"The Waifs," starring Jane Grey and William Desmond is the story of a young Episcopal clergyman, who is made drunk before his colleagues by the practical joke of some underclassmen, who have doctoried the party punch with brandy. As a consequence of his disgrace he is untraced and cast out.

Hiding from persons who know him he sinks lower and lower in the world until his money is gone and he can get no more to drink. The prank of the freshmen has awakened in him an inherited craving for liquor which he is now unable to satisfy. At last he yields up the cross which has been given him by his bishop, as the price of one last drink, and then, consumed by shame he tries to commit suicide by throwing himself into the river.

But he is saved by "Rags," a girl who plays the piano in a cheap saloon, and she, ignorant of his high station helps him to get back on his feet. When he does return himself somewhat he opens up a sort of workingmen's club where they may find clean recreation and uplift.

So well does the club work out in fact that its good work comes to the bishop's attention. Much pleased by the atonement of his young friend the bishop remonstrates him. And then into the life of "Rags" comes the other wife, the daughter of his bishop. This young man makes his choice for her. He asks "Rags" to become his wife. And she—she realizes what it will mean to stand at his side as a lady. Glorious thoughts come crowding to her mind and then she adopts a course that makes the punch to this splendid scene.

has married the other woman, and her son, the stepson of the doctor, has taken his stepfather's name and succeeded to his practice. Dr. Lund gives a party to which he invites some of the members of the circus. Young Dr. Lund is much impressed with Peg. He has known her only an hour and determines to ask her to be his wife. Mrs. Lund sees the strong resemblance of Peg to the animal trainer, and speaks of it to her husband. Young Lund follows Peg into the garden just before midnight and asks her to be his wife. She is about to consent, when her mania attacks her as the clock strikes twelve, and she tries to choke him. She rushes away, enters the house, and, finding Mrs. Lund alone, attacks her savagely. Then she flies out into the garden. Flip the clown, fears the result of her inheritance and finds her in the garden in a faint and carries her to the train, just in time to catch the last car. Young Lund determines to follow her. His father tries to restrain him, but he rushes on in his auto to intercept the train at the junction. He makes a daring leap from the auto to the train, only to be thrown off by the trainmen who refuse to believe he is the son of the circus owner.

"Meena's Romance" Teaches Thrift

Thrifty people are looked upon as people who are trying to save money. There are, however, thrifty persons who economize only because it has been bred in them, and not because they need money at all. Just such a person is little Meena, in "Little Meena's Romance," a new Triangle Fine Arts release.

She is a little Dutch girl born and brought up on a farm in Pennsylvania, and all she knows about life is that cleanliness is above godliness and that idleness is vice. Consequently, when after the death of her father she goes to the magnificent New York home of her aunt to live, she just naturally never thinks to tell them that in her old telescope bag she has a fortune of her own.

In her luxurious surroundings she tries to go on living in the old manner. She cannot bear to see the maid mopping off the front steps but insists on getting down on her knees herself, with the scrubbing brush. She cannot understand why, with so many servants there should be dust on the things in the foyer. In short, she makes herself very obnoxious to her relatives by obeying her ruling passion, the hatred of dirt and they decide to send her back to her little Pennsylvania home. As she won't take their first hints, they put her bag into her arms. And the bag comes apart, revealing the treasure within. Of course, that's different, so they let her stay.

"The Dream Girl" Extraordinary Photoplay

With the exception of "The Star," the most talked of drama of the year is a strikingly realistic film. It is the first feature length photoplay to be made in America which does not contain a single lie. Directed by George M. Cukor, it is based on Mae Murray's production of "The Dream Girl." But the story is not the same at all. The plot is more or less callous, but the acting is superb. Some scenes are extremely exciting, others are intensely dramatic. The story is told in two parts, the first being the most interesting. When the second part starts, the girls are still in the same place. Her thoughts and after the scene, she reveals her apathy to the audience.

One of the cleverest bits of acting ever seen on the screen is said to occur in the last part of the Lasky production of "The Dream Girl," in which Mae Murray will be seen in the stellar role. The incident is between the distinguished artists, Theodore Roberts and James Neill, when one as the dissolute father of a girl in the slums meets the dignified grandfather of a wealthy young man. This little incident alone is said to be worth going miles to see. "The Dream Girl" is a Paramount Program picture.

Love's Greatest Test in New Hart Drama

Rehearsals of the drama of "The Aravans" forthcoming Triangle Feature

An unusual theme is developed with rare power in "The Aravans," William S. Hart's new Triangle Feature. It is the story of a man who has been cast out of his tribe for his sins.

The approach character of the presentation is unique. The author, a conductor, has written the music.

The play is to be presented in three acts. The first act is to be followed by a curtain call.

The second act is to be followed by another curtain call.

ness dissolves in the light of his faith.

In the end he rides off alone across the desert to begin life anew, friendless except for the memories of the little girl with whom he has just parted, probably forever.

