Coast Guard To Hold Exams For Entrance

An announcement has been received by Prof. U. E. McKay that a competitive examination will be held for appointment of cadets to the United States Coast Guard Academy on June 14, 1939.

The Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., offers both education and career to those who meet its high standards. Mental requirements for entrance are, in general, those necessary for admission to engineering colleges. Young men between 17 and 22 years of age are eligible to take the examination.

The four years' course of instruction is basically scientific and engineering in character. Annual cruises aboard modern cutters to European and South American ports give an opportunity to check classroom instruction by practical seagoing experience. Pay of a cadet while undergoing instruction is $300 per year plus an allowance for subsistence. After graduation a cadet is eligible for a commission in the Coast Guard as Ensign.

Sanford Division Of Club Given Charter

By JOHN POPE, Senior
The Sanford division of the Pan-American Club received their charter Feb. 22, 1939.

The purpose of the Pan-American Club is to better the feeling between the Central, South, and North American countries. Plans are being made to have a tour of both American countries, to the central states to begin this friendship. This has been our aim.

The club is composed of the members of both the 1st and 2nd year Spanish classes. We have been learning Spanish and have learned some Spanish songs and also Spanish dances.

We are planning to get some members from the Pan-American Club in Washington, D. C. and from the University of Florida at Gainesville. There are many who understand better the Spanish language of these Spanish speaking people.

Forest Fires And Their Menace Are Explained By High School Student

By Helen Kane
As I was walking late one afternoon over a newly burned forest, I happened to see a rabbit running as fast as his legs could carry him. From all of a sudden he stopped, looked around and spied another rabbit, made a leap into the air and went over to where it was. I hid behind a blackened tree that was still smoking and I listened and watched very closely. Apparently they were a mother and a daddy rabbit. The mother rabbit was weeping and the daddy rabbit was only too glad to find his dear wife. As he approached, he addressed her very tenderly:

"Now, darling, don't take it so hard. After all, it isn't as bad as it seems. We still have each other."
"Light, Peter and Cotton-tail couldn't run fast enough to get away and they," she, said, and suddenly burst into new tears.
"We can make another home, maybe not as good as this one, and start house-keeping again," he said cheerfully, and then added, "Have you heard what happened to Mr. Mocking-bird? Her nest with those three beautiful eggs was all burned up. And poor Mrs. Quail—here she comes now."

Anyone could see that she was greatly distressed and in a nervous state.
"Oh, dear, what shall I do? My nest, my eggs, my little birds are all gone."

Mrs. Rabbit tried her best to console poor Mrs. Quail by telling her this:

"Now, now, Mrs. Quail, it isn't as bad as that. Take Mrs. Speckled Petch for example. She had found a wonderful little brook just over the way and had laid her eggs. The fire died up the stream, burned up Mrs. Speckled Petch, her eggs, and it's the stream where we got our water. We'll have to go to the 'Black Forest' where it's still not very good but it's better than staying here to starve. If they keep burning up these woods, we'll just—oh! I hate to think—oh look!"

I looked, too, and saw a cow coming over the burned fields and looking very sad indeed. She was mauling this as she drew near:

"These crazy people—oh, they don't have a bit of sense, not a bit. They think they're doing me a favor, but they're just ruining things. This grass will taste terrible after it grows back. They surely are crazy."

"We think you got off awfully easy," Mr. Rabbit tried to make her realize how fortunate she was. "Think of all the wild life, all their homes, all their food and water, all their eggs and little ones—oh! just everything destroyed. Just think!"

"I know, I hadn't thought of that," was all Mrs. Cow answered. They all went their way and I thought about the thing. I had started the fire to make pasture for my cow. I didn't think it would spread this far and what it would do. I asked myself, "Is it worth it?"

Students Accepted For Music Festival

The following students of Seminole High School have been accepted by Rollins College Conservatory of Music to participate in the Seventh Annual Interscholastic Music Festival.

