

CHINESE SAID MOVING OUT OF OCCUPIED CITY

War Warnings Appear To Be Effective As Army Is Removed; War Talk Is Halted

TOKYO, Oct. 13.—(A.P.)—Military reports from Mukden today said that Chinese troops of Chang Hsueh Liang were withdrawing from Manchuria His Doman to a point south of the Great Wall in the face of a "strict warning" from Japan against a possible repetition of the clash with Japanese forces of occupation.

The warning repeatedly stated that in the event of another attack similar to that at Chinchow, where Chinese troops allegedly fired upon Japanese airplanes and forced them to bomb the city as a defensive measure, the "responsibility for an aftermath rests entirely upon the Chinese."

In moving to a point near the south Great Wall of China, General Chang apparently has been pushed entirely out of Manchuria where he had ruled under the auspices of the Nationalist government until the recent occupation by Japanese of southern Manchuria.

Announcement was also made here today that the Japanese foreign office is working "in perfect accord with the military authorities" and had agreed upon the nucleus of principles upon which Japan stands ready to discuss a settlement of the Manchurian controversy.

The threat of war made yesterday by President Chiang Kai-Shek of China in a speech at Nanking was made known to Japanese and Chinese diplomats as they were engaged in private conferences to consider the possibility of reaching a settlement to adjust the Manchurian situation. This continued their definitions without commenting upon the beligerent declaration.

A spokesman of the Japanese foreign office, however, said the government did not talk seriously by Chiang's assertion that China would go to war if the League of Nations Council meeting today did not obtain a "just settlement."

Assembling Chiang had made similar pronouncements here before the League of Nations meeting, and last night he was understood to have explained the fundamental principle which Japan felt should be agreed upon before opening negotiations for adjustment of the Manchurian situation.

LINDYS PALATIAL MANSION AWAITS THEIR ARRIVAL

Beautiful Structure, Partly Built When They Left, Finished

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 13.—(A.P.)—When the Lindberghs, Charles and Anne, return from their abandoned world flight, they will find their new home on Capitol Mountain ready for occupation. With the exterior completed, workmen are now making their final touches to the interior and expect to have the 10-room Tudor stone house in order within three weeks.

Whatever the contents of the large, white building, which from some directions can be seen for miles, outside the workmen and a few intimates can tell—and they will. Outside the door stands a sign informing those who have driven over the steep, narrow and rocky road that leads to the Lindberghs' new estate, that no visitors are allowed inside.

All day and night, the new home is guarded by watchmen who are polite to visitors but rarely give direct answers to questions. One watchman, a native, asked where Southland Mountain got its name, replied: "Well, we've been asked not to tell you fellows much, but—"

And he reached down, grabbed a handful of soil and placed it under the visitor's nose. It had a (Continued on Page Four)

WITNESS SAYS CAPONE GAINED BY CRIME IN '27

1 Gambling House Had Profit Of $150,000; Gangsters' Lavish Clothing Pictured

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(A.P.)—Profits of an alleged Capone-owned gambling house here were $150,000 in 1927, a former cashier testified at Al Capone's income tax evasion trial today.

Fred Rice said the gangster was a frequent visitor to the place and always went to a private office. The profits were turned over to Jack Guzik, whom Capone described as his financial secretary. Rice said Rice, a witness, said, was sent to South America "to hold" before the trial started.

What the well-dressed gangster wore, including a $135 custom-made suit and 1275 diamond belt buckle, was brought out in full detail yesterday at Al Capone's trial on income tax evasion charges.

Also, the prosperous gangster is expected to do his Christmas shopping early, extensively and without stint, the testimony of a dozen Chicago department store clerks indicated. Capone, for instance, was said by the clerks to have selected such gifts for his friends as $400 silverware sets, $130 overcoats and $20 headed bags by the score.

Capone, biggest gangster of them all, was said by the clerks to ordinarily wear about $700 worth of fine garments. His customary dress, according to the testimony, included a $275 shirt with $1 monogram; $45 tie; $2 collar; $135 suit; $150 overcoat; $275 belt buckle; $100 pair of silk underwear; $20 hat; $20 shoes and $2 socks.

