U.S. Activist Runs At Pope, Is Arrested

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — A U.S. anti-nuclear activist was arrested today after he ran down the aisle in St. Peter's Basilica shouting at Pope John Paul II during the concluding mass of a synod. Authorities identified the man as Thomas Siemer, 57, of Columbus, Ohio, who on other occasions has gained attention with public demonstrations pressing the pope for action on nuclear disarmament. Siemer recently admitted to having circulated a fraudulent papal encyclical on peace. Officials said Siemer disrupted the mass, which marked the conclusion of a monthlong synod of bishops on the laity, when he ran down an aisle of the vast basilica, shouting at the pope. It was not immediately known what he shouted.

Siemer was restrained before he could reach the pontiff and was arrested, officials said. An officer of the Vatican's Swiss Guards declined to comment on where Siemer was being held or what charges might be brought against him. Siemer drew attention in November 1983 when he fell off a police barricade in St. Peter's Square in an effort to hand an anti-nuclear message to the pope. He sustained a broken nose and other injuries in the fall. Siemer, the father of seven, worked at a nuclear arms plant before becoming involved in the peace movement and staged a hunger strike for peace in a Rome church in 1982. Siemer recently sent a statement to the Rome office of United Press International in which he admitted his authorship of the counterfeit encyclical on peace. The fraudulent papal letter, titled "Resurrectio Pacis," or "The Resurrection of Peace," declared that it is a sin for Catholics to help build or deploy nuclear arms. The pope has called for nuclear disarmament on a number of occasions but Vatican Secretary of State Cardinal Agostino Casaroli declared in 1983 that the possession of nuclear weapons for deterrence is morally justifiable. In his statement, Siemer said he distributed the tract, which was photocopied with the mast head of the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, to "create an interval in a delayed and much needed encyclical clearly banning nuclear weapons."

Leaders Optimistic On Summit Planning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, expressing optimism about a superpower summit, arrived at the State Department today to begin a new round of talks expected to lead to such a meeting and a treaty eliminating intermediate-range nuclear missiles. Shevardnadze, who arrived at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., shortly after midnight, arrived at the State Department at 8:55 a.m. EST and, when asked if there would be a summit meeting this year, said, "I'm a natural optimist," adding, "When the people are at work, results also come."

Service Tax Fight Opens

Martinez Advocates Repeal

From Staff And Wire Reports

While legislative leaders are holding a series of meetings throughout the state to drum up support for the sales service tax, Gov. Bob Martinez still wants the tax repealed and is not championing his position but rather relying on what he calls support from the voters' common sense.

The consumer services tax battle has been dominated by educators and lobbyists representing businesses targeted by the new levy, but legislative leaders say a series of public hearings on the issue might change that.

People jammed a city hall meeting room in West Palm Beach Thursday for the first of 12 statewide hearings. House Speaker Jon Mills and Senate President John Vogt said they hoped the forums will break a deadlock with Gov. Bob Martinez and help tip the balance in favor of the levy.

"If you can genuinely feel it's John Q. Public you're hearing from, you'd tend to follow what they want you to do, even if you thought it was the wrong thing to do," Vogt said. "If you're hearing from the same groups over and over, that will of course bias our feelings just like form letters bias our feelings."

"Success will be if at the end of this (four) people understand how complex and how difficult and how fast Florida is growing and how difficult it is to fund that," Mills said.

But many people who spoke Thursday at the meeting said the tax will hurt rather than help Florida.

"When I go to bed at night I don't worry about the Russians or Nicaraguans or even the Cubans," said Paul Arban, owner of an executive search firm in Jupiter.

"The people that I worry about are the Texans and the Georgians. Those are the people who can affect my income," Arban said. "They're in hard times right now, but when they come out of it, they're going to come out of it mean and lean and tough. I'm afraid that if we continue with this tax, tax, spend, spend mentality, we're going to get eaten alive."

He said the services tax will cost him $1,500 a month and put him at a disadvantage with his out-of-state competitors.

Stacy Addison, president of Flagler System Inc., owner of The Breakers, a luxury Palm Beach resort hotel, said he favors an increase of 1 percent or more in the sales tax on goods. He said conventioners who have canceled their meetings in Florida have cost his business.

"We know that we have lost in fiscal year '88 $1.8 million in direct hotel sales business because of the tax on services, specifically the tax on advertising," Addison said.

There is widespread agreement in Tallahassee, however, that some tax increase is needed this year because state services are falling behind population growth.

"We supported and fought very hard for the tax on services, because it was a relief for children," Gary Frechette, executive director of the Drug Abuse Treatment Association, told the hearing.

"We cannot depend totally on the United Way and other agencies that support children's services," he said.

The hearings continue in Fort Myers Nov. 3, moving to Fort Lauderdale Nov. 5, Panama City and Pensacola Nov. 9, Lakeland Nov. 10, Gainesville and Jacksonville Nov. 16, Orlando and Tampa Nov. 17, Miami Nov. 18, and St. Petersburg Nov. 25.

Veteran's Week Proclaimed

By Maryann Cross
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith has signed a proclamation designating the week of November 8-14 as "Veterans' Appreciation Week."

"As everyone probably knows by now, I just returned from a trip to the Soviet Union," Smith said. "I was reminded on that trip just how much we take our freedom for granted and to what extent we also take the people who fought for that freedom for granted. Our veterans have been on the frontlines fighting for freedom and safeguarding it. If I were a veteran myself, I would be discouraged sometimes by the lack of appreciation shown by the community.

"I hope to see a large turnout Nov. 11 at Veteran's Park for the parade and program. I'm urging all citizens to come out that day and pay tribute to our veterans."

VFW Post 10108 and its auxiliary are the host unit for this year's Veterans Day events. The parade on Nov. 11 will start at VFW Post 10108 on Myrtle Avenue, go south to First Street, then east to Park Avenue, and finally turn north to the lakefront at Veterans Memorial Park.

Seminoles Aim For Playoffs Against Oviedo

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole High, which last qualified for the state playoffs in 1981, can earn another berth in the Florida Class 4A Football Championship Program tonight with a victory over Oviedo High.

Kickoff is 8 p.m. at Seminole High's Stadium. Tickets are $3.50.

"We thought before the season started that the district title would come down to this game," Seminole coach Roger Beathard said Thursday. "I feel good about this game. We're ready to play."

The Seminoles are 2-0 in District 4A-7 play. Oviedo is 1-0. For Oviedo to win the district, it would need to beat Sanford and then whip Orlando Edgewater on Nov. 13. Both teams are 3-3 overall.

See related stories on page 7A

Both schools were idle last week. Two weeks ago, Seminole used a goal-line stand and some pinpoint passing by Jeff Blake to rally past Leesburg, 19-13. Oviedo dropped a 10-6 decision to Lyman in its last outing.

"Seminole has the best athletes that we have faced," Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said. "We can't make any mistakes on offense. We have to keep the ball away from Jeff Blake."

While Oviedo and Seminole battle for the 4A-7 title in Sanford, the District 5A-4 crown could be decided tonight when DeLand invades Lake Mary.

Coach Dave Hiss' Bulldogs, 5-1 overall, are 3-0 in 5A-4. A victory tonight would move them that much closer to a second consecutive district crown. DeLand has Port Orange Spruce Creek and Lyman yet to play.

Lake Mary, meanwhile, is in a must-win situation for itself and Lake Howell. The Rams and Silver Hawks are 3-1 in the district and must keep winning to force a three-way playoff. Lake Howell hosts Spruce Creek tonight.

Guards' Appeals Delayed

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

An appeal by two fired Seminole County jail guards was postponed Thursday by the civil service hearing board for one week.

Hearings on the appeals of Matthew McGill and Richard Blount, fired in the wake of the Aug. 27 suicide of arrested murderer E-John P. Betton on Aug. 27, were originally set for Tuesday and Thursday of this week. The appointments will now be the opposite, Wednesday and Friday, Nov. 3 and 4.

McGill and Blount are one of the four guards fired by Sheriff John Pata after the arrest of a inmate, within the night of the murder. The guards were accused of covering up the crime. The hearing board will hear the appeals for eight hours.

IN BRIEF

Academic Task Force Delays Changes in Malpractice System

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — An academic task force has delayed final approval of sweeping changes in the medical malpractice system for one week, reducing the likelihood of a December special legislative session on the issue.

The task force gave "preliminary" approval Thursday to a package that includes arbitration of malpractice disputes, limits on certain damages and creation of a new division in the Department of Professional Regulation to weed out incompetent doctors.

But the final vote was put off until Nov. 5, partly because of a request from the Florida Bar Association. Bar officials said they were concerned with some of the "technical" features of what is the heart of the task force package, a system to settle many patient-doctor disputes through arbitration instead of in the courts.

The task force's final report will be delayed now until probably the middle of November.

Jury Continues Deliberations

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — The jury trying to decide whether Theresa Jackson provoked her 17-year-old daughter's suicide by making her work as a stripper has requested explanations of Florida's child abuse law three times since beginning deliberations.

The jury of five women and one man began considering the charges against Jackson on Wednesday afternoon and worked all day Thursday without reaching a verdict.

Jackson, 40, is charged in the landmark case with criminal child abuse of Tina Mancini, procuring sexual performances by a child and forging a birth certificate to show Mancini was 18, the minimum age for working as a nude dancer in Florida.

Mills: No Changes in Gun Laws

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — House Speaker Jon Mills sees little chance the Legislature will reconsider newly liberalized gun laws in light of the bloody rampage in a Miami brokerage firm this week.

Arthur Kane, 53, picked up his .357 Magnum less than one hour before opening fire in a brokerage office, killing his stockbroker and wounding another before turning the weapon on himself. Kane has lost millions in the stock market plunge.

Police in Dade County asserted Wednesday that his rampage might have been prevented under Florida's old gun laws.

Crossings' Challenge: Recreation Or Shopping

County OKs Plat Waiver For Developer

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

If residents of The Crossings subdivision just outside Lake Mary don't exercise an option to the purchase a recreational facility in their neighborhood within 18 months, the present owners will demolish the club and put up a shopping center on the site.

Seminole County Commissioners Tuesday night, on a split vote, granted developers of the property a waiver in the plat, dividing 4.2 acres at Lake Emma Road and Greenwood Boulevard into two parcels.

A site plan for a restaurant to be built on the smaller of the two parcels was approved by the commissioners but they did not act on a preliminary site plan for the shopping center which could be located on the site of the present recreation club.

The club, formerly called The Club at the Crossings, was closed by the developers of Greenwood Lakes and The Crossings last winter after the owners said not enough members had been attracted to make it profitable. The owners then announced plans to build a shopping center on the site. The entire 4.2-acre parcel is zoned for office and commercial use.

However, when a request to divide the property was brought to the county in April, residents objected and the county requested a site plan for the area be prepared, although it is not a requirement for replatting.

Meanwhile, the developers negotiated with residents who wanted to keep the club and recreational facilities intact, and last July the homeowner's association signed a one-year lease of the facility, with two one-year options to renew, and an 18-month option to purchase.

Residents of the area asked the commissioners to delay action on the request to divide the property, saying they purchased their homes partially because of the inducement of having the club, pool and tennis courts available.

Resident Beverly Newcomer said prospective homeowners were all shown the recreational facilities when considering purchase of a home, and the facilities were described as a key part of the development.

Commissioner Barbara Christensen accused Florida

Land Co., developer of the property, with using the recreational facility as an inducement to sell homes in the development, with the intent of tearing the club down and building a shopping center after all the homesites had been sold.

"Who would have thought that a developer would put in a half-million-dollar recreational facility with plans to later tear it out and build a shopping center?" she asked.

However, commissioners Bob Sturm and Fred Streetman said the commissioners had no legal authority to block the owner of the property from developing it in any way he wants within zoning requirements.

Residents said they have every hope of making the club a paying proposition and raising the money to buy it and the rest of the facilities. They were assured by Streetman that the present lease and option to buy takes precedence over any plans the company may submit for a shopping center.

Streetman told residents who attended the meeting that if they want the recreational facilities to remain there, they will patronize the club and make it successful and help with the raising of funds to buy the property.

Authority Concurs In Expressway Link

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

The state DOT's proposal for the western leg of the proposed Seminole County Expressway, between the Wekiva River and Interstate 4, was concurred with by the county expressway authority Wednesday night after Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff questioned whether it should be a part of the expressway, or strictly a state project.

The route is just south of a railroad right-of-way from the river to Lake Markham Road, then curves north slightly and intersects with I-4.

Kirchhoff noted that no source of funds has been identified to build the road, and that the highway could not be paid for through toll revenues because the traffic wouldn't be heavy enough.

"If the DOT builds this road with no financial participation from this authority, why do we have anything to do with it?" he asked. He said the state could hold hearings and approve the route, then proceed to design and build it when it received funds for it, without any participation from the county expressway authority.

The authority voted 6-0 to concur with the DOT-recommended route, with Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith abstaining because of a possible conflict of interest.

Smith explained that six years ago she sold property on Orange Boulevard in the corridor study area. She said the property has been sold three more times since she sold it, but she still holds a mortgage on it and received payments on that mortgage.