Marion Aiken, first soprano; Elizabeth Pippin, second soprano; Cloda Ferguson, alto; Jacob Richter, tenor; and Robert Herndon, bass. The festival this year will consist of an All-State High School Chorus, and an All-State High School Orchestra.

Students of Seminole High who will be members of the orchestra are: Doris Jackson, violin; Mel "Samuel" Tate; and Robert Herndon, trumpet. The Festival begins on Friday, Mar. 24, at 10:00 with the registration of all participants and will continue with rehearsals and various activities until Saturday, Mar. 25, at which time the Grand Concert will be given in the Winter Park High School Auditorium.

Students were selected not only on basis of voice, but on ability to sight read music on their instrument, and on general musicianship. This is the first year Rollins has devoted the Festival to a mass chorus of High School students from all over the state. Previously it was merely a contest, which entire glee clubs entered and were judged. The new Festival has for its aim the promotion of good feeling between schools, and the opportunity for high school students to enter into a chorus of well-balanced voices under a skilled conductor.

It is hoped that many Sanford music lovers will attend the Grand Concert on Mar. 25, for it is a rare opportunity of hearing young people sing and play a truly ambitious program. The program consists of old chorals numbers from Bach and Mozart and consists on down to the very modern Tchaikovsky and Goun's "Hear America Singing". One of the "levelled" of all songs, "Greeting to Spring" an arrangement of Johann Strauss' "Beautiful Blue Danube", will be in the last group on the program.

Home "Eo" Classes Prepare Breakfasts

The first year Home Economics Classes had "breakfast" from before lunch in the morning to last period in the afternoon on Tuesday and Wednesday.

These breakfasts were planned by the girls. Each girl is to be in charge of one of the meals. As a show they were preparing and serving them. If they had cooked the food they probably would have burned it too. However, all have enjoyed these experiences greatly and have profited from the courses they have made.

POETICAL BOOK REVIEW

JUNIOR CLASS
By Edith Landquist
Ah! Books are like ships afloat,
They take us to worlds unknown,
Where romance and thrills prevail.

They take us over the seas of life,
Through calm and stormy weather;
Through glory and trouble and strife.

BENEATH TROPIC SEAS
By William Bebe
The enchantment, the beauty, the thrill of a tropical sea,
The shells, the corals, the aquatic life—all collect and flowery,
The fish, the crustaceans, the sponges—all, a mystery,
Are portrayed in this book so vividly.

THE COVERED WAGON
By Emerson Hewitt
In the gay nineties a train of covered wagons rolled on
Over mountain and plain from daylight to dawn,
Onward through misfortunes the wagon wheels rolled,
Seeking what adventure, what riches the West might hold.

HURLED CITIES
By Jennie Hall
Tall and graceful against an Italian sky,
Stands wonderful but dangerous Vesuvius, thereby;
And in the fruitful valley far below,
Was the city, Pompeii—beautiful also.

MEXICO
By Stuart Chase
A colorful and picturesque story of Mexico:
Its stabbing sun set in the azure sky,
Its rumbling mountains so mighty and high,
The dark natives smiling in a careless, happy way,
The lit of large sombreroes so proud and gay.

MADAME CURIE
By Eva Curie
The tender and inspiring story of a woman—noble and sweet,
Who labored perseveringly—not willing to be defeated;
She sacrificed her health for the sake of humanity,
Giving birth to a valuable new science and philosophy.

NORTH TO THE ORIENT
By Anne Morrow Lindberg
The "Birnie" soared northward, over miles of flat treeless land,
Northward through the darkless sky to Eskimo land;
Then it plunged into fog and darkness across the Bering Sea,
To the Far East, the Orient, so beautiful and flowery.

HAMONA
By Helen Hunt Jackson
A romantic and pathetic story of life on a Spanish estate,
Of Ramona, an Indian, who chooses the life of her own race.
But she! At the end of her trail, many sorrows await
That lead her from her little child and beloved one.