Rice said he usually was busy with pressing matters—gambling, prostitution, booze and vice. Capone bought (Continued on Page Four)

ROBINSON HITS RIOTS OCCUR AS HOOVER PLAN AS IOWA FARMERS STRAIN ON BANKS BATTLE POLICE

Refuses To Approve It, Believing It Hurts Federal Reserve

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 13.—(A.P.)—A warning letter from Senator Carter Glass of Virginia regarding President Hoover's proposal for assistance of credit to farmers, Senator Joe P. Robinson of Arkansas said yesterday he would not approve "any plan which I believe calculated to put our Federal Reserve banks in a strait."

The Virginia senator in a letter said he feared some unscrupulous might seek to set up the Federal Reserve banks of the country with "speculative securities."

Robinson replying, said he should be stated that any definite measure has been framed by which it is proposed to buy back the issue of "single paper" has not been published, and that the system of the understanding is in any legislation dealing with a subject must be primarily regarded so far as to the speculative transactions with support or under the auspices of the Federal Reserve system.

Senator Glass in a statement Saturday, said it seemed to him another attempt to be used to clutter up the Federal Reserve banks of the country with speculative securities and thus nullify the opportunities of stock and bond operators to ply their trade and to disturb the business of the country as a result of their excesses.

HEADS OF CITY CHANGE MINDS ABOUT CONCERT

Band Shell Programs Draw Attention Of Commissioners Who Finally Okey Them

The City Commissioners last night changed their minds about ordering the discontinuance of the weekly community programs which have been performed before large audiences during the past few months. They decided that if J. J. Tillis, DeLand, would pay a weekly license of $5, "to pay for electricity and additional police," would hold his program on any other night than Wednesday, and the future he may continue to furnish amusement as he has in the past.

As City Commissioner V. A. Speer put it last night, the program of local churches, some of which were held on Wednesday night, interfered with business and prayer meetings, the business houses, said it killed business for two or three hours, and the idea of negro and white entertainers on the same program did not please many patrons.

Miss Elizabeth Clark, program director, appeared and asked that the Commissioners reconsider their decision, stating that large numbers of persons had attended and apparently enjoyed each program and that many had appeared (Continued on Page Four)

Bandits Terrorize Indiana Community Escape With Money

Scores of shells from shotguns, revolvers, and other firearms were found scattered through the streets in the business section. WORLD SERIES IS FORGOTTEN AS STARS DISPERSE

Street's Ambition To Pilot Championship Outfit Is Realized

By EDWARD J. NEIL. ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—(A.P.)—Where the embattled Burleigh Grimes stormed about on the pitching peak under a mid-summer sun hurling his spitters and curves past the bats of the helpless Athletics, a cold rain fell yesterday.

Fall had set in, and another World Series was drifting into memory. Only Saturday the sun beat down on the right-hand veteran, ending his way big by hit toward the revenge he has been dreaming of since 1930. The first $1,000,000 series in five years was dealt locked at three games, all Connie Mack still had a chance to achieve the record he wanted most above all else in his 50 years of baseball, three consecutive world championships.

And having after having old Sergeant Gabby Street saw his ambition to pilot even one world titleholder grow brighter and brighter. All that is part of the record book now—how the St. Louis Cardinals, at the close of one of the most thrilling series of all times, rallied around Burleigh to win the seventh and final game 4 to 2 and bring the world championship back to the National League for the first time since 1904.

The players scattered to their homes today, some to relax and rest, some to work at the trades of their winter months, some to hunt and fish, a few like Frankie Frisch, captain of the Cardinals, Lefty Grove, Mickey Cochrane and Al Simmons, of the deposed world champions, already flying westward for the start of a Japanese tour with a team of major leaguers.

