disposal Plans

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

A more stringent environmental stance the state has taken this year to preserve wetland areas will complicate Sanford's efforts to secure an economically viable site as alternative to paying Seminole County $40 million for effluent disposal capacity at Yankee Lake, city Planning and Engineering Director Bill Simmons said today.

The wetland edicts were formulated by the Department of Environmental Regulation, the same agency which told Sanford to stop dumping treated effluent in Lake Monroe and implement of a land disposal system.

Now, according to DER Regional Assistant Manager Bill Boatwick, Sanford must find a disposal site that adheres to the new wetlands regulations, which will be implemented early next month.

"By the time Sanford gets its (disposal) project together, the rules will be in effect," according to Boatwick, who said he already anticipates the city "may have a problem" with at least one of the new mandates. This particular requirement prohibits land application that would produce a runoff into nearby lakes and rivers within 24 hours of disposal. Boatwick said the "travel time" for the wastewater is necessary for filtration prior to its flowing into water bodies.

Boatwick also said if Sanford had been able to locate its effluent disposal project at Yankee Lake as originally planned, "the odds were good" the city's 7.3 million daily gallon system would have complied with the new rules and been permitted by the DER.

Seminole County, which owns the property, has targeted the site for a 12 to 14 million gallon capacity and DER officials have already expressed reservations regarding approval of the system. The county will spend the next year formulating a comprehensive engineering study that will detail the proposed disposal system and then

Down To Wire, Contras Aid Vote Seen Close

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After some last minute maneuvering by both sides, Republicans and Democrats agreed that today's vote for President Reagan's $100 million aid package to Nicaragua's Contra rebels is going to be close.

In a pitch Wednesday night to win support for his aid plan from wavering House members, Reagan said he would pursue a negotiated peace settlement with Nicaragua's Sandinista government for 90 days before supplying the Contra rebels with offensive weapons.

But, under the Reagan compromise, the United States would immediately ship the rebels $25 million in "humanitarian" aid and defensive weapons, including anti-aircraft missiles.

"After all, we don't want (the Contras) to be butchered during this 90-day period," said Rep. Rod Chandler, R-Wash., who helped arrange the aid package deal with the White House.

In an effort to sway Democrats who favor some kind of aid for the Contras, but who oppose Reagan's plan, the Democratic leadership promised they would have an opportunity to vote on alternative plans by April 15.

Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., a member of the House Foreign Affairs

Committee, said on the NBC "Today" program. "Our sense is on our side that this compromise will not swing enough votes. The speaker and the leadership in the House have been asked that there will be an opportunity later on April 15 to consider alternatives that might be put forward. My guess is that the proposal will go down to defeat today as, in my judgment, it should."

On the "CBS Morning News" program, Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., chairman of the GOP Policy Committee, said, "It's too close to call" and Democratic Whip Thomas Foley of Washington said, "It's close, but we'll win."

Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., the House Republican leader, said on NBC, "I feel a lot better this morning than I did yesterday. ... It's a marginal issue out there but I think we're right there."

Adm. John Poindexter, national security affairs adviser, said on the ABC "Good Morning America" program. "We think we have a majority in the House. It's going to be very close but I think we're going to win today."

Reagan's offer to delay most of the Contra aid was contingent on the House and the Senate passing the full $100 million package.

IN BRIEF

Illinois Gubernatorial Candidate Shuns LaRouchian Running Mate

CHICAGO (UPI) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Adlai Stevenson says he cares "too much about my party" to run on the same ticket with the surprise nominee for lieutenant governor, a supporter of right-wing radical politician Lyndon LaRouche.

Stevenson told a news conference Wednesday night he was considering dumping his elected running mate, Mark Fairchild, 28, and forming a new ticket for the general election.

"There is one thing I want to make absolutely clear tonight: I will never run on a ticket with candidates who espouse the hate-filled folly of Lyndon LaRouche," Stevenson said.

Stevenson won the Democratic primary Tuesday, but his hand-picked lieutenant governor, state Sen. George Sangmeister, lost out to Fairchild, one of several candidates affiliated with LaRouche's National Democratic Policy Committee.

The NDPC platform includes a call for mandatory testing for acquired immune deficiency syndrome and a quarantine of those people who have contracted AIDS.

Fairchild earlier in the day welcomed the opportunity to work with the former senator, but Stevenson flatly rejected any alliance with the LaRouchian.

"These candidates are not remotely qualified. Nor are they Democrats. They are adherents to an extremist political philosophy bent on violence and steeped in bigotry," Stevenson said.

Women 'Love' Suspected Bigamist

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A man who looks like San Francisco 49ers quarterback Joe Montana was charged with swindling $10,000 from his fiancée while courting and marrying two other women.

John Ford, 39, of Williams, W. Va., was bound over for trial Wednesday on charges of defrauding Arlene J. Sumner. He also faces bigamy charges in Knoxville, Tenn.

Ms. Sumner said she was about to marry Ford when authorities discovered that while he was engaged to her, he had married Marilyn Hagaman of Knoxville and Pam Jones of Lexington, Ky.

"We all love him — all three of us," Ms. Jones said. "But," Ms. Sumner added, "he's going to pay for what he did to us."

Ms. Sumner said she met Ford at a nightclub Dec. 2 and he claimed he played in the Hank Williams Jr. band.

While in Lexington for a concert, Ford pretended to be Joe Montana, began courting Ms. Jones, rented a hotel room and threw a party — all paid for by Ms. Sumner, she said.

"He had my father, my boss and my brothers convinced that he was Joe Montana," Ms. Jones said, and he urged her to marry him March 3 "because he said he had to be back for practice with the team March 7."

But the preacher was skeptical and began checking Ford's background. The 49ers revealed the real Joe Montana was out of the country with his wife.

Ms. Jones, convinced she was being hoodwinked, left Ford and he traveled to Florida. Ms. Sumner then located Ford by phone and convinced him to return to Nashville, where he was arrested at her home Monday.

Boy's Essay Tells Of Suicide

CHESTER, Ill. (UPI) — An 11-year-old boy who had written a school essay describing a fictional suicide apparently took his own life just one hour before his teacher read the paper and decided to seek counseling for the child.

The mother of Scott P. Phillips found him dead in his bedroom with a plastic bag pulled over his head Monday night. It was reported today in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Less than an hour later, Scott's teacher came upon the essay while grading papers, authorities said. Not knowing of Scott's death, the teacher called the principal and the two agreed to seek counseling for the boy the next morning.

Randolph County Coroner Neil V. Birchler said the suicide in the essay "was identical to the manner he used."

"He didn't speak in his assignment as if it was him," Birchler said. "He did it as someone else."

"Who knows where he got the idea? He was a very intelligent child."

Key Rocket Wreckage Recovered

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Navy divers have found more sunken debris from Challenger's crew cabin and a salvage ship was in port today loaded with rocket wreckage that could provide clues to what caused the shuttle's flaming demise.

The Stena Workhorse pulled into Port Canaveral Wednesday night to drop off three pieces of wreckage from Challenger's rocket boosters, but high winds from an approaching front forced the crew to postpone unloading the debris.

One 500-pound piece of wreckage included part of an attach fitting that once held the rear end of one of the boosters to the shuttle's external fuel tank.

be presented to the DER for review.

Both the city and the county vied for the Yankee Lake property last fall as site for wastewater management programs. The county out bid Sanford in November and since then, the city has engaged in litigation to invalidate the purchase and also pursued alternative disposal sites.

Boatwork reiterated the DER's position of being "willing to work with Sanford" to an extent that may enable the city to apply its $3.2 million Yankee Lake site acquisition grant toward the purchase of another disposal site.

Simmons said because the DER is finalizing its review of the wetlands mandates, a meeting between the agency and city representatives — on Tuesday "was inconclusive" as far as determining where or when the city will implement its effluent disposal project.

Sanford is concentrating its search in the Lake Jesup area, which lies in unincorporated Seminole County, Simmons said.

The city is also considering its airport and golf courses as disposal sites, although in combination, the areas could only accommodate half of the daily 7.3 million gallons of effluent Sanford generates, Simmons said.

Preferable to this "half solution" is one site which would handle the entire Sanford wasteload, Simmons said.

He also said Sanford and DER representatives will tour several possible disposal sites next month, as a means of evaluating their abilities to comply with the DER's new wetlands rules.

Sanford stepped up its search for a Yankee Lake alternative after learning Friday it would cost $40 million to dispose effluent at the county owned property.

The cost projection did not include a guarantee that all the city's effluent disposal needs would be accommodated, although the price tag did represent more than twice what Sanford had expected to pay to implement its own full capacity disposal system at Yankee Lake.

Developer and frozen food magnate Jeno Paulucci contracted to sell the 2,867 acre Yankee Lake property to the county on Nov. 8, and two days later Sanford filed a condemnation suit to invalidate the agreement.

The suit, however, was dismissed on Feb. 3 and the city will return to court later this month to argue for a reconsideration of the decision.

Mayor Bettye Smith said Sanford "has ruled nothing out," including another Yankee Lake condemnation suit. In its efforts to comply with the state mandate.

Under its DER edict, the city must cease dumping effluent in Lake Monroe by the fall of 1988 and faces paying the state $10,000 for each day it violates the deadline. Non-compliance could also prompt the state to declare a moratorium on city development, Simmons said.

Dog Seller Charged With Extortion

An Orlando man who had reportedly contracted to sell dogs for a finder's fee for an Altamonte Springs dog trainer was dissatisfied with the fee and allegedly took matters into his own hands to get more money.

According to a Seminole County sheriff's report, the wife of Michael Milligan, the dog trainer, saw the suspect leave her home Monday with a box containing a list of her husband's clients.

Milligan valued the information in the file at $200,000 and he told sheriff's investigators that after the alleged theft the suspect telephoned him and offered to return the records for $700. A price of $500 was agreed on and Milligan met the suspect at Albertson's on State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs at about noon Tuesday, a sheriff's report said.

Prior to the meeting, Milligan had been wired for sound so sheriff's investigators could record the transaction. Deputies had also recorded the serial numbers of five $100 bills Milligan reportedly handed over to the suspect.

As the suspect was leaving the grocery store's parking lot, sheriff's deputies stopped him and charged him with grand theft and extortion.

Albert Louis Peetz, 67, has been released on $3,000 bond to appear in Court April 1.

BACK STAB
A Sanford man, who allegedly stabbed an Orlando man in the back in a dispute, has been charged with aggravated battery. The injured man was treated in the emergency room of Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford and released.

Society Gets Bonus Prize

The Humane Society of Seminole County has won a $500 bonus prize from Gaines Dog Foods as one of the top 100 shelters in the United States for the number of starved price markers from the company's products.

The prize is a special bonus of the continuing Gaines Shelter Cash in Fund Raising Plan. Appeals are made to dog owners in the community asking them to save the "stars" and bring them to the shelter to be turned in to Gaines for cash redemption.

From July 1, 1985 to Jan. 31, 1986 the Seminole County Humane Society earned $260.80 plus the $500 bonus through the program. Due to the success of the program, the Humane Society has been able to purchase essential grooming equipment for the shelter at 2800 County Home Road at Highway 17-92, in Sanford.