"The expressway route in no way has any effect on that property, or my interest, but I will abstain and fill out a conflict of interest form to avoid any suspicion of a conflict of interest," she said.

Assembly Line For Refugees?

Efficiency? The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service knows what that's all about.

Just look at how the agency plans to streamline its handling of thousands of refugees seeking political asylum.

First, the agency would eliminate those cumbersome legal procedures that can drag on for months.

No more immigration judges. None of those time-consuming court-room rules. Instead, the INS would substitute its own "asylum officers." In-house experts who understand how to slice through red tape and decide quickly whether a refugee stays in this country or goes.

And, to help protect the privacy of the applicants—at least as the INS explains it—the hearings would be closed.

Never mind if the person seeking political asylum wants to tell his story publicly. The INS knows a closed hearing is what's best for him, and not, coincidentally, what's most expedient for the agency.

INS officials enthusiastically predict the proposed changes would help them catch up quickly with their backlog of 80,000 political asylum cases.

What the INS seems to have forgotten is the rule of law. America prides itself on its impartial and fair judicial system. It should apply to refugees as well as American citizens.

Respecting people's rights often involves hassles and delays.

Even so, few would suggest we dispense with legal safeguards in our courts and go back to frontier justice.

That is why the INS should continue to hear its political asylum cases before immigration judges. They work under the auspices of the Justice Department, just as the INS does, but they have a separate office and function as independent administrative law judges.

The INS should drop this ill-conceived efficiency proposal, which was described by one immigration attorney as "the single greatest attack on the rights of refugees that has taken place in this country."

The INS tried to sell its quick-fix, closed-hearing program by saying it would benefit the refugees.

Great harm might come to these individuals, argued the officials, if they had to stand up in public and talk of the dangers they faced in their native lands.

If INS officials truly believe the applicants' lives are in danger, the best protection is to grant them asylum.

Denying legitimate requests in secret is unjust to the refugees and makes a mockery of our laws.

Bloomin' Idea

Imagine you're driving across the country. Instead of monotonous miles of grassy right-of-way, the roadsides are ablaze with wildflowers.

That vision is about to flower, thanks to an enlightened new federal rule that requires states to spend 25 cents of every $100 in federal highway-landscaping funds to plant native wildflowers.

Credit for sowing the seeds for the idea goes to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, whose own state has been doing this sort of thing for more than 50 years.

The payoff in natural beauty is reason enough to cheer.

But planting native vegetation can also trim the tax dollars spent on mowing.

Maybe motorists will even slow down to enjoy the scenery.

GEORGE McGOVERN

Public May Now Be Ready To Face Reality

By George McGovern

Recently I wrote about an article by former Secretary of Commerce Peter Peterson entitled "The Morning After," in which he warned of impending economic trouble for the nation. Even as that column went into print, the New York stock market crashed over 500 points. At least part of "the morning after" has arrived.

Various explanations have been offered for the huge drop. Economic analysts have mentioned one or more of the following factors as causes of the drop:

- Treasury Secretary James Baker's threats to the Germans that the United States would lower the level of the dollar if Germany did not take strong steps to help the American economy.
- The failure of Congress and President Reagan to agree on a federal budget.
- Computerized stock management.
- Anxiety over the Persian Gulf.
- The mounting U.S. trade deficit.
- The huge U.S. national debt.
- The prospect of higher interest rates.
- President Reagan's view that it is all the fault of Congress.

There is a growing consensus among experts and the general public that the root cause is that we are spending more than our income.

The Reagan Administration called six years ago for a tax cut and a military spending increase. Congress has gone along with most of this, although it did reduce both the tax cut and the arms-spending increase a little. The result of lower taxes and higher spending has been a national debt expected to hit three trillion dollars by 1989, an interest load on that debt approaching $150 billion annually, and heavy borrowing from both foreigners and Americans.

Beyond this, the weakness of our business and industrial leaders, who seem more interested in corporate takeovers and financial manipulation than in product improvement and market cultivation, has contributed to the biggest trade deficit in our history.

Texas tycoon Ross Perot wrote recently: "I got out of the stock market about a year ago because I couldn't understand what was happening. The optimism of the market didn't fit with the problems of the economy." Mr. Perot puts the problem and the answer in blunt terms: "We have become credit junkies, shooting up huge sums of borrowed money on a government and personal level — looking for another high." What is the solution? "We must cut spending and raise taxes to pay our bills."

This was the formula Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale proposed in 1984. He was rejected by a majority of the voters in 49 of the 50 states — the same result that I had as the Democratic nominee in 1972. But there is growing evidence that the American public is now more willing to accept the necessity of higher taxes and lower national spending for arms.

Columnist David Broder has pointed out that surveys conducted by The Washington Post indicate that Americans see the need for strong action to reduce the national deficit. Other polls confirm the shift in public sentiment since 1984 — a majority will support tax increases and other measures to put the country on a sounder footing for the future.

Tablets May Lose Potency

By Jan Ziegler
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every day, thousands of people place a nitroglycerin tablet under their tongues to relieve the symptoms of angina, or chest pain. Yet, one in four of these could be getting little benefit from the drug — or could be taking tablets that are too potent.

The reason, according to Florida researchers, is quite simple: these patients probably have stored their tablets improperly.

"Patients are at risk of placing confidence and faith in medication which has lost its potency," said Stephen Curry, director of clinical pharmacokinetics and professor of pharmacy at the University of Florida.

Angina pectoris occurs when arteries narrowed by disease cannot deliver enough oxygen-rich blood to the heart when its needs are greater as in physical exertion. Nitroglycerin, used to treat this condition for a century, dilates vessels feeding the heart so they can carry more blood.

If exposed to air or stored with other medications, nitroglycerin may move from tablet to tablet and may dissipate entirely. By law, pharmacists must dispense the pills in the same small amber-colored bottles the manufacturer puts them in.

Yet, patients may transfer pills to coat pocket, handbags or pill boxes, Curry said. Further, they may mix nitroglycerin tablets with other pills.

Curry suggested patients find out if they can take their nitroglycerin in aerosol spray or skin patch forms, which are more stable and may be more convenient, Curry said. These, however, are more expensive. The spray, applied under the tongue, costs twice as much for the same number of doses as sublingual tablets, Curry said.

Although angina sufferers are at greater risk for heart attack, simply because a patient feels the pain does not increase the risk.

Curry said people carrying around unsatisfactory tablets "are not getting the quality of life they could have. They're suffering more pain than they have to."

In the study, Curry and colleagues recruited 20 physicians in nine states — California, Illinois, New Jersey, New York, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin — to survey their patients during office visits.

Detente And Construction Industry

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — While President Reagan has been alternately cozying up to the Kremlin and denouncing the Soviet Union as an evil empire intent on conquering the world, one agency of his administration has been quietly forging ahead toward closer ties with the Soviets. The unlikely engine of detente is the Housing and Urban Development Department — and it has been doing its thing with the president's explicit approval.

HUD has been swapping delegations, technology and trade shows with the Soviets under a little-noticed agreement that was signed in 1974 and reaffirmed by Reagan in 1984. It's called the USA/USSR Agreement on Cooperation in Housing and Other Construction.

When Reagan approved a five-year renewal of the agreement, he told HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce to put a capitalist spin on the deal: a chance for U.S. firms to sell their products and know-how to the Soviets.

Thanks to Pierce's able, determined assistant secretary, Dr. June Q. Koch, the commercial angle of the agreement has been pursued with marked success. Involving hundreds of American businesses, Koch even learned Russian in the process — and mastered it so well that Soviet officials have complimented her on her accent.

The exchange of ideas and technology began in September 1985, when Pierce and Koch visited the Soviet Union, and was followed up by a high-level Soviet delegation's visit to this country in June 1986.

But the true flowering of the agreement was a trade show in Moscow last June, which included exhibits by 400 firms from 23 nations. We've seen the cable Koch sent to Washington at the close of the show.

most respected and objective political reporters, declared in the Washington Post on Sept. 30 that "the recognition is growing in the political community that the odds favor the Republicans' nominating the next president."

But the market's crash requires, at a minimum, a reevaluation of those odds. President Reagan was undoubtedly correct in telling his press conference last week that there is no reason for the overall economy to suffer if people keep on buying as before. But that is precisely what a big and alarming development of this sort discourages people from doing. It seems to me inevitable that many people — far more than just those directly affected by the market's fall — will pull in their horns economically, postpone major purchases and new investments, and just generally wait and see.

As a result, the economy is bound to slow down. One of the first signs will be slow Christmas sales, but this will soon be followed by others. A recession — not necessarily severe, but real — will become a self-fulfilling prophecy.

The Democrats, of course, will shake their heads gravely, and imply that all this could have been avoided if only they had been in the White House — carefully avoiding the point that it occurred on "their watch" in the Congress. As an immediate remedy, incredibly enough, they will demand a tax increase, allegedly "to reduce the deficit," though its real (and probably intended) effect will be to slow the economy still further. President Reagan will unquestionably resist a tax hike as much as he dares, but he will probably have to settle for marginal increases.

Ceramic Engines Coming?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It is reported that the car of the future will have a plastic body and a ceramic engine.

But will it be domestic or imported? That is the big question.

Man and boy, I have been attending auto shows for more years than I care to remember and I have yet to see a "Car of the Future" reach production lines.

There it is, resplendent in dust-free newness, possibly because no one has ever driven it, much less produced it.

At any rate, for the next several years, the new models are introduced and not one looks more like a seagull than an auto. It's disheartening, that's what it is, and the trend must drive futuristic designers wild.

Now I read that researchers are on the verge of perfecting a ceramic engine. Not that the average motorist spends that much time looking under the hood. At least not at auto shows, where the average motorist more likely will be seen at the "Car of the Future" exhibit.

The new engine is said to resist cracking and breaking better than ceramics thus far tried. Thus, if I know anything about futuristic cars, it would be both lighter and better able to withstand higher temperatures than old-style metal engines.

This not only would boost fuel consumption and reduce pollution, but researchers claim ceramic engines also would wear better and result in fewer mechanics' bills.

Sounds like something tailor-made for the Japanese. If there is anything that country is big on, it is mileage.

It can be anticipated that cars of the future will be a lot like Japan's cars of the past — that is, cheap to buy and operate.

If, as predicted, the ceramic-engine market will be close to the $5 billion mark by the turn of the century, we can expect that many sales will be made in Japan.

As for plastic bodies, I don't have any forecast for them. However, if ceramics are almost here in auto manufacturing, plastics can't be far behind.

Indeed, if the Japanese aren't careful, they may miscalculate and start producing "the car of the future."

Jazz Great Woody Herman Dies In Hospital After Long Illness

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jazz legend Woody Herman, who drove his series of big bands through a half-century of music from the swing era to rock 'n' roll, was remembered as a genius who inspired generations of young musicians before being overwhelmed by illness and debt.

Herman died Thursday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center from pneumonia, emphysema and congestive heart disease. He was 74.

Wracked by his many illnesses, Herman weighed less than 100 pounds when he was admitted to the hospital Oct. 1.

A saxophone and clarinet player who gained fame as the leader of succession of swinging big bands he called "Herds," Herman spent much of his time helping young musicians.

Deficit Reduction Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, concedes his one-vote victory on a deficit reduction plan prescribing new taxes and spending cuts turned out "closer than I thought."

His opponents say the only reason he won at all was that "an awful lot of folks . . . fell on a sword tonight for Jim Wright," in the words of Rep. Dick Armey, R-Texas.

The $23 billion deficit reduction package, including $12 billion in new taxes, cleared the House 206-205 Thursday night — a last-minute win that came only after Texas Democrat Jim Chapman switched his vote to support the bill.

Iranian Missile Hits Baghdad, Residential Area, Killing Several

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — A long-range Iranian missile crashed into Baghdad early today, killing several people and destroying a number of houses in a residential area, the Iraqi News Agency said.

Tehran Radio quoted a military communique as saying the attack was in retaliation for Iraqi air strikes earlier in the week against civilian targets in the provinces of Fars and Khuzestan. It said the missile was aimed at a building of the Iraqi Air Force.

The radio threatened more attacks if the Iraqis continued their "mischief against Iran," raising the threat of an escalation in the so-called "war of the cities" between the two nations.

An Iraqi military spokesman quoted by Baghdad Radio said the missile crashed into a residential area about an hour after midnight, killing and wounding a number of people. It said several houses were destroyed.

...Summit

Shevardnadze's hastily arranged visit was expected to include discussions of regional issues such as Afghanistan and the Persian Gulf as well as bilateral issues, but arms control and the summit clearly were the key focus.

Reagan's "Star Wars" project, the Strategic Defense Initiative, continued in hangover negotiations following its role in stalling talks in Moscow last week between Gorbachev and Secretary of State George Shultz.

The Soviets insist there should be some limits on SDI development, but White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater has made it clear the space-based defense "is not a bargaining chip" even though Reagan is "willing to talk about it."

Today's schedule called for Shultz and Shevardnadze to meet with only a small group at the State Department before going to a larger plenary session, which would include arms control experts. They then were to drive to the White House for a session with Reagan in the Oval Office, where Shevardnadze was expected to deliver a letter from Gorbachev making a formal summit date proposal.