Into semi-eclipse went John Leonard "Pepper" Martin, the phenomenal youngster who almost single handed lifted the Cardinals by the bootstraps in the first five games from the position of an underdog into the favorites' role. Robert Moses Grove, the great left-hander, and George Earnshaw, the right-hand ace, finally stopped the inspired clouting of Martin in the last two games when one more hit would have broken the record he equalled for 12 safe hits in a World Series. "Pepper" tucked away his final batting average of .500, the shut gun, title and multitude of other gifts, that were showered upon him and launched into a temporary stage career.

In "Pepper's" pocket, or wherever a ball player stows his money, shortly will be $1184.24. His share, like that of 29 other Cardinals, in the winner's 60 per cent of the $320,303 players' pool divided evenly into 30 shares. This is just $15.76 less than "Pepper" got for playing the last season with the Cards, his first in the major leagues. The A's collect $2208.49 per man on the basis of an even 30 share division.

The strategy of the managers played a large part today in the hundreds of thousands of words of discussion and argument that all ways follow one of the great annual pageants in the national sport life. The back seat drivers could find much fault both with the winner, Gabby Street, and the loser, Connie Mack. The latter added a little to his record for brilliant maneuvering, particularly in the final game where desperate situations required desperate remedies.

In the third inning with two men on, only one out, four runs batted in, and the greatest opportunity of the game offered until the ninth inning rally against Grimes, Connie let his own pitcher George Barnshaw go to bat. He had done that before in the second game here when "Big Jarge" was belted, and that time he hit into a double play, finishing the A's for the day. This time, with Rube Walcott all warmed up on the sidelines and ready to pitch again, the 36-year-old pilot still let Earnshaw hit instead of lifting him for a pinch hitter. Again Earnshaw grounded into a double play when the A's needed runs far more than they did the brilliance of his hurling after an erratic start.

OH YEAH?

By PETER SCHAAL

Although we again demonstrated our ability at being wrong in picking winners in athletic contests when we chose Connie Mack's Athletics to beat the Cardinals under Gabby Street, and selected only six out of 11 winners in the Pick-The-Winner contest last week, we don't mind it all so long as our throat can get as choky and my heart as happy as it did late Saturday night when, with all football returns in we happily discovered that Southern teams had more than held their own against Northern opponents, thereby again turning the eyes of the football world southward.

We tried to pick the World Series champion only by inches after all, as our Mack staged one of their typical last minute rallies, to cause Burleigh Grimes to go to pieces, but not to let the Cards lose the series. That outfit deservedly won the series this year as they completely outplayed and out-smarted every thrust Connie Mack made. Even if the Cards were their last game because of Cochrane's and Williams' cracking was open in the flex, thereby giving them a two run lead any team that can send pitchers to the mound who can hold sluggers like Cochrane, Simmons, Fox, Miller, and Dykes in the hollow of their hands, certainly deserves victory. And so, with that parting salute to the Champions of the World, we turn our thoughts to football, the world's greatest entertainment.

Were we right when we said Florida would stage the best game in the South Saturday? And how we were right! I defy you to turn back the pages of history in this state to the year to find the records of a game with as many thrills, chills, and heart-thumps as that sensational tie the Gators played with those marvelous Tarheels Saturday. For that matter, I doubt if there has been a game in the South in the last five years which has furnished as much genuine suspense and excitement as that one.

We were among the millions who had to satisfy ourselves with a radio account of the contest, and we don't mind admitting that Red Barber and the Gators had us limp and out on our feet when the final whistle blew. That last quarter, when the Carolinians had the ball on the Gator one yard line twice only to see Ferrazzi, Jenkins, Anderson, and the rest stare off every thrust by those sensational halves, Branch and Slusser, not to mention Lassiter, was absolutely the most nerve-wracking experience we've ever gone through.

Imagine the situation, Carolina, with a team of veteran players who had been shovled from the conference race by a strong Vanderbilt outfit the week before, playing a team of sophomores, juniors, and seniors, who had hardly had time to get down to business and become a workable machine, despite a 34 to 9 victory over N.

to have been uncommon faith in the ability of the giant Paul Derringer, a rookie to stop the A's despite his lack of experience. Twice Derringer was beaten. Even though the youngster showed a deplorable lack of stuff with men on bases, Gabby had him warming up in the ninth inning of the final game after Grimes weakened, allowed two runs, and was relieved by Wild Bill Hallahan with two out and two on.

