Sanford Officials Reject Plea To Serve On SCA Board

One by one, Sanford City Commissioners declined to serve on the Seminole Community Action Board of Directors Monday night, despite a plea from Rev. Amos Jones, the anti-poverty agency's executive director.

Jones' plea was contained in a letter written to Mayor Lee P. Moore.

The letter said the transfer of funding and monitoring responsibility of the agency from the federal government to the state of Florida "makes it all the more essential that local elected officials be involved" in the SCA effort.

"Since 1966, SCA has literally served thousands of low-income families in Seminole County through the administration of an assortment of human service programs and the start up of a number of other significant service programs," Jones' letter said.

"Please designate a representative to the SCA Board of Directors, and inform us of the same. Your cooperation is sorely needed. May we have a written response from you at your earliest convenience? Thank you kindly,"

Jones concluded his letter.

Less than a week ago, City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles stated at the meeting of the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County that "there is no love lost between the city of Sanford and SCA."

He said 12 civil rights actions were lodged against the city of Sanford over the years and 11 of those were filed by SCA. All 11 have been dismissed as unfounded for a variety of reasons and most were filed to harass the city.

"Mayor Moore wanted it known that he feels it is not right for a representative of government to serve on the board of an agency that brings actions against that government," Knowles said.

Moore said Monday night any member of the city commission who wished could volunteer for the SCA board of directors.

Commissioner David Farr said he served on the SCA board in the past and "I don't intend to again."

Commissioner Milton Smith said he doesn't feel a member of the City Commission, "particularly me" has the time to serve. "I don't care to be a part of an organization that doesn't keep up with procedures," referring to SCA's problems about record-keeping, criticized in some quarters.

"Perhaps when they get matters straightened out, I will be able to serve to help the poor," Smith said.

While Commissioner Ned Yancey made no comment, he shook his head "no."

Commissioner Eddie Keith, hospitalized for surgery, was absent.

Moore, adding to comments made by Knowles on his behalf last week, pointed to an agreement several years ago between the city and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission which he felt compelled to approve and to urge approval by the city commission for a monetary settlement.

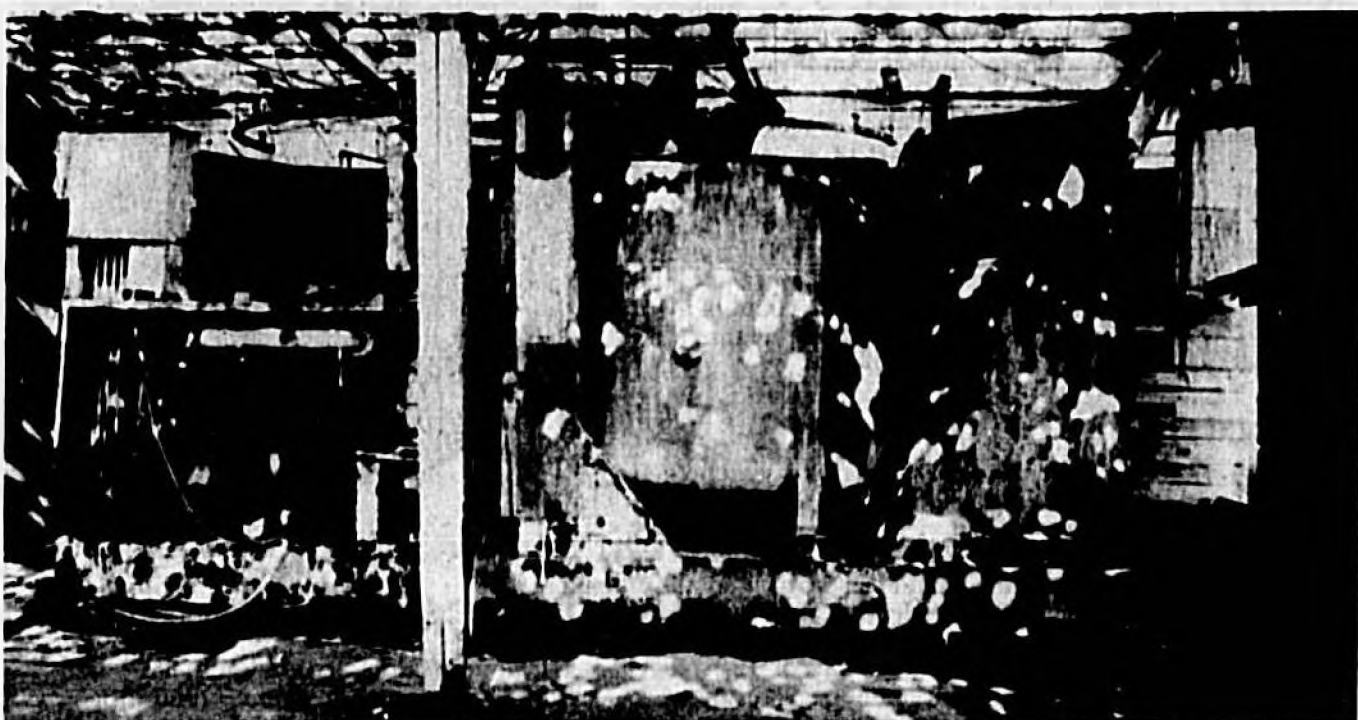

The action filed against the city by an employee of SCA said the city had discriminated against several persons whose names weren't revealed. A few weeks after the agreement a woman, whom an EEOC official said had been discriminated against, first refused to accept a check from the city, saying she had not been the object of discrimination. The city nevertheless had to give her the check and she had to accept it as part of the agreement.

"As contentious as they (the agency) have been, they should not expect a member of the city commission to serve," Moore said. "In my view, it's asking a man to serve on his own jury. I would have been embarrassed to sit on a board judging the city. I see no justification for seeking a member of the commission to serve."

Moore noted that he was a member of SCA's first board of directors.

Farr said that it is "unfortunate" that the commissioners' remarks will be interpreted as discrimination, when that has nothing to do.—Donna Estes

Sunshine coming through holes in the roof of the defunct Douglass Fertilizer & Chemical Inc. plant casts patterns on the floor and idle equipment.

'We'll put a payload in its middle.'

Deadline Slapped On Chemical Firm

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Owners of an abandoned chemical and fertilizer plant have 15 days to begin cleanup of the facility or face its demolition by the city of Sanford.

The Sanford City Commission Monday night voted unanimously to give 15 days notice of the city's impending action to the Douglass Fertilizer & Chemical Inc. of Lake Mary, owners of Chemical & Fertilizer Corp. plant at 2300 Country Club Road, with a carbon to Seaboard System Railroad and the Atlantic Land and Improvement Co. of Richmond, Va., owners of the property on which the building stands.

Assistant City Manager Steve Harriott showed color slides of the plant, while City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles narrated for the commissioners, prior to their action. Knowles pointed to holes in the roof of the facility so large that patterns from the sun could be seen on the floor; crystallized chemicals piled against the interior walls and debris of various descriptions scattered throughout the yard of the plant.

Open doors to the plant grant access to anyone who wishes, Knowles said.

Although both the railroad and the abandoned plant's owners were notified by certified mail of impending condemnation of the property, Mayor Lee Moore recommended that an additional 15 days notice be given before demolition.

Moore said the owners should take note that if they don't take positive action, the city "plans to put a payload (heavy equipment capable of demolishing a building) in its middle."

Knowles said the fertilizer company which owns the building is leasing the property from the railroad.

In late June, K.H. Clark, district sales manager for the railroad office at Tampa, responded by letter to a city condemnation certificate which advised the property was condemned on May 9th as "unsafe, dilapidated and unsanitary."

Clark's letter said the railroad and improvement company are in the process of selling the land space to Liquid Foods, Inc., headquartered in Miami. Knowles said Liquid Foods operates a facility immediately adjacent to the abandoned chemical plant.

Clark's letter stated that Liquid Foods is understood to be arranging for environmental tests in connection with its proposed purchase of the land and if the tests prove satisfactory to the firm, they would then proceed with the purchase which would include "assuming ownership of the improvements located on the land space."

"We anticipate that the environmental inspection and tests will be made in the near future and following satisfactory results we anticipate closing the land sale shortly thereafter," Clark wrote. "The purchaser would understand that the buildings and other structures would have to be placed in a condition suitable to the city of Sanford."

Clark also asked that the city allow sufficient time for the matter to be corrected, saying he would advise further as soon as developments occur.

Commissioner Milton Smith said he doesn't think the city can afford to wait for the railroad to act, noting his extreme concern about the chemicals.

Moore said, however, that the chemicals in the building are the same type that one spreads about the yard of his home three to four times each year.

"They are not going to kill anyone," the mayor said.

He added that perhaps the city should be more concerned about the "sweet water" from the Liquid Foods plant next door.

Knowles said that the platform at the Liquid Foods plant is "sugar-coated" and that water, which he called sweet water, from the platform is flowing into ditches and ultimately ends up in the Goldsboro area where it putrefies and creates an extremely sour odor.

Knowles said the company has been considering building retention ponds to keep the "sweet water" on site, but hasn't taken positive action in that regard yet.

In an appearance before the Commission on May 9, Spencer C. Douglass, president of Douglass Fertilizer & Chemical, said his firm has been slow in removing some of the tanks and equipment from the site since operation ceased right after the April, 1982, hail storm that damaged the facility.

"It looks like World War II walked through," Douglass said.

After the city notified him of its proposed condemnation, Douglass said the plant site was cleaned up a great deal and "is in better shape than it has been in 16 years." He said the doors were left open at the plant so vandals wouldn't have to break into the facility. Of the chemicals found at the site, Douglass said all of them are associated in some fashion with fertilizers.

After an inspection in early May, city officials said the building is a hazard because of structural deterioration and the "plant site has been contaminated with chemicals and/or fertilizers of such concentration that the soil has been poisoned and the standing water in these areas will eventually contaminate ground water if it hasn't already."

Trash Pick-Up To Cost More

Beginning August 1, Sanford homeowners, apartment owners and businesses will be paying more for their city garbage and trash collections.

An ordinance authorizing an increase in rates for the services was approved by the Sanford City Commission after a public hearing Monday.

At the second hearing in two weeks, no resident or property owner showed up to protest or express approval of the higher rates. However, a letter from Mrs. Mary Tumin of 308 Loch Low Drive, protesting the rate increase was noted for the record. Mrs. Tumin said she opposed the increase in rates because the city has not given city residents any alternative to higher collection fees.

She suggested that the public be asked to bag their newspapers once weekly for private pick-up to "eliminate many pounds of trash." She also suggested voters ban non-returnable bottles from stores to reduce trash and litter and encourage recycling of aluminum and steel products.

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles

said those alternatives would not have a material impact on the collections.

Homeowners will be paying 17 percent more for their garbage collections. Rates for single family home dwellers will be $8.50 per month, up from $7.25. Similar raises in rates will be paid by apartment owners and businesses in the city.

Knowles reported to the City Commission that the city has received its first bill from Seminole County for use of the county's transfer station at Upsilon as a dump site for the city's garbage. For the period from May 25 to June 24, the bill is $10,737.76. The manager noted that it cost the city about $4,241 a month for using a privately operated dump in Volusia County the previous month. The additional cost for using the county facility was $6,496.76 for one month.

Sanford was told in mid-May that the privately owned and operated landfill which it used for several years in Volusia County was closing because its owners were tired of trying to comply with ever changing regulations of the state Department of Environmental Regulation and tired of paying the additional costs of compliance.

The city had no alternative but to use the county facilities and to pay a higher rate.

In recommending the increase in garbage collection rates, Knowles said the city was running out of refuse department financial reserves and couldn't continue picking up the higher costs without raising rates. He noted that the city refuse department operates solely on revenues it generates.

Although the city commission hasn't been enthusiastic about franchising garbage collection out to private enterprise, something Knowles has advocated for several years, the commissioners Monday night asked Knowles to meet with Industrial Waste Service and report back.

Crooms' Future A Bit Safer

Merger of Crooms and Seminole High Schools is okay with the U.S. Justice Department, as long as Crooms remains an academic facility.

