Sewer Service Stirs Debate On Sanford Housing Plans By LEONARD KRANSDORF

Herald Staff Writer

A discussion of the city of Sanford's commitment to low and middle income housing arose Monday night while the city commission tackled the problem of whether to provide sewer service to a new housing development outside the city limits. The request for the service came from Condev Properties Inc of Winter Park which is planning to build 56 units on Geneva Road tepresenting the development company was Joseph Gardner who appealed to the city for the service stressing the need for the type housing the company would provide.

Following Gardner was Rev. Ames Jones.
"I would hope you gentlemen could support this because this area needs low-income housing," said Jones. "People in this area ere in need of decent housing." The city commissioners also heard from Horace Orr, director of

Defectors Want To Return

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (UPI) - A U.S. Consulate official in Leningrad has confirmed a former cryptographer at the super-secret U.S. National Security Agency at Fort Meade, Md., Bernon F. Mitchell, has contacted American officials regarding the possibility of returning to the United States.

Mitchell, 49, and a colleague, William H. Martin, 47, were employed as junior mathematicians in the NSA's cryptography department, when they defected to the Soviet Union in the summer of 1960. Their defection caused an uproar in U.S. defense circles because it was believed they carried with them information concerning the inner workings of the agency.

Fighting Erupts In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - A shock wave of violence and bloody clashes between Christian rightist militiamen erupted today and one of those killed was the son of the former president of Lebanon.

Seminole Opts For Secrecy

When will they ever learn? When will public officials - both of the elected and appointed variety - learn that secrecy never pays? When will they learn that trying to circumvent - if not the letter, then the spirit of the law - just doesn't pay?

The questions arise because of the secret session called last week by County Administrator Roger Neiswender of all department heads in county

The meeting was held outside the courthouse about as far outside as they could get and still be in Central Florida - at Errol Estates Country Club in Orange County. There was no advance notice either to the media or, more significantly, to the board of county commissioners.

Only Commission Chairman Dick Williams knew of it, it was learned later. And he chose not to inform his fellow commissioners.

Both Mr. Neiswender and Mr. Williams defend the practice of these unannounced sessions, claiming that private businesses do it, so why not public bodies?

The question should be rhetorical, and if neither Mr. Neiswender nor Mr. Williams recognizes the difference between private businessmen doing private business and public officials doing public business, then we really are in trouble.

Mr. Neiswender claims that the meeting did not violate the Sunshine Law. Technically, of course, he is correct since no elected officials apparently were there. But, again, it is the difference between the letter and the spirit of the law. And, importantly, what perception is created in the public eye from such actions.

Mr. Neiswender further claims that the presence of reporters would have inhibited the free flow of ideas. "In that form," he claims, "anyone can say what they want without fear of it being misquoted or misinterpreted."

We regret that Mr. Neiswender has less than full confidence in the press, but regret more that he has opted to shut out the public by shutting out the press in its attempt to report on public business.

Is it better to have an occasional "misquote" emanating from a presence in a public-oriented meeting, or have nothing because the public's right to know has been negated?

We are satisfied that no county funds were expended for last Friday's secret meeting. But we do wonder how the department heads can justify using county-taxpayer time for such a meeting. If they had wanted to use such a glamorous setting as the country club in Orange County, why not get together on the weekend and take full advantage of Commission Chairman Williams also noted that he "doesn't see any public business being involved in those meetings". Just what is his definition of "public business?" Just because votes are not taken and policies not established does not mean that public business is not being transacted. The whole matter is distressing. It raises more questions than it answers and tends to further erode whatever is left of the public's trust of its public officials.

We are disappointed that Mr. Neiswender has decided to call similar meetings in the future. But, if he does - and as he claims, the meetings are not newsmaking sessions - what would be the harm of notifying the press of such meetings? There would be no news to report anyway, according to him.