There seemed no inclination, despite "Pepper" Martin's failure to hit safely in the final two games, to take from him the hero honors he won by dominating the first five games of the series. His closest rivals were his teammates, Grimes and Hallahan, who pitched four great victories between them. It was sweet revenge for Grimes, the storm center of the 1930 series, beaten twice then though he tossed two five-hit games. He stood in the lobby of a hotel in Philadelphia, smiling a two-day growth of whiskers sprang from his face, after his first conquest of this series, a two-hit classic. "They owe me another one," he said then. "The law of averages can't be beaten. I'll get those two five-hitters back."

MILDRED KNIGHT, MR. MASON PICK 9 OF 11 WINNERS

Contest Ends Second Week With Leaders Slipping From Top

Miss Mildred Knight, and R. M. Mason Jr., the first two persons to select nine out of a possible 11 winners in The Herald's Pick-The-Winner contest last week, are the winners of coupons entitling them to $1 in trade at either Churchwell's, one of Sanford's leading department stores, or Woodruff and Watson, men's style center. If they will call at The Herald office, they will receive the coupons.

Out of the 116 persons last week sent in their selections, only four were able to pick nine out of 11 winners. Besides Miss Knight and Mr. Mason, Homer Little and Ford Harrison were the other two to select that many winners. Miss Knight's list of selections was the fifth handed in; Mr. Mason's the 10th; Mr. Little's, the 75, and Mr. Harrison's, the 99th.

Upsets all along the line sent contestants a-reeling, with many of the leaders at the end of the first week, taking a tumble from their front row positions in the race for the football ticket to the Florida-Kentucky game in Jacksonville, Dec. 5. Four tie games were played, Notre-Dame-Northwestern, Florida-North Carolina, V. M. I.-Clemson, and Auburn-Wisconsin. Only two of the 116 contestants were able to pick the teams who tied. W. S. Entzinger Jr., guessed that Notre-Dame would tie the Northwestern, while W. T. Laird figured that Florida and North Carolina would play a tie.

Only three persons were able to pick eight out of 11 winners; 17 picked seven out of 11; 17 picked six out of 11 winners; 28 picked five out of 11 winners; 32 picked four out of 11; 10 picked three out of 11; two picked two out of 11; and three persons picked only one out of 11.

Here are the scores of the games played Saturday which were included in the Pick The Winner list: Georgia 26, Yale 7; Purdue 7, Illinois 0; Duke 13, Villanova 0; Vanderbilt 26, Ohio State 21; Maryland 6, Navy 0; V. M. I. 13, Citadel 13; Sewanee 3, Virginia 0; V. P. I. 18, Davidson 6; Auburn 7, Wisconsin 7; Stanford 13, Minnesota 0; Clemson 6, N. C. State 0; Florida 0, North Carolina 0; Notre Dame 0, Northwestern 0; Carnegie Tech 13, Georgia Tech 0; Kentucky 16, W & L 0.

C. State last week. For three quarters the Carolinians had outplayed and outfigured the Gators on every side, although the Gators did steal bits of glory in the second quarter. Branch and Slusser lived up to every line of praise ever written about them, while the line was doing splendidly.

Once during those three quarters, the Gator wall had thrilled the crowd of 8000 by holding on the one yard line, thus completely wrecking all the advance hope that the Gators' weakest point was its line. The fourth quarter opened with a tenseness that gradually reached to the farthest corner of the field, as the 8000 sensed they were seeing history made. Imagine the sinking feelings in the hearts of the Gator fans as the Tarheels marched the ball right down the field to the Gator one-yard line. But, also try to imagine the crowd's delight when the line held and the ball went over, for the second time of the afternoon!

With the game only a matter of a few minutes, try to imagine the situation when, after the punt out of danger, Carolina again advanced the ball to the Florida five yard line. How about the million heart-beats and prayers that were rising above Florida Field there in the lengthening shadows when, with only a minute left to play, Branch had moved the ball to the three yard line, followed a half minute later, by Slusser, who had put it on the one yard line! And then, imagine if you can, the pandemonium which broke loose when the whistle blew as Lassiter hit the line for no gain, on the fourth down!

