

Lake Mary Man Sought in Kidnapping

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford Police today issued a nationwide alert for a 26-year-old Lake Mary man in connection with the kidnapping Monday of a teenage girl from her father's used car lot.

The girl, Angelina Lash, 17, was abducted shortly after 3:30 p.m. Monday from Jim Lash's Blue Book Cars, 4114 S. Orlando Drive (U.S. Highway 17-92, just north of Lake Mary Boulevard) then released unharmed nearly seven hours later in Tallahassee. Her abductor rode a bicycle to the lot ostensibly to buy a used car, asked to try it out, then unwrapped from a blanket a 21 cal. rifle and ordered the girl to get into a 1973 Oldsmobile Cutlass with him.

Police said shortly after the man drove off with Miss Lash, he went to a residence in Lake Mary and telephoned the car lot saying he would release the girl unharmed and that police should not be notified.

Sanford Police Det. Ray Bronson said the home at 163 Frederick Ave. is shared by Darrell Lynn Theophilus and another unidentified man. Theophilus, a 26-year-old graduate of Lyman High School, is being sought for questioning in the abduction.

When a suspect is arrested, he will be charged with kidnapping, armed robbery, and auto theft, Bronson said. In addition to the car, the bandit also stole a wallet from Angelina's uncle Ray Lash who is a salesman at the car lot. The wallet contained no cash.

After making the first phone call to the car lot, the abductor called Angelina's sister's home two hours later and allowed the girl to tell relatives she was safe.

But just barely. After leaving the Lake Mary home, the pair stopped for gas at a filling station at State Road 46 and Interstate 4. When the man drove off without paying, the station attendant reportedly fired twice at the car. No one was hurt. It had not been determined this morning whether criminal charges would be filed against the gun-toting attendant.

Miss Lash apparently came through her ordeal well. "She's feeling very well today," her father said this morning. "She's in a great mood. She even went back to school."

Lash said his daughter does not know her abductor. "She had never seen him before. He didn't tell her why he took her. But he didn't harm her. I thank God for that."

He did, however, once threaten to shoot her if she attempted to tell relatives in the phone calls where she was. "He didn't touch her," Lash said, quoting his daughter as saying her abductor "was nice the whole time. He tried to keep her calm, but he was the one who was nervous. She tried to keep him calm."

During the hours after the kidnapping, Lash said Angelina told him the man quoted the Bible, smoked a marijuana cigarette, and discussed his recent divorce and his four-year-old son.

He told Angelina to call his son if he died and tell him that he loved him," Angelina's sister Diane Crapps said. "She would have too, but he never told her how to get in touch with him."

FP&L Seeking Rate Hike

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The president of Florida Power & Light Co. says the utility needs a $476 million rate hike to help offset inflation, a new regulatory agency and the addition of 600,000 customers.

During testimony at the utility's rate increase hearings Tuesday, FP&L President John Hudiburgh told Public Service Commissioners that without relief, the company's rate of return for 1981 would drop below 7 percent.

"For 1981, our projected rate of return on average rate base will drop dramatically to 6.62 percent — substantially below the minimum of 9.08 percent allowed by the PSC in our last rate case," Hudiburgh said.

The Miami-based utility has filed for a $476 million permanent increase and up to $226 million in interim rate hikes. It won a $148 million interim boost that took effect in mid-April and resulted in a $3.43 increase for the company's average residential customer.

FP&L's rates have not increased for over three and one-half years, Hudiburgh said. "While the Consumer Price Index has increased 45 percent since 1976, we are requesting only a 30 percent increase in our revenues," he said.

Inflation has affected FP&L's construction program, operating and maintenance expenses and the interest rates paid when money is borrowed, he told commissioners.

FP&L was hit hardest in the construction program, which had a $4 billion budget over the next five years, Hudiburgh said.

Since the last rate increase, the Department of Energy has been formed, forcing new regulations that cost "a great deal of money" onto the utility, Hudiburgh said.

Stringent federal, state and local environmental regulations "continue to limit (FP&L's) ability to reduce costs," FP&L Vice President E.A. Adomat said at the hearings.

NEW HOSPITAL CONSTRUCTION

Construction of the $25 million Central Florida Regional Hospital on the lakefront in Sanford continues and is expected to be completed for a grand opening in August-September, 1982. The three-story facility is to have 226 beds. Work crews have leveled the site to prepare for construction of the new facility which will replace the existing Seminole Memorial Hospital.

Track Owners Post Surety Bond

It's a $471,000 gamble, but the owners of Seminole Park are willing to take it in order to keep their greyhound race track open.

On Monday, Jack and Bill Demetree — principal owners of the Casseberry track — posted a $471,000 surety bond so that they may continue to operate while a lawsuit involving their facility and two other central Florida dog tracks — the Sanford-Orlando and Daytona Beach kennel clubs — makes its way through the Fifth District Court of Appeals in Daytona Beach.

The Demetrees had to put up no cash nor pledge any tangible collateral for the bond, but merely promised to foot the bill for any financial losses the Daytona Beach club might suffer while the case is being appealed, Seminole Park and the Daytona track run identical racing seasons — May through September.

The three dog tracks became involved in a legal battle nearly a year ago when the Sanford-Orlando and Daytona Beach kennel clubs filed a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of a 1980 law allowing Seminole Park to convert from a horse racing track to a dog track.

The statute was attacked as unconstitutional because it was supposedly tailor-made for only one race track. Attorneys for the Sanford-Orlando and Daytona Beach clubs claimed there was little, if any, possibility of any other Florida horse-racing facility being able to qualify under the law's provisions for conversion to a dog track.

As a second line of attack, lawyers argued that the law was invalid because 1) it is a general law of local application purporting to regulate an occupation already regulated by a state agency, and 2) extends a special state privilege to a private, as opposed to a public, corporation. Both acts, they maintained, are forbidden by the state constitution.

On June 16, Seminole Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler agreed and ordered the facility to shut down.

The state, seeking to protect its multi-million dollar taxing stake in Seminole Park's continued operation, appealed the ruling to the Daytona Beach appellate court, a move which, in essence, suspended Leffler's order to cease operations.

Leffler then ordered bond be posted. Should the case ultimately be resolved in Seminole Park's favor, the bond would become void. If, however, a final ruling goes the other way, Seminole would be liable for any costs or damages suffered by the Daytona Beach and Sanford-Orlando kennel clubs during the appeal process.

State To Acquire Spring Hammock For A Park Site

The state Department of Natural Resources should begin early in 1982 the process of acquiring 1,300 acres in Spring Hammock as a state natural park.

But the acquisition process could be speeded up considerably if Seminole County gets "surveys and title clearances on those sections of the Spring Hammock whose owners are serious about selling," State Sen. Clark Maxwell Jr. informed county commissioners this week.

Maxwell, in a letter to County Commissioner Sandra Glenn, said DNR has assigned an "acquittal agent" to the project. He added today from his Melbourne legislative office that if Seminole County would begin doing surveys of the property at county expense the project could be speeded up.

"The alternative," Maxwell said, is that eventually DNR will get around to doing the work, but it will take longer.

Seminole County competed with other areas of the state to get Spring Hammock placed on a priority of list of lands the state will acquire. Currently Spring Hammock is seventh on a list of 26 sites throughout the state to be purchased.

County Planner Woody Price said today DNR only has enough workers to work on so many projects at any one time and it now appears it will be early next year before that agency will get to the Spring Hammock project.

Price said, however, it would take two to four weeks for his department to perform a survey of the property owners to determine which wish to sell their land.

"Title searches and physical surveys, however, would not only be time consuming but 'fairly expensive' as well, he said. He added it is unclear whether the state would reimburse those costs. Maxwell said today the state would not reimburse the costs and that he suggested it as one way to get the project moving.

Maxwell mentioned in his letter that he has noticed news reports of "increasing building and zoning activity in and around the hammock." Price said the 1,300-acre Spring Hammock, which includes the 300-acre Big Tree Park and Soldiers Creek Park, owned by the county, is designated for conservation in the county's land use plan.

Price said that while "development pressures are continuing" much of the soil in the hammock is much-like and could not be used for urban-type, high-density development.

Property Appraiser Bill Suber's office a year ago assessed the value of Spring Hammock property at $1.5 million. Price said his opinion is that the tract's value has gone up during that year.

Mrs. Glenn said today that the planning staff already has a list of the parcels to be acquired and their owners of record. She said this information was included in the packet of information the county furnished when it asked the state to purchase the hammock.

She said if DNR wishes, letters can be written by the county staff to those property owners to determine which wish to sell their lands. "If they want physical surveys done, that will have to be considered by the board of county commissioners," Mrs. Glenn said.

Mrs. Glenn said the planning department staff will probably make a report on the matter to the board at next Tuesday's meeting. — DONNA ESTES

An Odd Match

DIETERICH, Ill. (UPI) — What will happen when an albino female frog named "Froggy" mates with a yellow bullfrog named "Old Yaller"?

Keith Kirby, 23, owner of "Froggy," hopes to find out. He found the unusual white frog June 16 in the drainage ditch.

When Mr. and Mrs. Arvel Eldridge of Rockford heard about the albino frog in the news they decided "Froggy" and their "Old Yaller," a yellow frog they found last August, might become an item.

A match was arranged. Thursday "Froggy" and "Old Yaller" will be introduced to each other, then will be off to a frog pond the Eldridges have dug in their yard.

"It's supposed to be hard for frogs to breed in captivity," Kirby said.

But, he added, he's hoping the natural setting of the frog pond will help the unusual couple produce some little ones.

Longwood Water Users Get The Message

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

The city of Longwood's water customers apparently got the message: water usage dropped dramatically last weekend after the monthly water bills were received.

Because of the drop in water use, city commissioners have decided, for the time being at least, to put a proposed emergency ordinance on standby.

Heavy users were put on notice that unless they reduced their consumption to 20,000 gallons of water a month their bills might be doubled. The warning was stamped on the bills of residential users who had gone over the amount.

City Administrator David Chacey told the commissioners at a special meeting Monday afternoon that water usage had dropped from approximately 2,700,000 gallons a day to 1.5 million.

Current water rates are $4 for the first 5,000 gallons used and 56 cents per 1,000 gallons after that. Voluntary restraints on water use will continue in the city to avoid a water shortage during peak periods. Customers are asked not to water lawns, wash cars or fill pools during the hours of 4 and 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and all weekend.

The commissioners voted June 22 to authorize the city attorney to prepare an emergency ordinance that would have doubled the amount of the bill for water used over the 20,000-gallon limit. It was not enough of a deterrent, they decided, and on Monday approved doubling the entire bill and outlawing outdoor water use during peak hours.

The commissioners also heard a report by Richard Coleman, a civil engineer with Boyle Engineering Corp. of Orlando, in which he warned that the city's present water system is "borderline" and said a new well and two high pressure pumps were needed to meet the water needs in the next two years. The improvements would increase pumping capacity by 1 million gallons a day.

Chacey will ask the commission to approve the report next Monday night and authorize him to start work on designs and plans for the new equipment.

Commissioners Vow Public Hearing On Humane Society Site Request

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Four county commissioners have renewed their pledge to hold a public hearing, giving everyone the opportunity to express their feelings, before a final decision is made on leasing county-owned land to the Seminole County Humane Society.

The commissioners—Bob Sturm, Barbara Christensen, Bill Kirchhoff and Sandra Glenn—made the commitment anew after learning that the Seminole County Board of Adjustment Monday night approved the society's plans to build a new animal shelter on a three-acre county-owned tract off County Home Road at Five Points in south Sanford. The commissioners also learned that the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission last week approved the plans as well. The commissioners expressed surprise over those developments, saying they thought no such hearings would take place.

At a commission meeting on June 23 the county commissioners were told by Land Development Director John Percy that the Board of Adjustment would not have to hold a hearing on the plan since no change in zoning or special exception would be necessary for the Humane Society facility.

At that time Percy said a more preferred site, as far as the county is concerned, for the society's shelter would be a triangle of land adjacent to the county's animal control facilities now located at the county's Five Points complex. And, Percy said at least part of both sites are located within the Sanford city limits, requiring some zoning action from the city.

Leah Rogers, Sanford building official, said the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission last week approved a site plan for the Humane Society's proposed animal shelter project subject to the city getting engineering drawings for drainage of the site.

Bill Diamond, county zoning official, said no one told him the hearing wasn't to be held by the Board of Adjustment. He said the board really didn't have to do anything. But, Diamond added, the board did request a minimum 50-foot buffer between the eastern property line and any stables or stalls which might be constructed for animals by the Humane Society. "The Board of Adjustment just gave its blessing," Diamond said.

Sturm, who has supported the leasing of county-owned land to the society for a 25-year period with a 25-year renewal option for $1 per year, said it was his understanding that no hearing would be held by the Board of Adjustment.

He noted that the county is currently considering both the County Home Road site and the triangle parcel by Animal Control. "Consideration is being given to both parcels," he said. "Although it is not strictly required, I want to hear what the people have to say about the proposal." Sturm said the county commissioners will be holding a public hearing on the matter and copies of letters both for and against the proposal will be placed in the record at that time.

Kirchhoff, who has opposed the leasing of the County Home Road site, but who generally approves leasing of the triangular-shaped parcel, said a public hearing will be held by the commission.

Mrs. Glenn said both sites are being considered together. "I'm not making a decision until after the public hearing," she said.

Mrs. Christensen said the entire matter is becoming a "sore spot." She reminded that her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan of Winter Springs offered to lease at $1 per year 10 acres of their property in Spring Hammock as a site for the Humane Society shelter. She said the society declined to accept the offer after County Planner Woody Price raised objections saying it might endanger the acquisition by the state of Spring Hammock for parklands.

She said Price then offered the Humane Society the choice of two county-owned sites—the County Home Road parcel and a Dike Road parcel. The society turned down the Dike Road property, preferring the County Home Road site.

Society officials said the County Home Road site is more centrally located in its service area and is more convenient to its volunteer workers.

"Of course, we must hold a public hearing to give everyone the opportunity to state their feelings," Mrs. Christensen said. She added that the County Home Road site is not, in her opinion, the best site because it is low land and because of opposition from nearby property owners.

"My personal preference would be private property as a site," she said. "I wasn't aware that the hearing would be held by the board of adjustment," she added. "There is a lack of communication from the planning department staff. This just burns me up," she said. Commissioners on a 3-2 vote, early in June, agreed to lease for $1 per year the three-acre county-owned property as the site for a planned Humane Society shelter.

The Humane Society has received the offer of a $300,000 donation to build the shelter from Thomas Van Zandt of Orlando. The offer is contingent upon the Humane Society accepting the donation and beginning work on the project by Sept. 1, Humane Society officials said.

Mrs. Ruth Henry, executive director of the Humane Society has said the triangularly shaped parcel adjacent to the county's animal control facilities now being offered by the county would not be adequate.

"We aren't opposed to being adjacent to animal control, but that parcel would not be adequate for our needs. There is no way we could share community exercise space or shelter with Animal Control," she said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Price Of Gold Falls Below $400 An Ounce

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold in Zurich fell below $400 an ounce today for the first time since September 1979 and the American dollar was very firm at the opening of European foreign exchanges.

Gold opened at $399.50 an ounce on the Zurich bullion market, down from $405.50.

Dealers in Zurich said the price was below the $400 mark for the first time since September 1979 because of increased selling pressure from a market preferring the higher interest rates on dollar investments, the dealers said.

In London gold opened at $400.25 and slipped to $400 at the fix, down from $407.00 overnight.

"There were no special factors affecting gold, but in the face of the strong dollar buyers of bullion were staying on the sidelines," said a dealer for bullion brokers Sharps Pfaley.

The pound opened at $1.8065, compared with Tuesday's close of $1.8035.

Hunger-Striker Dies

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — IRA hunger-striker Joseph McDonnell died today in the fifth starvation death since May in a quest for political prisoner status.

McDonnell's death, in the 81st day of his fast, threatened to touch off another round of deaths similar to the four self-imposed prisoner deaths begun by Bobby Sands.

The death of the 30-year-old prisoner came as a mediation effort between a Catholic team and Britain hit a snag Tuesday, after raising hopes an end to the cycle of deaths was in sight.

"Mr. Joseph Francis McDonnell, a prisoner in HM Prison Maze, died today at 9:11 a.m. He took his own life by refusing food and medical attention for 81 days," Britain's Northern Ireland Office announced, using the same words as it did for the previous deaths.

Longshoremen Strike

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Some 40,000 longshoremen staged a one-hour strike along the Baltic coast today, shattering Poland's fragile labor peace and risking Soviet anger only a week before a crucial Communist Party congress.

As sirens howled at 10 a.m. local time, workers in Szczecin, Kolobrzeg, Goanek and Gdynia walked out in the first Polish strike since mid-March. An hour later they resumed work in the ports, which were draped in the national white and red banners.

In Warsaw, another four-hour warning strike was planned Thursday against the state-run airline company LOT unless the transport ministry approves the LOT personnel's own choice for director.

Casselberry Councilmen May Nix Sales Tax Plan

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY
Herald Staff Writer

Casselberry officials may decide not to support the sales tax option during their special legislative session in August. The measure, which proposes to raise additional money for municipal law enforcement agencies, may cost the city more than it's worth, said city councilman Frank Schutte.

Mayor Owen Sheppard told council members he and other city mayors would possibly be supporting the tax.

"Pete Knowles and myself along with others will be working on steps to see the tax pass the legislature," Sheppard said. But Schutte and other councilmen expressed doubt as to whether or not levying the tax would be in the best interest of the city.

They objected to a projected allotment to the city of Lake Mary which was approximately twice that proposed for Casselberry. But Casselberry is over twice the size of Lake Mary in population figures, officials said.

Sheppard insisted that Casselberry needs the funds from this new tax, "whatever that amount may be," he said.

"We need that money. With all the budget cutting and lack of other fund sources, options at this point are somewhat limited," Sheppard said.

