Georgia Tech Has Abundant Material For Football Team

Squad Must Be Rated As Favorite Among Clubs Of Southern Conference Elevens

Outfit Is Faced With Hard Games

Coach Has Placed Two First Class Teams On Field For Practice

By Ed Danforth
International News Service
Staff Correspondent
ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 21.—No matter which way one may attempt to turn there is no escaping the obvious—Georgia Tech's football squad must be rated the favorite in the Southern Conference season soon to start. The Jackets won the championship last year and most of the players who rendered that triumph possible are back. In addition there is new and talented material. Hence you may draw your own deductions.

This correspondent attended a scrimmage at Tech the other day in which two first class elevens took part. Lots of coaches around the circuit would be well satisfied to have the players that coach William Alexander was using on his second string machine.

One of his teams was made up of Waddy and Holland, Ends; Speer and Thrash, tackles; Drennon and Washbrook, guards; Pandcenter, Smith, Quarterback; Thomson and Mill, halfbacks and Randolph, fullback.

Running against these boys was a club composed of Jones and Von Weller, ends; Watkins and Mares, tackles; Brooks and McEve, guards; Bush, center; Durant, quarterback; Dunlap and Lumpkin, halfbacks and Fitzgerald, fullback.

New to properly appreciate the worth of all that material you must consider the fact that the latter team was manned almost entirely with substitutes.

Then in addition to all of that more news is that good football players watched the scrimmage from the side line. Make no mistake William Alexander has ample material at his command this fall, at least.

Some of the boys may be sniped off by the faculty before they get into the first game of the season but there will be only a few, if any. Then it is obvious that there are plenty of men to carry on.

Coach Alexander has been making rapid strides in practice, because most of the players reported in good physical condition. Hence there was no need for wasting time conditioning players, as some coaches invariably have to do.

But while Tech has a fine crop of material it also faces one of the hardest schedules in its history. Tough opponents will follow another over the horizon, like troops marching to war. For instance in one continuous row the Jackets go against Vanderbilt, Alabama, Auburn and Georgia. That steady parade of opposition is something for even a well stocked club like Tech to worry about.

For once the Tech club takes to the road for two games. Both of the trips will be confined to the South, one being to North Carolina University, the other to New Orleans, where Tulane will be encountered.

The one big spot in the calendar is the game with Notre Dame. That boys is the big fish that Tech hopes to land and right now there are those who are inclined to believe that for once Tech is backed for big game, such as Notre Dame represents.

Four Graduates Of Comedies Are Seen In Milane Picture

Four graduates of the Mack Sennett cartoon school were brought together again when "Beau Broadway," coming today in the Milane Theatre was filmed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio as the first of a new series of Low Cody-Aileen Pringle comedies.

Mal St. Clair, the author and director of the production, was a Kingston "top" property man, scenarioist and director on the old Sennett lot.

Low Cody "beated" in the old bathing girl picture and provided a scintillating "muscle" to many Sennett beauties who since have produced stardom in dramatic productions.

Ernie Conline, who plays a blackface role, used to trade beads in a walrus costume in the bygone comedies and probably has tasted more custard pie than any humor actor.

George O'Hare, more normally a fighting scene star and who prepared the script for "Beau Broadway," was a Keystone burlesque film center and "egg" man.

When the four ex-Sennetters gathered together for the making of "Beau Broadway" at the M-G-M studio, they raised their hands and made a solemn pledge.

"We may contend 'egg' was their vow.

SOUTHERN OPENS AT LAKE LAND FOR ITS 42ND SESSION

SOUTHERN COLLEGE, LAKE LAND, Sept. 21.—(Special)—Students, faculty, and patrons of Southern College assembled Wednesday at 10 o'clock in the college auditorium to celebrate the opening of the institution's forty-second year. Presided over by President Louis M. Spivey the exercises were simple but impressive.

Chapel Exercises Held Wednesday But Class Periods Are Delayed

Appearing on the platform with Southern's chief executive to participate in the opening program were J. Edgar Wall of Tampa, president of the board of trustees; Hervey W. Laird, secretary of Lakeland's chamber of commerce; Dr. Ben F. Rogers, editor of the Florida Christian Advocate; Dr. W. H. Norton, presiding elder of the Barlow district; and the leading ministers of the city.