Never mind the fact that the Florida offense is less than the dust; that the Gators were outplayed, outmanned, and outpassed, and that their chances of winning over Georgia, Alabama, Georgia Tech, Auburn and the rest are indeed slim, unless something remarkable is done soon. When this season comes to a close, you'll always be able to say that your Gators gained the spotlight on at least one occasion. You couldn't do a better thing for the good of athletics at the University than sit down right now, and send a

C. L. Walker, who told substantially the same story as did Mr. Brotherson, added that he did not recognize Mr. Estridge, never seeing the driver at all. D. C. Moran, local machinist, who testified that Mr. Estridge had been with him all afternoon; that Mr. Estridge had been drinking beer but "I do not consider that he was intoxicated; only when he is unable to help himself" after the country club incident; related by Dr. Stewart and Mr. Brotherson he drove off with Mr. Estridge and left him at Beck's filling station at grapeville.

Joe Meisch, local farmer, who testified that he was driving west along Geneva Avenue at about 6:50 o'clock; that he saw a man lying in the road near the south curbing; that he immediately returned to Sanford Avenue where he had stores at McReynolds' drug store telephone office, and that he returned to the injured man who was breathing heavily. Only one other person was present when he returned to the scene, Mr. Meisch said, and the last he saw of Mr. Raulerson was when he was loaded into an ambulance.

R. H. Elgin, convict camp guard, who said that he was coming from the convict camp south of Geneva, noticed a man lying near the curbing. He stopped his car, and saw that the man was still alive, but he said he never heard the man say a word. A few moments later, Mr. Elgin said Mr. Meisch came up, as did several other persons.

Dr. R. E. Stevens, who testified as to the injuries which contributed to Mr. Raulerson's death, and who related the incidents surrounding the injured man's being brought to the hospital. O. R. Estridge, deputy sheriff, and a cousin of I. E. Estridge, who went to the Estridge home with First Chief Mac Cleveland in response to a telephone call from Mr. Estridge. Mr. Estridge said that he entered the home, learned what had happened; called an ambulance; inspected the Ford coupe for signs of its having struck a person; visited the scene of the accident and assisted in placing Mr. Raulerson in the ambulance; returned to the Estridge home, and that he considered Mr. Estridge "pretty well intoxicated."

Chief Mac Cleveland, who received the telephone call at public headquarters, and told substantially the same story as O. R. Estridge. He also said that he believed Mr. Estridge to be intoxicated. E. H. Anderson, night police officer, who testified that he assisted in quitting Mr. Estridge, who was in a high condition of excitement, and who he said was intoxicated. George Gray, motorcycle policeman, who arrived at the Estridge home with Mr. Anderson; who was refused admittance by Mr. Estridge who said "If you get in you'll have to break the door down." Officer Gray later entered the home and assisted in quitting Mr. Estridge. He also testified that Mr. Estridge was intoxicated.

Chief of Police Roy G. Williams, who arrived on the scene late, and who ordered Mr. Estridge taken to jail, Chief Williams also told of an investigation he made at the scene and stated that Mr. Estridge was thoroughly intoxicated. J. A. Rogers, S. J. Nix, F. J. Wilkin, all residents of the vicinity, who testified that Mr. Estridge treated considerable excitement after he arrived home, "causing children to become frightened," and that he accused Mr. Rogers of stealing a gun and was ready to fight him. Sheriff J. F. McClelland, who told of bringing Mr. Estridge to jail and of conducting a thorough investigation, including a visit to the hospital and the home in the vicinity of the scene. Mrs. Mabel Estridge, who testified that her husband telephoned police that he had run over a man or hit somebody; that he was not in a normal condition, and that she did not know if he was intoxicated; because she did not get near enough to him to tell.

letter of thanks and congratulations to Bachman and his boys, for their great showing Saturday.

