TO REMOVE CAUSE OF WAR FOUR POWER PEACE PACT SOURCE OF GRATIFICATION

IN OFFICIAL CIRCLES AT WASHINGTON AND OTHER COUNTRIES
INDEPENDENT PACTS
Between Countries But Designed to Supplement Each OTHER

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Action of French Chamber of Deputies in voting ratification yesterday of the Four Power Peace Treaty, coupled with the favorable vote last week on the naval pact, caused great gratification in official circles here, although some regret was evidenced at the forecasts that the three other Washington treaties would not be put through at once.

The five treaties negotiated at the arms conference are independent documents, but to a certain degree they are designed to supplement each other and to extend the effectiveness of the general plan contemplated by the conference for removing possible causes of war. Although there will be no barrier to putting into effect the naval treaty and the Pacific pact even though French ratification of the other treaties is delayed, the result of that delay may be to develop a somewhat peculiar situation.

The Chinese treaties, one dealing with customs matters in China and the other with political questions there, were worked out as a very vital element in the project of assuring peace in the Pacific. It was through these pacts that the conference delegates hoped to iron out causes of international friction in China and to make less classes of interest in the far East that might lead to war.

The aspect of the situation is regarded as of importance just at this time on account of the disturbed conditions in China, where the power of the Central government has been greatly weakened and bandit outrages have become numerous. It is felt that proclamation of the Washington treaties might have had some effect toward stabilizing the situation.

For a somewhat different reason the delay over the submarine and gas warfare treaty is a cause of regret to officials here. It has been hoped at the time of the Washington conference that the doctrines laid down in that treaty as binding upon the signatories could be extended without delay to all other nations, adding a new chapter to international law. The world process cannot go forward however, until the treaty has been ratified.

Submarine provisions of the treaty probably are of greater importance to Great Britain than the signatories because of her geographical situation. It is to be recalled that the British delegation to the conference sought to outlaw submarines entirely. The root resolutions embodied in the submarine and gas warfare treaty were written for the purpose of finding a compromise ground in which naval opinion of all the powers could combine.

TURKS TO SIGN PEACE TREATY

(By The Associated Press)
CONSTANTINOPLE, July 10.—The Ankara government, after examination of the latest dispatches from Lausanne, has authorized Ismet Pasha to sign the peace treaty. There had been some doubt as to what action the authorities of Ankara would take or how long it might be delayed, but the announcement made yesterday evening, apparently confirms the settlement which was reached at Lausanne yesterday by Ismet and the delegates representing the allies.

It is considered that the head of the Turkish delegation at the Near East conference has gained notable diplomatic victories and there is a feeling of satisfaction in Constantinople and evidently at Ankara over the outcome of the long drawn out negotiations.

Florida Rice Growers Are Interested in California Crop

Crop Has Not Made Any Headway in This State.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., July 10.—Rice growers in Florida, a crop that has not made great headway in this state, are interested in the growing of the crop in California where it has made rapid strides during the last ten years.

Commercial growing of rice in the Pacific coast state did not begin until 1912 but by 1919 the value of the crop reached the high mark of $21,000,000. Planting of the crop on a commercial basis followed three years of experimenting by the United States department of agriculture to determine the possibilities of its culture in California. Up to 1909, the industry had been confined to the South Atlantic and Gulf states.

Results of experiments, with varieties, fertilizers, cultural methods, and irrigation practices performed at the Biggs (Cal.) experiment station since its establishment form the basis for information just published in bulletin form by the federal agricultural department.

Thirty-five varieties and strains of rice have been grown in tenth acre plots and nine-year averages obtained for seven varieties. The variety giving the highest average yield in the nine years, it is stated, was Wataribuns, C. I. No. 1661, a late-maturing, short-grain rice, yielding 4,364 pounds per acre.

The fertilizer experiments conducted during a three-year period, 1914 to 1916, inclusive, show that manure increased the average yield 879 pounds, sulphate of ammonia 657 pounds, dried blood 640 pounds, and cottonseed meal 583 pounds per acre.

In the depth of submergence experiments, the highest average yield, 5,925 pounds per acre, was obtained by submerging the land six inches deep during the submergence period.

NO INDICATION OF PRECISE NATURE OF STATEMENT MADE IN PARLIAMENT BY PREMIER BALDWIN NEXT THURSDAY

Concerning Reparations Question But Nothing Spectacular Expected

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, July 10.—While there is no indication of the precise nature of the statement to be made in parliament Thursday by Premier Baldwin concerning reparations question official spokesmen here say there will be nothing spectacular about the government's declaration. The statement they say will aim at setting openly before world the views of Great Britain for economic political restoration of Europe. Door will be left open for full co-operation between Great Britain and France.

LONDON, July 10.—Prime Minister Baldwin's announcement in the house of commons yesterday afternoon that it might be possible for the government to make a statement on reparations Thursday, eased British public opinion, which has been manifesting increased impatience and concern over the failure of the cabinet to commit itself to a definite policy. It is anticipated that the premier's statement will furnish parliament and the public with a clear cut, comprehensive analysis of the whole subject. This may afford the opposition groups in the house opportunity for open debate, and it is considered likely that before the week is out the Ruhr controversy will have entered a new and broader phase.

JOHN BURKE WILL TELL THE GRAND JURY ALL HE KNOWS ABOUT BROKERAGE FAILURE

NEW YORK, July 10.—Haggard, dejected and "broke," John Burke, once treasurer of the United States and three governor of North Dakota, walked into District Attorney Blanton's office yesterday to offer the authorities what help he could in the grand jury investigation of the brokerage firm of Kardos and Burke, which failed eighteen months ago for more than $2,000,000.

Mr. Burke said he was ready to waive immunity and tell the grand jury everything he knew—which was not much—about operations of the firm.

"I give my word as an American that the first intimation I had of what was going on was when the bankruptcy petition was filed," he said.

"I think that is your trouble," cut in one of the assistant district attorneys, who was examining him. "I don't think you even know you were alive in that outfit."

"Upon my word, you are right," responded the man whose name once appeared on millions of currency of the United States. "I feel this thing. It's got me licked—broke. I never thought it possible. What hurts me more than anything else, is the fact that I, John Burke, the former treasurer of the greatest nation on earth, should have had my name connected with a brokerage house that went to the wall and wiped out the money put up with it by small investors."

