New School Planned At Wekiva Hunt Club

RAIN, RAIN DON'T GO
After 31 brushfires in a week and 57 for the month, Sanford fireman Paul Keith was glad to see this morning's drenching — as a string of thunderstorms hit the Sanford area. The downpours were expected to decrease the dangers of county fires. Fighting fires is not all that Keith does. Together with other certified Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs), Keith also has learned how to deliver babies, as two of his colleagues did on Feb. 3. (What and how do they learn? Find out in Seminoles magazine with your Sunday Herald.)

By STEVE DAVIS
Herald Staff Writer
The Seminole County School Board Wednesday night approved a 15-acre tract of land at the Wekiva Hunt Club as the site for a new Southwest Seminole elementary school. School Superintendent William (Bud) Layer voiced his support of the location at a board work session last week. Layer said it is the best site for construction of the facility, designed primarily to relieve overcrowding at Sabal Point and Forest City Elementary Schools.
The school is scheduled for completion by September 1978. Layer cautioned that if the site was not utilized within a seven-year period, it would revert back to the Wekiva developer. The land was donated in 1973.
Board Member Robert G. (Bud) Feather cast the only dissenting vote by stating that he did not believe the Wekiva Hunt Club is "on the fringe of growth."
Feather added he would like to see a school constructed in the Montgomery Road area to ease "density" problems of residents in that area.
"There is an immediate need for purchasing the property along Montgomery Road at a considerably lower rate than in the future," he said.
Layer said he had checked the possibility of purchasing a 15-acre tract on the east side of Montgomery Road and learned that the land sold for $17,500 an acre.
"I feel that the majority of growth has been in the Wekiva area and that it will continue to be there," Layer said.
John Keegan of the Wekiva Homeowners Association told Chairman Davis Sims that the number of homes in the Wekiva area will exceed 2000. Feather conceded that there was a need for a school in Wekiva, however, he said that in the past studies had been based to fill schools constructed on the "outskirts of growth."
The board also passed by a 3-2 vote an elementary school zoning change transferring approximately 201 students from Sabal Point to Spring Lake and from Forest City to Bear Lake.
The change will increase enrollment at Bear Lake by 71 students and at Spring Lake by 130 students, respectively.
In other action, the board approved final plans for a new county office building to be located at the site of the Sanford Naval Academy's Junior School.

Partner's Bullet Smashed Radio

Shot Almost Hit Deputy
By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer
A fellow deputy shot a walkie-talkie radio out of Sheriff's Sgt. Charles Coffee's hand when the deputies shot and wounded an armed robbery suspect during a foot chase in a swamp at Midway, east of Sanford, last Dec. 29.

Police escaped injury and the shooting of the $945 radio wasn't revealed until Lamar Mills's attorney questioned John Spolaki, Sheriff's department communications supervisor, during Mills' circuit court trial on Wednesday.
Testifying as a state rebuttal witness, Spolaki was explaining to the jury a tape recording of radio transmissions when Mills was chased by Sgt. Coffee and deputy Donald McCormick.
Coffee had the walkie-talkie on when he shouted "freeze" three times, as heard by jurors listening to the recording.
When asked why the firing of shots by the officers wasn't transmitted by the walkie-talkie Spolaki revealed that the hand-held unit had been smashed by a bullet. "It incapacitated the radio," Spolaki said. "That's why no shots were heard on the tape."
Coffee, when asked by reporters about the bullet-smashed radio, said he'd been instructed to make no comments.
Sheriff John Polk today confirmed that Coffee had been holding the radio about 34-inches from his face when the bullet smashed it, he said.

Coffee testified Wednesday afternoon that Mills, who was wanted for the armed robbery of a Sanford service station, didn't heed the first shouted order to freeze and was "moving away" in knee-deep mud when he (Mills) "turned and lunged toward me" from about five feet "and was drawing his right hand from his pants pocket."
Coffee said that McCormick fired "from behind me and to my left."
"I thought Mills had fired at me through his pocket," Coffee testified, "and I fired almost instantaneously."
"Were you trying to kill Lamar Mills?" asked defense attorney James E. C. Perry. "Yes sir," Coffee replied. "He (Mills) was still coming towards me."
Coffee said he knew Mills was wanted for armed robbery and that he'd been arrested before for offenses against officers.
Mills, who was wounded in the wrists, shoulder, mouth and stomach by bullets from the deputies' .357 magnum service revolvers, still carries a bullet in his leg that deflected from the stomach wound, Perry said.

Condo Complex Future The Focus Of W. Springs Feud

By JANE CASSELLBERY
Herald Staff Writer
Condemnation or completion — that is the crux of the controversy surrounding the future of a 62-unit, partially-completed condominium complex on More Loop in The Highlands development in Winter Springs.
Based on approval of a federal rent subsidy program by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Schutte-Moehan Inc., a New Smyrna Beach firm, plans to complete the apartment complex as low-income rental housing.
Jeff Auslander, one of the partners in the joint venture, said he expects construction to begin again on the complex in 60-90 days with units to be available for rental in 120 days. Annual rent subsidies totalling $194,244 have been approved for the 61 one to four-bedroom units (the resident manager will occupy the other unit).