But council members asked Sheppard to research the sales tax proposal and present the information to the body before committing the city to support the bill.

Airplane In Pasture Arouses Curiosity

It seemed terribly suspicious at first — an abandoned single-engine airplane tucked down behind a low-lying area in a pasture off State Road 426 near Oviedo.

But that's just what 38-year-old Van McClung found as he was going to work Monday morning. McClung told Seminole County sheriff's deputies that shortly after he stopped to look at the red and white aircraft around 7 a.m., an unidentified man approached him wanting to retrieve the plane.

Suspicious, McClung refused to give the man permission to enter the pasture (even though McClung didn't own it) and called deputies.

There was nothing particularly sinister about the incident, according to sheriff's spokesman John Spolaki. "The plane had been flown by Bruce Morse, a Forest City Insurance salesman, to the Bahamas for his honeymoon," Spolaki said.

"The engine froze up and Morse and his wife Donna had to set the plane down in that field. No one was hurt," he said.

Although deputies' curiosity was aroused by the sight of an airplane in the middle of an open pasture, Spolaki said officers did not enter or search the plane. "It had already cleared Customs and we had no probable cause to go in. There was no indication a crime had been committed."

The plane was scheduled to be removed Tuesday.

MAN FLIMFLAMS WIDOW

A 38-year-old Tampa man faces up to 15 years imprisonment after pleading guilty in Seminole Circuit Court Monday to flimflaming a 78-year-old Springs woman out of her life savings last fall.

Tom A. O'Hara, who listed his occupation as longshoreman, pleaded guilty to charges of grand theft, extortion, and impersonating a police officer in connection with the Nov. 4 incident. Judge Kenneth Leffler deferred sentencing pending completion of an investigation into O'Hara's background.

According to court records, O'Hara and Oscar Thrash, 40, also of Tampa, approached Alice E. Haughton, quickly flashed what looked like police badges and told her they needed her to help in solving a criminal case involving the Mafia.

The men told Mrs. Haughton that they needed some money to use in their investigation. Mrs. Haughton said she withdrew her life savings of $12,700 from a bank and gave it to O'Hara and Thrash after being told she would not be harmed or jailed if she cooperated.

The pair took the cash, supposedly to copy the serial numbers, then placed it in an envelope and returned it to Mrs. Haughton. She told police that when she opened the envelope, she found only strips of newspaper inside.

A bench warrant has been issued for Thrash after he failed to appear in court.

In other court action, Richard Joseph Breyer, 22, was found guilty of assault and criminal mischief in connection with a Feb. 23 fire at the home of his former roommate.

Breyer, who had originally been charged with attempted murder and arson, was convicted by a five-woman, one-man jury of the lesser charges following a two-day trial. Sentencing was deferred pending a background investigation.

Breyer was accused of setting fire to the home of Robert Millican, 1418 Croton Drive, south of Altamonte Springs, and stabbing Millican in the head. The incident was the apparent result of a domestic squabble during which Millican had thrown Breyer out of his house.

Sandra O'Connor Called 'A Person For All Seasons'

Reagan Urges Speedy Senate Confirmation For First Woman Justice On Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is urging swift Senate confirmation of Arizona Judge Sandra D. O'Connor so she may take "her place in history" as the first woman justice on the Supreme Court.

Reagan fulfilled a campaign promise Tuesday in announcing his decision to nominate a woman to the high court. He described Mrs. O'Connor, 51, as "a person for all seasons" who possesses "those unique qualities of temperament, fairness, intellectual capacity and devotion to the public good."

Reagan said at a GOP fund-raiser Tuesday night in Chicago, "I feel certain her term upon the bench will be one of the proudest legacies of my presidency."

Reagan apparently won the backing of several key conservative Republican senators for the nomination, paving the way for confirmation.

Related Story, Page 5A

But Mrs. O'Connor's perceived position on abortion and her support of the Equal Rights Amendment drew harsh criticism from others, including the Moral Majority. They vowed to fight her confirmation as successor to Justice Potter Stewart, who retired Friday.

Reagan told reporters he is "completely satisfied" with Mrs. O'Connor's position on abortion, and deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes later disclosed that during her July 1 interview with Reagan, Mrs. O'Connor said abortion is "personally abhorrent" to her.

It was the Oval Office interview that was the decisive factor in Mrs. O'Connor's selection, he said.

Mrs. O'Connor was the first of 25 potential nominees to be interviewed. After the interview, Reagan decided against seeing the others.

Mrs. O'Connor, a judge on the Arizona Court of Appeals, served as co-chairman of that state's Nixon re-election committee in 1972.

Her nomination was hailed as a "significant victory" by leaders of the women's movement, who have faulted the administration for not naming enough women to important posts.

The precedent-shattering appointment to the lifetime post will end the court's 181-year tradition — dating back to George Washington's presidency — as an all-male tribunal. A total of 101 black-robed "brethren" have preceded Mrs. O'Connor.

Mrs. O'Connor, wife of a Phoenix lawyer and mother of three sons, would be the youngest member of the court if approved by two-thirds of the Senate. As an associate justice, she would receive $82,700 a year.

Ducking substantive questions that may arise during Senate hearings, Mrs. O'Connor told reporters in Phoenix, "I am extremely happy and honored to have been nominated."

"If confirmed, I will do my best to serve the court and this nation in a manner that will bring credit to the president, to my family and to all the people of this great nation," she said.

While women's groups hailed the choice as a significant victory, the Rev. Jerry Falwell, head of the Moral Majority, blasted the nomination.

"Either the president did not have sufficient information about Judge O'Connor's background in social issues or he chose to ignore that information," he said.

"Her record indicates she is not an opponent of abortion on demand and is opposed to attempts to curb this biological holocaust."

Cal Thompson, vice president of the Moral Majority, said Reagan telephoned Falwell Tuesday afternoon and assured him "he was convinced she (Mrs. O'Connor) is a strong pro-life person."

The controversy apparently stems from Mrs. O'Connor's vote in 1974 — when she was a member of the Arizona Senate — against a measure that would have prohibited free abortions at University of Arizona hospitals. The White House described the vote as a procedural, rather than philosophical, stand.

In defending Mrs. O'Connor, Speakes said she voted against the anti-abortion rider because it was not "germane."

Navy Proposes Massive Buildup To Match Soviets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy, riding the high tide of the administration's emphasis on defense, has proposed a massive five-year shipbuilding and aircraft procurement program to meet the goal of matching Soviet naval power by the end of the decade, Pentagon officials say.

The plan entails building 143 ships, including two more nuclear-powered aircraft carriers and 14 additional nuclear attack submarines, plus 1,800 planes between 1983 and 1988 — a 75 percent increase over what the Carter administration proposed, the officials said Tuesday.

They said the Navy also plans to reactivate four Iowa-class battleships for use as cruise-missile carriers and two aircraft carriers, the Oriskany and Bon Homme Richard.

The proposed buildup, which has been submitted to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger for approval, would cost about $120 billion — more than half the entire $222 billion proposed defense budget for fiscal year 1983.

Although Weinberger is not expected to make a formal decision until he prepares his fiscal 1983 budget later this year, he is certain to endorse the Navy program because it supports the administration's goal of building a naval force that can match Soviet power.

In testimony before Congress, Navy officials have said U.S. seapower has been endangered by increasing Soviet naval strength, diminishing America's ability to keep supply lines open to Europe, Asia and the Persian Gulf in the event of war.

The buildup would enable the Navy to reach the administration's objective of 600 ships by 1987, at which time it plans to enlarge the fleet still more with newly designed vessels that could include light carriers, the officials said.

The Navy plans to increase the number of carrier battle groups from 12 to 15.

"The theory now is to build on what we have in order to restore the fleet," said one senior official who requested anonymity. "First, we'll get up to 800 ships" from the 656 now on active duty.

"We can't hold the North Atlantic and the Mediterranean with what we have now," he said.

The Navy would like to double the size of the present fleet to about 1,000 ships, including 22 carriers, to establish what officials termed a "prudent risk force" — one able to give the admirals sufficient power projection to contain the Soviet navy in port.

"It would meet the requirements with acceptable risks," one official said.

The proposed fleet expansion goes 80 percent beyond what Jimmy Carter's Pentagon proposed — from 80 to 143 ships — and raises aircraft procurement by 70 percent — from 1,001 to 1,800 planes, the officials said.

It would include 14 new attack submarines instead of seven, bringing the number of the $500 million nuclear boats to 100 by the end of the decade.

There also would be nine frigates, instead of one under the Carter plan, and nine amphibious vessels and six destroyers.

with acceptable risks," one official said.

The proposed fleet expansion goes 80 percent beyond what Jimmy Carter's Pentagon proposed — from 80 to 143 ships — and raises aircraft procurement by 70 percent — from 1,001 to 1,800 planes, the officials said.

There also would be nine frigates, instead of one under the Carter plan, and nine amphibious vessels and six destroyers.

Smith Advises Graham: Don't Sign Death Warrants

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Attorney General Jim Smith says the U.S. Supreme Court won't be allowing executions in Florida until at least October and Gov. Bob Graham will be wasting his time signing death warrants.

Smith said Tuesday he will advise Graham not to sign additional warrants until the Washington court disposes of a suit attacking the review given by Florida's Supreme Court to appeals made by 121 of some 185 persons currently on death row.

On Monday, Justice Lewis Powell blocked the July 22 execution of Ernest Dobbert, a Jacksonville man convicted of killing two of his children.

The stay was entered so the court, currently in summer recess, can decide whether to hear Dobbert's suit which charges the state court improperly considered secret reports when reviewing his case, as well as appeals of 121 other condemned offenders.

"It clearly sends a signal that until this matter is resolved...it will be easy to go directly to Washington and get a stay," Smith said.

"I would advise Gov. Graham that in light of Justice Powell's action, it probably would serve no purpose to sign any more warrants until this issue is resolved," he said.

The last pending execution was blocked later Tuesday when the state Supreme Court issued a stay for Lewis Leon Aldridge, who was scheduled to die in the electric chair July 15 for the 1974 killing of a Fort Pierce man.

The court ordered St. Lucie County Circuit Court to hold a hearing on Aldridge's claim that during the murder trial his lawyer did an incompetent job.

Aldridge also sought a stay on grounds raised by Dobbert before Justice Powell, saying the state Supreme Court's use of psychiatric examination reports and other confidential documents not made available to the defense was not proper.

The Florida justices concluded, as they did in a major ruling on the issue earlier this year, that their use of the secret reports was not improper.

Graham said he wants to read Powell's order entering the stay and discuss the matter with Smith before deciding whether to sign any more warrants.

The governor has signed 19 death warrants during his two-and-a-half years in office. Only one has led to an execution. John Spenkelink died in the electric chair in May 1979.

The Washington justices are in summer recess now and will not return until Oct. 8. If they accept jurisdiction over Dobbert's appeal, he hopes they will hear the case in October and quickly enter a ruling, Smith said.

"This is extremely important to Florida...The kinds of delays we've had to put up with (stays of execution by federal judges) are, in my opinion, totally unreasonable."

Smith argued in a brief filed with Powell last Thursday that the state court's consideration of reports never made available to defense lawyers doesn't automatically mean that the death sentences in all 122 cases must be thrown out.

Each case must be considered separately as it makes it way through the normal appeals process, with the courts deciding whether the material was influential enough in the imposition and upholding of the death to require new sentencing hearings, he said.

"We really are quite confident about our position," he said.

Casselberry Sidewalk Issue Resolved As Board Waives Building Requirement

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY
Herald Staff Writer

Beck Construction developers in Casselberry won't have to build sidewalks in the Secret Lake Shores subdivision, although they promised the city they would do so prior to the development's approval.

But, they'll still have to pay for it, council members said in their Monday night meeting.

Don Moore, Beck's legal representative, asked the board to consider waiving the sidewalk requirement that was agreed upon when the development was originally proposed since homeowners in the area objected to the project.

Residents along Secret Way had previously indicated their objection to sidewalk construction in signed statements. But several were on hand to ask council to consider the waiver request. Moore, who stated that the developers would be glad to comply with originally approved plans, said the waiver was merely requested because of the residents.

He explained that sidewalk construction on the three lots specified in the plans leave some residents with sidewalks and some without.

Secret Lake homeowners who were on hand agreed. Sidewalks, said one area resident, would mar the beauty of her property. Additionally, she said, a sidewalk "wouldn't connect to anything or lead anywhere."

Beck recently submitted a bond for $1,300 to the city insuring that the sidewalks would be constructed within 60 days.

A condition attached to the bond would have forfeited the money if work was not completed within the 60-day period.

But when homeowners protested the building of sidewalks Monday night council members agreed to waive the requirement if a non-refundable bond is put up in its place for future construction of the sidewalk.

The new bond will be computed according to the linear footage of the sidewalk, said Ken Ehlers, the city engineer at $3 per linear foot.

Council Chairman Tom Embree said sidewalks may be necessary in the future since the Senior Citizen Multi-purpose Center will be opening the first of September in the Secret Lake subdivision.

"Walkways keep people out of the street and there is less danger of them being hit by a passing car," he said. "We want to be sure and consider the safety factor involved," he added.

The council was not sure what period of time "future construction" refers to.

Skid Row Slasher Suspect Faces Psychiatric Tests

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Vietnam veteran, suspected of being the Skid Row slasher who killed two vagrants and attacked 14 others, will undergo psychiatric tests to determine whether he can stand trial for murder.

Charles Sears, 32, barefoot and wearing running shorts, calmly pleaded innocent Tuesday in the fatal knifing of one vagrant and an attempted attack on another. He was held without bail at the Rikers Island correction facility following arraignment in state Supreme Court in Manhattan.

Police have said Sears, who is unemployed and last lived at a Bowery flophouse, is a suspect in 14 other throat-slashing attacks, one of them fatal, on Manhattan vagrants.

His lawyer, Robert Stein, said witnesses to other assaults failed to identify Sears in five of six police lineups Monday.

Day Care Center Probed

ABILENE, Texas (UPI) — A day care center has been temporarily shut and may be closed permanently if a hearing determines children there were exposed to marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia.

State Judge Billy John Edwards granted a temporary restraining order Tuesday closing Mary's Nursery on the complaint of investigators with the state Department of Human Resources.

DHR Investigator Don McWhorter said in an affidavit that in June he and a state licensing representative found a "hash pipe" containing what appeared to be the burned residue of marijuana on a bedroom table.

South African Joins List Of Foreign Victims

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — A young South African man hitchhiking across the United States has joined the growing list of foreign tourists who have encountered crime in South Florida.

"Does this kind of thing happen that much here?" said Jounge Hillman, 21, after being beaten and robbed of his knapsack, British passport and extra clothes by two men who gave him a lift on his way to Key West Tuesday.

"The police acted as though it was all very commonplace. But I want those two caught. I've hitchhiked all over but it's here I got into trouble," Hillman said.

School Crime Rate Rises

MIAMI (UPI) — The swelling crime rate that has drawn international attention to Dade County's streets is evident in the halls of its schools, too, a study shows.

Violent crime rose 52 percent, robberies 132 percent and sex offenses 50 percent in Dade schools last year, says a report released Tuesday by the school system's special investigative unit.

Also showing hefty increases were burglary, 32 percent; breaking and entering 30 percent; narcotics possession 76 percent; weapons possession 145 percent, and motor vehicle theft 64 percent.

Distraught Father Fears Kidnapped Daughter Dead

TYLER, Texas (UPI) — A nearly blind father of three waited today for medical examiners to determine whether a muddy, battered body found near a creek was his kidnapped 11-year-old daughter.

"She really helped take care of her daddy. And I don't know what will become of him without her," said Chester Owen, a neighbor of the McRoy family. "He is just going to explode."

Police said Trisha McRoy — whose hazel eyes were her father's eyes to the world — disappeared either late Friday or early Saturday while she slept on the couch in the family's living room.

Her father, Gene McRoy, 38, tearfully begged Tuesday for the safe return of his daughter and an anonymous donor put up a $50,000 reward after learning the family could not afford to pay the ransom.

A few hours later, however, a fisherman casting his line in a tributary to the Neches River about 5 miles from the McRoy home found a muddy, beaten body in an area local residents use as a dump.

Sheriff J.B. Smith said it appeared to be the body of a "young female," but he refused to say if it was the McRoy girl pending a match of dental records by the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office.

At a news conference, McRoy said his daughter was "like another hand" to him. Because he cannot see at night, she would help feed the animals on their farm, guide him through the house and do whatever she could for him, he said.

Neighbors said on the first Monday of every month, McRoy and Trisha would go to a nearby flea market where she sold animals to supplement the family's income.

McRoy was a bricklayer until retinitis pigmentosa began taking his sight 11 years ago.

"When I first found out about it (the disease), I thought I would kill myself. But Trisha made all the difference for me," McRoy said. "I love all three of my children, but I'll always hold a certain spot for her."

The young girl, who had shoulder-length brown hair and hazel eyes, had just finished fifth grade and was a straight A student.

Early Tuesday, after three days of searching turned up no leads, a man telephoned the McRoy residence to say he had put $50,000 in a Tyler bank for the child's safe return.

The disbelieving McRays called the sheriff's office and FBI and asked them to investigate the contribution, and the authorities quickly confirmed the money had been deposited and was ready to be paid out.

The Dead Heat Race In Israel

The simultaneous assertions of victory made by Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Likud bloc and by Shimon Peres's Labor Party following Israel's dead-heat election actually proclaim that no one won.

And yet, even if neither major party achieved a majority in the Knesset, each could lay claim to partial victory. Mr. Peres had come a surprising distance from behind during the last fortnight of campaigning and led Labor to a razor-thin 49-48 edge in Knesset seats. Thus, he not only denied Mr. Begin the majority he had sought with such astonishing vigor but enormously complicated Likud's task of forming a ruling coalition. But Begin now has a one-seat majority.

