High Winds Blow Through Sanford; Damage Is Heavy

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

What has been described as one or possibly two tornadoes ripped through Sanford Thursday afternoon, causing millions of dollars in damage.

The first storm, from the northwest, dropped an avalanche of golfball-sized storm's aftermath and checking on various city and commercial properties around the Gen. Sanford Museum. The museum, he said, apparently didn't suffer much damage, although several trees surrounding the building were uprooted.

Knowles said he does not anticipate seeking any state or federal assistance for the restoration of the heavily damaged business section of downtown Sanford.

"Sometimes that can be more trouble than it's worth. I'm confident our local banks will work with those merchants needing low-interest loans to restore their properties," the city manager said.

"This is a mess," Knowles said, as he stood scratching his forehead and assessing the damage. "I guess we had winds in excess of 100 miles an hour. This storm sure caused some bizarre things. At the city sewer plant on N. Poplar Avenue the winds tore from its base a 1,000-pound electrical panel about six feet high and four feet wide and just moved it over like a toy. We have about $80,000 damage to our sludge beds alone."

"At City Hall, two large windows were hail and more than 4.3 inches of rain at about 3:15. The second storm, from the northeast and more violent than the first, struck at 3:17.

The second storm was so intense it shattered city rainfall gauges at the Poplar Avenue sewer plant.

And the U.S. Weather Bureau was predicting a 60 percent chance of rainfall again today and issued a tornado warning for the Orange-Seminole County areas until noon today.

City Manager Warren E. Knowles said the damage in Sanford "is in the millions of dollars."

Police Awaited Looters, But Few Showed Up

"Shoot to kill" was the word on the street to all would-be looters seeking to prey on Sanford residents and businessmen caught in the whirlwind of Thursday's tornado — and apparently the warning worked.

"We did, or at least one officer did, put the word out that we would shoot anyone caught looting stores and homes damaged by the storm," said Herb Shea, assistant to Sanford police Chief Ben Butler. "But our officers were told to use their discretion in each situation as it presented itself. The shoot-to-kill rumor probably helped, because we didn't have any problems."

"We had a few try to loot," said Sanford Police Sgt. William Bernosky. "We also had numerous attempted burglaries, but things went pretty smoothly and there were no major problems."

Shea said his department suffered power and telephone service outages but that today the emergency number (322-4141) is operational and power has been restored to the offices.

"I'll have to admit this is the worst storm I've ever seen, and I'll also admit I was a little frightened," said Shea, an 18-year resident of Sanford. "I am amazed and proud of how the people responded. They were great. The calls for help that came in to us were legitimate calls, true emergencies. We had very minor accidents and very minor injuries."

Shea said Sanford's entire police force was working last night, including about 43 police officers. Today the department is operating with its normal shift complement, he said.

Police added that residents or businessmen wishing to report damages should do so with their individual insurance adjusters. Also, if extensive damage to homes or businesses occurred because of the storm, residents should notify the Emergency Operations Center at 323-2500.

According to Sheriff's Department spokesman John Spolski, off-duty deputies were put on standby, a reserve deputy division was called in, and "we generally assisted Sanford police in any way possible, and needed."

Spolski said his department was deluged with calls during the storm by people reporting damage.

Astonished Visitors Saw Funnel Cloud Change Color

A planned Sanford youth revival turned into a problem of tornado survival for the Rev. Steven Jones of the World Wide Faith Outreach Church of West Virginia on Thursday afternoon.

The Rev. Mr. Jones, 24, along with his wife Cathy, Mack and Linda Caselberry and the Joneses' pregnant chihuahua Dolly, were inside the church's $10,000 tent on 13th Street when Thursday's storm hit.

"When we looked outside, the clouds were turning green," said Mr. Jones. "It sounded like a locomotive was coming. When the storm came over 13th Street, it broke the poles out of the tent. We had an eight-inch center pole and the wind tore it right out of the ground. The tornado landed right on top of the tent and it blew the tent down on us."

"There were hail balls as big as golf balls, and there was seven inches of water on the ground," he said.

"We saw the funnel coming from the northwest. I thought tornadoes were supposed to be black, but it turned green. It blew towers and telephone poles down on 13th Street and Lake Avenue," he said.

"The sky turned colors all at once. First it was milky white, then it turned green, then pink, and then finally gray," added the West Virginia native.

In addition to the tent damage, Mr. Jones said a piano and organ were also damaged by the storm, along with his camper.

"The camper looks like someone shot it with a million golf balls," he said. "I've been to Florida, but not this Florida," the soaked clergyman commented. "This is mean."

Mr. Jones said he had feared his pregnant dog had drowned under the collapsed tent, but Dolly apparently had broken loose from her leash during the storm and hidden. The dog was found safe after the storm had passed.

Another out-of-state visitor was more than a little surprised by Florida's weather Thursday.

Judy Cain, from upstate New York, was in DeBary on the spring break to visit her mother. Mrs. Cain had to take her mother to Seminole Memorial Hospital in Sanford Thursday afternoon with a gall-bladder problem just as the storm was approaching Sanford.

"I thought I had it good, getting away from all that snow up north," said the New York native. "My mother and I got to the hospital just before the storm hit. She was admitted and I wound up spending the night in the waiting room with a borrowed blanket and pillow." But the northern visitor didn't escape the storm unscathed.

"My little Toyota was parked across the street, in front of the hospital. Two windows were blown out of it by the hail, and right now it's parked in two feet of standing water.

"I can't wait to see some sunshine," she said through a half-smile.

For June and William Leroy of Deltona, a decision to brace against the storm came a little too late.

The couple own Leroy's Farm and Produce Stand on W. State Route 46, and were at the stand along with their 4-year-old daughter Mary and worker Robert Grove when the storm first approached.

"The wind started blowing rain and hail stones the size of golf balls," said Leroy. "The wind blew hard until it tipped over a trailer of empty produce boxes and they went flying all over. Then it blew an empty farm wagon about 200 feet in the air."

Leroy said his wife, daughter and

Grove then crawled under a produce table for protection from the hail. After getting hit in the head with a hailstone, Leroy crawled over and said, "Move over."

"Before the storm came we were looking at the sky," he said. "It was turning green and we were standing there debating whether to close. I asked my wife, 'Do you think it's going to blow over?' and about that time it was too late," he said.

The storm damaged oranges, grapefruit and potatoes at the produce stand. "I had 2,000 heads of cabbage on a wagon," said Leroy. "Now it's rote slaw."

"Any farmer who had a crop doesn't have one now," he added.

One Man Loses 3 Fingers

Seminole Memorial Hospital and its staff had its hands full throughout the night Thursday, evacuating patients from storm damaged rooms and handling, fortunately, just two major emergencies.

"We were fortunate the first storm came right at about the time of a shift change," said hospital public-relations director Kay Bartholomew. "We had almost a double staff on hand." The hospital's emergency room treated nine persons for very minor injuries. But 14-year-old Peter Jackson wasn't as fortunate.

Jackson, 807 Jonathan Way, Altamonte Springs, was out fishing on the St. Johns River with family friends Ernest and William Houseman of Orlando when the first storm struck the area at about 3:15 p.m. The fishing party was on its way in from Hontoon Island when the trio was pummeled with hail and rain.

The Altamonte Springs youngster was struck in the head and eye as the party attempted to come ashore.

"The storm hit so fast as they were coming in," said Peter's mother, Mrs. Jill Jackson.

Doctors have listed the youngster in stable condition, and according to Mrs. Jackson, they won't know if Peter will need surgery on his injured left eye for about four days.

The combined storms blew out 26 windows in patient's rooms, mostly on the hospital's north side.

"We got the full force during the second storm," said Mrs. Bartholomew. While the hospital staff was evacuating patients from the damaged rooms, 26-year-old Ralph Kelly of DeBary suffered a serious hand injury. Kelly had been hospitalized for bone disease treatment and was leaving his room when a gust of wind slammed the door on his right hand. The severity of his injury warranted amputation of the little, ring and middle fingers of his right hand.

Memorial Hospital Had Its Hands Full With Injuries

"Your nails are what you are inside," says JoAnne Casperon, a manicurist who has filed the fingernails of the first family. President Reagan is "a very warm and congenial person," she says, and Nancy Reagan is simply "elegant."

The President's Manicurist

She Grooms Top Hands

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Who is the woman at President Reagan's fingertips? His personal manicurist, JoAnne Casperon, who is employed biweekly to cut, clip, file, buff and treat the cuticles of the presidential fingernails. Although she gets closer to the president every two weeks than most Americans get in a lifetime, Mrs. Casperon minimizes her position by saying that he gets a manicure only because he also gets a haircut. She accompanies her friend Milton Pitts, Reagan's personal hairstylist, to the White House during barbering sessions. The entire nail-grooming process takes about a half-hour in what Mrs. Casperon describes as "a very relaxed atmosphere."

"It's just a very warm congenial person," she says about Reagan. "There's nothing intimidating at all about the man. He's a very natural person." "Elegant!" is the word she chooses to describe Nancy Reagan, whom she has met during visits to the White House. Several times she has also manicured the hands of Treasury Secretary Donald Regan. White House security is tight, says Mrs. Casperon. She is required to show both her driver's license and a photo identification card before entering the gate. The guards check to ensure that she is expected that day. Once inside the building, she is again checked at the reception desk. In addition to her presidential assignment, Mrs.

Casperon is a technician for a California-based distributor of beauty products; that job takes her on the road to conduct educational seminars at beauty schools. She also manicures the nails of male and female clients at a salon in McLean, Va., four days each week. This dynamic of a woman combines the traits of detective, mother, teacher and perfectionist. She can tell within moments how people have been treating their fingernails. She knows whether nails have been used as pushers, scrapers, scrubbers, screwdrivers, letter openers or telephone dialers. "Nails should never have pressure on them," she stresses, noting that, when a hand is clenched, the nails should always be turned out, not enclosed in the flat.

She says that while doing client's nails she sometimes nonchalantly interviews them about their lifestyles to get to the underlying reasons for problem nails. "Your nails are what you are inside," she says, citing stress, medication and improper diet, along with moisture, as factors contributing to problem nails. Yet, she notes some people in stressful situations who take all kinds of pills and eat nothing but the wrong foods have beautiful nails. "That's just genes," she says. Mrs. Casperon insists that proper nail care "for a person who wants to be well-groomed is a necessity, not a luxury." "If you take a very well-groomed person (except for their hands) and all of a sudden they put their hands up — you look and you say, 'Ugh!' It just destroys the whole look," she says. "There's no reason — unless you are (for example) a mechanic — that you should not have well-groomed nails." Mrs. Casperon disputes the argument that many people simply don't have time to take care of their hands. "I raised four children and I always managed to keep my hands nice," she says. A professional manicurist only for the past five years, Mrs. Casperon says that she has always set aside at least a half-hour each week for personal nail grooming. "If people can't find a half-hour a week for their own nails, they should check to see what's wrong with their life," she says. "If you have time to buy clothing, you should have time to care for your nails."

Although never officially schooled in manicuring, Mrs. Casperon has had a special ability for nail care since she was 9, when she suddenly stopped biting her nails and started taking care of them. "It's something that has come very natural to me," she says. But she also gives credit where credit is due: "I learned over the years when I got manicures. I picked up hints from each person that did me." What comes naturally to Mrs. Casperon is not so easy for everyone else. "One percent of all people can do their own nails," she says. "Some can do one hand and not the other. Some women actually come in with one hand all done and say, 'OK, do the other hand.'"

Bounty Hunter Free On Bail

ORLANDO (UPI) — A federal judge has set bail for an Orlando bounty hunter wanted in Canada for kidnapping a fugitive real estate investor, but he delayed the effect of his ruling for up to five days. U.S. District Judge John Reed set a $100,000 bail for Timm Johnsen Friday, but then yielded to the request of Assistant U.S. Attorney Don Christopher, who was asked to file an appeal on behalf of the Canadian government. Christopher will appeal the decision to the Atlanta-based 11th Circuit Court of Appeals. At the request of Canadian authorities, a U.S. magistrate ruled Tuesday that Johnsen should be extradited to stand trial for the alleged abduction of Sidney L. Jaffe in Toronto last Sept. 23. Jaffe, a fugitive, was returned to the United States by Johnsen and an associate for a trial in Palatka, Fla. Jaffe, 57, was later convicted on 28 counts of violating Florida's unlawful sales practice act and bond jumping. He was sentenced to 35 years in prison and fined $150,000.

Lawyers said it is unusual for a person awaiting extradition to be freed on bail unless "special circumstances" exist for his release. But defense attorney Bernice Dempsey argued that because Johnsen has placed a number of people in jail, his life may be in danger if he is kept in custody. Johnsen has been held in solitary confinement at the Seminole County Jail since Tuesday. Prosecutor Christopher argued Johnsen should not be freed because the U.S. is obligated by treaty to return him to Canadian authorities. If Johnsen flees while on bail, the U.S. would be in an "extremely embarrassing" position, he said. Reed said if the appeals court refuses to block the setting of bail for Johnsen, the bounty hunter would be freed immediately after the $100,000 is posted. The judge also ordered Johnsen to surrender his passport, remain in Orange, Seminole or Osceola county, and report to U.S. marshals daily.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

April 11, 1982
Exciting changes are likely this coming year. Although they'll be triggered by others, you will be the one who reaps the major advantages. Look ahead with hope.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be a good listener today. You can learn something very valuable that you could put to immediate use. It will be another's inspirational thought. Find out more of what's ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y., 10019. Be sure to include birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be flexible today. You could derive unexpected benefits from changes. If you lock-in on situations, you could impede your own progress.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This could be a very exciting day for unattached Gemini. You could meet someone you take an instant liking to, as he or she will to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Should you find yourself in a competitive situation today, don't view yourself as the underdog. Time is your ally. The odds will swing in your favor near the finish line.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Get out and circulate with friends today, even if you may not feel too much like doing so at first. Once you're in the swim of things, you'll be glad you did.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're planning on doing something with friends today, why not throw an impromptu party at your place? It'll turn out to be a ball for all.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your charm and winning ways will be much in evidence today. You'll be able to turn indifferent acquaintances into friendly allies.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Although this may not normally be a business day for you, something very unusual could develop that could add to your resources or income.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 31) If things are not going to your liking today, step in and take charge. You have excellent leadership qualities and you'll be able to direct your destiny.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Success in your endeavors is likely today because you will have several extras going for you. One is your reasoning ability; the other is your intuitive insight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) It will do your psyche good today if you divorce yourself of mundane involvements and focus on that which you truly enjoy. Relax and have fun.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Major accomplishments are possible today. You can do just about anything you set your mind to. Aim as high as your imagination permits, and think "win."

MONDAY, APRIL 12, 1982
YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 12, 1982
If you have been thinking of taking up a particular sport, this coming year is a good time to get yourself more seriously involved. You should be very pleased by what you'll be able to accomplish.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Play everything loose and easy today. You can handle even the most testy developments if you retain your sense of humor and optimistic attitude. Find out more of what's ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y., 10019. Be sure to include birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Pay particular heed today to situations which could offer you a second source of gain. If you look hard enough there's a chance you'll uncover something advantageous.

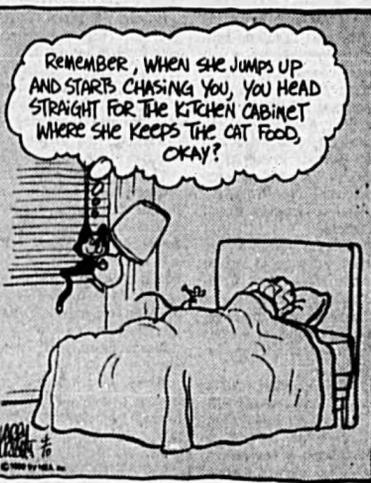

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to keep everything you do in proper balance today. Allow adequate time for essential tasks, but also allot some hours for fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Tasks will be less arduous today if you take pride in what you seek to accomplish. Make sure you'll be proud to sign your name to even the smallest job.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Involvements offering a bit of friendly competition are likely to be ones you'll enjoy

WIN AT BRIDGE

Bridge hand analysis including North-South and West-East hands, vulnerable dealer, and opening lead. Includes text: 'double dummy' and when it was over you could have fried an egg on South's forehead. It started simply. East won the first trick with his queen of diamonds over dummy's jack and shifted to his trump. South took the ace and king and continued with a third trump to West's queen. It would have been very tempting for West to lead his jack of clubs at this point. After all, East had not led a second diamond. That jack lead would have let South play dummy's king, finesse against East's queen and make his contract, but West led a second diamond. East won and shifted to a club. Had East led a spade, South would have won and run off all his trumps to come down to a squeeze against East who would have had to unguard the queen of clubs to keep a high diamond. The club lead broke up the squeeze. It didn't matter where South won the trick. When the hand was over West said, "Partner, why didn't you lead my suit?" South replied for East, "Because East wanted to defeat the game." (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Bad Year For Religious Freedom

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

"The past 12 months have been violent ones where religion is concerned."