The department's position will be announced at a School Board meeting beginning at 3 p.m. Wednesday, said Superintendent Bob Hughes.

While the department's position is subject to approval by federal court, Hughes said "we are pleased what we're doing is in agreement with the Justice Department."

The School Board voted this year to merge Crooms, housing only 9th grade students, with Seminole High School's 10th, 11th and 12th grades.

According to Justice Department spokesman Burtis Dougherty, the approval is contingent upon the school board meeting two conditions. That the School Board maintain the Crooms facility in such a way that it could be re-opened for use as a school in 1984-85 and that it be used as a school thereafter.

Dougherty said the Justice Department decision was revealed at a meeting in U.S. District Court in Orlando. It clears the way for the School Board to follow through with its plan to consolidate the two schools beginning this fall.

U.S. District Court Judge Elizabeth Kovakevich still must decide whether to approve the plan, but Dougherty and Willie King, a representative of a group supporting continued use of Crooms, said they expect her to do so.

King said his group, Concerned Citizens of Seminole County, a predominantly black group, has no objection to Crooms being closed during the 1983-84 school year "if it is reopened as an academic center in 1984-85."

However, King said he does object to a clause in the proposal which would allow the board to close Crooms permanently if a survey reveals that the building is "not educationally sound."

The Rev. Amos Jones, a leader in Sanford's black community said today he doesn't object to what's in the plan but said "it's too bad it doesn't go a little further than that."

The School Board vote to merge the two schools was designed to eliminate what board members described as inequities in the quality of education at the two schools.

Crooms became the district's only exclusively 9th grade school in 1970 as part of a federal court desegregation order. Seminole High School became a three-year high school in the plan with all 9th graders in Seminole's attendance zone going to Crooms.

Before the order, Crooms had been Seminole County's black high school.

Last week the federal court decided not to grant a motion of intervention to the Concerned Citizens of Seminole County. Instead, Judge Kovakevich gave the group "friend of the court" status, meaning that its members will receive copies of all information filed in the case.

In that status, King said, the group can monitor the long term actions planned by the School Board affecting the desegregation issue.

But the School Board itself must make the next move in deciding the future of Crooms.

The board voted to ask a survey team from the state Department of Education to examine Crooms along with Sanford Middle School and Goldsboro Elementary School for future uses.

The survey is designed to determine which two of the three facilities are best suited to be maintained for use.

School Superintendent Robert Hughes has recommended that the board close Goldsboro Elementary and make Crooms an elementary.

But School Board members voted to look at the two schools along with Sanford Middle School to determine which of the three campuses best fits the district's facility standards.

Tax Package In Trouble

Gov. Bob Graham's tax package, for upgrading Florida's public schools appeared to be in trouble in the state House of Representatives this morning which opened its first meeting of the special session only to adjourn five minutes later to give committees time to study Graham's proposals.

The House was slated to go back into session later today.

State Rep. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, said the 36 Republican members of the House caucused and agreed as a group to oppose the tax package in its current form. In addition, Selph said the House's conservative Democrats met last night and most agreed to oppose the Graham plan.

If the 36 Republicans stand firm and are joined by 26 conservative Democrats, the tax package would fail in the House, Selph said. He noted that at least one and possibly as many as five representatives won't be attending the session. One is in the hospital in Texas undergoing major surgery and a few more are out of the country.

The House has 120 members. If all were present, it would take 61 positive votes for a measure to pass. Selph said it appears Graham has enough support in the 40-member Senate to get his tax package approved there.—Donna Estes

Witnesses Claim Agency Covered Up Mercury Spill

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Energy Department has a "serious credibility problem" as a result of spilling 2.5 million pounds of mercury from a top-secret atomic weapons plant and then keeping it secret, Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., says.

The hearing included testimony from witnesses that the Energy Department engaged in a coverup to keep the extent of the mercury release a secret from the public. A 1977 report detailing the extent of contamination was kept classified until two months ago.

The mercury spill began in 1950 and two or three ounces of the element continues to leak daily from the weapons plant into the creek, testified Joe La Grone, manager of DOE's Oak Ridge operations.

Mercury has turned up in fish and sediment from East Fork Poplar Creek, which flows through Oak Ridge, and in some vegetable gardens because residents used sediment dredged from the stream as fill, but the levels do not represent an "imminent health threat," La Grone said.

New Zealander Wins Title

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Miss New Zealand, the 19-year-old daughter of a retired plumber and a housewife, was crowned the 1983 Miss Universe before an audience of 600 million television viewers in 50 countries, edging out Miss USA who came in second.

Lorraine Elizabeth Downes, a hazel-eyed model, is from the seaport of Auckland in New Zealand, an island that sits southeast across the Tasman Sea from Australia.

Miss USA, Julie Hayek, 22, finished first runnerup Monday night after gaining top honors in the swimsuit and evening gown competition. Miss Hayek, of New York, is a senior at UCLA specializing in pre-dental studies.

Along with the crown came nearly $90,000 in cash and $60,000 in other prizes, and a full slate of events for the coming year.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Heavy rain fell along the Washington coast today but ended in the Southeast, where a Georgia man was struck by lightning during a thunderstorm. A heat wave gripped the nation Monday from California to the Midwest. Palm Springs, Calif. and Gila Bend, Ariz. broiled in 115-degree heat, the nation's worst, while Thermal, Calif. lived up to its name with a 114-degree reading. Downtown San Francisco lost its cool to a record 92 degrees. The scorching weather made things difficult for 900 people battling a 4,500 acre brushfire near Ojai, Calif. Officials said it could take all week to get the fire under control. A series of fires scorched 400 acres in Los Angeles County. Skies were fair across the nation's midsection, where temperatures steamed into the 90s. Commonwealth Edison said it had to use "all available resources" to cope with the demand for air conditioning in Chicago.

Study: Pumping Gas May Cause Cancer

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Petroleum industry officials cite "a sense of responsibility to share what we know" in asking service stations to post signs warning that pumping gasoline can cause cancer in laboratory animals.

Preliminary results of a new study by the American Petroleum Institute suggest a link between long-term contact with high concentrations of gasoline vapors and kidney cancer in lab animals.

Although industry officials say there is no proof gas poses a danger for humans, results of the institute's two-year study prompted officials to ask oil companies to post warning signs on gas pumps this summer. But the institute cannot force stations to post the signs.

"We don't think there is any proven link between the laboratory research and human health," said Art Weise, spokesman for the petroleum institute. "But we have a sense of responsibility to share what we know."

In the study, laboratory rats and mice were exposed to gasoline vapors six hours a day, five days a week. The average motorist at the pumps is exposed from 100 to 3,000 times less than the exposure level of the animals, institute officials said, but service station workers may have increased risks.

In the rats, 14 cancerous tumors appeared among 400 males. One female rat had a tumor. The mice were cancer-free, as was a control group of rats exposed only to the air.

The petroleum institute is conducting further research on the subject in conjunction with the Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Office of Safety and Health Administration.

Weise said common-sense measures can help consumers avoid unnecessary exposure to gasoline fumes. "Stand upwind of the fumes and the nozzle. Obviously, don't put your head right down at the intake valve of the car's gas tank," he said.

Larry Osbard, a mechanic at a Shell Oil station in Fort Lauderdale, said he is not concerned that breathing in concentrations of gas vapors could be a health hazard.

"If I was worried about everything that causes cancer, I'd never get out of bed in the morning," he said.

Widening Of SR 436 Set To Begin By September At Cost Of $4.6 Million

By Micheal Beha
Herald Staff Writer

Widening of a 1.3-mile portion of State Road 436 near the Altamonte Mall is expected to begin by September, according to an official of the state Department of Transportation.

Henry Fuller, of the DOT's Orlando office, said a low bid of $4.6 million has been received from Wiley N. Jackson Inc., an Orlando contracting firm, for widening a portion of SR 436 from four lanes to six lanes.

Fuller said he anticipates that Jackson will be awarded the bid in early August. Construction is expected to begin about a month later. He said two hearings will be held after the bid is formally awarded.

The first is a pre-construction hearing in which the contractor tells DOT officials what he plans to do and gives a timetable for those plans. The second hearing will be with landowners along the highway. That meeting will be somewhat unusual.

Fuller said the meeting is the result of concerns expressed by merchants at the Altamonte Mall who are anxious to know when traffic will be disrupted along the highway.

He said there will not be much traffic disruption along the 1.3-mile route between Boston Avenue and Douglas Road. The only major disruption will be about 1,800 feet west of the mall where one of two left turn lanes will be closed for 30-45 days.

Most of the work on the project will be done along the side of the highway, Fuller said, as construction crews work to change underground electric and water lines.

Curbs, gutters and sidewalks will be added during the 18-month project, Fuller said.

SR 436 through Altamonte Springs is the county's most heavily traveled highway. County officials say the highway has a daily traffic count of more than 50,000 vehicles. That is more than double the design capacity.

Police Want Some $ Back From IRS

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Attorney General Jim Smith and Florida Department of Law Enforcement Commissioner Robert Dempsey are trying to persuade the IRS to give law enforcement a little of the money it helps the federal agency recover.

They met with IRS Commissioner James Owens and Donald Bergherm, associate commissioner for operations, in Washington Monday in an effort to get the IRS to expand a regulation allowing payments to private citizens who help in tax evasion cases to cover law enforcement as well.

"Florida is now conducting sophisticated financial investigations in bringing civil forfeiture cases under the racketeering law," Smith said. "These cases hold the potential for IRS recoveries in the multi-million-dollar range."

He said a single FDLE investigation in south Florida put the IRS in a position to ask for more than $300 million in back taxes.

Graham Signs Education Reform Bill

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham today signed into law a major education reform package that Senate President Curtis Peterson calls "one of the most advanced programs in the country."

The legislation will impose tougher high school graduation requirements, enhance math and science programs, implement a seventh period of the school day and begin the process of merit pay for deserving teachers. Peterson, who sponsored the "RAISE" bill which included most of the education reforms, called the bill signing a culmination of a lot of hard work by the Senate, the House and the governor.

See related stories, page 4B

The bill signing ceremony was held just an hour before the Legislature reconvened in special session to begin work on a $227.8 million package of additional spending for education.

The funding package, which was worked out by Graham, Peterson and House Speaker Lee Moffitt, D-Tampa, ran into trouble during informal legislative meetings Monday, however.

Multi-national corporations and south Florida politicians and civic leaders said one element of the package, which would remove the tax exemption business currently enjoys on profits made in foreign countries, would have a negative effect on the state's business climate.

The Legislature finally agreed to the RAISE bill late last month after the regular session ended June 3 with the House and Senate pushing opposing education legislation.

The agreement was hammered out in a three-week series of extended and special sessions.

Alabama Schools Target Of Desegregation Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration, under severe criticism for its civil rights policies, has made public universities and colleges in Alabama the targets of its first school desegregation lawsuit.

In a suit filed in U.S. District Court in Birmingham, Ala., the Justice Department charged Monday the state maintained and perpetuated a system of "racial dualism" at 16 campuses.

In Alabama, Gov. George Wallace, one of the defendants in the suit, said he would study the situation before determining how the state would react.

"I am not surprised inasmuch as I have noted recently that several other states have experienced similar" pressure to desegregate schools, Wallace said in a statement.

The case is the first school desegregation suit filed since President Reagan took office more than 2.5 years ago. It comes at a time when the administration is trying to polish its image on civil rights.

Last month, Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, the administration's chief civil rights enforcer, took an unprecedented and widely publicized trip to Mississippi to investigate complaints that blacks face obstacles in registering to vote.

The government suit asked the federal court to bar the state from maintaining and perpetuating "racial dualism" in the state-supported system of higher education and to require them to develop plans to eliminate all segregation.

The Alabama case is one of three school desegregation cases that have been authorized by the Justice Department. The other two, which involve secondary or elementary schools, have not yet been filed.

The government charged Alabama did not allow blacks to attend many of its schools of higher education until it was ordered to do so in 1963.

Since then, the government said, the state has provided black students with fewer opportunities than white students for public higher education and denied them opportunities available to whites.