MARIE ANTOINETTE
By John Abbot

The falling of her throne and the fate of this queen,
As she rides through the streets of Paris to the guillotine.

Essay On Caesar Is Written By Student

By MABEL CHAPMAN
Julius Caesar, regarded by many as the foremost of all characters in history, was born July 12, 100 B. C. Both his father and mother belonged to prominent patrician families. Caesar's early education was similar to that received by the sons of wealthy families today. He was taught rhetoric, grammar, philosophy, and oratory in addition to Latin and Greek. One time when he went to Rhodes to study oratory under the famous rhetorician, Apollonius Molo, he was captured by pirates whom, after he had been ransomed, he put to death.

This prominent historic figure hid his serious self under a mask of light-hearted gaiety, which made him a favorite with the people of Rome. He had a shrewd purpose under his ever smiling exterior. He saw the need of a strong central power to save Rome's power from decay. He thought he was the man to bring about this power but no one else at first realized this. To reach his aim, to save Rome's power, he formed a political alliance with two powerful Romans, Crassus and Pompey. This was his chance to prepare for the changes in Rome which he knew must come; therefore he set out to bring about these so much needed changes. He not only showed his ability as a great leader and organizer, but endeavored himself to his soldiers so that they would follow him anywhere. He worked with them, he fought with them, and he endured the same hardships as they did. He became master of the Roman World.

This ever noted person distinguished himself in three fields: in statesmanship, in generalship, and in literature. He showed his statesmanship in dealing with the Gallic tribes and with both his friends and enemies at Rome. His generalship has never been surpassed. He left his mark on literature as well as on history.

In the midst of his busiest campaign he took time off to record the events in which he was taking part. All of his writings were simple and straightforward, but of his work the Commentaries on the Gallic and Civil Wars alone have been preserved, but these will ever remain a model of prose description. These Commentaries were "unadorned, straightforward, and elegant, every embellishment being stripped off as a garment."

The bitter hatred of his political enemies together with the fear that his growing power might endanger the general good of Rome prompted the conspirators to kill Caesar on the Ides of March. He was declared sacred, and even divine. He obtained a bodyguard of knights and senators, and his statue was placed in the temples. His effigy was set on columns, and on July, was placed in honor of him, and on all occasions he was permitted to wear the triumphal robe.

Although the career of Julius Caesar was brought to an untimely end by the daggers of the assassins, and his life work was left unfinished, he stands alone as one of the few men who have changed the history of the world. Caesar was the greatest genius every embellishment being stripped off as a garment.

POETRY

The following poem was received recently by Prof. G. E. McKay, who feels that it contains a message that is well worth passing on.

"IF I WERE A BOY"
If I were a boy, I would be one worthwhile,
And that I am sure, would make me mother smile.
Then my daddy too, her great joy would share,
But to be a worthwhile, means to do, and to dare.

I'm just a newcomer, which way shall I go?
Only here for a time, three or four years or so,
And my life all depends on the path I shall take,
To make me refined or just "cheap skates."

I've not been here before, so all things seem strange,
In the town, in the city, or out on the range,
Wherever I am, on the land, or the sea,
Everything I behold is a wonder to me.

I'm a person, a unit, and forever will be,
Must choose my own course, and pilot my sea,
Can scale heights of glory, or by choice be a bum,
My identity's fixed, by the print of my thumb.

This home, that I live in, this body of mine,
Could not have been built by human design,
No cathedral, or mansion, on earth can compare,
With my portable house, on land, sea, or air.

Shadow Is Cast Over Rumania By German Swastika

Hitler Asks Economic Subjugation For Assurance Of Territorial Integrity

Lengthy Night Session Is Held Little Nation Asked To Export Products Only To Germany

By Associated Press
Sweeping German economic proposals to Rumania cast the shadow of the Swastika far over southeastern Europe as the democracies bitterly condemned the Nazi conquest of Czechoslovakia in the strongest terms they yet have made against Adolf Hitler since his rise to power.