With that sobering introduction, A.D. magazine — the joint publication of the United Church of Christ and the United Presbyterian Church in the USA — presents its second survey on the state of religious freedom around the world.

The survey, admittedly imperfect, attempts to apply a number of questions to the way religion is treated in and by governments, beginning with the question of whether believers are free to meet for worship.

It also checks whether religious groups can hold title to property, must register with the state, are able to publish books or newspapers, operate schools and whether leaders may freely travel.

It found 1981 to be a bloody year for religious freedom, noting the killing and jailing of Iran's Bahai community, Syria's killing of 400 members of a fundamentalist Muslim sect, beating and torturing of Christian lay people in Czechoslovakia.

"And in Guatemala, El Salvador and Lesotho, all bounds of decency have been breached in governmental dealings with religious persons who, for working with the poor in their exercise of their faith, have earned the displeasure of the regimes," the magazine said.

It said that almost all states allow people to pray.

"It is when believers go beyond prayer and seek to live out the tenets of their faith in society that things go awry," the survey said.

And it said "the worst excesses" in religious repression "seem reserved for schismatics in religion rather than for people of an entirely different faith."

The survey listed 13 nations in its "most repressive" list, beginning with Albania and followed by North Korea, Guatemala, El Salvador, Iran, Ethiopia, Soviet Union, China, Czechoslovakia, Saudi Arabia, Argentina, South Korea and Turkey.

Two nations on last year's list of "most repressive" did not make this year's list — Afghanistan and South Africa. Afghanistan was dropped because the editors did not know whether the religious leadership, under the yoke of the Soviet Union, was continuing its repression of those who seek to change faiths. South Africa was dropped "only because, in 1981, more blood flowed elsewhere."

Getting Together On Easter Date

Let's get the churches together on celebrating Easter. While we are at it, why not arrive at a fixed date for celebrating Easter each year?

As it is, the Western churches observe Easter on one day (which changes from year to year), the Eastern Orthodox on another. Occasionally (as will happen in 1984) Easter is the same day for everybody. But that is rare.

This year it falls a week earlier for the Western churches — Sunday, April 11 — than for the nearly five million Orthodox in the United States.

"It takes the edge off Easter for us," says one Eastern Orthodox woman. "Everybody else is finished with Easter when ours comes up."

If she thinks it is bad this year, wait until she finds out that next year five weeks will separate the two Easters.

While most of Christendom will have Easter on April 3 in 1983, the Eastern Orthodox will have to wait until May 8. The Orthodox way of calculating Easter may be more historical. One of the four conditions laid down by the Fourth Century Council of Constantinople for arriving at the date of Easter was that it must fall after the Jewish Passover. The first Easter of course fell after Passover.

The Western churches follow a formula for setting the date of Easter established by the Council of Nicea in 325. No reference was made to Passover. The council stated that Easter should fall on the first Sunday after the full moon following the vernal equinox (March 21).

There have been various efforts through the years to get the churches to agree to a common date for Easter. In 1970 the World Council of Churches convened a Consultation on a Common Easter Date. Leaders of many churches attended the convocation in France. Many learned papers were read but nothing was decided.

The archbishop of Canterbury in 1971 proposed that the churches of the world celebrate Easter each year on the Sunday following the second Saturday in April. There the idea died.

There may be other reasons, apart from considerations of ecclesiastical unity, why it would be a good idea to have Easter fall on a fixed date each year.

The variance between the earliest and latest date for Easter now, using the Council of Nicea reckoning, is 35 days. Easter can fall as early as March 22 (as it did in 1818) and as late as

Saints And Sinners

George Plagens

April 25 (as it did in 1943.)

Several years ago I took a reader poll to determine how people felt about having Easter fall on the same Sunday each year.

By a margin of 2 to 1, readers were in favor of a fixed date — preferably the fourth Sunday in April (37 percent) or the first Sunday in May (20 percent).

Many of those favoring a change mentioned the better weather in late April or May. Some added that this would reinforce the Easter theme of rebirth.

Many who voted against a change said they did so on the grounds that "Easter should not be a dress parade."

While some people found it annoying to have to consult a calendar or almanac every year to find out when Easter is, there were those respondents to the poll who said they like the fact that Easter comes on a different date every year.

"It's nice to have things unplanned," said a reader. "Everything today is so systematized."

From the point of view of the Western churches, there would be no real theological objections to having a fixed date for Easter.

The Council of Nicea had Easter coincide with the full moon for practical reasons, according to Dr. Howard Robinson, emeritus professor of history at Oberlin College.

"At that time," says Robinson, "the pilgrims going to Jerusalem to celebrate Easter usually went in groups down the eastern side of the Mediterranean and they were harassed by brigands — especially at night."

"The church thought they might have additional protection if they had the full moon. Pilgrims no longer need the full moon's protection when they go to Jerusalem. The movable anniversary has become an absurdity."

Victory Because He Lives

AND THERE IS...VICTORY! The stone moves! The grave opens! The mausoleum is empty! The coffin is robbed! There are flags for Christ! There are songs for angels! And there are victories for us, God's people!

Let the "E" in Easter stand for EMANUEL — which means "God with us!" For if the Jew, while dead, can raise Himself to life, He is more than Jew and more than Man. He is Very God of Very God!

Let the "A" in Easter stand for AWAKENING — for because Christ lives, we shall live also, awakening from death's sleep as He awakened!

Let the "S" in Easter stand for SAYINGS — for Easter assures us that Christ's sayings are true. He promised to rise! He rose. His pledges are reliable.

Let the "T" in Easter stand for TRANSGRESSIONS — for God, allowing Christ to rise, has accepted His Son's sacrifice and has removed our transgressions.

Pastor's Corner

By REV. E.A. REUSCHER
Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Sanford

Let the "E" in Easter stand for ETERNITY — for, called by Christ from our sepulchers, we shall be ushered into a Life which lasts forever.

Let the "R" in Easter stand for RADIANCE — for we shall be resurrected with glorified bodies, radiant and beautiful in the likeness of Christ.

"We laugh, we cry; we live, we die; and when we're gone, the world goes on!" No! Christ returns, we are raised, we go on and there is Life. This victory we have through the risen Redeemer!

Reflections On Passover

By RABBI CHAIM Z. ROZWASKI
Temple Israel, Orlando

God can take us out of Egypt but only we can take Egypt out of us.

God took the Jews out of Egypt but only the Jews can take Egypt out of themselves.

The Egyptian exodus marks a physical and political transition in our history. Our people were literally moved from one place to another. Perhaps that was enough to remove the shackles of Egyptian bondage and acquire freedom if by freedom we only mean the right to move from one place to another at will, as Rashi, the great medieval commentator defines it and if by slavery we only mean the confinement to one location and hard work.

But if by slavery we also mean the abdication of dignity, pride, free exercise of one's will, the ability to break old habits, get out of a state of lethargy, uniqueness, to be different from everyone else, then change of location means very little.

When the Jews were taken out of Egypt and brought to Mount Sinai they still had to affirm the covenant. They heard what God had to say but they still had to throw off the pagan ways of Egyptian life.

Therefore, no matter how much we assert the historical exodus, as long as we still cling to a slave mentality, if we still do what our Egyptian masters bid, if their ways are our ways, their ideas our ideas, their goals in life and vision of the future is also ours, if we judge ourselves and others by their standards of what is good and evil, right and wrong, God and godlessness then indeed, what does our freedom mean other than our ability to suddenly move at will from place to place?

We may be out of Egypt but Egypt and all the evil that it represented is still within us. God took us out from the physical enslavement of Egypt but only we can take Egypt out from within us.

Agape Feast

Seminole Heights Baptist Church will observe the Lord's Supper Sunday in conjunction with a picnic basket Agape (Love) Feast served at 6 p.m. in the Lake Mary High School auditorium on the Longwood-Lake Mary Road. The congregation will be served the elements at the tables by the church deacons.

Revival Services

He may be down but he's not out. The Rev. Jones has announced he will move the youth crusade revival services one-half block away to the Sanford Tabernacle of Prayer Church, 950 W. 13th St.

Services will be held nightly at 7:30 through April 17.

Former Sanford Teacher Producer Of TV Show

By MARVA HAWKINS

Herald Correspondent

Rhonda Hankerson Carswell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson of Sanford, and a guidance counselor at North Dade Jr. High School, Miami, is presently the only black female producer now working for channel 17, a school board television station in Miami.

Rhonda produces the show, "Mixed Company." She says she begins to produce the show for a variety of reasons. Dealing with problem youth, she said she saw that there were many talented students that nothing was being done for. She conceived the show to recognize deserving students and do something for them.

Rhonda has considerably acting experience, a factor in helping her to decide to produce "Mixed Company."

The show has the following objectives: to encourage academic achievement and leadership ability among students; to make students more responsible; to provide information about careers and college; and provide information on how to solve social problems.

The show is divided in to two segments, an interview forum where outstanding students are featured, Career Corner, a movie and record review; and a sports segment.

The program is widely watched because the students have frequent discussions about the show they own with their teachers.

Brides-Elect Honored At Pre-Nuptial Parties

Two brides-elect have been guests of honor at pre-nuptial parties during the past week. On April 3, Donna R. Hamlett of Birmingham, Ala., was honored at a bridal coffee at the Wilson Place home of Mrs. Wayne (Linda) Keeling. Sharing the hostess role with Linda was Mrs. William (Betty) Jack.

Donna is the bride-elect of Richard A. Colegrove Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. (Marty) Colegrove of Sanford. The couple will be married on May 22 in Birmingham. Donna is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Donald M. Hamlett of Birmingham.

Mimi Greene was among the Sanford Woman's Club members arriving at the April meeting in a lovely Easter bonnet from another era.

the Seminole High School Spanish Club who have been on a South of the Border cruise all week.

Led by Esther Hernandez, the entourage spent the week aboard the S.S. Veracruz.

May 1 is the deadline for reservation for the Seminole High School Alumni Cruise. All SHS graduates and their guests are invited to join the voyagers May 20-24 of next year for a 3-day cruise to the Bahamas.

For information call 322-4650 or 322-2185. Sun Travel Agency, Sanford, is handling the reservations.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian (Donarius) Varn attended the wedding last weekend in Columbia, S.C. when her granddaughter, Sharon Elizabeth Jones became the bride of Kevin Parks King.

Due to arrive Saturday afternoon (April 10) in time for the Easter parade Sunday are 47 adults and students of Wolk, 339-2933; or HSSC Shelter, 323-5685.

The Woman's Club of Sanford is hosting a Continental Coffee for members and their guests Wednesday at the clubhouse at 11 a.m.

A card party (with prizes) will be held immediately following the coffee. Refreshments will be served throughout the day.

Hostesses are as follows: Emy Bill and Mary Drew, chairmen; Carolyn Cornelius, Louise Harris, Margaret Loucks, Florence Mapes, Doris Harriman, Anne Larson, Melba Cooper, Esther Penn, Kate Nash, Frieda Tyre and Cathy Wesley.

...Could Write Some Sonnets About Clubbers' Easter Bonnets

The Woman's Club of Sanford celebrated its 69th anniversary with a Crazy Hat Contest and luncheon at the clubhouse. Shades of another era were reflected when the clubwomen always wore hats to the meetings. Many of the hats worn were beautiful discards from days gone by — and may have been a fashionable Easter bonnet in its day.

Mrs. Roy Brown, sponsor of the Junior Woman's Club read a happy birthday card from the juniors wishing the senior club many happy returns. The club thanked the juniors for their card and for the beautiful redecorating job they had done in the clubhouse ladies' room.

Birthday donations from the members were donated to the Hacienda Girl's Ranch. Attention was called to the beautifully decorated birthday cake provided by the hostesses for this special occasion.

Linda Reck, chairman of the Arts Department, asked members to submit entries for the art exhibit which will be a part of the State Convention. Delegates named for the state convention were: Pat Foster, Anne Brisson, Jean Marcel and Peggy Deere, alternate.

Linda Reck also announced that the club is sponsoring Linda Atkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gentry Atkins of Osteen, for the "Miss Sanford Scholarship Pageant" to be held April 17, at Lake Mary High School auditorium. Linda is a member of the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole.

Ruth Gaines, chairman of arrangements for the C.L.P. Brunch to be served May 2, at the Sanford Civic Center, advised members that tickets were now available. The price ($2.50) will remain the same as last year.

Members were reminded of the following events: The Continental Coffee followed by bridge at the clubhouse April 14, at 11:00 a.m.; the regular meeting of Epsilon Sigma Omicron, April 21, at the home of Melba Cooper; and the May 2 meeting at which Dr. June Gordon from Seminole Community College will speak of "Today's Women and Stress."

Mrs. Perry (Connie) Agreanos was welcomed into the club membership.

Ernest Cowley conducted a clown make-up demonstration which Woman's Club president-elect Pat Foster as the model. Mrs. Joe Oritt was in charge of the program.

Marty introduced her daughter-to-be to guests as they arrived at the fashionable home. Both wore corsages to complement their spring attire while heading the receiving line.

Punch was poured from a table on the porch adjoining the family room. Coffee and party fare were served from a beautifully appointed table in the dining room.

About 65 guests were invited to call during the appointed hours, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

A surprise miscellaneous shower honored bride-elect Cheryl (Cheri) Kufner Wednesday night. And there is no doubt that Cheri was surprised. She was nearly speechless.

The hostess was Cindy Butler, who will attend Cheri as matron of honor. The shower was held at the home of Cheri's parents, Cmdr. (USN, ret.) and Mrs. Wesley L. (Elaine) Burks at their home, 3304 S. Park Ave.

Punch and potpourri of party goodies were served from a table overlaid with an exquisite imported Army-Navy cloth.

Highlighting the evening's festivities was Cheri opening the many lovely gifts she received in a colorful setting depicting a wedding motif.

Cheri will become the bride of Scott Vasatka, also on May 22, at St. Mary Magdalen Catholic Church, Altamonte Springs.

Remember Sony Werner? She's a beautiful blonde who lived aboard Sanford Naval Air Station once upon a time. Sony telephoned from Virginia Beach, Va. inquiring about the Sanford storm. She is writing a book, she says, and was seriously thinking of moving back to Sanford. . . before the storm, that is.

Linda Clamp was the winner of a side of beef donated by Imogene and Ed Yarbrough of Geneva to benefit the Sound of Sunshine Chorus Chapter of Sweet Adelines.

Ernie the Tramp applies clown makeup to model Pat Foster. Just what Pat always wanted — a facelift and new hairdo for Easter. Incidentally Ernie is Ernest Cowley — a complete surprise to the clubwomen in his clown role.

Nothing Seems To Work

DEAR ABBY: How do you get a man to propose marriage? I've tried every approach I can think of.

I've played hard to get. When that didn't work, I let him know he could have whatever he wanted. I've told him I didn't mind if he wanted to date others. No reaction. Then I acted jealous and possessive when he as much as looked at another woman. Still no reaction.

I've tried pursuing him shamelessly. He said he didn't like to be pressured, so I quit calling him and waited for him to call me.

I've tried being vivacious, exuberant and extroverted. That didn't work, so I toned down and came on more laidback, subdued and ladylike. Abby, nothing seems to work, and I am desperate to marry this man.

What is wrong with me?

OPEN FOR SUGGESTIONS
DEAR OPEN: You ask what is wrong with you. Which you? The woman who's hard to get, or the woman who's easy? The liberal, broad-minded woman who's willing to share him? Or the jealous, possessive one? The aggressive huntress or the shy, retiring maiden who waits to be pursued?

Be yourself and quit acting. HE may find the real you refreshingly appealing. And if that doesn't work, you haven't lost anything because so far you've baited zero.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for agreeing with "Bothered and Bewildered," the bride's mother who resented having to cart home her daughter's wedding gifts from the reception hall!

I thought I was the only person in the world who resented the thoughtlessness of those who hand-carried wedding gifts to a reception. I am from a foreign country where gifts were always delivered to the home of the bride or bridegroom, whichever was most convenient.

I am with you 100 percent.

pressionable fourth graders he helps weekly at Red Bug Elementary.

The ebullient retiree, whose wife, Arnelia, is also an RSVP volunteer at the Regency Apartments community service group, says of his work with the fourth graders, "I have seen a kid go from a horrendous math student to one earning 90's and 95's in his work. Now that's an accomplishment!"