Back to the rest of the games. Georgia's crushing defeat of Yale by a 28 to 7 score, making them the only team in the world to beat Yale three straight games, certainly established the Georgia outfit as the pick of the south this year.

Albie Booth and company are no set-up for any team, and when you consider that the Georgians had to travel 1000 miles and all that, boom! at miles and all that, boom! which is usually dished out when a team loses, you're got to hand it to them, as well as feel good because they came from the good old Southland.

Jim Stofmoff and Dick Maxwell both accompanied the team north, but we hadn't heard this morning whether they saw action or not.

How about Auburn holding Wisconsin to a 7-7 tie? We picked them to win, 15 to 17, so we claim they won, 'cause Wisconsin has one of the real Big Ten doublets beating Ohio State 39 to 21. We missed that one, although Vanderbilt certainly showed its strength and plenty of Southern teams are shaking in their shoes today, as they contemplate future games with the Commodores.

How about Maryland slinking the Navy, 6 to 0? And Duke beating the favorite Villanova, 13 to 0? The only discrepancy note is Georgia Tech's loss to Carnegie Tech, 13 to 0, which was expected.

Old Knute Rockne must surely have nodded an approving head in the direction of Soldiers Field, Chicago, Saturday afternoon where his Notre Dame warriors were played to a scoreless tie by a fighting Northwestern outfit which almost scored a victory. The Irishmen outplayed their opponents in every department in a game, played in the rain and mud before 75,000 persons, which was easily the most outstanding sport event of the 1931 fall season. The Irishmen's string of 20 victories is thus halted, although defeat has yet to raise its ugly head. We still feel confident that Hunk Anderson's boys will come through their season without defeat, and that they will start next Saturday when they play Drake.

Importance of the case, representing as it does the government's greatest attempt to conquer the gang system, has been stressed several times by Judge Willmore.

Jurors have been warned against allowing anyone to communicate with them concerning the case, and the probability now is arisen that all persons not immediately known to the court may be searched for weapons before entering.

Mrs. Mabel Estridge, who testified that her husband telephoned police that he had run over a man or hit somebody; that he was not in a normal condition, and that she did not know if he was intoxicated; because she did not get near enough to him to tell.

Chief of Police Roy G. Williams, who arrived on the scene late, and who ordered Mr. Estridge taken to jail, Chief Williams also told of an investigation he made at the scene and stated that Mr. Estridge was thoroughly intoxicated.

J. A. Rogers, S. J. Nix, F. J. Wilkin, all residents of the vicinity, who testified that Mr. Estridge treated considerable excitement after he arrived home, "causing children to become frightened," and that he accused Mr. Rogers of stealing a gun and was ready to fight him.

Sheriff J. F. McClelland, who told of bringing Mr. Estridge to jail and of conducting a thorough investigation, including a visit to the hospital and the home in the vicinity of the scene. Mrs. Mabel Estridge, who testified that her husband telephoned police that he had run over a man or hit somebody; that he was not in a normal condition, and that she did not know if he was intoxicated; because she did not get near enough to him to tell.

Back Seat Drivers

For many years, the possibilities of the "back seat driver" have been held up to ridicule. Jokers have reviled him (or her, as is sometimes the case). Cartoonists have viciously depicted him. Editorials have condemned him. Husbands have vilified him. But the "back seat driver" has persisted in his obstinacy, has continued to negotiate his automobile by means of a party of the second part, known commonly as the driver, in spite of the innumerable campaigns which have been conducted against him.

Now he is to have his inning. The Supreme Court of the state of Florida has ruled that there is a place in every automobile for a "back seat driver." In an opinion written by former Chief Justice Terrell, it is held that any person riding in an automobile driven by another has a duty to perform, and is not relieved of any responsibility to look out for his own safety or to warn the driver of danger apparently not seen by him. The decision was rendered in two Dade county cases in which the Florida Motor Lines, Inc. were being sued by the widows of two men killed in an accident. The court held that the bus line was not to blame for the collision in which the men were killed.