Shultz and Shevardnadze then planned to return to the State Department for further meetings after a lunch hosted by the secretary, with the possibility held open that the talks could continue Saturday — despite Shultz's hope to spend the weekend playing golf in Augusta, Ga.

The Shultz-Shevardnadze talks represented a continuation of meetings between them in Moscow last Thursday and Friday, which ended on an unexpected note of disappointment when Gorbachev refused to agree to a summit date as planned.

The Soviet leader, apparently acting on advice of hard-liners in his inner circle, including former Ambassador to Washington Anatoly Dobrynin, told Shultz he would "not be comfortable" coming to the United States under the present circumstances.

The switch led to widespread negative reaction around the world, particularly in Western Europe, where the prospective superpower treaty has great emotional and political significance. The Soviets switched signals again Tuesday and resumed the dialogue.

will be followed by a lunch at the Disabled American Veterans Post 30 for all the parade participants.

In Tallahassee Gov. Bob Martinez proclaimed November Veterans Appreciation Month, hailing Florida's 1.5 million veterans as defenders of the 200-year-old Constitution.

Martinez signed the proclamation Tuesday and said veterans' concerns will be a priority in his administration.

Crunch Time Arrives For Seminoles, Lions

(RADIO: Sanford's WUEZ AM (1480) will broadcast tonight's Oviedo Seminoles District 4A-7 football game. Jeff Dean and Mike Kirby will be on the air. Air time is 7:30 p.m.)

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole's Earnie "Sackman" Lewis dreams only of Lions. Oviedo's Pete Lingard tingles all over. Seminole's Bernard Burke pumps iron with more exuberance. Oviedo's Andy Palmer tenses when he walks.

Different feelings have surfaced in Sanford and Oviedo for two weeks. Feelings of championship anticipation. Feelings that have never been felt before by some players. And some coaches, too.

Feelings that will collide tonight. Oviedo's Lions invade Sanford to battle Seminole's Fighting Seminoles in the biggest game for both schools in five years. It should decide the District 4A-7 football championship and a spot in the state playoffs. The kickoff is 8 p.m. Tickets are $3.50.

"It finally came," Oviedo senior linebacker Pete Lingard said. "I got a tingling feeling.

Football

The big one is here. Now we have a chance to prove to everybody that we're a good ball club. Everybody is psyched up."

Lewis, a three-year starter who has yet to play on a winner, shared the emotion. "This is the biggest game of my life," the senior all-state linebacker said. "I've been having dreams about this game. It's all Lions, all Lions in my dreams. I will have total disregard for my body Friday night."

Palmer said the feeling is new to him, too. "I don't know when I've played in a bigger game," the superb 270-pound two-way senior tackle said. "I go into every game tense, but I'm more tense for this one. Practice has been more serious. Everybody is really concentrating on this game."

Hurke said the past two weeks have been work. "I've never worked harder," the senior linebacker said. "I will play harder this game than against

Lake Mary's Rams will not have any trouble hearing coach Harry Nelson if mistakes are made tonight against DeLand. Nelson said the Rams need to be near perfect to whip DeLand in a crucial District 5A-4 encounter.

Rams Confront Make Or Break Against DeLand

By Chris Fister

It is make or break night for Lake Mary's Rams tonight as they will either remain in the District 5A-4 hunt, or be stuffed and mounted on the DeLand High mantelpiece.

Lake Mary takes a 4-2 overall record and 3-1 district mark into tonight's Seminole Athletic Conference game at Lake Mary High. A victory means Lake Mary still has a chance in the district, a loss and the Rams are practically eliminated.

"The key for us is not to make any mistakes," Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson said. "DeLand doesn't fumble very often, they don't throw interceptions and they play very good defense. We have to be at our best."

Prep Football Previews, See 10A

DeLand is 5-1 overall and leads the district at 3-0. DeLand also leads the SAC with a 4-0 mark compared to 3-1 for Lake Mary and Lake Howell.

"We control our own destiny," DeLand coach Dave Hise said. "Beating Lake Howell early was a big step for us. But a lot depends upon this game. We still have two toughies (Lyman and Spruce Creek) left in the district."

Lake Mary at its best means John Curry running for over 100 yards a game and quarterback Carlos Hartfield making the big play when it is there. The Rams probably had their best game of the season against Spruce Creek, a 35-6 victory, when they scored on their first four possessions of the game.

"We played a perfect quarter and a half against Spruce Creek," Nelson said. "DeLand doesn't make the same kind of mistakes Spruce Creek did, but we would like to play as well as we did in that game."

Nelson will try to pinpoint DeLand's weaknesses tonight while hoping his team shows no weaknesses.

"If I see something we can do, I'll try to exploit it," Nelson said. "If they give us the inside game I'll take it. If they give us the outside, we'll try and take it and if they give us the bomb I'll try to go for it. We have to take everything they give us and not give them anything."

Curry, a senior, is the leading rusher in Seminole County with 771 yards in six games while junior Ray Williams is a fine complement to Curry with 436 yards. Hartfield has completed 32 of 85 passes for 620 yards but he also has thrown 11 interceptions. Sheldon Richards (16 receptions for 288 yards) and Calvin Davis (five/141 two touchdowns) are Hartfield's main targets and long threats.

While Hise is a little wary of Lake Mary's skilled players, the Bulldogs' defense has definitely been able to keep up with the opposition thus far. DeLand has yielded just 59 points in six games, tops in the conference.

"The ball's bouncing our way, somehow," Hise said. "The kids play well on Friday night occasionally. We played very well on defense last week (14-13 overtime win over Lake Brantley) and the defensive coaches came up with a very good game plan."

DeLand's offense has not rolled up big numbers this season, but has come up with enough points to win most of its games. The Bulldogs have scored 112 points while Lake Mary has put 129 on the board.

The Bulldogs are led by quarterback Billy Knight and running backs Raymond Green and Calvin Sutton.

"DeLand resembles Winter Park in some ways," Nelson said. "They have good strength and their backs run hard. They have a pretty conservative approach and just grind out victories."

Lake Mary's defense had performed impressively until last week when it gave up 24 points and a few big plays in a 24-15 district loss to Lake Howell. The Rams have allowed 88 points but more than half of those came in their two losses (24 to Lake Howell, 28 to Winter Park).

Linebacker David Fencik (13.3 tackles per game) and lineman Dan Ferris (12.8, 7 sacks) lead the Lake Mary defense while the secondary of Richards, Hartfield and Terry "The Cat" Miller is looking to rebound after being burned a few times by Lake Howell last week.

Lyman, Lady Hawks Nab SAC

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

LAKE MARY — Coach Fred Finke said the key for Lyman High repeating as Seminole Athletic Conference champions was there could not be a weak link among his six varsity runners.

And the Greyhounds did exactly what Finke was hoping for as all six runners turned in strong performances as Lyman soared to victory Thursday in the SAC Championships at Lake Mary High. The 'Hounds finished with a team score of 41 compared to 55 for Lake Mary and 59 for Lake Howell. Seminole High was fourth at 97 followed by Oviedo at 141. Lake Brantley at 145 and DeLand at 169.

"Everyone went out and produced for us today," Finke said. "I told them what they had to do and they went out and answered the challenge."

Lyman sophomore Teddy Mitchell, the second-ranked individual in the state (Class 4A), cruised to first place with a time of 15:31.5 compared to 15:36.7 for Lake Mary's Brad Smith in one of the best individual battles of the season.

"We went out really fast for the first mile and a half," Mitchell said. "The pace slowed down gradually after that, but Brad (Smith) stayed right on me. He ran a heck of a race."

Lyman junior Nick Radkewich was third at 15:50.1 while completing the Greyhounds' top six were juniors James Flint (10th at 16:33.7) and Darren Marshall (12th at 16:40.7), sophomore Mark Ewers (15th at 16:59.3) and freshman Kevin Padgett (17th at 17:03.4). Padgett was the top freshman finisher in the race.

"We definitely came together as a team today," Marshall said. "Everyone ran a great race. We're starting to form a real bond now and we feel good going into the districts."

Lake Mary matched up well with Lyman in the first three runners, but Lyman put in its next three men before Lake Mary's fourth. Behind Smith for Lake Mary, sophomore Matt Sutliff (fourth at 16:03.7) and senior Eric Petersen (sixth at 16:07.9) also ran outstanding races.

Lake Howell had a pretty tight pack and put six runners in the top 20 but nobody could break up Lyman's spectacular performance Thursday. Leading the way for Lake Howell was junior Kavan Howell (fifth at 16:07.2) while Jason Springhart (11th at 16:34.4), Brandon Lowenthal (13th at 16:51), Luis Caban (14th at 16:58.6), Dave Burson (16th at 17:02.3) and Ralph Caban (19th at 17:08.5) also ran well for the Hawks.

For about the third meet in a row, Seminole High was not at full strength as Rufaro Matipano did not run and Dalvin Davis was still hurting

LAKE MARY — Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks know first hand that patience is a virtue.

The early part of the 1987 season for the defending Class 4A State champions was beset with injuries and disappointing performances. Some observers already began to write off the Lady Hawks.

But Lake Howell worked hard and remained patient until everyone was healthy. And then, the Lady Hawks made their move.

Behind outstanding performances from all seven varsity runners, Lake Howell won its third consecutive Seminole Athletic Conference title Thursday night at Lake Mary High. The Lady Hawks finished with a team score of 38 compared to 61 for Lake Mary and 64 for Lake Brantley. Lyman was third at 109 followed by Seminole (112) and Oviedo (145).

"It has been really exciting to watch the development of this team," Lake Howell coach Tom Hammontree said. "It's hard to believe this is the same team we started the season with. The girls never gave up on themselves."

Bolt, who has struggled at times this season, ran a strong race from start to finish and came in third in the two-mile race with a season's best time of 12:45.3. Twin sister Tammy Bolt, who has missed much of the season with a hip injury, was the junior varsity champion as she ran a 14:18.

"Not having Tammy there for so long was holding me back," Jenny Bolt said. "She's my twin sister and my best friend and I always do better when she's running. To see her getting it back today in the JV race really did a lot for me."

Oliver, who missed the early part of the season due to dental surgery, ran her second consecutive impressive race for the Lady Hawks as she finished fifth with a time of 12:51.8. Cardarelli, the most consistent runner on the team throughout the season, was sixth at 12:55.7. Completing the top five were Cook (11th at 13:18.7) and Johnson (13th at 13:27.9). Lugo (18th at 14:02.8) and Lee (19th at 14:14.1) gave the Lady Hawks seven runners in the top 20.

"The first part of the season was very discouraging because we weren't doing as well as we thought we could," Jenny Bolt said. "Getting

SAC: Best Of 2 Extremes

Lyman, Mary Head To Head — Lady Pats To Coast

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

The Seminole Athletic Conference Swimming Championships could see the best of two extremes this Saturday.

In the boys division, it promises to be a good head-to-head battle between Lyman's Greyhounds and Lake Mary's Rams and it is possible the meet could come down to the last event — the 400 freestyle relay.

On the girls side, Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots have practically been crowned champions without even dipping into the pool. The Lady Patriots are so powerful they are favored to win every event.

The SAC meet begins Saturday at 10 a.m. with all events being timed finals (no preliminaries). The order of events is: 200 medley relay; 200 freestyle; 200 individual medley; 50 freestyle; 100 butterfly; 100 freestyle; 500 freestyle; 100 backstroke; 100 breaststroke; 400 freestyle relay.

"This is going to be a great meet in the boys' division," Lyman coach Don Clark said. "I'd have to say Lake Mary is the favorite because they have some real good swimmers and have more depth than we do."

"Then again, we're not going to lay down and say 'take the trophy.' We're going after it."

Lyman's top performers include Chuck Reinighaus in the 200 IM and 100 breaststroke, Dave Bandy in the 100 and 200 free and Nick

Swimming

Radkewich and Jim Bandy in the 500 free. The Greyhounds have won the first two SAC championships.

Lake Mary coach Walt Morgan said the Rams have the potential to win as many as six or seven events, including both relays. Lake Mary's top performers include Steve Kostowicz in the 100 back and 100 fly, Wes Simecek in the 50 and 100 free, Jaime Bojanowski in the 100 and 200 free and Karl Kuehna and Brad Bridgewater in the 200 IM. Depth for the Rams is provided by Scott Vincent, Zack Simecek, Mark Russell, Rob Baker, Chris Snively and Joe Rosser.

"We hope it will go down to the last relay because we feel we can win it," Morgan said.

While Lyman and Lake Mary battle for the team title, the other schools hope for strong performances from their top swimmers. Seminole High's boys are led by David Johnson, Scott Lewis and Matt Chock while Scott Rowe and David Bridges lead Lake Brantley and Chris Cotter leads Lake Howell.

As for the girls, the defending champion Lake Brantley girls are even stronger than the team that took second in the state a year ago. The Lady Patriots have strength in every event and are odds on favorite to win it all in 1987.

Christy Bridgewater leads the powerful Lady Patriots into Saturday's Seminole Athletic Conference Swimming Championships at Lyman High.

The "Sensational Six" which leads the Lady Patriots include Christy Bridgewater, Manda Davis, Lisa Moon, Kristen Pauley, Jennifer Moon and JoDee Lake. Karl Kostich and Dani Ohnsman add depth to an already powerful team.