On the Bolls' refrigerator is a note addressed, "To Mr. Boll — The world's greatest helper." According to Mr. Boll, "It's spelled so badly I can hardly read it...but it gives me a thrill every time I see it."

Boll certainly doesn't feel volunteer work is a woman's role. He feels all his peers should become involved.

"I think it's a disgrace that senior citizens complain about the world owing them a living...and then they just sit on their fannies and do nothing. We're the most pampered segment of society there is."

Then he added, "You know, I think I'll call the school and tell them I'd like to come in twice a week!"

He's ALIVE!

Jesus Christ is alive.

Through Him you can have new life . . . abundant life . . . eternal life.

"He is not here; for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay."

Sam Brown: Sadat's Pen-Pal

LIBERTY, S.C. (UPI) — When 14-year-old Sam Brown returned home from the funeral of his pen-pal Anwar Sadat, he had visions of touring the talkshow and lecture circuit.

He figured his experience as the youngest and most unlikely member of the U.S. delegation attending the Egyptian leader's burial would be the grail for all sorts of public appearances.

Except for an appearance on ABC's "Good Morning America" and a few talks at churches and schools in this rural community in South Carolina's Piedmont, his big dreams have faded. "I'm disappointed I wasn't called on to tell more people about my friendship with Mr. Sadat and my attendance at his funeral," the youngster said in a recent interview.

"But, that's OK. I think the thing about all of this is that it gave me a bigger interest in world politics," Sam said.

Sam, who enjoys "being with my friends and fishing," exchanged letters with Sadat a few years ago concerning peace in the Middle East.

Sadat invited him to Egypt in 1979, but when the youngster went there, he wasn't able to see his hero because tensions between Iran and Egypt kept Sadat too busy. In 1980, the Egyptian president sent Sam a Christmas card with a personal note inside.

After Sadat was assassinated last fall, Sam's retired father, Donald, called a South Carolina congressman about the possibility of his son going to the funeral. A few hours later, Sam was selected as a member of the official U.S. delegation.

He boarded Air Force One in Washington with former Presidents Nixon, Ford and Carter, Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Haig's former boss, Henry Kissinger, and other dignitaries.

During the flights to and from Egypt, Sam said Carter was the most friendly to him — the only teenager with the delegation. He also had his picture taken with the former president.

While in Egypt, Sam extended his sympathy to Mrs. Sadat. "I'm sorry she had to lose her husband," he said.

"President Mubarak told me any time I needed anything or wanted to go back over there, just to let him know," Sam said.

"I'd like to go back to that part of the world and see some of the famous battlefields, like El Alamein where the Americans and British defeated Rommel in World War II," he said. Sam, a ninth grader, says he wants to join the military when he graduates from high school, "then go into politics."

Among Sam's memories of the trip to Cairo last fall are playing cards with "Good Morning America" correspondent Steve Bell and a present President Reagan gave him for Christmas.

"He sent me this big blue photo album with pictures of what all happened on the trip. And he wrote me a letter that said he was most grateful for my serving as his personal representative on the trip," Sam said.

"One of my favorite pictures was taken on Air Force One. It has me showing my famous card trick to Rosalyn Carter. Steve Bell taught me that one."

National Volunteer Week, April 18-24

Men Join Ranks Of Traditional Women's Roles

By JOAN MADISON
Special To The Herald

National Volunteer Week is April 18-24. Volunteers across the nation will be honored for their untiring efforts in helping mankind.

Like many "traditions" that are in the process of change, so is the traditional idea that volunteer work is a woman's role.

In the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of Seminole County, the 50 male retirees enrolled in the program consider their volunteer efforts rewarding and enriching. As one stated, "Life is never boring."

These men are involved in volunteer work which either affords them an opportunity for a new interest, allows them to use their hobbies in a productive manner, or permits them to continue, in a limited way, with their field of expertise.

For 72-year-old semi-retired physical therapist, E. Richard King of Longwood, it's an opportunity to use his love of photography and nature to teach school children about the flora, fauna and fowl indigenous to the state of Florida.

When he's not traveling from one part of the county to another showing his slide presentation, King uses his years of therapeutic expertise to help a paralyzed individual confined in a nursing home.

When he learned that the middle-aged indigent quadriplegic was not receiving therapy because he couldn't afford it, King fit time in his already full schedule to twice weekly apply therapy and bring hope — and a renewed interest in living — to a once despondent individual.

Another dedicated volunteer, Karl Ahlstrom, Longwood, always knew he'd want to help people when he retired. "I get a big kick out of helping people," revealed the 71-year-old father of two and grandfather of three.

True to his word, shortly after retiring from the post office six years ago, he began his volunteer service through RSVP — first at the Humane Society, then at the community college helping foreign students, and, finally, finding his niche at Longwood Elementary School where he has been tutoring students in math for five years.

According to fourth grade teacher, Judith Kipp, Mr. Ahlstrom is a most effective tutor. "He relates to each child in a very warm way and has a tremendous ability to diagnose a child's weakness," she explains. "All I need to do is give him a list of children and their needs. He is very capable at working with each child in an individual way."

She adds, "My class loves and appreciates Mr. Ahlstrom!" An accountant and office manager before his post office days, Ahlstrom also uses his management skills as President of a 185-member senior citizens club, the Altamonte Springs Friendship Club.

Working in hospitals seems to run in the Gerald Cox family, although it wasn't until after his retirement that Gerald was able to do so. With wife, Frieda, volunteering in the Recovery Room at Florida Hospital Altamonte and two daughters as Registered Nurses (he also has a son), it only seems natural that Gerald enjoys his service in the hospital's Surgical Waiting Room.

Keeping a log on all the people who are waiting for someone in surgery, he sees his role as "helping them anyway I can."

He patiently helps waiting loved ones by answering questions on the surgical routine, showing them where various facilities are, and even by slipping into the operating room to come back with a progress report to help ease anxious relatives.

"Some of them are a little disturbed and those I try to talk to and find out what their interests are and get them to talk. It's very helpful," he says.

A retired Army troop commander who helped start the parachute troops in an experimental battalion, Cox also taught biology and science at University level and did doctoral work in vocational education.

Cox has a first-hand familiarity with hospital routine, having suffered a heart attack, and service injuries which necessitated his being encased in braces and requiring him to use crutches. These experiences certainly help him empathize with patients and loved ones.

Watching 65-year-old Milton Boll of Fern Park leading the teen-aged boys and girls in physical fitness routines at Grove Counseling Center in Longwood, it's hard to believe that after retirement three years ago as a product control supervisor in a manufacturing plant, he had let himself go physically.

Tired of feeling badly, however, he decided to lose a few pounds. After achieving his first goal of losing five pounds, he set still another goal of losing more weight and increasing his physical activity. The realization of one goal led to another, and now, he says, "I feel better than I did when I was 40."

He shares his enthusiasm for physical fitness — and life — with the students at Grove who are there because of their substance abuse. Each week Boll reports to the school "to help in any way I can." Understandably because of the age of the children and the nature of the problem, he doesn't feel he has made as much impact on the students at Grove as he has on the more int-

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Brewers Sal Bando Joins Broadcast Booth As Analyst

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Former Milwaukee Brewers infielder Sal Bando has been hired by NBC as an analyst for the sixth and final playoff berth of the Brewers. Bando, who finished sixth last season and now is a special assistant to Brewers' General Manager Harry Dalton, will make his debut April 24 on the backup game between the Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees, NBC said. His first national telecast will be May 1, on the game between the Oakland A's and Cleveland Indians.

Enslow Inks With CFL Lions

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — Former Northern Arizona defensive back John Enslow has signed a two-year contract with the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, reportedly calling for more than $35,000 a year. Enslow won all-Big Sky Conference honors in 1980 and made it to the Oakland Raiders' final cut last fall.

Networks Announce Games

NEW YORK (UPI) — ABC and CBS announced Friday they will televise six major college football games in the fall. ABC will begin the season on Sept. 6 by televising Clemson at Georgia. The network also will broadcast Alabama at Auburn on Nov. 27 and Arkansas at Texas on Dec. 4. CBS will televise Oklahoma at Nebraska on Nov. 26, Notre Dame at Southern Cal on Nov. 27 and Army vs. Navy on Dec. 4. Each network will announce the scheduling of another televised game next week and the remainder will be announced in the fall.

Loss Of Olympic Gold Costly

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — The U.S. Olympic Committee warned Friday it might have to curtail some of its programs to train athletes for the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles because of congressional failure to approve an Olympic coin set. F. Don Miller, executive director of the USOC, said the firm which was going to market the Olympic coins has decided not to, because Congress has not acted on a program to distribute the coins.

Rams-Colts Talk On Jones

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams definitely want Baltimore Colts' quarterback Bert Jones, but a potential trade between the two teams is blocked by the Rams' refusal to part with their top college-draft pick, it was reported Friday. The Baltimore Sun said unnamed sources on both teams confirmed the Rams-Colts talks had been held, but were suspended pending the outcome of Jones' grievance case against Colt owner Robert Tracy.

S.S. Circus Comes Home

The traveling Basketball Circus of South Seminole, including many of its own built-in clowns, settled home after a five-day, 1000 mile journey. The trip, involving 40 boys, girls and adults, went from Casselberry to Charleston, South Carolina — then back again thru Casselberry and on to Pinellas Park and Clearwater. Jammed in between trips to beaches on the Ocean and Gulf, sightseeing, bonfires and barbecues, were twelve basketball games.

The locals were overmatched in most cases and fared much better in the fun and enjoyment league than on the court. One of the highlights was the SS Alumni's win over the Pinellas Park Boys Club, 69-56. Al Banyackal and Eddie Norton tossed in 19 points each, Al Unroe had 10, Pat LaCore 9, Rob Kerr and Crockett Bohannon 6 apiece. The locals dominated the boards with Bohannon pulling down 14 rebounds, LaCore and Banyackal 11 each, Norton and Unroe 9 each. Norton also recorded 9 assists.

Another thriller was in the 13-15 year old girls game. The Hurricanes lost to the City of Charleston Recreation Department All-stars, 35-30, taking the game right down to the wire as they were tied with a minute and a half to go. Kristie Kaiser and Stephanie Nelson scored 9 each and pulled down 22 rebounds between them. Beatrice Miranda had 8 along with 4 assists. Natalie Barth handled the rest of the backboard work with 18 rebounds and she and Kristie blocked a pair of shots each. Rounding out the girls team were Kim Miller, Eva Miranda, Mary Zaportera and Renee Vaughn.

The SS 7th grade boys Hurricanes were the recipients rather than the big wind on the courts as they lost both in Charleston and Pinellas. Darryl Relford was high in two of the games with 10 and 12, Oscar "The Big O" Wilder had 12 in another and Bobby Spicer led with 7 in the fourth game. Others making the trip were Ricky Deming, Jose Nieves, Vince "O-fer" Florence and just to S.C. — Darryn Crist and Chris Pellett.

The 6th grade boys played just in Charleston and couldn't handle the South Carolina 12 and 13 year old leapers. Pellett, playing with two teams, led the Cones with 9 and 7. Garth Bolton tossed in 8 and 4. Others playing were Eugene Rivers, Brad Bolton, Robbie Franklin, Mike Sandeman, Jay Farrar and Brian Dill.

Celtics Clinch Third Straight Eastern Title

Hawks Hound Playoff Spot With 103-88 Win

United Press International
Apparently the Atlanta Hawks are quite serious about making the playoffs.

Dan Roundfield and Eddie Johnson combined for 39 points and sparked a late surge Friday night that sent the Hawks closer to a playoff spot with a convincing 103-88 home victory over Philadelphia, snapping the 76ers' five-game winning streak.

"This was a big game for us," said Roundfield. "There are just five games to go."

Roundfield, who had 21 points, and Johnson scored the final 10 points for the Hawks, after Philadelphia cut Atlanta's lead to 88-83, with 3:59 left. The 76ers, who trailed by 17 points in the third quarter, outscored the Hawks, 9-0, over a four-minute stretch to draw close.

"Tonight we just had a super win," said Atlanta Coach Kevin Loughery.

Atlanta's John Drew, who scored 18 points, sank a 22-foot jumper to break the drought and Roundfield and Rory Sparrow followed with three free throws to put the Hawks on top, 93-83. The 76ers could get no closer than eight down the stretch.

"I thought Atlanta had complete control of the game throughout with the exception of a five-or six-minute period," said 76ers' Coach Billy Cunningham.

In other games, it was Boston 106, New Jersey 103; Indiana 100, Cleveland 97; Milwaukee 118, Detroit 100; Dallas 105, Phoenix 100; Washington 114, Chicago 98; Kansas City 115, Utah 99; Los Angeles 153, Denver 128; and Portland 124, San Diego 104.

Celtics 106, Nets 103
At Boston, Robert Parish scored 36 points, grabbed 13 rebounds and blocked 7 shots to help the Celtics clinch their third straight NBA Atlantic Division title.

Pacers 100, Cavaliers 97
At Indianapolis, Billy Knight's 14-point burst in the final period sparked Indiana. Cleveland lost starting guard James Silas in the first period with a possible shoulder separation.

Bucks 118, Pistons 100
At Pontiac, Mich., Sidney Moncrief scored 35 points, including 13 in an explosive Milwaukee first quarter to lead the way for the Bucks' seventh straight victory.

Mavericks 105, Suns 100
At Dallas, Wayne Cooper, Jim Spanarkel and Brad Davis sank key free throws in the final 71 seconds to lead the Mavericks. The loss was the third straight for Phoenix. Bullets 114, Bulls 98

At Chicago, Spencer Haywood scored 25 points to lead the Bullets to their third straight win and fourth place overall in the Eastern Conference.

Kings 115, Jazz 99
At Kansas City, Mo., Ernie Grunfeld, Steve Johnson and Mike Woodson combined for 64 points to pace the Kings. Utah's Adrian Dantley missed the game because of the death of his grandfather.

Lakers 123, Nuggets 123
At Inglewood, Calif., Jamaal Wilkes scored 25 points and Norm Nixon added 22 as the Lakers erupted for 95 points in the second and third periods, leaving the Nuggets still without a playoff berth.

Trail Blazers 124, Clippers 104
At Portland, Ore., Billy Ray Bates scored 22 points and seven other Trail Blazers hit double figures to send the Clippers to their 16th straight loss.

BASEBALL OR WATER POLO? Baseball fields around Seminole County will be silent this weekend thanks to torrential rains the past two days that have put at least a temporary damper, like this soggy field at Fort Mellon Park, on the season.

Black Hawks Bouyed By Confidence

United Press International
While his players have reason to be confident entering tonight's Stanley Cup playoff game, Chicago Black Hawks' Coach Bob Pulford remains realistic.

"We're not going to try to kid anybody and try to say we outplayed Minnesota these two games," said Pulford, whose team holds a 2-0 lead in their first-round, best-of-five playoff series with the North Stars. "And I guarantee Minnesota isn't out of it yet. But we've worked very hard and shown we have character."

In those two nights — Wednesday and Thursday — the Black Hawks, who finished 22 points behind division-leading Minnesota during the regular season, posted road victories of 3-2 in overtime, and 3-3, as they attempt to eliminate the 1981 Stanley Cup finalist North Stars in three straight.

Tonight's third game will be at Chicago. The Black Hawks have ridden the goaltending of Murray Bannerman, appearing in his first Stanley Cup. In both games at Minnesota, the Hawks were decidedly outshot but Bannerman stopped 63 shots in the two games.

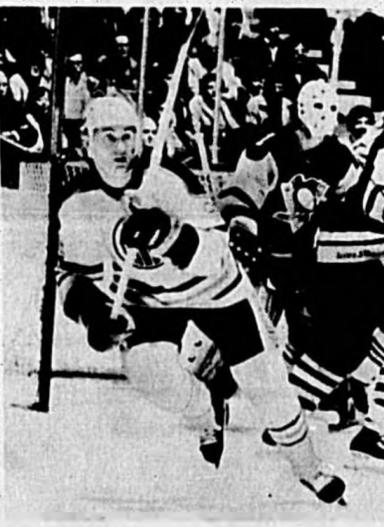

"I honestly think because of the way we are playing now and because we are in a weak division and conference, we can go all the way to the Stanley Cup finals," said Chicago's Tom Lysiak.

Unlike the Black Hawks, Minnesota has been a solid road team all year and Coach Glen Sonmor still is optimistic about his team's chances.

"We haven't started a game against this team yet we didn't think we couldn't win," said Sonmor. "We've played well on the road this year and I expect we can go in there tonight and beat them."