The Rumanian legation spokesman in London asserted his government had received Hitler's demands that it submit to complete economic subjugation by Germany in return for Nazi assurances of Rumanian territorial integrity.

Rumania would be expected to cease building up her industries and turn to agriculture. She would export exclusively to Germany her grain, oil, lumber, cattle and foodstuffs.

Confronted with this danger, King Carol of Rumania presided during the night at a lengthy session of the crown council and general staff in Bucharest. The Rumanian foreign minister, however, declared the German proposals to be "unacceptable."

Czech troops remaining in Slovakia, which succeeded Tuesday from the now dead republic, were reported to have ceased resistance and most had surrendered their arms. They were reported waiting in Slovakia for instructions from Prague.

There avoided appearances in restaurants and other public places in the Slovak capital in anticipation that Germany's Nuremberg laws would be enforced.

What Do Germans Think?

Prime Minister Chamberlain did everything but call Hitler a liar yesterday in Birmingham, England. He wasn't quite as frank as that, but he went to great lengths in pointing out the numerous promises made by Hitler at Munich and in showing how these promises had not been fulfilled. There is no longer any doubt that Chamberlain has at last come to realize that Hitler is not a man of his word and cannot be trusted.

Hitler made the personal promise to Chamberlain at Munich that the Sudetenland was the last territorial demand Germany would make in Europe, a promise which was later reiterated in a world wide speech. Hitler also promised to respect the new frontiers of Czechoslovakia. And insisted that he did not want any Czechs or any foreign people within the German Reich.

When Hitler violated solemn treaty pledges to rearm Germany, or again to march his troops into the Rhineland, or to take over Austria, he could maintain some semblance of common honesty. He could say, "yes, these were pledges made by Germany, but pledges exacted from Germany by foreign powers and made by weaklings in high German offices. They were not made by me. I never made any such promises."

He can't say that now, Hitler himself made the promise to respect the new frontiers of Czechoslovakia. Nobody exacted that promise from him. He made it freely and voluntarily and in return for it, he received the Sudeten area, one of the richest sections of its size in Europe, and the very gateway to Central Europe. Hitler made a promise and within six months, he broke it. Cheerfully, willingly, without provocation, he lied.

It is now as clear to the people of Germany, as it is to us, that Hitler is not a man of his word. Though they are not allowed to know much of what is going on, though they seldom see any foreign newspapers, and nothing whatever is printed in their own newspapers of foreign comment, though everything humanly possible is done to keep them in a constant state of ignorance, still they heard Hitler say in Berlin that he would respect the integrity of Czechoslovakia, and they know now that he didn't.

"Know Florida" Week

Once a year, urged by the State chamber of commerce, the governor proclaims a week for us to "know Florida better." Governor Cone has issued his edict that March 19 to 25 will be set aside for that purpose.

The ideal way to know Florida better is to take a long vacation, load up the family car and go visiting for a couple of months. Not having the time or money to spare, the next best way to know your State is to read Florida newspapers better—not just scan the headlines and glance at the personals.

Every little weekly paper we get on our exchange desk has something interesting in it, something worth the few cents that issue costs if bought by itself.

WPA delvers into historical data have discovered that the most authentic information possible to obtain comes from local newspapers. It is correct for if any important misstatement is made in a local paper the next few issues will find somebody writing a letter to correct it.

This is proof worth while to all of you that your time is not too valuable to spend reading your home paper "from river to river" for you are learning the history of your community as you read.—Leesburg Commercial.

IT SEEMS STRANGE to me that the vast majority of people are content with only hearsay accounts of the wonders found "through the microscope." It is a breath-taking world, filled with myriads of strange and fascinating objects which the naked eye could never see. Anyone who has never looked thus into the heart of a flower has not fully lived.