"As a result of defendants' racially discriminatory practices and policies of admission, faculty hiring and assignment, and provisions of facilities, resources and curricular and extracurricular programs and activities, the institutions of the Alabama system of public higher education remain largely segregated by race," the government said.

Reynolds said the suit was filed following more than a year of negotiations with the state. He said the government is willing to renew discussions to settle the case.

Dr. Wayne Echols, spokesman for the Alabama Commission on Higher Education, said, "We will continue negotiations and see what issues we can resolve."

"We just remain hopeful that certain parts of the suit can be settled out of court and we are glad the Justice Department is still willing to negotiate," he said.

The lawsuit also said the state created a racially dual system of higher education in the Huntsville area by opening a branch of the University of Alabama there in competition with Alabama A&M University, a black school.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Two Israelis Killed, 16 Wounded In Bombing

United Press International

A remote-controlled bomb exploded near a convoy of Israeli army reservists deep in southern Lebanon, killing two soldiers and wounding 16 others, the military command said today.

The attack came Monday afternoon near the town of Hasbaya, about 7 miles north of the Israeli border. It was the latest in a series of attacks on Israeli troops and brought to 504 the number of Israeli soldiers killed since the invasion of Lebanon 13 months ago.

The Israeli military said the remote-controlled bomb, estimated to have explosive charges of up to 150 pounds, exploded as a convoy passed, overturning one troop-carrying truck where two soldiers were killed and 16 wounded.

Israel Radio said the convoy consisted of three trucks and two jeeps. Hasbaya lies in the heart of a proposed security zone, extending 27 miles north of the Israeli border, that Israeli seeks in southern Lebanon to ensure the safety of its northern border settlements.

Sabotage Not Ruled Out

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — Authorities investigating the crash of an Ecuadorian airliner that killed all 119 people on board say they are receiving different explanations for the fiery crash — the worst in the country's history.

"Sabotage has not been ruled out yet," said a spokesman for TAME airlines. He said the Boeing 737 was fully inspected before it left Quito and was in "perfect condition."

The TAME jet crashed into a ravine at the foot of a mountain outside of Cuenca about noon Monday near the end of a 45-minute flight from Quito, 250 miles away.

Witnesses at first said the aircraft, which was carrying 113 passengers and six crew members, exploded as it approached the runway at Cuenca's Mariscal Lamar Airport and crashed in flames into the ravine.

Civil aeronautics officials later indicated other witnesses said they saw the tail of the airplane hit a mountain peak a mile short of the runway and burst into flames.

Martial Law Near End?

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland's Communist government signaled it was edging closer to lifting martial law and Cardinal Jozef Glemp said he expected the country's 19-month state of emergency would end in 10 days.

A ranking official of the national parliament, the Sejm, said late Monday the deputies would meet next week on the martial law issue, apparently to write into law some of the special police powers assumed during the military takeover of the government in December 1981.

Glemp told reporters he hoped lifting martial law would be accompanied by an amnesty "of a general character" for political prisoners and activists who went underground when the Solidarity free trade union was outlawed.

One fast phone call before you replace your air conditioner and we'll pay you up to $600 cash.

FPL will pay you up to $600 cash if you replace your money-wasting old air conditioning system with an energy-efficient central air conditioner or heat pump.

You get cash back on your installation now, and your new system will also pay you by lowering your cooling costs now and for years to come. In addition, FPL will pay you $177 more if you have a contractor add a heat recovery unit to your new central air conditioner or heat pump. By using waste heat from your air conditioning system, this unit can almost eliminate water heating costs during the air conditioning season.

For qualifying details, contact any air conditioning dealer displaying the Watt-Wise™ Products Program symbol, or call FPL's Watt-Wise Line for a list of dealers participating in this program. And an FPL representative will personally check to see that the completed job meets our rigid standards.

This program benefits you and all our customers. Because it costs less than the oil necessary to generate the electricity wasted by inefficient cooling systems.

So pick up the phone. And pick up as much as $600.

We're working hard at being the kind of power company you want.

A free Home Energy Audit will provide more information. To arrange for one, send us this coupon or call the Watt-Wise Line weekdays 8 to 5.

Tuition Tax Credit: It Can Be Offered

Both public and private education will benefit from the recent Supreme Court decision upholding Minnesota's tax break for families with children in private schools. Freed now of the excuse that such aid might be overturned, Congress can realistically offer a tuition tax credit nationwide. If the congressmen have studied the arguments and done their home work on the facts, they'll vote yes.

The case made against the substance of tuition tax credits has, unfortunately, been ill-informed. There is the fallacious argument that a tax break for families with youngsters in private schools is essentially another tax break for the rich. The idea that most children in private schools are wealthy, though, is more elitist myth than fact. Sixty-two percent of families with children in private schools earn less than $25,000 a year. In the inner city, 72 percent earn less than $15,000. The real beneficiaries of a tax credit would be families that would like to send their children to private school, but can't afford it.

Ah, but a tuition credit snatches money from public schools at a time when they need it most, opponents insist. Actually, just the opposite: Tax credits will save money. It's true that giving a $300 credit to families, as the Reagan administration proposes, will drain $800 million in federal tax receipts. But if the 5 million children now in private schools suddenly attended public school, it would cost federal, state, and local governments an additional $13 billion, the Senate Finance Committee estimates. It is hardly unfair that the families who lift $13 billion from the public's back be given $800 million in return.

Here's another way of looking at the cost equation. The nation spends $2,500 for every student in the public schools. Private schooling costs less than $1,000 per student and, on the whole, does a better job. For every family that can afford to send a child to private school as a result of the credit, then, the country saves $1,500. The saved revenues can be used to reduce the cost of public education. Or to spend more per public school student. Or both.

If, in the process, the public schools find themselves forced into a little healthy competition, it can't hurt. Politicians, steelworkers, sailors, and newspaper editorial writers compete; why not teachers? The National Education Association, and other public school lobbyists, argue that public schools are disadvantaged in any such competition. Public schools, they say, have to take whatever walks through the door; private schools skim the easy-to-instruct cream of the crop.

That argument, too, is good on the chalkboard, but short on facts. Private schools are less segregated economically and racially than public schools, according to the Coleman Report of 1982. Many, like the Marva Collins school in Chicago, concentrate on teaching precisely the children whom public educators now say they can't help — and do it, again, with less money than the public schools have at their disposal. The NEA may have its cause-and-effect reversed. Good teaching and parental involvement in the private schools is creating better students, rather than smarter students somehow creating better teachers.

The Reagan plan for tuition tax credits isn't ideal. A straight voucher system, with a more generous grant than $300, would do more to improve education and save the government more money. Still, Mr. Reagan's plan would be a prudent experiment, testing the virtues of a voucher without gearing up yet another federal bureaucracy. Both public and private schools would benefit. But mostly, students would — and that's the real interest group with which Congress should be concerned.

If the pay of state legislators was cut off while they were in special session, perhaps they would come to agreement more quickly. Right? Wrong.

State legislators receive $12,000 annual salary for what the state considers their part-time jobs as lawmakers. They receive no additional salary for being in Tallahassee for special sessions.

They do receive a per diem of $50. Many of the hotels and motels in Tallahassee give "state rates" to legislators and state employees of $29 per day for lodging, which leaves each $21 per day to eat three meals on.

While each state representative may have an aide or a secretary on $50 per diem in his capital office during regular sessions and state senators are allowed an aide and a secretary on per diem during regular sessions, they are not permitted to have staff members there during special sessions. That is unless they want to foot the cost of food and lodging for them out of their own pockets.

In some rare instances, legislators are permitted to have aides on per diem during special sessions. This was allowed for members of conference committees during the first 11 day special session immediately after the regular session this year.

Since that time per diem has not been authorized for legislators' staff. A staff member may be there if he or she wishes to pay his or her own expenses.

A legislator is paid 20 cents per mile for driving from his home to Tallahassee for regular or special sessions and when an aide is authorized the aide is also paid 20 cents per mile. If a legislator opts to fly, he is reimbursed at the commercial rate, but an aide doesn't have the option of flying at state expense.

State Rep. Carl Selph's aide, Suzanne Ertel reports that the allowed driving mileage from the Casselberry legislator's home to Tallahassee is 241 miles each way which equates to $48.20 each way. If he chooses to fly, the cost each way is $110 from Orlando.

So, it doesn't appear likely that legislators are anxious to be in Tallahassee beyond the regular 60-day annual sessions. Without an aide, the legislator is isolated from his constituents who might wish to call him; he doesn't have personal staff to assist him with research and the like; and he must be away from his regular way of earning a living.

Perhaps that's why most legislators are self-employed. How many employers would be understanding enough to grant leave for days on end during special sessions as well as 60 days yearly for regular sessions?

Under a new health care cost containment bill, sponsored by state Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, insurance companies could offer reduced rates to subscribers willing to accept medical care from company selected doctors and company selected hospitals.

Grindle says this would cut medical costs because an insurance company could guarantee hospitals and doctors a certain number of patients.

Grindle also worked during the regular session on the odometer bill which can result in mileage being recorded for vehicles on titles and registrations at the state capital in a few years, thus guaranteeing a purchaser that the odometer reading on a vehicle he has purchased is accurate.

"It was a good session," the freshman legislator said.

Amherst's Peculiar Behavior

What's wrong with U.S. colleges? That's a question that many people are asking these days. Some of the most prestigious institutions in the country engage in some of the most peculiar practices.

For example, it has come to light that Amherst College, an old-line New England college, has set up a Corliss Lamont Lectureship For A Peaceful World with a gift of $150,000 from Mr. Lamont.

You may ask, so what? Well, a recent issue of "The New Republic Magazine," a journal with the most impeccable liberal credentials, features the statement that a few years ago, "Corliss Lamont, the old stalwart of the National Council on American-Soviet Friendship, organized a response to the allegation that the Vietnamese government is guilty of human rights abuses." Mr. Lamont, whom Amherst College honors with a lectureship, declared, "We have examined these charges and find them to be based on distortion and exaggeration." He sees no evil in the bloody North Vietnamese regime.

Anyone who has followed Left movements over the past 40 years knows Corliss Lamont as a household word. Dr. E. Merrill Root, in his book "Collectivism On Campus," pointed out that Mr. Lamont, son of one of the wealthiest men in America, wrote books in praise of the Soviet Union and never said an unkind word about collectivism in its most extreme forms. When the communist "New Masses" was in financial difficulties, Mr. Lamont signed an appeal for funds for the journal. And there is much, much more to his record.

All this is the public record, set down in countless articles and books.

Why, therefore, should Amherst College, a leading New England college, accept funding from Mr. Lamont for a "peace" lectureship? Is the Amherst administration and faculty ignorant of Mr. Lamont's background, interests and political orientation? Mr. Lamont has the right to be pro-Soviet, but that doesn't excuse a college from accepting a grant from such a source and honoring the donor in the process.

It's very hard not to suggest that there is a Left bias in the administration at Amherst. The choice seems to fall between ignorance and bias, and Amherst is not known for its ignorance.

One also wonders whether the alumni have any idea whom their alma mater is honoring. Unlike administrators and political scientists, the ordinary alumnus is not too likely to recognize the name Corliss Lamont, at least the younger Amherst grad. Someone should wake the alumni up and urge them to call the administration to account.

Senator Has Oil's Interest At Heart

WASHINGTON — Not long after I reported on the legislative favors Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., had done for oil companies that appeared in his personal stock portfolio, he resigned as chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee.

Wallop says his departure from the Ethics Committee had nothing to do with the apparent conflicts of interest I reported. He adamantly refused to concede that there had been any conflict at all.

But now that he's no longer burdened with the chore of being the Senate's ethical watchdog, the lanky, Yale-educated rancher seems to have redoubled his efforts on behalf of Big Oil's interests — and, coincidentally, his own.

Wallop's 1982 financial disclosure form shows he has between $35,000 and $115,000 invested in Exxon, Standard Oil of California and Standard of Indiana. He received $18,025 in oil royalties from a Getty subsidiary, bringing his total income from that company since 1978 to nearly $100,000.