Lake Mary High has some pretty talented swimmers and also has the depth to finish a strong second behind Lake Brantley. Kelley Wise and Stasi Bojanowski lead the Lady Rams.

Lyman, which won the SAC two years ago, has a top-notch swimmer in Karen Long while Seminole is led by Cissy Burgess and Mindy Bogue and Lake Howell's top performers are Lora Cotter and Tricia Detrales.

Hearns Wins Fourth Crown

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Thomas Hearns knows exactly what he could do for an encore after becoming the first boxer to win world championships in four weight divisions.

"I hope this brings not only Ray Leonard but Marvin Hagler out of retirement too," Hearns said after stopping Juan Roldan in four rounds to win the vacant World Boxing Council middleweight championship.

"Because the public deserves a rematch between me and Ray Leonard and me and Marvin Hagler."

Hagler and Leonard handed Hearns his only two professional losses. Leonard stopped Hearns in 14 rounds Sept. 16, 1981 in a welterweight unification bout and Hagler stopped Hearns in three rounds April 15, 1985 to defend his middleweight crown.

Hagler and Leonard were among the 8,653 ringside at the Las Vegas Hilton's outdoor stadium who saw Hearns drop Roldan four times and stop him at 2:01 of the fourth. Neither former champion said they want to fight Hearns.

Hagler and Leonard have not fought since Leonard upset Hagler April 6.

"The only reason I'd ever come back would be to fight Ray," Hagler said.

"I fulfilled my dream," Leonard said. "I have nothing to prove. The public never told me what

Predicament Emmitt: Heisman Voters Beg Auburn For Bail Out

TAMPA (UPI) — Sixth-ranked Auburn can bail the Downtown Athletic Club out of a jam Saturday.

The Tigers have allowed opposing rushers a mere 2.9 yards per carry this season and Auburn's swarming defense faces the challenge of stopping the nation's leading runner, Florida freshman Emmitt Smith. The Heisman Trophy, awarded annually by New York City's Downtown Athletic Club, has never been presented to a freshman.

With six weekends left in the regular season, the 1987 Heisman is there for the taking. If Smith enjoys a big day in Auburn, the Dec. 5 announcement date could prove the most embarrassing day in 53 years of Heisman awards. With a segment of the Heisman voters sure to dismiss Smith only because of his college class, another running back could win the award in a wide-open field.

"The award says to the outstanding college football player of the United States," says Heisman voter Mick Elliott, college football editor of the Tampa Tribune. "There is no qualifier. Class status will, however, be a factor in the voting. If another running back gets it, I think it'll insult the award."

Smith, who carried the ball just five times in the season-opener against Miami, is leading all Division I-A rushers with 1,011 yards. He has gained 85 more yards than runner-up Gaston Green of UCLA, despite 13 less carries, and he has joined Herschel Walker as the only players in Southeastern Conference history to rush for 1,000 yards as freshmen.

Football

"Our defense doesn't usually talk about opponents after a game, but after listening to them speak about Smith, there's no doubt they were impressed," said Louisiana State Coach Mike Archer after Smith gained 184 yards. "We tried everything possible to stop him, but he made play after play. I'd say right now that he's one of the best to ever play in the SEC."

"I think Emmitt deserves the Heisman at this point," says Neal Anderson, the former Florida tailback now starting for the Chicago Bears. "People haven't done things he's done and they're being mentioned for it. It's not only hype that wins it ... it's how much you produce. Undoubtedly, he's going to be one of the best backs to play college football."

Notre Dame's Tim Brown became the Heisman's unofficial front runner Sept. 19, returning two punts for touchdowns against Michigan State on national television. Brown, the likely No. 1 pick in next spring's NFL draft, didn't crack the Heisman Top 10 last year despite posting better numbers as a junior.

The ninth-ranked Irish close with a brutal schedule. Alabama, Penn State and Miami, and it may become difficult to justify a Heisman vote for a player who does most of his damage returning punts. When Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers won the award in 1972, the wingback caught 55 passes in addition to his superb punt return skills.

"Brown's a great athlete," says Elliott, "but if he didn't play for Notre Dame, would he even be a candidate?"

Unless Brown and Notre Dame both excel down the stretch, Heisman voters will be left contemplating running backs. No defensive player has won the Heisman and this year's top candidate, Ohio State linebacker Chris Spielman, has been hurt by his team's low profile. Spielman will also have to finish very strongly to match his numbers as a junior, when he placed 10th behind Vinny Testaverde.

The highest-placed returning player is versatile Gordie Lockbaum of Holy Cross, who finished fifth and attracted 32 first-place ballots last year. Playing in Division I-AA has virtually eliminated Lockbaum from Heisman consideration for some of the 1,050 voters who will be asked to fill in three choices.

Green has been very consistent for the seventh-ranked Bruins, averaging 5.6 yards per carry with 10 touchdowns.

Michigan State's Lorenzo White, who led the nation in rushing as a sophomore in 1985, is averaging just 4.3 yards per attempt and he struggled in key games against Florida State and Notre Dame.

If Smith burns the Auburn defense for his usual 177 yards as a starter, we may have Heisman history made the evening of Dec. 5 with the presentation to a freshman.

"You can't practice the way Emmitt Smith runs," says Alabama Coach Bill Curry. "It's a God-given talent."

Burger Gets NCAA Okay

United Press International Sixth-ranked Auburn received a break Thursday when the NCAA altered its decision on the eligibility of quarterback Jeff Burger and offensive tackle Jim Thompson.

One day after declaring the pair ineligible, the NCAA restored the players' eligibility, contingent on both paying for a hunting trip taken with a booster earlier this month.

The ruling allows Burger, the nation's third-ranked passer, to play Saturday night at home against No. 11 Florida, but Auburn officials said he would not start. The school also said Burger would be required to perform 40 hours of community service before the year's end.

Burger and Thompson were declared ineligible after school officials learned that a friend of Thompson's family flew Burger and the lineman on a hunting trip in south Alabama Oct. 11. The plane belonged to Covington County Commissioner John Weed, reportedly a University of Alabama graduate.

Burger, who has completed 105 of 154 passes for 1,314 yards and 10 touchdowns this season, will be replaced by sophomore Reggie Slack. Slack, who made his first collegiate start last week, hit 11 of 17 passes for 185 yards and three touchdowns in a 38-7 victory.

Burger, however, is expected to play Saturday and, judging from the last three meetings between Auburn and Florida, the Tigers will need a strong finish from him.

For three straight years, Florida has beaten Auburn. And each time, it was strong play in the fourth quarter that made the difference.

Saturday night's game appears even. Both teams are averaging 32.3 points a game — best in the Southeastern Conference. Florida leads the conference in fewest points allowed per game, 9.1. Auburn is second at 9.3.

The Gators, 5-2 with losses to No. 3 Miami and No. 4 LSU, are first in total defense, allowing 224 yards per game. Auburn, 6-0-1, is second with a 264-yard average.

Florida has the SEC's most experienced quarterback in four-year starter Kerwin Bell, and its newest sensation is freshman tailback Emmitt Smith. Smith has rushed for 1,011 yards in seven games this year, a better start than former Heisman Trophy winners Herschel Walker of Georgia or Bo Jackson of Auburn.

Elsewhere in the Top 20, No. 1 Oklahoma plays at Kansas, No. 2 Nebraska visits Missouri, No. 3 Miami invades East Carolina, No. 4 Louisiana State plays Mississippi at Jackson, No. 5 Florida State hosts Tulane, No. 6 Auburn is at No. 11 Florida, No. 7 UCLA travels to Arizona State, No. 8 Syracuse visits Pittsburgh, No. 9 Notre Dame opposes Navy, No. 10 Indiana plays at Iowa, No. 12 Clemson goes against Wake Forest, No. 13 Tennessee faces Boston College, No. 15 Ohio State hosts No. 18 Michigan State, No. 16 Oklahoma State meets Kansas State, No. 17 Alabama plays Mississippi State at Birmingham, No. 19 South Carolina opposes North Carolina State and No. 20 Arkansas travels to Rice. No. 14 Georgia is idle.

Lady Lions Bounce Back, Net SAC

By Chris Flater

DELAND — Oviedo's Lady Lions have never been known as a comeback team. In fact, in the last two years, Oviedo had not won a match where it lost the first game.

Until Thursday night, that is. The Lady Lions bounced back from a first-game loss with some inspired team play and rallied to clinch their second consecutive Seminole Athletic Conference championship with a 10-15, 15-10, 15-10 victory over DeLand's Lady Bulldogs before 141 fans at DeLand High.

"Even with what we did against them the last time (15-1, 15-2 victory at Oviedo) we didn't think it would be easy tonight," Oviedo senior Jill Knutson said. "We had some problems in the first game and DeLand can really put it away if you give them the chance. But we pulled together in the second game and concentrated more on defense and setting up."

Oviedo concluded the regular season with an 18-2 overall record and 10-2 in the SAC. The Lady Lions are 19-3 in conference play in the last two seasons. DeLand, in its first year in the SAC, finished at 15-4 overall and 9-3 in the league. Both teams will be seeded first in their respective districts. Oviedo in 3A-6 and DeLand in 4A-9.

Volleyball

"I can't remember us ever losing the first game and winning the next two," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "I'm really proud of the girls for the way they hung in and kept fighting until the end."

Oviedo, behind the net play of junior Suzanne Hughes, took a 5-0 lead in game one but DeLand came back behind the hitting of Renee Bellamy and a breakdown in Oviedo's serve return to score the next 10 points.

The Lady Bulldogs went on to take a 13-6 lead before senior Jodie Switzer served for points to bring Oviedo within 13-10. Bellamy's kill gave DeLand the 14th point and another serve return error by Oviedo accounted for the 15th.

The Lady Lions got off to a quick start in game two on the booming serves of senior Bobbie Kelley. Kelley had two aces and three other serves that weren't returned as Oviedo served a 5-0 lead. Oviedo ran the lead to 8-1 on two kills by Hughes but DeLand senior C.C. Hayden then got cranked up and pulled the Lady Bulldogs within 8-6.

DeLand had a chance to pull closer but Knutson made a nice play when she leaped for a bad pass, dinked the ball over and did a tightrope act to avoid a line violation for an Oviedo side out. Kerstin Colon's spike gave Oviedo a 9-6 lead, but DeLand got a side out and reeled off four points for a 10-9 lead.

A missed serve gave it back to Oviedo and Hughes then came through with her biggest serving string of the season as she served six in a row to give Oviedo the game.

Game three was back and forth in the early going as Oviedo clung to a 6-5 lead. The Lady Lions then put together their best offensive attack of the night with good passes from Corrie Lawson and Colon, good sets by Knutson and Switzer's hits leading the way. Switzer had a kill and a block as Oviedo took a 9-5 lead and Anna Hollis had two ace serves to make it 11-6.

Oviedo got the ball back and Knutson rifled a spike off a perfect set by Switzer for the 12th point. DeLand came back with a nice rally of its own to pull within 12-10 and had a chance to pull closer when Knutson dumped a ball over the DeLand block and it dropped in front of the back row players for an Oviedo side out.

Knutson's ace serve made it 13-10. Kelley got a spike through the DeLand block to make it 14-10 and DeLand couldn't handle Kelley's dink for the final point and the Lady Lions celebrated their second SAC title.

"After the first game, we got together and said we weren't going to win unless we played like we really wanted it," Switzer said. "We came back and played solid as a team and, in the end, it came down to who wanted it the most."

SEMINOLE ROUTS ST. CLOUD

Liz Long put down 16 kills and had five ace serves to power Seminole High to a 15-7, 15-8 victory over St. Cloud Thursday night in the regular-season finale at Seminole High.

The Lady Noles finished the season at 7-13 overall and with a two-match winning streak. Seminole now awaits to see where it will be placed in the 3A-6 District Tournament which begins Monday at Orlando Jones High.

"We could not do anything wrong tonight," Seminole coach Beth Corso said. "Especially Liz (Long). She had the St. Cloud girls so intimidated, that by the end of the second game she was hitting offspeed spikes and they were running to get out of the way of her ball."

While Long provided the power, Seminole also had success serving as Heather Brown and Adrian Hillsman each had three aces and Rachelle Denmark and Cindy Henge had two aces each.

...District

Lake Mary. I really want to go to state."

Seminole's path to state is a shorter one than Oviedo's route. The "Noles, 2-0 in the district and 3-3 overall, can clinch the 4A-7 title with a victory tonight. Oviedo, 1-0 and 3-3, needs to beat Seminole tonight and Orlando Edgewater on Nov. 13. Tonight's clash also counts in Seminole Athletic Conference standings, but both (Oviedo: 1-2; Seminole: 0-2) are out of that race.

The Dunkel Index makes Oviedo a 3-point favorite.

Offensively, Seminole is more explosive but has trouble getting into the end zone. The "Noles are averaging 18.3 points per game. Oviedo has scored just enough — 12.7 points per outing — to split six games. The Lions rely on a mistake-free attack aided by cleverly-placed trick plays.

Defensively, Seminole has given up 83 points, an average of 13.8 per game. The "Noles play a gambling defense which blitz for the big loss or get burned for overpursuit. Oviedo has given up just 69 points, an average of 11.5 points per outing. The Lions play a hard-nosed percentage style.