Chicago is one of four teams who will be shooting for a sweep tonight. The defending Stanley Cup champion New York Islanders, Boston and Vancouver hold 2-0 leads over their opponents. In other matchups, it will be the New York Rangers at Philadelphia, Montreal at Quebec, Winnipeg at St. Louis and Edmonton at Los Angeles.

The Islanders, who have outscored Pittsburgh, 15-3, in winning the first two games, apparently convinced the Penguins' owner of their superiority. Edward DeBartolo Sr., Friday released a statement he would not attend tonight's Game 3 of the playoffs at the Civic Arena and offering Penguin fans refunds on playoff tickets.

Mustang Women Reach Halfway Mark In Season

The Mustang Girl's Softball at Five Points in Winter Springs has reached the half-way mark of the first round. All nine teams are still capable of winning the first round.

Casselberry II, the sole leader after four games, racked up two more victories this past week. In the first, on Tuesday, they took care of Forest City III, 10-9. Although they were out-hit 16-9, Casselberry managed 10 runs in the final two innings to clinch the game.

Then, on Thursday, Casselberry played the same song, winning the game 7-2, on just three hits. Tanya Lowell pitched a good game, striking out six.

Forest City II won two and lost one this past week, topping Lake Mary and Winter Springs I and falling to Casselberry I.

Forest City began by taking Lake Mary 13-4 on the strength of 21 hits. The Forest City hitting barrage was led by Kim Robinson, with three hits, and Dannie Maxwell with four. Forest City then knocked off Winter Springs, who were previously undefeated. Kim Robinson was the star of the game, pitching an excellent game, and collecting three hits.

Forest City finished the week by falling to Casselberry I, 9-4. The contest went into extra innings, but Casselberry finally scored five runs in the eighth. The offensive punch was provided by Tamara Lewis (five hits), Jaudon Jonas (three hits), Tracie Munger, Kristina Middleton, and Chris Pogo (each with two hits).

In other Girl's Mustang Softball games, Forest City III won two more to increase its record to 3-1. Forest City beat Winter Springs I, 6-2, as Susan Harris turned in a two hit day. Don Burke's Forest City III team then finished off the week with a 10-9 victory over Longwood.

'Digger' Blows Whistle... Then Scampers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nobody likes a guy who blows the whistle and runs.

That's how Notre Dame's Digger Phelps is being portrayed now, as a self-righteous self-server who couldn't take the heat after hollering fire and who wouldn't stick around long enough to point out where the flames were coming from after sounding the general alarm.

He made some serious charges about college basketball in New Orleans last week. The charges weren't that new. Phelps actually had made them six months before. In all likelihood, they were given much more prominence now because of his timing and because of the newspaper he picked to tell his story.

Phelps' charges were made on the eve of the semifinal of the NCAA championship and appeared in last Thursday's editions of the New York Times under the byline of Gordon S. White, Jr.

Among the accusations made by Phelps were that as many as 50 percent of the schools might be cheating, that $10,000 a year was the "going price" for payments to star players, that he had knowledge of "at least seven" schools that had cheated, that two of them had illegally outrecruited Notre Dame by paying athletes and that he had reported those two schools to the NCAA.

Phelps did not identify the schools he was talking about to White nor any of the other reporters he subsequently talked with and for that he was roundly criticized — even by some of his fellow coaches, who said he was, in effect, holding everyone up to suspicion by not naming the guilty parties.

The fact is Phelps can not come out and publicly identify the guilty schools in any newspaper or over any television or radio outlet without running the risk of having that medium being sued for libel or slander and being hauled into court on the same charges himself.

Moreover, he HAS identified two of the schools he says are cheating by having reported them to William Hunt, the NCAA's assistant executive director. An investigation of Phelps' charges already is underway.

Not all of Phelps' fellow coaches feel what he did in New Orleans was wrong. Some like Harvard's Fran McLaughlin, are with him 100 percent.

"Digger's critics are saying he didn't identify the schools he meant. That's not true. How could he identify them publicly and then see that printed in the papers without being sued for libel? Certainly, he identified the schools to the NCAA.

I'm sure of that."

McLaughlin is a fine coach and a good sensible man with both feet on the ground. What makes him so certain about Phelps is because he knows him better than most, having worked for him as his assistant at Notre Dame six years.

McLaughlin doesn't hold with those coaches who claim Phelps' charges are putting them all under a cloud.

"I don't think that's true," he says. "I think there comes a time when we as coaches have to say we have a serious problem in college athletics, let's face up to them and try to solve them. I've yet to hear a single college coach deny there is cheating going on in recruiting. At least, now the problem has been brought to the forefront. I'd like to see a special convention of college coaches in Division I schools held this coming Fall so we can get to the bottom of all this. Maybe we should include the college presidents and athletic directors along with the coaches."

At Harvard, as well as all the other Ivy League schools, there are no such things as athletic scholarships.

"Our approach is different," explains McLaughlin. "Whenever a kid comes to us and wants to play ball, we ask him and the family to write out a check to Harvard because we're based on financial aid."

Getting back to Phelps, McLaughlin, who was in New Orleans for the NCAA coaches' convention, says it was a rather dull get-together, anyway, until Phelps lived it up.

"Up until this year, our coaches' association criticized Digger for not getting involved enough," McLaughlin laughs. "Now he does and they tell him he should've never gotten involved."

Youngsters Shine At Gainesville Meet

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — A 14-year-old girl and 16-year-old boy starred Friday night in the United States Swimming Short Course Championships. And as the youth movement took hold, 19-year-old Tracy Caulkins won her third national title in as many nights, bringing her career total to 38 national championships.

Kostoff, who won the men's 1,000-yard freestyle championship Wednesday night, said he had an advantage over Gaines in the 500 because it was a longer race than Gaines is used to swimming. Gaines won the 100 and 200-yard freestyle events earlier in the championships.

Next stop for both players, the laundry room.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Flagship Stock Will Be Traded In New System

Flagship Banks Inc. has been selected to be among the first group of trading firms to use the new system to have their stock traded in the new National Market System.

The National Market System, which was activated April 1, is an advanced computerized system that, for the first time, provides the public with the same information about NASDAQ, OTC, securities as is available for stock-exchange-listed shares. With this system, up-to-the-minute information is available throughout the trading day for Flagship and 39 other leading over-the-counter stocks. Trades are reported within 90 seconds with a running compilation of volume figures and last trade information.

More New Businesses

Despite continuing economic uncertainties, the determination to start a new business remains strong as the nation prepares to celebrate Small Business Week May 8-13.

Statistics compiled by government and private sources show a sharp rise in business bankruptcies over the last 18 months. But at the same time, new small businesses have opened their doors at a higher than normal rate, the U.S. Small Business Administration reports.

ComBank Names Manager

Gladys Entekin has been named manager of the Butler Plaza office of ComBank-Seminole County. She started with ComBank in 1971. After serving in various capacities at the Casselberry office, she has been assistant branch manager of Butler Plaza since its opening last June.

Paying Their Fair Share

The Orange City Telephone Co. was one of the area's largest taxpayers in 1981, company figures show, paying $129,412 for city, county and local taxes in Volusia County.

The general breakdown shows that in Volusia County the company paid $9,184 on real estate and $129,258 on personal property to the six tax districts served by Orange City Telephone. These figures do not include the $57,295 in 2 percent federal excise tax payments billed to telephone users by the company. The excise taxes are remitted to the federal government upon collection.

Promoted By Burdines

Charles Curtis has been promoted to operating vice president and director of security for Burdines department stores.

Curtis joined Burdines in 1976 as traffic manager and has held such positions as divisional sales supporting manager, transportation, branch transfer and package and bulk delivery, and most recently, divisional sales supporting manager, hardlines and flight department.

Where The Innovators Are

Most innovations in three major American industries — steel, aluminum and petroleum — originated with small companies or independent inventors, a government study shows.

The study, by the U.S. Small Business Administration, reflects a more general finding that employee for employee, small firms in this country produce 2½ times as many innovations as big businesses.

What's Buzzin', Cousin?

Last winter's freeze may have harmed more than the orange and grapefruit industry. If the frost-damaged citrus trees don't blossom this month, Florida's honey beekeepers could be facing hard times.

"Florida right now is the nation's number-one honey producer," says Dr. Tom Sanford, agriculturalist at the University of Florida's Institute for Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS). "Citrus honey is prime honey. If there aren't enough nectar-producing blossoms for the bees to forage on, we're in trouble."

TELLING OF BENEFITS

Want New Business To Survive? Plan Well

Despite the fact that business failures hit a 40-year high during the first week of February, small businesses are being started at a rate 10 percent above last year. This may say something about the determination of American entrepreneurs. But if you want your small business venture to survive in today's uncertain economy, be sure you plan well from the start.

After you've evaluated your ability to manage a small business, you should carefully and realistically chart the financial requirements of the venture. Ask yourself if you can handle responsibility, plan effectively and motivate others to work for you. You don't have to be a financial wizard, experts note, but some knowledge of bookkeeping, accounting and recordkeeping is essential.

Once you've convinced yourself you have the energy, determination and ability to make your idea work, you'll have to decide how much capital you need to start your business. Remember, too, you'll need enough money to keep the business running until it supports itself. Insufficient or unavailable cash is a frequent cause of small business failure, even though a profit may be projected.

The first costs to estimate involve your plant or office including equipment fixtures and, of course, the space you need. Make three different sets of calculations: preferred, acceptable and least desirable operating facilities. To avoid underbudgeting, use the dollar amounts associated with the preferred circumstances.

Other start-up costs are usually nonrecurring. For example, fixtures, including counters, shelves and cabinets, will have to be installed and utilities connected.

Check with local and state government about permits and operating licenses. Legal fees for forming your business entity and advertising costs should be planned. Finally, you will have to invest in inventory before you can sell any products.

Although these figures will give you an idea of what initial capital you will need to start with, the amount won't necessarily carry you through until you make a profit. Because you may be operating at a loss for six months or a year, you'll need a projection of the difference between cash available from sales and other receivables and cash disbursements for continuing costs. (A month-by-month cash flow projection for the first year will be helpful when you apply for a loan or other financing.)

Continuing costs for your business include fixed costs for the month or the quarter, costs directly tied to your sales and production, and costs that vary from period to period without being tied to products. These indirect costs would include taxes as well as goods and services necessary to your business.

Your fixed and indirect costs equal your overhead. And both overhead and direct cost must be recovered in the sale of the product. To recover these costs, estimate the volume necessary and calculate what minimum selling price will at least equal your total cost.

For example, if your estimated fixed and indirect costs total $1,500 (your overhead) and your direct costs for an estimated 500 units equal $10,000 ($20 apiece), your overhead is 15 percent of direct cost. And your actual price per unit — on which you base your selling price — is $23. The percent of profit you desire should be added to that figure.

About Women And Financial Security

Consider these statistics: the average woman will outlive her husband by seven years, the nation's divorce rate is increasing yearly, and half the nation's married women work and draw incomes. Given these facts, women, both single and married, owe it to themselves to develop personal investment goals.

Understandably, women who have never taken an active part in financial planning may be hesitant about making investment decisions. The best way to overcome a lack of knowledge about financial matters is to make an effort to learn as much as possible about the financial world.

You might start by reading finance and business-oriented periodicals. By reading selected publications on a regular basis you will be more attuned to investment trends and more familiar with the industry's jargon.

Courses offered through local junior colleges or brokerage firms also may be helpful to the novice investor. And, talking with friends about their investments can give you an insight into the opportunities available.

Your interests and background can be key factors in determining how and where your money can be put to work most effectively. For example, a woman interested in and knowledgeable about antiques may find it to be an ideal field in which to invest.

Putting together a management team can consist of professionals such as an attorney, a certified public accountant and a broker, and can provide invaluable financial advice.

Financial planning does not have to be speculative. Many sound, safe investment opportunities exist in today's financial markets, so shop around carefully for the investment which best suits your needs.

Taxes Not Now A Fact Of Life

The difference between long-term savings that are taxed and those that are tax-exempt is dramatic. For those of us who pay taxes, this difference until now has been of remote interest. From January this year, however, Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) have brought the opportunity for tax-deferred growth to virtually everyone who gets a paycheck and, with it, the most broadly based tax break ever enacted to prepare for a degree of comfort when you retire. Taxes — unlike death — are no longer a fact of life.

Investing regularly can build a sizable nest egg. But with an Individual Retirement Account (IRA), you can invest $2,000 a year in an IRA, and have an average yield of 12 percent. In 20 years you would have $540,588.

How does this differ from an ordinary taxed investment? Let's say you are in a tax bracket of around 40 percent. In that case your annual investment would not be $2,000 a year but only $1,200. Why? Because you have already paid $800 in income tax (40 percent) on that $2,000. By contrast, your contribution to an IRA is fully deductible. What's more, any earnings on your ordinary investment are also taxed at 40 percent. In this case your investment would be worth $53,903 in 20 years, a difference of more than $107,000. In 30 years you would have $125,976, only a little more than one-quarter of a 30-year IRA total.

Is 12 percent realistic? That depends on the state of the economy. In the last five years, mutual funds that invest in common stocks have averaged an increase of 12.5 percent a year.

Over the last 30 years — a period long enough to include every sort of economic condition except a Great Depression — the rate of return of these mutual funds was a little under 10 percent.

Minute Maid, Tropicana Square Off

ORLANDO (UPI) — The two giants of Florida's billion-dollar orange juice industry, Minute Maid and Tropicana Products Inc., are waging an Olympic-size struggle over advertising.

At the heart of the conflict is a Tropicana television commercial starring 1976 Olympic gold medalist Bruce Jenner.

Minute Maid's parent company, Coca-Cola of Houston, has charged that the Jenner promotion of the Bradenton-based citrus firm is "false, misleading and deceptive."

But Tropicana says the commercial is legitimate and that the lawsuit amounts to little more than harassment from a competitor.

Coca-Cola wants the Jenner advertisement pulled off the air and is seeking an injunction to do just that in U.S. District Court, Southern District, New York. A preliminary hearing has not been scheduled.

PATCHING IT UP

The Patchwork Cottage, owned and operated by Dot Painter (left) and Rae Harper, has opened in downtown Sanford at 222 E. First St. Quilts are made and sold by the owners, and gifts for all ages also are featured. The owners teach quilting to those who are just beginning and want to make a quilt of their own, or to those in the intermediate class as well as advanced sewers.

What Is Tax Evasion, And What Is Avoidance?

Although evading taxes through deceit, subterfuge, or concealment is illegal, avoiding taxes by shaping events to trim or eliminate tax liability is not only legal but wise.

Frequently, what separates tax evasion from tax avoidance is a finding of fraud. Guidelines prepared by the Internal Revenue Service for its examiners pinpoint those situations that will trigger special scrutiny of a taxpayer's actions for the presence of fraud.

In order to establish fraud, the government must prove a taxpayer understated his tax liability. To show that a taxpayer has understated his tax liability, the government must first show that the taxpayer is liable for tax, generally by showing he has received, or had the right to receive, taxable income. Then the government must prove that such income was underreported or that deductions or credits were overstated.

In addition, the government must also prove that such understatement was due to a deliberate intent by the taxpayer to evade tax. Failure to report the correct income may be due to mistake, inadvertence, reliance on professional advice, an honest difference of opinion, or negligence — none of which constitutes a deliberate intent to defraud.

To have the requisite intent, a taxpayer must know that the misrepresentation is false. However, although intent is a subjective element, the government may prove that a taxpayer possessed an intent to evade taxes without the taxpayer's actually admitting to the IRS that he had such intent.

The government may prove the existence of the requisite intent by demonstrating that the taxpayer's actions resulted in the evasion of tax. The law presumes that a person's actions are the natural consequences of his intentions. The IRS guidelines indicate several actions that will trigger special scrutiny by the IRS for the presence of fraud:

1. A failure to report substantial amounts of income, such as a waiter's failure to report income from tips or a shareholder's failure to report dividends.

2. A claim for fictitious or improper deductions on a return, such as a sales representative substantially overstating travel expenses or a parent claiming a dependency exemption for a self-supporting child over 18 years old.

Stadler, Strange Survive Howling Augusta

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — No one can accuse the Masters of being a walk-off game. Red numbers, used on scoreboards to indicate how many holes left to play, were used to indicate how many holes left to play.

Augusta National where Craig Stadler and Curtis Strange went into today's third round as co-leaders after only matching par the first 36 holes.

Last time even-par 144 was good enough to lead at the midway point of a Masters was back in 1954 when amateur Billy Joe Patton was a shot ahead of Ben Hogan and three ahead of eventual winner Sam Snead.

But wind made playing conditions so tough Friday that five-time champion Jack Nicklaus, a three-stroke leader when the rain-delayed first round was completed Friday morning, joked he thought he was still in front while struggling through a 5-over 77 in the afternoon.