Mr. Burke said he had had virtually nothing to do with the routine operations of the firm, leaving all that to Louis Kardos, Jr., his partner. He said he had insisted on a clause in the partnership agreement stipulating that the firm would not itself engage in speculation. He thought that this agreement was being lived up to.

"Because of my age and the position I had held," he said, "I felt that there must be no question about the soundness of the policy of the firm of Kardos and Burke should pursue, hence I insisted on the contract I have mentioned. I had every reason to believe it would be lived up to, and now that things have gone wrong, I want to lay all my cards on the table and do everything I can to aid the district attorney. I have lost everything I had in this world—even my insurance policies. That's pretty hard at my age—I'm sixty-four years old now."

When some one mentioned the fact that Mr. Burke recently had been in ill health, he broke in:

BOOTLEGGERS PARADISE IS NOW LOCATED AT BIMINI OFF THE COAST

IN CHICAGO NEWS

Writer Tells of His Own Experience in Running Rum and Selling It in U. S.

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, July 10.—Rum running along the South Atlantic seaboard has assumed such tremendous proportions that inhabitants of the poverty stricken little island have become rich almost overnight and that section has become known as "bootleggers paradise," the Chicago Daily News, said today, in a copyrighted article describing conditions along the Florida coast. In the city of Nassau alone, the article said official clearings of liquor bound for the United States increased from thirty-seven thousand gallons in 1917 to one million and three hundred and forty thousand gallons last year. The writer accompanied by a bootlegger named Terry as a guide told of visiting rum fleets and talking with rum runners and helping transport liquor and distributing it in the United States.

Miami, the first stop of the investigators was described as a city where, if you feel the need of a drink and don't happen have your own flask with you all you need to do is wait in the shade of a palm tree until a resident comes along and ask him where you can find a bootlegger and if he isn't one himself, he will tell you where to go. You can buy all the whiskey you want in Miami at five dollars a quart." Havana and Nassau were described as but two of ports that are flooding the United States with liquor, some of it from American distilleries. "When we were ready to return to Chicago," the article declared, "we left the Florida coast in a bootleggers motorboat met and boarded a rum schooner loaded with two thousand cases of Scotch whiskey. Rode this ship to New Jersey coast, bought ten cases of Scotch whiskey from the captain and landed it along with two hundred other cases on New Jersey Coast, trucked it to Newark, packed it into trunks and shipped it to Chicago and sold it to Terry's customers." Nobody interfered or questioned us. It was all in a day's work."

PRINCE AND PRINCESS VICTIMS OF TWO ROBBERIES

(By The Associated Press)
ROME, July 10.—A bold robbery with a prince and princess as the victims, was carried out here today. Taking advantage of their position in the palace household, a waiter and a chauffeur early this morning overpowered Prince Carlo Giustiniani Bandini and his wife, Princess Maria, drugged them, and made away with jewels and money valued at two million lire. The police are searching for Marino Guagnelli of Farenze de Sao, and Alfredo Clucchi of Gallara, Italy.

It was two o'clock this morning when the two men after making sure that the others of the household were asleep, covered their faces with masks, cut the telephones wires, and entered the bedroom of the Prince and Princess, whom they attempted to drug with an anesthetic mask. The sleepers awoke and tried to summon aid, whereupon they were beaten and drugged by force. The thieves then took their keys, opened the safe and removed all the jewels, including a historic diadem, which belonged to Queen Hortense of Holland, and 20,000 lire kept there for current expenses. They escaped after locking the bedroom.

ROTARY CLUB HELD MEETING AT VALDEZ

GOOD MUSIC AND ENTERTAINMENT AND HON. G. A. DE-COTTES MADE TALK

The Rotary Club met today at the Valdez with a good attendance considering the heated term and vacation period. President Knight called upon Dr. Carpenter for the divine blessing and then with songs and a general good time the members and guests passed away a most pleasant and interesting hour. Nixon Butt, a visiting Rotarian from Orlando, was made to stand up.

H. C. DuBose was made to tell the why and wherefore of his being arrested in Georgia and he tried to do so but there are many doubts about the truth of his statement. Dr. Carpenter called attention to the fact that a sick boy was at the auto camp and needed attention and this matter will be taken up with the proper authorities.

Frank Vernay was a new member and his duties as a Rotarian were fully explained to him by H. C. DuBose, who gave a brief outline of the aims and qualifications of a Rotarian and what was expected and required of him. Mr. Vernay promised to comply with all rules and to become a good Rotarian and his initiation will no doubt make him one.

The gavel was turned over to Chas. Britt for fifteen minutes and he had Mrs. Wagner, Miss Eva Grace Wagner and the Schirard Brothers, all ready to go and they went and they brought down the house. Miss Eva Grace is some spry and she knows how to sing and the way she sang two songs accompanied by her mother, was a riot. Called upon to sing another special song she could not respond because she did not have the music but promised Mr. DeCottes that she would have it ready for the Kiwanis Wednesday. The Schirard boys on the cornet and saxophone were good and they were given great applause.

Hon. George A. DeCottes was then called upon as the speaker of the day and for ten minutes he gave the Rotarians something to think about in the matter of the good that is being accomplished by the Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club and the Chamber of Commerce and other kindred organizations. He took up the matter of the bulkheading of the lake front and other enterprises, the Rotary, Kiwanis and Chamber of Commerce meeting together once each month and talking over ideas that would be of benefit to the city. That the Rotary had the Boy Scouts for their big work and the Kiwanis Club has the hospital and both clubs were making a better city and better citizens in their work. He spoke about playgrounds for the city and the idea of making the Country Club and golf links a municipal proposition in order that all people could enjoy this club and the grounds. That the clubs should find out what the city needed in the way of improvements and bring it before the city commissioners and they would be glad to listen to the propositions at any time and take action. Mr. DeCottes also touched on other subjects of interest to the city and county and gave the Rotarians something to ponder over.

President Knight expressed his appreciation of the efforts of Chairman Britt, Mrs. Wagner and Miss Wagner, the Schirard boys and Mr. DeCottes and with the closing song the meeting adjourned till next Monday.

Miss Starbuck died at the Morrell Memorial Hospital, Lakeland, at 10:45 o'clock, where she was taken after the accident.

The accident occurred at 4 o'clock at the Polk-Hillsborough county line, about six miles from Lakeland. Miss Burnett declares that she attempted to make a turn after crossing the railroad at this point and the brakes failed to halt the speed of the car. The automobile turned completely over, pinning Miss Starbuck beneath.