For his part, the Prime Minister and his followers are exulting over the dramatic reversal of trends that only a few months ago pointed to a Likud election disaster. Indeed, Mr. Begin's apparent success in winning agreement from the National Religious Party to join a new coalition government even before the final returns were in would seem to justify his prediction that President Yitzhak Navon would select him as having the best chance to form a new government.

Days and even weeks could be required to organize the elements of a successor administration. And, although Israelis are accustomed to coalition governments inasmuch as no political party has ever won a governing majority in Knesset by itself in the nation's 33-year history, never before have they faced such prospects of a weakened, unstable government. Israel's closest election ever has bestowed such enormous bargaining power upon the splinter parties, most of them extremist, that they can almost dictate their terms. Ironically, in seeking to avoid this feared result, Israeli voters in unusual numbers coalesced away from the minor to the two major parties and contributed to the debilitating tie-vote outcome.

In the voting, Israel's large Arab citizenry, with a powerful bloc of 270,000 votes, went mostly to Mr. Peres, as did the Ashkenazic element or European-origin Jews. The Sephardim or Israelis of North African and Middle Eastern extraction went mostly for Mr. Begin.

Americans who have difficulty understanding the intricacies of Israel's politics and its electoral system, might think of this election in terms of Harry Truman's reelection campaign against Thomas E. Dewey. President Truman raised hell and, in the currency of his campaign, gave 'em hell.

But, whereas Harry Truman campaigned against Herbert Hoover, the Great Depression, and Congress, the comparably feisty Menachem Begin has campaigned to great advantage against Adolf Hitler and the Holocaust. And just for good measure, his demagogic attacks on foreign personalities have ranged from Idi Amin to West Germany's chancellor, Helmut Schmidt.

Moreover, the prime minister's pre-election deeds were even bolder than his words. He entered into a crisis in Lebanon, and he ordered the audacious destruction of Iraq's nuclear reactor. The manipulation of the economy, the chanting crowds, and the national euphoria over bold, brave deeds eclipsed such acute domestic concerns as the raging 130 percent inflation rate. By contrast, the pedestrian, Dewey-like Peres response to all of this was generally as ineffective as Mr. Begin could have hoped.

The present prospect that Prime Minister Begin will continue in power is not altogether welcomed by some of Israel's friends, not to say its foes, who had looked with ill-disguised favor on the possibility of a more flexible Labor government. Indeed, some capitals are almost as upset as when Ronald Reagan won the U.S. presidency in November.

The extraordinary international interest in Israel's election is proof enough, if any is needed, of that little nation's extraordinary position and influence. But if the only democracy in the Middle East is troublesome, it should be remembered that free elections entitle a free people to make their own mistakes.

Israel's Indecisive Decision

It would be a mistake to read Israel's bitterly fought election as evidence of a radical change in the country's political style as such.

From the very beginning of the Jewish state, politicians have gone at each other with a ferocity customarily reserved in other countries for civil wars. Few holds are barred in personal and partisan infighting. Even the physical violence that scarred the closing weeks, dismaying to some observers in Israel and elsewhere for its storm trooper echoes, differentiates the passions of this campaign from others more in degree than kind.

But it would be a greater mistake to dismiss the outcome of this election as merely more of the same because once more Israeli voters, after all the rhetorical vehemence and partisan fury, have failed to provide themselves with a stable government.

This time they have also revealed the country to be more sharply and evenly polarized than ever before between a right wing of doctrinaire traditionalists and pragmatists of the center and left.

Israel, even during the long ascendancy of the Labor Party of David Ben Gurion and Golda Meir, has never had a solidly based majority government. Cabinets have always been intricately crafted coalitions in which inherent instability has been the common denominator.

But this time the crafting is going to be more difficult than ever, and at a time when Israel is less able to afford the luxury of preoccupation with the techniques of politics.

Whether formed by Shimon Peres or Menachem Begin, the next government faces formidable problems that will not yield to the politics of instability. The country is burdened with perhaps the most virulent inflation of any developed economy in the world.

Economic weakness is more than an internal problem, it increases Israel's dependence upon aid from abroad at a time when its hard-line policies — given dramatic expression in the destruction of Iraq's nuclear facility — are increasing its political isolation.

The confrontation with Syria in Lebanon drags on, as does the deadlock over the future of the Arabs of the occupied West Bank. Inability to come to grips with that issue blocks full implementation of the peace with Egypt.

And potentially most serious of all, there is a widening breach within the Israeli community between the elite of European origin that has run the show since independence and later arrivals from Arab countries and North Africa, a culturally antagonistic and economically disadvantaged proletariat that now outnumber the Europeans.

And finally, the issue that dominated the campaign remains unresolved: Menachem Begin.

Whether he forms the next government or leads the opposition, Begin's personality and style will dominate post-election politics. He may not be wholly responsible for the present polarization, but he certainly personifies it. He arouses great admiration in some quarters, including the burgeoning proletariat, and even greater antipathy in others, notably the intelligentsia.

It would be a mistake to discount the seriousness of that possibility.

Franchises Went Under...Thanks To SBA

WASHINGTON — Owning a business is the dream of many Americans. But it turned into a nightmare for Barbara Boghetich.

She and her husband decided that a franchise operation was the path to financial independence. So they sank their life savings into a ZIP-Z ice-cream shop franchise. In return for the $9,500 franchise fee, the company promised to help the Boghetichs pick a location, set up the store and get a Small Business Administration loan for the necessary equipment and supplies.

But the location — in the Chicago suburb of Wheeling, Ill. — was plagued with problems; it had in fact been rejected by ZIP-Z officials for an earlier franchise applicant. So Barbara Boghetich told the House Commerce, Consumer and Monetary Affairs Subcommittee.

"Three months after we opened, all development stopped near our store," she recalled. "We learned things that an experienced site locator would have found out for us" — things like a court fight over a proposed site for development, and a planned school that was actually five years away.

As for the SBA, officials there approved the Boghetich loan even though the agency's files showed four defaults by ZIP-Z franchise holders in the two previous years.

Instead of warning the Boghetichs that their franchise dream might not come true, according to the unpublished subcommittee transcripts, the SBA required them to put up their home as collateral for the government-guaranteed loan. So when their ice-cream parlor failed a little over two years later, they lost not only their dream but their home as well.

Both the General Accounting Office and the House committee, headed by Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., are investigating SBA's handling of loans to franchise holders. One basic problem is that the SBA does not require the franchisors — many of which are among the biggest corporations in the country — to shoulder any share of the loan risk to their franchise holders.

When a franchised outlet goes under, the franchise holder loses everything he put into it, the government loses whatever amount of the loan is left unpaid by sale of assets — and the franchisor corporation loses little or nothing. In fact, it can — and frequently does — peddle the franchise to the next sucker who comes along, and the whole process starts over again.

Rosenthal characterized the SBA's policy as "a kind of welfare for Mobil Oil, Phillips Petroleum, Ramada Inn, U.S. Suzuki, Lafayette Radio, Gulf Oil and Texaco."

Most SBA-guaranteed franchised loans are for auto dealerships, gas stations and fast-food outlets. And the blue-ribbon status of the companies involved is no guarantee of success.

Arco Petroleum Products Co., for example, sold 36 franchises in the period studied by GAO auditors, and 12 of the franchise holders went broke. During the same period, 34 out of 107 Shell Oil Co. franchisees failed, leaving the SBA with $348,000 in defaulted loans.

All told, SBA has written off about $27 million in franchise loans as uncollectible; and is trying to salvage what it can from an additional $85 million worth of defaulted loans.

The SBA is now considering some helpful changes. One would require the franchising corporations to bear some of the risk; another would make default information on various franchise operations routinely available to district offices, so that prospective franchise holders can get fair warning about their chances of success.

Postscript: A ZIP-Z spokesman told my associate Vicki Warren that the company gives its franchisees complete training, and said they don't have an abnormal failure rate. "The one problem is that franchisees don't listen to us," he said.

The Death Of Communism

Back in the 1980s, fashionable theologians like Harvey Cox and Thomas Altizer brought us the news that God is Dead. The report of its death, as Mark Twain remarked of himself, was premature. God seems to be alive and well in the Vatican, in the Thomas Road Baptist Church and in millions of homes. But communism seems to be about ready for the Last Rites.

President Reagan has called communism a "bizarre phase" in human history which is coming to an end. You can't deny people their freedom forever, the president thought. Secretary of State Alexander Haig, with reference to Poland, speculated along the same lines, as have done lesser spokesmen.

This talk rather offended the liberal and diplomatic sensibilities of James Reston, who thought that though it might well be true it might also be dangerous. It might goad the Soviets to show that they were not through by committing some rash act.

And the even more liberal columnist James Wechsler raised a reasonable question. If Reagan thinks the Soviets have had it, why is he asking for such large raises in defense spending? Answer: because even a dying Brontosaurus can be dangerous, perhaps especially a dying Brontosaurus.

The view from the Kremlin is anything but cheerful.

Whatever, absolutely whatever the Soviets do in Poland — they lose. If they let matters take their own course in Poland, they may very well see arise there a social democratic state, complete with a non-Leninist democratic community party. This completely out-of-control entity would sit astride Soviet rail links with East Germany, posing a strategic threat to Warsaw Pact lines of communication. Such a development would change the whole equation in East Europe, perhaps leading to an unravelling of the Warsaw Pact, even the reunification of the two Germanys.

But the other Soviet options here aren't much good either. An invasion would lead to an international quarantine at a time when the Soviet regime desperately needs to be propped up by its purchase of grain and technology abroad. Soviet diplomatic relations would go into deep freeze. The invasion would meet with both violent and passive resistance, and the rickety Soviet economy would have to absorb a Polish economy in ruins.

Neither "salami tactics" — gradually killing, buying off, or otherwise replacing the multitudes of Polish leadership — nor "invasion by osmosis," Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's phrase for a gradual Soviet buildup in and around Poland, looks very promising either.

On its southern border, Moscow confronts the prospect of a mutinous Islam, a religious wave of nationalism, religion, and anarchy which promises to infect the large Soviet Islamic population.

In Asia, the Chinese are tying down some 40 Soviet divisions along the Siberian border, and, on demographic grounds, the future there is bleak at best.

Internally, non-Russian Soviet populations are increasing at a much faster rate than the ruling Russian population, whose rate of childbirth is down and vodka consumption up. The Soviet economy staggers under a system of almost unworkable central control.

There's a large irony here, really more than one irony. The Marxist system is supposed to be based upon scientific economic analysis. But Marxism fails economically. And Marxism talks about the "contradictions" of capitalism, that is, its structural weaknesses; when, in fact, it is the Soviet Union that is shot through with contradictions at every level of its structure.

I see nothing wrong with President Reagan and Secretary Haig pointing all this out. After all, communist propaganda has been talking about the fall of capitalism for decades, and Nikita Khrushchev once colorfully threatened to "bury" us.

DICK WEST

It's A Chic Coalition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans for Democratic Action has been holding its annual convention here and it is plain to see the venerable progressive group has fallen behind the times.

I am not referring to ADA being liberal during a markedly conservative period. I am talking about its singularity.

If you want to accomplish anything in the way of political or social reform these days, you've got to get yourself a coalition.

A mere association won't get the job done anymore. Neither will a federation, a union, a league or any of the other pressure group organisms that historically have carried the ball for truth and righteousness in this country.

The organizational nomenclature in vogue among special interest activists this season is the coalition. Without a coalition, promoters of worthy causes become just another faction and their noble missions languish accordingly.

Coalitions have been cropping up for centuries, of course, but mainly in Europe. Your classic coalition governs in countries so politically fragmented no single party can win a parliamentary majority. Italy, for instance.

International coalitions likewise have been popular. On or about the time of Louis XIV, other European countries were forever forming coalitions against France. Usually to no avail.

By and large, coalitions are just now catching on in America. When the United States was forming Cold War alliances against the Soviet Union, we called them "treaty organizations."

Man and boy, for as long as I have been watching Congress advance the commonwealth, I have seen Southern Democrats crossing party lines on assorted issues.

Such defections, however, rarely were elevated to the coalition status credited with passage of President Reagan's budget program in the House.

Much the same is true of protest movements. Groups demonstrating against the Vietnam War or for civil rights seldom were called coalitions.

Conspiracies maybe, but not coalitions. And failure of ERA the first time out probably stemmed from the lack of a feminist coalition.

How times have changed! Now we have an Energy Conservation Coalition, a Coalition for Better Television, a Coalition of American Public Employees and I don't know what all. Reagan has even urged the NAACP to join him in "a coalition for change."

The ADA apparently is beginning to pick up on the trend. It is seeking help from liberal Republicans for a "last chance" stand against the Reagan budget. But it is doubtful the effort will prevail.

To succeed, ADA would need to change its name to American Coalition for Democratic Action.

There is a lesson in this for every American who would like to nurture the public good. Let this your motto be: For success, coalesce.

Profile Of Sandra O'Connor

New Supreme Court Nominee Well-Qualified For Position

By United Press International
It didn't take Sandra O'Connor long to make a good impression on her colleagues.

In the 18 months she sat on the Arizona Court of Appeals, she won the respect of her male colleagues, who showered her with praise when her name was mentioned as a possible Supreme Court nominee.

"She has a razor-sharp mind which, combined with a steady temperament, makes her well-suited for the tough questions that would be presented to a U.S. Supreme Court Justice," said Appeals Court Judge Donald Froeb.

President Reagan Tuesday broke two centuries of male exclusivity by naming Mrs. O'Connor to replace retiring Justice Potter Stewart.

Mrs. O'Connor, 51, is a former Republican state legislator and superior court judge. She was appointed to the state appeals court in December, 1979.

A leader in Arizona GOP politics, she was co-chair of the state committee to reelect Richard Nixon in 1972.

"From a judicial standpoint, I personally like her conservative approach to resolving issues before us," said Appeals Court Judge Laurence T. Wren.

But despite that conservative tag, her record in the Arizona legislative reflected a more liberal stand on women's issues.

In 1974, she sponsored a bill to present the Equal Rights Amendments to an advisory referendum. However, that proposal died in committee.

Also that year, she was among nine senators who opposed a bill that would have forbidden abortions at the University Hospital in Tucson, Ariz., unless the mother's life was endangered.

She first was appointed to the Arizona Senate in 1969, was elected twice to that body and in 1973-74 served as majority leader — first woman in the country ever elected to such a post.

During her years in the Senate, she promoted a modernized mental treatment and commitment law, pushed for constitutional spending limits and supported open meeting law issues.

She voluntarily left the legislature in 1974 and was elected Maricopa County Superior Court Judge, a position she held until moving on to the Appeals Court.

"She not only is an outstanding person in all respects, but she is exceptionally well qualified in the legal field," Froeb said.

Appeals Court Judge Eino Jacobson said Mrs. O'Connor is "a hard-working, bright lady. She's an excellent judge on this court — and an asset."

Mrs. O'Connor was the third-ranked 1982 Stanford University law graduate in a class in which Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist finished first.

Born in Duncan, Ariz., to a ranching family, she was an assistant attorney general from 1963-69. From 1954-57 she was a civil attorney for the quarter-master market center at Frankfurt Germany. Before that she was a deputy county attorney in San Mateo County, Calif., in 1952-53.

She is married to Phoenix attorney John O'Connor, who has strong GOP credentials. They have three sons.

'Normal Life' Has Changed

Year Of Crisis Leaves Mark On Poland's 36 Million People

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — It was close to 2 a.m. and the empty street near the Polish parliament building was quiet. Suddenly, three drunks with arms entwined appeared around the corner and began to sing:

"Poland still has not perished (and won't) while we're still alive..."

It was the Polish national anthem. Across town a few days later, an American tourist — one of the few this year — went shopping at Supersam, one of the city's largest supermarkets, to get a closer idea of how Poles live.

"Now I understand the psychology of bread riots," he said later, describing the mad scramble as shoppers, fearing that supplies would run out, mobbed the shop attendants filling the shelves with loaves. "There actually was plenty of bread," he said. "They were simply afraid it would run out."

The past year of crisis has made its mark on Poland's 36 million people and has forced a redefinition of what is meant by the term "normal life."

Unquenchable and growing Polish patriotism, as well as economic crisis, are part of it.

Normal life now entails the rationing of most basic foods — meat, butter, sugar, flour, buckwheat groats and, in some regions, other goods from chocolate to cigarettes.

"I find it sad," said a 35-year-old father of two. "My 10-year-old daughter thinks it's exciting to take her ration coupons into the shop. She feels grown up."

But the ration system is inefficient and there are still long lines for food. Meat production this year is even lower than before and a new ration system is to go into effect in August.

Normal life in Poland has long entailed standing in line for food. But now the lines are longer and there are more of them. A whole syndrome of waiting — for fear of being too late — has grown up.

People start queuing three or four hours before shops open — or before the crowded visa sections of foreign embassies open for business.

"I got to the visa office of the British embassy at 5 a.m.," said Maria, a secretary. "I was number 13 in line. But I got my visa by noon."

The number of Poles wanting to go to the West this year has risen so sharply that some Western embassies have become much more strict about granting visas. One reason is that, official reports say, many more Poles who leave the country this year are simply not returning home.

People stand in the longest lines these days for pleasures rather than necessities.

Cigarettes are scarce. Alcohol, even Polish vodka, is almost impossible to buy. With the shortage of sugar, ice cream and candy are in top demand and the line for ice cream cones at the Hortex sweet shop on Constitution square often is several hundred people long.

This is not the only way "normal life" has changed.

It also has led to a liberalized press, more exciting television and a plethora of "internal" bulletins put out by the Solidarity union which spread news not printed in the regular media.

This liberalization has been condemned by the Soviets and there have been hints of a coming crackdown.

Changes in the political situation and the effects on the cultural and social scene are eye-opening.

Solidarity has utilized the traditional Polish flair for graphic arts to turn out striking posters to mark all occasions — from union elections to commemorations of earlier riots. The number and diversity of union badges increases all the time.

