Jury decides for church

TAVARES - A jury has decided a church was not to blame for the sexual assault on a 3-year-old boy who was attending a Sunday School class.

But the youngster's mother, who broke down in tears as the ruling was read, said the First Baptist Church of Altoona had assumed responsibility for her son when he was picked up by church workers for the April 5, 1992, class. She said she sued for damages to help pay for past and future psychiatric counseling for the boy.

"What are you supposed to do? Tell your child, 'OK, go to church, but be careful because you might get raped?" said the

A 14-year-old boy was convicted in juvenile court of the sexual assault. He said he led the smaller child into a restroom near the church nursery and attacked him. Their names have not been made public because of their ages.

School board approves AIDS book cover

LARGO — Over an objection that it sends a mixed message about sex, the Pinellas County School Board has approved a free book cover designed to inform middle school students Superintendent Howard Hinesley said the cover - which urges abstinence - would send "mixed signals" to students who are now taught abstinence "100 percent."

Of the 15 or so messages on the cover, one mentions latex School board members voted Wednesday to accept the covers and decide later which grade level students would get them, and when.

The colorful cover, festooned with phrases like "Wait 4 Marriage" and "You Must Remember This, HIV Won't Discriminate" already is being used in six other Florida school districts and has been approved by state education and social services officials.

More than 140,000 of the books, carrying the controversial cover, have been distributed free to middle schoolers in Orange, Dade, Manatee, Lee, Seminole and Bay counties so far this year. The book was created and published by the Florida Medical Association Alliance, a group for doctors' spouses.

Customs agent convicted of tax evasion

MIAMI - A former U.S. Customs agent acquitted of stealing $82,000 planted by the federal government in a sting operation was convicted of not reporting his share of the loot on his tax Orlando White, 42, was a member of a special drug task force designed to battle drug dealers. Prosecutors claimed in U.S. District Court he stole thousands of dollars, using the contacts made as a federal agent.

The government started investigating White in the summer of 1991 after a confidential informant told police White was stealing drug money.

After an 18-month investigation, including a sting setup by agents and a government informant, federal agent White in January. He was indicted in April.

White, who is out on bond, was not convicted of stealing $82,000 he thought was the property of a narcotics money courier even though he was caught on videotape because the jury believed he was entrapped, said Assistant U.S. Attorney

White later failed to report his $30,000 share of the stolen money on his income tax return.

Vaughn said after the verdict Thursday White would probably be sentenced to 20 months in prison and a fine. The former agent could receive up to 3 years in prison and a $250,000 penalty, but "it will be much less," Vaughn said.

School headline gets officials attention

ST. PETERSBURG - All the high school journalists wanted to do was use a racy headline to get attention for a column about sexual harassment.

They got plenty of attention — from school authorities. Principal Barbara Broughton abruptly halted distribution of Wednesday's editions of St. Petersburg High School's Palmetto & Pine newspaper just an hour after it went on sale.

The headline — "Sexual HarASSment (Check Out That

ASSI)" - and the accompanying cartoon showing a young man pinching an young woman's buttocks were "inappropriate," said Broughton. "I have never been in the business of censorship," the principal said. "We have an absolute duty to teach students what might or might not be acceptable by the standards of the The U.S. Supreme Court in a 1988 decision gave school administrators broad authority to regulate the content of student newspapers.

"I can see a little bit where (the principal's) coming from, even though I don't really agree with her," said the column's co-author Lindsay Oldenski, 15.

An educated choice

Panel to discuss pros, cons of voucher system in education

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - One of the newest trends in educational reform is that of parental choice in education.

While it may be familiar territory for those in educational circles, the community at large is either unfamiliar with the concept or they are unsure of the meaning of many of the terms used in discussion of the concept.

A group of citizens and educators, calling themselves the Committee to Explore Parental Choice in Education (CEPCE), has organized a forum entitled "Pros and Cons of Parental Choice in Education — The Voucher System." The program is sched-uled for Saturday, Nov. 20 from 8 a.m. to 5

"Too many people are either unfamiliar with the concept or they are applying their own meanings to the terms and making decisions about choice based on what they think it is rather than on the facts," said Kathy Booker, an organizer of the commit-would provide parents with a voucher that would allow parents to choose the school to which they would send their children.

The money could be used to send the children to public schools, to private schools or to religious schools.

Booker said the group has tried to gather together experts on both sides of the choice issue who will discuss the pros and cons. The moderator for the panel is Dr. Joan director of a private school located in Tallahassee, Joyce Hobson, member of the Martin County School Board; and Dr. Maurice Dawkins, who will represent the pro side of choice.

School board member Larry Strickler has agreed to take part in the discussion on behalf of the school board.

"It should be an enlightening discussion." Strickler said.

He said that he has not made up his mind if he is for or against it, but believes the forum will give the public an opportunity to think about changes that are needed in "There is a need for change," he said. "I don't know if this is it, but I'm glad people are thinking about change."

Strickler believes there are some inherent problems with the system.

"If the voucher does not include money for transportation, it will defeat the purpose," he noted. "Parents must be able to afford to get their children to the school of their choice. Sometimes theory and practicality are different."

Paula Wolgast will present the alternative choice of the "Charter School" concept.

George Noga, founder of the Children's Educational Opportunity Foundation, will given an overview and background of School Choice.'

Booker said she believes there is a need for Floridians to hear about the choice option in education.