Passing motorists picked up the injured girls and rushed them to the hospital, reaching Lakeland at 4:30 o'clock. Miss Starbuck was conscious at this time, it is said.

Dr. H. M. Richards, who attended Miss Starbuck upon her arrival at the hospital, stated that she suffered a crushed chest, abdominal injuries, a crushed collar bone and a broken shoulder. After her injuries had received attention Miss Burnett was taken to the home of a Lakeland friend, Miss Geraldine Ellis of North Kentucky avenue, where she is now staying.

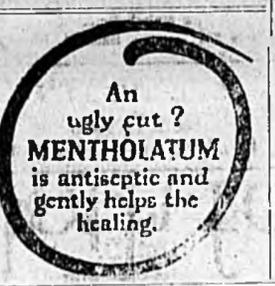

Immediately after the arrival in Lakeland of the two injured girls, their parents were informed of the accident. Mr. and Mrs. Starbuck left for Lakeland, taking with them Dr. John S. Helms. Miss Starbuck recognized her parents when they reached her bedside, hospital attendants said.

ONE KILOWATT

When you pay your electric light bill and note that you are paying so much for each "kilowatt hour," you give little thought to just what a kilowatt is and just what it is capable of doing.

The kilowatt is a powerful bit of energy. It has the force and efficacy to do many things. The French government, after exhaustive research and experiment, has drawn up a list of tasks that can be done by one kilowatt hour of electric energy. The unit of energy will perform the following duties: Drive a sawing machine for twenty hours, save 1.06 gallons of kerosene, clean 15 steel table knives for a year, clip 5 horses or 25 sheep, heat water for shaving for one month, light three cigars a day for five years, heat a flatiron for three years, boil 2.37 gallons of water, fry 16 chops in 15 minutes, heat a curling iron for 20 minutes, incubate 250 eggs, milk 20 cows, separate 350 gallons of milk, churn 440 pounds of butter, chop one-half ton of straw.—Tampa Tribune.

See, if this is the case the Southern Utilities Company are not charging enough for one kilowatt. Our kilowatts here are not so industrious as all this—they seem to lay down on the job with everything except to turn the meter.

ALL THE MONEY IN ONE CHEST

The Herald has called attention to the fact that Sanford and Seminole County were driven to death all the time and especially since the war when the people became imbued with the idea of making a drive for money every time it was necessary to raise it for some public purpose. There are few projects but were worthy of the support of the public. The only real objections to the drives were that the same people paid for everything and there were always a few amply able to pay who never paid anything. In other words the merchants of Sanford easily approachable and always to be found ready and willing to help along every good movement were being pulled to death. For instance, a progressive business man of Sanford belongs to the Chamber of Commerce. He might attend the regular weekly meetings and keep up with all that is going on and he pays for his Friday luncheon as well as his regular dues. He belongs to the Rotary or Kiwanis Clubs and keeps up his dues in those institutions. He is a member of one or several fraternal orders and keeps up his dues regularly. Being in business he donates to every other project that is presented to him and there are many of them during the year and when he takes stock of himself at the end of the year he finds out that he has paid out about one thousand dollars or more for various public enterprises aside from his regular advertising bills and other side issues and in some instances his bills are more than one thousand dollars. He has contributed to all of them freely and willingly but—some of his neighbors have contributed to none of them. The band must be kept up, the hospital must be kept up, the church dues are to be paid, other worthy enterprises from time to time—all of them good and for the benefit of the city must be kept going and they help to make Sanford bigger and better in every way. However the public spirited citizen has been paying all the bills and some of the folks that are being benefitted perhaps directly or indirectly from all these objects are not paying anything. Aside from the objects named there are many others in the line of advertising Sanford and keeping her good name before the public. The progressive citizens also spend many hours of their time in public meetings of all kinds working for the benefit of the city. They make trips to other places and to many meetings of various kinds that mean no more to them than to other citizens of Sanford and yet—all the citizens of Sanford do not attend these meetings and are not spending any of their time or money to build up Sanford but the burden is falling on the shoulders of the few patriots who have always carried the load because they feel that Sanford should be up and doing and getting her share of publicity and telling the world what we have in the way of inducements for investment and pleasure.

The only fair way to attend to all of these matters is to levy a publicity tax and put aside a certain per cent of the tax money for this publicity and stop the drives that are driving a few of the progressive citizens wild in the endeavor to keep up with all of the work and expense. It is a burden that should be shifted to the shoulders of every tax payer in the community and we believe that our City Commissioners believe in this method and they will take steps this year to fix the city budget along these lines. Some of these days the budget of the city and the county will be arranged in a big Community Chest that will take care of all the public institutions and there will never be another drive for anything. WHERE IS YOUR BOY AT NIGHT?

Dad, do you know where your boy spends his after-supper hours? A boy about 18 years old slept in a city jail one night not long since. He had stolen something. It was his second offense. When he committed his first misdemeanor he wasn't at home. Why did he do the thing that finally landed him in a cell?

You were a boy once yourself. What were your motives the night you and Skinny swiped the ice cream from Mrs. Smith's pack porch? You promptly reply that it was the love of adventure, the spirit of personal initiative which properly stated will make a man out of any healthy boy.

How about your boy, Dad? Do you make your home more attractive to your boy than the dance halls? Are you seeing to it that he has the bright lights, the games, and better company than he can find away from home? You will have no trouble keeping him at home if you make home the most attractive place in town nights.

Take the boy into your confidence, Dad.—Bert Morehouse in Lakeland Star-Telegram.

ity, all advertising, all money for all purposes that concern the public will be taken from this Community Chest that will be in charge of the city and county commissioners and a committee of citizens and there will be no more drives against the busy business man who is busy enough with his own business and that of the city and has neither the time or the money to take part in everything that comes along—worthy objects some times but objects that should not be shifted on the same people day by day and month by month and year by year. All cities are coming to it. Sanford will have to come to it.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING

Co-operative marketing is the thing. It has been tried with varying success at many places and many times and it is not always a success on account of improper management but the idea is still good and the government thinks so and many foreign countries think so. The state of Florida will endeavor to foster the idea by giving the farmers a plan whereby they can finance such an organization wherever they have six or more members.

In his book, "Co-operative Marketing, the Golden Rule in Agriculture," (now being distributed by the American Farm Bureau Federation), Herman Steen, editor of his Prairie Farmer, says that in 1922 there were more than 10,000 local co-operative associations operating in but twelve western states. The chief commodities marketed by them are livestock, grain, dairy products, potatoes and fruit. In the south, he writes, co-operative marketing associations revolve chiefly around tobacco and cotton, and to a lesser extent around fruits and vegetables. Western co-operative endeavor is limited mostly to fruits and dried fruits.