Herman Waldon Wesley, 38, was stabbed twice in the back with a six-inch knife during a dispute at 916 S. Orange Ave., Sanford, at about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday. The victim left to get help and Sanford police arrived at the above address and arrested Larry L. Haynes, 34, of 1017 Mangostine Ave., at about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Haynes was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

DUI ARREST
The following person has been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—John Michael Ferrell, 26, of 206 Wood Trail, Sanford, was arrested at 5:27 a.m. 232 Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs, after his vehicle ran a red light.

STRONG ARM TACTICS
Michelle A. Healey, 25, of 1200 State Road 436, Forest City, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies that as she lay in bed at about 10:15 p.m. a man to whom she owes money entered her home and put a knife to her throat, then to her eye, and demanded the cash she owes.

The man had reportedly repaired her car and had not received full payment, a sheriff's report said. The suspect allegedly threatened to come back and kill Ms. Healey, deputies reported.

In another case, Willie Seward, 45, who is staying at 2908 Palmetto Ave., Sanford, told sheriff's deputies that three men entered that home at about 1 a.m. Wednesday.

Seward said they beat him and took his wallet, which contained about $3.

BOATING INCIDENT

John A. Parsons, 58, and Steven L. Kolozavary, both of Orlando, reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that as they were boating on the St. Johns River at about 2:30 p.m. Sunday, a speeding Skip Jack boat collided with their boat.

Before the collision the Orlando men jumped from their boat and the two occupants of the other boat fled after asking if they "could help." They didn't wait for an answer before leaving, a sheriff's report said.

Parson's boat had a damaged hull, the trolling motor was destroyed, a seat and depth finder damaged and there was a gash in the upper right of the boat, apparently made by a propeller, the report said.

Sheriff's deputy L. B.

Zumbrun's search for the other boat led him to Hall's Fish Camp, where a boat matching the description of the suspects' boat was reportedly seen twice, shortly after the incident. Zumbrun was given registration number information of the boat seen. That led to an Orlando man.

The Orlando man reportedly said he had been on the river Sunday, but hadn't been in an accident. The investigation into the incident continued Wednesday.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS
Seminole County sheriff's deputies have the name of a suspect who may have taken a $600 light set from the advertising business of J.J. Hollis, 27, of Orlando, at 2258 Winter Woods Blvd., Winter Park, on March 13 or 14.

Two lawnmowers with a total value of about $730 were stolen from a utility shed at the home of William Chandler, 63, of 105 Ridge Road, Sanford, on Monday or Tuesday, a sheriff's report said.

A thief took two wheels each from two vehicles at Baird Ray Nissan, U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood on Monday or Tuesday. Deputies reported the wheels have a combined value of $1,000.

Patricia Ann Galvan, 27, of 125 Lake Faith Drive, Maitland, reported to sheriff's deputies that her 1981 Camaro was stolen between March 14 and Tuesday while at the Shell station, State Road 434 at Interstate 4, Longwood, for repair.

Fencing worth $350 has been stolen from a lot belonging to Robert T. Hoover, off Osceola Road, according to a report Hoover's son John R. Hoover, 33, of 275 Ibis Road, Longwood, filed with sheriff's deputies.

"I have no qualms about this appointment," said Mrs. Bryant, who was also on the selection committee. "There was no woman candidate with middle school experience, and Mr. Barker had previously opened a middle school," she said.

"What do you think one day would do?" questioned Mrs. Telson of Kroll's request to wait a day to make the decision.

Jack Heisler, also a member of the screening committee, and the district Director of Secondary Education said after the meeting, that five women applied for the job. Two did not have Florida certification, and the other three did not have middle school experience, Heisler reported.

"I appreciate this opportunity," said Barker, who attended the meeting. "I am very excited about opening the new school, and I think the facility will be second to none. It is a great opportunity to which I am looking forward," he said.

Still to be appointed are a new assistant principal, as well as a replacement principal at Lakeview.

Philippine Communists Sought After Mayor, 11 Others Killed

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A regional military commander broke a voluntary cease-fire today and ordered "search and destroy" missions against communist rebels following raids that left a town mayor and 11 others dead.

"With the continuing escalation of attacks by the insurgents against military detachments, we have no choice but to face them squarely," Brigadier Gen. Lorenzo Mateo said.

Mateo, Constabulary chief in Central Luzon, directed five provincial commanders in his region to launch "search and destroy" missions against members of the communist New Peoples Army, the Philippine News Agency reported.

Mateo's region covers the U.S. Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base located about 60 miles north of the Philippine capital.

Ambush Kills Israeli Woman

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak today met with a senior Israeli official as the body of an Israeli woman killed in an ambush and three wounded companions were flown home to Israel.

Mubarak conferred with Israeli Tourism Minister Avraham Shamir, whose 1-day-old official visit to Egypt was marred by the shooting incident Wednesday outside a trade fair, which the four had just left before they were ambushed. Shamir himself had departed the fair only 25 minutes before the shootings.

The three wounded — two men and a woman — were immediately transferred to a hospital upon their arrival in Israel, the state-run Middle East News Agency said.

The attackers used two cars to ambush the Israelis. One car blocked the Israelis' car, pinning them down as gunmen in another car opened fire, the Middle East News Agency said.

Egypt's Revolution, in a statement to a Western news agency, claimed responsibility for the attack.

Haitian Troops Fire On Crowd

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Government troops, firing into a crowd of Haitians trying to prevent an arrest of a bus driver, killed four people and critically wounded another, witnesses said.

Witnesses said the incident Wednesday began when an army captain stopped and tried to handcuff a bus driver who had passed him on the road near the outskirts of the capital.

"We don't want the army!" Haitians screamed as they surrounded the captain, who called for reinforcements from the Leopard troops, a unit associated with deposed President Jean-Claude Duvalier.

"The Leopard troops were formed to protect Jean-Claude Duvalier," one woman said. "He's gone. They have no place here. They were trained by the Americans."

Panama May Accept Marcos

By United Press International

Panamanian officials say Ferdinand Marcos is seeking asylum in the Central American nation, and Reagan administration sources say the deposed Philippine leader could move to Panama by the end of the week.

Marcos's petition for safe haven in Panama was received Wednesday and was under consideration, for "humanitarian reasons," Panamanian Foreign Minister Jorge Abadia Arias said.

President Eric Arturo Delvalle, on a trip away from the capital, Panama City, told United Press International: "I am going to call a meeting of my governmental team so they can consider" Marcos's application.

Swedish Police Free Suspect

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Police freed the prime suspect in the assassination of Prime Minister Olof Palme, saying an "important link" in the evidence against him was broken by the unexpected failure of a witness to identify him.

Police also announced that a second man — a friend of the suspect — who had been held on a weapons charge also was freed.

Stockholm Police Chief Hans Holmer made the surprising announcements during the regular daily news conference at police headquarters Wednesday, one day before a 32-year-old Swede was to have faced arraignment in the Feb. 28 murder of Palme.

said. "I don't want to make an addition arbitrarily."

"I am very firm on following the procedure. I would like to look at the top six candidates after the background checks have been made. I don't want to be locked in to just the six," Megonegal continued.

"I want to keep all of the options available, to get the best possible man at the price we can afford to pay. That's my goal," he concluded.

The chief's position reportedly pays between $25,000 and $30,000.

"I support adding Lieutenant Belfiore to the list of finalists, but I'm not saying he should be given the job," Commissioner Paul Tremel said. "He needs the opportunity to show us what he would do if he were selected."

"I am very confident that the screening committee reviewed the applicants very carefully," Commissioner Ken King said. "I respect their decision, and the six recommended should be reviewed." King reserved his comments on making an addition to the list for tonight's meeting.

One commissioner said he felt Fess would respond to the public's input and vote to make the addition, while another member of the governing panel felt the mayor would vote against the addition in a tie-breaker.

Belfiore said he intends on attending the meeting, as he did March 6, when Megonegal expressed surprise that the acting chief was on hand for the commissioners' deliberations.

Belfiore said he will abide by a suggestion made to him, and "remove myself from the room during the discussion."

During the previous meeting, the commissioners heard much public input favoring the addition of Belfiore. Megonegal and Petros were against making an addition—at that meeting—and passed a motion to direct the screening committee to begin background checks on the six they recommended.

According to City Manager Kathy Rice, the screening committee's background check reports on the six recommended candidates arrived at city hall Tuesday, with the approval of screening committee chairman, Altamonte Springs Police Chief William Liquori.

The six finalists recommended by the screening committee are:

Mark Bradford Lamprey, a Winter Park police lieutenant; Frederick Justin Staly, an Orange County detective; Edward Joseph Overman, a former Seminole County Sheriff's Deputy; Charles Williford Lauderdale of Texas, a former Texas police chief; and Charles Emmett Olive of Virginia, a veteran of the Virginia State Police.

Father Guilty In Child Abuse

A Longwood father was convicted Wednesday of abusing his infant son who now has irreversible brain damage and is in a coma.

A jury of three men and three women deliberated an hour before finding James Michael Gettys, 24, of 147 Lakeshore Dr., guilty of child abuse. He faces up to 5 years in prison. Circuit Judge Robert McGreggor set April 25 for sentencing.

If 10-month-old Christopher Gettys dies, his father faces murder charges, according to Assistant State Attorney Kurt Erlenbach.

Erlenbach maintained during the 3-day trial that Gettys, during a fit of anger in August, permanently damaged the child by throwing him in a crib three times. The boy, over a month old, became blind and deaf. He cannot communicate, eat nor drink. He does, however, breathe on his own.

Assistant Public Defender David Evans argued that the child's brain damage could have been caused by attacks of apnea, a disorder in which a child stops breathing. He also argued there was no proof that Gettys injured the child.

According to Gettys' confession, on Aug. 11 he was irritated at the then 3-month-old because he would not stop crying. Gettys threw the child down three times knocking him out. The child's breathing problems started after that, Erlenbach said.

Longwood Proposes Water And Sewer Rate Increases

By Jane Casselberry Herald Staff Writer

The Longwood City Commission has authorized preparation of an ordinance that will, if passed, increase some rates and establish new fees for water and sewage service.

The commission was told by the City Finance Director Barry Weeks Monday night. "If you don't implement increases, the financing ($6.8 million the city hopes to borrow to finance a new police station, a waste water treatment plant, and pave streets) won't fly."

Based on a Water and Waste Water Fee Schedule Study by consulting engineers Dyer, Riddle, Mills & Precourt, the proposed ordinance would double residential sewage rates from $12 a month to $24 a month. Commercial rates now based on 150 percent of the water bill and a maximum of $7.50 a month would be increased to three times the amount of the water bill up to a maximum of $24 a month.

The connection charge of $550 per residential connection and $750 per commercial connection will remain the same. The development assessment fee to assure sewage treatment capacity will be increased from $2 per month to $5.