The new fad among young people is a plastic badge with the initials "E. A." — standing for the words "anti-socialist element" — or a similar T-shirt.

Commenting on both the scarcity of certain goods and the recent crime wave in Poland, a young woman told of a friend who had her car stolen. When police recovered it, she found a ski jacket left inside — but its Solidarity badge and a lipstick in its pocket were missing.

Food Shortages May Develop

North China Experiencing Worst Drought In 37 Years

TAIYUAN, China (UPI) — Severe drought grips large areas of north China and food shortages may develop this summer. Grasslands which support Inner Mongolia's livestock industry are parched and stunted. Sheep, cattle, goats, horses and camels graze on scrubby grass, normally three to four inches high and sometimes 12 inches.

Clouds of dust blow off the fertile yellow loess lands south of Mongolia. The Yellow River, where Chinese civilization started about 4,000 years ago, runs nearly dry.

"If the drought continues to perhaps August, our food supplies may be short," Tian Ji-shan, deputy director of Shansi province's planning commission, told foreign correspondents touring north China.

"Our provincial government gives subsidies and assistance to disaster-stricken areas, and part of our province is in the disaster area."

Tian said about 1 million out of Shansi's 24.6 million people live in the drought area.

"Drought is a serious problem," the economic official said. "It's been dry since last year. Grain production was reduced by 2 billion jin (1.1 million tons) in 1980 from 1979." That meant a loss of nearly 15 percent in food grains.

A United Nations report called it the worst drought in 37 years.

"We have been unable to plant five million mou (759,000 acres) of land this year, about 10 percent of our cultivated land, because of drought," Tian said.

The abandoned land normally would grow corn and millet, food for people and livestock. Grains stored from previous years are adequate for the moment, the official said, but surplus stocks may be exhausted before summer ends.

Tian said his province is supplying drought relief in cash and equipment for digging wells and circulating more water. The northern province also has appealed to China's central government in Peking for more help, he said.

The U.N. disaster relief office sent a survey mission to China several months ago to study damage from recent floods and droughts, for centuries China's two great tragedies.

From Geneva, the U.N. said, "The cumulative effects of the worst floods in 26 years and the worst drought in 37 years."

Swept Down Storm Sewers

Children Survive Terrifying Rides

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Two children playing in waters from a sudden rainstorm were overpowered by the current and swept down narrow pipes into separate storm sewers, but each emerged safe several blocks away.

"I thought I was in a dream, but I opened my eyes and said, uh-oh it's not a dream," said Danielle Wilson, 8, of her terrifying ride Monday afternoon.

Across town, Shane Creson, 8, was splashing in foot-deep waters from a downpour that dumped about an inch of rain in less than an hour when he was sucked down a 48-inch drainage pipe that local children call "the tunnel."

Shane said he held his breath. Danielle said she prayed. Playmates grabbed at Danielle without success as she slipped from the curb into an open chute and then was swept feet first into a drain 2.5 feet in diameter. She traveled two blocks before washing up in a grassy gully behind a shopping center.

"It was completely, totally dark," Danielle said, describing her ride. "Sometimes I was on my back, sometimes I was on my stomach, sometimes I was on my knees."

She saw her sister Deana, 13, and a friend ran alongside the concrete chute for about 100 feet.

"They started screaming, because I heard them," she said. The pipe got wider toward its opening and the girl was able to keep her head above the swirling water, swimming part of the way until she could stand, she said afterwards. She walked to the nearest house and called home.

"By the time the police and fire department got here, she was here about two minutes ahead of them," Randy Wilson said of his daughter, who looked well enough to forego even a trip to the emergency room.

"God saved me, it could have been a lot worse," Danielle said.

Shane, dressed in a new swimsuit, had joined his sister Angle, 10, in watching water cascade down their block into "the tunnel." She said Shane was trying to see if he could stand in the water when he was knocked down by the current. She tried to pull him out.

"It swept me off my feet, but I held on to the top (of the pipe) and it swept him in," Angle said.

Inside, Shane bounced along 700 feet in the swift water, feet first for a 1/2 mile, then head first. He held his breath when his head was sucked under, he said.

Noticing a light above him, Shane grabbed the bars of a grate as he passed underneath. He hung on and yelled for help.

"I just screamed my head off until the guy came," he said afterwards.

Shane was taken by his father to the emergency room for treatment of scratches and bruises.

"I think he's learned his lesson," Stan Creson said, adding that in previous years his son had been stepped on by a horse and hit by a car.

"I'm glad it's over," Shane said.

IN BRIEF

Just A Little Retreat For Jackie 'O' And Friends

By United Press International
The 356-acre scrub oak tract Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis bought on Martha's Vineyard in 1978 for $1 million is finally ready for occupancy. The retreat — designed to Jackie's specifications — includes a 3,100-square-foot main house and a guest house, both floored with white oak and featuring windows with wooden pegs instead of nails, says PEOPLE magazine.

Some 2,000 pounds of southeast Asian teak was imported for the sundecks and there is a 16-burner stove in the kitchen as well as nine bathrooms. Security guards patrol the retreat to ensure Mrs. Onassis' privacy but when she tires of it, she can go to the local A & P where Richard Reason, editor of the Vineyard Gazette and son of James Reston, says the townsfolk have become "pretty blasé" about bumping into the likes of Beverly Sills or Walter Cronkite.

Meg Calls Off Visit To U.S.

Britain's Princess Margaret called off a visit to the United States after the protest staged when her nephew Prince Charles visited New York last month. But Queen Elizabeth's younger sister has gone ahead with a tour of Canada that may cause a few sparks. Aidan Buckley, a spokesman for sympathizers of the Catholic Irish Republican Army in Toronto, promised "a rowdy, noisy and forceful protest" when Margaret attends a Royal Ballet performance Tuesday night.

Buckley said the visit "is not going to be passed off like a typical royal tour with polite chit-chat and the like. We couldn't give a damn about her as a person. It's what she represents we're interested in." Margaret, 50, and her daughter Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, 17, arrived in Canada Monday for a week-long visit.

Lady Di Gets The Giggles

It's an unwritten rule of Buckingham Palace protocol that ladies appear properly hatted at all public affairs and Lady Diana Spencer has been doing admirably in that category. Lady Di's saucy, frothy one-of-a-kind models, which cost between $90 and $110 each, are bought from milliner John Boyd, who also creates for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Princess Anne and the Queen's ladies-in-waiting. Boyd says Lady Di personally comes to his workrooms near Harrod's for fittings. "When she tries hats on, she giggles," he told PEOPLE magazine. "She sees the humor of the situation." Boyd's delighted with the business of course, but especially because the princess-to-be is "just charming. You have no idea."

A Break With Tradition

In a break with royal custom, Lady Diana Spencer will not promise to "obey" her husband when she marries Prince Charles in St. Paul's cathedral July 29. There was no official word from Buckingham Palace but a royal court reporter said the "obey" was omitted after lengthy discussions between Charles, Diana and the archbishop of Canterbury, Robert Runcie, who will officiate at the service. Diana, who turned 20 Wednesday, will pledge to "love him, comfort him, honor and keep him, in sickness and in health". . . .

Mostly Males Made Mandate

Who said "Ronald Reagan makes Richard Nixon look good?" The correct answer is Gloria Steinem. The famed feminist and ardent champion of the Equal Rights Amendment went on to say, "Mr. Reagan — I can't quite bring myself to call him president — thinks he has received a majority mandate even though he was elected by the richest, oldest, whitest, most male electorate in the history of this country."

Ms. Steinem also told the overflow crowd of more than 1,000 people at Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., that "The women's movement is just at the beginning. If we fail, we'll do it again until we get it right."

Tinkering With TV

Grant Tinker, the new chief executive officer of NBC, doesn't pull any punches when he defends the network's follow-the-leader policies on new programs.

"The audience makes its own bed and gets what it deserves most of the time," he says. "When you do produce a high quality series, the audience doesn't come running." The 65-year-old TV exec told Newsweek that NBC's schedule next fall will most likely remain pretty much as Fred Silverman had planned it, but Tinker hopes for more substance and "a little less sizzle" in future programming.

Arsonists Beat Factory In Ethnic Town Take-Over

DETROIT (UPI) — Stephanie Barnett found it hard enough to think about giving up her home in Poletown to make way for a new automobile factory. But now, as her neighbors move out, the arsonists are moving in.

Mrs. Barnett, her retired husband and brother live in constant fear these days while waiting for a government relocation grant to move from the once tightly knit, ethnic neighborhood. Poletown is being abandoned as the city razes 1,500 homes and businesses to clear a 465-acre site for General Motors Corp.'s planned assembly plant.

The demolition has brought the new terror to the neighborhood. Poletown is burning.

More than 200 fires have been investigated in the area since January by the Detroit Fire Department's arson squad. Most of the blazes are in vacant buildings awaiting demolition, and most are attributed to arsonists.

Surprisingly, no one has been killed or seriously hurt — so far.

"I'm a nervous wreck," said the elderly Mrs. Barnett, who has had a fire as close as next door. "In the old days, we took care of everything. But you can't watch all the time." Earl J. Berry, the head of the city firefighters' union, said one unit serving Poletown responded to more fires in June than any company has had since the 1967 riots in Detroit.

On every block in Poletown, some of the wood-frame houses stand blackened and wounded, with gaping holes cut by firefighters or flames. The stench of charred timber hangs over the streets.

Arson investigators have several theories: that youths are setting the fires, that demolition crews are paying to have fires make their work easier, even that residents are torching their own homes to collect insurance.

But some say privately areas undergoing demolition simply become a playground for pyromaniacs.

"It's not a new development," said one arson investigator. "I've seen it happen before."

Court:

Monkey Must Die

GRETNA, La. (UPI) — John Coleman broke down and cried at the death sentence. "All I know is my monkey is going to die," he sobbed.

Within minutes after a judge's verdict Monday, Colombo, a tiny Capuchin monkey that bit a woman and her 7-year-old son, was put to sleep so authorities could test him for rabies.

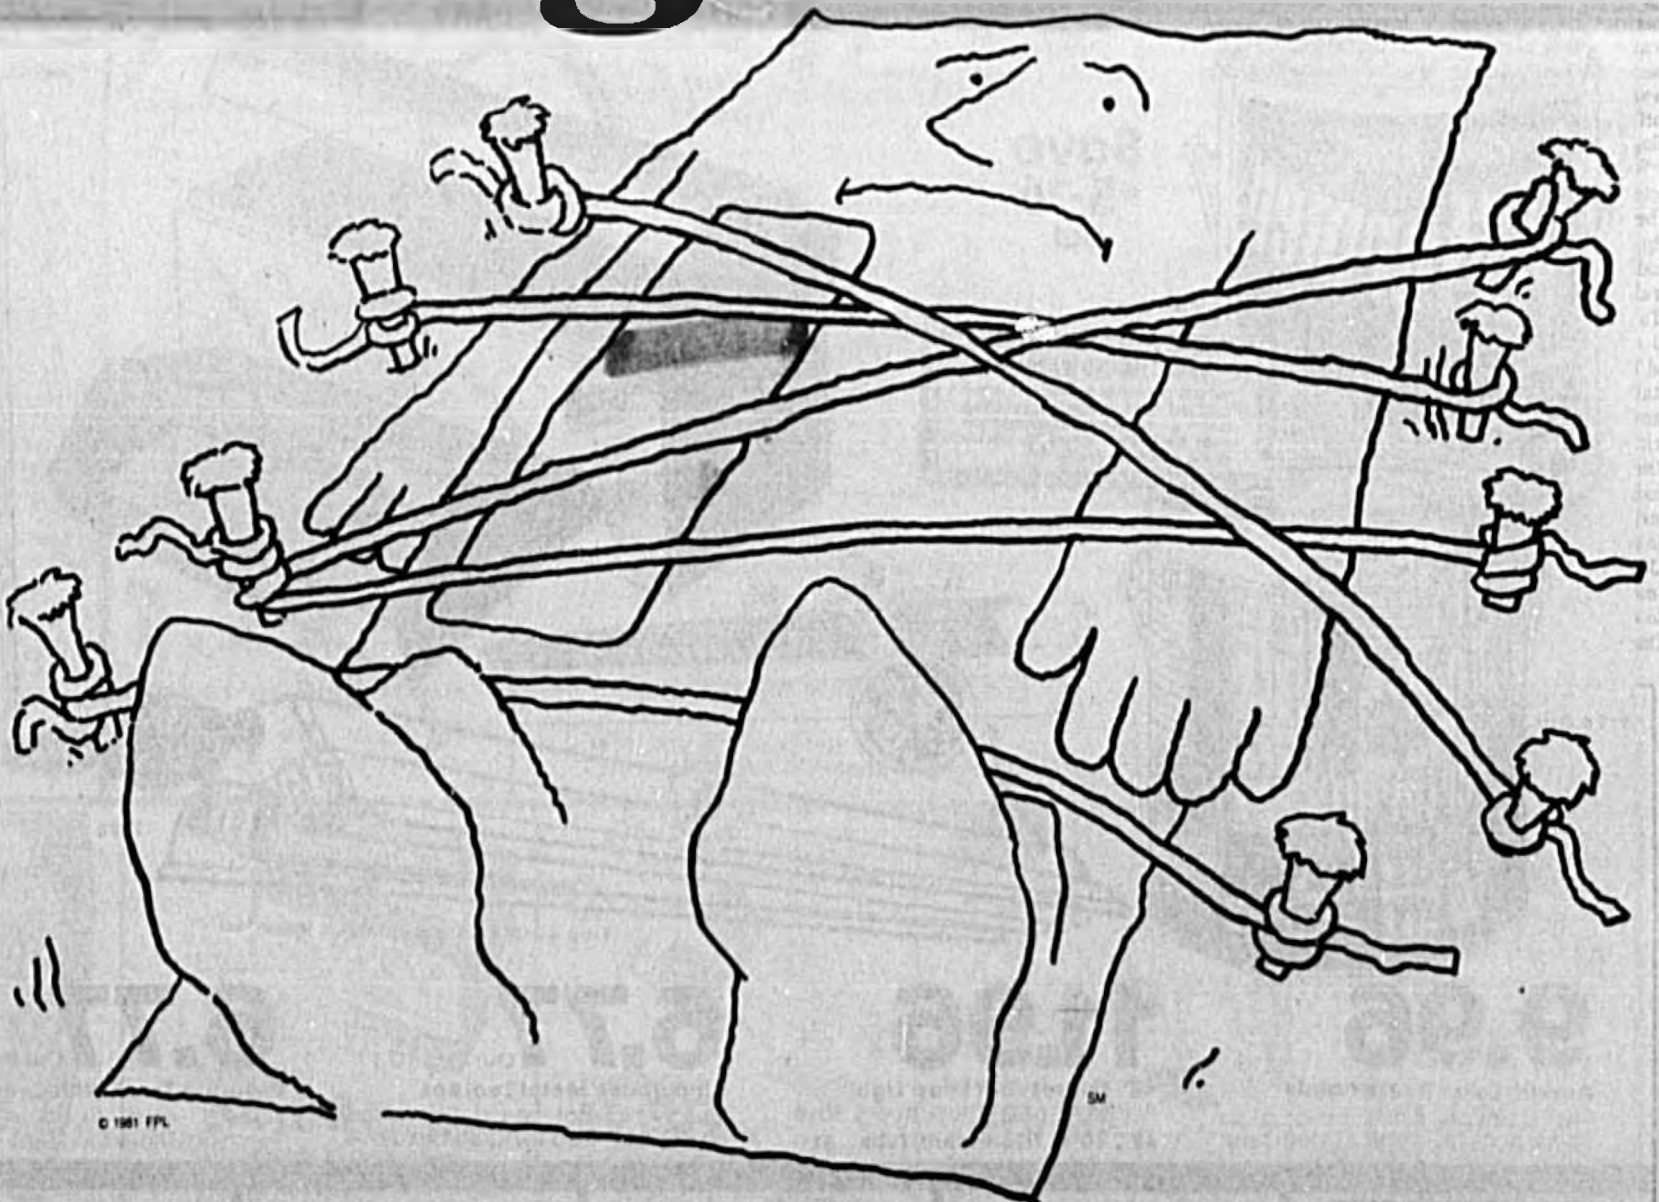

"I think it's a sad situation when an animal has to be sacrificed even though there is nothing wrong with it and you know it does not have rabies," Coleman said after his pet of almost three years had been killed.

During almost a week of emotional court battles, Coleman argued killing his monkey was cruel and unusual punishment.

"I appreciate the situation the parents are in," he said. "But when you know there is absolutely nothing wrong with the monkey and yet he's going to be killed — it's very frustrating."

State Judge Wallace C. LeBrun heard testimony from primate experts Monday before ruling Colombo should be put to sleep.

Hold down Big Bill.

This summer, electric bills will be bigger than ever unless we all work harder than ever to hold them down. Even with recent declines, the price of fuel oil is much higher than last year. Add our other increased costs and that means higher bills. For FPL and you.

But there is something you can do this summer. Air conditioning typically uses more than half your power. For central air, turn your thermostat to at least 78° instead of 72° and you'll save 40% or more on your cooling costs. If you have window units, use "low cool" and the lower numbered settings. Clean or change air filters monthly. Turn off your air conditioning when away for several hours, or on days when not absolutely necessary. And with ceiling fans the thermostat can often be set higher or the air conditioner turned off completely.

Water heating is the next biggest user of electricity, about 21% of the typical home's total. You can save money every month by one simple change: with the circuit breaker off, lower the thermostat on your water heater to 140° if you have a dishwasher, 120° if you don't.

More energy-saving tips to hold down Big Bill are available at your local Florida Power & Light office. SAVE IT, FLORIDA.

COULD HAVE BEEN WORSE

A young bicycle rider, in hat at left, leans disconsolately against the wall of a downtown Sanford store as he gets ticketed by a city policeman for riding on the sidewalk. The rider's bike can be seen crumpled under the rear of the pickup truck. City police have begun cracking down on sidewalk-riding cyclists, pointing out that two wheelers are restricted to the street and are subject to the same traffic laws as other vehicles.