Storm Delays Classes

Delay of students in leaving their homes as a result of the general confusion of the storm made it necessary to postpone until Thursday first class activities of the new college year. President Spivey and his faculty staff originally had planned to hold first classes of the year on Wednesday but communications received from numerous students from over a scattered area immediately following the storm announcing their delayed departure, caused the Southern president to reach a decision for postponement. Nearly all of the 500 students expected had reported tonight and classes will get under way tomorrow according to the scheduled postponement.

Storm Damage Cleared

The campus has been cleared of the slight wreckage caused by the storm and general opening activities were proceeding with usual precision. The campus is back to normal and with the usual influx of students has come the usual campus enthusiasm. The students are in high spirits and talking in terms of a great year for their alma mater.

Dean Carl E. Cox and Borer Water G. Bepp have been in their office since early Monday morning registering the continuous stream of students. The majority of Southern's students are from within the state, but Dean Cox's figures show the usual large percentage of out-of-state registrants.

Giant Cause Not Entirely Lost After Splitting Two Game Affair With Cards

St. Louis Team Maintains Lead In Pennant Race When They Divide Double Bill With New York Aggregation

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—If you asked the St. Louis Cardinals today, they would tell you that they are riding side-saddle to the National League pennant after winning the first game of their double-header with the Giants yesterday.

If you asked the writer, he might venture to say, that after the Cards had won and then had blown the second game, the Giants' cause is not as hopeless as might be indicated by their two-game deficit with only one remaining to be played.

There is something psychologically disquieting to any club when it goes into the eighth inning behind a 4 to 2 lead. With its favorite pitcher in operation, and can't protect its advantage. What makes this commission all the more tedious is the fact that a victory in this second game virtually would have carried with it the National League pennant.

Six batters away from the goal of their heart's desire and yet unable to reach it. If Alexander, seemingly about to score his first decision over the Giants this year simply had failed to get the batters out, he might lift a care-free shoulder and call it a break of the game. But Alexander, far from blaspheming though he might be, had to see the first run of the inning

Birmingham Barons Get Second Straight

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 21.—(INS)—The Birmingham Barons have a struggle hold on the play-off series with Memphis today, as the result of their second straight victory, 10 to 4. Another victory will give the Barons the series and the right to represent the Southern League in a post-season series with Houston, champions of the Texas League.

Infection Follows Injury

Friends of W. C. Satcher, who recently sustained severe injuries to his leg when a machete, used by him on a surveying expedition, inflicted several large cuts, will regret to learn that he has been compelled to stay confined because of infection in the injured limb.

Card Game of Sept. 20 the Great "Convincer" for One Club or the Other

If the Cards win tomorrow, however, the Giants very well might forget the matter as hurriedly as possible.
Still, these mathematical certainties at the end of a pennant race have a way of turning into mathematical interrogations. The Cardinals naturally are well "up" on the situation and must so remain until we see what, if anything, happens tomorrow.

Coal Shortage Danger Is Minimized As Big Strike Opens For Another Winter

Labor War Continues With Union Negotiating Contracts In Particular Sections; Operators Want Industry Revivified

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (INS)—America faces another winter with the soft coal industry still in a demoralized condition.

While mining operations have been cut down considerably, officials predicted, however, there is no danger of a coal shortage. The big industries generally have stocked up this summer, and sufficient coal is being dug each week to supply domestic consumers.

The labor war continues unabated on a dozen fronts. The United Mine Workers of America has been forced to recede from its demands for the $7.50 a day minimum wage scale, and is negotiating working contracts, in individual rather than on a national scale. Some of the larger companies, notably the Pittsburgh Coal Company, in which the Mellon family has an interest, have steadfastly refused to deal with the union.

Breaks All Records

For duration the labor strife has broken by far all records in industry.