New sewage charges include a "ready to serve" charge of $4 a month (while the service is turned off while the owner is on vacation or the house is vacant) and a reserve capacity fee of 10 cents per gallon a year against property owners who purchased capacity, but who have not yet connected to the sewage system.

Under the proposed water charges, monthly rates, which were increased last year, will remain the same. However, the development assistance fee to reserve water capacity will go from $1 a gallon to $2 a gallon. There will be no change in the connection fee, but new charges are recommended of $10 for shutting off and $10 for turning on water service when the building is vacant for a limited time. A new ready to serve charge of $4 a month would be made while out of service during vacations or vacancies.

Consulting engineer Rache! Christensen said Monday night that in the past the income from the water system has been subsidizing the sewer system, but under the proposed rates it would be self-supporting.

"We have allowed for increased cost in the new plant (to be constructed at Skylark) and construction debt service, plus development, a renewal and replacement fund and an emergency fund," Mrs. Christensen said.

A special meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Monday in City Hall to act on loan proposals by Sun Bank, Barnett Bank, Freedom Bank and Southeastern Municipal Bonds.

In other business Monday night the commission:

- Unanimously approved the site plan for Wildmere Office Center submitted by owner/developer Dick Williams of Stonewood Development Inc. The center will be built 250 feet east of County Road 427 between Wildmere Avenue and Overstreet Avenue.
- Passed an ordinance vacating and abandoning a 364.39 foot portion of Jessup Avenue measured from the intersection with E.E. Williamson Road.

- Passed a resolution stating the land development application fees, development assistance fees, impact fees and permits will be assessed and collected from applicants at the time of final acceptance and approval of applications or issuance of permits.
- Gave final approval to an ordinance creating a design review board composed of city staff persons and consultants to make recommendations to the city Land Planning Agency and City Commission on developments' applications and proposals; require 11 copies of master development plans; allow the city planner to refuse to schedule for the LPA applications that lack required items.

Council Member Named

Longwood resident Paul R. Gougelman III has been appointed to the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council by Florida Governor Bob Graham.

Gougelman, 34, is an attorney for Broad and Cassel law firm. He is a member of the Florida Bar's environmental and land use section.

Terms on the planning council expire in October 1988 and are subject to confirmation by the Senate.

The council acts in an advisory capacity to its local planning district, conducts local resource studies, adopts comprehensive regional policy plans and prepares disaster preparedness plans and annual reports.

Shrine Paper Drive

Bahia Shrine Temple will hold its 20th Annual Benefit Paper Sale Friday and Saturday, April 4 and 5.

Shriners from each neighborhood will be distributing papers in the area.

Shriners operate 19 Orthopedic Hospitals and 3 Burn Institutes throughout North America for treatment and research in both fields, such as germ free ward in Boston, new burns vaccine development in Cincinnati, and brittle bones research in Chicago.

The first Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children was opened in Shreveport, Louisiana in 1922 and the first Burn Institute opened in 1968. The newest Hospital was opened in Tampa on October 4, 1985.

All Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children and each Burn Institute is run entirely on a charitable basis. Each contains 30 beds or more.

With an annual operating budget of more than $167 million, 45 percent of the hospital's operating costs are derived from special projects, such as the Annual Paper Sale. Shriners officials said. The budget includes $135 million for operating purposes and $33 million for capital expenditures. The 1986 research budget totals $11 million.

Since the first Shriners Hospital opened there have been approximately 383,208 operations performed; 7,069,600 physical therapy treatments given; 373,095 braces and prostheses applied; 4,522,525 X-rays and photographs taken; and 3,009,230 out-patient clinic visits.

In 1985, 17,691 new patient applications were approved by the 22 hospitals. Since the establishment of Shriners Hospitals more than 17,722,105 patient days at the 19 orthopaedic hospitals have been recorded and 499,398 patient days in the three burns institutes, which originally opened in the 1960's. The average length of stay for orthopaedic patients in 1985 was 19 days and 23 days for acute burn patients.

ruby and diamond engagement ring estimated to be worth $37,000. Andrew disclosed he helped design the ring and Sarah said the oval ruby was chosen as the central stone "to match my hair."

The smiling couple described their romance not in terms of "thunderbolts and lightning" but as making "a good team."

Andrew said he intends to stick to his career as a navy officer and Sarah said she will keep her job at a London graphics firm.

After they are married, the couple will receive $72,500 a year from the government's allowance for the royal family plus Andrew's $24,600 annual salary from the Royal Navy.

Sarah will be officially known as Her Royal Highness The Princess Andrew. The queen also is expected to make Andrew the Duke of York, a title which traditionally goes to the second son of the monarch. That would make Sarah the Duchess of York.

Sarah may be a commoner, but she is a commoner from a charmed and stylish circle.

In a word, Sarah is a Sloane.

Sloanes are Britain's young upper crust, the cousins of America's preppies.

The well-spoken offspring of landed families resident of old wealth and horses, who live, drink and party around downtown Sloane Square — hence their moniker.

They have always been around. But nobody really noticed this aristocratic caste until authors Ann Barr and Peter York captured their life and times in a tongue-in-cheek best seller on style, "The Sloane Ranger Handbook."

Sarah Ferguson is "typical, typical Sloane," Barr told United Press International. "She's jolly and jumps about a lot."

"I'd say she comes from the what-the-hell end of it. Some over-the-top living," said Barr, lapsing into Sloane-speak, the clubby slang of Sloanes. For a time, Ferguson went to live with a man who was 22 years older than she.

"That's rather breaking the rules," Barr said.

"And of course her clothes are Sloane. ... She loves skiing. Her father is a polo manager. They live in a Hampshire village."

A house in the country not too far from London, horses and stylish sports are essential in the Sloane world. But it must all be bought with old money, that is, inherited wealth. The "nouveaux riches" just do not count.

For all the social comment, Barr stresses that Sloane-watching is a light-hearted pursuit. A kind of amateur anthropology of the modern urban jungle, not to be confused with gossip column fare.

"We all wish her well, she's a lovely girl," she said.

Clothes are an important hallmark, especially for Sloane girls. It is a carefree, rumpled romantic look. Ferguson's "rather untidy but beautiful red hair," was a big asset there, said Barr.

Tax Amnesty Not Good Idea

On balance, it's probably not such a great idea to try a federal tax amnesty. Such programs may have worked well for the states: California raised $150 million by opening a three-month window during which past tax evaders could pay up without penalty; Massachusetts raised $86 million; Illinois, $150 million; New York, $334 million. But it would be a mistake to expect similar success from a federal program.

All evidence is that there's far less casual evasion of federal taxes than of state taxes. In part, that's because federal tax laws are so much more rigorously enforced; in part, because the stakes are so much higher. Both factors suggest that there wouldn't be the same pool of amnesty seekers to tap among federal tax delinquents as in the states. Most of those who took advantage of the state amnesties, the Internal Revenue Service says, were already paying proper federal taxes.

Nor is the amnesty likely to produce more honesty in future tax years. It could produce even less if the precedent of the federal amnesty convinces those who play the tax angles to increase their tax evasion while waiting for the next amnesty. Massachusetts officials think that those who cleared their consciences in the state's amnesty subsequently continued filing honest tax returns. The state pulled in an additional $564 million in revenues the next year. But federal tax experts say that that revenue boost was the result of the boom in the Massachusetts economy, not the amnesty.

Nonetheless, there are signs that Congress will find the amnesty plan irresistible. Amnesty may be just a gimmick — a one-shot, one-year infusion of new funds that would do nothing to alter the government's real budget problem, the still-growing divergence between federal expenditures and federal revenues. But the amnesty plan is still awfully attractive politically. For one thing, there's no organized lobby against it — which is more than one can say about any other deficit-reduction measure Congress is considering. The feeling in Congress seems to be that, while it's not likely to do a lot of good, the tax amnesty would do more good than harm.

But would it? The state amnesty programs don't appear to have had any significant drawbacks. But at the federal level, the public is much more likely to care about the sums and the kinds of cheating involved. And the nation's honest taxpayers are likely to see the federal amnesty not as a way of catching cheaters, but as a way of letting cheaters off the hook. The program's uncertain benefits are not worth the risk that it will be perceived as essentially unfair.

Liberty Medal

What do I.M. Pei, Irving Berlin, James Reston, Bob Hope and Henry Kissinger have in common?

They are immigrants to America who have been honored with the first "Medal of Liberty" award.

Other winners are: Hanna Holborn Gray, educator, originally from Germany; Kenneth Clark, psychologist, from Jamaica; Elie Wiesel, author, from Romania; Dr. Albert Sabin, physician, from the Soviet Union; An Wang, corporate executive, from China; Itzhak Perlman, violinist, from Israel; and Franklin R. Chang-Diaz, astronaut, from Costa Rica.

What these award winners had in common with millions of other legal immigrants was the right to become naturalized Americans and the freedom to reach for the stars in their lives.

We are concerned that some six million illegal immigrants now living in our country don't have either rights or freedom, that when they are singled out for success, they are targeted for deportation.

We fear for this country's future as a nation of illegal immigrants.

BEN WATTENBERG

NAS Report Defuses Population Bomb Myth

Little noticed, the National Academy of Sciences has just issued a report that should change the way most people think it does. In brief, it changes the answer to this key question of our time: Does rapid population growth harm Third World nations? The old answer was "Yes, it's a disaster." The new answer is "Uh, well, maybe a little bit."

The document is entitled "Population Growth and Economic Development: Policy Questions." It is the fruit of two years of work by a specially appointed panel of 15 eminent scholars. It includes 17 research papers which review the current state of knowledge and, in some cases, break fresh ground.

Oddly, this revolutionary and revisionist study makes its case by using the most timid sorts of language. Thus, some evidence "is extremely varied," some statistical correlations "provide little insight," some points are "debatable." In short, this is real science in an uncertain field. It stands in refreshing contrast to the apocalyptic scare-mongering certitude offered by (for one example) Jimmy Carter's "Global 2000 Report." That study was later referred to as "Globaloney."

Consider some of the ways the study challenges the conventional wisdom:

It's been said that we're running out of non-renewable resources and this will hurt us. No way, says the NAS: "The impact of rapid population growth on resource exhaustion has often been exaggerated... (it) is at most a minor constraint on economic growth." Why? Because as a resource gets scarce, the free market responds first by higher prices and then by conservation, better technology and cheaper substitutes. Indeed, this NAS report stresses the role of free markets on almost every page.

The issue of renewable resources — particularly food — is more complex. The study acknowledges that rapid population growth can strain Third World agriculture. It also notes that with the exception of Africa, "per capita agricultural output has risen in most developing regions during the recent period of rapid population growth." In Africa, the study says that the best food policy is not slower population growth (although that would help) but the reform of "long-standing political inadequacies" that have penalized farmers. The need for political change is another key theme of the study.

On pollution, a similar view: Slower population growth "might allow somewhat more time" to deal with it. But the real solution is "socially negotiated access rules," which is a fancy phrase for political action of the sort taken in the richer countries, where pollution rates have come down in recent years.