Big Oil also contributed $115,000 to Wallop's successful re-election campaign last year.

My associate Jack Hatfield checked the senator's recent legislative record and turned up some flagrant examples of Wallop's penchant for giving the oil industry a helping hand:

— As chairman of a Finance subcommittee, Wallop introduced legislation that would give strip-mining companies an estimated $15 million tax break next year and $21 million more in 1985-1988. The bill would allow strip miners to write off the future cost of land reclamation before the improvements are actually made. Getty, Exxon, Standard Oil of California and Standard of Indiana all have extensive strip-mining operations and stand to reap a windfall if their senatorial stockholder's bill passes.

— Wallop's Wyoming Wilderness Bill, passed by the Senate in April and now pending in the House, would open up 300,000 acres of proposed wilderness — including the pristine Gros Ventre area near Jackson Hole — to oil and gas drilling.

Getty has been battling in court for the right to develop an estimated $2 billion worth of gas and oil reserves in the Gros Ventre region. Wallop's bill would hand them the drilling rights on a platter.

— As chairman of an Energy and Natural Resources subcommittee, Wallop introduced a bill that would have given the Interior secretary blanket authority to sell off land administered by the National Park Service — including coal and oil acreage coveted by the senator's preferred oil companies. Wallop denied having tried to slip one by; when the implications of the bill were pointed out by other committee members, Wallop agreed to amend it.

— Wallop led the successful floor fight against a proposal to ban coal leasing on certain federal lands. The ban covered more than 1 billion tons of coal that Wallop's four favorite oil companies have shown an interest in leasing the rights to over the next two years. Their hopes are still alive, thanks to Wallop's efforts.

Footnote: Wallop has refused to comment on these apparent conflicts of interest between his financial holdings and his legislative actions.

A REAL BUMMER: Amnesty International, the human rights organization that tries to smooth over bitter political hatreds by appealing to mankind's better nature, may have gone a bit too far in a recent issue of its newsletter, Matchbox. Included in a graphic collage of "the important things in Georgia's history" to mark Amnesty International's annual meeting in Atlanta was a picture of the most hated dandy of them all: Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman.

There was Uncle Billy's grizzled mug staring out in such distinguished company as King George II, for whom Georgia was named, the state bird (brown thrasher), flower (Cherokee rose), fruit (Georgia peach) and, of course, a suggestion of the Confederate Stars and Bars.

"We needed a graphic in a hurry, and the artist wanted a photo of someone who had had a historical impact upon Georgia," a chagrined editor Marcia Schwen told my reporter Kathy McDonald. The artist tried to find a picture of civil rights leader and Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young, but for some reason couldn't.

So they settled in haste on Gen. Sherman, whose impact on Georgia consisted of laying waste to the state "from Atlanta to the sea" — in the words of the old Union veterans' song.

ROBERT WAGMAN

Brainstorm That Flopped

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Agriculture Department had a problem: Crop subsidies paid by the federal government reached an all-time high at the same time in which crop yields — and thus crop surpluses — hit a record.

Strong action was needed — and so, two years ago, Agriculture Secretary John Block announced a new federal program: payment-in-kind, or "PIK." PIK, he said, would support farm prices and farmers' income while reducing surpluses, and all at a lower cost to the federal government.

PIK is now in its second year, and it has developed some severe problems — so severe, in fact, that many wonder if the program can survive.

At first, PIK seemed like a stroke of genius. Until then, the federal government had paid farmers in cash to take some or all of their acreage out of production. But two years ago, the government lacked enough funds to pay for all the acreage that had to be taken out of production while, at the same time, it held ever-increasing crop surpluses.

And so PIK was born: Instead of paying farmers in cash, the government would pay them in kind, with crops from the surplus. The government would give a grain farmer grain so he wouldn't plant grain.

But the plan has faced a host of snags. Some of the most nagging:

— PIK costs a bundle. One estimate puts the cost in grain alone at more than $12 billion — making PIK the most costly subsidy program in history.

— In practice, PIK has been a windfall for large-scale farmers, not the small farmers, who need the help most. Under previous subsidy programs, the most any farmer could receive was $50,000. However, PIK has no limit: Many farmers receive more than $100,000 worth of surplus crops, and it's reported that some are getting more than $500,000 worth.

— Many farmers have simply opted to not plant at all, putting all of their acreage into PIK. As a result, their profits have been much higher than if they had harvested a crop.

— The program has been so attractive, especially to large farmers, that much more acreage has been put into PIK than expected — perhaps as much as 100 percent more.

Now PIK faces a new problem which is more serious than any of the above. In some crops, the acreage put under PIK is so vast that the government doesn't have enough surplus crops with which to pay the PIK farmers.

For example, by one estimate, the Department of Agriculture "owes" cotton growers about one million bales more than it has in its surplus. The department's response has been to require cotton farmers to "lend" part of their crop to the government; the government would then give back the lent crop to the farmers as payment not to grow more.

If that's not confusing enough, Agriculture wants to "borrow" this cotton at 55 cents a pound — well under the market price, since cotton's open-market price is more than 80 cents a pound. Cotton farmers claim that they will lose upwards of $2,000 per acre.

WILLIAM RUSHER

What Price Ethics?

NEW YORK (NEA) — President Reagan was perfectly right, of course, when, at his press conference, he responded to Godfrey Sperling's question about the Carter campaign documents ("Do you see this merely as a highly political effort by the Democrats?") by arching his eyebrows and saying in mock surprise, "Godfrey, how could you think there is anything political in this?" But Mr. Reagan is much too smart a politician himself to think that the whole issue will go away on that account.

It is, in fact, a purely political attempt — though not so much by the Democrats as by their faithful allies in the liberal media — to capture some moral high ground from which to pour boiling oil all over the Reagan forces. And, as Sam Donaldson's questions to the president make clear, they are not going to be put off by his attempt to focus attention on the question of technical legality ("I want the Justice Department to find out if anybody did anything that broke the law"). Suppose whatever happened was not technically illegal but was nonetheless arguably "unethical"?

It would take a pretty strong stomach to watch one or more of the president's top aides walk the plank at the behest of virtuous liberals in the media for doing precisely what those selfsame journalists do every day: i.e., accept and use confidential information from anonymous sources in the government. If that's so all-fired "unethical," how come political reporters are forever hanging Pulitzer Prizes all over each other for doing it?

But life is not fair, as President Kennedy observed, and we would be well advised to keep our eye on the ball as this drama unfolds. It doesn't matter in the slightest whether they were actually used; all that matters is how the Reagan camp got them, and whether the circumstances can be said to raise a serious issue of propriety (not necessarily just "legality"). If they do, Mr. Reagan may well have to consign at least one of his high-ranking aides to the flames to save himself from serious damage.

We are in, then, for a series of televised hearings — the longer and more dramatic the better, from the standpoint of the Democrats and the media — in which Bill Casey (who was Reagan's campaign manager), as well as Baker, Gergen, Stockman and perhaps others are dragged up Capitol Hill and grilled by House members under oath about what they knew and when they knew it. At the moment, Casey's memory, or rather lack of it, is acting as a sort of firebrake against revelations concerning the original source (or sources) of the documents.

PORT ORANGE — The host Port Orange Junior League All-Stars now know how it feels to be cruising along and, all of a sudden, have the drive shaft fall out. Port Orange had built a 5-2 lead going into the seventh inning here Monday night, but the pitching collapsed and Sanford rallied for nine runs en route to a 11-5 victory in the first round of District 4 Junior Major League Tournament play.

Sanford will play the winner of Monday's first game, Holly Hill, tonight at 6 with the winner advancing to the finals. Sanford will have Craig Dixon on the mound tonight. In a loser's bracket game tonight, Ormond Beach meets Port Orange. The winner of the district advances to the state tournament in Jacksonville.

David Rape's two-run single past a drawn-in Port Orange infield got the rally started for Sanford in the seventh and Dixon capped it off by blasting a 350-foot grand slam home run over the center field fence as Sanford scored nine runs on three hits and was issued six walks as Port Orange went through four pitchers in the inning. Terry "The Cat" Miller kept Sanford in the game as he scattered five hits, struck out 12 and walked just three in going the distance for the pitching victory.

"I could tell from infield practice that we were going to be a little shaky to start off," Sanford manager Al

Whitted said, "But, I knew we would come around and get back in the game."

Port Orange, the defending district champion, got on the board first with a run in the bottom of the first inning. Mark Bovier led off with a double to right center and moved to third on a bunt by Eric Phillips. Bovier scored on the same play on an error on Miller. Anthony Campanella then reached on a fielder's choice to put runners on first and second with no outs. Sanford's second baseman, Mike Edwards, put a stop to a possible Port Orange rally as he fielded a grounder, tagged out Campanella and fired to first for a double play and inning-ending double play.

Both sides went down in order in the second inning and Sanford came back in the third to tie the score at 1-1. Dixon led off with a single to right and David Goldstick followed by drilling a RBI triple to left center.

The host team responded with a three-run rally in the bottom of the third to take a 4-1 lead. Bovier reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and went to third on a balk. Phillips then laid down a bunt single and he stole second to put runners on second and third. Campanella followed with a two-run single up the middle and he took second on the throw home. Cliff Bennett then looped a single to right to chase home Campanella.

Port Orange tacked on another run in the bottom of the fifth to extend its lead to 5-1. With one out, Arden Gregory reached first on an error, went to second on a passed ball, reached third on a wild pitch and scored on another Sanford error.

With time running out, Sanford came away with one run in the top of the sixth to cut Port Orange's lead to 5-2. Miller led off with a single up the middle, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Arthur Hersey's bloop single to left.

Still, things looked pretty bleak for Sanford as Port Orange entered the seventh inning with only three outs to go for the victory. Port Orange starter, Paul Larubio, who had breezed through the first six innings, began the seventh in an inauspicious manner as he walked both Dixon and Goldstick. Both runners advanced a base on a wild pitch, and Rape, who led the Junior League with a .563 average, lined a single up the middle to drive in both Dixon and Goldstick and bring Sanford to within a run, 5-4.

Port Orange then lifted Larubio and brought in Campanella. The big right-hander couldn't find the strike zone, though, and he was lifted after walking Mike Craig Dixon hammered a grand-slam homer to cap a seventh-inning rally as Sanford whipped Port Orange, 11-5. Tonight, Dixon will try to do as well on the mound as manager Al Whitted's Juniors take on Holly Hill.

Edwards and Eddie Korgan to load the bases. Port Orange then went to Bovier and, by that time, the catcher's mitt seemed like a pair of tweezers to the Port Orange pitching staff.

Bovier started his relief stint by walking Miller to force in a run and tie the score at 5-5. Hersey then hit into a fielder's choice as Edwards was thrown out at the plate. But, Sanford still had the bases loaded with only one out. Leonard Lucas was up next, and he drew a walk to force home another run and give Sanford its first lead of the game, 6-5. Alonzo Gainey followed with a RBI single and Dixon followed by hammering a 2-1 pitch into oblivion. Port Orange then took out Bovier and put in Gregory with Sanford in control, 11-5.

Miller came back in the bottom of the seventh to retire the side in order as Sanford, who lost two in a row a year ago, claimed the victory.

"Pitching was the key for us tonight," Whitted said. "Terry (Miller) kept us in the game all the way."

Altamonte Explosion Chases Rolling Hills; Oviedo Tumbles, 4-3

By Sam Cook

Altamonte's National League Major All-Stars exploded for six runs in the fourth inning Monday night to erase a 3-2 deficit en route to an 11-3 victory over Rolling Hills in the first round of the District 14, Division 1 Baseball Tournament at Rolling Hills.

Tonight at 7:30, manager Wayne Weger's 11-and 12-year-olds will host West Oak Ridge at Altamonte Eastmonte. Weger said he would go with either Chris Radcliff, Brian Parent or Shane Lunsford on the mound. Altamonte's Division 2 entry, the Americans, will open against St. John at Crescent City at 5:30 p.m. Manager Don Birle will send his son, Alex, to the mound.

Rolling Hills' starter Paul Tulenko broke up a scoreless duel between he and Altamonte hurler Wes Weger with a long home run over the right-center field fence for a 1-0 lead in the third inning.