The early trials and tribulations, and the present methods of efficient management of one hundred of the leading co-operative marketing associations in the United States are described in Mr. Steen's book. His story of their origin and growth furnishes a convincing argument in favor of the extension of the co-operative movement among American producers. He narrates how the tobacco growers of old Virginia, after eight years of night riding, burn burning, crop destroying, and other unlawful practices, perpetrated in the hope of raising tobacco prices, finally organized a substantial, progressive co-operative association, with a membership of nearly 250,000. He tells of the marketing troubles of the cotton grower, and how he has recently organized and is now solving his problems thru a co-operative selling association. He lists each of the forty-two states now served by co-operative agencies, and tells of the organization of each.

Due credit is given by Mr. Steen to the work of the Florida Citrus Exchange, which he describes in a chapter on "Pioneers in Co-operation." This organization while not as large as its big brother, the California Fruit Growers Exchange, is admitted by the Californians to be farther advanced at its age than the Pacific Coast association was when it was but fourteen years old. "Its success is shown by the fact that in twelve years the percentages of the Florida citrus crop handled through its channels has doubled, and is increasing year after year," writes Mr. Steen.

The co-operative organizations of this modern day, formed by growers primarily for merchandising their products, are far different from those first attempted. They are nearly all based on the commodity plan; but one product and not diversifying their selling efforts.

Another thing the co-operatives have come to recognize is the necessity of employing experienced executives to manage their business. These men are generally the best trained, and often the highest salaried, in their line of endeavor. The old theory that a co-operative organization is under "dist farmer" management no longer exists. The grower controls his marketing association, but depends on real sale managers and executives to handle his business.

After several, bitter experiences in the early days of co-operative endeavor, farmer's modern selling organizations have also learned the necessity of binding their members to their co-operative agreements by contract. These contracts can hold growers to their agreement to stay with the association over the length of time designated. They enable the association to make marketing arrangements in advance with the assurance that part of the growers will not suddenly quit the organization, taking with them some of their business.

There are many critics of the co-operative movement who claim it is attempting to disrupt present methods of distributing farm products. This charge is without foundation. Wherever there are already established channels for distribution, co-operative associations invariably make use of them. Where those channels are not sufficiently developed, co-operative agencies have built up other means of getting the products of their growers to the consumer.

ALL HONOR TO COLUMBIA COUNTY.

"Higginbotham is Convicted and Florida is Vindicated" is the way the Lakeland Star-Telegram puts it commenting on the verdict of manslaughter brought in by the Columbia county jury Sunday morning against Higginbotham, the erstwhile whipping boss. All this is true. Florida has been vindicated and the whole world will give her due credit for taking the bull by the horns and banishing forever the one black spot in her history. Regardless of whether it was as black as painted, the fact remains that cruel whippings and lashings were taking place, convicts were being ill-treated and there were many crimes laid to the door of the lease system. This was especially true of the fee system that allowed a sheriff and a county judge to snatch men walking along the roads or riding on the trains into the convict camps—sold into slavery—in so many words and made to work out twice the amount of their fines. Their fines were not even allowed to be paid so greedily had the big corporations become for human flesh to grind up in their hoppers of industry. But all this is changed. The lease and the lash have been abolished and the county officials caught trafficking in human flesh will lose their jobs and the good name of the state is vindicated indeed.

But since the trial of Higginbotham occurred in Lake City in Columbia county, and the man had a fair trial and the jurors stuck to their tasks like real men even though one of them had appendicitis it is well to remember that Lake City and Columbia county are due a vote of thanks of the people of Florida. They performed their full duty as men and as citizens of the state of Florida and especially as jurors.

Columbia is a good name. It stands for freedom and liberty and a square deal to all the world and a Columbia county has been rightly named. All honor to Columbia County and its thriving county seat, Lake City.

Consolidation of City and County Governments

Sanford, Fla., July 10, 1923.

Editor of the Herald, Dear Sir: Regarding your article in the Herald concerning the consolidation of the City and County governments as proposed while I was a member of the city council will say that I did advocate same, as a member of the city government because I thought and still think that it could be worked out to the advantage of the tax payers. At that time I was given little or no support from the other members of the city government, but on the other hand met considerable opposition from those who held positions of profit in the city. My plan then was and I still believe it will work out, is as follows:

I would abolish the present city government by the proper method of going to the legislature. I would increase the present board of county commissioners four members, and that at least four of the new county commissioners must live within the present corporation of the city of Sanford. I would so divide the county into commissioners districts that the present corporate limits of Sanford would contain at least four commissioners districts and these could not be changed except by a two-thirds vote of the combined districts. I would, of course, have all taxes assessed and collected by the present county officials. The policing of the city would be turned over to the sheriff's office and all trials would be before the county judge who would pass judgment and fix penalties in the same manner as does the present city judge. There are many details that I should not care to cover that would be worked out as it does under any new form of government. Now the most important matter that would come up under the consolidation plan would be the matter of our bonded indebtedness and I believe that this can be handled as simply as any other part of the plan. I would propose that the present corporate limits of Sanford carry such additional millage as to take care of the interest and sinking fund just as many special districts carry different millage for a special purpose. I see nothing in it except saving to the tax payers.

We could secure as good county commissioners as we do city commissioners, in fact the same ones could serve with one additional member. I can not help but believe that we would be much benefitted by the plan. There is only one thing we might lose and that would be the name of city which amounts to nothing compared with the cost. I am glad that you are giving this matter some publicity, and I hope the matter will be discussed by our citizens and if it is a good thing for us that we give it proper consideration. I thank you for asking me to write you on the subject as I had given very little thought about it since I had mentioned it some few years ago. Wishing you success in the proposition if it will be a good thing for our people. I am,

Yours very truly, F. L. MILLER.

DREADED BY EVERY SAILOR

Encounter With Waterspout is One of the Most Fears of the Perils of the Ocean.

A waterspout is a remarkable meteorological phenomenon, frequently observed at sea, and analogous to the whirlwinds experienced on land. It occurs when opposite winds of different temperatures meet in the upper atmosphere, whereby a great amount of vapor is condensed into a thick, black cloud, to which a vertical motion is given. This vertical motion causes it to take the form of a vast funnel which, descending near the surface of the sea, draws up the water in its vortex, which joins in its whirling motion.