On urbanization, the study attacks the argument that ever-bigger cities have been a tragedy for the Third World. Just the opposite: "Urbanization... plays an important beneficial role in the development process, providing... relatively high-wage employment, education, health care," etc.

On the broad questions of how population growth affects economic growth, the study offers a mixed bag. Rapid population growth does not impede improvements in health, but slower growth may help somewhat in education.

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

When Story's Half Told

Confusion and hypocrisy on the issue of human rights is characteristic of contemporary American liberalism.

If one reads a liberal columnist such as Anthony Lewis of The New York Times, one finds the thesis that the United States should maintain good relations only with those countries which have excellent human rights records.

Mr. Lewis and others who share his political prejudices aren't consistent, however. They would have the United States take a variety of hostile actions against the Republic of South Africa, for instance, because they don't believe the changes South Africa is making are adequate or authentic. They would do nothing of a hostile nature, however, with respect to the two giant nations with the worst human rights records — the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China. Both countries have liquidated millions of their own people in their determination to impose totalitarian communism.

Mr. Lewis, who is so intent on defending the "democratic hopes of the majority of South Africa," can't find time to look at what's happening next door to South Africa in Zimbabwe, the former Rhodesia. Remember when Americans were told by the liberals that Ian Smith's Rhodesia had to be put out of business so that a new, democratic Zimbabwe could come into being? Instead of becoming a democracy, Zimbabwe has turned into a ruthless dictatorship under Robert Mugabe's rule. He plans a Marxist, one-party state, with the people held down by his brutal North Korean-trained Fifth Brigade.

The Feb. 7 issue of New Society, a liberal British magazine, spelled out what's happening in Zimbabwe. An article entitled "Mugabe Turns The Screw" told of Mugabe's reign of terror against the Ndebele tribe and the opposition ZAPU party. Assaults, murders, house burnings — all are part of the government's policy of pacification.

In addition the New Society article pointed out that Amnesty International has accused the government of Zimbabwe of frequently torturing political prisoners in detention centers. It said that "This includes beatings, electric shocks, and, much favored, the suffocation of the victim by immersion in a canvas bag full of water." It also said that some victims "are hung upside down and beaten with their heads in buckets of water."

These horrors go virtually unnoticed in the United States.

JACK ANDERSON

Reagan Misses The Good Life

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — "What do the simple folk do? To help them escape when they're blue? ... Oh, what do simple folk do (that) we do not?" Ronald Reagan, the easygoing charmer who gets along effortlessly with kings and commoners, barons and blue collars, would be the last man imaginable to sing the "Camelot" version of King Arthur. Unlike the Lerner-Loewe ruler, Reagan knows what he's missing.

In a recent conversation with Dale Van Atta in the Oval Office, Reagan sounded almost wistful as he reflected on the "simple pleasures" that are denied him as president. "Yes," he said, "you miss the simple thing of — you stand up stairs there and you look out the window and see the people walking by and you say, 'Hey, you know, I can't do that anymore.'"

"I can't go down there and say I'm going to walk down to the drugstore and buy a magazine, or drop in some place for a cup of coffee. And you do miss it."

The president added that there is another simple pleasure he misses — one that probably only someone who grew up in small-town or rural America would appreciate: "The only driving I get to do is with the Jeep at the ranch — within the borders of the ranch."

This led Reagan to an interesting observation about the cocoonlike existence of a modern American president:

"I have to tell you, there is something that I'm very much aware of. I didn't get to be so much aware of it until about the time we were leaving Sacramento, but now it is true here in Washington."

"Now, I've been here in Washington in years past when we'd rent a car and we'd go wherever we wanted to go: out to dinner and that sort of thing. You'd be surprised, sitting in the back seat with someone else driving, how quickly you lose any sense of where things are. I found out as the years went on in Sacramento that, by golly, if they turn me loose in the front seat of the car, I couldn't find my way even back and forth to work."

"And the same is true here. Now we go to the places where they take us, like banquets and so forth at the hotels, and I remember back when I used to drive to those places on my own. Now I have to say, you get me outside these gates, I couldn't find my way any place."

At this point, White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan chipped in: "I doubt that the president recognizes the front door or the entryway of any major hotel."

SCIENCE WORLD

Computer, Plastic Surgery

By Gayle Young
UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — People contemplating plastic surgery used to walk into their doctors' offices with magazine clips of the faces and bodies they desired.

Now they want to design their "new look" themselves on computers — and some doctors say the computers are no more effective than the magazine cutout of that model with the perfect nose.

"It sounds very official and high-tech, but really it is just a gimmick," said Dr. Steven Herman, an instructor of plastic surgery at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine. "It's no different from drawing on paper and just as accurate."

The computers, widely advertised in major cities, reportedly show plastic surgery patients what they will look like after the operation and allows them to help design their new faces and figures.

The computer program starts with a video image of the patient, which is then altered by patient and doctor using a "paint" program that allows them to draw over the video image.

Different angles of the nose are tried out, ears are pinned back and eyelids lifted while the patient looks on. The doctor then uses a printout of the desired face as a guide during surgery.

Only several dozen of the computers, which started appearing in doctors' offices a year ago, are in use but interest in them is growing, manufacturers say.

"It gives a good before-and-after picture when you are still in the before stage," said Audrey A. Johnson, spokeswoman for CooperVision Surgical Systems, Inc. of Irvine, Calif., which manufactures the surgical computer hardware and software.

She said the computer system is different from drawing freehand on a patient's photograph because "the computer allows you to put in perfect angles and things like that."

Herman, whose patients frequently ask questions about the computers, remains unconvinced.

"We can never be sure bone, tissue and muscle are going to act a specific way," he said. "Computer imaging is no guarantee, so its usefulness is as limited as a magazine photo or a drawing. It has the aura of being something more than it is."

Dr. Court Cutting, a plastic surgeon and researcher at New York University Hospital, agrees. Cutting's research team at NYU is one of two in the country using another computer imaging program for major oral surgery.

JEFFREY HART

Probing Academia

The organization Accuracy in Academia, a spin-off from Accuracy in Media, created a flurry last spring when it was launched. Academicians foresaw spying in the classroom, snitching, and, further down the road, maybe jack-boots and the famous knock on the door.

None of this of course has come to pass, and the publication "Campus Report" published by A in A has turned out to be a carefully written and edited reprint on a variety of academic things that deserve a raised public eyebrow.

We learn from the January-February number, for example, the curious story of former Princeton history Professor David Abraham, author of a 1981 book called "The Collapse of the Weimar Republic." Professor Abraham wishes to argue that the German industrialists were instrumental in wrecking the republic and bringing Hitler to power.

The undergraduate and the general reader might respond, well, maybe so.

But Prof. Abraham had the misfortune to run into a Yale historian, Prof. Henry A. Turner, who is writing a book on the same subject, knew the material, and took a look at the Abraham documentation. He discovered that Abraham had published misleading quotations and references in order to support his thesis about the industrialists. In October 1983, Turner wrote a letter to the American Historical Review citing three cases in which Abraham had either changed key quotations by adding words not found in the original German or omitting key words.

For example, Turner said that Abraham had quoted industrialist Paul Reusch as saying, "I find myself in complete agreement with the National Socialists, though they are a bit tedious." Turner found that the omission of one word, "not," reversed the meaning of a sentence in which Abraham claimed that Reusch wanted to bring together the bourgeois right and the Nazis. Reusch actually said that he did not want this. The controversy went on through the professional journals and academic organizations, with Abraham admitting in the publication Central European History that he had been guilty of "misquotations, imprecise translations, and, most seriously, paraphrases and interpolation mistakenly identified as full quotations."

A German historian, Ulrich Nocken of the University of Dusseldorf, took up Professor Turner's invitation to scrutinize the Abraham book. His detailed critique indicated that of 70 footnotes he checked only four were correct.

It is impossible for the non-specialist to make a judgment as to whether Abraham's procedures undercut or even negate his thesis about the German capitalists and Hitler, but Professor Turner thinks they do. In the conclusion of his own recent book, "German Big Business and the Rise of Hitler," Professor Turner takes note of the ideological "myths" of those who "continue to subordinate the study of Nazism to a crusade against capitalism." It is clearly Turner's view that Abraham's putative anti-capitalism subverted his scholarship.

The president laughed in agreement. For security reasons, he is usually taken in and out the side or rear entrance to a hotel or auditorium.

"What was it," the president said, "that Kitty in 'Kitty Foyle' — what was the line that they used about what I now see in hotels? She was using it to describe coming into Chicago on the train, and she said it's like seeing civilization with its pants down."

The president's reference was to a 1940 tear-jerker, for which Ginger Rogers won an Academy Award in the title role. (Ironically for a conservative president, the screenplay — and presumably the line Reagan remembered — was written by the late Dalton Trumbo, one of the Hollywood Ten, who went to prison for refusing to answer congressional questions about their allegedly pro-communist sympathies.)

Helpless And Hopeful: Emotions Of ICU

Competitive Anthony Laszaic Won't Lose The Most Important Game Of His Life

Helpless and hopeful. Those two emotions filled the Intensive Care Unit Waiting Room like a gloomy cloud this week at South Seminole Community Hospital in Longwood.

Helpless stares and hopeful eyes. Granted, these feelings are always prevalent at the ICU facility, but this week the helpless and hopeful were a little closer to home.

Anthony Laszaic, a happy-go-lucky young man with a wealth of baseball talent, was occupying a bed in ICU. Struck down in a tragic accident last Friday, Laszaic was wavering between serious and critical — between helpless and hopeful. Those two words, again.

Tony and Stella Laszaic were feeling especially helpless and hopeful. Their son was just two doors away. But it must have seemed like miles as the 18-year-old Lake Mary High pitcher-shortstop struggled to survive.

Tony and Stella were reduced to tears and fears. Tears which couldn't wash away the sorrow. Fears that Anthony wouldn't be Anthony any more. That the fractured skull he suffered when he was thrown through the rear window of a car onto Markham-Woods Road would alter the young man they love and adore.

Stella tried to find solace in Bible verses. "I'm putting my faith in God," she said quietly.

Tony had taken up permanent residence in the waiting room, sleeping two or three hours a night on the four-foot couch. At times, three-fourth of his body would awaken but the legs would have to be numbly moved, still asleep from hanging over the end of the couch.

Every two hours he took the short walk to see his son.

Gently, he stroked the unharmed side of his son's head, imploring his boy to come out of it. Helplessly hoping for a sign, an acknowledgement from the sometimes restless — other times dormant — form. He looked and waited and looked. For something, anything that would reduce the helpless and spark the hopeful. An indication that recovery was on its way. Just a nod of the head or the wink of an eye.

Friends beseeched him, go home, get some rest. "I can't go home," Tony said through hollowed eyes. "Not until I know something."

The friends were many, strung together by many years of playing baseball in the Altamonte Little League. They materialized from every school.

There was the father of the Lake Howell catcher. There was the mother of the Lyman catcher. A former Edgewater High player called. So did the Boone High American Legion coach. And, of course, all the parents and players from Lake Mary.