But the human mind perceives something it can recognize to something for which it has no name and whereas thousands of persons carry field glasses to bring horses, ships or airplanes close to them, only a few carry even the simplest pocket microscope. You'd be surprised to find a thousand times more things than anything Alice saw behind the looking glass—David Fairchild, The World Was My Garden (Berkeley)

THE REMEMBRANCE of beauty, the beauty of a thing, or of personal relationships or of a country, has always seemed to me the chief end of life. The present cannot be held. It slips through our fingers, to be caught, if at all, in the past. The beauty of the world remains, and it is this beauty which we must remember, and which we must try to preserve, in our own hearts and minds.

Supreme Court Rules Eckerson Contracts Void

Continued from Page One... The Constitutionality of the minimum price law was not involved in the ruling of the high tribunal or in the order of Judge Smith which was appealed by attorneys for Nathan Mayo and the Citrus Commission, and Mr. Eckerson did not intimate whether his company would seek a court ruling on this question as its next move.

The Florida Citrus Commission, acting under terms of the cost guarantee law, fixed the 32-cent minimum as the cost of producing a box of grapefruit for less than that.

The Eckerson Company offered contracts under which it would set as a processing agent, with the grower retaining title to his fruit. If the grower sold it within 90 days after the processing, he paid the canning company's costs. If he did not sell it within 90 days, the Eckerson Company had the right to sell it, deduct its cost, and pay the balance to the grower, less any advancements that might have been made.

Such a contract, the Supreme Court said in an opinion by Chief Justice Terrell, "does not guarantee the grower anything."

The contract, the court said, "imposes every hazard upon the grower, and while it may return him the cost of production, it may not return him anything."

Constitutionality of the growers cost guarantee law was not questioned in the Eckerson case, and the court said it was not considered.

The Legislature, in passing the law, intended, the court said, to require that every contract agreement, plan or arrangement with the grower (of citrus) should return him not less than the cost of production, and any contract, scheme, plan or device falling in this should be held to be unlawful, and to that extent against the public policy of the State. It said the Eckerson contract did not guarantee production cost.

Nathan Mayo, commissioner of agriculture, appealed to the Supreme Court when Judge M. B. Smith of the Seminole County Circuit Court granted a temporary injunction against Mayo's agents interfering with the handling of grapefruit under the plan offered to growers by the Eckerson firm.

The Florida Citrus Commission joined in the case Mayo's side. Arguments in the case were heard by the court last Tuesday.

Alrinal carried in 1938 exceeded the best previous year by 11 percent.

Hitler Is Rapped By Teachers For Czech Annexation

Continued from Page One... The association in convention here adopted a report of the continuing education council composed of representatives of a number of statewide organizations interested in schools who said, in effect, it is too late to present a shortened term this year.

The council asked, however, an emergency state appropriation of $150 a teacher unit, or $2,000,000, for the next two years to replace a loan from decreased local revenues.

Its report pointed out carefully that this would not be an increase for schools, but merely a replacement of funds lost from local sources.

"We recommend the emergency appropriation," the council said, "because larger taxing plans, loss of poll tax revenues, reduced valuations and similar deficiencies of local tax procedure have caused local school revenues to decline."

"MATHEW" is the subject of the Lesson-Service which will be read in church on Tuesday, March 22.
The lesson text is: "Then shall ye take the book of the Law and read therein: for the Law and the prophets were written unto us that we should believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." (Matthew 23:2-7)

Among the citations which commend the lesson-Service is the following from the Bible: "Thus saith the Lord, What iniquity have you found in me, that they are gone far from me, and have walked after vanity, and are become void? For my people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me the fountain of living waters, and have hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water." (Jer. 2:13)

The lesson-Service also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is the infinite and infinite never born, never end, and includes nothing unlike God. Whence then is soulism matter?" (p. 24:11, 12)

What Do Germans Think?