The important part of this ruling, as we see it, is that persons riding in automobiles, merely as passengers, not as drivers, are not absolved of all responsibility for what may happen. At dangerous corners, at railroad intersections, at other places or under other circumstances where accidents might occur, it is the duty of every passenger to see that proper precautions are taken by the driver to avoid accidents. A passenger who allows a driver without protest to pass a school bus without stepping in as much to blame in the event of an accident as the driver.

There are too many accidents occurring these days for anyone to escape responsibility. As Justice Terrell points out, "In primitive society the law or courtesy of the road was of little consequence. The cave man knew it not, neither was it a necessary part of the learning of Robinson Crusoe on his island. Even our fathers thought little of it when the stage moved only once a week from Washington to New York and once a month from Washington to Boston. But in our day with the good road, the motor car, the railroad and the other devices for transporting persons and property and both moving hither and yon in every direction at all times of the day and night, the law of the road has assumed a place of unusual importance in our legal code."

"The year preceding this records 33,000 deaths, one-half million accidents, over one million injured and the loss of other millions in property to the credit of the heedless incautious driver. This is a tremendous toll, most of which could have been avoided by the exercise of courtesy and the observance of the law of the road on the part of the individual driver. Too often those who are circumspect in the observance of the amenities of polite society suddenly become obsessed by the rule of the survival of the fittest the minute they grasp a steering wheel. Respect for the law of the road and the exercise of courtesy are the only safeguards to motor traffic and will do more to protect than all the traffic cops the roads can be policed by."

"The law of the road is now embraced in statutes, ordinances and regulations, is promulgated for the protection of life and property. It is an essential part of the common knowledge of every traveler and he who goes on the highway and negligently or otherwise fails to observe it does so at his peril." Justice Terrell concludes.

A strong position in defense of the rights of others, in insisting upon the observance of the rules of the road, will go a long way toward the prevention of accidents. "Back seat drivers," while often obnoxious, and sometimes inclined to over-exercise their prerogatives, nevertheless have their place in the world.

Little Acorns In The Orient

The poet has reminded the world that giant oaks from little acorns grow, which is another way of saying that mountains sometimes develop out of molehills. It is recalled that the World War started over the assassination of an Austrian archduke, a trivial thing in itself compared with the deaths of millions of soldiers. We have been reading during the past few days of another insignificant event which offends one nation, blamed for the event by another. "Japan has managed to stir up both the United States and the League of Nations again by the bombing of Chinchow in Manchuria," says the Miami Herald. "That Far Eastern situation had seemed to be sleeping for a spell with hopes that it would clear up without international conflict. But the Japanese decided to show the Chinese that they were still on the job, and so damaged some university buildings and killed a few Chinese."

"The airplane attack was in retaliation for something the Chinese did, Japan explains, and this sounds like those early reports at the opening of the World War. Nations on the offensive can generally find an excuse for any outrages they commit. Washington considers action, but what it does not know. Certainly the country hopes the marines won't be dispatched or a battleship and the nation called to the colors for the safety of Asia."

"China protests. The league council decides to meet and ponder the serious situation again. China may keep on protesting and the league may continue to meet for discussion. In the meanwhile Japan by aggressive steps may gradually gain her objectives and place a firmer foothold in Manchuria, at the expense of the helpless China."

"There may be no real war, unless Russia intervenes actively. Japan may get what she wants. The league will be satisfied if it did what it could, which is virtually nothing from a military standpoint. Only China will be out and that is just her hard luck."

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

New construction authorized in 12 of the principal cities and towns of Florida during the month of September totaled $2,377,200, while the aggregate for the same cities during the first nine months of the current year was in excess of $19,000,000, according to building statistics compiled by the Associated Home Builders of Florida, Inc., which is the state organization of municipal building inspectors and commissioners. Permits issued in September in Sanford involved an expenditure of about seven times as great as those issued the same month last year, the figure this year being $28,500 as against $4,000 in September, 1920. The total for the year to date, also shows a great increase, permits issued the first nine months of 1921 totaling $285,000 as against $21,000 for the same period in 1920. The total for all 1920 was only $120,000.

These classes will also be open to men working in the A. C. L. shops.