Offensively, Seminole's weapons include halfback Jerod Jones, quarterback Jeff Blake, fullback Curtis Rudolph, wideout Terrance Eady and tight end Brandon Cash. Jones can score from anywhere, anyway. He has 449 yards rushing and six touchdowns, including one on a punt return. Blake has thrown seven TD passes. Rudolph is a tough inside runner and bruising blocker. Eady leads the county with 17 receptions. Cash scored twice on reverses in a 19-13 victory over Leesburg and has sure hands.

"Usually a high school team will have a good quarterback, wide receiver and running back," Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said. "But Seminole has everything. It's hard to put a finger on one area because they do everything well."

Offensively, Oviedo has been opportunistic. When the defense hands it the ball with good field position, the Lions have capitalized. Rodney Thompson (296 yards), Preston Dames (258 yards) and Chad Duncan (190) are tough, aggressive runners. Starter John Pettit and backup Matthew Blanton are heady quarterbacks. Tight end/wideout Alan Greene has three TD catches among his 11 receptions. Wideout Brian Wilson has nine grabs.

"There is not one aspect of their offense that you can stop and stop Oviedo," Seminole coach Roger Beathard said. "They don't have a (Lake Mary's John) Curry, but they have three good running backs."

The biggest difference offensively is Oviedo's lack of a breakaway threat.

"We don't have a big-play guy," Oviedo offensive coordinator Ken Kroog said. "We haven't had a touchdown on a pass or run over 40 yards. Seminole can score from anywhere."

Beathard, however, said that does not matter. "When you have a great defense like they do, you don't need a breakaway threat," he said. "Their defense will score points for them."

Seminole defensive coordinator Bill Zeiss said Oviedo's offense still worries him despite its lack of size. "They don't have big backs but they are quick," he said. "The trick plays are what concern me. The rest is pretty much basic stuff."

Beathard said Seminole has shored up its defensive line, a porous area in past games with offensive linemen Randy Bryant (end) and Wilton Hooks (tackle) along with 6-foot-2, 190-pound sophomore Willie McCloud (end), who was promoted from the junior varsity.

"All three have looked good," senior safety Leonard Lucas said. "McCloud is a good contain man. He's come up and showed he's wanted to play."

Hooks, a senior, faces the toughest responsibility on offense. He must handle Palmer, who outweighs him by 60 pounds. "I just have to stay low and keep moving," Hooks said. "I might get a little tired, but I have to stay in front of him."

Lingard, meanwhile, rates quarterback Blake as Oviedo's biggest challenge. "We have got to stop the pass," he said. "Blake can take a quick two steps and throw it anywhere. I'm sure they're going to be throwing a lot Friday."

Lingard, who averages 8.8 tackles per game, has plenty of help. Junior linebacker Willie Pauldo (11.7 tackles) is a vicious hitter. The secondary is led by Duncan (7.5 tackles, two interceptions) and Karl Wright. Tackle Emery Sneed is second in the county with six sacks. Palmer averages 6.3 tackles.

"There is no big weakness," Beathard said the Lion defenders. "Some people are outstanding and overshadow some others. We'll run and throw a little bit of everything at them."

Seminole's defense can be just as rugged. Lewis is second in the county with 14.2 tackles while Lucas (12.2), monsterback Ron Blake (11.7) and Burke (9.2) rank among the top 13. Defensive backs "Nasty Nick" Casiello (7.7) and Myriel Reid (7.5) along with linebacker Ron Cox (7.3) and tackle Ralph Hardy (7.3) are not too far behind.

"They put some much pressure on you that there is not too much you can do," Blanton said. "You have to go where they ain't — and that ain't many places. We cannot make a mistake offensively and we must keep it away from Blake."

"Seminole is the best team we've played this year," he added. "We're laying all the marbles on the table. We cannot make any mistakes whatsoever. Execution is the key for us." Execute — or be executed.

Emerging AFC East Team Can Control Own Destiny

United Press International

Football

Whichever team emerges from the four-team deadlock in the AFC East Sunday should have control of its destiny in the division.

Buffalo, New England, Indianapolis and New York each share a piece of the divisional lead at 3-3. Miami, 2-4, is alone in last place. Indianapolis owns the advantage of defeating all of its divisional co-leaders.

"I've predicted for the last year or so that Indianapolis and Buffalo would improve," New York Jets Coach Joe Walton said. "They have been developing a lot of good players because they have been drafting among the top five picks every year."

For the past three seasons, the Jets, New England and Miami have finished 1-2-3 in some order in the AFC East. The last time one of those teams did not win the division was 1980, when Buffalo did.

The Jets and Colts clash Sunday in Giants Stadium, a game that should make the AFC East picture less fuzzy. In other games involving division teams, Miami hosts Pittsburgh and the Los Angeles Raiders visit New England.

"I feel we're in position to make a move upward," said Ron Meyer, in his first full season as Colts coach. "Basically, we control our own destiny. But you can say that about everyone in our division."

The Jets had beaten the Colts four straight times before Oct. 11, when Indianapolis defeated New York 6-0 in perhaps one of the worst-played games of the strike-substitute contests.

Whether things will return to status quo this week will depend greatly on if the Jets' reorganized offensive line can deal with the Colts' defensive strength: its ends and outside linebackers.

BIDWILL PLANS MOVE

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — St. Louis Cardinals owner Bill Bidwill plans to move his NFL franchise, a city official said Thursday.

Earlier Thursday, Bidwill rejected plans for an open-air stadium in the St. Louis suburbs.

"Ed Bushmeyer (a spokesman for the mayor's office) told me he had talked with (St. Louis County Executive) Gene McNary and that Mr. Bidwill told him (McNary) that he was moving the team," Mayor Vincent Schoemmel said in a news conference.

Bushmeyer confirmed Schoemmel's statement.

IN BRIEF

Metal Manufacturing Ends Skid With 21-4 Blowout Of The Barn

Metal Manufacturing, winless in seven previous Sanford Women's Softball League games, broke into the victory column in spectacular fashion Thursday night, hammering The Barn, 21-4, at Fort Mellon Park.

Manufacturing improved to 1-7 with the victory and The Barn dropped to 3-4. In Thursday's other game, Sullivan's Pub knocked off Classy Clerks, 11-6. Sullivan's (6-2) pulled with one and one-half games of Central Florida Fabricators (7-0). The Clerks fell to 2-6.

Manufacturing pounded out 15 hits and needed just two innings to destroy The Barn. Cassandra Buckner drove in four runs with two singles. Lily Gordon collected three RBI with two singles and a double and Kathy Williams also drove in three runs with a single and a double. Patricia Dumas added a triple and two singles and two ribbies and Olivia Grubba chipped in two RBI. Sherry McLain and Stacy Hunt had an RBI each.

Michelle Miller homered for The Barn and Elizabeth Ritchey singled and tripled.

In the first game, Sullivan's used a three-run home run by Chris Woodall and a two-run homer by Janie Lawrence to overpower the Clerks. Woodall had two other hits and an RBI. Paula Ritchey rapped two doubles while Pat Romish added a trio of singles and Cindy Miller had two singles.

Tammy Fulton tripled and drove in two runs for the Clerks. Patay Harding and Claudia Ackley each tripled while Robin Kinnaird doubled. Caren Bender singled home a run.

Watson Resumes Favorite's Role

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Tom Watson hit just seven of 14 fairways Thursday, reached only 12 of the 18 greens in regulation and needed a mere 25 putts to work his way around the Oak Hills Country Club course.

In other words, Watson put together the kind of round he used to — back in the days when he was the automatic favorite whenever he teed up.

Now he is the favorite again in the richest golf tournament ever played, the Nabisco Championship.

His first-round 5-under 65 gave him a one-shot lead over David Frost and Larry Mize and also boosted the confidence of a man who once upon a time never had to have his confidence boosted.

Rams List Dickerson As Inactive

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams placed disgruntled running back Eric Dickerson on the inactive list Thursday and announced he would not play this week against the San Francisco 49ers.

Dickerson, who wants to be traded following the Rams' refusal to meet his contract demands, sat out the second half of Monday night's game against Cleveland, claiming he was suffering from a charley horse. He carried just 7 times for 38 yards in the 30-17 loss that dropped the Rams to 1-5 on the season.

Grether Aces Pespil Challenge

Sanford's David Grether, a former miniature golf champion, qualified for an opportunity at a $1 million grand prize when he recorded a hole-in-one Wednesday at the Second Annual Pepsi "Million Dollar" Hole-In-One Contest at Wymore Career Center in Eatonville.

Grether aced the 129-yard hole to qualify for the championship playoff round Monday. He will compete with 16 other golfers. Qualifiers are chosen daily by being closest to the pin. Grether's hole-in-one was the first of the contest.

Grand Canyon Wins Inaugural

ML Grand Canyon, running out of the Young-Anesta Kennel, captured the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club's 53rd Annual Inaugural Thursday night. ML Grand Canyon ran a 30.57 for the 5-16th mile race.

ML Grand Canyon paid $9.20 to win, $4.20 to place and $9.80 to show. Go For Ten ran second and Perfect Sabina ran third.

Garrison Rallies To Top McNeil

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Zina Garrison rallied after a shaky start and Lori McNeil easily disposed of her opponent Thursday to give the United States a 2-0 lead in the Wightman Cup tennis competition between American and British women professionals.

Cubs Force Out Green

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Cubs, three years removed from their last division title, began a change of direction Thursday, forcing president and general manager Dallas Green to resign.

In a surprise announcement, Green resigned Thursday because of "philosophical differences" with John Madigan, executive vice president of Tribune Co., which owns the Cubs.

"I've been in baseball 30 some years," Green said. "And when philosophical differences pop up between owners and field people you either get fired or two: you resign."

Madigan said, "In my six years working with Dallas Green, I have the utmost respect for him as a baseball man, a general manager and a family man. He brought this city some great thrills and for that we are deeply thankful."

"I wanted to go one way and Dallas wanted to go the other way."

beat made us want it even more. We knew the competition would be tough but it came down to who wanted it the most. From that perspective, I think it was our best performance of the year."

While Lake Howell took the team title, Seminole High had the top two individuals in the meet. Senior Shownda Martin led from start to finish as she claimed the individual title with a time of 12:20.5. Senior Dorchelle Webster used her sprinter's speed to outrace two opponents at the finish as she came in second at 12:41.9.

"The more Shownda runs the better she gets," Seminole coach Nate Perkins said. "She is in superb condition. And I think Dorchelle has a chance to move up with Shownda the next couple meets. Championship meets are Dorchelle's thing."

Lake Mary lost one of its top five runners during the race and it was the performance of Kwajia Floyd filling in that position that enabled the Lady Rams to finish second. Floyd, who has broken her personal record the last four meets, finished 21st with a time of 14:28.

"She has really come on strong the last few weeks," Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson said of Floyd. "Even if Tabatha (Gano) didn't drop out, Lake Howell would have won anyway. It was their day today."

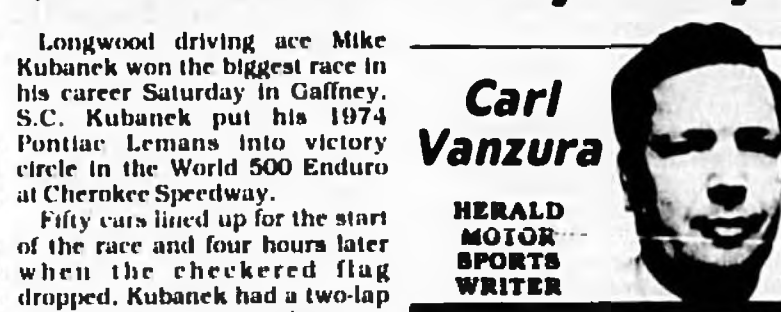

Lake Mary's top finishers were sophomore Allison Snell (seventh at 13:12.9) and seniors Heather Heikkila (eighth at 13:13.8) and Christine Adamson (10th at 13:16.7).

Oviedo's top finisher was sophomore Brad Bolton (18th at 17:07.3); sophomore Darin Tugman (eighth at 16:28.3) led Lake Brantley and DeLand's top finisher was senior John O'Neill (24th at 17:18.6).

In the boys junior varsity division Thursday, Lyman had the top three runners in the race and finished with a team score of 19 compared to 69 for Lake Howell and 71 for Lake Mary. Lyman was led by Danny Carr (first at 17:49.1), Kevin Quinn (second at 17:53.4) and Pat Flynn (third at 17:59.9). Lake Mary's Dave Simard was fourth at 18:30.9.

Kubaneck Earns $18,500 Payday

Carl Vanzura
HERALD MOTOR SPORTS WRITER

Longwood driving ace Mike Kubaneck won the biggest race in his career Saturday in Gaffney, S.C. Kubaneck put his 1974 Pontiac Lemans into victory circle in the World 500 Enduro at Cherokee Speedway.

Fifty cars lined up for the start of the race and four hours later when the checkered flag dropped, Kubaneck had a two-lap lead over the second place car, and a pocket full of money.

"Eighteen-thousand and five hundred dollars to be exact," Stromberg-Carlson's 42-year-old director of manufacturing test area said.