On April 1, 1927, the union miners of the central competitive field of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania went on strike to maintain the existing wage scale. They realized they faced an enormous task. The territory immediately to the south was non-union and its steadily into the markets formerly held almost exclusively by the union operators. Large companies in Western Pennsylvania and Ohio had thrown over the union on the plea they could not meet successfully the open shop competition.

A Senate committee investigated and reported that conditions in the Pittsburgh district coal fields were a "blot on American civilization."

Charles M. Schwab, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and other leaders testified of their willingness to join effort to revivify the bituminous industry. Congress adjourned without proposing a legislative cure.

Burdened with the job of earning a livelihood and with the union relief all but exhausted, many miners started drifting back to work. The policy committee of the union, heading pleas from certain strong groups, consented to allow the district organizations to negotiate wage scales on the best basis they could obtain.

Operators Resist

Here some resistance was met with operators, several of whom refused to treat again with the union. An Ohio group demanded a wage based on a competitive scale with non-union West Virginia. Some operators signed up, others continued to employ miners without regard to their affiliations.

Scores of smaller mines have shut down, saying they cannot make money under the present chaotic conditions. Rockefeller recommended a policy whereby the high-cost and uneconomical mines would be closed, and his Consolidation company, one of the largest, is pursuing that plan.

No solution appears in sight.

Before One Stores Her Summer Things

The last rose of this summer, now withering on many a once dainty dress, may become the first rose of next summer. Or it may bloom on with a new beauty through fall and winter, if given the right care.

In other words now that your wardrobe has come to the end of the season for which it was planned, look over your pretty flowered gorges and gapes. Can you wear indoors through the cooler weather? Then be sure that the summer's dust and soil are removed before you launch them into a new season. Do you intend putting them away for next year? Then more than ever do they call for thorough cleaning.

Huge Volume Of Money In Call Loan Field Pictured As Big Menace To Market

Sudden Withdrawal Of $50,000,000 Can Make Tight Situation Despite Fact That Call Loans Now Total Over Four Billions

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (INS)—Because of the close relation of security prices and borrowing rates for money, investors in prime securities should pay special attention at this time to money market problems and the unusually high rates for both long and short term loans. The bankers complain that the large volume of "outside money" in the call loan market is a menace to the peace and security of the financial markets at this time, for the reason that sudden withdrawal of any large portion of these funds might throw the market into an extremely embarrassing position. Despite the fact that the total volume of call loans is above four billion dollars, bankers point out that a change of from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 in the supply of money available in any one day can make the difference between extreme tightness and abundance in the call loan market. Last week's bank statement showed that the total volume of call loans made "for the account of others" by the banking institutions was no less than $1,808,645,000, nearly 45 per cent of the aggregate of loans made to brokers and bond distributors through this channel. The banks of course act as agent, but they frankly admit their uneasiness at the huge influx of outside money in the call loan structure. They feel just about as the bankers would feel if 45 per cent of their business were suddenly shifted to the bankers, or as the painters would regard a 45 per cent shift in their business to the grocery trade. But this is not the greatest menace to the safety of the financial markets, at this time. The calling of loans, or at least the possibility of withdrawing money whenever needed from the call loan market is a highly technical matter, and the regulations of the call market cannot be rigidly enforced without causing considerable hardship to those who have a speculative stake in the movements of stock prices. For that matter, the calling of all mortgages on real estate, or the closing out of commercial loans without full or partial renewal on their due dates would bring on a panic such as this country has never before seen, and in the nature of things it is expected that a large proportion of maturing obligations will be renewed at maturity. The banks work on that theory in advancing money on call, though at times they appear somewhat stony.

heated in their grabbing in of money loaned "for one day at a time" in the call loan market; if they attempted to recall a few hundred millions in the same day, say 6 per cent of the total amount thus tied up, they simply would create an impossible situation, and the money could not be made available. Now the bankers fear that the corporations and outside money lenders who are supplying 43 per cent of the call market funds may be forced or otherwise inclined to withdraw their money "in large amounts and without warning," presenting another unsettling factor in market conditions. In other words, the bankers have lost their grip on the call money market, and are not very well pleased over the situation. They fear for the safety of the markets, no doubt, as well as for their own prestige.