Prime Minister Chamberlain did everything but call Hitler a liar yesterday in Birmingham, England. He wasn't quite as frank as that, but he went to great lengths in pointing out the numerous promises made by Hitler at Munich and in showing how these promises had not been fulfilled. There is no longer any doubt that Chamberlain has at last come to realize that Hitler is not a man of his word and cannot be trusted.

Hitler made the personal promise to Chamberlain at Munich that the Sudetenland was the last territorial demand Germany would make in Europe, a promise which was later reiterated in a world wide speech. Hitler also promised to respect the new frontiers of Czechoslovakia. And insisted that he did not want any Czechs or any foreign people within the German Reich.

When Hitler violated solemn treaty pledges to rearm Germany, or again to march his troops into the Rhineland, or to take over Austria, he could maintain some semblance of common honesty. He could say, "yes, these were pledges made by Germany, but pledges exacted from Germany by foreign powers and made by weaklings in high German offices. They were not made by me. I never made any such promises."

He can't say that now. Hitler himself made the promise to respect the new frontiers of Czechoslovakia. Nobody exacted that promise from him. He made it freely and voluntarily and in return for it, he received the Sudeten area, one of the richest sections of its size in Europe, and the very gateway to Central Europe. Hitler made a promise and within six months, he broke it. Cheerfully, willingly, without provocation, he lied.

It is now as clear to the people of Germany, as it is to us, that Hitler is not a man of his word. Though they are not allowed to know much of what is going on, though they seldom see any foreign newspapers, and nothing whatever is printed in their own newspapers of foreign comment, though everything humanly possible is done to keep them in a constant state of ignorance, still they heard Hitler say in Berlin that he would respect the integrity of Czechoslovakia, and they know now that he didn't.

We wonder what the German people think of that sort of leadership. We know that the German people as a whole are not like that. Germans are noted everywhere for their rugged honesty. It has become almost a national characteristic with them. With the average German his word is as good as his bond. If any German in the street had said he would respect the Czechs' new frontiers, you could count on him to do just that to the last ditch.

We don't believe that German people like the sort of leadership which Hitler is giving them. Of course, there will be a great ovation paid Hitler on his return to Berlin, and there will be much cheering and celebration, whipped up by Storm Troopers and Nazi party leaders. And all the German people will shout "Hell" and raise their hands in salute, knowing full well that it means a concentration camp for them if they don't.

But they won't like it. They know they have a pretty sorry specimen of manhood for a ruler, and some day they will do something about it.

"Know Florida" Week

Once a year, urged by the State chamber of commerce, the governor proclaims a week for us to "know Florida better." Governor Cone has issued his edict that March 19 to 25 will be set aside for that purpose.

The ideal way to know Florida better is to take a long vacation, load up the family car and go visiting for a couple of months. Not having the time or money to spare, the next best way to know your State is to read Florida newspapers better—not just scan the headlines and glance at the personals.

Every little weekly paper we get on our exchange desk has something interesting in it, something worth the few cents that issue costs if bought by itself.

WPA delivers into historical data have discovered that the most authentic information possible to obtain comes from local newspapers. It is correct for if any important misstatement is made in a local paper the next few issues will find somebody writing a letter to correct it.

This is proof worth while to all of you that your time is not too valuable to spend reading your home paper "from liver to liver" for you are learning the history of your community as you read.—Leesburg Commercial.

IT SEEMS STRANGE to me that the vast majority of people are content with only hearsay accounts of the wonders found "through the microscope." It is a breath-taking world, filled with myriads of strange and fascinating objects which the naked eye could never see. Anyone who has never looked thus into the heart of a flower has not fully lived.

But the human mind prefers something it can recognize to something for which it has no name, and whereas thousands of persons carry field glasses to bring horses, ships or steeples close to them, only a few carry even the simplest pocket microscope. It would reveal wonders a thousand times more striking than anything Alice saw behind the looking glass. David Fairchild, The World Was My Garden (Berkeley).

THE REMEMBRANCE of beauty, the beauty of a thing, of an object, a landscape, or of a country, is always needed to me the chief end of life. The present cannot be lived if it is not through the presence of beauty. Beauty is the only thing that can give us a sense of the past.