In the bottom of the frame, though, Altamonte bounced back with two runs to take the lead. With one out, Todd Luke walked and Weger singled. Radcliff rapped a groundball to the shortstop who forced Weger at second. The second baseman's throw was wild to first and Luke alertly scored all the way from second as Radcliff hurried to second. Chris Knutson then looped a single to right to score Radcliff.

Rolling Hills played long ball with Weger's fastball again in the fourth. Travis Smith powered a leadoff homer over the right-field scoreboard and one out later, Dale Brewer did the same over the left-field fence for a 3-2 Rolling Hills advantage.

"We got the ball up high and they were an awfully aggressive fastball hitting team," said manager Weger. "The best thing about it was there wasn't anyone on base at the time (of the three homers). Wes went to his curve and off-speed pitches more after that."

And, after that, the Rolling Hills' bats went dormant. Weger, a fluid right-hander, retired the last eight hitters in order, five via strikeouts. For the game, Weger allowed four hits, whiffed 11 batters and didn't walk a man.

Altamonte drove Tulenko from the game in the fourth with an excellent display of baserunning and some timely line drives. Jeff Conklin started the fracas with a one-out single and Mike McNamee followed with a squib hit down the first base line. Pat De Luca hit a high bouncer over the mound on which McNamee was forced at second. Leadoff man Luke then drew his third straight walk on a 3-2 offering to load the bases for Weger.

Weger atoned for his gopher balls with a smash into left which chased home Conklin and pinch runner Scotty Conklin for a 4-3 lead. Both runners moved up on the throw home, and when Tulenko bounced one off the screen,

Baseball

Luke scooted home, barely ahead of catcher Tony Meyers' diving tag.

Radcliff then laced a single to left which plated Weger and when Knutson followed with a single, it was curtains for Tulenko. Reliever Nolan Duncan followed and finally got catcher Jerrey Thurston on a called third strike, but not before the Nationals had added two more runs on wild pitches for an 8-3 bulge.

In the fifth, Parent ripped his second hit. McNamee added a bunt single and a steal and Luke singled home both runners for a 10-3 lead. Weger then smashed his third hit of the night to score Luke for the final 11-3 margin.

"One of our strong points is our speed," said Weger. "We feel if we're in a tight ball game, we can break it open with our baserunning."

Elsewhere in District 14, Division 2 action, Oviedo lost a tough 4-3 contest to Mount Dora at Oviedo.

Archie Murray struck out 15 Oviedo hitters and smacked a home run in the fifth inning while hurling a three-hitter for the victory. Charles Knotts suffered the loss. Oviedo will play Thursday at Mount Dora against either Mount Dora or Southwest Volusia in the double-elimination tournament. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Oviedo jumped ahead, 1-0, in the first when Chad Duncan singled, moved to second and third on passed balls, and stole home for the run.

Mount Dora moved ahead, 2-1, but Oviedo tied it with a run in the third. Todd Kraph walked, stole second and scored on a two-out single by Dave Cole.

Murray clubbed his home to break the tie in the fifth, but Oviedo came back again to deadlock the game. Knotts singled and moved to second on a passed ball. When the pitcher turned his back, Knotts broke for third and when the pitcher threw the ball into left field allowing Knotts to score.

Mount Dora, though, pushed across a run in the top of the sixth for the win.

Oviedo played without shortstop-pitcher Richard Cobb who underwent surgery for a severely gashed foot Monday. He will miss the playoffs.

Laszaic Lost For Playoffs

The Altamonte Junior All-Stars received some bad news Monday night when it was learned Anthony Laszaic, a standout pitcher and hitter, suffered a broken right wrist when he fell from his bicycle on Monday and will miss the rest of the playoffs.

Laszaic was riding on the same bicycle with a friend when he slipped off the front end and landed on his wrist. The wrist was to be placed in a cast today and will be on from four to six weeks, according to Tony Laszaic, Anthony's father.

On Sunday, the smooth right-hander tossed a five-hitter as Altamonte dropped Oviedo, 7-1. On Saturday, he ripped three hits including a double, driving in two runs as the Juniors routed Mount Dora, 19-0.

Altamonte plays the survivor of the loser's bracket next Monday.

The crowd gets a perfect look at Oviedo's Chad Duncan scoring on a steal of home as Mount Dora pitcher Archie Murray can't handle the throw while trying to apply the tag.

Murray was much better on the mound, striking out 15 hitters as Mount Dora edged Oviedo, 4-3, in Little League Major All-Star Baseball Tournament action at Oviedo.

'Well-Rounded' Seniors Open With St. Johns; Lady Lake Squeeze Bunt Surprises Oviedo, 6-5

Baseball

Altamonte Senior League All-Star manager Clayton Garrison is convinced his team can hit and field — but he's taking a "wait and see" approach to his pitching.

"This is a pretty well rounded team," said Garrison Sunday while figuring out the starting lineup for today's District 14, Division 2 opening-round game against St. Johns at the Westmonte Recreation Field at 5:30. "We've got a lot of hitting and a good defense. Our speed should be real good, too."

Leading the fast feet is shortstop T.J. Scaletta. "T.J. may be the top shortstop to come out of this league in the last few years," said Garrison. "He can really move on the basepaths."

Joining Scaletta in the infield will be second baseman Andy Dunn, third baseman Mike Pinckes and first baseman Kenny Oswald. Oswald and Dunn both played for Garrison's Braves while Pinckes played for the Phillies.

The outfield will be comprised of John Bane (Angels) in right, Ryan Lisle (Indians) in left and Kenny Chapdelaine (Braves) in center. Big Kevin Bass (Braves) will handle the catching.

Garrison will go with right-hander Neal Harris on the mound and right-hander Mark Coffey as his first reliever today against St. Johns. Harris turned in several outstanding performances last year when the Altamonte

13-year-olds finished second in the state to Tampa's Belmont Heights. "We're not quite as deep in the pitching as we'd like," said Garrison. "But we've got a lot of kids who can pitch, we'll just have to see how it goes."

One reason the staff lacks depth is because right-hander Mike Schmit, the ace of the Altamonte leagues the past few years, will not play. Schmit was selected as a member of the Central Florida team which was to represent Florida in the Royal Dutch Federation Tournament in Amsterdam, Holland.

Garrison ticks off the names of Chapdelaine, Bass, Pinckes and Tim Smith (Braves) as other hurlers he has available.

"We've also got a pretty good bench," he said. Another speedster, Bruce Carlson (Yankers), is available for first base or outfield. Coffey will catch when Bass pitches while Smith, Chris Waxler (Astros) and Eddie Garrison (Braves) can fill in where needed.

If Altamonte wins today, it will play the winner of the Southwest Volusia-Maitland game on Wednesday at Mount Dora at 7:30 p.m.

EUSTIS — Curt Lewis squeezed home John Timmon with the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning Monday night as Lady Lake surprised Oviedo, 6-5, in the first round of District 14, Division 2 Little League Senior All-Star playoffs.

Manager Tommy Ferguson's Pirates, who finished second in the Top Team Tournament, will play the winner of tonight's Lady Lake-Deltona game on Wednesday at 7:30 at Eustis.

Lake Lake jumped to a 5-2 lead after six innings, but Oviedo broke loose for three runs in the top of the seventh to tie the game. Catcher Mark Hofmann contributed an RBI double and two Lady Lake errors helped the cause.

In the bottom of the seventh, however, Tom Gilpert reached Oviedo reliever Terry Gammons for a single, moved to second on a one-out walk and to third on a wild pitch. Lewis then dropped his suicide squeeze in front of Gammons and the run scored as Gammons got to the ball.

Gammons relieved starter Dave Wood after Wood had fielding problems which helped Lady Lake take a 3-1 first-inning lead which it increased to 5-2 with two more in the fourth inning. Oviedo made five errors.

Baker Dusts Off Cardinals With 2-Run Homer In 9th

United Press International

After living up to his nickname for 18 days, Los Angeles outfielder Dusty Baker finally shook the dust off his bat Monday night.

Following Ken Landreaux' RBI double that brought the Dodgers to within 6-5, Baker leaned into a full-count, one-out delivery from St. Louis reliever Bruce Sutter and slammed his second home run of the game to give the Dodgers a 7-6 triumph at Los Angeles.

"I told myself to forget about the first half (of the season) and concentrate on the second," said Baker, who had four hits and four RBI to break a hitting drought and raise his batting average 10 points to .244.

"I think that was the first hit I could remember off Sutter," added Baker, whose homers were his first since June 24. "I was especially anxious to do well on national television. I knew my mom and dad (were) watching."

Landreaux, playing his first contest after missing six games with a fractured finger, had two hits and two RBI.

"Coming back in this fashion looks like things are going to come around for us," said Landreaux. "I'm glad to be back."

Sutter, whose record dropped to 7-5 with the loss, offered no excuses.

"I had some good pitches and some bad pitches," he said. "But I couldn't get away from my bad pitches."

Joe Beckwith, 1-2, pitched the last two innings for the win.

Phillies 11, Reds 7

At Cincinnati, Mike Schmidt smacked a two-out grand slam, his second home run of the game. In the 11th inning to lift the Phillies. Schmidt, who had a solo homer in the third, had six RBI in the game as the Phillies overcame 15 men left on base.

Braves 6, Expos 4

At Montreal, Rafael Ramirez slammed a three-run homer in the eighth inning to power the Braves from a 4-2 deficit. Rick Camp, 6-7, worked four innings of relief for the win and Steve Bedrosian earned his 13th save. Tim Lincecum walked three times and struck out twice for Montreal.

Padres 6, Cubs 5

At San Diego, Tim Flannery

Baseball

highlighted a six-run first inning with his first career grand slam and the Padres held off the Cubs, despite two home runs by Mel Hall. John Montefusco, 8-1, pitched four innings of relief and Sid Monge worked the ninth for his fourth save. Ferguson Jenkins, 3-5, was the loser.

Pirates 3, Giants 2

At San Francisco, Mike Easler cracked his fifth home run of the season leading off the top of the ninth inning Monday night to lift Pittsburgh. Reliever Manny Sarmiento, 2-3, got help from Rod Scurry, who earned his third save. Giants starter Fred Breining, 6-6, took the loss. San Francisco's Darrell Evans hit his 20th home run.

Tigers 12, Angels 6

If Larry Herndon's son turns out to be a chip off the old block, he can look to his day of birth for the reason why.

Herndon collected five hits, including two doubles and a home run, and drove in three runs Monday night in Detroit to propel the Tigers to a 12-6 victory over the California Angels. Earlier in the day, his wife gave birth to his fourth child and first son.

"It was a real good day," Herndon decided. "I feel real good about the whole thing. The birth started the whole day. I just felt good at having a son who's healthy."

Herndon had a lot of support in the game as Detroit pounded out a season-high 19 hits in coming back from a 3-0 first-inning deficit produced by Brian Downing's seventh home run of the season. The Tigers roared back with five runs in their half off starter Geoff Zahn, including a leadoff home run by Lou Whitaker.

Orioles 7, A's 6

At Baltimore, Eddie Murray and Ken Singleton blasted early home runs as the Orioles jumped into a 7-0 lead and then held on. Dennis Martinez, 5-11, scattered nine hits over six innings and Dan Morogello earned his first major-league save. Murray's homer was his 14th and Singleton hit his 11th. Davey Lopes connected for his 10th for Oakland in the eighth.

Twins 4, Yankees 2

At Minneapolis, Gary Gaetti hit a two-run homer, his 11th, and Gary Ward ripped an RBI triple to lead the Twins. Bobby Castillo, 5-6, posted his second complete game. Steve Balboni's two-run homer gave the Yankees a 2-0 lead in the second inning.

Red Sox 6, Mariners 5

At Boston, Jerry Remy's fielder's-choice grounder with one out in the 10th drove in Dave Stapleton from third base. The Red Sox had tied the score 5-5 with none out in the ninth after Remy lashed a leadoff double off Seattle reliever Bill Caudill.