Having only driven on a dirt track one time before booted Kubaneck only in the beginning. "I did not start out real good, but as the track dried out I got better," he said. "Some of the local cars and high dollar cars passed me a number of times in the early part of the race, but I knew it was a long event and paced myself."

"Most of the early lap hot dogs used their cars up by halfway," Kubaneck said. What helped Kubaneck was he only had to make three pit stops for gas and had no tire problems.

On lap 80, Kubaneck maneuvered through a major crash on the front straightaway. "There was a lot of banging around and I was knocked off the track twice," he said. "But thanks to being on a dirt track, it is a lot more forgiving than the concrete walls at New Smyrna Speedway."

His second piece of luck came when, with about 100 laps to go, his battery cable came loose and the car lost power. The lead car at that time hit him in the rear, knocking him into the pits. At that time a tire came off of another car on the track and a red flag was dropped, bringing the race to a halt.

That enabled his pit crew, consisting of Randy Grief, Jeff Blehr, John Hack and Terry McDade to repair the car without losing any laps.

With just an hour to go before the track curfew of midnight, the red flag was dropped once again to stop the event and all the cars were fueled and drivers told that the race would not go the full 500 laps.

This, Kubaneck said, made it fair to everyone as they knew it

Mike Kubaneck takes a breather at New Smyrna Speedway. Kubaneck picked up his career-best payday last Saturday when he won the World 500 Enduro at Gaffney, S.C. The Longwood veteran earned $18,500 for first place.

at New Smyrna Speedway," he said. "He picked up enough points to clinch my second point title in the last three years."

Kubaneck was overwhelmed by Gaffney payday. "The first-place prize ($18,500) would equal me winning the feature every Saturday night for three years in a row," he said. "That's what it means to me."

The nine-time roadrunner feature winner at NSS honored the track with its name on the side of the car, as well as his long-time sponsor, AA Auto Salvage of DeBarry.

Ag Center Offers Master Gardener Training Program

The Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service will soon begin another Master Gardener Training Program at the Agriculture Center on State Road 17-92 south of Sanford. Florida Master Gardeners are adult volunteers from the community who are trained by the urban horticulturist and other specialists from the Extension Service and IFAS, the Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences at the University of Florida in Gainesville.

Master Gardeners receive approximately 50 hours of intensive, but basic horticultural training. The unpaid volunteers then become certified Master Gardeners for Seminole County ready to return a minimum of 50 hours of service to the community through assistance with extension horticultural activities.

The basic requirements for training as a Master Gardener is a sincere love of gardening and people. It is especially helpful if you have "hands-on" experience at the "dirt under the fingernails" level. If you have a specialty area, like organic gardening or orchids for instance,

Celeste White
Urban Horticulturist
323-2500
Ext. 175

that is fine, too, because you will be able to broaden your horticultural horizons, and become a resource for us when that topic is needed.

The Master Gardener Training consists of eight day-long sessions beginning Jan. 7, 1988, and continuing each following Thursday through February. There are many topics that will be covered. They range from basic plant science to landscape maintenance and include vegetable gardening, citrus and deciduous fruit production, soils and fertilizers, plant diseases and insects, lawn care, indoor foliage plants, pesticides, annual and perennial flowers.

Upon completion of the program, the certified

Master Gardeners will participate in extension horticultural activities such as telephone and plant clinic diagnostics such as garden centers or garden shows, presentations to garden clubs, homeowner associations or other civic groups, assistance in the soil testing lab, contributing to Greenthumb newsletter in the form of articles or garden tips and consultations on landscaping beautification projects around the county.

The benefits to the Master Gardener are vast. Perhaps the greatest benefit is the opportunity to get out among the county residents to promote the fulfilling hobby of gardening by sharing your knowledge with those just becoming familiar with gardening in Florida. At present, Seminole County has 10 active Master Gardeners who do an excellent job of helping county residents with their plant problems.

If communities had to pay for the services provided by volunteers working with the Cooperative Extension Service, they would spend approximately 4.5 billion dollars per year nationally. According to a national study titled "Implications of Volunteerism in Extension," approximately one in 80 Americans have served as a volunteer in an activity with the Cooperative Extension Service. In 1983, almost 3 million volunteers spent more than 71 million days, or 51 days for every day of assistance given by the agent for the Cooperative Extension Service.

Virtually all Extension agents use volunteers to help extend the educational opportunities in the community. The study found that more than 2.8 million volunteers helped to disseminate information about agriculture and horticulture, home economics, 4-H and youth development and community resources and development, reaching more than 48.7 million people. None of this would be possible without the generosity of volunteers.

If you are interested in the Master Gardener program, please call or come by the Agriculture Center at 323-2500, Ext. 175 to receive an application or more information. Remember, class size is limited to 10, so apply early. Classes start Jan. 7.

Dennis Cahill, executive director of Central Florida Community Clinic, congratulates Virginia Chadwick, center, and Lucia Weaver for their outstanding weekly services to the clinic.

Community Clinic Salutes 2 Volunteers For Service

Central Florida Community Clinic salutes its volunteers for the outstanding service they give to the clinic weekly.

Lucia Weaver is a quiet, smiling easy-going retiree who works with the records clerk filing medical records, lab reports and being expressly helpful. Lucia is a retired Veteran's Administration employee who hails from Montana. After retirement she moved to Sanford for her husband's health and to be near her son who lives in Maitland.

Lucia is one who keeps busy. She was a travel clerk, telephone supervisor and teletype operator before retirement. She delivers meals on wheels once a week. And she is the proud mother of two sons, seven grand children and five great grand children.

The second salute from CFCC goes to Virginia Chadwick, a volunteer for two years who lives a busy life. She helps out in administrative offices twice a week. She has taught swimming for over 30 years in Seminole and Clay counties and did Red Cross volunteer work as a Red Cross water safety instructor in Seminole County for 15 years.

This busy woman swims one-fourth mile laps when weather permits. She is active in the Golden Age Games where she received a silver medal in a swim event. She volunteers as a scorekeeper in Golden Age Bowling each year.

These two special ladies travel a lot and Lucia's hobbies are bowling, fancy work and helping the needy. Virginia's hobbies are bowling, swimming, canoeing, ceramics and reading. She has two lovely children and eight grandchildren in Georgia and South Carolina. She believes in keeping busy and active and says there are not enough hours in the day to do all she wants to.

The Central Florida Community Clinic executive director Dennis Cahill and the staff of CFCC salute these two volunteers for their dedicated service to the center.

The residents are indeed grateful to these women for the many efforts they do to cheer the residents.

A neighborhood meeting to discuss the city of Sanford's new City Plan Draft will be held at The Westside Recreation Center on Persimmon Avenue at 7 p.m. Nov. 12. The city of Sanford is developing a new City Plan or Comprehensive Plan. The draft will consider the following: Future Land Use, Housing, Traffic Circulation, Water, Sewer, Drainage and Solid Waste, Conservation of Natural Resources, Parks, Recreation and Open Spaces, Downtown Design, Intergovernmental Coordination and Capital Improvement Plan.

The public is invited. You may ask questions and make comments. For further information contact the city planner at City Hall, 322-3161 Ext. 253.

A dedication service for the new addition of the New Mt. Calvary Missionary Baptist Church will be held at 11 a.m. Nov. 8. The speaker for these special services will be the Rev. Robert Doctor. Musical selections will be by Choir No. Two. The church is located on West 12th Street and Pecan.

Happy Halloween Birthday to Rufus McClain and Cynthia Dixon.

Thieves Unlikely To Have Formal Policy Of Returns

DEAR ABBY: Some woman wrote to say she got "ripped off" when a thief stole her purse. It contained her wallet, driver's license, credit cards, irreplaceable pictures of her children when they were babies, prescription glasses, address book, bank book, etc. And you suggested that maybe the thief will be decent enough to keep the cash and return the other items that are of use only to the owner. Get real, Abby.

The last decent thief was the one that hanged on the cross beside Christ. He repented. The other thief didn't.

This woman is crying about losing baby pictures, the only ones she had of her children. (Good! They grew up faster than she did.)

Smart people don't carry anything of value around with them anymore. Lunch money should be the limit.

When will people get wise?
CITY WISE, CARRIES NOTHING

DEAR CITY WISE: The letter from "Ripped Off" prompted many letters from readers who had this valuable message to thieves: "Keep the cash, but drop the purse and wallet into any postal box. It will be delivered to the owner who will be more than happy to pay the postage due."

DEAR ABBY: I always read

Dear Abby

your column and I will continue to, but I notice more and more of a tendency to "help" your readers too much and entertain them too little. Example: Today's column contained three worthwhile items—don't let strangers know your travel plans, the Red Cross lawn mower safety classes, and Alice Faye's free exercise plan for the elderly. All very good information and likely to benefit a lot of people.

Abby, I won't belabor the point. But if you become just another column of "safety advice," you might bore readers to the point where they won't read it—and then who benefits?

CAROLE R.,
ITABCA, ILL.

DEAR CAROLE: Thanks for writing. I can always learn, and appreciate the nudge.

Readers? Drop me a line and let me know what you like and what you don't like about my column.

DEAR ABBY: Last week I hosted a party at my home to which some 75 co-workers had been personally invited. The party was to honor a much-loved employee who is leaving the area to take a new job. I invited people on all levels of the company—from executives to the mailroom staff. They all knew Marilyn and like her.

Do you know how many responded to the R.S.V.P.? Fifteen out of 75 said they would be there. I estimated that 25 or 30 people would show. Eight showed up! I even had jumbo shrimp left over. I've given parties and invited total strangers and had a better response. I would have saved a lot by just writing Marilyn a check for $500. I hope some of the 60 who didn't bother to say yes or no will recognize themselves.

My question: Is an R.S.V.P. meaningless anymore?

PUZZLED IN DELAWARE

DEAR PUZZLED: People with manners acknowledge every invitation. Believe it or not, many people do not know that "R.S.V.P." means "Please respond with your acceptance or refusal."

Perhaps it should be spelled out more clearly: "Please call and let me know whether you are coming or not." Then a few days before the party, the hostess should contact those who have not responded and ask if they plan to attend. This should not be necessary, but unfortunately, it is.

Car Wash, Bake Sale Set For Game Room

A car wash and a bake sale are scheduled Saturday to raise money for the new 7,000-square-foot young adults center.

Elaine Wilson, operator of the Rainbow Game Room and Deli in the Pinecrest Shopping Center along with husband, Del, said a car wash will be held Saturday at McDonald's Restaurant, 3653 U.S. Hwy 17-92, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wilson also said a bake sale will be held at Wal-Mart, 2904 U.S. Hwy 17-92, from 9 a.m. until the baked goods are all sold. Proceeds from the two events will go toward rent and deposit on the new home of the Rainbow Game Room. "We may change the name when we move," Wilson said. "Maybe call it the Family Fun Center."

In addition to a game room, the new building will have classroom workshops, a thrift shop, a lounge, a dance room and outdoor space for basketball and volleyball. The purpose of the center is to provide a safe, drug-free environment for youths.

Breast Check

WHAT IS SCREENING MAMMOGRAPHY?

Mammography is a simple X-ray examination of the breast to detect breast cancer before it can be detected by your own examination or your doctor's examination. With breast self examination it affords you the best chance to detect breast cancer early, while it's still curable.

The Breast/Check network understands the needs of ladies to have a place to feel secure and private while having a mammogram. You'll find that our facilities meet these needs, if not surpassing. For a Breast/Check, you don't need a physician's order. But remember, the Breast/Check isn't for everyone, only those ladies who need a baseline or routine examination. If you have a new lump or other problem, check with your doctor or ask for a diagnostic examination, also available from the Breast/Check network.

Testing Blood Proteins Is Not Simple Process

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — There was too much protein in my blood so I was told to have a bone marrow test. It was OK. What does excess protein signify?

DEAR READER — Your question is deceptively simple; the subject of blood proteins is complex. I'll try to give you an overview.

Your excess proteins may represent a normal variation but, as I mentioned, the type of protein should be identified. Your doctor may choose to do this by further analysis using complex tests.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report on ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE discusses symptoms, management and new studies of this

The body's organs produce many types of proteins that circulate in the bloodstream. Each protein has a specific function. By subjecting a small sample of cell-free blood to a tiny electrical charge, scientists can separate the various blood proteins from one another. Because proteins vary in weight, light proteins will migrate further than heavy ones in an electrical field. This characteristic provides the basis for the medical test called serum electrophoresis. In which the blood proteins are separated, identified and quantitated.

Human blood usually contains five major forms of protein: albumin, alpha-1 globulin, alpha-2 globulin, beta globulin and gamma globulin. These proteins can be further divided into classes by more sophisticated tests, yielding the forms called immunoglobulins: IgA, IgD, IgE, IgG and IgM.