The whole column, which after the junction extends from the sea to the clouds, assumes a magnificent appearance, being of a light color near its axis but dark along the sides. When acted on by the wind the column assumes a position oblique to the horizon, but in calm weather it maintains its vertical position and is carried along the surface of the sea.

MANY MOTORS IN TASMANIA

Inhabitants of Little Island Have Seen the Value of Catering to the Tourist.

Motor transport is making rapid strides in the tight island of Tasmania, according to advices received by the Department of Commerce. At King's Wharf, Hobart, recently, 22 motors were awaiting the arrival of a ship to take the passengers anywhere in the civilized part of the island they wanted to go. In the last fiscal year 3,109 vehicles and 1,875 cycle cars were registered, and they paid £13,380 in taxes, which went to keep up the admirable main road between Hobart and Launceston and the east coast road, which is the Australasian motorists' road to paradise. Motor transport between Hobart and Launceston, the north and south parts of the island, is making serious inroads, it is said, on state railway receipts. The western part of Tasmania remains a wilderness of lakes, forests and mountains, but in the north, east and south, road building is proceeding steadily.

INSECT-PLAGUE SPREADS

The spread of the Mexican bean beetle to higher altitudes is apparent to entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Three or four years ago the Mexican bean beetle was not found higher than 5,000 feet above sea level in Colorado and at elevations as high as 7,000 feet in New Mexico. Quite recently authentic reports have been received of the occurrence of this pest at altitudes above 7,000 feet in New Mexico and one of its occurrence at Chaffee, Buena Vista county, Colorado, at an elevation of 8,231 feet. In Mexico it is known to occur in Puebla, state of Puebla, at an elevation of 7,110 feet. The state entomologist of Colorado reports this species at Salida last summer, and says that it is spreading in Delta county on the western slope in the irrigated region.

SNAKES SAVE TREES

One fair-sized snake is worth a dozen rodent traps. One hungry snake will destroy a litter of young rabbits, six to eight mice or two to four rats at a meal, says Nature Magazine of Washington. How many trees is a snake worth? Suppose a mouse accounted for ten trees a year by girdling and eating seeds and roots. One snake would eat, from April to October, 144 mice, so saving 1,440 trees and seeds.

FORESTRY

Forestry, like agriculture, must concern itself not merely with the technique of production, but with the business of land management and crop marketing and the economic requirements and industrial practices that integrally shape that business, says Col. William B. Greeley, chief of the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture.

ADVANTAGE

John D. Does His Stuff Four Times, But Quits

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 10.—John D. Rockefeller observed his 84th birthday Sunday by attending church services and later entertaining a few friends at dinner.

Mr. Rockefeller, attired in an overcoat and a muffler and with brown goggles protecting his eyes appeared in good health. He chatted smilingly with newspapermen and photographers.

When he emerged from the church Mr. Rockefeller obligingly enacted a scene in which he gave a nickel to Robert Irving Hunter, aged two, four times, but balked when he was asked to do it again.

NERVES ARE WRECKED BY BRIDGE PLAYING

"Why don't you," said a well known Harley street physician to A. E. Manning Foster, "write about bridge wrecks? I can assure you that I have quite a number of them among my patients—men and women whose nerves have been shattered by playing cards too much."

"Well, it is hardly my province to represent bridge as a vice like drinking or cocaine-sniffing. But without being a doctor, I have in my time advised quite a number of people to give up bridge and take to some other game."

"There is no doubt that auction bridge is a nerve-racking game which is unsuitable for certain kinds of temperamental persons. They get worried and harassed over it. They are haunted by the hands. They wake up in the middle of the night and see with painful clarity the faults they have committed, the things that might have been."

"And yet it has a fatal fascination for them which they are powerless to resist. It is a poignant pleasure-pain which has all the lure of a vice. They love it and hate it at the same time."

"This is no exaggeration. I have seen men and women at the bridge table whose hands shake as they deal and play the cards, whose faces are pale, worn, faded and anxious. You wonder why they play when they seem so pained over it. But they do. They can't help it."

"There are some people who cannot play auction bridge even in moderation without getting upset. They take it too hard and too seriously. The shortcomings of their partners prey upon their minds. They become morbid over the game."

"But most bridge wrecks are made by excess. Long hours spent in stuffy, smoke-laden card rooms day after day and night after night, often with the accompaniment of endless cigarettes, cocktails and 'nips,' try the nerves of even the strongest and hardest. They are particularly bad for women, among whom are some of the worst cases of bridge addicts."

"Sensible people not only take their bridge in moderation, but also intersperse it with physical exercise. Golf and bridge go very well together, and it is astonishing how much more one enjoys a rubber of auction after a strenuous round of golf."

"To all who find themselves getting 'nervy' at bridge, I recommend knocking off for a time and never sacrificing outdoor exercise for the pleasure of the card tables."

COLLEGE OF SURGEONS TO HOLD MEETING IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 10.—Hospital standardization, scientific research application of recently developed formulas in the control of disease, surgical and medical clinics and a series of technical discussions in the advancement of science, are among the features of the program of the American College of Surgeons, which will hold its annual meeting here October 22-26.

The surgical and clinical program will be carried out in 40 Chicago hospitals, medical schools and laboratories, according to announcement by A. D. Ballou, general manager of the college. Membership in the college extends to every state in the union, Alaska, the Philippines, every province in Canada, Central and South America, England and the continent, China and other countries.

NESTS ARE BUILT TO ENDURE

Eagles Erect Homes Which Much Resemble the Ancestral Mansions of the Proudest Families.

Describing the bald eagles which make their nests on the desolate islands off South Carolina, Herbert Ravenel Bass writes in Harper's Magazine:

"There is something characteristic of the great bird itself, and something attractive to the mind, in the performance of the eagle's home. Most birds' nests are ephemeral things. After a few weeks or months they are gone, and not only gone but forgotten. The eagle's home is like an ancestral mansion. It stands year after year, enduring for a longer time than many a man lives, cared for and kept in repair by the winged architects who built it and who seem to feel a genuine affection for it."

LITTLE CHANGE IN HUMANITY

Investigation Has Shown That Modern Man Is Very Much Like His Remote Ancestors.

Donald A. MacKenzie's "Ancient Man in Britain" gives a most interesting account of our more remote ancestors, in the Stone age and in days down to Roman times. Some 25,000 years ago, it is known, from skeletons, that the men found in Britain "in all essential features were of modern type. They, dressed in modern attire, would pass through the streets of a modern city without particular notice being taken of them."