White Sox 9, Indians 2

At Chicago, home runs by Carlton Fisk and Greg Luzinski paced a 14-hit attack. In the fourth Fisk drove his 11th homer to left and then Luzinski's 14th homer into the left-field upper deck made it 6-1 and knocked out Len Barker, 6-9. Britt Burns, 5-5, went the distance for Chicago. Gorman Thomas hit his 11th homer for Cleveland.

Blue Jays 7, Royals 4

At Kansas City, Mo., Willie Upshaw opened the 11th with a triple to center field and scored on a single by Lloyd Moseby to spark Toronto to its fourth straight victory. Randy Moffitt, 4-0, was the winner although he blew a 4-2 lead in the ninth. Gaylord Perry's first appearance in a Kansas City uniform proved fruitless.

Rangers 5, Brewers 4

At Arlington, Texas, Bobby Johnson smacked a two-out solo home run in the 15th as the Rangers broke a five-game losing streak. The game lasted 4 hours, 42 minutes. Milwaukee center fielder Rick Manning became the eighth outfielder in major-league history to record 12 putouts in a game when he grabbed Wayne Tolleson's leadoff fly in the bottom of the 14th. The feat has been accomplished five times in extra innings.

Howsam Succeeds Wagner

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Bob Howsam, who forged the Cincinnati Reds into the "Big Red Machine" last decade, is returning to try to repair what crumbled under his successor, Dick Wagner.

Wagner was fired Monday as president and general manager of the last-place Reds.

Dusty Baker belted a two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning Monday night to lift the Dodgers past St. Louis, 7-6.

In And Around Longwood

Chamber Sets Blood Drive

The Longwood/Winter Springs Chamber of Commerce recently completed its membership drive and has received a total of 280 new members. Bruce Cox, membership chairman, said that since this was less than the goal the chamber set for new members, efforts to recruit new members will continue throughout the year.

The chamber, in conjunction with Gary Bemiller, is formulating plans for the annual blood drive. This outstanding program ensures that chamber members and their families will have access to blood at no expense when they donate blood.

Firemen of the City of Longwood will give free blood pressure checks, according to a chamber source. Free blood pressure checks will be held for anyone requesting them at the fire station located on West Warren Avenue, west of city hall.

The chamber honored two students recently with its "Business Student of the Month" award. An award was given to Becky Wheeler, a junior at Oviedo High School. Becky maintains a 3.67 grade average and her favorite school subjects are typing and chemistry. Becky has also had two years of French and is teacher's aid to the French teacher. She is a member of the International Club, and after graduation, plans on attending the University of Central Florida.

Also honored was Jenelle Morris, a senior at Lyman High School. Jenelle is an active member and secretary of FBLA, placed second in the county competition for Steno II and fifth in the District for the same. Jenelle, who is also a member of the National Honor Society, has been accepted to the Stenotype Institute of Jacksonville Beach and will major in court reporting.

Karen Warner

Four area students also received Scholarship Awards during the chamber's annual scholarship awards presentation. Walt Lee of Lyman High School introduced Mr. and Mrs. Donahue, who were accepting an extension Scholarship Award for their son Kevin. Kevin was the recipient of a Scholarship Award last year and the board voted to extend his scholarship for another year. Kevin is presently attending the University of Central Florida.

Kevin's brother Sean, a senior at Lyman High was next introduced by Mr. Lee, as the next scholarship winner for the 1983 award.

Patsy Munsky of Oviedo High School, presented the Scholarship Award to two Oviedo High School students. Linda Hamman, a senior at Oviedo High, received the scholarship by ranking top 10 in her class. She also participates in many clubs, including the Future Business Leaders of America, the Foreign Language Honor Society and Mu Alpha Theta. Linda will attend Seminole Community College with a major in computer science.

Paul A. L'Homme Jr., also a senior at Oviedo High, received a computer science scholarship from the University of Central Florida. Paul plans to attend the university, majoring in computer science. Paul has maintained a 3.75 grade average.

Special guest speaker for the chamber's June meeting was Lou Saban, head football coach for the University of Florida Knights. Coach Saban gave a preview of this year's schedule, and his attempts to have the University of Central Florida moved up to NCAA's IA ranking. Mr. Saban is the former head coach of the Buffalo Bills and the University of Miami.

Pat and Jason Pauska of Shore Road, Winter Springs, are excited to announce the arrival of their new baby girl, Jessica Ann, 11 pounds, was born June 6 at Orlando Regional Medical Center. Anyone who knows the Pauskas knows that Jessica Ann is a true miracle baby. During her pregnancy, Pat developed sugar diabetes and a blood problem. For months she had to make three trips a week to doctors, and go to the hospital weekly, keeping a close eye on her illness.

Proud Poppa Jason, a former Seminole County Deputy Sheriff, has recently become a detective with the sheriff's department. Jason also has had his share of illness this year. In March, Jason underwent surgery for a malignant mole on his chest. Doctors were able to remove the growth, and stop the cancer from spreading.

The Pauskas have two other children, Donna, 14, and Allison, 3. Pat and Jason wish to express their deepest thanks to all the doctors and nurses who gave so much support, and care to them during the birth of their baby. Congratulations Pat and Jason Pauska.

Miller Family Plans Reunion

The children of the late Eugene and Willie Ann Smith of Sanford will hold the first family reunion during the week of July 20-25.

The Millers were the parents of 12 children, nine of whom are still living. The family home was on the corner of 18th Street and South West Road. After the death of both parents 30 years ago, only one son, Arthur "Pooh" Miller, remained in Sanford. Miller, a retired employee of the City of Altamonte Springs, is the reunion chairman. He has lived in Sanford for more than 50 years and he and his wife of 46 years, Winnie Mae, have nine children.

Co-chairman of the family reunion is Vivian Miller

Golden of Crescent City. She and her husband, the Rev. James Golden Jr., have four children. Their oldest son James Golden III is a practicing attorney in Sanford.

The family banquet will be held on Saturday, July 23, at 7 p.m., at the Sanford Civic Center. Tickets are available from Anthony Miller or Attorney Golden.

Other activities of the week include a family worship service, a family picnic, shopping in downtown Sanford, a trip to Walt Disney World and a trip to Daytona Beach.

Friends of the family are also invited to join in the celebration. For information, contact Anthony Miller, 322-2730.

Anthony Miller and his sister, Vivian Miller Golden, co-chairmen of the Miller family reunion, are finalizing plans for the first annual event.

Public Smoking Fires Woman Up

DEAR ABBY: We have a "No Smoking" law here in Michigan. It's against the law to smoke in movie theaters and grocery stores. This law was a godsend to me because I am allergic to tobacco smoke.

Recently, a man sitting a few rows ahead of me in a theater lighted a cigarette, so I reported him to the usher. The usher said, "You can get your money back and go elsewhere." (His attitude was: You are the troublemaker.)

At a supermarket, a woman came down the aisle puffing away on a cigarette. I politely asked her if she knew that smoking in the store was prohibited by law. Her answer: "Get lost!" I got ahold of a store employee and said, "That woman over there is smoking." His answer: "Really? Well, that's her problem." Then I located the store manager and told him. He said, "Sorry, we don't interfere." I said, "But it's the law!" His answer: "We don't interfere."

Dear Abby

I then phoned the police department to report that the "No Smoking" law was being violated in the grocery store. I was told, "That's the business of the fire department."

I called the fire department and was told, "It's the job of the police department to enforce the law—not ours."

So tell me, Dear Abby, what good is this "law" if nobody enforces it?

DISGUSTED IN MICHIGAN

DEAR DISGUSTED: Obviously, it's no good at all. And I welcome any and all solutions offered by readers.

DEAR ABBY: I am finishing a three-year sentence in the Green Bay Correctional Institution, which is a nice name for a prison, but that's what it is.

I am going to face a problem that every ex-con faces when he gets out and tries to get a job. I will have the label "ex-con" on me, which is going to make it rough.

Abby, ex-cons are people, too, and we need work in order to build up our self-respect and make it fair and square on the outside. I never want to see the inside of a prison as long as I live.

Do you have any suggestions?

DID MY TIME

DEAR DID: Ask your chaplain how to get in touch with organizations and businesses that help former inmates start over.

Don't look back. You've paid your dues. Don't look up any of your old friends who aren't decent, law-abiding citizens.

Take care of your body. (No drugs.) Resist the temptation of easy money. If it's not legal, turn it down.

Take care of your soul. Keep your faith in the Lord and pray. Good luck and God bless you.

DEAR ABBY: About that woman who feels forgotten and hurt when her husband does not remember her anniversaries: Your advice, "Clip this column and tape it to his bathroom mirror before the day you want to be remembered," is both illogical and crude.

To remind somebody to remember you makes the remembrance worthless.

M.K.
DEAR M.K.: I'm sure there are a lot of good people with bad memories out there who would appreciate a good humored reminder.

Furthermore, it's instinctive to protect one's self against possible hurt, so don't knock it. No remembrance is "worthless."

Every teenager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Junior Miss Orientation

Seminole High School senior girls are invited to participate in the Seminole County Junior Miss Program 1983. Orientation will be held Wednesday, July 13, at 7:30 p.m., at the Longwood Village Inn, Longwood. Family members of prospective contestants are encouraged to attend this orientation.

The second annual Junior Miss Program will be held Nov. 12 at the Lake Mary High School auditorium. It is a project of the Altamonte-South Seminole Women Jaycees. There is no entry fee. Junior Miss is not a beauty contest but seeks the wholesome, well-rounded individual. Scholarship money and prizes will be awarded.

For information, call Cyndy Benson, 699-4124, or Paula Brown, 788-0152.

Money

No Excuses With Instant Transfers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — One of the world's favorite excuses — "the check is in the mail" — may be nearing the end of its long life.

Electronic funds transfer, a system in which money may be transferred almost instantly, is making headway and eventually will supplant checkbooks and invoices as the usual way of doing business, experts say.

Consumers are becoming familiar with electronic transfers through automatic bank teller machines. Some even pay certain bills by using a touch-tone telephone to instruct a bank computer.

Businesses have been using electronic funds transfers for some time, depositing payroll checks directly to banks and shifting petty cash from one account to another.

The boom in personal computers is expected to spur the consumer trend.

"I believe you and I are going to sit in our living rooms with a television set to pay our bills," said Peter Panos, vice president of Mellon Bank. "We'll see it by the end of the decade. We're close to it now."

A number of major corporations have taken the first steps toward an electronic bill-paying system. Exxon, Sears and Westinghouse Electric Corp., among others, are preparing to use a new automated clearinghouse to pay their corporate bills and trade invoices by electronic means.

In what is believed to be the first electronic payment among major corporations, Westinghouse recently paid $12,000 to U.S. Steel Corp.

"We think in the future this will be the norm rather than the deviation," said Robert Caruso, assistant director of cash administration for Westinghouse.

Switching to the new practice is expected to take years. Until then, companies that want to settle accounts electronically will be like the early users of the telephone — ready and willing to use the new contraption but lacking anyone to call.

But in time, electronic transfers are expected to speed corporate payments and save millions of dollars in postage, handling and storage.

For now, Westinghouse will pay only an "inconsequential" amount of its bills electronically, Caruso said. But it has made a commitment to increasing its use in the next three to five years — a move that by conservative estimate could save $4.3 million a year, he said.

By eliminating checks, companies will eliminate float — the time it takes a check to clear.

Most consumers who pay their bills by mail already understand float, since they depend on having the use of their money several days after they post a payment. Corporations do the same — and they could take a financial bath if they switch to electronic funds transfer without negotiating new terms with their business partners.

If Westinghouse were to switch at once to the electronic system, it would lose $7.75 million annually — "and we obviously don't intend to do that," Caruso said.

But federal regulations are reducing the financial advantages of float, a factor that might encourage more companies to move toward the electronic system, Mellon's Panos said.

Sears, the nation's largest retailer, plans to make its first electronic corporate payment by the end of July, said Melville Moore, manager of national accounts payable.

"Within 10 years, electronic funds transfer will be a very common thing," he said.

Exxon said it "expects to be in a position to send and receive corporate trade payments by electronic funds transfer in the fall." The firm also is offering many U.S. employees the option of having their paychecks deposited electronically to their bank accounts, a spokeswoman said.