We are puzzled by the persistent inclination by public officials to cut corners when dealing with the public, rather than exercising complete openness. There is and never will be a substitute for open government. Even the perception of anything less harms the entire system and hurts governmental operations in the long run. Then government officials wonder why the public is so skeptical about them and the bureaucracy. But one thing is clear. If nothing else, Messrs. Neiswender and Williams have learned something: There is no such thing as a secret meeting. The word will out.

Oh, when will they ever learn? BERRY'S WORLD

By MILTON RICHMAN

ABILENE, Texas (UPI) - Sammy Baugh hasn't touched a football in 12 years but he figures he has thrown enough of them to Slingin' Sammy Baugh, they called him, and every time his name was mentioned it was instantly associated with only one thing - the bullet pass. Nobody in the world could whip that football like Slingin' Sam. Baugh's first coach in the professional ranks was Ray Flaherty. He was handling the Washington Redskins and on the very first day he saw his prize prospect fresh from Texas Christian at practice in 1937, he decided to find out about him. "They tell me you're quite a passer," Flaherty said "I reckon I can throw a little," Baugh answered in that soft Texas drawl of his. "Show me," Flaherty commanded. "See that receiver over is. This particular story about Sammy Baugh happens to be completely true, though. Nobody ever had to bother building up Toothpick-thin as a player, Baugh, a 6-footer, played at 175 and is 172 now. The crow's-feet around his eyes are a little deeper and At 64, Baugh spends most of his time running his ranch at

Rotan, 70 miles up the line, and any time he finds a chance, he drives to Abilene or nearby Sweetwater, where he was raised, to Twice named an All-America at TCU, Baugh is enshrined in both the College and Professional Football Halls of Fame. He led the NFL in passing six different times, throwing the ball for 21,886 yards and 186 touchdowns during his career. He not only could iso kick and his 45.1 yard punting average still is an NFL record. In 1943, he led the league in passing, punting and pass interceptions and if you ask him which one achievement he's proudest of, he singles out those intercepted passes.

"When I first started in the pros, you had to play both ways," says Baugh, who was used as a tailback and later quarterback on offense for the Redskins and a safety on defense. over Seminole Petroleum. "They didn't pay a helluva lot when I came in the league, either. got $6,000 my first year with the Redskins and that was considered good money. Best I ever made was $19,000." Of all the men he met in football, Baugh says he respected George Preston Marshall, the late owner of the Redskins, most. "He got a lot of good things done for the game. Passers had no protection at all when I first came into the league. Marshall called me into his office my second year and told me we had to get some rule passed to protect the passers or all of us would be killed. He worked on it and finally, he and George Halas (of the Bears) got a rule passed that helped."

Jai Alai

The best two football players he ever saw, says Baugh, were Ace Parker and Bob Waterfield; the best passer around today, in his opinion, is Baltimore's Bert Jones, and the one who reminds him most of himself is Houston's Dan Pastorini. After he was through playing, Baugh served as head coach, first at Hardin-Simmons University then with the old New York Titans in the original AFL. He also was backfield coach at Oklahoma State and Tulsa and with the Houston Oilers and Detroit Lions. Baseball actually was his first love and he went to spring training with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1938 as a third baseman. They converted him to a shortstop and sent him to Rochester of the International League. Later he also played for Columbus of the American Association. "With Columbus, the fellow I remember best was Ted Williams.

He was a rookie with Minneapolis and our players always would get on him because he'd go out there to the outfield, stick his glove in his pocket, turn his back to the plate and do exercises while the game was going on. But when he got up there to bat, man, oh man, never saw a hitter like him. He'd hit the ball so hard, it would knock a board off the fence. "Me? I just couldn't hit the curve ball and changeup."