Depending on the protein characteristics of a blood sample, doctors can diagnose certain diseases. For example, low serum albumin is often the consequence of dietary deficiency or liver disease. Antibodies, the body's infection-neutralizing proteins, are usually included in the Ig (or gamma globulin) fraction. Patients sometimes show abnormal proteins (or too much of a particular protein) in their bloodstreams. The most common abnormality is an "M spike," an excess of IgM; this is seen in myeloma and other types of plasma (blood) cell cancer. The doctor performed a bone marrow test to make sure that your plasma cells, many of which are in the marrow, were normal.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

When my parents were first married, Father taught Mother to play bridge. This stood her in good stead in her more than 35 years of proofreading columns for my father and then, after his death in 1984, for me. Mary Zita Jacoby, who died suddenly last May, would have been 78 today. Here, in her honor, is a hand that my parents might well have played early in their marriage. With my mother as his partner, my father was even bold enough to take on some expert pairs.

When the heart seven is led against three no-trump, declarer can win the trick with dummy's jack. The natural play then is to take a club finesse. When West wins the club king, he will switch to a diamond. Since spades are not favored to split 3-3, declarer's best percentage play for nine tricks is to try the diamond queen. That will lose, and a heart back will net the defenders a two-trick set. But the right play (I congratulate those who have seen it) is for declarer to first play A-K-Q of spades before taking the club finesse. Since spades are 3-3, declarer will know that he doesn't need to take a diamond finesse to make his contract.

My parents would have succeeded with this hand, even when my mother was a beginner and even if she had been declarer. My father had a simple agreement in taking on the experts with Mother. If she was declarer and the contract was either doubled or in no-trump, he was allowed to change seats with her and play the hand.

Board Postpones Shelter Decision

Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County School Board postponed until December a decision on whether to allow a private firm to install shelters at bus stops in rural parts of the county. Board members said Wednesday they wanted more time to investigate the issue.

The School Board will not pay for the shelters because School Bus Stops of the South, Inc., Longwood, will install them and make its profit from advertising placed on the log cabin-like structures.

As part of the proposed agreement with the School Board, the company will donate $10 of the advertising revenue collected for each shelter every month to the "Say No to Drugs" program. Jack Gordon, a former National Football League coach now with the company, said they wanted the money donated to the program to go towards educating elementary age children about drugs.

Other requirements made of the company before the shelters were approved are:

- The company must provide an insurance policy in the amount of $1 million for coverage on all the shelters it installs in the county.

- The placement of the shelters will be contingent on all regulations governing county road right-of-ways. No shelter is to be placed on a county road without the approval of the county Public Works Director.

- The company must be responsible for the maintenance for all the shelters, which includes the upkeep of the grass in a 10-foot radius around the structure. The company must also provide for a monthly chemical pressure cleaning of all the shelters.

- All the shelters must be numbered in order to locate a shelter that is reported as having inappropriate graffiti. The company will be held responsible for the removal of such graffiti within 72 hours after it is reported to the School Board.

- The company must provide certification that all its shelters meet requirements for wind resistance and appropriate anchoring.

- Absolutely none of the advertising on the shelters can be for adult entertainment or alcohol and tobacco products.

- If the county should receive a complaint about the placement of any of the shelters the company must relocate the structure within 10 working days.

Board Member Pat Telson said she was concerned that the shelters were only going to be placed in rural areas of the county.

Gordon said permission would have to be obtained from the county's seven municipalities before they could put shelters up inside a city limit. "We have a different type of shelter to put up in cities. It's made out of a plastic material instead of the plywood we use for the log cabin shelters," Gordon said.

Board Member Nancy Warren said she was concerned about the liability the school board district might be responsible for if someone were injured at a bus stop. Ned Julian, attorney for the School Board, told Warren he felt the insurance policy would be adequate to cover the situation.

The only thing Julian said he wanted to see was a small bond to hold School Bus Stops of the South, Inc. responsible should they fail to maintain proper upkeep of the shelters. "I thought it appropriate to have some kind of modest maintenance bond in case the School Board incurs some maintenance costs," Julian said.

The School Board will now have until its Dec. 9 meeting to study the good and bad points of allowing the shelters at its rural bus stops. Gordon said he would be happy to bring one of the shelters to the School Board building on a trailer, but Telson said she wanted to see them in places where they're being used. There are already shelters in locations across Lake County, according to Gordon.

"I have a feeling some of you have never seen these things (shelters)," Hughes told the board. He said he thought it was a noble idea to keep kids out of the rain, but that some county residents might consider the shelters tacky. "You need to decide whether the shelters are appropriate for Seminole County," Hughes said.

Bob Adams, a local businessman working with the company to bring the shelters into the county, said he thought they had already talked a lot about the issue. "This (discussion on the shelters) started in August and we've been getting delays and delays, now the School Board has kicked it back until December," he said.

Sanford Preservation Group Formed

Maryann L. Cross
Herald Staff Writer

A new citizens group has formed in Sanford to preserve the character and the architectural style of the city.

Membership to the neighborhood improvement group, Save Our Sanford Inc., (SOS) is open to everyone, although the target area of SOS is Sanford's historic district. SOS Chairperson Glenn Domen said the group was founded with 20 charter members about two months ago and now has approximately 150 members. Domen said the other SOS officers are Joyce Malone, vice chairman; Betty Skates, secretary; Bertsey Solley, treasurer; and Jim Valerino, legal officer.

Sanford has been surveyed and nominated for designation as a National Register Historic District. Domen said approval is expected soon, which will make Sanford one of the largest National Register Districts in Florida featuring predominantly late 19th century and early 20th century architecture. The group hopes to see these homes restored and maintained as single-family residences. Domen said the group will also work with merchants of Sanford in their continuing efforts to revitalize the downtown historic district.

The group plans to offer a variety of special events to bring together people who will maintain and support SOS's goal of preserving the structure, character, and economic stability of Sanford. Walking tours of the downtown historic district and a spring home tour and art festival are the types of activities the group will offer.

Domen said the group plans to put out a monthly newsletter for its members to keep them informed of current events and activities affecting Sanford and its neighborhoods. In addition, the group intends to provide special restoration tools to members free of charge and maintain a list of craftsmen working with older homes.

When the SOS office opens, it will be a clearinghouse of information for members. The staff will answer calls of every nature, including inquiries on zoning, home repairs, city services, and what historic homes are for sale. Domen said the group will look for a structure in the historic district to purchase and restore for its office use.

The SOS organizers hope the group will function as a unified voice for the members when dealing with government agencies. Domen said the group will work with similar organizations within the city, as well as city agencies. Sanford City Commissioner John Mercer, whose district includes the Sanford historic area, has joined the group. The City Commission received information about the group at Monday's regular commission meeting.

Charter membership to the group is $25, with individual membership $10 and membership for senior citizens $5. The group meets weekly at members' houses and the meetings are open to everyone. For more information, contact Joyce Malone at 322-5600 or Glenn Domen at 322-0633.

The Dunkel Power Index Rankings has established Oviedo as a three-point favorite over Seminole and Lake Mary as a five-point choice over DeLand. Lake Howell is a 25-point selection over Spruce Creek.

In other games tonight, Lyman travels to Daytona Beach Mainland and Lake Brantley journeys to Orlando Dr. Phillips.

"Lake Mary has some very skilled people on offense but they are no slouches on defense either," Hiss said. "But Lake Mary always seems to get these good kids every year. They just reload and reload while we rebuild."

Hiss said his Bulldogs went through their worst week of practice this season and hopes the team will wake up by Friday night.

"If we don't wake up in the next 48 hours, we're in trouble," Hiss said. "Maybe (Lake Mary coach) Harry Nelson could play his second and third string and give us a chance. We might be able to score on them."

Claim: Shed Clothes Only When 'Germaine'

Total Nudity Remains A Film Issue

By Vernon Scott

UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Probably no element of movies has been examined and debated as long and as often as nudity. Not even sex. Not even violence.

Obviously, every man, woman and child has a body and that body is sometimes found in a pristine state. But is such a condition offensive when displayed on the screen?

No, and yes.

Does nudity in movies corrupt young people? Does it encourage sex crimes? Do the sculpted bodies of actors and actresses who appear in the altogether give the rest of us terminal inferiority complexes?

Some moralists inveigh against the nude body as an abomination in the eyes of God — Adam and Eve notwithstanding.

Some feminists argue that naked female bodies exploit women.

Some moviegoers find nudity titillating. Others find it embarrassing.

Actresses regularly and predictably claim they shed their clothes only when nudity is germaine, never gratuitous.

There is a distinction drawn between male and female nudity. Squawks of protest are heard most often when women are revealed. Seldom is a fuss raised over male nudity — see a Richard Gere movie or the rollicking male swimming scene in "A Room With a View."

Europeans are less offended and presumably less titillated by nude bodies as evidenced by the dearth of fig leaves on their statuary and the casual nakedness in their films.

A good recent example of the latter was "Steaming," starring Vanessa Redgrave and Sara Miles. The entire film takes place in a woman's steam spa without a single male in the cast. Nudity is rampant, unsexy, and un-commented upon.

Our Puritanical American roots, however, have us asking if motion picture nudity is more or less acceptable in non-sexual contexts.

Sex is the key. Nudity is often thought to be unnecessary except where the sex act is involved. But nudity suddenly becomes dirty to many people when sex is at issue.

Would "Coming Home," which featured Jane Fonda and Jon Voight in an explicit nude love-making scene, have had the same box-office and artistic impact had the stars' sexual gymnastics been left to audiences' imaginations?

In any case, both Fonda and Voight won Academy Awards for their performances.

The nudity and sex appealed to a great many Americans who saw William Hurt and Kathleen Turner make love in a bathtub scene in "Body Heat." The picture made superstars of them both.

On the other hand, most moviegoers were revolted by the nudity and blatant exploitation of bodies in "9 1/2 Weeks," starring Mickey Rourke and Kim Basinger.

Was the difference due to the physical attractiveness of the players? The intent of the nude scenes? The director's taste?

Essentially, public judgment of how much nudity is tolerated in a movie is a matter of individual — and frequently collective — taste. Just where the borderline falls between acceptable erotica and vulgarity and exploitation is moot.

Clearly, the schoolgirl shower sequences in teen exploitation films, "Porky's" et al, are in poor taste and except for a cheap joke or two apparently are meant to excite post-pubescent schoolboys.

There would be no nudity at all if actors and actresses simply refused to take off their clothes. The Screen Actors Guild could take a stand against it and nudity would be shut down entirely.

But would such action be a violation of the First Amendment?

Should moralists on the basis of religion or personal conviction dictate what moviegoers see or don't see on the screen?

Scores of actors and actresses, many of them Academy Award winners and highly respected professionals from Kirk Douglas to Glenn Close, have diabolized for the cameras, fully convinced that it was vital to a scene or for the credibility of a movie.

Any survey of performers would result in the vast majority saying they would play nude scenes only if circumstances dictated it was "necessary" for the film.

The question of nudity and sex surfaces again in "Weeds," a new film in which Nick Nolte and Rita Taggart find themselves in the buff.

Nolte is well-known for his performances in such films as "The Deep," "Down and Out in Beverly Hills" and "48 Hours." Taggart is a relative newcomer, but no dimpled Barbie Doll. She has appeared in such films as "China Syndrome," "Torchlight" and "Straight Time."

Taggart, a dark blonde, says nudity in movies is less offensive to women when both the male and female appear in the altogether in a scene that is meant to shock.

She said she and Nolte were equally self-conscious about their nude scene and more than a little anxious about what would happen when it came time to film it, especially because it did not include dialogue.

The scene involves Nolte, playing a convict fresh out of prison, and Taggart, playing his romantic interest, about to make love for the first time.

"So far as I know, no other job asks a woman for so much intimacy with a stranger as acting," Taggart said. "And nudity is a very difficult thing for an actress.

"At least Nick and I had time to get to know one another and to play other scenes together before we shot the nude sequence. Isabella Rossellini had to work naked with Dennis Hopper the first day they met on the set of 'Blue Velvet.' That would be almost impossible."

True to actress form, Taggart said, "I believe the nudity in our picture was necessary to the story. And inasmuch as Nick is nude, too, it isn't exploitive of women.

"Their nudity was to make both characters look awkward in the circumstances. And the awkwardness was very real on both our parts. This was the best role I've ever played and I didn't want to lose it on the basis of objecting to nudity.

"When I auditioned for the role the last question (director) John Hancock asked me was whether I would do a nude scene. Nick was there and I said, 'You haven't seen my body yet.' And Nick said, 'Maybe we'll get two body doubles.'"

Instead, Nolte and Taggart worked out for six months to firm up their bodies because "we didn't want to be humiliated."

"I was the only woman on the set and I was uneasy about the scene. I wanted to get it over with. Finally, they cleared the set and I took off my clothes. I was petrified, filled with fear and loathing at the thought that they might fire me.

"There was just the three of us (Nolte, Hancock and herself) when we rehearsed. Nick was as self-conscious as I was. But we faced our demons.

"When it came time to shoot the scene two cameramen were brought in. It's not like any of them had never seen a woman without her clothes before. Once the cameras rolled I got involved in the scene, I was almost unaware of the nudity. We shot it with two cameras a number of times, but we never got over the awkwardness."

Taggart, who is the wife of famed cinematographer Haskell Wexler, laughed and said, "I was madly in love with Nick for a few days after we did that scene.

"I still feel a little weird about it all. My parents don't know about it yet. They live in Salinas (a small Central California farming community) and the picture may never play there.