These people suffered from our complaints. They were clever surgeons and could trepan the skull with success, as skulls have been found in which the wound made by trepanning had healed.

"And yet it has a fatal fascination for them which they are powerless to resist. It is a poignant pleasure-pain which has all the lure of a vice. They love it and hate it at the same time."

"There are some people who cannot play auction bridge even in moderation without getting upset. They take it too hard and too seriously. The shortcomings of their partners prey upon their minds. They become morbid over the game."

"But most bridge wrecks are made by excess. Long hours spent in stuffy, smoke-laden card rooms day after day and night after night, often with the accompaniment of endless cigarettes, cocktails and 'nips,' try the nerves of even the strongest and hardest. DRIVING STRANGE FLOCK

A farmer of Waitsburg, in the state of Washington, had a flock of 1,700 turkeys to market. As the market town was only 18 miles distant, he decided that the cheapest way of getting them there was to make them walk.

The turkeys arrived at their destination without casualties and in good condition.

JUST A SOCIAL ERROR

A certain young couple in Irvington invited as Sunday dinner guests another young couple.

Unknown to Mr. Husband, Mrs. Hostess had run out of butter for the meal and had telephoned the coming guests to bring some, which they did.

In the midst of the dinner the host suddenly said, "Rose, you can give the company butter if you want to, but after this give me nothing like this—for this is the rottenest butter I ever ate."

Only the Gospel of Love of the Prince of Peace Will Save the World

By PRESIDENT J. E. EDGERTON, Nat'l Ass'n of Manufacturers

THE most important issue of this hour is that of the precorruption of law and order and a proper regard for our American institutions. It makes no difference under what guise or pretense or name lawlessness may manifest itself, it cheapens the life and property right of every individual citizen in the nation.

It was never before so necessary for high-minded citizens to speak and act boldly and courageously in defense of American institutions as it is today. The chief enemies to the restoration of tranquillity throughout the world, and to the stabilization of conditions, are hatred, prejudice, revenge and greed, which are manifesting themselves in international relations and in relations between classes, races and sects.

No League of Nations nor any other compact or instrument of understanding will hold against the destructive influences of evil, except they be founded upon the solid truths enunciated by the Savior of mankind and are permeated by the spirit of brotherly love that He proclaimed.

Coal Commission Urges Federal Mine Operation

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The administration is definitely on record in favor of government operation and control of the coal mines in the event of a strike or other emergency which threatens the nation's fuel supply.

This was the recommendation made to congress by the United States Coal Commission in its report on the anthracite industry.

While the commission opposed government ownership of the mines, they believe that even this drastic step should be taken if the operators and miners now in session at Atlantic City fail to reach a new wage agreement which will assure continued production of coal after September 1.

The commission is not clothed with power actually to prevent a strike but Chairman Hammond and his associates are confident the fairness of the conclusions reached in the fact-finding investigation, will make a strong appeal to the contending groups and result in the speeding up of the wage negotiations.

Anthracite miners who work the year around, the commission said, receive an income for a family of five ranging from $1,500 to $2,000. The commission does not set forth whether the miners are justified in asking for a 20 per cent increase in wages, but in discussing the question of freight rates, urges a re-examination of the rate structure by the interstate commerce commission.

SAME PLANT PRODUCES SPUDS AND TOMATOES

ALEXANDER, La., July 10.—H. F. Hanes, a farmer of Willow Glen, has brought to Alexandria a freak of nature which it is understood here Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, has been trying to produce. It is a plant bearing Irish potatoes on the roots and tomatoes on the foliage.

Hanes planted tomatoes on a plot of ground where tomatoes were produced last fall and found the freak recently. The potatoes and tomatoes are about even as to number, but the potatoes are larger.

Atlanta is Turned Over to Elks as Big Convention Opens

ATLANTA, Ga., July 10.—It's "Hello Bill" in Atlanta today. From the north, south, east and west thousands of members of the Antlered tribe are trekking into the Georgia capital for the fifty-ninth grand lodge convention and reunion of the Benevolent and Protective order of Elks which opened officially Monday night.

While initial ceremonies were held yesterday afternoon with a great open air patriotic and religious service in picturesque Piedmont Park the official opening, public session, of the grand lodge will be held tonight. Gov. Clifford M. Walker delivered an address of welcome on behalf of the state and Mayor Walter Sims extended Atlanta's greetings. Judge F. L. McClelland, of Atlanta lodge No. 78 and grand exalted ruler J. Edgar Masters responded on behalf of the order.

All incoming trains today brought fresh recruits to help swell the growing list of delegates who poured in all day Saturday and Sunday. Approximately thirty special trains are scheduled to arrive during the day.

Early estimates today placed the delegates already on hand at more than 12,000. Preparations have been made by the Atlanta Elks to entertain 50,000.

Hundreds of Florida Elks left the state Sunday to attend the B. P. O. E. grand lodge meeting in Atlanta July 9-14.

Between 10,000 and 200,000 visitors are expected in Atlanta at the big convention, and the delegates from Tampa and the rest of Florida have arranged to give the Northerners plenty of information about the advantages of this state. Florida headquarters are to be established conspicuously in the convention city and Florida booklets and other advertising of the state and the various cities will be distributed.

ALABAMA MAY ABOLISH CONVICT LEASE SYSTEM

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 10.—One of the results of the recent investigation of alleged outrages in Florida prison camps will be to make the subject of the leasing of Alabama convicts one of the most complex matters to come before the Alabama legislature when that body convenes today, for its summer session, according to the opinion expressed by members in advance of the meeting.

Inspired by the investigations and their results in Florida, citizens of Alabama started an inquiry into conditions in this state, and several groups now are demanding that the present lease system be abolished, despite the fact that the legislature at its January session extended the leasing until December, 1923.

Governor Brandon has expressed himself in defense of the existing system, declaring the state should make no change until some other employment might be arranged, enabling the state to continue them at work without loss.

The league of women voters of Alabama, who also have the aid of various legislators and many private citizens have declared their intention of endeavoring to have the legislature repeal the extension measure at the coming session. Alleged insanitary conditions, inhuman treatment, negligence of moral supervision and bad conditions in general are charged by those opposing the continuation of the leasing system.