Stadler, also a 36-hole co-leader three years ago, was six strokes back of Nicklaus at the start of the second round — but shot a 69. Strange started five back and shot a 70.

Strange, a 27-year-old Virginian who is off to a relatively slow start, rebounded with an afternoon 69, 1981 winner Seve Ballesteros of Spain, the runner-up Hay Floyd.

When the first round was suspended Thursday because of rain, 1979 champion Fuzzy Zoeller was in the lead with 36 players from a starting field of 76 still on the course. By the time he finished Friday, shooting 76-148, Zoeller was tied for 15th.

"I don't know what position I'm in," Strange insisted when he finished the second round. "Tied for first? Well, shoot. It's funny how a couple of putts will turn it around. You go from being the worst golfer in the world to leading the Masters."

Nicklaus says that unless the wind dies down the last two days, par golf, "or higher," is going to win this Masters. "I said at the beginning of the week that this is going to be a tournament of patience, nerve and nerves," said Nicklaus. "It's proving to be just that."

It requires patience to take your time and not get excited. It takes nerve when the situation calls for it. And it takes nerves to play the last two holes in 6-over.

Big Ben's Four RBI Powers Milwaukee

United Press International
Ben Oglivie couldn't wait to get going and the Toronto Blue Jays wish he had never started.

"We were beginning to wonder where we would play next," Oglivie said Friday, after driving in four runs to help the weather-plagued Milwaukee Brewers open their season with a 15-4 rout of the Toronto Blue Jays.

"On the way up here we heard the forecast was snow, but the weather changed and the sunshine helped us relax," he said. Oglivie stroked a two-run homer and Cecil Cooper blasted two two-run doubles to help hand the Blue Jays their first home-opening loss in their six-year history.

The Brewers, who had two attempts at home openers canceled because of cold weather, made maximum use of 16 hits in the 43-degree temperatures before 30,216 fans at Exhibition Stadium.

"All those hits helped us relax, too," said Oglivie. "It's good to still be able to get home runs."

"We had the jitters," said Cooper. "It's great to get rid of them."

Toronto Manager Bobby Cox marked his debut at the Jays' helm by getting ejected from the game in the sixth inning. He tried to shrug off the loss.

"You can't make a season out of it," said the former Atlanta Braves' manager. "Our pitching is going to be the difference this year."

In other games, Minnesota nipped California, 2-1, Kansas City defeated Detroit, 4-2, and Oakland topped Seattle, 5-3. Boston at Baltimore and Chicago at New York were postponed.

Twins 2, Angels 1
At Minneapolis, Kent Hrbek crashed a 420-foot home run leading off the seventh inning and Al Williams pitched a four-hitter. Loser Angel Moreno gave up both Minnesota runs.

Rays 4, Tigers 2
At Kansas City, Mo., Amos Otis belted a first-inning grand slam to support Larry Gura's six-hit pitching in the Tigers' season-opening game. Jack Morris took the loss.

A's 5, Mariners 3
At Oakland, Calif., Steve McCatty tossed a seven-hitter over 6 1/3 innings and the A's took advantage of Gaylord Perry's wildness. Perry threw three wild pitches to help the A's score all five of their runs in the fifth inning.

Angelo's Mice Nibble

Twin Wins In '82 Opener

Angelo's Restaurant opened their 1982 women's softball season with two league wins at Altamonte. The "Mice", 20 game winners last fall in Altamonte league and various tournament play, embark on another campaign as over 30 games are planned including tourneys in Apopka, Leesburg and on the West Coast.

Huth Tempesta hurled both victories, shutting out Southeast Business 20-0 and beating the 111 Rascals 18-7. She also contributed a big bat with two hits in each game including a triple and four RBIs.

Barbara Michalek led the way against Southeast with 3 for 3 (or 5 RBIs). Terri Fry had 3 hits including a double and 3 RBIs; DeDe Hasley, Mary McDonough and Dana Hale all added two hits apiece with Hale Driving in four.

Rose Fry had the hot bat against the Rascals with a perfect 4 for 4. Hasley, McDonough, Terri Fry, Hale, Michalek and Mary Meier all added a pair of hits each, McDonough driving in five runs, Michalek three. Hale also joined Tempesta on the extra-base hit list with a triple.

Hasley in left, Michalek and Sandy Denmark at third and short, sparkled in the field for Angelo's.

SWEET SWINGING ANGEL

Veteran slugger Rod Carew collected one of just four hits for the California Angels Friday night. Carew was upstaged by a couple of youngsters, however, who continue to play big hands in the Minnesota Twins early season success. Rookie Kent Hrbek socked a mammoth 420-foot homerun and fellow rookie and former Orlando Twin Gary Gaetti, already with three homers to his credit, added a single and double in three trips to the plate as Minnesota shaded the Angels by a 2-1 score. Major League Baseball continued to have its problem with mother nature in the first week of play. Boston at Baltimore and Chicago at New York were both postponed due to inclement weather.

Boggs Ends Career With Gators

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — The first time Otis Boggs did color at a Florida football game, a young boy, who had broken up with his girlfriend, shinned up the northeast tower at Florida Field and refused to come down.

It was the 1939 homecoming game for Florida and powerful Georgia Tech was the opponent, but the drama unfolding on the tower overshadowed the game being played on the field. Boggs' half-time commentary was a breeze.

"It was as if they were skinning a cat," Boggs said. "Everyone forgot about the game. They'd try to coax him down, and he'd kick at them. Finally, they tied him down and lowered him from the tower as the game was ending."

That was how Boggs, a young chemistry student at Florida at the time, was initiated into the art of improvisation on the radio waves. Later, he would become Florida's play-by-play announcer.

Next fall, after nearly 40 years of broadcasting Gator football and basketball games over a 68-station, statewide network, Boggs' raspy voice will be absent. At 62, the venerable "voice of the Fightin' Gators" is semi-retiring. He will do pre- and post-game interviews only.

"My favorite Otis Boggs story," recalled Fred "Calish" Abbott, who worked with Boggs since 1975 as color commentator, "was my first year, the Florida-FSU game. Florida State was driving and there was just one play left.

"Otis made a mistake and cued the network for a commercial break when there was no time-out on the field. I knew there was no time out and I looked over at him and wondered what he was going to do."

"It was too late — the network already had gone to the commercial and the game ended while the commercial was on," Abbott said.

"But Otis was unflustered. He gave them an instant replay: 'The FSU quarterback rolls out ...'"

Abbott calls Boggs "the best thing since bubble gum," and adds, "he's the Florida fan who probably knows more about Florida football history than anyone in the state."

A balding, bespectacled man with a remarkably even temper, Boggs has described the exploits of Gator teams under seven head coaches: Josh Cody, Tom Lieb, Bear Wolf, Bob Woodruff, Ray Graves, Doug Dickey and Charley Pell.

He covered all of Dickey's games both as a Gator player and later as coach, and was broadcasting Florida football before the current coach, Pell, was born.

Boggsisms that became familiar to Florida boys who tuned in Gator games on warm autumn Saturdays were "Orban," instead of Auburn — a name he never could quite get, and phrases like "a booming spiral" and "a high end-over-end punt ('it didn't matter,'" says Abbott, "that the punt was low and off to one side").

"He is a super Gator," said former coach, athletic director and long-time friend Ray Graves. "If there is any criticism of Otis, it is that he loved the Gators too much."

Former Gator offensive tackle Red Mitchum, now a manufacturers representative in Ocala, said Boggs never could get over the 14-13 upset of Florida by an Auburn team coached by Shug Jordan in 1951.

"They won on a long, desperation pass in the final minutes of the game," said Mitchum. "To this day, Otis still believes that we won the game."

"He has something you don't find today," said Mitchum. "He's completely straight, honest and consistent in his personal life. There's no ego problem. He's not as sophisticated as some, but he's no more prejudiced than a lot of them."

"Otis Boggs is an institution in Gator athletics, and Florida fans who have listened to him over the years closely associate the man and his voice with Florida," UF Athletic Director Bill Carr said. "He will be missed."

Stadler shared the 36-hole lead in 1981 when he shot 70-148, tied for 15th.

"I feel I have more control of my game now than I did then," said the chunky, 28-year-old Californian. "I don't feel that I am any better player, but I do have better course management. I still get mad at myself when I make a mistake, lose my temper, ground my club. But now I get it out of my system and forget it."

Stadler said he didn't let it worry him when he fell seven strokes off the lead. "I just played my own game," he said. "I knew the course would catch up with the other guys."

The weather was vastly improved Friday, but the wind was up and the greens were again as fast as they had been earlier in the week.

"You can imagine how fast they can make them," Floyd said, shaking his head.

Rogers, Dawson Lead Expos' Win

United Press International
Finally, Steve Rogers and Andre Dawson can forget about the end of the Montreal Expos' 1981 season.

It was Rogers who served up the fateful home-run pitch to Rick Monday that gave Los Angeles the National League pennant. And it was Dawson's failure to drive in a run in 10 post-season games that contributed to the Expos' absence in the World Series.

In Philadelphia Friday night, Rogers tossed a three-hitter and Dawson socked a first-inning home run off loser Larry Christenson to spark the Expos to a 2-0 triumph in their season opener.

"I was relaxed ..." said Dawson. "We were anxious to play ... We wanted to get a game under our belt and get the kinks out."

Rogers looked in top form against the Phillies as he struck out 10 and allowed only a pair of fourth-inning singles and a ninth-inning double. With the shutout, he extended his consecutive string of scoreless innings against Philadelphia to 25. The game was played before a crowd of 7,795 which braved 33-degree temperature.

"The most pleasant surprise was that I had a good breaking ball and fastball coming right out of the chute," said Rogers.

The Expos added their other run in the fourth when Warren Cromartie singled, took third on a double by Tim Wallach and scored on Chris Speier's sacrifice fly.

In other games, Chicago topped the New York Mets, 5-0, Cincinnati blanked San Francisco, 7-0, Atlanta beat Houston, 6-2, and San Diego defeated Los Angeles, 7-4.

Cubs 5, Mets 0
Ferguson Jenkins, making his return to Chicago after eight years in the AL, allowed five hits over 6 2/3 innings to spark the Cubs. Bill Buckner smacked a two-run homer in the fourth.

Reds 7, Giants 0
At Cincinnati, Frank Pastore fired a four-hitter and Johnny Bench drove in three runs, as San Francisco remained winless in its first three games.

Braves 6, Astros 2
At Atlanta, Dale Murphy cracked a two-run homer to highlight a five-run first inning and Tommy Boggs and Al Hrabosky combined on a seven-hitter for Atlanta. Don Sutton took the loss.

Padres 7, Dodgers 4
At Los Angeles, Sixto Lezcano doubled home Ruppert Jones in the seventh inning to snap a 44 tie and give San Diego its first victory of the season.

Former Pitcher Barrios Dead

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (UPI) — Francisco Barrios, a former pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, died Friday of a heart attack in his native city of Hermosillo. He was 28.

Barrios was reportedly close to signing with the Milwaukee Brewers after a torrid winter season with the Orange Pickers of Hermosillo in the Mexican Pacific League.

"He was always a great player. His death fills us with sadness. There aren't too many 'Pancio' Barrios in baseball," said one of about 100 fans who attended the wake, outside his parents' house where he died Friday afternoon.

"We were roommates during his first year with the White Sox," said outfielder Jorge Orta, also with the Dodgers now. "... We played together in Mexico on the same team. I just can't believe it ... he was so young."

 agreed to neutral language on whether half of the Senate's 40 members — those elected in 1980 to four-year terms — will have to run for reelection this year because of reapportionment.
 The neutral language is being sent to the Florida Supreme Court for a ruling on the question.
 In other action before the Legislature adjourned, it raised state sales taxes to 6 percent from 5 percent, effective May 1. But beginning

Oct. 1, the state will share equally the revenues from the increase with city and county governments.
 Hattaway, who supported the tax, said half of the revenues will be returned to the cities and county governments, with the split on a population basis.
 He said the tax will provide $2 million to $3 million in tax relief for Seminole County property owners.
 "Basically, I was trying to accomplish percent of the revenues from the increased tax will come from tourists.

 Brantley opposed the tax increase. "A lot of government types are going to be happy with more money to spend," he said. "However, a point made clear during debate is that people will be paying out more in taxes than they are saving."
 Since the appropriations bill was accelerated on a tax increase, Brantley also voted against it. "The ap-penditure," he said.

 "The state may find itself in a box. I hope this doesn't come about. The money from the sales-tax hike is being spent in the budget even though the state doesn't know the extent of the federal cuts," he said.
 "The state could find itself in the position of having to raise another tax to make up for the federal cuts."

revenues, why is it spending the $800 million in new revenue?" he asked.
 Hattaway supported the appropriations bill that allocated $3 million for a new Central Florida Crime Laboratory; $100,000 to continue the blind mosquito research program at the University of Florida research center in Sanford, and $70,000 to complete the removal of waste chemicals from a Sanford site.

laboratory be built in Lake Mary, he has a "gentleman's agreement" with the House leadership that the new facility will be built there.
 Brantley said that because of the reapportionment fiasco, there are strong feelings among some legislators favoring the creation of an independent commission to handle reapportionment in 1992.
 "Greater numbers than in the past are taking redistricting out of the hands of legislators," he said.

More Bad Weather Coming

United Press International
 Violent thunderstorms, fueled by pounding rains, furious winds and brilliant lightning, rumbled through central Florida for a second straight day Friday, and a forecaster predicted the worst is yet to come.
 "The whole state will be black Saturday with thunderstorms," said Gil Clark, National Weather Service forecaster. "The storms will come down into south Florida and a new low will spawn more storms in north Florida."
 Nearly 6 inches of rain was dumped on the Ocala area Friday, flooding most major thoroughfares, forcing several families to flee their homes and opening up at least three sinkholes.
 The largest cave-in, which measured 20-by-25 feet across the top and 15 to 20 feet deep, closed a busy street for more than a block. The heavily-traveled road leads from Ocala to the Silver Springs tourist attraction and on to Daytona Beach.
 "Water as high as the roof line was reported at several homes in low lying areas," a highway patrol spokesman said.
 The Marion County Sheriff's Department said shelters were opened in Ocala Friday night but those families forced from their homes "apparently took refuge with friends and relatives."

Earlier Friday, a 34-year-old Orlando sanitation worker was injured when he was struck by lightning. Don Gandy was listed in fair condition in the Orlando Regional Hospital with minor injuries to his hand.
 "There are no burn marks on him, but he says he saw a big blue ball right when he was hit," said hospital spokeswoman Cynthia Sucher. "His clothes were wet from the rain and they were smoking, he says."
 An unidentified 35-year-old Altamonte Springs woman was also struck by lightning. She was listed in stable condition in an Altamonte Springs hospital.
 A tornado touched down Friday morning near Orlo Vista, 12 miles southwest of Orlando. No one was hurt and nothing was damaged. Another twister hit south of Groveland in Lake County, damaging two mobile homes.
 At least a dozen other storms uprooted trees, ripped down power lines and caused havoc in cities throughout the central part of the state. A late afternoon thunderstorm drenched Orlando with nearly 3 inches of rain.
 Lightning struck at least two homes outside Orlando and tornado warnings were issued throughout the day for eastern Orlando, Merritt Island and an area including Daytona Beach.

The roof of Sanford Dr. Luis Perez's office blew off during Thursday's storms, plowing his car and another vehicle under it. Perez estimated damages exceeding $50,000 to his office and rain-soaked medical equipment.

...Damage Bad, But At Least No One Died

 Individual damage estimates by county residents and merchants are staggering.
 Sanford's Dr. Luis Perez reported that the roof was blown off his 2nd Street office and pinned his car and another vehicle in the driveway.
 Despite what Perez estimates is $50,000 in damage to the building and medical equipment, he took the loss in stride.
 "What can you do? The doctor asked. 'What's happened, has happened.'
 Perez said at the time the storm hit, a young woman in her 20s was at the office requesting tranquilizers because she was nervous about her Sunday wedding.
 "Then the roof blew off and I hear the secretary yell, 'It's raining inside the building.'
 "I called the fire department immediately because I was concerned about electrical wires starting a fire.
 "After the roof blew off the young girl asked me, 'You're not going to charge me for those tranquilizers, are you?' he said.
 "That's the first time in my medical career that I've made a patient sicker," chuckled Perez.
 Although Sanford bore the brunt of the storm's wrath, south Seminole County received its share of damage from tornado-force winds.
 Casselberry Police Chief Fred McGowan reported that the storm which roared in about 5 p.m. caused scattered damage while dumping six inches of rain between 5 p.m. and midnight Thursday on the city.
 Damage reports in Casselberry included minor damage to a mobile home and fence when a tree was blown down at 750 N. Winter Park Drive; a tree that fell across Carlisle Drive blocking the road and bringing down power lines; another fallen tree blocking the 800 block of North Triplett Drive; barn damage and downed power lines at the Seminole Greyhound Park dog track; and a tree down on a trailer next to track.