Belonging To A Lifeboat Crew Authentic Way To Become Hero

HASTINGS, England (UPI) — When the call comes on a bad night, Joe Adams, the honorary secretary of the Hastings lifeboat station, quickly slips into warm clothes while his wife telephones the crew.

Within minutes the men start assembling, pulling on clammy waterproof clothes and fumbling with lifejackets. The slipway down the beach is cleared. The twin diesels spring to life.

The launch crew fetches the 14-ton caterpillar tractor from its shed and hitches it to the lifeboat carriage. Slowly they winch the 37.5-foot, 12.5-ton red, white, blue and orange boat into a boiling sea.

Engines racing against the surf, the boat takes 1.5 tons of seawater into its ballast tanks, settles slightly and heads into the storm, its navigation lights blinking in the spray.

The Hastings lifeboat is off on another mission to those in peril on the sea. It could be anything from a crippled supertanker to a Panamanian rusty bucket with a shifting cargo to a weekend sailor with a broken mast.

Of the seven crewmen, risking their lives, six are unpaid volunteers. Yet there is no shortage of men in this town who would give anything to be in their rubber boots.

Belonging to a lifeboat crew remains one of the authentic ways of becoming a hero in this country. The logbook of the Hastings station and 200 like it around the coasts of Britain and Ireland are full of the kind of exploits from which legends are spun. However great the advance of technology, there still is something elemental about the battle with wind and waves that grips the imagination.

Britain is surrounded by some of the world's busiest and most dangerous waterways, as entire graveyards of sunken ships around its shores mutely testify.

Unlike the government-run U.S. Coast Guard, Britain's lifeboat service is organized on an entirely voluntary basis by the Royal National Lifeboat Institution.

Last year, lifeboatmen carried out 2,844 missions and saved the lives of 1,215 seafarers. Overall, they have saved some 106,000 lives in the 154 years since the institution was founded. During that time, more than 400 lifeboatmen have been drowned or killed.

The institution raises the cash it needs — an estimated $28 million this year — from private donors.

For 15 years, from 1854 to 1869, the institution received a government grant but fretted at the conditions that were imposed and finally declined the money.

Each station is allowed a great deal of autonomy. Towns take a fierce pride in "their" lifeboat. Coveted places in the crew sometimes are handed from father to son. A hard-to-define chemistry compounded of seamanship, resourcefulness and total mutual confidence binds the men together.

"The whole beauty of this system is that we run it," says Joe Adams, who as honorary secretary decides when to launch the Hastings lifeboat and who acts as shore liaison with other rescue services.

"There's no one looking over our shoulder. When we see something needs doing, we just go right ahead and do it."

When roof tiles go flying in the wind and waves leap tall as houses, the lifeboatmen go out. No matter what the risk, they go out if a seafarer is calling for help.

Their tenacity is borne out in the legends.

When the people of Lynmouth in Devon couldn't get their boat launched to answer a call for help during a gale back in 1899, they carried the lifeboat over a hill, virtually sheer in places, to launch it somewhere else.

When the Caister lifeboat capized with loss of life in 1901, it was suggested at a subsequent inquest that the crew might have been returning after falling in their mission. A surviving member indignantly replied: "Caister men never turn back."

World's Poor Children Given Chance To Thrive, Contribute

SEDLSCOMBE, England (UPI) — In a green and sleepy corner of rural southern England, children of half a dozen races have built a small world of their own in an unusual experiment to help developing countries and further the cause of international harmony.

A potholed road leads through ripening fields to the Pestalozzi International Children's Village, a home away from home for 86 Thais, Indians, Nepalese, Vietnamese, Nigerians and Palestinians between the ages of 10 and 20.

The trust operating the village brings children from rural areas in developing countries for 10 or 12 years of secondary and further education at ordinary British schools and colleges. The aim is to send them back to contribute something positive to their own communities.

"We look for bright children with potential who at the age of 10 or thereabouts would otherwise be condemned to leaving school because of lack of opportunity or money, and who would then have nothing to look forward to except life as peasants," said Peter Court, a bluff retired headmaster who is warden of the village.

"We give them the opportunity to become doctors, nurses, engineers and agronomists — to become something positive — and then we help them resettle in their communities. In a small way, we are trying to stop the drift from rural areas to the slums of the big cities."

To date, the village has sent into the world 120 children from displaced persons camps and 111 from developing countries. Nearly all obtained good professional qualifications and many have jobs of far-reaching benefit for their families and communities.

One Tibetan, for example, has built up a small farm that produces food for a children's charity and is planning to turn the enterprise into a training school. A Palestinian returned to Jordan as a computer analyst, and was able to move his family out of a refugee camp and into decent housing in Amman.

One danger is that youngsters exposed to years of living in a Western consumer society may be reluctant to return to relatively harsher conditions in their homelands. (For the Vietnamese who came here before the Communist takeover, there is no possibility of their returning, and their future is unclear).

Since there is only money enough to send them home once during the decade or more they spend in England, there also is the risk of the children forgetting their roots and of returning not to help their communities but to form part of a privileged middle-class elite. "This is where the Pestalozzi philosophy comes into its own," said Court. "It provides education for the head, the heart and the hands. We try to ensure the children are motivated and have practical skills as well as being educated."

'You can pour in money and wonder where it all goes. Or you can give people the means to help themselves, which is the Pestalozzi way.'

In the village, the children live in groups of a dozen or so in national houses where they observe their own cultures, worship at their own shrines, eat their native food and are looked after by surrogate mothers of their own nationality. Since most come from large families, they tend to adapt quickly to the system.

During the day they attend classes at state schools, wherever places can be found for them in the locality. Apart from English lessons, they get no academic training at the village itself.

But evenings and weekends they are taught manual crafts and skills — such as carpentry, metal-working, vehicle mechanics, nursing, animal husbandry — that will stand them in good stead when they return to their homes.

Disciplined Poole Pays Big Dividend

A little discipline can go a long way. Just ask Paola Manager John Poole. Poole's best player Arthur Hersey missed some "crucial practices" prior to the opening of the sub-district tournament Monday.

Hersey, who led the Paola League with seven home runs, 22 runs batted in and eight pitching victories, was Poole's scheduled starter against Bruton's All-Stars Monday night.

Due to the absences, however, Poole benched Hersey and three of his teammates for similar misses. In the third inning, Poole inserted Hersey, who responded with a three-run home run.

"He really smacked it didn't he?" replied Poole, who despite Arthur's prior indiscretions was delighted with the long poke.

Little did Poole know, though, that his disciplinary move would be a blessing in disguise. Not only did Hersey hit another homer Tuesday night, but Poole now has his best pitcher for his toughest game — tonight against the hard-hitting Sanford Nationals.

What John Poole did should be done more often at the Little League level. Too often star players are allowed to miss practices, sometimes even games, because of their excelled status.

All this does is create headaches for some high school coach later on in the young man's career.

And it is because of this lack of early discipline, that I believe there is so much quitting done at every level of sports. It used to be that to quit a sport was an unheard of deed. It took courage to stay out for a sport, even if you weren't playing. To quit was to become a coward. You were admitting you couldn't cut it.

... discipline pays off

Now, quitting is commonplace. If a player becomes dissatisfied with his playing allotment, he quits. It is as simple as that. If these players learn discipline at an early age, it will make them that much of a better player — and more importantly a person in the bigger game.

"There's a lot more to learn to this game than playing on the field," pointed out Poole Tuesday morning. "We (Poole and the players) made these rules before the season and we were going to live up to them."

Paola may not win the sub-district Little Major League Playoffs, but John Poole has already taught his team a very important lesson about sports and life.

Paola's "Pounder," Arthur Hersey, slugged a three-run home run to help Paola blast the Orlando Boys Club 20-8 in Little Major League sub-district play at Ft. Mellon Park Tuesday night. Tonight, Paola and Sanford's Nationals, both once-beaten, square off at 6. Unbeaten Sanford's American and Bruton's All-Stars play at 8.

'Slim' Edwards Casts Big Shadow In Americans' Win

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

It's doubtful whether an old hound dog would flop behind the slim frame of Sanford American Michael Edwards when in need of some shade for an afternoon snooze.

Tuesday, however, no one cast a bigger shadow than the talented second baseman-pitcher who slammed two home runs—including one with the bases filled—to darken the Sanford Nationals sub-district Little Major playoff hopes 25-13 at Ft. Mellon Park before an overflow crowd.

Paola socked the Orlando Boys Club 20-8 to bump Orlando from the tournament. Tonight, Americans' Coach Ed Korgan Jr. sends son Eddie against Orlando's Bruton All-Stars. Paola's John Poole sends his ace—Arthur Hersey—against Willie McCloud for Sid Griffin's Nationals. The Paola-Nationals clash begins at 6 p.m. Bruton and the Americans follow at 8 p.m.

Returning to Edwards, the "Hoover-like" second baseman set the trend in the field and at bat for the Americans. After J.D. Paul, last year's co-most valuable player with Donald Grayson, crashed a three-run homer for a brief 3-0 Nationals lead, Edwards ignited the comeback.

After Darris Littles popped up, Edwards lined a single to left. Korgan then followed with an infield hit. Starting pitcher Steve Warren jumped on Craig Dixon's first delivery and planted it beyond the fence in right center field to tie the game.

Edwards turned in the defensive play of the game in the second. Willie McCloud sent a ground ball heading for center field, but Edwards speared the ball while falling down, righted himself and gunned out the speedy McCloud.

In the bottom of the inning, he and Little used their speed and a couple of Nationals' errors to build a 5-3 advantage. Griffin's squad, though, fought back to seize the lead in the top of the third.

Singles by Dixon and Paul, a couple of stolen bases and an error by Korgan on Calvin Davis' ground ball led to three runs and gave the Nationals a short-lived 6-5 edge.

Warren worked pitching opponent Dixon for a pass to open the bottom of the third and one out later, Keith Denton belted his second homer of the week to dead center field. Gregg Pond followed with a walk and two stolen bases in front of Ralph Bellamy's single for an 8-6 advantage.

The Nationals attempted to turn the game into a rout in the fourth. Pinch hitter Stewart Gordon ripped a hit off the right center field fence, but was thrown out by Pond trying for a double.

David Debone walked, Terrance Carr singled and Andy Griffin drew a pass to load the bases. Dixon stroked a hit to right which got past Patrick Williams allowing three runs to score. Paul walked and Davis socked a double good for two more runs.

Oscar Merthie followed with another single for a run and McCloud walked. When the count went to 2-0 on Gordon, batting for the second time in the inning, Korgan pulled Warren in favor of who else, but Michael Edwards.

While finding his control, Edwards finished the walk to Gordon. But with the bases filled, the little curveball artist fanned Debone on a called third strike and whiffed Carr swinging to get out of the mess.

The Nationals sent 12 batters to the plate. They scored seven runs on five hits and were helped by two errors. After three and one-half innings, they led, 13-8.

In the last two frames, however, Edwards kept the big National bats off balance. He gave up just two hits and struck out three.

While the National bats went silent, the Americans came alive. Edwards drilled a leadoff homer in the fourth. Korgan and Warren each singled and scored on an overthrown and a wild pitch.

With the Nationals clinging to 13-11 lead, the roof fell in on Dixon, a 9-1 regular season hurler, in the fifth.

The Americans sent 19 hitters to the plate against Dixon and later Davis. They pushed across 14 runs on nine hits and were helped by four errors.

The first five hitters in the order each scored twice. Edwards highlighted the frame with a grand-slam home run and a double. Denton had a single and a double. Bellamy swatted a home run.

Despite the awesome onslaught, though, the winning run was forced home on a bases-loaded walk to first baseman David Rape. After a double by Edwards, Korgan reached on an error and Warren walked. Rape then waited out four pitches for a 14-13 American lead.

Edwards' slammer capped a tremendous all-around show. He slapped four hits, scored five runs and chased home six. Warren also scored five times on three hits including a double and a homer. Denton had three hits and four RBI. Bellamy had four runs batted in. Davis led the Nationals with three RBI. Paul and Dixon each plated two. Dixon had three hits—all singles. Carr had two base hits.

While the American-National slugfest was a see-saw affair, Manager John Poole's Paola contender wasted very little time in showing the door to first-year entry Orlando Boys Club.

Paola scored 14 runs before the Orlando Boys Club managed its first runs of the tournament. Paola scored five runs on just one hit in the top of the first. Six walks and a pair of errors figured in the scoring. The only hit was a single by Arthur Hersey.

Paola sent a dozen batters to the plate in the second inning and scored nine runs on three hits, five walks and a pair of errors. Corey Argrett drove in two of the second inning runs with a double and Richard Colon contributed a triple.

Taking advantage of two walks and two errors, the Orlando team scored its first two runs of the tournament in the bottom of the second. Then, after Paola was blanked in the third, Orlando added two more runs on the strength of a towering two-run homer by Luther Walls.

Paola scored an unearned run in the top of the fourth and Orlando continued to chop away at the deficit with three runs on just one hit in the bottom of the fourth.

Paola out-scored Orlando 2-1 in the fifth inning and Hersey sealed the victory with a three-run homer in the top of the sixth. It was his second of the tournament.

Argrett was the winning pitcher, although he needed relief from Tracy Sharp in the fourth inning.

Sharp came on with the bases loaded and fanned the dangerous Walls on a 3-2 inside fast ball.

Hersey and John Poole each had a pair of hits for Paola and scored four runs apiece. Hersey also collected four RBI.

Sanford American Michael Edwards (right) makes sure this run counts as he tallies on Steve Warren's three-run blast in the first inning. Edwards turned in three innings of solid relief work and hit two home runs to pace the Americans 25-13 victory over the Nationals.

Las Vegas Perfectly Situated For High Rollers Leonard, Hearns

NEW YORK (UPI) — Perhaps it is fitting Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns are staging their welterweight showdown in Las Vegas, Nev. After all, what other city on earth can better show off two such high rollers?

Leonard and Hearns made it official Tuesday at a midtown press conference — they will meet for the unofficial world welterweight championship at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas on Sept. 16 in what probably will be the richest fight in boxing history.

To avoid problems with the rival WBC and the WBA and sanctioning fees which could run over $500,000, the promoters have written the contract to read the fighters will meet in a 15-round welterweight fight, with no mention of title.

"The public will know the winner of this fight will be the true champion," said

Emanuel Steward, Hearns' trainer. "It doesn't need to be written in the contract. Everyone will know it's a title fight."

Leonard, the World Boxing Council champion, is guaranteed $8 million and could earn as much as $13 million with various percentage clauses. Hearns, the WBA champion, is guaranteed $6 million and could make over $10 million with his percentage guarantees.

Caesars Palace will construct a 25,000-seat arena on the hotel grounds for the bout, which is expected to gross about $40 million and could go as high as $52 million. The previous high is approximately $30 million for the Larry Holmes-Muhammad Ali WBC heavyweight title fight last October, also at Caesars Palace.

The fight will be promoted by Main Event Productions, which is based in the New York-New Jersey area. It is headed by Shelly Finkel, who has been a key figure in major rock promotions, and Dan Duva, who heads a highly successful boxing operation in the northern New Jersey area.

For Hearns, the devastating puncher from Detroit, the Sept. 16 fight will end a long vigil.

"I'm happy the fight is going off," said Hearns. "I've been waiting a long time for this — two and a half years. I have a lot of respect for Ray as a fighter. He's definitely no pushover. He deserves respect."

Hearns then turned to Leonard: "Ray, you have been ducking me for a long time," he said, pointing a finger. "Your time has come. On Sept. 16, you're going to get what you got coming to you."

Owners Stick Spokesman Grebey Into Different Arena

NEW YORK (UPI)—Major-league club owners, who have relied on C. Raymond Grebey to state their case at the bargaining table throughout the worst labor crisis in baseball history, will stick with him in another arena today.

The owners, charged with unfair labor practices, will call Grebey, head of the owners' Player Relations Committee, as their only witness in a National Labor Relations hearing, which resumes at 9:30 a.m. EDT today. Attorneys for the players have presented five witnesses during the past two days and will call one more to open the session.

The players want the NLRB to rule the owners have bargained in bad faith by not opening financial records.

With the walkout entering its 27th day, prospects of any major movement by either the players or the owners remained dim.

After a four-hour meeting with Players Association Executive Director Marvin Miller Tuesday night, player representatives of the 26 teams indicated they were prepared to sit out the entire season rather than give in to the owners on the free-agent compensation issue.

If anything, the players seem to be getting more militant. Although Miller said some players were beginning to feel a financial pinch, he said there had been no dissenting votes over the way the Players Association was handling negotiations and the representatives unanimously had rejected the owners' latest proposal, which calls for direct major-league compensation from the club signing a ranking free agent.

"There are some younger players with financial problems," Miller said, "but they have sent the word, 'hold tight.'"

And Phil Niekro, player representative of the Atlanta Braves, added, "They (his teammates) have said if it takes sitting out the year, they'd sit it out. We're very united on the point of compensation."

Miller also said the players demanded that any settlement reached must stipulate that the time they have spent on strike be included in their time of service toward pensions.

Entering the NLRB hearing earlier, Grebey, was asked if any new owners' proposal would come out of a scheduled Thursday-night meeting. He replied: "Definitely not, because the owners have no right to do so. The PRC is the only one to do so."

Grebey insisted the meeting had no special importance other than to keep the owners informed.

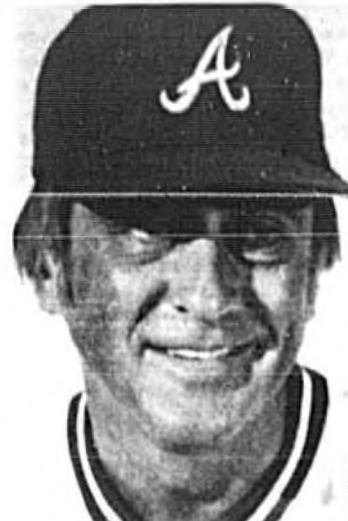

Testimony from Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, whose public statements on baseball's financial plight led to player demands that owners open their books, highlighted Tuesday's hearing.