Vocational Training in the Public Schools Showed Big Growth

According to Statement Submitted to the State Board

TALLAHASSEE, July 5.—Vocational training in the public schools of Florida showed a remarkable growth during the period from July, 1919, to the end of May, 1923, according to a statement submitted to the State Board for Vocational Education by Shelton Phillips, who automatically retired from office June 30 as director of vocational education in Florida, the last session of the legislature having failed to provide funds for the continuance of his office.

Growth was shown both in number of schools and the number of pupils taught. The greatest increase was shown in the subjects taught in evening classes pertaining to trades and industries, although agricultural subjects and home economics training made good gains.

Figures quoted in Mr. Phillips' statement showed that only 22 schools were teaching vocational subjects in 1919, with 356 pupils taking advantage of subjects available to them. These had jumped to 160 schools with 3,236 pupils taking such training by the end of the present school year.

Gratifying to those in charge of the work, it was pointed out, was the fact that the boys and girls of Florida were realizing more and more the value of practical work in agricultural schools and the usefulness of training as good housekeepers.

The 638 pupils enrolled in agricultural subjects cultivated 680 acres of land during the last school year, the statement showed. They also kept 53 hogs, 66 cows, 780 poultry, and looked after 39,003 nursery stock.

More vital than the cold figures indicate, however, according to the view of the retiring director, "is the more vital fact that instruction in agricultural courses is more fully organized around the practical phase of the curriculum, and pupils are making cash returns on their projects that, this year, will approximate $25,000."

Regret was expressed that larger appropriations were not made available by the legislature for development of training in home economics. "While large sums can be appropriated by legislatures for the care of animal and plant life," the statement continued, "no voice is raised in legislative halls for advocacy of appropriations for a type of education that will fit the young women for the practical arts of home management, health, and food preparation. The mothers of the next generation will need to know more than the mothers of this generation, for life is growing more complex; and the question is, should the state teach the things that peculiarly prepare the girls for those responsibilities? The culture of the mind needs the culture of the will to do useful things or else our entire education may fail at the point of test."

Despite increases during the last four years, the statement showed that out of an enrollment of 11,388 girls in Florida's high schools only 1,000 are to be found taking home economics training.

FEW REALLY 'DOWN AND OUT'

Always Possibility of Rehabilitation of Those Who Have Been Victims of Misfortune.

The fact that a workman has suffered a physical handicap is in most cases no reason why he should join the ranks of the unemployed. There are a few disabilities in which men and women, who have suffered injuries resulting in the loss of an arm, a leg, certain muscular functions, or even eyesight, have, through proper attention and training, recovered their former carrying capacity and possibilities of promotion.

Disabled persons cannot be rehabilitated in groups, declares the Southern Workman. Because of varying degrees of disability, education, age, capacity, energy, spirit or determination, each case presents its own problem and difficulties and requires its own specific solution. The whole work is organized on what is known as the case method. The disabled person is interviewed for the purpose of securing a complete inventory regarding his disability, education, occupational experiences, capacity, personality, financial resources, attitude toward rehabilitation, his desire concerning return to employment, opportunities for employment and possibly other factors. All these factors are thoroughly studied for the purpose of developing the best plan of rehabilitation in each case. Such a plan in all cases requires, on the part of the rehabilitation agent, a general service to the disabled person in the nature of advisement, guidance and co-operation. This service does not cease until the disabled person has been definitely established in remunerative employment.

Refined Sugar is Again Slashed in New York Market

NEW YORK, July 10.—Another slash was made in the price of refined sugar in the local market yesterday. Fine granulated was cut to 8.75 by one refiner. This is 1 1/2 cents below the minimum high price of the season. The drop was due to the re-offering of 20,000 pounds of sugar that had been shipped abroad, and was returned because no market could be found. The slack domestic market also was a factor.

NEW YORK, July 10.—German marks continued their march toward the vanishing point yesterday being quoted here at .0003 3/4 cent or 266-666 to the American dollar. At the nominal rate of exchange of 23.8 cents each in effect before the war this number of marks would have cost $63,460.50.

The bill was referred to the judiciary committee.

KILJANE, WITH $20,000 TO ULOW BUSINESS FIELD
(By The Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, July 10.—After nearly a month's rest on his farm near Vermillion, Johnny Kiljane, world's featherweight boxing champion until he met Eugene Criqui in New York is ready to settle down to the life of a business man. His friends have estimated his financial assets at a quarter of a million dollars.

Johnny will become a business man without any regrets at having lost the title, although, as he says now, he felt regret when he staggered to his feet immediately following his knockout.
"No more fighting for me" Johnny has said. "I can't fight any more, anyway. The old pep was gone in the Criqui fight, my hands were bad, I had nothing. And to meet a little fighter of Criqui's type, you need everything."
"I have appreciated the way my friends rallied about me after I had been beaten. When I returned to Cleveland 11 years ago after beating Abe Attell for the championship, 100,000 people met me at the depot. A few hundred of my friends met me when I returned from the Criqui fight. They weeped downcast, but I want them to know that I am not at all blue; that I'm glad I'm no longer champion."

Johnny says his only interest in boxing in the future will be centered in Al Ziemer, his sparring partner for years, whom he wants to send after Criqui.

PLAYING SAFE

GEYSER AND VOLCANO AKIN
Hot Lava the Cause of the Eruptions of Both Water and Molten Rock.

Geysers have often been compared to volcanoes, presenting in miniature as they do, with water instead of molten rock, all of the characteristic phenomena of a volcanic eruption. The source of the heat which causes this outburst is the hot lava, lying beneath the earth's surface, and which is part of the volcanic nature of the region wherein geysers are in evidence. The water that is forced out at the ground level flows back again into the geyser tube or percolates through the porous lava, descends, is again heated, and the cycle starts anew.
Small geysers gush every few minutes, depending on the intensity of the promoting heat; while the interval between the eruptions of larger geysers may be a matter of days or even weeks. "Old Faithful," in Yellowstone National park, usually performs every 65 minutes; and in an interval of four minutes it will throw about 200,000 gallons of water skyward to a height of from 120 to 170 feet.

PEOPLE CLAMOR FOR TAX REDUCTION—G. O. P. OPPOSES SAYS REPUBLICAN PAPER

Reduction of taxes on small incomes are being urged upon members of Congress by their constituents since the publication of stories that the Federal government has a large surplus at the beginning of the new fiscal year 1923-24. It is stated that scores of letters are reaching the offices of Senators in Washington. The New York Herald, a Republican newspaper, publishes the following from its Washington correspondent:

"Many taxpayers (writing to Congressmen) say they are hardly able to make ends meet, while the Treasury Department seems at a loss to know what to do with the huge taxes collected."