 The twister then headed east toward Tusawilla, doing considerable damage in the Lake Tony area. Trees were blown over, crushing a car and a pickup and caving in a roof of a Bird Road home. A Mercury Bobcat belonging to Jim and Debbie Johnson of 2018 Lake Drive was crushed when the top of a large pine tree landed on it, and two attic turbines were blown off the roof of the house which they are renting.
 "I just filled the car with gasoline two hours ago," Mrs. Johnson said.
 Electricity was out in the section for five hours because of damaged power lines.
 Winter Springs Police Chief John Govoruhk said that his department had received reports of damage from all over the city, including a lot of hail damage. In Tusawilla, a tree fell on a new camper and there was some damage at Hacienda Village.
 Govoruhk said the windshield of one of his patrol cars was cracked during the hail storm in Sanford. Kaiser said that damage to the county's public schools hasn't been estimated, but that teams figured 200-300 window panes were blown out of local schools.
 The New Tribes Mission Lake Monroe was also a victim of severe window damage.
 After surveying the damage, Gietz Bader, mission business manager said the building sustained an estimated $250,000 in damage.

 Local telephone service was severely crippled by wind and water damage, leaving large areas of the county without communication.
 Spokespersons for Southern Bell indicate they are doing all they can to restore service as quickly as possible.
 "That's all we can tell people," said Larry Strickler, Southern Bell telephone manager, Sanford. "We have a lot of people having problems getting dual tones, receiving calls, and those with no service at all. To call out during this time while we are having problems, will only add insult to injury because the cables can't take the load."
 Strickler said at least 37 telephone cables in Sanford, seven cables in Deltona and one cable in Oviedo are damaged.
 "We don't know when service will be completely restored," he said. "We will have work crews out all through the weekend repairing, at least temporarily, many of the cables. Then, we'll go back next week and repair them permanently."
 "We've gotten over 1,000 calls about service problems which is indicative of the severity of the problem," he said.
 Strickler said the majority of damage done to telephone lines and cables was caused by severe winds and falling trees downing aerial lines.
 "We're also faced with the problem of our lines and power lines down at the same location," he added.
 Florida Power & Light officials said their work crews are working as quickly as possible to restore power to Sanford, Chuluota, Geneva and other parts of Seminole, Lake and Volusia counties. They could not say exactly when power would be restored.

And The Winner Is...

History has been made and Sharon Andrews has been named the very first "Miss Lake Mary High School."
 There were 43 contestants competing for the title of "Miss LMHS" at the pageant which took place on April 1.
 Each of the contestants was chosen and sponsored by either their homeroom, sport or extra-curricular activity. There was much preparation, as the girls met on various occasions for rehearsals and advice sessions on such things as makeup, poise, and walking.
 Along with naming Sharon "Miss LMHS," judges also selected Peggy Glass as first runner-up, and Paige Jones as second runner-up. There were other categories, too, in which younger girls from surrounding areas could compete. These categories were: Tiny Miss, ages 3-5; Little Miss, 6-8; Petite Miss, 9-10; and Junior Miss, 11-13. Winners in these categories were: Jenni Beathard, Niki Letterio, Tami Harding, and Gina Kern respectively.
 Sharon was selected by a panel of distinguished judges from the community, and she will represent LMHS during many school and community events in the months to come. Congratulations!

Some Cuban Flights Banned

MIAMI (UPI) — The U.S. Treasury Department has invoked a two-decade-old statute outlawing business dealings with Cuban-controlled firms to close the last remaining commercial air link to Havana.
 Treasury Department officials Friday banned flights to and from Cuba by American Airway Charters Inc. (AAC), charging it is "controlled" by Fidel Castro's government in violation of U.S. law.
 The action stranded 56 AAC passengers, boarding a noon flight to Havana at Miami International Airport, and could delay the return to the United States of about 2,000 more.
 The order also temporarily strands as many as 2,000 Cuban nationals who came to the United States on the Hialeah-based carrier and were scheduled to return.
 Late Friday an Air Florida jet chartered to AAC brought back about 120 passengers stranded in Cuba after first receiving government permission.
 The Cuban Assets Control Regulations, adopted in the early 1960s after Castro came to power, prohibits Cuban firms from operating in the United States.

 Earlier this year, AAC and its top executives were indicted by a Miami federal grand jury on charges of trading with the enemy. They are awaiting trial.
 Among those looking for a flight out of Miami Friday were 56 members and associates of the National Swimming Association of Trinidad-Tobago headed to Havana to participate in the Fourth Caribbean Invitational Swim Meet beginning Monday.
 A.L. Roberts, swimming association president, said he was trying to arrange alternate transportation and the team might fly to Toronto where it could catch an Air Canada flight to Havana.
 Roberts also said he might sue either the airline or the United States because of the inconvenience.
 Members of the swim team worried that they wouldn't get to Havana at all.

Spring is usually a merry splendor thing. Just look around you.
Early spring — more than any other time of year — is perceived by many in religious circles as a "new beginning for life" throughout the world.
And with good reason. April religious celebrations include Palm Sunday, Good Friday, Easter and Passover. Each is a reaffirmation of the spirit for Christians and Jews.
Take a look at the spirit among Christians and Jews in Sanford this past week.
Maybe it is a "first" in the history of religious circles in the community. Maybe not.
While Christians are celebrating Christ's resurrection, Jews are celebrating the season of Lent, which began 40 days before (and on Ash Wednesday), Passover, the oldest festival of the Hebrew liturgical calendar observed for more than 3,000 years, began on April 8.

Toward broadening their scope in religious education, the Fellowship Class of the First United Methodist Church, Sanford, invited Stella and Joe Oritta to speak to the class and discuss the Passover.
The popular couple graciously consented. Reports from several attending the lively program were superbly favorable.
The Orittas remained on for the regular 11 a.m. worship service "just to hear what Leo (King) had to say." I can't speak for Stella and Joe, but the good Methodists seemed overwhelmed. And there was a lot of hugging and kissing in appreciation of the hospitality.
This is not all.
Thursday night, Stella and Joe conducted the traditional Seder ceremony (the Passover feast) for the class and guests. The group prepared the food while Stella and Joe shared first hand information.

Beautiful.
For Jews, Seder is celebrated in the home and marks the first experience of the nation of Israel with God. Seder begins with a ritual of washing the hands. The history of the Jewish exodus from Egypt is recounted for family members and invited participants.
"We were thrilled that the young people were so interested," Stella said.
But no more thrilled that several of the participants. "What a fantastic couple!" a class spokesman exclaimed.
Call it Easter, Passover, a merger — but just of all, call it love — a merry splendor thing any season.

To Come Yet

Rioting Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank in recent days proclaim anew that the autonomy provisions of the Camp David agreement are unraveling.

Remorseless circumstances have locked Israelis and Palestinians in an embrace that both fervently wish to be extricated from but cannot for different reasons. West Bank Palestinians yearn for a freedom they have never known in their own homeland. But they are too weak either to throw off Israeli occupation or to withstand domination by the Palestinian Liberation Organization. For Israelis, the one thing more difficult than governing a rebellious, subject people would be to surrender the West Bank and thereby gerrymander their tiny country's borders to a point where they could not be defended — only 10 miles wide at the narrow waist. For a relative handful of Jews in a sea of angry Arabs, the West Bank is a question of national survival. Israel will simply never agree to an independent Palestine at its heart, which under the PLO could become a Soviet base. Therefore, Israeli and Palestinian interests, if not irreconcilable, appear to defy any neat, final solution at least in this generation.

For a short while, the Camp David Accords held out considerable promise of an accommodation at least, if not a final settlement. Unfortunately, the Palestinians refused to participate in the West Bank "autonomy" talks or to recognize Israel's right to exist. The Palestinian position, admittedly dictated by the PLO, has provided Israel's tough-minded prime Minister Menachem Begin the rationale he needed to advance vigorously additional Israeli settlements on the West Bank, which had been quietly initiated by the preceding Labor government in the first place.

Meanwhile, the PLO is far from idle. Almost every Arab leader in the West Bank who has spoken out for peace or refused to become a PLO militant has been murdered or intimidated into paralysis. A moderate Arab alternative to PLO rule in any autonomous setup has been effectively eliminated. This means the PLO has become a major influence with West Bank Arabs. As a result, Arab self-government in the towns and cities that Israel already sanctions is increasingly dominated by Arab leaders with close ties to the PLO. It was Israel's decision to remove three prominent Arab mayors with such PLO connections that touched off the latest West Bank explosions.

Ironically, the hoped-for link between Israel's scheduled withdrawal from the Sinai on April 25 and peace on the West Bank is proving to have a negative impact rather than a positive one. The forcible repatriation of Israeli settlers from the Sinai in recent days to a defection of a splinter party from the Begin coalition government that almost brought it down, even though the confidence vote in the Knesset was ostensibly on the West Bank issue. Moreover, with the final handover of the large, insulating Sinai territories, the insecure Israelis are digging in against concessions on the West Bank.

The Begin government has made clear that it will tolerate no disorders in what Mr. Begin likes to refer to as Judea and Samaria, the Biblical parts of Old Testament Israel. But reports of a PLO-planned West Bank uprising in May and calls for a general strike of all Arabs in Israel warn of worse times to come. Of necessity, the PLO's chief tactic must be violence. Israel's suppression of that violence will undoubtedly further isolate Israel in world councils and worsen already-strained relations with the United States.

The Israelis realize this, of course, but can find no acceptable alternative. Undoubtedly, they would be willing to make real concessions to gain tranquility for the West Bank in return for the sort of recognition and negotiated safeguards that attended the Sinai settlement with Egypt. Tragically, there is no current Arab equivalent to Anwar Sadat to undertake such negotiations.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Do you realize that, lately, you have been on TV ALMOST AS MUCH AS JOHN HOUSEMAN?"

RUSTY BROWN

Time For A Rewrite

Memo to playwright Tom Jones and composer Harvey Schmidt:
I was sorry to hear your new play, "Colette," closed out-of-town before making the New York scene.

I'm sure it's a terrible blow after all the months of work, and I can only offer an admirer's expectation that your next one will be a winner.

Speaking of winners, I often read about your great hit "The Fantasticks" still being put on around the country. Those neat songs, "Try to Remember" and "Soon It's Gonna Rain," are still being sung, 22 years after the show opened. That's really something. And hundreds of audiences are still hearing those wonderful lines: "Who understands why spring is born out of winter's laboring pain? Or, why we all must die a bit before we grow again?"

Now I have learned that the Cleveland Opera is staging "The Fantasticks" in mid-April. I've already had two phone calls about it, in fact.

One was from Mary Neville Woodrich, a writer of children's books, who worries about what the next generation reads and hears. The other call was from Janice Bench, director of the Cleveland Rape Crisis Center, who expects to demonstrate against your show.

These women are disturbed about the rape number, "It Depends On What You Pay," sung by the play's El Gallo, as he conspires with the two fathers who want their son and daughter to marry.

El Gallo suggests staging an attempted rape as a dramatic way for the son to become a hero and save the "damsel in distress." For a price, El Gallo promises to provide just such an episode, bound to throw the couple into each other's arms.

He offers the fathers a variety of rapes. For example: "You can get the rape emphatic. You can get the rape polite. You can get the rape with Indians, a truly charming sight."

Or, he recommends "the spectacular rape with costumes ordered from the East. Requires rehearsal and takes a dozen men at least." He can also provide "the drunken rape... in a cheap saloon" and the Venetian rape "that needs a blue lagoon."

"Oh rape! Sweet rape" is the oft-repeated refrain.

Well, Messrs. Jones and Schmidt, the point is, there is no way rape can be considered sweet — not even in a musical as popular as yours.

Rape is ugly. Brutal. Violent. There is no excuse — no reason in the world — that in 1982 a musical should have a song extolling rape.

Author Woodrich told me she and her husband were shocked when they saw the musical recently. "The play is charmingly simple and romantic, then suddenly, we could hardly believe our ears — they were singing about 'Oh rape! Sweet rape.' This delightful play," she said, "wounds women and hurts men."

Handicapped Hit By Cost-Cutters

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration denies it is picking on the more vulnerable members of our society, like the poor and the elderly. But the bureaucratic bullies of the "New Federalism" are taking aim at the most helpless targets of all: handicapped children.

What's even more shameful is that the administration is apparently planning to trick Congress into going along with its shabby scheme. Here's the story:

In the sacred cause of "getting the government off our backs," the Department of Education wants to turn responsibility for handicapped kids over to the tender mercies of local school boards and state agencies. It wants to redefine the "true, appropriate, public education" guaranteed to the handicapped by law. It also hopes to give the states greater flexibility, such as considering cost, when deciding where a handicapped child should go to school.

Realizing that Congress would be unlikely to swallow this set of proposals whole, Joe Beard, a lawyer in the department's general counsel's office, proposed a plan to feed it to the lawmakers piecemeal. In a confidential March 30 memo to Tom Anderson, special counsel to Education Secretary Terrel Bell, Beard acknowledges that, by law, Congress will have to be notified of the changes.

"But it (the law) does not say we have to send it up all in one part," the legal adviser points out. The solution he recommends is to

Congrats, El Salvador

No doubt about it, and whatever governing configuration emerges, the political left took a terrific political and psychological shelling in the Salvadoran elections. The communist guerrillas threatened to wreck the election, but succeeded only in demonstrating political and military weakness.

The voters defied threats and violence, and streamed to the polls by the hundreds of thousands. They waited in long lines to vote.

Out in the boon docks, where the communists had blown up the buses, peasants often trudged miles along parched roads to cast a ballot.

A couple of hundred foreign observers attested to the fairness of it all.

The shrewder tacticians on the left tried to discredit the voting in advance. Margaret Thatcher's government was attacked by Labor for agreeing to send any observers at all. A constant stream of propaganda attacked the legitimacy of the whole process.

But, with "the whole world watching," the thing was brought off, a triumph for the democratic process and a tribute to the courageous desire of the Salvadoran voters for a decent political system.

Instead of elections, the preferred program of the international left involved a cutoff of aid to the government, plus "negotiations" with the communist guerrillas. That was the position of the Catholic Bishops Conference, of the editors of the Ivy League student newspapers, and of the left generally.

It meant — whether all of those advocating it knew it or not — a Vietnamese solution for El Salvador. The aid cutoff would mean a military collapse; the negotiations, from a position of weakness, would mean a communist takeover. And, after that, there would be no further talk of elections. The Salvadoran people said no thanks to that poisoned package.

For the international left there is the further embarrassment of the large vote garnered by Roberto D'Aubisson and his National Republican Alliance (ARENA), which came in a close second to the ruling Christian Democrats. (This, in itself, is strong evidence that the elections were honest; the ruling party in, for example, Mexico never fights a close election.) Now Mr. D'Aubisson has been described in the American press in terms that Atilla the Hun would consider libelous. He is routinely called "an extreme rightist." Doubt was expressed that Congress would want to have anything to do with this monster.

Well, judging by the vote he pulled, the people of El Salvador seem to perceive him a bit differently. D'Aubisson, a former officer, promised during the campaign to exterminate the guerrillas within three months and use napalm to do so. That electoral platform seems to have appealed to about one third of the voters, perhaps understandable in a country beset by unremitting guerrilla violence.

In a longer perspective, it is worth asking whether the left — or much of it — really, deep down, likes elections.

People just do not seem to vote for the leftist agenda. In the United States, for example, the hard ideological pills like racial busing and racial quotas had to be administered by judges and bureaucrats: no one ever voted for them.

In El Salvador, the left has maneuvered to advance the guerrilla cause, though there is no reason to believe that any of the five Marxist factions that constitute the guerrilla movement has the slightest intention of holding elections.

Is the left, here and abroad, fundamentally an anti-democratic political alliance? I myself believe it is.

A Nice Place To Visit, But...

Two of Ronald Reagan's most visible black supporters have suggested that the president conduct some political missionary work among black voters. I'd like to offer my assistance to this worthwhile project:

The suggestion came from the Rev. Ralph Abernathy and Georgia State Rep. Hosea Williams, who were among 75 black clergymen to break bread recently with the president at the White House.

The Harris Poll has found that 59 percent of Americans of all races no longer believe that Reagan "really cares about working people and minorities and wants to get jobs for the unemployed." And many polls have shown that blacks are less favorably inclined toward Reagan than are members of any other segment of the population.