Kuhn testified he was speaking on his own when he said at the annual baseball meeting in December 1980 several clubs had suffered millions of dollars in losses during the 1979 season.

The owners' negotiators never have claimed teams were suffering losses because of an unrestrictive free-agency system.

Reagan: For Almost Month, Cubs Haven't Lost

By United Press International
Even President Reagan has a one-liner about the baseball strike.

Speaking at a fund-raiser for Illinois Gov. James Thompson Tuesday night in Chicago, Reagan took a look at the bright side of the strike as it pertains to the Chicago Cubs.

"You can look at it this way," he told the gathering of 5,000 people, "for almost a month now, the Cubs haven't lost a single game."

Although the tribulations of the Cubs may have slipped from memory as the strike enters its 28th day, Chicago owns a dismal record at 15-37. However, the Cubs were riding a three-game winning streak when the strike hit.

On the serious side, Milwaukee Brewers' President Bud Selig said the major-league club owners meeting

Thursday in New York should not be regarded as a sign there might be a break coming in the strike.

"It's a little difficult for me to tell right now what's going to happen," said Selig from Milwaukee. "But this certainly should not be interpreted as any weakening of our position. To think that would be ridiculous."

Selig also said he thought the Player Relations Committee has done a good job in negotiations so far and he did not believe reports some of the newer owners were dissatisfied.

"I think a great deal more is being made out of this meeting than should be," he said. "I think everybody is getting excited about nothing... Some people wanted a meeting, to be informed on what's going on. Nothing more than that."

On the fans' side of the ledger, The National Fan Organization, formed two days after the major-league baseball strike began, is asking fans to wear red on July 14 to show their anger over the dispute, an organization spokesman said Tuesday from Baltimore.

"We are organizing a national day of reconciliation and are asking all fans of major-league baseball to display the color red in some form of clothing, ribbon or bandanna on the date of the All-Star Game," said Ken Smith, a member of the organization's executive committee.

"We hope this will portray to the owners and players the degree of anger the fans have because the two sides have yet to reach an agreement."

Giants Replace Richardson With Haller

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants have removed Spec Richardson as general manager and replaced him with former catcher Tom Haller.

Owner Bob Lurie said Tuesday Richardson had been offered a consultant's job if he wanted to stay with the organization.

Richardson, named baseball "Executive of the Year" three years ago, had been in charge of the team's day-to-day operations for six years, but the team has slipped badly since 1978 when it led the Western Division for most of the season.

Lurie said "the record speaks for itself."

"I'll always have the greatest respect for Spec," said Lurie, "but during the last two years, we seemed to be going backwards and that concerned me greatly."

Methodist Signs Sippio

Seminole senior Clarence Sippio turns loose a jump shot in an early season game against the Boone Braves. Sippio, a 1981 graduate of Seminole, will play basketball next year at Methodist College.

FAYETTEVILLE, No. Car. — Clarence Sippio, a starting forward for Seminole High this past season, will attend Methodist College this fall according to Coach Joe Miller.

Sippio, a 6-foot, 165 pound swingman for Coach Bill Payne's 15-13 team, received five star honorable mention All-Conference honors for his efforts this season.

"I am really happy to have Clarence Sippio attending Methodist College," said Miller. "He has had an outstanding high school career and I feel that he will be a great addition to our school and athletic program."

Sippio is the son of Rozie Sippio of Seminole Gardens. He joins a young Methodist team who will have a chance to put the experience gained last year into effect next season in the Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Methodist is a member of Division III of the NCAA. It is a four-year liberal arts and sciences college located in Fayetteville, N.C.

Ellenberger Plans Appeal Of 21-Count Conviction

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Former University of New Mexico basketball Coach Norm Ellenberger says he plans to appeal his conviction of 21 counts of fraud and filing false public vouchers.

Sentencing was scheduled for 9 a.m. today in District Judge Phillip Balamonte's courtroom.

Ellenberger, 47, displayed little emotion as the guilty verdicts were returned Tuesday by the jurors. The five-woman, seven-man jury deliberated for 9½ hours over a two-day span in reaching its verdict.

"It's not right," he said as he emerged from the courtroom. "This is a wrong — an absolute wrong."

"We're not through yet. We've just begun to fight."

Ellenberger's attorney, Albuquerque lawyer Leon Taylor, said he will appeal the jury's verdict "all the way to the Supreme Court, if necessary." Taylor said the jury "may have been confused" by the complexity of the case and its multiple counts.

Assistant Attorney General Fred Smith, lead counsel for the state, said, "We were very pleased (with the verdicts)."

Ellenberger was found innocent of the first count against him, one that alleged he had taken $3,000 of a $4,000 Lobo Club contribution earmarked as a bonus for an assistant basketball coach. That particular count was a third-degree felony charge, and carried the biggest potential sentence.

The state contended during the trial Ellenberger billed the university for trips he took at a private company's expense, and also for trips he never actually took.

In final arguments Monday, Ellenberger's actions were portrayed by the defense as nothing more than NCAA violations.

McEnroe: Long Way From Brownie Points For Brains

NEW YORK (UPI) — If politeness was invented to keep fools at a distance, then John McEnroe has a long way to go before he wins any Brownie points for brains.

His monstrous behavior at Wimbledon makes you wonder if he ever uses his head for anything else but to put a sweatband around.

McEnroe is a superb tennis player. If there was the faintest doubt about that, he dispelled it thoroughly by the manner in which he ended Bjorn Borg's five-year monopoly of the Wimbledon men's single title Saturday.

Warned repeatedly for his persistent querying of line decisions, "bad language and verbal abuse of the referee, umpire and linesmen" during his Wimbledon matches, McEnroe was informed by the championship committee he faces a maximum $10,000 fine for "bringing the game into disrepute."

Along with fines for previous offenses at Wimbledon, McEnroe's penalties add up to $14,750 plus three weeks suspension from major tournaments.

He capped all this by not showing up at the traditional Wimbledon Champions' party, leaving Chris Evert Lloyd, the women's title-holder, to speak all by herself. Evert, a magnificent player in her own right and a lady right down to the tip of her tennis racket, said she was concerned over having to make two speeches. "Unfortunately, I can only make one because I haven't John's vocabulary," she said. "But I apologize, as an American, for the fact that he is not here."

His absence was a blatant insult to his British hosts.

McEnroe's defenders, if he has any, might try to excuse his conduct because of his youth, or worse yet, because of his tremendous ability. Those are poor excuses.

Milton Richman

UPI Sports Editor

"When I quit tennis," he has said, "I want to be remembered as a tennis player, not as some jerk."

What he's saying is that he realizes he's acting obnoxiously at times, and he knows it, but he wishes people would overlook that and assess him only as a tennis player. To me, this is nothing more than the customary cop-out you get from a number of other professional athletes nowadays. In their not-so-subtle way, they're saying they are so good at what they do, so special, that you should overlook whatever other faults they have.

That's a bunch of garbage. Being a gentleman is merely a matter of self-control and endurance. A gentleman is one who gets tired last. If McEnroe has sufficient endurance to go three hours and 22 minutes to wear down Borg in four grueling sets, 4-6, 7-6, 7-6, 6-4, in a nerve-fraying match that included two tie-breakers, then he also should have enough stamina to observe those rules of conduct which once characterized tennis as a gentleman's game.

I'm not sure whether Borg ever talked to McEnroe about the first time he ever pulled a temper tantrum on the court. Borg was only 13 at the time but his mother took care of the situation immediately.

"She took my racket away from me and locked it up for a month," Borg recalls. "She told me unless I learned to control myself, I couldn't use it again."

Borg has never forgotten that. It shows by the way he behaves himself on the court. If a player like Bjorn Borg can control himself and behave properly, is there any reason why John McEnroe can't?

I wonder what Borg was thinking to himself when he heard about McEnroe's fines? I imagine he was laughing to himself.

McEnroe has a favorite statement he uses a lot. "Winning," he's fond of saying, "is the bottom line."

He's young yet, and still has a lot to learn. Winning may seem to him to be the bottom line at this stage in his life and his career, but that isn't always what a competitor is remembered for most, and McEnroe says he doesn't wish to be remembered primarily as anything but a tennis player.

To McEnroe's credit, it should be said he usually does not act off the court the way he does on it. He doesn't push himself into the forefront and hog the limelight as some other athletes do. The few times I've talked with him alone, he struck me as a fine person and a perfect gentleman, a young man who doesn't honk his own horn and does a number of humanitarian deeds which he never publicizes.

After beating Borg Saturday, he got on TV and even tried getting some of that across. He asked if it would be all right for him to say something to the people in the U.S., and then said in what sounded like an apology:

"I'm not really a bad person." I believe that. I also believe if he learns to control himself more on the court he'll win more friends as well as more matches and he'll never have to apologize.

Cook Of The Week: Elaine Bragga

Antique Buff Collects Unusual Recipes

By LOIS SMITH
Herald Correspondent

Vivacious, bouncy, animated and pleasant are just some of the words that could be used to describe Elaine Bragga. Barely 5 feet tall, this tiny dynamo is creativity personified.

Elaine and her husband Joe have lived at 3203 Country Club Road in Sanford for the past 10 years. Joe is employed in design engineering. They have one daughter, Nancy, and will celebrate their 38th wedding anniversary in September.

Elaine's creativity spills over into all areas of her daily life. "You name it, I do it," laughs Elaine. Her home is filled with re-conditioned antiques, paintings, ceramic pieces and all forms of needlework that she has produced. She particularly enjoys painting with water colors.

"I like to keep busy," Elaine says. "I have my own greenhouse and I do all the gardening myself." Daily, she and her daughter, along with grandson Joey, visit the pool at the Sanford Bath and Tennis Club. "I like to get in laps everyday, she says, "it's good exercise."

Elaine also is a Dividends Volunteer at her grandson's school. "I work in the Library Media Center almost every Friday. This year I received an award for over 200 hours of service," she proudly states.

"I like to cook, but I especially like to bake," smiles Elaine. Just yesterday, I made rhubarb kuchen, date bars and a lemon pie.

"In the summer, we cook outside a lot. I even bake bread on our gas grill. You put the bread on a cookie sheet, over a low heat, and bake it for 15 to 20 minutes. It makes the crunchiest crust," explains Elaine.

"I collect recipes from everywhere. I really like to find unusual ones. I have a great one for chocolate and sauerkraut cake," Elaine said.

COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD

1 small container frozen whipped topping (1/2 large)
1 pound cottage cheese
1 package gelatin (any flavor) or diet gelatin
1 8 oz. can crushed pineapple (drained)
Mix thoroughly — Keep refrigerated. Use your imagination:
Cherries with cherry jello; Pineapple with orange jello

SCHNECKEN

In a large bowl, place:
4 cups flour
1 1/2 cups margarine and cut in as for pastry
Add:
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten

1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
Mix well and chill. When ready to bake divide dough into 8 parts. Roll each part into a circle on a board dusted with confectioners sugar, cut into 8 or 12 wedges.

Beat until fluffy 3 egg whites, gradually add while beating; 3 tablespoons confectioners sugar, fold in 1 teaspoon vanilla.
Brush rolled dough with egg mixture; sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Roll each wedge loosely, starting at wide end. Brush rolled slices with egg, cinnamon and sugar. Place on greased cookie sheet in a hot oven 400 degrees and bake 10 to 12 minutes or until golden brown.
The dough is easier to handle if it is kept chilled, so here is a trick. Ball up dough into bottom of a bowl. Draw sections on it, as if peeling an orange. Cut out and roll one section at a time.

RHUBARB KUCHEN

Batter:

Mix:
1 cup flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 1/4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter — or oleo
Beat together and add to above mixture:
1 egg
2 tablespoons milk
Pat this on bottom of and 1 inch up the side of a 9x9x2 inch pan.

FILLING:
1 small package (thawed) frozen strawberries
1 3 oz. package strawberry gelatin
3 tablespoons flour
one-third cup sugar
4-5 cups sliced rhubarb
Mix and spread over batter.

TOPPING:

2-3 cup sugar
1-3 cup flour
3 tablespoons butter
Mix to resemble coarse meal, sprinkle on top.
Bake at 375 degrees for 45 minutes. Cool completely. Cut into squares and top with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

RYE BATTER BREAD

1 package yeast
1 1/4 cup warm water
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup rye flour
2 1/2 cups sifted all purpose flour
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon caraway seeds
2 tablespoons soft shortening
Dissolve yeast in water. Add brown sugar, half the flour salt, caraway seeds and shortening. Beat 2 minutes. Stir in remaining flour. Scrape batter from sides of bowl. Cover; let rise until double (about 30 minutes). Stir hard 1/2 minute. Spread batter evenly in greased 9x5x3 inch pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 45 minutes. Brush with shortening, cool on rack.

FROZEN PICKLES

2 quarts sliced cucumbers — do not peel
2 sliced onions
2 tablespoons salt
1 cup cider vinegar
1 1/2 cups sugar
Mix cukes, onions and salt. Let stand 2 or 3 hours, rinse. Mix vinegar and sugar until sugar is dissolved. Pour over cukes and onions. Place in plastic bags or containers. Freeze, at least one week. Thaw and eat.

BOILING WATER PIE CRUST

Mix and Melt:
1 cup shortening
1/2 cup boiling water
Add to above:
3 cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
Cool to room temperature. Roll out. It is best to use a pastry cloth for all pie crusts.

SAUERKRAUT CAKE

2 cups sugar
1 cup shortening
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup cocoa
4 eggs
3 1/4 cups flour
1 rounded teaspoon baking soda
1 rounded teaspoon baking powder
1 1/2 cups water
1 cup sauerkraut (rinse and chop coarsely, drain)
Cream shortening and sugar. Add vanilla, salt and cocoa. Add eggs. Mix thoroughly. Add dry ingredients alternately with water. Lastly, add sauerkraut. Bake in 1 large or 2 small pans at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

Dear Abby

Home Tour Not Part Of Entertaining

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about people who are invited to your home for the first time, rave about how beautiful the room in which they are being entertained is, then ask to have a "grand" tour of the rest of the house?

Sometimes I don't even have time to make the beds because I work outside the home. (I'm lucky to get the living room area cleaned up in time for company, let alone the bedrooms and baths.)

This is very embarrassing for me, Abby. I could never do this to someone else. But what should I do when this happens to me?

DEAR EMBARRASSED: There are two solutions. Anticipate the request for a grand tour and 1) have the place reasonably picked up to minimize the embarrassment; 2) counter emphatically with, "sorry, another time; the other rooms aren't ready for the grand tour just yet."

DEAR ABBY: Why would a man check up on his wife to be sure he knows exactly where she is every minute? Do you think he suspects that she's playing around?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Not necessarily. Maybe he just wants to know where she is while he's playing around.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 39 years to a man who thinks he knows everything. Please settle this. He consumes much energy in consumed when an electric light is left on for 15 or 20 minutes, compared to turning it off and then turning it back on again?

I have always turned the lights off when leaving a room, even though I know I will be turning them back on in 15 minutes or so. My husband insists that energy-wise, I'd be ahead just to leave the lights on. He says turning them off and on wastes more energy than leaving them on. Who is right?

ME IN LINDEN, N.J.

DEAR ME: You are. The energy used in switching a light off and then on again is so insignificant that it hardly matters. But there are just so many hours' life in an electric bulb, so you would be ahead to turn off the lights when you leave the room. (Now can somebody tell me why light bulbs don't last anywhere near as long as they used to?)

DEAR ABBY: I'm leaving for college in the fall, and I've been somewhat downhearted because my parents have talked of selling our house, which has been my home all my life. (My father built it.) I finally saw the light when I read the letter signed TAX POOR AND IGNORED. She was the daughter who blamed her parents for selling their big home and moving into a condo too small for the usual Easter dinners, with no room to keep the grandchildren overnight. She said such parents were "selfish and inconsiderate."

Well, my mother doesn't owe me one damn thing! I owe her my life, and after raising a family, she deserves a break. I've had one for 18 years.

GRATEFUL IN SALEM, VA.

Here's What To Look For In Home Security System

What are the chances of your home being "burgled?"

Residential break-ins, in-town and suburban, account for most burglaries. And more than half are committed during the daytime, when the house or condominium is likely to be unoccupied.

To protect their families and possessions, many home owners have security systems installed.

Here's what to look for in a professional home security system.

1. It should be tailored to your home and way of life. A security consultant will identify the primary points of entry and traffic patterns inside the house.

2. Most break-ins occur through doors. Outside and inside doors should be fitted with electromagnetic switches. Entry through doors or windows also can be detected by an ultrasonic motion device that sweeps a room with high-frequency sound waves. And if a thief gets inside, he can be detected by an "interior trap," such as an ultrasonic device or special mat hidden under a rug.

3. Extremely reliable systems have solid-state components controlled by hard (hidden) wiring.

4. The system should include alarms to frighten burglars and alert you and your neighbors. (In a business place, high-frequency "silent" alarms are often used to catch burglars unaware. But in a home, the safety of the family is more important than catching a thief in the act.)

5. Flexibility is important. You should be able to turn the house entry devices on to detect intruders, but off in living areas when family members are at home. Then you should be able to turn on the entire system when you go to bed or leave the house.

6. The system should accommodate a smoke and fire alarm. Early detection and signaling is essential, outside as well as in the house. Most fire deaths are due to asphyxiation — suffocation from smoke.

7. It should be easy to operate, with just a few steps involved in turning it on and off.

July Is Hot Dog Month

Over 80 years ago the cartoonist Tad Dorgan coined the word "hot dog." Today this American specialty is eaten around the world and has been selected as a menu item on space shuttle flights.