"I've seen so much nudity in movies I wish they'd cut it all out. If producers or directors rely on nudity to make their pictures a success, they are missing the point.

"It's far better for writers and directors to be more creative by leaving their actors clothed like they do in television. TV films make their points about love and sex without nudity.

"It would suit me fine if I never had to play another scene without my clothes. I don't think it's exciting or sexy. To be honest about it, I think it is rather boring."

Oceans
Four major bodies of water are recognized by geographers and mapmakers: the Arctic, Atlantic, Indian and Pacific Oceans. The Atlantic and Pacific oceans are divided by the equator into the North and South Atlantic and North and South Pacific. The Arctic Ocean is the name for waters north of the continental land masses in the region of the Arctic Circle.
Geographic Poles
The geographic (rotation) poles, or points where the earth's axis of rotation cuts the surface, are not absolutely fixed in the body of the earth.

New 'Trek' Is On Right Track

In last year's "Star Trek IV" movie, the Enterprise traveled back through time to California in 1946. As the crew members prepared to land, Capt. Kirk told them to be careful: "This is an extremely primitive and paranoid culture."

That attitude — sharply critical of the present but optimistic about the future — made "Star Trek" an exceptional TV show in the 1960s, and it makes the syndicated "Star Trek: The Next Generation" this fall's most intriguing new series.

The show got off to a rough start. The two-hour pilot had all the requisite elements: a deadly challenge from an immature madman, a trip to a mysterious outpost, several ethical dilemmas. But it was an overly talky jumble, as it tried to introduce the large, new cast and tell two stories at the same time.

Subsequent installments have been more focused — and more fun. In "Code of Honor," the crew had to cope with a nation of chauvinistic bullies without violating "the prime directive," which limits the use of force against alien life forms. In the delightful "The Naked Now," the Enterprise was menaced simultaneously by an exploding star and a peculiar disease whose symptoms included sexual arousal.

The new cast will wear well. Patrick Stewart, who plays Capt. Jean-Luc Picard, looks like California's Sen. Alan Cranston and behaves a lot like James T. Kirk — a sort of Capt. Horatio Hornblower of the universe. LeVar Burton is engaging as Lt. Geordi La Forge. Denise Crosby is spectacular as Tasha Yar, the chief of security. (She's Bling Crosby's granddaughter.) And there are a half-dozen other delightful new players.

One aspect of the new series is dictated by the popularity of Mr. Spock in the old series.

Instead of the unemotional Vulcan, we now have an unemotional android, a fellow named Data, played by Brent Spiner. Like Spock, Data is amusing as he points out human eccentricities, but he's too derivative, a minor flaw in creator Gene Roddenberry's otherwise smooth transfer of his "Star Trek" myth to a new setting.

To some extent, Capt. Picard and his crew are boldly going where Capt. Kirk and the gang went before: to dusty planets where strange people in kimonos behave rather badly. But intelligent life has progressed in the century that has passed since Kirk's day. For one thing, the Klingons — Kirk's worst enemies — are now peaceful members of the federation. The lesson may be that if ideological enemies refrain from destroying civilization, they may eventually work things out.

"Star Trek" was never just an action-adventure series; it was always more like an action-editorial. Roddenberry wanted to portray a future where different cultures could exist in harmony, respectful of each other. And he wanted to relate that future to contemporary political issues.

Last year, in an interview on ABC, he said: "We were the only show during the dreadful Vietnam affair, the only dramatic show that ever talked against Vietnam. As in the case of Jonathan Swift, he said it on another planet."

With Roddenberry as executive producer, this series — not the reruns or the movies — is the real "Star Trek" now.

ABC Debuts New Ensemble Sitcom

NEW YORK (UPI) — Strange things are going on at ABC. As usual, its new slate of programs has been met with lackluster response by the viewing public.

Already ABC has canned two shows — a holdover from last season called "Max Headroom" and the new action-adventure series "Once a Hero." And the rest of the new shows, with the possible exception of "Hooperman" and "Dolly," are getting trounced by the competition.

But because ABC had the broadcast rights to the World Series (the final game was the No. 1 ranked program last week) and because CBS's new shows are faring even worse than ABC's programs, ABC has found itself in second place this season. Last week ABC was No. 1.

To say that ABC executives are pleased is like saying Minnesota is pleased with its Twins.

The euphoria will die down in Minnesota as winter moves in, and it will disappear at ABC if the programmers keep churning out shows like "The Pursuit of Happiness," a replacement program debuting Friday, Oct. 30 (9:30-10 p.m. EST).

What we have here is another silly sitcom, billed as "an ensemble comedy series."

"Ensemble" is a magic word in television these days. Ever since "Hill Street Blues" proved that ensembles worked, everybody's been getting into the act. Last year there was NBC's "L.A. Law" and this year there's ABC's "thirtysomething." Now we have ensemble comedy.

"The Pursuit of Happiness" is about Dave Hanley (Paul Provenza) a wandering beatnik (do they still exist?) who has given up odd jobs at a lumber camp and on a lobster boat to become an assistant professor of American history at a college in Philadelphia.

Will Frank Really Release Old Film?

Dear Dick: Will the movie "The Manchurian Candidate" be shown on TV any time soon? I understand the movie has, in effect, been banned, ostensibly due to a copyright or contract dispute. Also, what is director John Frankenheimer's role in any such dispute? J.H., Houston.

Dear J.H.: United Artists tells me there is no dispute, just a hard, cold fact of corporate life. Frank Sinatra, who starred in that brilliant film, owns all the rights — that was in the terms of his original contract — and, for whatever reason, refuses to let it be shown.

Dear Dick: Would you please settle a $100 bet. I say the girl who played the mistress of Tom Selleck in the movie, "The Washington Affair," is the same girl who played the singer in "The Poseidon Adventure." My husband says they are two different people. — S.O., Kitchener, Ont., Canada.

Dear S.O.: I declare you wealthy. The beautiful Carol Lynley is the lady in question, and she played both parts.

Dear Dick: My husband says that the actor who played Col. Fenchcot (Hot Lips' husband) on "M A S H" also played in a black-and-white "Tarzan" movie as Tarzan. My son says no way. Please find out the answer. — S.C., Rock Hill, S.C.

Dear S.C.: One Penobscot did, one didn't. There were two actors who played that part. Berson Carroll was never Tarzan. But Mike Henry was, although they weren't black-and-white films. Henry was Tarzan in "Tarzan and the Valley of Gold" in 1965, "Tarzan and the Great River" in 1967 and "Tarzan and the Jungle Boy" in 1968.

Ask Dick Kleiner

Dear Dick: Where was William Holden born? I say Lebanon, Ill. My daughter says O'Fallon, Ill. We have a dinner bet on the answer and I hope I'm the winner. — Mrs. F.T., Muskegon, Mich.

Dear Mrs. F.T.: Bring your checkbook, because it was O'Fallon.

Dear Dick: I just saw "Tarantula" again after several years. Then, as now, I believe the leader of the jet fighters to be Clint Eastwood. If those weren't his eyes and voice, they should have been. Please find out who the man really was. — C., Huntsville, Texas.

Dear C.: You are a great eyes and voice spotter.

That was Eastwood, as the squadron leader in the 1955 film, one of his first jobs.

Dear Dick: About 25 years ago, when I was an impressionable child, I saw the movie "Sword in the Stone." It wasn't the cartoon version, but an actual movie with all kinds of hardships, including one knight who fell off the path into boiling liquid. Did I actually see this movie, or was it my vivid imagination at work? — J.P., Warsaw, Ind.

Dear J.P.: The only movie by that title was the 1963 Disney animated film. But there were several movies about that period and so it is possible you saw another film and mixed up the titles.

Dear Dick: After watching "Jesus of Nazareth," I wonder if Robert Powell has ever made any more movies? He was wonderful as Jesus. — J.F., Homedale, Fla.

Dear J.F.: Powell keeps busy, mostly in England. Since "Jesus of Nazareth," he made the remake of "The 39 Steps" and the very fine TV movie, "The Four Feathers," among many other jobs.

Dear Dick: Who did the voice of the talking horse, "Mister Ed"? He wasn't mentioned in the credits. Is he a popular actor or just another voice in the crowd? — D.R., Miramar, Fla.

Dear D.R.: A working actor, although never a big star. His name was Allan "Rocky" Lane, and he had appeared in many westerns.

Meet Ray Bradbury, Martian Myths Maker

By Steve Holland
PARIS (UPI) — With a whoosh of escaping air, the door opened slowly. It might have been an airlock on a spaceship, but it was only a Paris elevator, and what emerged was not Martian but an American in white shorts and sneakers.

Meet Ray Bradbury, maker of Martian myths, spinner of fantastic tales, who now is seeing some of his favorite short stories being made into a TV series compared to Rod Serling's "The Twilight Zone" or "Alfred Hitchcock Presents."

Dressed in "my working clothes," his hair white and California long, Bradbury strides into the lounge at the Hotel Normandy, seats himself in a leather chair and chronicles his latest adventures along with a healthy dose of advice for young writers.

Bradbury, 67, who left Waukegan, Ill., for Los Angeles 55 years ago, is as busy now as he was in his 20s, when he began making a living out of writing short stories.

His books, led by "The Martian Chronicles," have sold millions and he is sometimes called the world's greatest living science fiction writer.

A major project for Bradbury now is writing the scripts for "The Ray Bradbury Theater," which will air some time in the next year on the cable television channel USA Network. The series will consist of 12 shows, four to be shot in France, four in England and four in Toronto.

Bradbury was in Paris with his wife Marguerite to celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary. He took time out to meet the producers of the shows being filmed in France.

"They are all kinds of stories, science fiction, fantasy, magical realism, murder, suspense, the sort of thing Alfred Hitchcock would do for his series. I wrote nine of the Hitchcock shows 30 years ago. I've always wanted to have my own series but I was afraid."

Stories to be dramatized for the series include "There Was An Old Woman," "Gotcha!," "The Coffin," and "The Fruit at the Bottom of the Bowl."

Six similar shows were broadcast on cable's Home Box Office a year ago but the series was canceled, even though it was nominated for 19 Canadian and American cable television awards and won seven. One episode, "Banahce," garnered the 1986 Award for cable excellence from the National Academy of Cable Programming of Los Angeles, and the best actor award for Peter O'Toole.

"Banahce" was about the late director John Huston and Bradbury who 34 years ago were in Ireland making the movie, "Moby Dick," for which Bradbury wrote the screenplay.

The HBO experience, coupled with a lackluster NBC production of "The Martian Chronicles" seven years ago — "It didn't overwhelm you with badness, it was just boring." — has left Bradbury leery of the American networks.

"The networks have approached me but I'm really afraid of those people," he said. "That doesn't mean they are not nice people. But they are much more cliquish. They're misguided because they're afraid. They're looking over their shoulders. They're worried about their ratings."

"HBO canceled my series at the end of the first six (shows) because I'm sure the ratings weren't big enough for them. I'm not Tina Turner or Dolly Parton. And they never told me the reason for canceling even in the midst of getting all those awards," he said.

For the current series, the producers are trying to get actors like Maggie Smith, Anthony Hopkins and Christopher Plummer. "It doesn't mean we are going to get them but we are going to try," Bradbury said.

Besides the series, Bradbury also is working on a book about his experiences with Huston in Ireland. One hundred pages are written and 200 more are expected by the end of the month.

He works late at night, starting at 1 a.m., tapping away on his electric typewriter until the wee hours.

Despite his fame, what he writes is not always published.

He tells a wonderful yarn about one of seven short stories he has banged out in the last seven months:

A ghost is slowly dying because no one around him believes in ghosts anymore but then a nurse discovers who he is, takes him to a nursery and he is sustained by telling the children ghost stories because they believe.

"That story was just rejected by Playboy," Bradbury said, "so there are no guarantees. Four other stories have been rejected by various magazines recently; so I don't have it made."

But he says the market is there.

"There are Atlantic, Harper's, Playboy, Omni and six other science fiction or fantasy magazines. Then there's the paperback industry. And there's where the young people of today can start. There are enough markets to sustain people."

Bradbury says the key is to draw from personal experience, to give it a tug and it will come back.

"It's all in there. We shut it out. We just don't believe it exists. I've learned to just bring it out for many years now. When I get going people have to stand out of my way. The fast stuff is the good stuff. The slower you write the worse it is. You slow down and then you begin to make up stuff. But when it comes fast there is no time to think about it. Just get it down."

Beginning writers, he says, should "fall in love with something and do it. Love is the answer. And don't write something you shouldn't be writing or you can't do well. If you love murder mysteries, write murder mysteries. If it's love stories, write love stories."

"But the answer is you've gotta be in love and write every day and then after a few years you get the trash out of your system and you begin to write well. But it takes a few years to get to the inner self."

Mind you, despite the rejection Bradbury has nothing against Playboy, which has published 35 of his stories over the years, including his novel on censorship, "Fahrenheit 451," in its first three issues.

"I couldn't sell it anywhere else in the United States because it was the McCarthy period and witch hunting and the editors of the country were afraid of anything that had an idea in it. It had to do with bookburning. At the time it wasn't that dangerous, but there are a lot of chickens around and you go 'boo' and they all vanish," he said.

And that perception has affected Bradbury's politics.