The concern was sincere and touching. They wanted to comfort those most affected by Friday's tragedy. Encourage the hopeful atmosphere and discourage the help-

And then a few days later came three players from Apopka — Lake Mary's fiercest rival. They battle ruthlessly on the playing field, but this was something different. They came to express their sorrow and reiterate their respect for a rival player now down — but not out.

On the same day, another friend came. Someone who had been documenting Anthony's exploits for six years. As Anthony twisted and turned fitfully in the hospital bed, the friend recalled those pre-teenager playing days.

It wasn't hard to recall Anthony at that age. Anthony was always ahead of his time. He was so smooth, so stylish. A natural at bat and on the mound. As a 10-year-old, he competed on the 12-year-old level. Not a fringe player but as a starting pitcher on manager Gene Letterio's Top Team Major League Phillies.

Letterio would recall how Anthony beat Apopka in the first game of the Top Team Tournament. "He was only 10 years old," Letterio, who has shared some of Anthony's greatest moments, recalled. "Apopka thought they could sneak one by us and pitched Tim Oxley. They held back their best two pitchers (Sid and Mike Lowman).

"Anthony beat them, 4-1. We got blown out in the next game but we beat them in the third game to win the tournament. Anthony won us the key game."

Oxley, ironically, was one of the three Apopka players to visit.

A year later, Anthony and Mike Schmit were the 1-2 punch as the Altamonte Majors marched to a second-place finish to Belmont Heights of Tampa in the Major League State Tournament at Plant City.

Two years later, the same combo pitched Letterio and Altamonte to the World Senior League Championship in Gary, Ind.

"Anthony is one of the greatest competitors I've ever seen," Letterio said. "He just hates to lose and wouldn't let you beat him."

The foe may be a little different now. And it may hold an advantage at this point. It's a blood clot and a fractured skull instead of a .400 hitter or menacing curveball.

The front part of his skull is shattered, a blow the doctors confide would have been fatal to 90 percent of those involved.

But it wasn't fatal to Anthony Laszaic. He wouldn't let it be. That same competitiveness that surfaced on the baseball diamond reappeared again Friday night. And Saturday. And Sunday and Monday and Tuesday and Wednesday. He won't let it strike him out. He wouldn't let it take him downtown.

Competitive Anthony Laszaic won't lose the most important game of his life.

Crum, Smith To Match Wits

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two college basketball programs accustomed to NCAA Tournament late-round surroundings and a pair unfamiliar with advancing this far begin tonight to try and move north to the Final Four in Dallas.

Auburn and Nevada-Las Vegas meet in the West Regional semifinals at the Summit Arena tonight, followed by a matchup of two of college basketball's most respected programs, Louisville and North Carolina.

"But it doesn't make any difference who you are at this time of year," Louisville coach Denny Crum said. "All the teams that are left in this tournament can beat anybody else. It is just a question of who plays the best on which night."

"Anything can happen in this tournament. You have seen that already."

Tonight's opening game brings together two running teams. The second will pit a pair of the top coaches in the profession — Crum of Louisville and Dean Smith of North Carolina.

The Cardinals, 28-7, have won 13 in a row. The Tar Heels, 28-5, lost four of their last five games coming into the NCAA Tournament.

"People talked about how we were in a slump," Smith said, "and it's one of those things where the more you hear people talk about it the more you believe it."

"We had some injuries during that stretch, it is true. But we lost to some good teams (Maryland twice, North Carolina State and Duke). They all played great games and celebrated a lot at the end."

While Louisville and North Carolina have 18 Final Four appearances between them, Auburn and Nevada-Las Vegas have one. The Runnin' Rebels made it to the Final Four in 1977.

"Over the last three years we have played very good basketball," Rebels coach Jerry Tarkanian said. "And we have played good basketball this year."

"We just haven't been able to get over the hump in the tournament. This year we got over the hump. Now, we have to try to go farther than that."

"But this is a very good team we are playing. Auburn won by 16 points against St. John's (in last weekend's second round) and the score still doesn't tell the story. They beat St. John's rear from the start of the game."

"I think Auburn will run with us," Tarkanian added.

Auburn coach Sonny Smith, whose team was seeded eighth in the region, said there was no question his team would try to race up and down the court with the fast-paced Rebels.

"If we have the ball we are going to run with it," Sonny Smith said. "I tell our guys to run. We may run to the airport after the game is over, but we are going to run."

"We get wild running down the court and get in the wrong lanes and don't look like we know what we are doing."

North Carolina guard Steve Hale squeezes out of the defensive pressure by Utah's Albert Springs. UNC didn't have much trouble with Utah but the Heels will have a rough go with red-hot Louisville tonight in the West Regional.

Confident Kentucky Makes Dallas Plans

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Kentucky Wildcats are confident travel plans for Dallas and the Final Four will be needed.

"I don't mean for it to sound like we're being cocky," Kentucky guard Roger Harden said. "But we really believe we're going to win the national championship."

The Wildcats will need four victories to earn their sixth NCAA title — two in Atlanta and two in Dallas.

In tonight's Southeast Regional semifinals, the fourth-ranked Wildcats, 31-3, face No. 19 Alabama, 24-8, for the fourth time this season, and No. 6 Georgia Tech, 27-8, takes on Louisiana State, 24-11. The winners play Saturday for a Final Four berth.

"We're very confident right now," Harden said. "Coach (Eddie) Sutton has gotten the most out of us. He's the reason we're doing so well."

Sutton is in his first year at Kentucky since coming from Arkansas to take over for Joe B. Hall. He guided the Wildcats to the Southeastern Conference title in both the regular season and league tournament.

"Some years it all goes right and it did for us this season," Sutton said. "These guys are overachievers. They have given more than 100 percent."

Kentucky is 3-0 against Alabama this season. The Wildcats are also 3-0 against LSU. The only team playing in the Southeast Regional that is not a SEC member is Georgia Tech, a former SEC member now in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Sutton said he would rather

Basketball

Kentucky was not playing Alabama. "Not because we've already played three times, but because Alabama is better than some of the other clubs that made it to the final 16," he said.

Kentucky beat Alabama 76-52 at Lexington, Ky., and 73-71 at Tuscaloosa, Ala., during the regular season, and 83-72 in the SEC tournament finals at Lexington.

Kentucky and Alabama advanced to Atlanta via Charlotte, N.C., where the top-seeded Wildcats knocked off Davidson 75-55 and Western Kentucky 71-64. Alabama beat Xavier 97-80 and Illinois 58-56 on a last-second shot by Terry Coner.

"Hopefully, our basketball team has learned from what it did wrong in those first three games (against Kentucky)," Alabama coach Wimp Sanderson said. "On a couple of those occasions, we beat ourselves. We know we've got to rebound with them and keep our best players in the game."

Georgia Tech, the No. 2 seed in the region, and LSU advanced via Baton Rouge, La., where the Yellow Jackets beat Marist 68-53 and 1985 NCAA champion Villanova 66-61. The Tigers, playing on their home court, beat Purdue 94-87 in overtime and 12th-ranked Memphis State 83-81 on a last-second shot by Anthony Wilson.

"For LSU, even on their home court, to beat Memphis State says a lot," Cremins said.

No Sleeping Bag Is Required

Gibson Vows Lake Mary Invitational Won't Be Marathon

By Chris Pieter
Norfolk Sports Writer

Leave the sleeping bags and tents at home, this year's Lake Mary High Invitational will not be another marathon. Lake Mary girls coach Mike Gibson promises that.

"We've only got 10 boys and 10 girls teams so there's not nearly as many people," Gibson said. "We'll be through this year a lot sooner than last year (1 a.m.)."

The meet gets underway at 4 with the field events and running preliminaries. Running finals will start at 7. Lake Mary boys coach Mark McGee said, if everything goes smoothly and the weather holds up, the meet should end between 10 and 10:30 tonight, if not sooner.

While Seminole, the defending meet champion, will be the big favorite on the girls side with Lake Howell and Lake Brantley chasing, the boys meet may be a toss up since defending state champion (4A) Seminole is sending its top people to the Bob Hayes Invitational in Jacksonville on Saturday.

With Seminole's full team not on hand in the boys division, Evans' Trojans will be the favorites with their strength in the field events leading the way. Lake Brantley, the defending meet champion, will give chase.

The 10 teams on the boys side will include

Track/Field

Seminole, Lake Mary, Lyman, Lake Brantley, Oviedo, Edgewater, Winter Park, Boone and Evans. The girls teams will be the same except that West Orange will replace Evans.

Seminole High's girls will have the services of sophomore Dorchelle Webster once again. Webster, who walked off the team last week apparently unhappy with running the hurdles, is entered in the open 440 along with the long jump, high jump and relays. Webster owns the second fastest time in the county in the quarter.

Sophomore Shownda Martin is coming off a tremendous performance in last week's Lyman Invitational in which she scored 22 1/2 points with first places in the 440 and 880 and fourths in the long jump and high jump.

Another performer for the Lady Tribe who had an outstanding meet last week is sophomore sprinter Ramona Jamison. Jamison, in her first year running track, leads Seminole County and is among the best in the state in both the 100 meters and 200 yard dashes.

Seminole will look for strength in the field events from shot put-discus throwers Adrienne Smith, Sonja Montgomery and Diana Mitchell.

Lake Mary's Lady Rams are strong in the sprints, hurdles and long jump and they are looking for some top-notch performances in a pair of stacked relays.

In the sprints, Anquetette Whack and Tonya McCrae lead the way along with Tonya Lawson. Hurdler Jodie McCurdy placed in both the 330 lows and 110 highs at the Lyman meet and Oneya Berry and Tabatha Gano are also strong in the hurdles. With Lawson, Whack and Tonya Gordon, Lake Mary has three good long jumpers and Jennifer Caputo leads the way in the high jump.

Coach Gibson said he is expecting his 440 relay and mile relay teams to turn in good times. The 440 relay team will consist of Whack, Berry, McCrae and Lawson. McCurdy, Berry, McCrae and Lawson will run the mile relay.

Lake Howell is led by experience in the distance events with Len Samuels and Martha and Mary Ponceon in the mile and two mile and Ange Smith in the 800. Sprinters Nicole Compton and Maxine Martin have also performed well for the

Guides: Go With The Flow To Catch Bass

Bass guides always like to find moving water. They realize that moving water is a natural attraction to bass and most other species of gamefish.

Areas with water movement attract and toss baitfish around, providing an abundant food supply. Bass will not have to expend much energy in the pursuit of food, and the result is that larger than average-sized bass are found in such areas. Larger bass are more energy efficient and do not like to waste a lot of time and energy in the pursuit of food.

Moving water not only affords a food supply. It is also usually cooler and more oxygenated than surrounding waters. This produces more active fish which fight better.

In addition, moving water also diffuses light better than calm water. Areas with current flow are better producers during cold fronts or sunny conditions such as the middle of the day.

Bass usually face up-current and expect their forage to be swept down to them. Any lure moving upstream will seldom draw a strike, especially from larger fish. The eddies off the main current are prime holding areas for bass. Cast your lure up-current and work it back across the eddy line. The eddy line is where the edge of the fast water borders the slower moving water. Along this eddy line is where most of the bass will strike.