The Florida Citrus Commission, acting under terms of the cost guarantee law, fixed the 32-cent minimum as the cost of producing a box of grapefruit for less than that.

The Eckerson Company offered contracts under which it would act as a processing agent, with the grower retaining title to his fruit. If the grower sold it within 90 days after the processing, he paid the canning company's costs. If he did not sell it within 90 days, the Eckerson Company had the right to sell it, deduct its cost, and get the balance to the grower, less any advancements that might have been made.

Such a contract, the Supreme Court said in an opinion by Chief Justice Terrell, "does not guarantee the grower anything."

The contract, the court said, "imposes every hazard upon the grower, and while it may return him the cost of production, it may not return him anything."

Constitutionality of the growers cost guarantee laws was not questioned in the Eckerson case, and the court said it was not considered.

The Legislature, in passing the law, intended, the court said, to require that every contract agreement, plan or arrangement with the grower (of citrus) should return him not less than the cost of production, and any contract, scheme, plan or device falling in this should be held to be unlawful, and to that extent against the public policy of the State. It said the Eckerson contract did not guarantee production cost.

Nathan Mayo, commissioner of agriculture, appealed to the Supreme Court when Judge M. B. Smith of the Seminole County Circuit Court granted a temporary injunction against Mayo's agents enforcing "cost guarantee" of grapefruit under the plan offered to growers by the Eckerson firm.

The Florida Citrus Commission joined in the case on Mayo's side. Arguments in the case were heard by the court last Tuesday.

The council asked, however, an emergency state appropriation of $150 a teacher unit, or $2,000,000 for the next two years, to replace a loss from decreased local revenue.

Its report pointed out carefully that this would not be an increase for schools, but merely a replacement of funds lost from the sources.

"We recommend the emergency appropriation," the council said, "because bargain taxpaying plans, loss of poll tax revenue, reduced valuations and similar deficiencies of local tax procedure have caused school revenues to decline."

Schroder Says 7,000 May Be Dropped From State Rolls

WASHINGTON, Mar. 20.—President Roosevelt submitted to Congress today a report by Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau that there was no need to lift the present $45,000,000,000 legal limit on the public debt.

The report added that the $50,000,000 limit on long-term bonds should be removed, however, and the president asked that Congress take "such action as may be necessary."

The administration continued efforts to obtain an additional $150,000,000 from Congress to carry on the WPA until July 1. Col. E. C. Harrington, work relief administrator, made public statements today that he would not make any reduction in the WPA job quotas unless more money is voted.

JACKSONVILLE, Mar. 20.—(AP)—Schroder, Florida Works Program administrator, said today he had orders from Washington to drop 7,000 workers from the state WPA rolls by Apr. 5 unless Congress appropriate an additional $100,000,000.

Col. E. C. Harrington, work relief administrator, would make it necessary to drop at least 2,500 persons even if an additional appropriation is made.

Gibbs Says Cone Means Business In Gambling Drive

TAMPA, Mar. 20.—(AP)—State Attorney General George C. Gibbs told a mass meeting here yesterday that he and Governor Cone mean business in their gambling cleanup.

He spoke to more than 500 persons at a meeting at the municipal auditorium, sponsored by the Church Laymen's league, and said the statewide drive on gambling had been highly effective.

"Reports coming to us have been more than heartening," he added, "and this evil will be removed from the state not only now, but forever."

The governor wrote and wrote at his request to law enforcement officials to co-operate with us in not only closing gambling establishments, but to keep them closed—and we meant every word of it.

"We meant all sort of gambling—punch boards, slot machines, roulette wheels, and everything else."

The attorney general urged citizens to co-operate in the campaign, but he warned them "to keep your feet on the ground."

"Make no statement," he said, "to a local officer or to me unless you are sure of your ground and have the facts. The county solicitor can act only on sworn testimony, and in most counties he has no investigator. It is the same way with the state attorney."