Based on the size of families, families with a maximum annual income of $12,700 would be eligible to rent the apartments for 25 per cent of their monthly income. The rest would be subsidized by the government.
Meanwhile, some residents fear the program will lower property values in the area, which includes homes selling for as much as $50,000. In a meeting attended by 130 residents Tuesday night the Homeowners Association decided to petition the city to do anything it can to stop the proposed project and to condemn the buildings as unsafe. Buffalo Creek Flood Leaves Torment In Its Wake

LOGAN, W.Va. (AP) — Dr. J. S. Church has been receiving some sad but predictable phone calls, pleas for help from people who've looked at the calendar and seen a wall of dark water rushing toward them.

"I can always tell when we're getting near another anniversary," Church said recently. "The calls start coming in. It happens every year about this time."

A psychologist at the Logan-Mingo Community Mental Health Clinic, he has worked with the survivors of the Buffalo Creek disaster for the past five years. In that time, Church has dealt with people who not only underwent the horrors of the flood but who later were tormented by guilt and were torn by fear for having survived while friends and loved ones were swept away.

"However, this so-called 'survivor syndrome' has been pretty well resolved," he said. "Most of the people we've seen here have been able to go back to their precrisis ability to cope."

But, he adds, the healing period not only has been tortuously slow, it also has been accompanied, in many cases, by a chain of painful events. The fateful wave loomed when the Pittston Co.'s coal waste dam collapsed the morning of Feb. 26, 1972 — claiming 125 lives along Buffalo Creek and causing more than $50 million in damages — was followed by a wave of alcoholism, divorce and other generally destructive behavior.

Although time and modern medicine have helped heal these wounds, the scars still remain. They began to show each time February rolls around. Then, too, there still are cases where the wound remains open.

"Take my daughter, for instance," says Allene Peters. "She has never gone to bed by herself since the day of the flood. Why she won't even walk in there to the bathroom by herself, and she's 8 years old."

Allene and Larry Peters live at Lorado, one of 18 coal camps strung along Buffalo Creek's winding waters. Their home is some 15 miles up the narrow valley from the spot where the creek empties into the Guyanote River at Man. Their community is the nearest to Pittston's infamous dams, just two miles on up.

The Peters were the second family to return to Lorado after the flood. Like many of their neighbors, they reside in a mobile home — on which they placed a down payment with the settlement money they received from Pittston.

"Things are getting better," she said. "But Moore (former Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr.) sure didn't keep the promises he made to us. He promised we'd get our grade school back but we never did. He said the road would be extended to go over the mountain but you can see for yourself that the pavement does no more than a quarter of a mile from where I'm standing."

Church says he still finds hostility toward Pittston, even among some of the men who work for the company. Allene Peters admitted was angry when she returned to Lorado in the spring of 1972 but now says she's becoming adjusted.

Many other Buffalo Creek families made similar settlements with the coal company, whose officials had warned residents they would get no more by going to court. Two years ago, Pittston paid $15.5 million in settlement of a suit representing some 600 survivors. This came to something like $13,000 per person, before legal fees to Arnold & Porter, the Washington, D.C., law firm which handled the suit.

More recently, the state set a $100 million damage suit for 125 residents, who were children at the time of the flood. Pittston for $85 million. They alleged they had suffered permanent pain and anguish because of the company's negligence.

Church says he still finds hostility toward Pittston, even among some of the men who work for the company. Allene Peters admitted was angry when she returned to Lorado in the spring of 1972 but now says she's becoming adjusted.

The long, narrow valley now does have water and sewer systems, things unheard of before the flood. Back then, the residents had wells and septic tanks and often discharged their raw sewage directly into the stream which later would rise against them.

Then there's the road, a sore subject with many residents because the state look dozens of badly needed homesites in right-of-way proceedings.

"The railroad was the first thing they put back, because of the mine," said Bertz Adkins, a teacher at Buffalo grade school, some 10 miles down the creek from Lorado. "My husband was back to work at the mine a week after the flood."

"Then, the highway came next. They still haven't completely finished with the sewer and water systems yet, however."

Hundreds of families were left homeless after the flood. They were housed in mobile homes furnished by the federal government. The parks in which these homes were located have since been disbanded, and officials estimate that more than half of the displaced families have moved back along Buffalo Creek.

Many of them lost their land to the highway. Because of the scarcity of homesites in the narrow valley, they've been forced to live in mobile homes on tiny plots of land. Others have moved into the prefabricated apartment complexes which have begun to spring up.

Some residents don't like the changed character of the valley. Others see progress when they look about them.

"I think things are better around here now," says Peggy Heather, principal at the Buffalo grade school. "We now have some things, like the water and sewer systems, that we wouldn't have gotten for another 40 years if it hadn't been for that flood."

The thing that Allene Peters dislikes most about the valley, she says, is the loss of community, the feeling that she's not in control of her own life.