The president obviously must move quickly and boldly to shore up his ratings before the voters cancel his program.

During most of his out-of-town trips, Reagan has been restricted to rubbing shoulders with a few GOP officials and well-to-do contributors. But Williams and Abernathy left the White House reporting that the president was prepared to break the color line in his travels. That is, he has decided to go into black communities and to meet with black people.

In keeping with Reagan's emphasis on voluntarism, I am offering to help develop the itinerary for the first presidential mission to black America. I've planned a quick four-state two-day trip.

Air Force One will first set down in Atlanta, where Reagan will tour historic Morehouse College, the alma mater of the Rev. Martin Luther King. The president will engage in a rap session with the one-third of the student body who will be unable to continue their schooling because of his proposed cuts in aid to higher education.

It's a short hop to South Carolina, where the presidential party will make two stops. In Greenville, Reagan will tell black South Carolinians why his tax policies allow them to make deductible contributions to Bob Jones University although their race prevents them from studying there.

In Edgefield County, Reagan will detail why his Justice Department withdrew from a voting discrimination case just 24 hours before it was supposed to be argued. This county is coincidentally the home of Senate Judiciary Chairman Strom Thurmond, who will join Reagan in an explanation of why both men want to weaken the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

The next stop will be Montgomery, Ala. During his March visit to the former capital of the Confederacy, Reagan had time only for a speech to the state legislature and a few handshakes with Republican big shots. This time he will meet with a cross-section of Alabama blacks — whose unemployment rate is the highest in the South — to discuss trickle-down economics and cuts in jobless benefits.

I hope that Reagan remembers to pack a safety net along with a change of shirts when he is preparing for this trip to black America. He'll need a stronger model than the one he left for us.

al-heel) as the years went by.

The depths of the 50-year-old yacht's indignity were probably reached earlier this year when it was placed under arrest at its mooring in Baltimore, like any common footpad. The action was a legal maneuver in a long dispute between its two most recent owners.

The Sequoia has since been hauled out, so to speak, and is currently tied up in the Potomac River, a few hundred yards from the White House. But the high hopes of its latest purchasers, a group of wealthy Republicans who formed the "Presidential Yacht Trust," appear to have dissolved in a frenzy of inter-cine bickering and financial problems.

The skipper and many of the trust's illustrious crew have jumped ship. Those on the beach include former Treasury Secretary John Connally, former Navy Secretary J. William Middendorf, former Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., Dr. Dale Tahtinen, formerly of the American Enterprise Institute, and businessman Robert Gray, who was co-chairman of Ronald Reagan's inaugural committee.

Edgar Skinner, the trust's original president and chief executive officer, left the group a few months ago and has been firing verbal broadsides at his former associates ever since, accusing them of various forms of skulduggery and calling for an investigation by the Internal Revenue Service, the Justice Department and Congress.

In an "unsolicited notice of my intention to resign," dated last Oct. 21, Skinner wrote: "The circumstances and events evolving since the acquisition of the USS Sequoia are not consistent with the standards I envisioned when I conceived and organized the Trust..."

Skinner also noted that a serious heart ailment had made him "physically unable to bail the Trust out of the impending financial disaster."

Since that restrained communication, Skinner has grown increasingly bitter. In a recent statement, for example, he refers to "abuses (that) have severely damaged the good reputation of the gallant Sequoia," and adds that "the proud lady cries out for those who have tainted her grand reputation, by using her for their own personal gain, to be brought to justice. She now founders, patiently waiting for help, from the country she so nobly served. I ask, on behalf of my lady, will America respond?"

One of the principal targets of Skinner's wrath seems to be Michael Gill, a nephew of the late President Eisenhower, who is chairman of one of the trust's boards. Gill told his associate Lucretia Lagrado that the trust is indeed low on funds, but he played down the legal and financial difficulties that have so exercised Skinner. As for Skinner's letter of intent to resign, Gill said he had never seen it. He was confident, he added, that the Presidential Yacht Trust would keep the Sequoia afloat.

How To Help Baseball Program

After paying my first visit to Sanford in the spring of 1971 to scout Tim Raines for the Montreal Expos, I have returned each spring since then to scout at Wes Rinker's Florida Baseball Schools.

Each year 50 or 60 university, college and high school teams engage in conditioning, fundamental clinics and tournament games. It has been very productive for the Expos, as we have been able to observe boys at this camp and later draft them for our organization. We have been successful in securing five young players now into our Expos program, and of course news in professional baseball circles travels fast.

When I first came to Wes Rinker's Florida Baseball Schools, Sanford's grand old man, Zinn Beck, was the only scout in attendance. Then, the next year, there were three or four, and this spring there have been 48 major league scouts in Sanford Stadium. One day alone there were 23.

I have often wondered why there is not more promotional activities behind Mr. Rinker's project, via the city fathers, the news media, the Chamber of Commerce and the service clubs.

This spring alone it is not difficult to make a mental calculation to realize that the Florida Baseball Schools are bringing to the Sanford area approximately $1 million and these dollars are being distributed among many thousands.

This has been accomplished mainly through the efforts of Wes Rinker, by letter-writing and a hit-and-miss, mouth-to-mouth information vine, and by the scouts, coaches, players, parents and their friends. It seems to me that with a combined effort the dollar value could be increased to $2 million easily.

There are many ways the chamber could help Mr. Rinker's program, and in so doing help almost every business in the Sanford area. It astounds me why this has not been done in a state that has promoted tourism so masterfully. I have been coming to Florida since 1958, and I have enjoyed every minute of your hospitality. I am sure these university people would be a great asset to the promotional future to all Florida. If pictures were taken, brochures were developed, giving highlights of the various teams, etc., think of the promotion it would give.

Remember that in a short time many of these boys will be executive people in industry and commerce all over the United States, and if they have pleasant memories of Sanford they will be in an influential position to repay the citizens of Sanford for their business with financial considerations.

It puzzles me how so many games of baseball can be played in a city with free admission and how very few citizens know the games are being played.

There are many senior citizens who should be enjoying this entertainment. Motel operators and other business people should be giving out pamphlets and weekly schedules informing people of the games so they might stay in Sanford and spend their money, instead of just using Sanford as a bedroom and traveling to other areas for amusement.

Of course, we know the majority of people have come to Florida to take in as much as they can in a short period of time, but I have found that many have come just for the sunshine and relaxation and do not want to travel as much. These people are the ones who would stay extra days and spend more money in the Sanford area if they were made aware of good, quiet, cheap entertainment available in Sanford.

Should U.S. Pull Out From Western Europe?

By L.H. GANN
Public Research, Syndicated

It is a power of enormous strength. It greatly outnumbers both the Soviet Union and the United States in terms of population: 327 million people, as against 265 million and 225 million respectively. It maintains more men under arms than does the U.S.: 2,800,000 as against 2,225,000. Its gross national product is nearly equal to that of the U.S.: $2,750 billion, as against $2,920 billion. Its defense expenditure admittedly is less than that of the U.S.: $105.9 billion as against $180 billion. Yet this is a huge sum, nearly as much as the entire gross national product of India, a country with nearly 700 million people.

What is this mighty power? It is the coalition of Western European nations that make up NATO.

The figures given above, in fact, underestimate NATO's potential strength. Given their economic potential, the Western Europeans could easily outspend the Soviet Union if they were inclined to do so. And if Spain were to join the NATO alliance, Western European forces would grow to 3,143,000 men, as against the Soviet Union's 3,673,000.

If NATO is so powerful, then why should the U.S. station troops in Western Europe? Surely, say the critics of America's involvement overseas, the time has come to rethink our commitments. If the U.S. continues to take upon its own shoulders an excessive defense burden, it shall merely discourage its allies from looking after their own defense. The U.S. forces now stationed in Europe, the argument continues, remain hostages to fortune as long as the Western Europeans fail to back them adequately. The U.S. should, at all costs, avoid the dangers of a super-Bataan or a super-Dunkirk of unhappy World War II memories.

Were the U.S. to withdraw from Western Europe, the argument goes on, it could put its land forces to better use by building a strategic reserve capable of defending vulnerable spots such as the Persian Gulf. The U.S. should, in any case, move toward a maritime strategy, one that would entail providing more resources for the U.S. Navy and stronger seaborne and airborne forces. It might even develop artificial floating bases to house aircraft and supplies. Such manmade mobile islands could be strategically positioned around the world's oceans. They would be wholly under U.S.

control, invulnerable either to foreign demonstrators or to terrorists.

COMMENTARY

The time has come, the argument concludes, to deal more firmly with America's Western European allies. Who needs friends unwilling to match our own armament efforts, prepared to make deals with the Soviet Union, and inclined to oppose us in the realm of diplomacy. Given the strength of anti-American feelings expressed by Western European demonstrators in the streets, we should take a hard look at our commitments. Our allies on the other side of the Atlantic can hardly expect the U.S. to be more European than the Europeans themselves.

The argument sounds convincing, but it is profoundly mistaken. Western Europe is by far the greatest prize in the struggle between East and West. Western Europe's agricultural riches, industrial resources, and above all, the vigor and intelligence of its peoples are essential to the defense of the West.

If Western Europe were to be "Finlandized," the impact on world politics would be disastrous. If Western Europe were to pass, directly or indirectly, under Soviet domination, the U.S. could at best survive as a garrison state. So long as Soviet leaders publicly proclaim that "détente" is nothing but an instrument for "intensifying the international class struggle," so long as Brezhnev, or his successor, assures the party congresses of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union that "peaceful coexistence" between different social systems is impossible; so long as Moscow believes that Soviet communism is the universal model for the world to follow; we must look to our defense. This we cannot do, unless we maintain substantial forces in Western Europe.

In the past, the Western powers have been able to make up for their relative weakness in conventional arms by their unchallenged nuclear superiority. This superiority has been lost as a result of the West's unwillingness to counter the Soviet arms buildup. In order to counter the Soviet Union's offensive strategy, NATO needs to build a more effective conventional defense. The Western European contribution to NATO's conventional defense forces is considerable and the U.S. would be foolish to deny them credit for what they have already achieved.

The U.S., it is true, has a smaller budget than the Europeans; but most Western European countries raise their armies by conscription; hence they get more fighting men per franc, lira, or Deutsche Mark than we do. In terms of military manpower, the Western European effort is nearly equal to our own. (The U.S. keeps one soldier, sailor, or airman in uniform for every 110 U.S. citizens; the Western Europeans' soldier-citizen ratio is about 1 to 116.)

This is not to say that all is well with the allied defense effort. The Soviet Union, unlike NATO, is dedicated to an offensive strategy that relies on weight of numbers and surprise. The West, though potentially much stronger, thinks only in terms of warding off the threatened blow. Despite its industrial and demographic inferiority, the Soviet Union at present can put far more fighting units, guns, tanks, personnel carriers, and aircraft into the field than the West. In strategic terms the Warsaw Pact forces possess the advantage of being able to operate on interior lines. They also enjoy unchallenged unity of command, and a uniform system of armaments.

In the face of these disadvantages, the Western European members of NATO should increase their defense spending. But money alone is not the answer. NATO as a whole should cooperate more extensively in arms research, development and procurement. It should expand its reserve forces, and make sure that they are better equipped. NATO must also rethink its strategy. It must emphasize the counter-attack rather than passive defense—the latter being a sure recipe for disaster.

Western Europe's forces are large on paper; but they are thin on the ground, and they are often stationed in the wrong places. NATO, therefore, needs to make its forces more interchangeable. (There is no reason, for instance, why Italian forces should not operate in the North German plain, or why Portuguese troops should not be shifted to southern Italy.) NATO should certainly strengthen its naval forces and devote more thought to the defense of the Middle East.

Given Western unity and Western resolve, there is not the slightest reason why the West should cover before the Soviet threat. "Better Red than dead," say the faint-hearted. If Westerners will only resolutely cooperate, we need be neither.

Drunken Driving: Let's Get Tougher

This is in regard to some recent comments made by an assistant state attorney regarding the new drunken-driver law recently passed by the Florida Legislature.

First, let me point out that the reason we had to pass a tougher law with some mandatory penalties was because even though we have a relatively good law on the books today, the prosecutors are not making strong enough cases nor are the judges handing out any strong penalties. In that light, I am somewhat chagrined by the comments made recently by Bruce Henahelwood, chief assistant state attorney for county courts, when he said, "I don't think it is responsive to the problems we have." He went on to say he did not feel that the required community service is punishment, but yet "a joke."

Why hasn't the state attorney's office been influencing the judges to hand out mandatory jail sentences under the existing law? Why hasn't the state attorney's office made stronger cases, particularly as they relate to drunk driving manslaughter cases? I suspect that for the state attorney's office or a judge to say that this new and tough law will be of little help is an admission that they are not prepared to enforce the law as it relates to drunk driving. Again, we are changing the law because, under the existing law, even though stiff jail sentences can be handed down, they are not.

Allow me to succinctly outline the provisions of first conviction and second conviction under the new law. Upon first conviction of driving under the influence, an individual would have his license suspended for six months. He would be required to attend a mandatory substance abuse program. Upon completing the program, he could get a temporary driving permit for work purposes, but that is at the discretion of the judge. He would have to pay a minimum fine of $250. He would have to pay for the court costs. He would have to pay the cost of taking the substance abuse course. He would then have to complete 50 hours of community service, which could include working in parks, sewage treatment plants, landfills, or even picking up trash. I strongly suggest that these sanctions are much tougher than a simple 48 hours in jail.

The state attorney's spokesman also indicated that the repeat offender cases would not be handled any differently. He is wrong. There would be, as is now the law, a minimum 10 days in jail. However, you would have to pay a minimum fine of $500, and if the conviction is a second conviction within a five-year period of time, you will mandatorily lose your license for five years with no opportunity for even a temporary driving permit. That is tough.

Under the existing law, you can refuse a Breathalyzer examination that determines your blood-alcohol content and only have your license suspended for 90 days. Under our proposed law, this refusal becomes admissible as evidence when the case is brought against you in a court of law. The refusal to take the Breathalyzer test obviously infers a degree of guilt and will help in better prosecuting these cases.

Under this new law there will be better opportunities to prosecute manslaughter cases, because if there is an accident with fatalities involved and the arresting officer has reason to believe that alcohol or drugs are involved, he may use "reasonable force" to take a blood sample. A blood sample is irrefutable evidence of blood-alcohol content.

This new law is a tough law. This new law had to be passed because the criminal justice and judicial systems were not doing their job. If they now enforce this law to the maximum, I feel very confident that there will be less drunk drivers on the road, less major accidents and fewer deaths. The public wants it, and they want it enforced. That should be a clear signal to the state attorney and the judges.

Troubles? Ask God To Find A Way

Giving honor and thanks to God, I would like to tell the world how the Lord delivered me out of my troubles, forgave me my sins, and worked through the minds of men.

I'm a wife and mother of five children, who tried to help provide for the family the best I knew how with the help of the Lord, because He's first in my life. I applied for AFDC (Aid for Families with Dependent Children) under false pretenses, knowing the consequences and knowing that it was wrong to apply when I knew I wasn't entitled.

But at that time I didn't know Christ as I do today, and felt at that time that I was entitled to receive AFDC because my husband and I both were working after I began to receive aid, but still not enough money was coming in to take care of the needs of the family, such as rent, car payments, light bill, insurance, etc., and we were sometimes lucky to have enough for food, but instead of trusting in God to take care of our problems, we trusted in ourselves.

But the Lord put it into our minds to repent, for what we had done was against God and man. No matter how critical our situation may have seemed to be, He let us know that all we had to do was trust in Him, which we did, and now we have a beautiful life. Not a beautiful life with luxury, but with Christ in our lives.

One and a half years ago I was indicted for welfare fraud and was scheduled for trial and sentencing before Judge Dominick Salli, who had the intention of sending me to jail. But because I and my husband were children of God and believed in Him with all our heart and soul, we asked Judge Salli to have mercy on us, because the law without mercy condemns us all.

And the Lord touched the Judge's heart, and instead of being sent to jail I was put on probation. I would like to share my experience with anyone who feels they have to lie to get help due to hunger or shelter. My advice to all of you is to take it to the Lord in prayer, and mean it from the heart and He will deliver. All it takes is faith, trust, and believing in Jesus Christ.

They Want Single-Member Districts

The Council of Community Based Organizations has gone on record favoring fair reapportionment with single-member districts for our Legislature. The CCBO took this position knowing that how reapportionment is carried out can greatly affect the outcome of numerous substantive issues which concern the citizens of Florida.