Light tackle should be used when fishing in moving water. Heavy line creates too much drag and hinders the action of the lure. Spinning tackle with 6-10 pound test line is excellent for this type of fishing.

Crankbaits are very effective in areas of moving water. Lures having a foil finish or a shad finish are productive. Many of the larger bass are deeper, and crankbaits can work down through the current to draw strikes.

Another tactic is to twitch a Rapala on top, making the lure resemble a helpless baitfish. If this fails to draw action, reel the lure slowly in, making it look like an easy target for a lazy bass.

It is important to "match the hatch" when fishing moving water. Many times the bass are feeding on ditch minnows or other small fish, and large lures do not draw any strikes. At times such as this, an ultra-light spinning outfit rigged with a tiny Rapala is absolutely deadly.

Jim Shupe

GOING FISHING?

Although the St. Johns River already has a current flow, this body of water has many areas of faster flowing water. The mouth of Snake Creek, the mouth of the Little Econ, and the south end of Puzzle Lake are a few good spots.

During periods of water fluctuations, the St. Johns also has many run-off areas. These areas can provide red hot action while there is a current flow. As soon as the water level changes and the current flow stops, the fishing action comes to a stop.

If areas of strong current flow are good for bass, it would stand to reason that areas of still or stagnant waters are poor fishing. Oxygen is often depleted in still waters, and the water temperature is also higher.

We have all had the experience of moving too far away from the current in the river. A while back you were catching bass, but all of a sudden you are knee deep in mudfish and gars. These rough fish thrive in areas of still water and often reside in the backs of sloughs and other areas of stagnant water.

Remember, if it's bass you want to catch, "go with the flow!"

SHUPE'S SCOOP — When fishing with artificials it is important to be flexible. We have all heard fishermen make comments such as "if I can't catch a bass on a topwater plug, I don't want to catch one." Good fishermen are versatile, and match their lures to fishing conditions. Remember, fish will not adjust to you; you must adjust to them.

FORECAST — Once again, the weather sabotaged the weekend fishing. March is historically a windy month, but this weather is getting to be depressing. Dell Abernethy from Osteen Bridge reports that speckled perch are in Woodruff Creek, the lily pads around the mouth of the old river channel, and near Marker 7. Jugging is the preferred method for catching these fish. A no-Alibi jig fished with a Missouri Minnow is the best bet. Dell said that the bass are there, but poor weather has kept fishermen at home.

Ron Rawlins from Highland Park said that the speckled perch are bedding in the lily pads of Lake Woodruff. Jugging is the best way to catch these fish in the heavy cover. Some catches have run as high as 40 specks per boat. Bass fishing is slow, but is expected to improve with the next full moon.

Large seatrout are still being caught at Sebastian Inlet. Freshling live shrimp around the lip of the north jetty is the most effective way to catch these trout. A few snook to 16 pounds are also being caught. The chairtrout Maverick is the hot lure for snook.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that offshore fishing has been non-existent due to high seas. Flounder and bluefish are providing steady action in the Port. Action at New Smyrna has been restricted to the river. Plenty of bluefish and scattered trout are keeping anglers busy. Sheepshead are biting well around channel markers and bridge pilings.

Pats Snap Skid, 11-4

By Scott Bander
Special To The Herald

ATLAMONTE SPRINGS — Lake Brantley's baseball team did something that it hadn't done in a long time Wednesday night. The Patriots won a game. They broke their six-game losing streak with an 11-4 victory over the Boone Braves in nonconference action before 133 fans at Lake Brantley High School.

"We really needed this game," a relieved Lake Brantley coach Mike Smith said. "It feels great to finally win one." The Pats last won on Feb. 19.

Pitching has not been the Patriots' forte in the past four games as they have given up an average of 12 runs per outing but senior Tim Smith turned in a strong effort against the 7-8 Braves.

The senior lefty fanned seven and surrendered seven hits in 6 1/3 innings. Senior Mike Beams came in for Smith in the top of the seventh and recorded the final out.

"Tim set the tempo of the game," junior Andy Dunn said. "We played as a team tonight and I think that it showed in the outcome of the game."

Beams agreed. "This was a very big win for us," he said. "We needed to get our confidence back."

Brantley, 4-10, which scored 13 runs in a losing effort last Friday against Lake Howell, jumped out to an early lead in the bottom of the first. Beams led off the game with a single off third base. Beams stole second and advanced to third on Dunn's ground out to short. Senior tri-captain Mike Davis singled to center to give the Patriots a 1-0 lead after an inning.

The Braves retaliated in the top of the third with a pair of runs. Left fielder Dennis Maschinot led off with an infield single. Senior Jeff Chambers then hit a grounder to Patriot third baseman Mark Coffey. Coffey could not handle ball and charged with an error. The error advanced Maschinot to second. Paul Gay followed with a single to center scoring Maschinot and advancing Chambers to third. Coffey made his second error of the inning allowing Chambers to score.

The Patriots came right back with six big runs in the bottom of the frame to put the game away. Pitcher Smith walked to start off the inning. Beams followed with a single down the left field line. Dunn doubled into left center scoring Smith and moving Beams to third.

Tim Smith

Mike Beams

At this point Braves coach Terry Abbott yanked starter Andy Gardner and replaced him with Mike Galloway. Galloway was greeted by Davis with a base hit up the middle that scored Beams and Dunn. Davis took second when the Braves tried to gun Dunn out at the plate. The Patriots were far from finished, though.

Mark Coffey walked and Dan Beaty followed with a single off the left field wall scoring Davis and moving Coffey to third. Dave Rabaja then singled to center scoring Coffey. Beaty moved to third on the base hit. Ray Sylvester got on base when Braves third baseman Todd O'Donnell booted a grounder. The error scored Beaty to end a very long and productive Brantley inning.

The game was far from a masterpiece defensively. The Patriots had six miscues while the Braves committed four.

The Pats blew the gameopen in the bottom of the frame with three runs. Davis struck out to begin the inning but took first when the ball got away from catcher Paul Mears. Mears tossed the ball to first baseman Darron Johnson who promptly dropped the ball giving Davis a free base. Davis moved to second when a Brave pickoff attempt from Galloway sailed over Johnson's head. Coffey singled to center to score Davis. Coffey took second when center fielder Paul Gay overthrew Mears in an attempt to get Davis out at the plate. Pat Lusk singled down the left field line moving Coffey to third. Lusk then stole second base. Second baseman Rick Koch then blasted a base hit up the middle that scored Coffey and Lusk. The two runs made the score 10-3 Patriots after five innings.

The Pats got another run in the bottom of sixth. Dunn cracked his second double of the night to start the inning. Dunn took third on a wild pitch and scored when Coffey doubled.

The Braves did add a run in the top of the seventh but it was a case of too little, too late.

The Patriots return to Seminole Athletic Conference action on Friday when they travel to Lyman to take on the Greyhounds at 7 p.m.

Hawks Are Flying High

Howell To Test Streak Against No. 1 Lake Mary

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

If there is, indeed, a good time to play the No. 1-ranked team in the state, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks couldn't have found a better time than this Friday.

After disposing of Orlando Edgewater, 6-5, Wednesday afternoon at home, coach Birto Benjamin's Hawks pocketed their fifth consecutive victory and are flying high for Friday's 3:30 p.m. Seminole Athletic Conference invasion by Lake Mary's Rama. The Rama are 16-0 and have been the top-ranked team in the Class 4A Florida Sports Writers Prep Poll since Week 1.

"They beat the socks off us the first time," Benjamin said about a Feb. 10 Apopka Rotary Tournament meeting. "The way we're playing now, though, if we keep our mistakes to a minimum, it will be a very good game."

Two weeks ago, Lake Howell was going nowhere with a 5-5 record after making six errors in a setback to Orlando Oak Ridge. The next day they pulled out a last-inning win over Boone, which was the launching pad for the five-game tear.

"Yes, we're won five in a row, but they've won 16 in a row," Benjamin was quick to point out. "I'd say they were a little hotter than we are. It will be a good test for us to see if we are on the right track."

Benjamin said he will pitch righthander Craig Wagner (1-2) Friday. The hulking righthander picked up the win in Friday's 14-13 victory over Lake Brantley. Lake Mary coach Allen Tuttle said he's go with Neal Harris (3-0) or Sean Flaherty (2-0).

Benjamin's ace, senior

righthander Jim Read, earned his fourth win in five decisions by limiting Edgewater to six hits and struck out six Wednesday. The Eagles got all five runs off Read in the fifth. Four were unearned as Howell made three of its four errors in the inning. Read also issued three walks in the frame.

Checked for three innings, Lake Howell, 10-5, exploded for four runs in the fourth inning. Ed Taubensee reached on an error by the second baseman and Chris Norton walked. Mark Schnitker followed with a booming triple to right center for a 2-0 lead. Shortstop David Martin singled up the middle to score Schnitker and stole second base. One out later, Marty Golloher singled over the shortstop's head for a 4-0 edge.

Edgewater pulled ahead, 5-4, in the top of the fifth but the Hawks pushed across the tying run in the bottom of the inning and put the game-winner on the board in the sixth.

In the fifth, Ernest Martinez walked and scored when Damon Marlette tripled over the center fielder's head for a 5-5 game. In the sixth, Tom Boucher singled and stole second. Golloher beat out a slow roller for an infield hit and one out later, Ernest Martinez walked again to load the bases.

Marlette then drew another free pass to force in a run and collect the game-winning RBI.

In one other prep game Wednesday, Lyman dropped a Wednesday 10-5 decision at Winter Park. The Greyhounds, 5-7, had runners on second and third in the top of the sixth when a 10-minute rain shower suspended play and the umpires called the game.

Winter Park, 12-4 and ranked No. 10 in the 4A poll, jumped all over loser Sandy Hovis and reliever Kenny Oswald for seven runs in the first inning and tacked on three in the second for a 10-0 advantage.

Lyman pecked away with three in the third, one in the fourth and one in the fifth before the rains discontinued play.

In the third, freshman Chris Radcliff singled to right and two outs later raced home on a booming double to left center by Byron Overstreet. Overstreet went to third on a passed ball and Chris Brock walked. John Burton's fielder's choice brought home Overstreet as Brock beat the throw to second. When the second baseman let the ball roll into the outfield, the runners moved to second and third. Bill Henley singled to center for the third run but when John Bane also singled, Burton was thrown out at the plate.

In the fourth, Dale Stevens walked and Radcliff spanked another single to right field. One out later, Darren Boyesen singled to right for the run. Overstreet and Brock both backed the center fielder to the fence for the final two outs.

In the fifth, Burton singled to left and Henley singled to right. Bane walked before a throwing error by the catcher allowed Burton to score.

In another interesting matchup Friday, Oviedo's Lions, ranked the No. 3 team in the Class 3A poll, entertain Bishop Moore's Hornets in an Orange Belt Conference clash.

Bishop Moore handed coach Howard Mable's 7-1 Lions their only setback.