But that system might just replace the old "check-is-in-the-mail" syndrome with a space-age equivalent.

"All I can tell you," the spokeswoman said, "is if my check bounces I'm going to

We'll Be Seeing Auto Tellers In More Stores

An agreement that will place hundreds of new automated teller machines in Florida supermarkets and other retail stores before year-end has been announced by Barnett Banks of Florida Inc. and NCR Corporation of Lake Mary.

In what is the first joint venture of its kind in Florida, the two companies have agreed to establish a statewide shared network of automated teller machines (ATMs) and point-of-sale (POS) terminals.

Three of Florida's largest supermarket chains — Winn Dixie, Pantry Pride and Albertsons — have already agreed to be participants in the network. Several major convenience stores have expressed their intent to participate. Service is targeted to start in October 1983.

Ultimately, Florida consumers would be able to access their bank accounts by using a plastic card at more than 500 new ATMs, wherever they are located. In addition, customers would be able to buy merchandise by directly debiting their bank accounts, from POS units at more than 5,000 checkout lanes.

"We are delighted to have reached an accord on this imaginative and aggressive campaign to bring state-of-the-art electronic technology to Florida retailers and their customers," said Roger H. Wiegmann, Barnett computing company's chairman.

"NCR and Barnett are forming a team unparalleled in Florida business to sharpen the cutting edge of the financial electronic services revolution," explained D. Dean Parker, Southeastern regional director of NCR.

Barnett Banks will sponsor the joint venture into the Honor System, an ATM network established to serve Florida financial institutions. This means all Honor cards will be accepted at the retailers' ATMs and POS units.

The machines will work just like the ATMs in place at many bank offices. A customer will place his bank card in a slot, key in a personal identification code and transact business with his own bank, which may be hundreds of miles away. He may receive cash, as well as obtain his checking and savings account balances. Barnett customers may also make deposits to their accounts.

Edible Products Unique Has Fantastic Cheesecake Flavors

Edible Products Unique at 471 W. Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary, specializes in delicious cheesecake freshly made on the premises both plain and in several exquisite flavors.

Unfroze, they are made from only the freshest most wholesome ingredients—cream cheese, eggs, heavy whipping cream, and real butter with no artificial preservatives added. They can be kept in the refrigerator for two weeks or if you wish you may freeze them.

Dwyer Mark English, originally from Tampa, gives his New York style cheesecake a Southern accent. In addition to the traditional plain cheesecake, he also makes them in the following delightful flavors—strawberry (strawberries are pureed and mixed in the batter), amaretto, orange, chocolate swirl, and peanut butter-chocolate swirl.

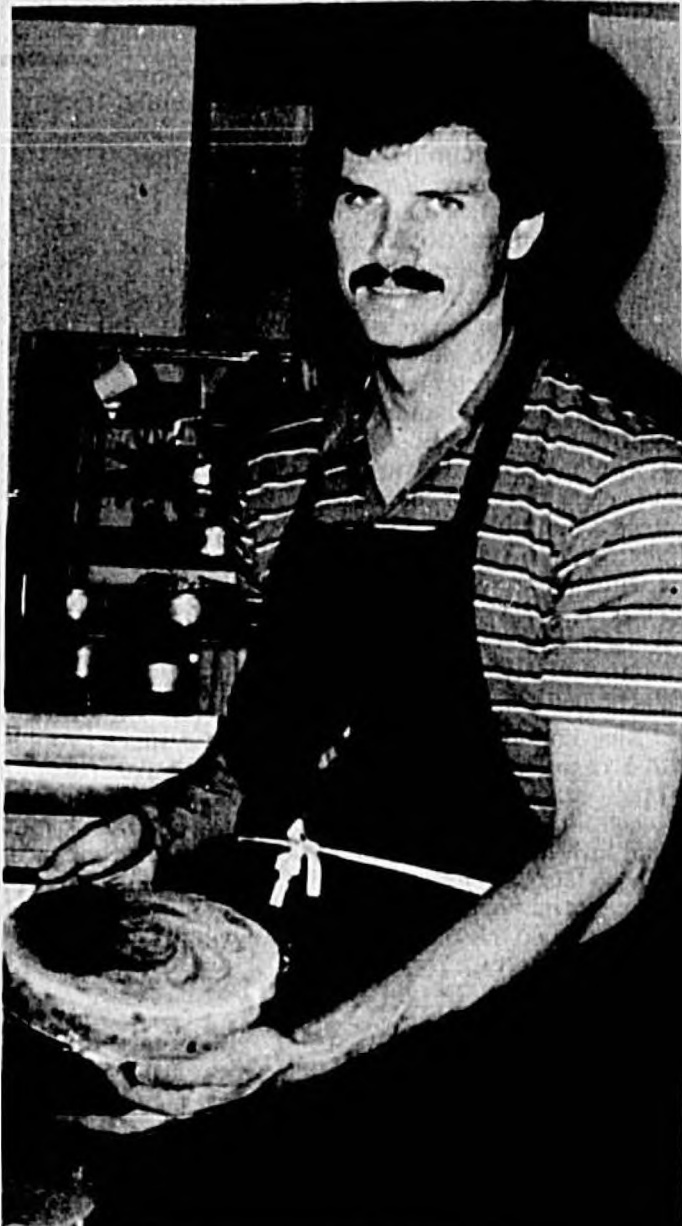

Located east of Interstate-4 and three miles west of Highway 17-92, you'll find Edible Products Unique, in the small center behind Shower Safety Seal's building. Mark opened his cheesecake bakery six months ago selling them wholesale to restaurants, hotels, and hospitals. Two months ago, he began selling the popular cheesecakes to retail customers as well.

Each cake is approximately 4 1/2 pounds, and yields 16 servings. The cakes, nine inches across and 2 1/4 inches deep, are priced from $10-$12 a piece. Mark sells them whole, half, quarter, or by the slice.

Planning a baby shower? Mark will make pink and blue cheesecake to delight your guests. He also takes orders for birthdays and will deliver the cheesecake to the home of the recipient. There is a small charge of deliveries.

Mark is also adding seafood specialties such as grouper cakes, clam fritters, crab cakes, stuffed clams and deviled crabs.

Edible Products Unique is open Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mastercard and Visa are accepted. To order, call 323-2223.

Beef Barn 'Steaks' Reputation On Tender, Aged Beef Cuts

Tired of hamburgers and hot dogs on your barbecue grill? Beef Barn in Casselberry can help you step up to steak at your next cookout.

"Fight inflation and save over supermarket prices by buying beef in quantity," advises Beef Barn manager Leo Bradley, who has been a meatcutter for 29 years.

Located at 95-A Highway 17-92 in the Concord Center, Beef Barn opened 1½ months ago and sells only prime and choice aged Midwestern beef.

Their beef has a 100 percent warranty with no time limit guaranteed for flavor, tenderness and against freezer burn.

Freezer meat orders from 50 lbs. up of beef sides and quarters or pre-trimmed steaks and roasts are custom-cut to order and wrapped to the customers specifications by appointment while you wait.

Customers are welcome to watch if they wish. Call 831-5603 for an appointment.

Beef Barn has a budget plan with credit approval and you get 70 free chicken-fried steaks for opening a 90-day account. There is a free bonus of pork, poultry, or vegetables with every order.

If you would like to take advantage of these savings, but do not own a freezer to store the meat in, Beef Barn can arrange for you to rent a freezer with an option to buy. You can have the 200 lbs. of meat and the freezer for from $25 to $36 a week, depending on the size of your family.

With the hindquarter order you get a rump roast, sirloin tips, round steak, sirloin steak, T-Bone and Porterhouse steaks, and ground beef.

The beef side cut order is the same plus barbecue ribs, club and rib steak, swiss steak, chuck steak, arm roast, chuck roast, and English cut roast.

There is a small processing charge on all orders. Beef Barn is open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays.

Robots Key GM's Spanish Challenge To Japanese Cars

FIGUERUELAS, Spain (UPI) — They look like mother eagles picking at their young, but they are computerized welding robots nipping together General Motors' Opel Corsa — the giant U.S. auto maker's fresh challenge to Japanese small cars.

GM put $2 billion into this revolutionary plant, already approaching its 1,200-car-a-day capacity after only six months.

Skilled labor at moderate cost, proximity to European markets and a growing Spanish demand made this dusty plains village near Zaragoza an ideal site for the largest single foreign investment ever made in Spain.

"They are turning us into the Japan of Europe," said Fernando Bolea, leader of the plant branch of the General Union of Workers (UGT).

That's actually the plan.

Industry studies show a trend toward Spain and Portugal producing most of the small cars for Europe, while West Germany and Sweden grab the lion's share of expensive up-market autos.

The studies predict Britain, France and Italy will be exposed to hard pressure at both ends of the price scale.

GM's 145 welding robots do precision work formerly reserved for specialists.

The whole 8,000-worker plant, air-conditioned and clean, is amazingly quiet considering the many tons of steel being pressed, shaped and painted into 75 new cars every hour.

GM needed above all to cut production time to compete with Japanese and European small-car makers, company officials here said. The plant embodies entirely new manufacturing techniques, centered on robots, and now shows efficiency vastly superior to U.S. factories.

"The best thing is that not one car that comes off the line has not been already contracted," said public relations executive Manuel Garicano Aznarez during a recent tour of the factory.

Other car manufacturers have already set roots in this "Japan of Europe" — including Japan's Nissan and French Renault. Italian Fiat was bought out of a joint venture at Spain's biggest auto maker, Seat, and Ford since the late 1970s has operated a plant building Fiesta and Escort compacts at Valencia.

GM plans to sell 80 percent of the 270,000 compacts made a year at Figueruelas on the European market, with the rest going to Spanish retailers. Company officials predict the plant can help turn around big GM losses in Europe in the last three years, but they concede that uncertainty over Spain's membership in the European Common Market clouds rosy horizon.

Unless Spain joins by 1986 or 1987, as predicted, GM will have to keep paying export duties to European countries, thus cutting profits.

Unions at the plant fear that Spain's double-digit unemployment, coupled with European obstacles, could make life hard for the workers.

"We are already paying for the consequences of the crisis," said Bolea. "A worker who gets a job here after two years on the dole is not going to join union actions, because his chief worry is to keep his job."

"I see a danger in the technology forcing a work pace on us that is inhuman, and also I'm worried about the robots invading more of the factory to cut down the workforce."

"The plant has a system set that will run without any big change for the next seven years or so," Garicano said.

The sprawling factory compound has meant little change for the surrounding towns. A new access road and two new bars in Figueruelas are the only tangible additions brought by GM's record investment.

"Some people expected a gold rush," the union leader said.

In fact, the only thing most locals see of the plant is fleets of chartered buses carrying workers to and from Zaragoza for the two shifts, beating up dust as they roar through the small towns.

Persistence Graham May See Fruit Of Labors This Week

TALLAHASSEE. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham's persistence paid off because legislative leaders are ready this week to raise taxes and produce the special funding for education he has been seeking for months.

Unless there is a last-minute breakdown — and there were plenty of those during the 60-day regular session and 22 days of overtime following it — the House and Senate will quickly approve the $228 million taxes and school improvements package worked out by Graham, Senate President Curtis Peterson and House Speaker Lee Moffitt during secret meetings last week.

Graham has called a special session to run from 10 a.m. Tuesday until 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Under Graham's leadership, the Legislature will have raised taxes for the third time in a year, with the increases totaling about $1 billion, to pay for expanded government services in law enforcement, transportation and education.

It will have disregarded the "Citizen's Choice" amendment scheduled to go on the November 1984 ballot, but under challenge in the courts. It would roll back taxes to 1980-81 levels and restrict future tax increases and growth in government spending.

Most legislators are convinced that Florida citizens will accept tax increases if assured of getting better schools and this latest round of tax increases won't ensure the amendment's ratification if it actually goes before the voters.

The package of taxes on liquor, corporate profits earned in foreign countries and property and education improvements, including funding for the "RAISE" bill passed earlier and pay raises for teachers and faculty, will be worked into the $2 billion "continuation" schools budget vetoed by Graham June 30.