The New National Credit Corporation

BY FERDINAND LUNDBERG
New York Herald Tribune

The revelation last week of a comprehensive plan of economic and financial rehabilitation in the domestic and foreign spheres by President Hoover brought about an uprush in the leading financial and commodity markets which showed conclusively the change in sentiment from gloom to hope. Weeks of declining markets, bank closures, hoarding of currency, foreign gold withdrawals and gradual intensifying pressure of liquidation in all markets had combined to make the situation critical.

The New York Stock Exchange was the focal point of the disturbances, having become the selling ground for the entire world; and the short-selling facilities of the exchange were rigidly restricted in order to ease pressure. New York bankers met last Sunday with President Hoover and Secretary Mellon at the latter's apartment in Washington to launch the new Hoover plan for remedying abnormal banking conditions.

Wall Street has quite naturally been chiefly interested in the banking phase of the plan, although the plan is also designed to improve international financial relations through the easing of inter-governmental debts and reparations as well as scaling down of armament expenditures; the position of the railroads through the establishment of a revolving fund available to the carriers; real estate through the creation of a central mortgage bank or corporation to lift defaulting property from the market; agriculture through further government assistance for the Federal Land Banks; bonds through the lifting of frozen industrial and railroad bonds from banks which might otherwise be forced to dump holdings on the weakened market and thereby imperil the list as a whole. The nucleus of the plan is embodied in the National Credit Corporation, brought into existence by New York bankers after less than a week of intensive work.

The National Credit Corporation will receive funds from subscribing banks in the amount of 2 per cent of their total deposits, and has already been assured of at least $800,000,000. The corporation will give the subscribing banks transferable and negotiable debentures in return for the funds. The funds will in turn be used to discount frozen assets consisting principally of bonds and real estate mortgages of sound value which banks are unable to liquidate under present conditions.

Upon accepting for discount immobilized assets the National Credit Corporation will also demand a note indorsed by the bank receiving assistance. The rate charged for the service will be rather high, or punitive as some bankers describe it. This will be so that the liquidation of assets of value will be desirable from the viewpoint of the debtor banks and also so that the impression will not be created that a bank may with impunity permit itself to become frozen and then depend upon turned home from Tifton, Ga., where she has been the guest of her parents.

Philander Chase Knox, senator from Pennsylvania and secretary of state under President Taft, died suddenly at 6:30 o'clock last evening at his home in Washington, D. C. He was stricken with paralysis after descending the stairway on his way to the dining room for dinner and passed away 15 minutes later without regaining consciousness.

Prime Minister Lloyd George is preparing to go to Washington, D. C. to attend the impending conference on limitations of armaments and Far Eastern questions and it is understood that unless unforeseen difficulties arise he will be there for the opening session.

WAKING UP AT LAST

COLUMBUS (MISS.) COMMERCIAL DISPATCH

Firms which have been spending thousands and thousands of dollars monthly on radio advertising are at last waking up to the fact that such expenditures are disappointing and unprofitful.

Announcement was made Friday by the National Sugar Refining Company that it was eliminating commercial features and announcements from its radio program and urged listeners to read the newspapers for their advertisements.

A sensible thing to do.

Radio fans have resented loading the air down with commercialized programs, and commercial announcements.

They have become sick and tired of it. It has cluttered the air with a lot of junk and bunk, and has virtually crowded legitimate and wanted programs and features from the air.

A significant example is the announcement of the Pepsi-Cola company that it would return to newspaper advertising for its product.

The famous and popular Amos and Andy feature has failed utterly to bring the desired results.

So, Pepsi-Cola, while not dispensing with Amos and Andy for the present at least, are going back to the newspapers.

The announcement from New York Friday by the National Sugar Refining Company stated that that company's new plan of eliminating commercial announcements had met with favorable comment from listeners in all parts of the country, and that many letters of commendation had been received. During the past two years large sums have been diverted from legitimate advertising channels to radio, and results have been disappointing.

The advertisers are going back to the soundest, most economical and most effective advertising known today—newspaper advertising.