Whether it's called "chien chaud" in France or "chucharro quente" in Brazil, the ready-to-eat hot dog gained a reputation for convenience.

The National Hot Dog & Sausage Council has created a collection of internationally-inspired recipes as a salute to National Hot Dog Month. From the Orient to the Rio Grande to Hawaii these meal ideas demonstrate the hot dog's versatility as well as create entrees that are both unusual and nutritious.

HILLO HULA HOT DOGS

- 1 pound wieners
- 1/2 (8-ounce) container cheddar cheese spread
- 4 or 5 slices summer sausage or soft salami
- 1 (15-to-17 ounce) can pineapple slices
- Water
- 2 teaspoons (dry) instant minced onion
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon horseradish

Slit each wiener lengthwise. Fill each with about 1-1/2 tablespoons cheese spread. Cut summer sausage slices in half. Place 1 half slice at an angle over cheese in each wiener. Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Cut each pineapple slice on 1 side. Wrap a pineapple slice over summer sausage on each wiener; secure with wooden picks. Combine reserved pineapple juice with enough water to make 3/4 cup liquid. In small saucepan combine measured liquid with instant minced onion, mustard and horseradish. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer sauce 5 minutes. Meanwhile, broil or grill wieners 3 inches from heat until cheese begins to bubble, about 5 minutes. Drizzle about 1 tablespoon sauce over each wiener just before serving. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

RIO GRANDE FRANKS

- 1 medium avocado, diced
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 (8-ounce) can tomato sauce or puree
- 1 cup beer or tomato juice
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 to 1-1/2 teaspoons chili powder
- 1 cup shredded hot pepper cheese (4 ounces)
- 1 pound wieners, slashed
- 4 or 5 (6-or-8-inch) flour tortillas
- Sour cream

In small bowl toss avocado with lemon juice. Set aside. In 5-quart pot combine tomato sauce, beer, onion and chili powder. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat and stir in cheese. Cook and stir over low heat until cheese melts. Cover sauce and keep warm. Broil or grill wieners 3 inches from heat for about 5 minutes or until of desired doneness. Place 3 wieners on each tortilla. Spoon on sauce, using about one-third cup for each serving. Top with sour cream and avocado. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

ORIENT EXPRESS FRANKS

- 2 tablespoons sesame seed
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1-1/2 to 2 cups edible pod peas (fresh or frozen)
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1/4 cup sliced onion
- one-third cup thinly sliced green pepper
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons teriyaki sauce
- 2 tablespoons white vinegar
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1 pound wieners, slashed diagonally
- 1 cup water
- 4 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 medium tomato, cut into thin wedges
- one-third thinly sliced jalapeno or sunchokes or bamboo shoots

In 10-inch skillet or wok heat sesame seed and oil. Add pea pods, celery and onion; stir fry for 1 minute. Stir in green pepper, brown sugar, teriyaki sauce, vinegar and garlic salt. Mix well, push vegetables to sides of skillet. Add wieners and 1/4 cup of the water. Quickly bring to boiling. Stir remaining water into cornstarch in small cup to make a smooth paste. Stir paste into skillet. Cook and stir just until thickened. Reduce heat to barely simmering. Add tomato and jalapeno. Cover. Cook 3 minutes. Serve over crisp chow mein noodles or curly Oriental noodles, if desired. Makes 5 servings.

FRANKS-IN-THE-SHELL

- 2 teaspoons salt
  - 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
  - 1 (8-ounce) package 2-inch pasta shells (approx. 30 shells)
  - 1 (32-ounce jar spaghetti sauce (approx. 3 cups)
  - 2 (4-ounce containers onion-herb creamy cheese or 1 (8-ounce) container French onion dip
  - 3 (4-ounce) packages cocktail franks or 1 pound wieners cut in thirds
  - 1 (8-inch) zucchini, diced
  - 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- In 5-quart kettle bring 3 quarts water, salt and 1 tablespoon oil to a boil. Add pasta shells. When water returns to boiling, cook 7 minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking. Drain shells and rinse quickly in cool running water. Drain well.
- Brush some of remaining oil over a piece of aluminum foil about 17x13 inches. Set aside. Brush remaining oil over bottom of shallow 3 quart casserole. Spread about 1-1/2 tablespoons creamy cheese inside each pasta shell, being careful not to tear the shell. Place 2 cocktail franks or a piece of wiener in each shell and press to close. Arrange shells in casserole. Sprinkle zucchini over shells. Pour remaining sauce over top. Sprinkle with Parmesan. Cover with the foil, oiled side down. Bake at 375 degrees F for 35 minutes, until sauce is bubbly and zucchini tender. Serve with additional Parmesan, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CHEESE-STUFFED FRANKFURTERS

- 1 pound frankfurters (8 to 10)
- barbecue sauce
- 2 to 3 slices process American cheese, cut in thin strips
- 8 to 10 bacon slices
- 8 to 10 frankfurter rolls, toasted

Slit frankfurters lengthwise to 3/4 inch from each end. Spoon 1/4 spoon barbecue sauce along slit in each; add 2 cheese strips to each. Wind a bacon slice around each frankfurter secure with wooden picks at each end. Place on grill away from glowing coals. Brush with additional barbecue sauce and grill, turning and basting until bacon is cooked. Remove picks. Serve on rolls. Makes 6 servings.

Frankly, "hot dogs" are no longer an American picnic or cookout item. They have made their way around the world and are as popular on the international scene as in the United States. Spicy Rio Grande Franks, left, have a subtle Mexican influence while Oriental Express Franks, right, feature wieners combined with a flavorful medley of stir-fry vegetables.

Microwave Traditional Kosher Recipes

Challah and Connie's Cabbage Soup are two traditional Kosher recipes from a microwave oven cookbook. In earlier days, Challah had a special significance for the opening of the weekly Sabbath. Cabbage Soup is a family favorite prepared easily in a microwave oven.

CHALLAH

Saffron adds the pretty golden color to this traditional braided dough.
 Total cooking time: 38 minutes
 4½ to 4 3-4 cups all-purpose flour
 2 packages active dry yeast
 1¼ cups milk
 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
 2 tablespoons sugar
 2 teaspoons salt
 Dash powdered saffron
 2 eggs
 1 beaten egg yolk
 1 tablespoon water
 2 teaspoons poppy seeds

In large mixing bowl, stir together 2 cups of the flour and the yeast. In 4-cup glass measure combine milk, butter, sugar, and saffron. Heat at HIGH for 2 minutes, stirring to dissolve sugar. Cool to lukewarm (115 degrees F.). Add to mixing bowl with eggs.

Beat 30 seconds on low speed of electric mixer scraping sides of bowl constantly. Beat 3 minutes at high speed. By hand stir in enough of the remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured surface; knead till smooth and elastic, 8 to 10 minutes. Shape into ball. Place in greased bowl, turning once to grease surface.

Meanwhile, fill a 4-cup glass measure with 3 cups water. Heat at HIGH for 7 minutes or till boiling. Place bowl of dough, covered with waxed paper, in microwave with measure of water. Heat at LOW for 15 minutes or till dough is double. Punch dough down; divide in fourths. Cover; let rest 10 minutes.

Roll 3 portions of the dough to 18-inch ropes. Loosely braid ropes, starting at center and working out. Place on greased glass pizza plate. Divide remaining portion of dough into thirds; roll into three 18-inch ropes. Loosely braid ropes; place atop larger braid. Tuck ends under to secure.

Heat 3 cups water in 4-cup glass measure at HIGH for 7 minutes or till boiling. Place braid, covered with waxed paper, in microwave oven with measure of water. Heat at LOW for 7 to 8 minutes or till nearly double.

Combine egg yolk and water. Brush over braid. Sprinkle with poppy seed. Bake in conventional oven at 375 degrees F. for 40 to 45 minutes, covering loosely with foil after first 20 minutes. Makes 1 loaf.

CONNIE'S CABBAGE SOUP

Total cooking time: 1 hour 27 minutes
 1 pound beef shank, cut crosswise in 1-inch pieces
 5 cups water
 1 6-ounce can tomato paste
 1 medium onion, finely chopped
 2 tablespoons packed brown sugar
 1½ teaspoons instant beef bouillon granules
 ½ teaspoon salt
 ¼ teaspoon saffron
 Dash pepper
 1 small head cabbage, shredded
 1 medium apple, pared, cored, and finely shredded (½ cup)

In 3-quart casserole, combine beef shanks, water, tomato paste, onion, brown sugar, bouillon, salt, saffron, and pepper. Cook, covered, at HIGH for 12 to 15 minutes or till boiling. Cook, covered, at Medium for 30 minutes or till meat is tender. Remove meat from bones. Discard bones. Chop meat and return to soup. Season to taste with additional salt, pepper, and saffron. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Corn Adds Crunch To Salads

The marvels of fresh corn on the cob — its moist crunchy texture and milky flavor — bring the sensation of sunshine to many an outdoor table. Sliced off the cob, it's versatile enough to become the prime attraction in main-dish salads or zesty fillings for pocket sandwiches.

How to accomplish these delectable feats, you wonder, with a few ears of corn? The next time you're celebrating this season's golden sun and cool breezes with a patio barbecue, just cook a few extra ears to create some delicious corn concoctions the next day. And since supplies are heaviest from May to September, now is the perfect time to enjoy good buys.

According to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, look for plump, well-developed kernels, with evenly spaced rows filled to the tip. And there should be no soft, small or missing kernels. Good quality ears have bright green husk completely wrapping them. Once purchased, use corn as soon as possible to enjoy its natural sweetness. But if storing is necessary, make sure the ears are kept well-chilled and humid, wrapped in their husks.

Corn is a snap to cook. Once the water boils, it takes only about eight minutes to enjoy its marvelous flavor. Don't add any salt or sugar to the cooking water, however, as salt toughens the kernels, while sugar sweetens them.

And now that you've developed some expertise in the marvels of corn, put it to use in recipes — Corn-u-copia Salad, for example.

This main-dish salad incorporates many leftovers from outdoor grilling, such as cooked potatoes, sliced beef, and, of course, fresh corn. Combined with ginger, garlic, mustard, scallions and carrots, the dish is a colorful and tangy mix that complements the crunchiness of corn kernels.

Fresh corn is also luscious in Mexicali Corn Salad With Salsa Ole. A vivid, savory blend of shredded red cabbage, green pepper, tomato and bacon, with Salsa Ole made of sour cream, lime juice, garlic, chili powder and cumin creates an authentic, south-of-the-border filling for tacos or pita bread, or as a summer salad.

FRESH CORN-U-COPIA SALAD

- 4 ears of fresh corn
  - ½ cup vegetable oil
  - 1½ inch piece fresh ginger, peeled and thinly sliced

In small saucepan heat oil; saute ginger and garlic until golden. Remove from heat. Cool. Strain and reserve oil. Discard garlic and ginger. In large bowl combine reserved oil, vinegar, mustard, salt, pepper and sugar. Add corn, beef, potatoes, scallions and carrots; mix well. Cover. Chill 2 to 3 hours. Serve in bowl lined with cabbage leaves or salad greens.

Makes: 4 servings.

Colorful tuna cookbooklet features a delightful collection of contemporary tuna recipes adapted from American and international favorites such as Tuna Zini Burgers.

Tuna Is Now!

Flavorful Fish Fits All Lifestyles

"Let's fill up the pitcher and open a can. Sprinkle the tuna with nuts and with bran — Put fruit on the table and mint in the tea... Welcome good eating for you and for me!" Most Americans eat a lot of tuna. It fits all lifestyles. It's versatile. It's now!

What's more, it's tasty. It's satisfying. It meets the nutritional needs of young and old. And it's completely digestible.

It's also high in complete protein. And it's low in calories. Particularly the water-packed tuna. (The vegetable oil-packed tuna is even higher in polyunsaturates.)

And when you come right down to it, it's still moderate in cost. Not quite as moderate as it used to be (what is?) but still moderate considering it comes ready to use and has no waste whatsoever.

Now, for all the Friends of Tuna (an unofficial but constantly growing confrerie), here's news of a delightful, very contemporary cookbooklet, recently published by the Tuna

Research Foundation.

Entitled EVERYBODY IN THE KITCHEN WITH TUNA, it was conceived with today's oft-times harried cooks in mind — busy-busy, sometimes dizzy and generally in a tizzy over what to serve that's different, delicious, easy, energy-saving, and economical.

This cheery, slim volume (you can take it with you wherever you go — in a pocketbook, briefcase, jacket pocket) is replete with over 70 recipes grouped in a dozen categories, from appetizers through speedy skillets and youngsters' favorites, to company specials.

The 12 chapters, each introduced with a light-hearted quatrain (the verse, above, is from the section on Quick Tuna Ideas), include interesting American as well as international edibles: Tuna Chili Con Queso, Puff-Top Tuna Bisque, Tuna Croque-Monsieur, Perugia Tuna-Red Onion Frittata, Pink Flannel Hash, Indian Harvest Bake, Tuna Pineapple Treasure, and more.

Boozing Husband Threatens Marriage

DEAR DR. LAMB—My husband is an alcoholic. I have tried hiding his drink, putting him in it, giving him more, kissing and just ignoring it. He knows he has this problem but absolutely will not go to AA or seek any help. He would raise Cain and drink more if I went to meetings. I can't accept because of the children. I love him and don't want to leave him. We really need what security he provides. His personality changes completely when he's drinking. He won't hurt me bodily, but his tongue is so cruel. Doctor, I am so depressed but not suicidal. The boys need me. I read my Bible and am reading "The Power of Positive Thinking" but all this is not helping me.

I am 71 years old and take Diupres for blood pressure, Premarin and vitamin E, also a small tablet daily. I lead a very active life and am quite healthy but this is a real problem. It is only on my arms, seldom on any other parts of my body.

DEAR READER—Occasionally a low level of vitamin C can cause increased fragility of the capillaries, but there are many other causes for this problem and, as your story demonstrates, taking vitamins alone is frequently not the answer.

If you have not had them, you need a series of tests to evaluate the clotting mechanism of your blood. Your problem can also be caused by a disorder of the platelets, the tiny cells involved in blood clotting.

Certain medicines can sometimes cause this, including aspirin or common home remedies that contain aspirin. Now that you have tried the vitamin C and rutin routine, talk to your doctor again to see if he is interested in testing your clotting mechanism further to pinpoint the real problem.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Bridge hand analysis: SOUTH ♠ 4, ♥ 10, ♦ 10, ♣ K. WEST ♠ 7, ♥ 7, ♦ 10, ♣ 10. EAST ♠ 10, ♥ 7, ♦ 10, ♣ 10. Dealer South. Opening lead ♠ 7.

The bidding needs some explanation—North-South had an agreed auction to the "virtually" laydown small slam in hearts. North's raise to three hearts was game forcing and setting hearts as trump. North and South then each cuebid their minor suit aces. After South subudded in four hearts, North with 16 high card points decided his hand was worth one more move. His five heart call asked South to bid the slam if he had just or second hand control in the unbid suit, spades.

Summer Vegetable Medley

Summertime... and the eating is easy, economical and delicious!

Fresh produce is popping up all over in supermarkets and home gardens. And, easy-to-prepare eggs are as readily available, and when compared to other protein sources, as inexpensive as ever. When Large eggs are $1.00 a dozen, they're only 67 cents a pound! Put the two together and the result is sensational, but cent-sible, summer dining.

From asparagus to zucchini, the variety of vegetables available is more than sufficient to satisfy most anyone's taste buds. And, the variety of ways eggs can be prepared is almost unlimited. The recipes here include an elegant quiche, easy-to-make omelets, a speedy skillet supper scramble, a fast and flavorful frittata, and refreshingly light custards.

But, you needn't stop there. Finely chop or shred your favorite vegetable and fold it into a souffle. Roll up asparagus spears or broccoli stalks in crepes and ladle on a cheese sauce. Chop your veggies and toss them together with chopped hard-cooked eggs and either "mayo," sour cream or yogurt for a salad, sandwich spread or dip.

For any meal of the day, there's an easy and economical way to get needed protein, vitamins and minerals on the table when you combine eggs with seasonal produce.

To keep you and your kitchen cool this summer, three of these recipes are top-of-range skillet suppers. The quiche can be baked either conventionally or in a microwave and you don't have to turn on the oven for the custards — they can be made in an electric skillet!

Try any or all of these recipes. Or, substitute other vegetables for those suggested. Either way, meal preparation will take so little time, you'll be able to get out and enjoy the summer sunshine.

ZUCCHINI TOMATO QUICHE
(6 servings)

Pretty as a picture and as tasty as it looks! Serve this impressive entree for a family breakfast, lunch or dinner or a stylish brunch for guests. Be sure to drain the tomato well as summer tomatoes are apt to be quite juicy.

- 1 (9-inch) baked pie shell
- 2 cups sliced zucchini (about 1 medium)
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 medium tomato, seeded, chopped and drained (about 3/4 cup)
- 8 eggs
- 1 cup half and half or milk
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano or basil leaves, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

In large skillet over medium heat, cook zucchini and onion in butter until lightly browned, about 5 minutes.

Sprinkle zucchini mixture, cheese, flour and tomato into pie shell. Beat together remaining ingredients until well blended. Pour over vegetables and cheese.

Bake in preheated 375 degree F. oven until knife inserted near center comes out clean, 30 to 35 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

SWEET CORN OMELETS
(4 servings)

- 1 1/2 cups fresh corn kernels (cut from 2 to 3 medium ears)
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 teaspoon salt, divided
- 8 eggs
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 to 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 4 tablespoons butter, divided
- 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese, divided
- Cherry tomatoes, optional
- Parsley sprigs, optional

In medium saucepan, combine corn, green pepper, onion, water and 1/4 teaspoon of the salt. Bring to boiling. Cover, reduce heat and simmer until corn is tender, about 5 minutes. Keep warm while preparing omelets. Drain before filling omelets.