"Used to be, we had our own store, and I walked to school when I was a girl," she said. "Now we have to get into the car to shop and my daughter has to ride a bus 10 miles each way to get to school."

"What we do around here now, is just take one day at a time. Seems you can't plan nothing anymore."

Mount: An Escape From Pollution

By ED PRICKETT Herald Staff Writer

If you followed the sun and headed west on I-4, in a little more than an hour you'd run into Tampa, a city that—besides being one of Florida's larger cities claims the dubious distinction as one of the more polluted.

ED PRICKETT, Herald Staff Writer

More specifically, Sanford. And that's one of the reasons the 41-year-old native Tampa left the "Cigar City" and moved to Seminole.

WARD TO YOR CITY, one of the few real Spanish enclaves left in Florida. That swirl touches on city hall and then rushes pell mell through the Hillsborough County Commission.

Mount is a big man. His words spill out in the halting, measured cadence of a man who was born and lived in the South. In his hand is a yellow legal pad.

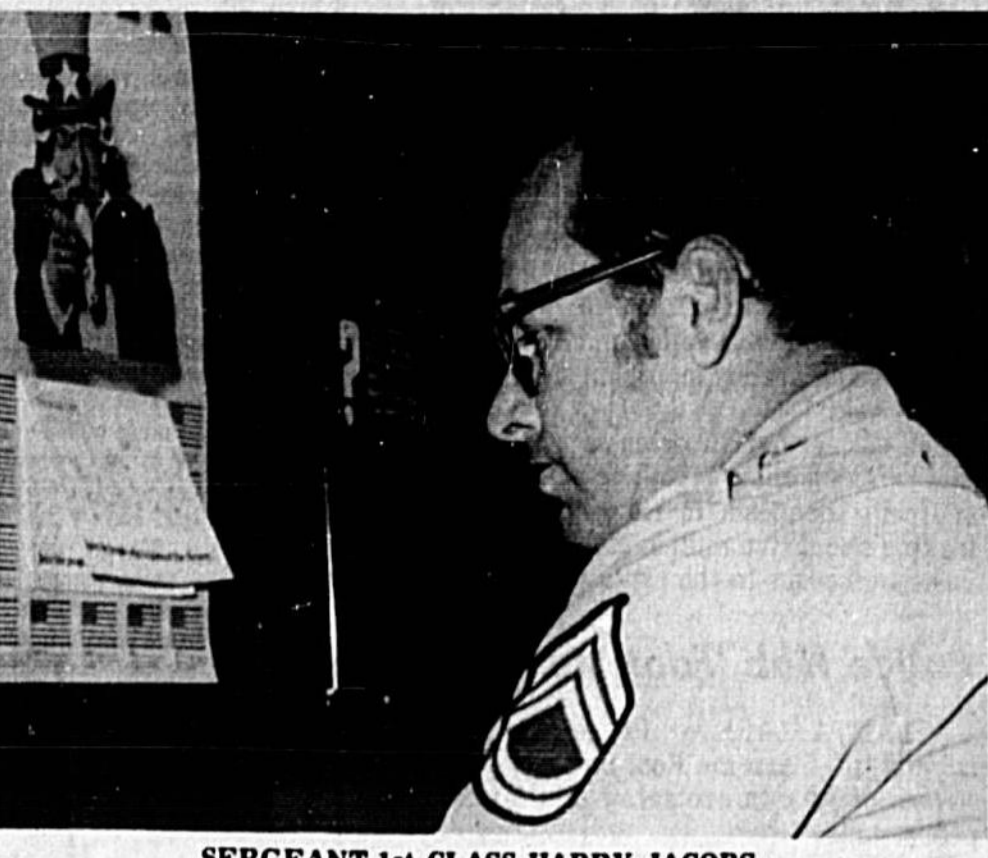

The oldest is a sophomore in college. The youngest is in 4th grade. As soon as he can locate a home, plans are to move his family to Seminole.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — One man was killed and a policeman wounded in an apartment house here early today where a man armed with a rifle was holding a pregnant teen-age girl and her child hostage and threatening to kill them.

Police said the gunman, identified as Leroy Cotton, 30, held the baby girl in front of a window in a second-floor apartment and told police the child would be killed if they attempted to flush him out with tear gas.

He has given his offspring Indian names. Yvonne has a 4-year-old sister named Thonie.

SERGEANT 1ST CLASS HARRY JACOBS

Uncle Sam Wants You, Or Does He?

Uncle Sam is just about the same," says Army Recruiting Sergeant First Class Harry Jacobs. "I haven't even been able to enlist a girl in six months, not even in our delayed entry program."

Both men report that it isn't as easy to join the military as people sometimes think. "I'm allowed to enlist one, or possibly two non-high school graduates per month," says Jacobs.

FAST AND FURIOUS Response to the HomeSteading proposal for Sanford has been quick. Calls have been coming in to both the offices of The Evening Herald and Tom Wilson of the Sanford Housing Authority.