Fonseca Twins Split Paths En Route To Prep Success

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

When they first arrived at Lake Howell High, it was pretty tough to tell twins Martha and Mary Fonseca apart — both on and off the track and the cross country course.

As freshmen, they ran stride for stride in practically every meet for the Lady Silver Hawks. But, after their sophomore year in cross country, their performances became less and less identical.

While Martha continued to improve, Mary struggled to fight off leg injuries which kept her from reaching her potential. While Martha developed into one of the finest cross country runners in the state this past season, Mary was just starting on the comeback trail.

This past Friday night, Martha continued to establish herself as one of the premier distance runners around while Mary proved she, too, is back on track.

"The Fonsecas have really come alive the last week and a half," Lake Howell coach Tom Hammontree said. "They've taken up the slack when Lisa (Samocki) got sick and then hurt. The more they run the more confidence they get in themselves."

Both Fonsecas, now juniors, ran their personal bests in the mile and two mile Friday night in the Lyman High Invitational which was held at Lake Howell High.

Martha won the two mile and ran a 4A state-leading time in the process with an impressive 11:31.9. She was also third in the mile with a time of 5:15.2 which is second in Seminole County and fifth in the state.

Mary chopped over 30 seconds off her previous season's best in the two mile with a time of 12:02.8 which currently ranks fourth in the state. Her time of 5:34 in the mile is now fifth in Seminole County.

"Martha is probably the most improved athlete in cross country and track this season," Hammontree said. "And she's worked awfully hard to get there."

The Fonsecas, who also excel in the classroom, are starting to come into their own in track after being key ingredients for three seasons on the Lake Howell cross country team that finished second, fourth and second in the state.

"They've both done a fantastic job," Hammontree said. "It's exciting watching them blossom. They're very close so they like to talk to each other and tell each other to pick up the pace or hurry up and not fall behind. That's one thing they learned from cross country."

Hammontree said there are still times when he has trouble telling the identical twins apart, but he knows how it feels.

"Being a twin myself I can sympathize with them," Hammontree said. "I was used to Martha Fonseca slows down after entering the chute.

being called by my brother's name all the time. It's still hard sometimes but I've pretty much got to where I can tell them apart."

With Mary coming back strong, and Martha keeping consistent, it may be just as hard to keep them apart on the track as off in the future.

IN BRIEF

Reading Of Calendar Inflames Controversy In Women's Tennis

NEW YORK (UPI) — A burning issue in women's tennis these days concerns how to read a calendar. Martina Navratilova believes in the traditional January to December version. Understandably, her chief rival, Chris Evert Lloyd, has no objection to the year ending in March. The difference in the two calendars adds up to $50,000. The controversy is created by the fact the Virginia Slims Championships, determining the overall points leader for 1985, is being played now. The last two years there was no problem inasmuch as Navratilova already had clinched the title prior to the finals.

This time, Navratilova leads by only 140 points, and with 400 points waiting for Sunday's winner, Evert Lloyd can overtake her. The points champion will receive a $250,000 bonus, along with first-prize money of $125,000, and the runner-up earns a $200,000 bonus.

Navratilova, who meets Bonnie Gadusek tonight in the quarterfinals, believes she already has proven herself No. 1 based on her 1985 record.

Evert Lloyd remained in contention for the 1985 crown Wednesday night with a routine 6-2, 6-4 victory over Barbara Potter. In the other opening-round matches, Pam Shriver swept the final 12 games for a 6-3, 6-0 victory over Carling Bassett and Helena Sukova outlasted Kathy Rinaldi, 6-7 (6-8), 6-3, 7-6 (7-5), in 2 hours and 15 minutes.

Slump Continues For Tribe JV

The offensive slump continued for Seminole High's junior varsity Wednesday as it was held to just four hits and the defense didn't fare much better as it committed nine errors in a 7-1 loss to Lake Howell at Seminole High.

Seminole, which fell to 3-8, was held to just two hits in a 1-0 loss to Lake Brantley on Tuesday. Seminole's hits Wednesday, all singles, were by Tony Smith, Ron Cox, Jerry Blankenship and Leonard Richardson.

Seminole returns to action Wednesday, April 2 at home against DeLand. Lake Howell improved to 6-3 with the win.

Sewell, Reyes Lead Suzuki Rout

Jason Sewell struck out five and Lance Reyes roped three singles as Seminole Suzuki blanked Hardee's, 17-0, in a Seminole Pony Baseball Pony Division play last week. In three perfect innings this spring, Sewell has whiffed 9 of 9 hitters for coach Gene Oliver's club.

Rappin' Raiders Pound Georgetown

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
Rappin' is not what the Seminole Community College players do to keep busy between innings. It's what they do to the ball with their bats.

Coach Jack Pantelias' Raiders rapped out 14 hits Wednesday, including eight extra base hits, en route to a 10-4 victory over Georgetown (Ky.) at SCC.

SCC, 14-10 overall, will send Sanford's James Hersey to the mound today when they go up against Mid-Florida Conference foe St. John's River at Palatka. SCC returns home Friday for a conference game with Lake City then goes to Jacksonville Saturday to take on Florida JC. Bryan Maley will hurl Friday and Mike Walker Saturday.

Baseball

In Wednesday's game, SCC bounced back from an early 2-0 deficit with three runs in the bottom of the second, then pulled away with five in the sixth and tacked on two more in the seventh.

Georgetown scored twice in the top of the first off starter Harry Timmons and the bases were loaded with two outs when Jeff Carter came on in relief and got out of the jam.

SCC took the lead for good in the bottom of the second. Jeff Morgan led it off with a double and was bunted to third by John Moore. Leonard Thigpen then doubled to score Morgan and Lake Mary graduate Kevin Hill, who has been hitting a ton the past few games, followed with a base rap to plate Thigpen. After Tico Martinez drew a walk, Chad Sims singled to drive in Hill for a 3-2 SCC lead.

While Carter, who picked up the win, blanked Georgetown for five frames, the Raiders built the lead up to 8-2 with five runs in the sixth. Hill singled in the first run and two more scored on a double off the bat of Danny Moore. Mike Songini then singled in Moore and Oviedo's Jeff Greene drilled a double to chase home Songini.

SCC scored two more times in the seventh when Rick Given led off with a homer to right and Hill followed with a solo shot to left. It was the second homer in as many games for both Given and Hill.

For the day, Hill was 3 for 4 with three RBIs while Given slugged a pair of doubles and a homer. Songini and Thigpen were both 2 for 5 with a double and Danny Moore and Morgan both doubled.

Lee's HR Lifts Pants

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

McKee Development, Tim Raines Connection and Pants USA all opened with victories Wednesday night as the Sanford Men's Spring Softball League kicked off at Pinehurst Field.

Pants USA used a dramatic three-run homer by Carl Lee in the bottom of the ninth inning to outlast A.J.'s, 21-20. It was Lee's second round tripper of the game.

For A.J.'s, Lee Massie homered, doubled twice and singled twice and Mike Ferrell had a homer, two doubles and a single.

Brett and Bernie Von Herbulis combined to drive in five runs as McKee drilled Prestige Imports, 22-1.

The Connection used a two-run homer by Billy Griffith and two solo laterals by Doug Dowdy to drop Six Flags, 10-8.

League games are held at Pinehurst on Monday and Wednesday nights beginning at 6:30. Three games are played each night.

Lady Patriots Add Volusia

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots have already proved to Orange and Seminole counties that they're for real and, Wednesday afternoon, they added Volusia County to the list.

DeLand's Lady Bulldogs carried a 10-1 record into Wednesday's game but Volusia's beat was no match for the Lady Patriots as they banged out 12 hits and played near flawless defense en route to a 6-0 victory at Lake Brantley High.

The Lady Patriots ran their overall record to 13-2 with their fourth straight victory. Brantley returns to Seminole Athletic Conference play (2-1) today at home against Lyman.

"Everything's starting to fall into place for us," Lake Brantley coach Renny Betris said. "We're getting some breaks, but it's really the kids that are making it go our way. They're playing excellent ball."

Leading the 12-hit attack was Laura Davis who was 3 for 3 and she also came close to a personal record when she fouled off 13 straight pitches. Kim Wain and Heather Meyer added two hits each.

Meanwhile, Niki Burke, one of three outstanding pitchers for Brantley, tossed a seven-hit shutout and walked just one. Burke was back by a solid defensive performance led by shortstop Tracy Brandenburg who had six assists and five putouts including a diving catch of a short pop up down the left field line.

In one other game Wednesday, Lake Mary's Lady Rams lost their fourth straight, 5-0, to Daytona Beach Mainland's Lady Bucs at Daytona Beach. Lake Mary had nine hits in the game but couldn't score and its defense continued to struggle as Mainland had just two hits but pushed across five runs.

LADY HAWK RESCHEDULED

The Lady Hawk Invitational Tournament will resume action this Saturday at Red Bug Park. After three games were completed this past Saturday, the remainder of the tournament was postponed by rain.

The tournament will pick up where it left off with Colonial playing Seminole in the completion of one game and Boone playing Winter Park in the other, both slated to start Saturday morning at 8:30.

In last Saturday's completed games, Lake Brantley defeated Lake Mary, Oviedo downed Orlando Oak Ridge and Boone dumped West Orange.

Host Lake Howell will open play Saturday against the winner of the Colonial-Seminole game. Lake Brantley plays the Winter Park-Boone winner.

Rozelle: Union Drug Plan Ineffective

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle has branded ineffective the players union's new drug proposal, which features limited random drug testing and lifetime suspensions for three-time drug offenders.

"I do not feel that the proposals which were announced today will solve the problem," Rozelle said Wednesday in a statement released from his New York office several hours after the union's package was revealed. "I hope that the Players Association and the (NFL's bargaining group) Management Council will negotiate further in order to develop a more effective solution."

Football

The three-tiered plan unveiled by NFL Players Association executive director Gene Upshaw during a news conference was the largest single concession the union has made in the area of drug use by players.

The proposal included random testing of players who test positive for illegal drug use during urinalysis conducted during the league's annual preseason physicals. But the plan did not include random, mandatory drug testing for all players, as Rozelle is demanding.

The NFLPA's plan also represented the first time the union has accepted a program of fines and suspensions for players who are repeat users of illegal drugs.

"The NFL players have recognized the fact that we have a responsibility not only to football, but to society," Upshaw said.

Upshaw said the NFLPA's executive committee endorsed the plan Saturday and would present it to the league's 28 player representatives during their April 22 meeting in Hawaii. If approved there, the union would propose it to the Management Council as an amendment to the present collective bargaining agreement, which has no specific stipulations outlining punishment for drug use.

Lady Hawks along with discus thrower Mary Kay Scott and shot putter Sarina Winston.

Lake Brantley has one of the up and coming sprinters in freshman Chelsea Trotter along with a pair of fine hurdlers in Cathy Wild and Jennifer Burrows. Heather Camino has turned in an ironman-like performance in the distance events. In the field events, high jumper Susan Appleby is tied for the county lead and tied for third in the state at 5-2 and discus thrower Debbie Lovelace in second in the county. Lyman is led by senior high jumper Kim Forsyth who comes in with a best of 5-1 along with distance runner Julie Greenberg. Hurdler-long jumper Kelly Price leads Oviedo.