Republican leaders are hostile to any proposition to reduce taxes, the Herald's correspondent intimates. "The Finance Committee (dominated by Republicans) is opposed to any tinkering with the revenue law because of the abnormal conditions now prevailing," says the Herald's correspondent.

The Fordney-McCumber tariff law yielded a total of about $100,000,000 in revenues while permitting the profiteers to take some four billion dollars in tolls from consumers, including $300,000,000 more from farmers than it returned to them in higher prices.

ARE YOU GUILTY?

A farmer carrying an express package from a Chicago mail-order house was accosted by a local merchant. "Why, didn't you buy that bill of goods from me? I could have saved you the express, and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and builds up this locality." The farmer looked at the merchant a moment and then said: "Why don't you patronize your home paper and advertise? I read it and didn't know that you had the stuff I have here."—American Paint and Oil Dealer.

KILLING THE BUGS

Messrs. Alvord and Powell, representing the A. & P. Disinfectant Company, are in the city today and state that they are having fine success killing the boll weevil in many places in the county. They also have something that will kill the worms and bugs on all kinds of vegetables and say there is no need to worry any longer about insects.

Palmetto—5,000 cartons of green vegetables to be shipped.

New Ford Plant At Green Island Will Be Second Detroit

Feature Will Be Employment of Farmer Help During The Winter Months.

Requirements of the Ford Motor Company for increased manufacture will bring a rapid expansion of the company's plant at Green Island, N. Y., it is just announced by the Ford News.

When the plant is ready to operate at its full capacity it will take its place as one of the dominant manufacturing institutions of the country, the announcement says, and in the volume of production will be second only to the Detroit plant. A feature will be the employment of farmer help during winter months, permitting them to work on the farms during the summer.

At present production is limited to that of radiators and ring gears, employing 62 men, but this force will be increased as soon as new machinery is installed.

A new department will soon be opened for the manufacture of springs and will give employment to 400 additional men.

Extensive improvement and development of the waterways in the Green Island section also is contemplated by the Ford Motor Company and will include an all-water route to Detroit. The property will be flanked by a massive concrete water front and this dock system will be equipped with cranes and other paraphernalia to be employed in extensive water shipments.

Construction of all new Ford plants on sites with abundant water supply is significant of the part navigation and electrical power will play in the future expansion program of the company.

The Green Island hydro-electric plant, erected in 1921, after the government granted permission to the company to utilize the power from the dam at Troy, now houses four uniquely designed low-head turbines which are the largest of their type in the world. They operate as "double-current" generators, producing both alternating and direct current. The capacity of the power house is 8,000 horse power.

Throws Scalding Hot Coffee Upon Jailer and Escapes

TAVARES, July 10.—Grabbing the coffee pot from Jailer Averitt as he was serving prisoners their breakfast this morning one negro dashing the steaming hot liquid over the face made a break for liberty followed by two others of the same race. Within a few minutes two of the escaped prisoners were back in jail and the third was surrounded in a hammock west of Tavares. Sheriff Cassidy and deputies using the captured men as guides believe the third will be located before the day is over. Jailer Averitt's scalds are serious. The negroes were charged with stealing an auto, moonshining and beating another negro to death.

SHARP ATTACK IS MADE ON HARDING BY SENATOR KING

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 9.—Declaring that President Harding is insincere in advocating adhesion of the United States to the world court and classing the disarmament conference called by the president "as a delusion and a snare" United States Senator William H. King, Democrat of Utah, last night launched an attack upon the Republican administration.

Senator King, speaking before the Young Men's Democratic Club of Utah, also declared "the cards are stacked so far as the Republican nomination for president in 1924 is concerned, and no power on earth can defeat Harding for the nomination." He asserted that President

Harding's nomination is already settled, in the same manner that it was settled prior to the 1920 convention. "The policy of the Republican administration was one determined by the plutocratic forces of that party and not by the masses of the party," he continued.

"President Harding has deceived the people by honeyed words and shriveled nationalism," the senator said. "He came to the senate and told us we must join the world court. I didn't believe him sincere but called his bluff and introduced a resolution calling for a vote on the treaties as they were presented by the court."

Continuing, Senator King declared: "Senator Lodge, the sinister and intriguing force which has so often been manifested against the American people, got to work, subsidized the Republican press and brought pressure to bear upon President Harding which frightened him. Harding being always an opportunist, who seeks a policy of expediency, yielded, but when he got to St. Louis he thought he found a good opportunity to put himself straight with Senator Reed of that state and others, so he changed his front again."

"The disarmament conference which has been pointed to as the greatest achievement of the Republican administration was a delusion and a snare and a means of deceiving the American people. Republicans point out that the conference was the means of disarming the great nations of the world to a great extent yet we find the leading army and navy officials of the country advocating a big army and navy."

Things We Have Always Known

The recent business condition has brought to the forefront of thought many fundamental considerations that have always been known but have been damned with faint praise.

Human nature in the mass is very much like human nature in the individual. One of its dominant characteristics has been summed up in the observation, "You never miss the water till the well runs dry." We never appreciate fundamental things until we have occasion to do without them.

This observation has a special application to the demand of the public for the products of industry. While the demand was at high tide and everybody was busy trying to supply that demand at a profit no one, seemingly, gave a thought to where the demand came from, how long it might last, or what would happen if it should fail. We merely assumed the permanent existence of the demand, just as we assume the presence of water, air and fire.

But a day came when demand began to subside, and in many industries it came almost to a full stop. And then we missed it, and realized, as never before, what an important thing it was. And we began to inquire where it came from in the first place, and how it might be restored.

We always knew—everybody knew—that desire for things made a demand for them in the market. That people desired things we accepted as an elemental fact. But when we discovered that desire fluctuated we began to appreciate that desire, as we know it, is a thing created by the art of man. It is a highly specialized form of an elemental need—just as a Louis XVI chair is made out of a tree.

This discovery led to another equally important discovery that the means of refining and specializing that desire was advertising. The gigantic work that has been accomplished by modern advertising now stands out in bold relief. It has been the means by which the refinements of civilization have been made known and made desirable, and this desire has been made into demand. It is a simple fact that a million profitable forms of industrial activity owe their very existence to the fact that Advertising upheld the standards of living which in turn provided the demand for their products.