The part of the girl is exquisitely filled by Bessie Love, and Louise Glaum makes of the dance hall siren a revelation in remarkable feminine transformations.

Pauline Frederick in "Zaza" Coming

The story of the immortal drama "Zaza," which has been adapted as a photoplay by the Famous Player Film Company, with Pauline Frederick the foremost emotional actress of the screen in the title role, and which is to appear on the Paramount Program at the Star, Thursday next week is as follows:

Zaza is a popular singer in one of the gayest musical halls in Paris. She leads a very tempestuous life and is much sought after by the beaux of the town. One night she meets Bernard, a man about town, behind the scenes and after a frivolic flirtation falls deeply in love with him. It is not long before she establishes her in an apartment, where they live happily for several months.

Her infatuation for Bernard is the only real and lasting emotion that Zaza has ever experienced and she dedicates her whole crude nature to the task of making him happy. It is therefore a terrible blow to her when she discovers that Bernard is married and has a little daughter. Stung to the depths of her savage nature by the darts of the jealousy she exacted, she plotted for revenge. Then she went to the police and accused

LATE FIGURES ON KNOTT ARE GIVEN BELOW

CANDIDATE GIVES TABULATION AS IT NOW APPEARS

Claiming a total gain of 302 votes, given him by recounts in various counties, Fulton ~~not included~~, Mr. V. Knott, former state comptroller and unsuccessful candidate in the primary of June 6, according to the ruling of the state canvassing board has issued another statement. This time the statement comes in printed form, valy proofs from Tallahassee and comprises three columns. The tabulation of votes gained on the various recounts shows Mr. Knott 12 votes ahead of the majority given Mr. Catts by the canvassing board, these being Mr. Knott's figures.

The canvassing board gave Catts a lead of 260 votes over his opponent. This was before recount proceedings were started. However, the count of the canvassing board still holds, insofar as possession of the certificate of nomination is concerned.

Mr. Knott puts the odds of the election upon the shoulders of his supporters, telling that Mr. Catts' statement is待ing in regard to the nomination.

In considering the case, however, the fact must not be overlooked that I did not start the fight for the nomination," Mr. Knott said.

Mr. Knott's statement follows:

R. V. P. T. Notes
The Duke R. V. P. T. is thriving under the new regime of officers. For the month July 1st, after Mrs. S. C. Kennedy will be the very efficient president; Miss Eunice Rimes, secretary and Miss Marion Gove, Mrs. Hurley, Messrs. Mathison Wright and Forrest Gatchel, captains of the groups. The four groups will be known respectively as the R. V. P. T. groups.

Missess Minnie Stewart, Rosamond Radford, Mrs. F. F. Gatchel, Dr. Goo Homan and Mr. F. F. Gatchel will represent this union at the R. V. P. T. Encampment at Lake City and bring along with them the very pleasing information that "Our" union ranked only a few points of ranking highest in the state and easily took second honors. Last Sunday evening Mrs. Hurley's group rendered an interesting, helpful program having for the subject, "May I Expect God to Take Care of Me when Danger Threatens?" Mr. J. R. Land Wildman gave a ten minute address on "Our R. V. P. T. and Broader Culture."

Next Sunday evening the union will meet at the regular hour at the regular place, third floor of the Baptist Temple. Mr. Gatchel's group will have charge of the program. Visitors most cordially welcomed.

ENGLAND AND RUSSIA ADVANCING

ALLIED POWERS ARE STILL MAINTAINING GREAT SQUEEZE

After the recent decision of the Supreme Court of France that the British submarine campaign against shipping in Dutch waters was illegal, Mr. Catts' citizen would question the right of such a statement, and the record made by Mr. Catts as well as myself, in the last two days, to the effect that the British submarine campaign is illegal, and that it is the duty of the United States to insist upon which I know an immediate action with preference to other places.

"That mistake was made on the first tabulation of the votes in every county of the state has now been clearly demonstrated. All that I want and all that I will claim an account for is an accurate tally and a correct count, and in demanding that I believe I have the support of all fair minded Democrats of the state of Florida.

It is difficult for me to understand why my opponent should so strenuously resist a fair and accurate count of the ballots as mandated by the electors."

The progression of recount practices so far has given Mr. Knott the following gains:

Alachua county a gain of 54 votes for Knott and a loss of 116 votes for Catts or a relative gain for Knott of 12.

Baldwin county recounts in three precincts with a gain of 23 votes for Knott.

Suwannee county a gain of 84 votes for Knott.

Leon county a gain of 10 votes in two precincts recounted.

Flagler county, five precincts gained 100 votes.

The county, a gain of 3 votes due to an error in the figures when transfer was made from tally sheet to sheet for the canvassing board.

These figures give Knott a total gain to date, on the recounts and the error in Clay county of 303 votes, or 43 votes more than Catts majority as certified by the state canvassing board.—Jacksonville Metrop. 2.

Most of the teachers for Seminole county's excellent schools have been appointed and as soon as the entire list is completed the Herald will publish the same.