In the boys meet, the county teams will get a chance to see how they stack up against each other since there are only four other teams.

"This meet should give us a chance to see how it stacks up in the Seminole Athletic Conference," McGee said. "We know Seminole is the favorite to win the conference but the other teams are pretty close."

Lake Mary's strengths are in the sprints with Jeff Pommier and Erwin Edwards and the distance with Ken Robb and Eric Peterson. Danny Ferris has come on strong in the shot and discus with Cecil King the leader in the long jump and triple jump.

Lake Brantley has strength in the field events led by throwers Andy San Angelo, Jeff Petersen and Jim Conchelos along with high jumper Joel Miller and pole vaulter Chris Derden. The Patriots' also have one of the top sprinters around in Cornelius Friendly and one of the best hurdlers in Sam Sears.

Lake Howell is strong in the distance events with Anthony Howe and Phillip Buster in the mile and Jeff Van Bueckirk in the 800. In the field events, pole vaulter Dylan Rowe leads the way.

Lyman high jumper Ralph Philpott has cleared 6-9 once and 6-9 twice since joining the squad and just missed at 6-10 1/2 last week. Oviedo's top performer is Karl Wright who excels in the long jump and hurdles.

Union Man's Wife Due Explanation

DEAR ABBY: John and I are young grandparents. I go to my daughter's home quite often on weekends to baby-sit. We live in New York, my daughter lives in New Jersey. John encourages my visits, but he stays home, saying he has business meetings to attend or people he has to meet for business. I accepted that because he's very active in his union.

One weekend I stayed home with the flu. John was home, too. The phone rang and I answered it. A woman said, "This is Marion. Will you please tell John we are waiting for him?" Then she hung up. I could hear loud music in the background that sounded like she was calling from a party or a bar. When I gave John the message, he turned red and said, "It must have been a wrong number." It reminded me of the time he called me "June." My name is Terry.

Is this man a sinner or a saint?
GRANDMA TERRY
DEAR ABBY: If your suspicions are correct, he's a sinner.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Against Tipping" was good but misleading. The IRS does not force waitresses to pay tax on tips they did not get. The current rules are the same as they always were. The waitress is required to keep a daily record of tips and report them to the employer once a month, so that the employer can deduct the proper tax, just as he does on the other wages.

It has long been the practice of some waitresses, waiters and other service persons not to report the tips at all. Therefore, the IRS has ruled that the employer must include an amount equal to 8 percent of that employee's sales on the W-2 form as "allocated tips."

If the employee has done his (or her) duty and reported the actual tips, then this is already included in the taxable wages, and the "allocated tips" mean nothing. If the required reporting has not been done, the employee may still use his own record for figuring the tax on tips. However, if no reporting or record keeping has taken place, the allocated amount is the amount that person must pay tax on. This is only fair. The United States is the only country in the world where the government allows taxpayers to tell what they owe. The least we can do is be honest.

Abby, please print this to set your readers straight.

OKLAHOMA C.P.A.
DEAR C.P.A.: I've printed it. I hope my readers are set straight. I am. And thank you for not billing me.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: On the subject of introducing people when you don't know their names: As a tennis official for the last 50 years, I've traveled all over the world and met a lot of people, and it's impossible to remember all their names. This is how I handle it:

If I'm with a person whose name I know, and someone whose name I don't know comes up to me, I say to the one I don't know, "You've met John Doe, haven't you?" One of them will either say, "Yes," or "No, my name is John Jones — pleased to meet you."

If you don't know either person's name (and it's happened to me), I say, "You two have met before, I'm sure." One of them will say, "No, my name is Joe Blow," then he extends his hand to the other.

It's never failed me. Just make your statement and shut up, and one of them is sure to say something. It works. Try it.

"Muscle Spasm" Is Too Vague For Advice

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — What kind of specialist should I see for my condition? It's like a muscle spasm that affects the whole left side of my body...

antihistamine, decongestant and cough medicines have warnings on the labels that say not to use these medicines if you have high blood pressure...

DEAR READER — Many decongestants contain medicine that can raise blood pressure. Therefore, a person with hypertension should check with his or her doctor before using compounds of this type.

DEAR READER — Your description is too vague for me to give you any concrete advice. Saying something is "like a muscle spasm" isn't really specific enough...

DEAR DR. GOTT — Recently, while having dinner, I had a few glasses of red wine, after which I had the scare of my life. Two or three hours after dinner, when I went to urinate, my urine was a dark red...

DEAR READER — Although the red wine may have contained a pigment that you subsequently excreted in your urine, I think you should have a urinalysis to make sure that the red discoloration was not blood. Check with your doctor for an evaluation...

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Here is a simple little deal with great potential for declarer error, particularly if you try for overtricks. What should be significant is that you start with eight top tricks and need to find only one more to make your game contract...

club honors could also work badly for you with other plays, such as a low club to dummy's 10. (Now a singleton club honor in East's hand would keep you from making a second club trick.)

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...
YOUR BIRTHDAY MARCH 21, 1986
In the year ahead, you will establish an important friendship with a person who is slightly older than yourself. He will be the type of pal who can be counted upon when needed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might have to make a difficult decision today. Your judgment will prove to be right even though you might temporarily upset an associate.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) It will mean extra steps for you and even a bit of inconvenience, but it's best to shop around today and compare prices before making a major purchase.

This can result in a profitable day for you if you keep your mind on ways to make or save money. Focus on dollar signs and ignore the peripheral happenings.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An important plan can work out as you envision it today, even though you might be plagued by some self-doubts. Keep your mind on victory, not defeat.

The Fairytale Life Of Katharine Hepburn

By Mark Schwed
UPI TV Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — She wears it well, this movie star Katharine Hepburn, and she has had it all. A love affair with Spencer Tracy, the admiration of her peers and a fairytale life that comes only to a lucky few were all in the cards for Hepburn — a woman known for her snappy wit, bold and brassy character and pure-bred Connecticut elegance. Now, Hepburn, 76, is mellowing and coming to terms with her glamorous life. She's refreshingly unaffected by all the adoration heaped upon a movie legend. Mention her record four Academy Awards for best actress and she dismisses them with a snoot and a wave of the hand.

"If you have a very good part, unless you are an awful frump, you're going to win an Academy Award," she says. She is all smiles, her frizzled gray hair pulled back in a bun, head held high as a proper Connecticut woman would, and dressed for comfort, not show. She wears an old black turtleneck, a worn black sweater vest, pink drawstring pants, cherry red socks, and battered clogs. It is her style to be at ease. "I have a happy nature," she says, leaning back in an easy chair in her four-story brownstone apartment in an historic section of Manhattan. "I mean, I like good food and chocolate and I like laughter. And why not?"

"I go to bed early and I get up very early. It's the habit of a lifetime. That's why, I suppose, I always liked the movies. I think trying to be fascinating at 8 o'clock at night is my idea of something absolutely hellish."

"I take a nap, eat a steak, I eat a bowl of ice cream with a lot of chocolate sauce and I hope I wake up." The things that bring her pleasure are not the usual Hollywood flash and glitter. They are a good book, her backyard garden, walks in Central Park, bicycle rides around her neighborhood and sun shining through the windows. And a good part, movies like "Adam's Rib" or "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" And Tracy, a man she could never marry, and her latest work, "Mrs. Delafield Wants to Marry," airing on Easter Sunday (CBS, March 30, 9-11 p.m. EST).

Hepburn strikes a match and lights the paper crumpled beneath the Connecticut-grown beech logs in her fireplace. As the fire crackles, she sits back down in her easy chair. Outside, it is crisp and cool; the sky is spring blue. She smiles her her magical smile again, and it works wonders, just like in the movies.

"I'm happy. As long as the car goes, I'm going to be driving it. I think I've had wonderful use of it so far."

Still running smoothly, the motor thrives on work, not acclaim. Hepburn has won more Oscars than any other movie star, and she has never picked up one of them. One award came in 1967 after her last movie with Tracy, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner." He died three weeks after they finished the film.

After years of mystery, Hepburn has broken silence on the subject of her costar to promote the PBS special "The Spencer Tracy Legacy: A Tribute by Katharine Hepburn."

Her life seems infinitely more peaceful since she decided to talk about her love for the man she called "Spence."

She was a headstrong, elegant New Englander. He was an irascible, hard-drinking Wisconsin. They starred in nine films together, beginning in 1941 with "Woman of the Year." They were inseparable but their life together was not easy. Because of his devout Catholic faith, Tracy never divorced his estranged wife and Hepburn never relinquished her independence.

"I just don't think you meet that many people who you can stand. There are people who, for no reason at all, you get on with them. (But) people's monogamy is a very peculiar state."

In "Mrs. Delafield Wants to Marry," Hepburn plays a wealthy old widow who has a love affair with the younger physician, played by Harold Gould, who saved her life. Her children do not approve of this man. He's divorced and Jewish. She's Chippendale and gentle.

"She's alone and he's alone and they meet and it's really nice," Hepburn says. "They just want to travel along the road together. The opposition to this is very interesting and I think terribly funny and I think very moving."

"It's a wonderful story," Hepburn says. "I think people like wonderful stories. I can't believe that it all has to be downbeat."

Proposed Bill Will Triple State Funds

By Sarah Fischer
Herald Staff Writer

A bill slated to go before the Florida Legislature this year would triple state funding to Seminole County's public library system, County Library Services Director Jean Rhein said.

The public library financial assistance act was one of the topics discussed at Tuesday's meeting of the county library advisory board.

According to Ms. Rhein, the proposed legislation provides for the taxation of book wholesalers and retailers for support of public libraries.

This year, the county received $120,000 in state assistance and could receive up to $300,000 in 1987, if the measure passes in the legislature, she said.

Statewide, the tax would mean $18-21 million for public libraries who qualify for the funds under Florida statutes, Ms. Rhein said.

She called the measure "extremely positive for providing a consistent level of funding from the state to public libraries."

The local library advisory board was briefed on the legislation, which is being drafted, Ms. Rhein said, adding she may ask the board to support the bill at a later date.

The bill, introduced into the state House of Representatives earlier this month, would levy a two percent tax on book wholesalers and retailers, according to Charles Parker, chairman of the Florida Library Association's legislative committee.

The association, which will be active in lobbying for the legislation, assisted Rep. Sam Bell, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, in preparing the bill, Parker said.

Prime sponsors of the bill also include Representatives Tommy Hazouri, Alzo Reddick, Bud Gardner and Dixie Sanson, he said.

Parker said backers of the legislation are "optimistic" about its passage, although they do anticipate some resistance to it by members of the publishing industry.

State legislators, he said, "have recognized the need to adequately fund public libraries and the need for an innovative approach to providing a dedicated revenue source not subject to year-to-year state funding."

According to Parker, the legislation would establish a trust fund under the current state aid to libraries program, which matches local public library expenditures.