The school funding plan will be passed once again and accepted by Graham this time, enabling the Legislature to adjourn until the 1984 regular session next spring.

The plan contains about $300 million in special quality improvement funding for the schools, $200 million less than Graham originally proposed, but about $200 million more than the schools budget which he vetoed.

The governor concedes it will keep Florida in about the same relative position with other states during 1983-84 it is in now and halt, for the time-being, the drive to become the 12th state in the country in education funding by 1985.

But the plan will "keep us within striking distance of our goals of national leadership," he says.

Moffitt praised the agreement last week, saying it completed an education package that will make Florida "a bellwether state for the rest of the nation."

Peterson said it concludes a year in which Florida "stepped out front" in education reform.

Graham and the Legislature's two top leaders were cordial, joking and very happy, quite a turnaround from a couple of weeks ago when the first special session was ending.

Graham derided the Legislature then for its "continuation" budget saying the proposal had upside down priorities, was a retreat and represented an acceptance of mediocrity.

Peterson said the Legislature either would override Graham's veto or simply pass the no-new-taxes education funding plan once again and force the governor to accept it as the beginning of the new school year neared and school districts went as long as they possibly could without state dollars.

Moffitt was not argumentative like Peterson, but simply exhausted and discouraged. He hoped the Legislature could get together on adequate funding for education, he said, but he wasn't sure if and when that would happen.

Graham took off on a campaign trip of sorts, holding rallies in most major Florida cities seeking support for tax increases for school improvements and getting a surprisingly strong turnout, especially in Jacksonville, where nearly 8,000 people showed up.

Peterson was off on a trip of his own, meeting with newspaper editorial boards and trying to convince the editors that the Legislature actually had done quite well by education by passing his "RAISE" bill.

He wasn't very effective because most of the papers he visited came out with editorials siding with Graham and denouncing the Legislature.

The Graham and Peterson road shows came early the week before last. On Thursday of that week, Graham vetoed the schools funding plan, then moved quickly to convince legislators to work once again with him on an acceptable schools budget, rather than attempt to override his veto.

He took his state plane to Lakeland to pick up Peterson and to Bradenton to pick up another Senate leader, then flew to West Palm Beach for a meeting with Senate Appropriations Chairman Harry Johnston that began the negotiations resulting in the tax increase and education improvements

Big Business Gangs Up Against Tax Package

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Legislature begins a special session today, with Gov. Bob Graham asking it to defy some of the country's biggest corporations and broaden the corporate profits tax to improve the schools.

Dozens of big firms and south Florida civic and political leaders afraid of an exodus of big business to other states ganged up Monday on a $228 million package of taxes worked out by Graham, Senate President Curtis Peterson and House Speaker Lee Moffitt.

Liquor lobbyist Don Tucker, a former House speaker, said he thought the opposition was so intense it was unlikely Moffitt could put together enough votes to pass the taxes package — a controversial tax on income earned in foreign countries by corporations and increases in current taxes on property and liquor.

But House leaders and Graham's lobbyists were confident the tax increases and the school improvements program, including pay raises for teachers and faculty, and extension of the academic day in the high schools, would pass either late today or Wednesday.

Graham convened a special session to run from 10 a.m. today until 5 p.m. Wednesday. Legislators are to pass once again the $2 billion public school budget the governor vetoed June 30, after working into it the taxes-school enhancement plan.

The Senate Appropriations Committee and House Finance and Tax Committee held informal meetings on the package Monday and opposition to the tax increases was intense.

Art England Jr., the former Florida Supreme Court justice who is now a Miami lawyer, warned on behalf of the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce that south Florida's emergence as an international financial center is threatened by the taxes package.

And Coca-Cola, which has large citrus holdings in Florida, flew down one of its Atlanta executives to argue that this state will frighten away big corporations "and punish itself in the long run."

The bulk of the $228 million tax package, about $95 million, would come from three major changes in the corporate profits tax law, including repeal of the exemption on profits earned by a Florida corporation outside the state.

The other changes are probably as far-reaching as the tax on foreign income, but they went unnoticed until business lobbyists took a hard look at the specific taxes plan when it was unveiled early Monday.

They would convert Florida to a unitary corporate profits tax system, substantially broadening the system and bringing in affiliates and subsidiaries of Florida corporations not taxed under current law; and tax, under most circumstances, sales by Florida firms taking place in other states.

The foreign income tax continued to be the most controversial, however.

"Florida for five years has spent millions of dollars and an inordinate amount of time to try to bring the international financial community to Miami," England said.

"If you think you are going to force these organizations to bring all their worldwide resources into Florida and display it so Florida can tax a small portion, you're kidding yourself. They'll just pick up their marbles and move."

"The State of Florida will punish itself in the long run," said Ray Pulliam of Atlanta, Coke's manager for state income and franchise taxes. "Businesses will not expand in areas with unfair tax climates. They will avoid."

President Reagan Offered Vicki Morgan Sex Films

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The lawyer who briefly represented the confessed killer of Vicki Morgan, mistress to presidential confidant Alfred Bloomingdale, wants to give President Reagan compromising videotapes showing what he claims are "sex parties" featuring top government officials.

Attorney Robert K. Steinberg, saying the tapes constituted a "high risk to the national security of the country," said Monday he planned to contact the White House today and offer tapes showing six people in a variety of sex acts.

Steinberg told United Press International the six people in the tapes are shown in sex acts, including "sex parties." In addition to Miss Morgan and the Diners Club founder, he identified the individuals as friends of Bloomingdale.

"It reaches all the way to the head of the country," Steinberg said, making it clear that he was not indicating the president was on the tapes.

"People are saying, 'Why don't you give him (Reagan) a chance,'" Steinberg said. "Maybe he wants to throw these people out, the rascals."

"There are elected officials in the government who are videotaped. It's very embarrassing. It's the kind of thing this country doesn't need right now."

Steinberg, a respected Los Angeles criminal attorney, said he originally considered destroying the tapes but later decided to offer them to Reagan.

The lawyer said he received the three videotapes from a young woman Saturday night after he was asked to represent Marvin Pancoast, 33, the former mental patient charged with last Thursday's baseball bat beating death of Miss Morgan.

"What she said to me was, 'These will help Marvin (Pancoast).'" the attorney quoted the unidentified woman who delivered the tapes as saying. "I didn't get more than 40 words out of her. She did very little talking."

Reagan's Housing Plan 'Not Enough'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Even before President Reagan outlined for Republican congressional leaders today his proposal to toughen enforcement of the Fair Housing Act, critics said the steps do not go far enough.

Reagan, in his weekly radio address Saturday, said the proposal would put "real teeth" into the nation's fair housing laws.

But a coalition of 185 national civil rights groups charged that Reagan's plan would result in "costly, lengthy and inefficient" lawsuits that would add to the already-heavy caseload of the federal courts.

It's a half-hearted approach. "The Fair Housing Act forbids discrimination in sale or rental of housing because of race, color, religion, sex or national origin."

Under present law, the Justice Department can sue only in cases involving a pattern or practice of systematic discrimination, not in individual cases.

According to the administration's plan, first outlined May 19 by Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel Pierce, the HUD secretary would be authorized to send allegations of discrimination against an individual to the Justice Department with recommendations that lawsuits be filed.

The plan also calls for civil penalties against landlords who violate fair housing laws, up to $50,000 for the first offense and up to $100,000 for a second offense.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Gout Is Caused By Too Much Uric Acid

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been going to a new doctor and he told me I have gout, uric acid. My left big toe and ankle were swollen. I have taken Hydropres pills for 15 years for my high blood pressure. He told me such pills give you uric acid. He said the uric acid was in the blood and told me to take Zyliprim to lower it. The doctor told me gout was one thing, uric acid another. I am not on a diet. He said I must take my pills the rest of my life. I'm 78.

If possible, can I get uric acid out of my blood system? I have not had any swelling in my toe and ankles since I have been taking Zyliprim. I had it three times last year. I would like to learn more about this condition if you could send me something.

DEAR READER — It sounds like you are on the right track. Uric acid is produced by our own body cells. The cells of those who have high levels simply produce too much uric acid. And that may be an inherited or familial characteristic.

Gout occurs when the uric acid, which combines as a salt to create urate, forms crystals in your joints. The sharp crystals induce an inflammatory reaction, and you have a painful inflamed joint. The big toe is the most frequently involved joint.

Women are less likely to have gouty attacks even though they have a high uric acid level. But they do get them.

Zyliprim (allopurinol) decreases the amount of uric acid cells form. That in turn helps prevent gouty attacks. During an acute attack though, a person needs other medicines. And Zyliprim is something you need to continue to prevent future attacks and gouty arthritis.

You can't get rid of uric acid in your blood or your body but you can control the amount as you are doing with Zyliprim. The amount is what counts.

I am sending you The Health Letter 16-8, Gout. The Uric Acid Disease; for more details. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Yes, diuretics will stimulate your cells to form additional uric acid. It is one of the things to consider in managing gout.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a 17-year-old daughter who is in good health, but I'm concerned about her diet. She does not eat meat or drink milk. She does eat a lot of cheese. What can we do to substitute for the loss of meat in her diet? She has not liked milk since she was very young. Meat has been out for the past three to four years.

DEAR READER — Cheese is a good substitute for meat. The processed cheese, however, may have three-fourths of its calories as fat and half of that fat is saturated fat. And it is fairly high in cholesterol. Cottage cheese is not and the low-fat cottage cheese products are a good source of protein.

If her dislaid is limited to red meats, she can eat chicken or fish or both. Otherwise she can get additional protein from products made from mature soybeans. A combination of mature bean seeds and corn is good. And she might like milk in various prepared dishes including desserts such as milk puddings, or even ice cream. I hope her eating habits do not mean she is trying to be excessively thin and damaging her health in that manner.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

JULY 13, 1983

Unusual career opportunities can be found this coming year in your present area of expertise. Take advantage of what you already have going, instead of looking elsewhere.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others will back off from your way of doing things today if they feel you're trying to force your rules upon them. Don't be pushy. Cancer predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to give your Zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have good earning abilities today, but you also have wasteful tendencies which could deprive you of accumulation. Be prudent.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to associate with friends today who have the same appreciation for money as you do. Pals who are loose with dollars will trigger extravagance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your judgment in career matters will be remarkably astute today, but there's a chance you may change your mind and not to what you intended.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unfortunately, not everyone you encounter today can be taken at face value. Keep your guard up if it's necessary to deal with strangers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you're very generous and giving, but today you might not be too willing to share gains with people who help you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be extremely diplomatic today, most especially if you have to deal with persons who have thwarted your goals in the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Give your time today to persons to whom you can truly be of service, not to those who are making it on their own. Aiding where you're needed brings joy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If it's necessary to seek advice from another today, they can't help you if you hide or hold back any of the pertinent facts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your industrious efforts may count for little today if you work in such haste that you fail to see the mistakes you're making along the way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Speculative proposals might look good on paper, but they may not stand up under close scrutiny. Don't jump into situations without first studying them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even though your intentions are good, don't make changes around the house today before consulting your mate. He or she may not approve.

The A of ARCH is unimportant today. You Analyze the lead as normal. You Review the bidding, and note that the hand will probably break fairly well because neither opponent could get in the bidding against you. You Count your winners and find just nine. How can you get a tenth? There is one way only. You must set up a spade trick or so in dummy.

If the suit breaks 3-3, you can set up two spades for an overtrick. If it breaks 4-2, you can set up one spade only, but that will be enough, provided you can ruff two spades and still get to dummy to cash the fifth one.

West has already knocked out one of dummy's entries. Conservation is necessary, and therefore at trick two you lead a low spade from dummy.

Everything is now under control. The defense takes a spade and a diamond, and leads a trump or club. You win in your hand, lead a spade to dummy's ace, ruff a spade high, enter dummy with the 10 of trumps, ruff another spade, back to dummy with the trump king, which also pulls the last enemy trump.

You discard one club on that fifth spade, eventually lose one club, but score game and rubber.