How the districts are drawn or whether the districts are single- or multi-member (an predetermined results before people ever go to the polls. Witness Florida's rural "pork chop" gang of the 1950s and '60s as malapportionment permitted the rural areas to win unfairly over urban centers.

With this in mind, the Florida House has passed a reapportionment plan which, although not perfect, represents a substantial effort to reflect and incorporate the views of the people of Florida as revealed in numerous public hearings held around the state. The plan has single-member districts for both houses which are drawn reasonably well and are "nested" (three House seats within one Senate seat). The plan calls for everyone to run this year, as many, if not most, legislators will have districts whose people did not vote on them to be their representatives originally.

The Florida Senate, however, with little public input, has passed a plan for senators which, while it has all single-member districts, looks like an "incumbents protection" plan with its oddly shaped districts. And the incumbents who currently are being the best protected are those allies of Sen. Dempsey Barron. Most of these senators are the ones who would have to run after only two years, and this power play on Barron's part is a large reason why the Legislature has not finished its reapportionment. The Supreme Court may have to rule on this issue, but hopefully, now before the session ends, the people will tell their senators they all will have to run.

In the final days of this session the people of Florida must urge their House members to stand firm on their plan and press their senators to back away from theirs. If ever there are times for the good of the public to prevail, this is certainly one of them.

Thanks For Help

How fortunate we, the residents of Seminole County, are to have such a wonderful newspaper in our community. Words cannot express the gratitude we, the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole, send to you and your staff.

Our performance in February was the best ever. But only through efforts such as yours could we reach all the people we did. We are a nonprofit organization and work strictly on donated goods and services in kind. The publicity you gave us helped us reach many financial goals and will help the Guild maintain its high standards of art for the county.

We most sincerely thank you for all your help. The Guild will continue to sing your praises and be grateful for your untiring efforts to bring the arts to Sanford and Seminole County.

Finding 'Agreeable' Foods

At our age, some foods do not agree with us. The disagreements begin with simple burps. Eventually, in many cases, they become nausea, indigestion, diarrhea attacks and stomach pain.

Affluent and middle-income old folks call their doctors. They can afford the prices doctors charge these days. The doctor prescribes medicine or suggests changes in diet.

He winds up by saying, "Get back to me and let me know how you feel."

The elderly poor, trying to make it on what's left of Medicare and Medicaid, have few options. Their lack of money makes it hard for them to observe proper diets. They may not even know which foods are good for them.

It isn't that richer elders necessarily know more about food than do poorer ones. But at least they can go to doctors.

Now comes an interesting program planned by doctors and dietitians for the American Digestive Disease Society. The society publishes soft-cover books under such titles as "The Anti-Gas Diet" and "Ulcer."

"The Anti-Gas Diet" starts by asking questions such as:

- What foods can I eat?
- What foods should I avoid?
- How can I compare what and how I eat to a pattern I should be following?
- How can I test to make certain that a food is safe for me?
- If I must follow a new eating pattern, how will I plan my meals?

—How much must I know about nutrition and digestion? How can I apply this information to my own digestive difficulties?

You can learn from "The Anti-Gas Diet" what to eat and what to eliminate from your diet. You can gain an understanding of your personal food problems and of how to eat without stress.

You'll get a whopping big list of foods to avoid because they may be bad for you. A similar list will tell you which foods are likely to be good for you.

The book provides a dietary plan and sample menus for five days. There's space to enter your own menus when you learn which foods agree with you.

Dead Flyer Got His Wish; A Belated Burial At Sea

NORFOLK (UPI) — Gladys Brooks said her son, Nicholas, a Navy flight officer, had told her that if anything had happened to him while he was in Vietnam, she should have his remains buried at sea. Mrs. Brooks' wish was granted Tuesday.

A little more than 13 years after he was shot down over Laos during the Vietnam War, Lt. Cmdr. Nicholas G. Brooks, of Newburgh, N.Y., was buried at sea off the Florida coast at sunset Wednesday, from the hangar deck of the aircraft carrier USS Independence.

Brooks, who was assigned to Attack Squadron 196 on the aircraft carrier USS Ranger, was shot down over Laos Jan. 1, 1970. He was 28. His remains were brought to the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok in two sections Jan. 18 and Feb. 3 of this year and were returned to the United States March 4.

Convicted Killer Appeals

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Defense attorneys for condemned killer Marion Albert Pruett are expected to argue in an appeal that he should have been convicted only of simple murder in the slaying of a Jackson loan officer and therefore subject to life in prison rather than death.

Pruett, a 32-year-old "born again Christian," was convicted of capital murder Thursday following three days of testimony in his trial at Columbus. He was sentenced to death for the kidnap-slaying of Peggy Lowe, 45, a mortgage loan officer at the Metrocenter branch of Unifirst Savings and Loan Association in Jackson.

Captain Gully Of Cruelty

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — A fishing boat captain who locked up his crewmen, fed them bread and water, and dragged one man behind his vessel on the end of a rope was convicted Friday on six federal charges of cruelty on the high seas.

The guilty verdicts against Jesse Dale Hansley, 34, of Cocoa Beach, came in the first case of cruelty at sea prosecuted in Rhode Island since 1856.

The government accused Hansley of imprisoning or mistreating six crew members during two scalloping trips last May and June to the Georges Bank, a rich fishing area about 90 miles off Massachusetts' Cape Cod.

Give Him 'A' For Effort

DENVER (UPI) — A man who shot himself in the chest, slit his throat and wrist and jumped twice from a second-story balcony was in critical condition at a hospital, authorities said.

A hospital spokesman Friday said the unidentified man, 41, suffered severe internal injuries in the leaps from the balcony. The bullet missed all vital organs, and the knife wounds were not serious.

Authorities refused to identify the man, but said he had tried to kill himself several times in the past and left a suicide note.

WEATHER

The savage winter weather eased its hammerlock on the Midwest and Northeast today in time for clear skies on Easter, but new storms moved toward Florida, pounded by tornadoes and 5-inch rains that gouged a 30-foot sinkhole in Ocala. A Rocky Mountain snowstorm flared Friday as it moved east, dumping only light snow on Chicago and New York, scenes of history-making April blizzards earlier in the week. The storm packed the second punch of a one-two combination that left 60 dead nationwide. A series of tornadoes and thunderstorms battered Florida Thursday and Friday. At least a dozen other storms felled trees, ripped down power lines and caused havoc in cities throughout the central and northeastern part of the state. Six inches of snow on the ground from Nebraska to Ohio began melting Friday as temperatures crept into the 30s and 40s. In Chicago, thousands of robins were dying because snow cover made food scarce.

In Fargo, N.D. Cocaine Case

Oviedo Farmer Facing Prison Term

By TONI YARBOROUGH
 Herald Staff Writer

An Oviedo bell pepper farmer is facing 15 years in state prison, a $25,000 fine or both in connection with a Fargo, N.D., cocaine-delivering operation after he changed his plea from not guilty to guilty in the case.

Buford "Buddy" Higgs, 27, was arrested Dec. 20 along with Alex Lee Tindall, 42, an Oviedo chicken farmer, and Fred J. McConeghy, 54, an Oviedo roofing contractor, after North Dakota narcotics agents discovered 18 ounces of cocaine in the Fargo plane at the Fargo airport.

Judge Paul Bellini who ordered a pre-sentence investigation to be conducted. No sentencing date has been set.

McConeghy recently reversed his plea and is awaiting sentencing in connection with charges of distribution and conspiracy to distribute cocaine.

Tindall is slated to appear in Fargo district court on May 17, officials said. He is currently being held in the Seminole County jail following his arrest Thursday on a Brevard County warrant charging him with trafficking in Qualoude.

Tindall, McConeghy and Higgs are also charged in connection with what police call a multi-million dollar drug operation in Seminole County and central Florida. The trio was arrested along with about eight other persons in the December drug bust.

SANFORD MAN HELD

A 27-year-old Sanford man is being held in the county jail on $8,000 bond after being charged in two related incidences of assault and burglary.

Police said John Henry Anderson, of 95 Castle Brewer Court, was arrested at about 2:48 a.m. today after a man reportedly attempted to enter the home of Hardy Besse, 28, of 21 Lake Monroe Trail, Sanford, at about 12:40 a.m. today.

When the man was refused entrance, witnesses told police he tore off the window screen and climbed into the apartment through the window. Once inside, the man assaulted Ms. Besse's sister, Willie Belle Cotton, 18, of Lake Monroe Trail, Lake Monroe, and forcibly removed Ms. Cotton from the apartment, police said.

At about 12:48 p.m., police received information that the assailant had taken Ms. Cotton to 95 Castle Brewer Court. At that residence, Ms. Cotton was reportedly threatened by the man with a knife and a gun, police said.

Police then arrested Anderson and charged him with aggravated assault, burglary and assault.

Salt Linked To Hypertension In Infants

CHICAGO (UPI) — Salt added to homemade baby food and canned products containing salt can increase the chances that infants will develop high blood pressure, a new study says.

A Canadian study on the long-term effects of salt on infant nutrition said milk and milk products alone provide enough sodium to meet the recommended level of intake for infants up to 18 months of age.

Nutrition experts David L. Yeung, Jacquelyn Hall, Marie Leung and Murray D. Pennell, found children whose families have a history of hypertension are more likely to develop the condition themselves.

The researchers, reporting in the latest edition of the

A dance was held at the Orange County bar, she took one of the club dancers, who said she had no place to stay, and the dancer's three children age 3, 4 and 5, into her home temporarily. The dancer's husband is in prison.

The bar owner said she loaned the dancer her car with the stipulation she bring it back to her by closing time. When she did not show up, the owner took a taxi home to find her house guest had moved out taking some of her hostess's personal possessions, but leaving her three children.

The car was later returned to its owner by the dancer's 16-year-old brother-in-law. He said she had boarded a Delta jet for California with another brother-in-law, whom she had been dating, leaving the teen-ager to take the car back. The children were turned over to their grandmother in Sanford. The Caselberry woman says she will prosecute the missing dancer, sheriff's deputies reported.

CASE OF THE LOADED GUN

Robert Baker, 69, of 720 Raymond Circle, Altamonte Springs, has been discharged from Florida Hospital-Altamonte after accidentally shooting himself Thursday afternoon.

Baker was shot in the small finger of his left hand by a bullet from a .38-caliber revolver. The bullet also grazed his left thigh, according to sheriff's deputy L.B. Zumbum. The accident occurred about 12:30 p.m. at the home of Baker's wife, Edith, 1888 St. James St., Altamonte Springs.

Baker said he was standing on a ladder, handing the guns to his wife from an attic storage box. He was unpacking his wife's revolver when he decided to pull it out of the case. When he reached for the gun, his finger snagged on the trigger, causing it to discharge. Baker said he didn't realize the gun was cocked and loaded.

STEREO THIEF CHASED
 John R. Ivey, of 9808 Eden Park Road, in southwest Seminole County, reported someone broke into his home Thursday afternoon and stole $800 worth of stereo equipment.

A witness reportedly followed a suspect's vehicle south on Eden Park Road and chased the suspect into the woods east of the residence, but lost him.

CROSSING CLOSING

Among those areas to be affected are: Spring Lake, where it becomes O'Brien Road, will be closed April 12 and 13. The Ballard Street crossing will be closed April 14 and 15. Leonard and North streets and Plumosa Avenue will be closed for repairs April 19-23. Crossings north of those streets are expected to be repaired later this month.

Delay Requested In Racketeering Trial

MIAMI (UPI) — A court hearing was scheduled for today to determine whether reputed underworld kingpin Santo Trafficante, charged in an alleged labor racketeering operation, is well enough to stand trial Monday.

Trafficante, 67, already won a delay of five weeks because he was hospitalized in January and again in March with a kidney ailment.

Gonzalez said Friday that Trafficante not only suffers physical problems but his mental condition has deteriorated, perhaps partly because of a drug he takes to control high blood pressure and chest pains.

Trafficante and the others were indicted in June on charges of masterminding a kickback scheme, which bled the insurance plans of the Laborers' International Union of North America in south Florida and Chicago of millions of dollars.

Kidnap Report Confirmed

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — Rep. Dan Mica, D-Florida, says a report of a kidnap threat against him "got more attention than it deserved," but he confirmed authorities were investigating.

Thursday it was reported that a group of Vietnam veterans threatened to take him hostage because the federal government has not set up counseling services for them in West Palm Beach.

Carpenters' Pay Hiked

MIAMI (UPI) — Carpenters union members were expected to ratify a new three-year contract today worth an extra $3.40 an hour.

About 4,000 members of the union were expected to approve the pact negotiated with the Associated General Contractors. It would raise the carpenters' top hourly wage to $14.90.

Meanwhile, operating engineers remain on strike, and masons and plasterers are working under terms of an expired contract.

Haig Scrambles To Avert War Over Falkland Islands

United Press International Secretary of State Alexander Haig arrived in Argentina after a 17-hour flight from London and said the nation's "years of historic cooperation" with Washington should help his mission to prevent war over the Falkland Islands.

In London, the British Foreign Office said Friday it will consider a request to evacuate Falkland Islands residents worried about being killed in a cross-fire between British and Argentine forces battling for the colony.

The British also sent more reinforcements heading toward the South Atlantic, dispatching a converted luxury liner packed with marines and heavy weapons. Britain has threatened to begin sinking Argentine ships on sight within 200 miles of the Falklands beginning 11 p.m. EST Sunday.

U.S. Peace Plan Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The initial reaction from the Nicaraguan government to an eight-point U.S. proposal that would end Nicaraguan support for guerrilla movements in central America has been encouraging.

In return for the agreement to end subversion U.S. officials called essential, the United States would be prepared to curb Nicaraguan exile groups and to resume aid to the Managua government.

Pope Marks Good Friday

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, dressed in mourning, led a solemn candlelit procession through the ruins of ancient Rome to mark the final walk of Christ in conclusion of Holy Week ceremonies.

The Pope will rest today from his hectic holy week schedule in preparation for the joyous Easter eve rite that ends the church's 40-day period of Lent.

John Paul was scheduled to preside over a prayer vigil later today that will lead the Christian world into Easter Sunday and transform the nearly pitch-dark nave of St. Peter's Basilica into a blaze of candles and lights. The Easter ceremony is the church's joyous symbol of Christ's resurrection.

FCC Frustrated By Problem That Never Was

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Judging from the mail — more than 11 million pieces so far — the most controversial issue to ever hit the Federal Communications Commission is one that never existed.

With administrative costs mounting, the FCC is beginning yet another effort to persuade the public that it is not considering a ban on religious broadcasting.

Apparently, the issue is perpetuated by some person or group that sends petitions mostly to rural, evangelical churches for forwarding to the commission, according to FCC officials.

It all began in 1974 when two California men, Jeremy Lansman and William Russell, filed a petition with the FCC to restrict religious organizations of FCC frequencies reserved for educational use.

Lansman and Milam questioned whether the "Back to the Bible" programs of many churches qualified for reserved educational channels.

By the time the commission acted eight months later, it had received 750,000 pieces of mail — the most ever on a single issue, and much of it from persons who appeared to believe the proposal would ban all religious broadcasting. At the same time, the name of atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair, who won the Supreme Court decision prohibiting prayer in public schools, erroneously became attached to the issue.

The FCC rejected the petition on First Amendment grounds, but in the seven years since then, the outpouring of mail has not ceased. Most of it is form letters urging the commission to ensure that religious programming continues.

The letters claim Mrs. O'Hair has been granted a hearing in Washington to state her petition "would" "seize the airwaves of America"; that she filed a petition with the FCC to restrict religious organizations of FCC frequencies reserved for educational use.

"It's all totally, factually, a lie," said public affairs director William Russell.

Russell said his office has contacted 50 evangelical groups in the past couple of weeks as well as religious groups in Washington to explain the situation. Another FCC official is contacting each congressional office to offer background.

In a previous outreach effort in 1980, the FCC contacted the major religious denominations and asked them to inform their congregations. That stemmed the flow somewhat, but came nowhere near stopping it.

Russell said none of the forms contains a name or return address.

"Since all the petitions have the same format, there must be one person involved with it," he said. "We can't find out who is making up the form and mailing it on."

The commission asked the postmaster general to look into the matter, but the agency responded it has no jurisdiction unless there is a request for money involved.

The National Religious Broadcasters Association, concerned by petitions from counterproductive, rural areas of the country, has urged the FCC to contact most major religious denominations.

"It seems to be someone trying to embarrass the FCC or religious broadcasting, and frankly I don't know which it is," said the group's executive director, Dr. Ben Armstrong. "Here it is seven years later and it's still being revived."

"When you find the identical thing and no source or no name," he said, "you feel there's somebody out there trying to do a number on somebody."