WASHINGTON (UPI) Loan guarantees to New York City, energy legislation, tax cuts, welfare and Civil Service reform: the list of major legislation before the Senate grows with each passing day of debate on a labor law reform

The Senate is now in its 15th day of a filibuster over the hotly contested legislation, which would make it easier for unions

And although Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd hoped to break the filibuster today or Wednesday, opponents of the bill still have a raft of 600 stalling amendments they may use to keep the Senate tied up for days or even weeks. The Senate took time out Monday to welcome its newest

The House planned a full day of debate today on a controversial proposal that would allow Medicaid abortions only to save the life of the woman. The amendment is contained in a $57 billion appropriations bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare for fiscal 1979. On Monday, the House voted 237-143 to stall governmen plans to require airbags in cars by prohibiting any Transportation Department funds from being spent on the project in the coming fiscal year. However, the vote may be largely symbolic because the Senate voted by a 2-1 ratio earlier this year against blocking the airting decision. The House also asked President Carter to consider a trade embargo and other measures against Uganda because of its history of human rights viola-

In committee hearings: -The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee looked at two proposals that would make it easier than it is now to fire a civil service employee. One would require the employee to prove the firing was "arbitrary or capricious," while the other would require the governme to fire a worker. Current language requires the government to provide "a preponder ance of the evidence."

- A State Department official told a House subcommittee the United States wants a Palestinian representative to participate in possibl negotiations on a future Palestinian entity in the Middle East - but it should not be a member of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) - Continuing to rebut testimony from death camp survivors, Feodor Fedorenko retakes the stand today in his own defense in the third week of the trial that could strip him of U.S. citizenship

Speaking through a Russian interpreter Monday, Fedorenko said he had served as a guard, but never volunteered. "They didn't ack. They told you to go and if you don't, they shot you down like a dog." The 70-year-old Ukrainian, who had retired to Miami Beach after working in a Waterbury, Conn., brass factory, said he never whipped or shot any prisoners. Earlier prosecution witnesses related experiences in which they said Fedorenko lashed prisoners with a steel-tipped pistol he carried at his side.

I was saving my life, or else they would execute me. If you didn't listen, they'd execute you right away." he told defense attorney Gregg Pomeroy. Fedorenko said he was mustered into the Soviet army two days after the Germans nvaded in June 1941. His outfit was encircled after three weeks of fighting, and when he and his companions tried to escape, they were captured. He was finally transferred to Treblinka some time in 1942. "I don't know why they picked us and told us to guard."

Mom In Murder Trial: Son 'Looked So Wild'

By DENNIS FEOLA Herald Staff Writer

Rosa Mae Payne, testifying today for the defense, said her son, Ernest, beat her husband to death

At the close of Tuesday's proceedings the jury heard Payne say and he is Jesus Christ.

"He was insane, I know," Mrs Payne said, "because he wouldn't have done that. Ernest loved his father, he wouldn't have done that," she said. On the night of the murder, Mrs. Payne said, she was sle when she heard her husband of 40 years call out for her. She said she went to his bedroom and saw Ernest standing over him. "He was looking so wild," she said of her son, "he just looked so wild, he frightened me." She said her son didn't hit her. o get me though," she said.

She testified her son was "different four years in Vietnam. She said some days her son would rant about I side the house. He would pin the curtains closed in his bedroom, as saying. "He looked wild, he looked frightened," she said. On the day of the murder, Mrs. Payne said her son stayed in the house. "He walked all bent over, like he was weak, he was ner yous. He walked like a man 60 or 70," she said.

Mrs. Payne was first witness for the defense prosecution rested its case after calling medical examiner Dr. C. V. Garay. He testified Thomas Payne died when he stopped breathing after being basten in the face. The medical examiner said several of the facial bones had been broken by a blunt instrument consistent with a fist.

A motion to reduce the second degree murder charge to manulaughter was denied by Circuit Court Judge Robert

The tape recording, played at the close of Tuesday's proceedings, was made at Seminole Memorial Hospital about 16 nours after Payne best his 65-year-old father, Thomas, to death. Payne was shot three times in an ensuing gun-battle with police, and he sounded groggy or heavily sedated as he told shoriff's department investigators about heating his father and shoeting two deputies after they arrived at the Payne residence in rural See MOTHER, Page 2A