Mix eggs, water, remaining salt, mustard and pepper until blended. For each omelet, in 7-10-inch omelet pan or skillet, over medium-high heat, heat 1 tablespoon of the butter until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in 1/4 cup of the egg mixture. (Mixture should immediately set at edges.) With an inverted pancake turner, carefully push cooked portions at edges toward center so uncooked portions can reach hot pan surface, tilting pan and moving cooked portions as necessary. While top is still moist and creamy-looking, place about 1/2 cup of the corn mixture on half of the omelet. Sprinkle 1/4 cup of the cheese over corn mixture. With pancake turner, fold omelet in half and invert onto plate with a quick flip of the wrist or slide from pan onto plate. Keep warm while preparing remaining omelets. Garnish with tomatoes and parsley, if desired.

NOTE: It is better to fill omelet when it is slightly underdone. Heat retained in eggs completes the cooking.

GREEN BEAN SCRAMBLE
(4 servings)

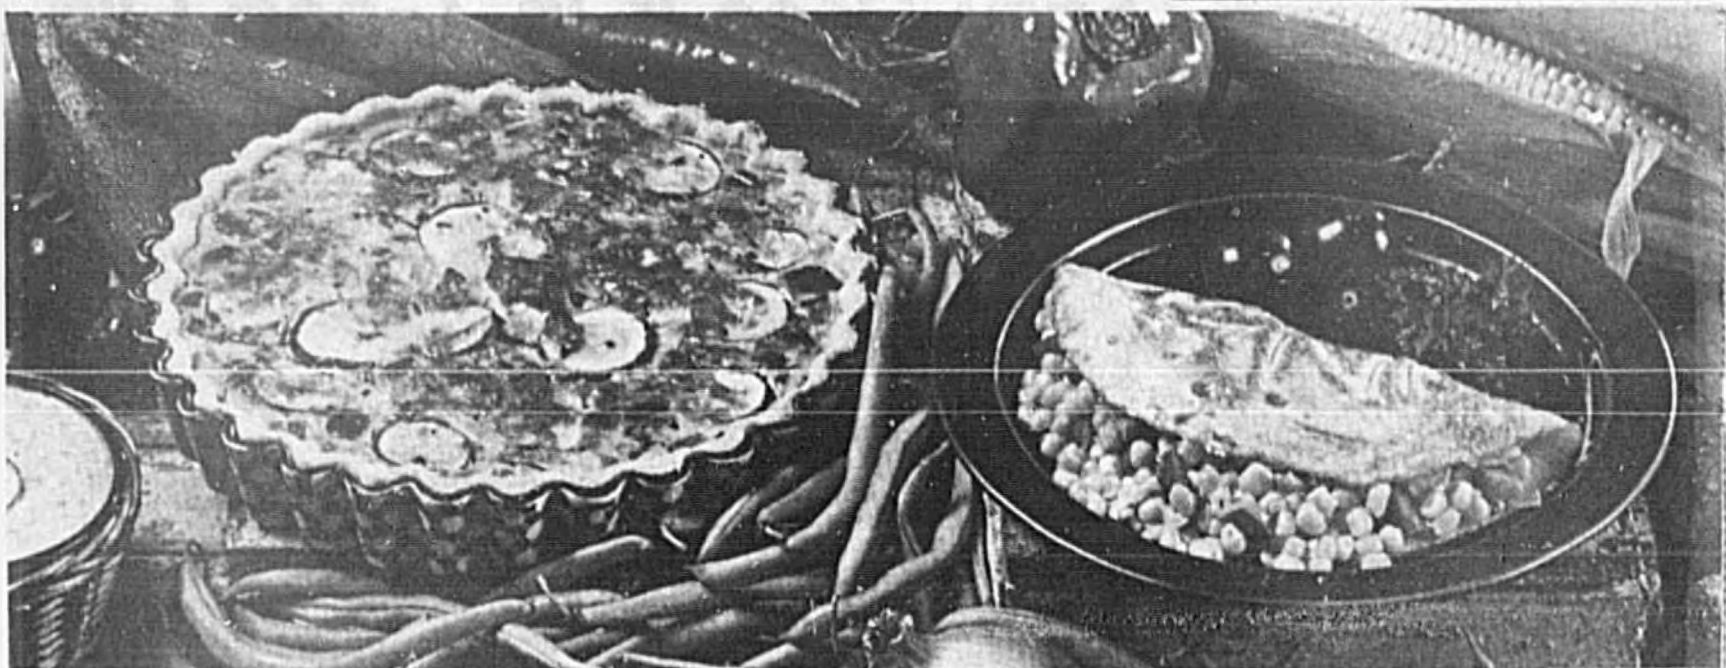

If you've never made a skillet scramble, the summer season is a wonderful time to try one. This recipe uses fresh green beans and Swiss cheese. Use another vegetable or a combination of several in place of the beans the next time you make one.

- 8 ounces fresh green beans, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1/2 cup water
- 8 eggs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 1/2 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1/2 teaspoon tarragon, rosemary or savory leaves, crushed, optional
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese

In medium saucepan, combine beans and water. Bring to boiling. Cover, reduce heat and simmer until beans are crisp-tender, 10 to 15 minutes. Drain and set aside.

Mix eggs, milk and seasonings until blended. In 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, heat butter until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. Stir in reserved green beans and cheese. As mixture begins to set, gently draw an inverted pancake turner completely across the bottom and sides of pan, forming large soft curds. Continue until eggs are thickened but still moist. Do not stir constantly.

NOTE: It is better to remove scrambled eggs from pan when they are slightly underdone. Heat retained in eggs completes the cooking.

Eggs plus fresh produce equal sensational Summer cents-savers such as Zucchini Tomato Quiche and Sweet Corn Omelets.

Easy Does It In 'Good Old Summertime'

For an outdoor meal that offers the eating pleasures of the 'good old summertime' without all the work, Sausage Kabob, Hot Potato Salad, and Strawberry Chocolate Chip Ice Cream will steal your eye. For the Sausage Kabob Combo, pieces of smoked sausage, bratwurst and frankfurters are marinated in beer, then threaded on skewers and broiled. Since all the flavorful sausages are fully cooked, they need only to be grilled long enough to heat through and brown nicely.

Hot Garden Potato Salad features a convenient preparation idea. Simply cube the potatoes, add the remaining ingredients and wrap in a heavy duty aluminum foil packet using dry-garlic wrap. Homemade ice cream captures the dessert spotlight, this time chock-full of strawberries and bits of chocolate.

Sausage Kabob Combo
4 'fully-cooked' smoked pork link sausage
4 'fully-cooked' bratwurst
4 frankfurters
1 can (11 ounces) beer
Cut smoked sausage into 2 1/2 equal pieces. Cut bratwurst and frankfurters crosswise diagonally in half. Place sausage pieces in utility dish or plastic bag; add beer, turning to coat. Cover dish or the bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 2 hours, turning occasionally. Remove sausage from marinade.

On each of 8 skewers, alternately thread, (through casing) 3 pieces of smoked sausage, threading a half bratwurst and frankfurter between each. Place kabobs on grill over ash-covered coals so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil 12 to 15 minutes, turning and brushing with marinade occasionally. Makes: 8 servings.

HOT GARDEN POTATO SALAD
8 medium potatoes, pared and cut in 1/2-inch cubes
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon celery seed
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/2 cup white vinegar
8 to 10 slices cooked bacon, cut up
1/4 cup reserved bacon drippings
1/4 cup fresh snipped parsley
1/4 cup thinly sliced radishes
Tear off a length of heavy duty aluminum foil large enough to permit adequate wrapping. Place potatoes in center of foil sheet; add onion. Combine sugar, flour and seasonings and sprinkle over potatoes. Pour vinegar and bacon drippings on top of potato mixture. Bring two foil sides up over potatoes; fold down tightly in a series of locked folds. Fold short ends up and over again; crimp to seal. Cook on grill over ash-covered coals, 3 to 4 inches from heat for 20 minutes. Turn package over and cook for an additional 25 to 30 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Remove packet from grill; open and toss gently with bacon, parsley and radishes, before serving. Makes: 8 servings.

STRAWBERRY CHOCOLATE CHIP ICE CREAM
1 quart fresh strawberries, mashed, or 2 packages (16 ounces each) frozen whole unsweetened strawberries, thawed and mashed
1 1/2 cups sugar
2 tall cans (11 fluid ounces each) evaporated milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces, coarsely grated in blender or food processor (place in freezer until used)
Mix together mashed strawberries and sugar. Stir in evaporated milk and lemon juice. Refrigerate until well chilled. Pour into 2-quart ice cream freezer container. Churn and freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Fold in grated chocolate chips. Makes: 1 quart.
NOTE: To mash berries in blender, place in container and blend until pureed.

Sausage Kabob Combo and Strawberry Chocolate Chip Ice Cream are what the "good old summertime" is all about.

BEWARE! It's Season For Food Poisoning

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Special to the Herald
This is the season for picnics and barbecues, for main-course salads and cooling desserts. It is also a prime season for the food poisoning that strikes more than 2 million Americans each year. Bacteria — primarily salmonella, staphylococcus and clostridium perfringens — are the chief cause of food poisoning. "Because bacteria are everywhere, food contamination is universal," says Sara Beck, consumer meat specialist at the U.S. Agriculture Department's Food Safety and Quality Service. "Food poisoning is not confined to public places — it can happen in your kitchen. "Prevention becomes a matter of stopping the growth of these bacteria or killing them at the proper time to prevent their growth and possible poisoning of food." The Agriculture Department offers these three rules to help prevent food poisoning: — Keep hot food hot. — Keep cold food cold. — Keep food clean. "Keeping food hot means cooking food thoroughly, holding it at a hot temperature during serving and fully reheating stored foods," she says. "Keeping cold food cold means refrigerating perishables or leftovers promptly," she says. "Frozen food should be kept wrapped and thawed either in the refrigerator or under cold water." The Agriculture Department recommends that refrigerators be set at 35 to 40 degrees Fahrenheit and freezers at zero or below. "Keeping food clean means avoiding unsanitary practices that contaminate food," says Mrs. Beck. Everything — including hands — that comes in contact with uncooked or raw food should be washed with soap and water. Planning a cool dinner of meat or poultry salad? Be sure to chill all ingredients thoroughly. After mixing the salad, put it in a shallow container to allow rapid chilling. Then refrigerate until serving time. Is a picnic on your summer schedule? Remember that you can keep unopened packages of cold cuts in the refrigerator for up to two weeks. After the packages have been opened, wrap them well and use them within three to five days. The hot dogs that that cook-out should be stored in their original package and used no later than one week after the "sell by" date printed on the package. Of course, do not use food from leaking, bulging or dented cans or containers. Do not use — or even taste — food that has a foul odor or that spurts liquid when the container is opened. And never assume that you will be able to determine whether a food is contaminated on the basis of appearance, taste or smell. It is often impossible to detect food-poisoning bacteria except through laboratory analysis.

Creamy Cake Garnished With Fruit

Once upon a time a pudding cake was about the moistest and richest cake you could make. Now it's even more! Here's one with stripes of pudding running through it for added taste, texture and eye appeal.

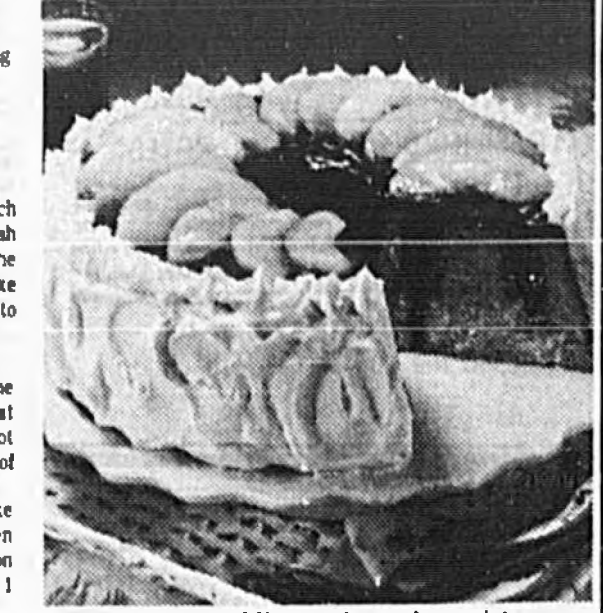

The method is the magic of this new concept in which you poke holes in a baked and cooled cake and pour on half of a luscious instant pudding and pie filling mixture to create the "stripes." When the remaining pudding thickens, spread on the cake surface as frosting. This creamy cake is garnished with fresh summer fruit to boot... and fancied up with thawed frozen whipped topping on the sides.

You can "summerize" this new cake concept with a bevy of fruit-and-pudding combinations: peaches, chocolate fudge instant pudding and pie filling with yellow cake; strawberries, French vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling and chocolate cake. Mix and match for tasty triumph!

PUDGING-FILL-AND-FROST CAKE
1 package (2-layer size) yellow cake mix or pudding-included cake mix
1 1/4 cups sliced fresh peaches or nectarines
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons peach jam or apple jelly
1 package (4-serving size) chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling 1 1/2 cup confectioners sugar
2 cups cold milk
1 container (4 oz.) non-dairy whipped topping, thawed

Prepare cake mix as directed on package, baking in 10-inch tube pan. Cool 15 minutes in pan. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. Then poke holes down through cake to the bottom, using the round handle of a wooden spoon. (Or, poke holes with a plastic drinking straw, using a turning motion to make large holes.) Holes should be at 1-inch intervals.

Combine fruit, lemon juice and jam; set aside. Combine pudding mix with sugar in bowl. Gradually stir in milk. Beat at low speed of electric mixer for not more than 1 minute. (Do not overbeat). Quickly, before pudding thickens, pour about half of the thin pudding evenly over cake and into the holes to make the stripes. Allow remaining pudding to thicken slightly, then spread over top of cake. Arrange overlapping fruit slices on top of cake; spread whipped topping on sides. Chill at least 1 hour. Store any leftover cake in refrigerator.

Instant pudding makes cake moist.

Potpourri Blackeye Star In Creole Dish

A city with tradition and fine cuisine, New Orleans, the true melting pot of the best of French, Spanish and American cooking, is famous for its Creole dishes. Creole-Style Blackeyes, a spicy, tomato-sauced dish features California blackeye beans. Distinctive in their look, blackeye beans have a mellow flavor that combines well with many other ingredients. The blackeyes are simmered in a well-seasoned sauce of onion, green pepper, stewed tomatoes and chicken broth. Creole-Style Blackeyes is an excellent accompaniment to chicken, ribs or fish.

- CREOLE-STYLE BLACKEYES
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
  - 1/3 cup chopped green pepper
  - 1 tablespoon butter
  - 2 1/2 cups drained, cooked or canned blackeye beans
  - 1 can (8oz) stewed tomatoes
  - 1 can (8oz) tomato sauce
  - 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
  - 1 bay leaf
  - 1/4 teaspoon chicken bouillon granules
  - 1/4 teaspoon celery seed
  - 1/4 teaspoon each salt and pepper

Saute onion and green pepper in butter several minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Simmer, covered, 20 to 30 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Makes 4 servings. Serving Tip: Serve with rice and chicken, ribs or fish.

GAZPACHO (Makes about 4 cups)

- 3 medium, firm tomatoes, peeled (3 quartered, 1 diced)
  - 1 large green pepper (1/4 quartered, 1/4 diced)
  - 1 large cucumber, pared (1/4 quartered, 1/4 diced)
  - 1/4 cup onion (1/4 quartered, 1/4 diced)
  - 2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
  - 3 cups tomato juice
  - one-third cup vegetable oil
  - one-third cup lime juice
  - 1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
  - 2 teaspoons salt
  - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
  - 1 cup garlic-flavored croutons
  - 1/4 cup chopped chives
- Place all diced vegetables in individual serving bowls and refrigerate until serving time. In blender container, combine 1/4 the quartered vegetables and garlic with 1/4 cup tomato juice. Blend until smooth. Repeat with remaining quartered vegetables and 1/4 cup tomato juice. In large bowl, combine pureed vegetables, remaining tomato juice, oil, lime, hot pepper sauce, salt and pepper. Cover and chill. Serve with diced vegetables, croutons and chives.

FRESH FLORIDA KEY LIME PIE

- Filling:
- 1 cup sugar
  - 1/4 cup flour
  - 3 tablespoons cornstarch
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 2 cups water
  - 2 egg yolks, beaten
  - 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
  - 1/4 cup fresh Florida lime juice
  - Grated peel of 1 lime
  - Prepared 8-inch graham cracker crust

Meringue:
3 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
8 tablespoons sugar

Combine sugar, flour, cornstarch and salt in saucepan; gradually stir in water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Gradually stir hot mixture into egg yolks; return to heat and cook, stirring, two minutes. Stir in butter, lime juice and peel; cool slightly. Pour into prepared crust; chill. Prepare meringue: beat egg whites and cream of tartar until foamy. Gradually beat in sugar until stiff and glossy. Top cooled pie with meringue, spreading to seal edges. Bake in pre-heated 425 degree oven until lightly golden, 8 to 8 minutes. Makes 8 to 8 servings.

CARROT PRUNE BREAD

- 2 cups flour
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons baking powder
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup (about 6 ounces) coarsely chopped pitted prunes
- 1/4 cup shredded coconut
- 1/4 cup chopped nuts
- 2 cups shredded carrots
- 1 cup vegetable oil
- 3 eggs
- 2 teaspoons vanilla

In large bowl combine flour, sugar, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt. Add prunes, coconut and nuts. Toss to blend thoroughly. Add carrots, oil, eggs and vanilla. Mix just until blended. Turn into greased and floured 8x3 1/2-inch loaf pan. Smooth top. Bake in 350 degree oven about 1 hour and 15 minutes until bread is springy to the touch and begins to pull away from sides of pan. Cool 15 minutes. Turn out onto rack. Wrap while slightly warm. For best flavor, store 24 hours before serving. Makes 1 loaf.