Czech Annexation To Receive Stern U.S. Condemnation

WASHINGTON, Mar. 20.—(AP)—Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, in collaboration with President Roosevelt, last night worked on the final draft of a vigorous formal note to Germany condemning the annexation of Czechoslovakia and isolation of Britain and France in a "stop Hitler" drive.

The note, probably still in draft form, will be made public here and in Berlin tomorrow and may serve to break the slender thread of diplomatic politeness which at present is keeping this country and Germany on speaking terms.

Mr. Roosevelt in outline prepared to meet with his congressional lieutenants, from a cabinet and out of cabinet position to the Administration, from anti-Nazi measures, including the imposition of heavy penalties duties on German goods, and his plea for neutrality law changes to strengthen his hand in dealing with the dictators.

The formal protest may go further than Welles' informal denunciation last Friday in which he said the United States looks upon the "extinguishment" of Czechoslovakia as being only temporary. It is understood it will excoriate Germany as an aggressor and a violator of treaties, and accuse the Nazi government of being a menace to civilization.

It will also make it clear that like Britain and France, the United States cannot recognize the legality of the Czech "gift."

The outcome of this meeting with his legislative leaders and European developments during the next few days may determine whether Mr. Roosevelt will go through or abandon plans to leave the White House next Friday for a journey to Warm Springs.

The meetings are being held throughout the State to acquaint citizens with facts about Florida's highways as revealed in a survey made by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads and the State Road Department.

The truck was carrying a load of produce and was heading for a market in the city.

Troops Reported Moving Toward War-Lost State After Protection Request

Rumania Fears Attack By Nazis

Formation Of "Stop Hitler" Bloc Is Sought By Britain

ARMY'S MARCHED AGAIN IN Europe today as Germany appeared on the threshold of a new conquest and Britain tried to rally "anti-aggressor" nations into a "stop Hitler" bloc.

Reunion of the war-lost Memel with Germany seemed imminent. German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Lithuanian Foreign Minister Juozas Urbysas conferred in Berlin as reports came of German troop movements toward the little Baltic state.

In London, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons that Britain's grandiose peace program would be reviewed as one of three steps in answer to Germany's eastward drive.

Others were: an attempt to rally anti-Nazi nations into a bloc, and a decision to send a trade mission to Rumania to counter German economic pressure in trade negotiations with Bucharest which have caused widespread concern.

United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy conferred with Vicecount Halifax, British Foreign secretary, and an informed source said they discussed close diplomatic collaboration.

Mobilized German troops, meanwhile, straggled through the mountains in Slovakia toward Carpatho-Ukraine, the now narrow Hungarian strip separating them from Rumania.

It was feared Hitler would strike next in Rumania, whose 500,000 wells and fertile wheat fields are in the path of the German drive to the east.

Rumania Calls Huge Force To Guard Frontiers

BUCHAREST, Mar. 20.—(AP)—At least 500,000 men, called from a dozen classes of the Rumanian army, last night guarded the frontiers of the Balkan kingdom, rich in oil and wheat.

There was no general mobilization nor were any of the yearly classes called in full.

The standing army of 200,000 men provided the backbone of defense but informed quarters said it had been reinforced by call of an even larger number to the colors from the reserves.

Reserve engineers and artillery men were called from all classes and authorities said enough soldiers were at their posts to prevent a surprise from any quarter.

The population was calm, however, and there was general belief that there would be no attack.

Heavy strength, nevertheless, was mobilized along the southern border of Carpatho-Ukraine, former autonomous province of erased Czechoslovakia which has been annexed by Hungary. Rumanians called it their "new frontier," involving new defense problems.

Before Czechoslovakia was dissolved Rumania had an ally on that border and because of mutual non-aggression treaties defense there was not developed.

Now in that vulnerable region Rumania must reckon with Hungary which has extensive territorial claims against Bucharest.