We think people here need a head start when it comes to learning about this," she said. "The time to make a decision will be here soon.

The public forum will take place at the Celery City Lodge of the Elks, 619 Cypress Ave., Sanford.

Nine teens indicted as adults after youth violence outbreak

By Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE - Nine teen-agers have been indicted as adults in the wake of violent crimes which have frustrated the community, said State Attorney Harry Shorstein. Four of the defendants could face the death penalty for the slaying of 14-year-old freshman Richard Jefferson "Jeff" Mitchell as he waited outside Terry Parker High School Nov. 4.

The other crimes included the Nov. 7 robbery-shooting of a convenience store clerk and the shooting of an 18-year-old motorist during a carjacking the same day.

"The message is that if you commit a serious crime in Jacksonville, you will be prosecuted as an adult," Shorstein said Thursday.

Four teen-agers were indicted Wednesday by a Duval County grand jury on one count each of first-degree murder in the Mitchell slaying. The youth was shot in the head and hip during an attempted robbery while waiting for his father to pick him up after school.

Shorstein said he plans to personally prosecute the case and will seek the death penalty for 19-year-old Omar Jones, the accused triggerman. after being asked to by Mitchell's father. "After discussing the case with him, I had a strong desire to do whatever I could to accommodate him in the aftermath of his tragedy.' Shorstein said.

'It helps establish the credibility of the State Attorney's Office for the state attorney to be visible in important cases," the prosecutor said.

"The murder of a child on a school ground - I can think of nothing more important or significant," Shorstein said.

He said his office would make a decision after further investigation on which penalty or penalties to seek against the other three teenagers — Edward Goodmand, 19; Marlon Hawkins, 19, and Ellis Curry, 16 - charged in Mitchell's

Drunken driver, killer of 5, gets 5 life terms

By JAMES MARTINEZ Associated Press Writer

TAMPA - A drunken driver who killed five people when his car plowed into a stranded church bus got a lifetime behind bars Thursday from a judge who ensured the man would never be free to drive again. "I don't see anything in your behavior to indicate to me that I can take the risk with other brakes. people's lives," Circuit Judge Barbara Fleischer said as she gave Thomas Duckett five consecutive life sentences. Duckett, whose blood-alcohol level showed he drank the equivalent of 11 cocktails before last year's 100-mph crash, hung his head as the judge pointed out his three previous drunkendriving convictions and that the deadly wreck came as he drove with a revoked license.

"You haven't stopped drinking, you haven't stopped driv-ing." Fleischer said, peering down over her glasses at the 29-year-old construction worker. "The hardest sentence you imposed is the one you imposed upon yourself."

Duckett was convicted last month on all 23 counts including five each of second-degree murder and drunken-driving manslaughter in the Sept. 11, 1992, crash.

A group of 25 youngsters and their chaperons from the Naples First Assembly of God were headed to Wait Disney World for a gospel music festival called a "Night of Joy."

Their bus blew a tire on Interstate 75 in south Hillsborough County. As they stood waiting for a mechanic to fix the flat in the late-night darkness, a speeding 1980 Datsun driven by Duckett ca- drink, stay out of the car."

Duckett, whose blood-alcohol level would later be tested at 0.228 (more than twice the level a person is considered intoxicated in Florida), drove for more than 400 feet down the road's shoulder before slamming into the mechanic's truck, crashing into the bus and hitting the church group. There were no marks to indicate Duckett hit his Killed were three teen-agers -Jason Thweatt, 14; Joshua P. Mallory, 15; Robert Marks, 17 a chaperon, Joan George, 28; and her son, Jeffrey, 9. Eight others were injured.

"There is no excuse for what I have done," Duckett, who did not speak at length during the hearing, wrote in a letter to the judge. "I live every day with the knowledge that my actions killed five very dear people and that this knowledge causes me anguish every waking minute of

When Duckett's attorney earlier pleaded for mercy and referred to the crash collision as an "accident," Judge Fleischer quickly interjected.

"You can use the word 'colitsion.' You can use the word 'wreck,'" the judge said, "but don't use the word 'accident' it suggests he had no control over what happened.'

Some of the family members of victims hugged each other after the sentence, but there were no smiles.

"It's not going to bring my family back — it's not going to change anything." said Curt George, who lost his wife and son. "I hope it sends a message to people - if you are going to

Juvenile justice HRS wants to limit federal oversight

By JACKIE HALLIFAX Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Teen-ngers at reform schools are no longer hogtied or chased down by dogs so federal oversight of Florida's juvenile justice system should end, a top state official said Thursday.

Federal court monitoring, a legacy from a 1983 lawsuit, has infringed on the state's authority, according to the head of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

"We are going to vigorously assert our right to run our juvenile justice system," HRS Secretary Jim Towey said.

Towey's agency plans to ask U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul to scale back a 1987 settlement to a class-action lawsuit known as the Bobby M. case.

The settlement called for better conditions at the state reform schools in Marianna and Okeechobee, But It also extended oversight of a federally appointed monitor to Florida's entire juvenile justice system.

That's the section Towey and his boss, Gov. Lawton Chiles, want repealed.

The horror stories of teenagers being hogtied and dogs chasing down escapees are over, Towey said. In the last two quarters, the monitor has found Florida to be largely in compliance with the settlement as far as the reform school issues are concerned.

But the latest federal report elted major problems elsewhere in the Juvenile Justice system and said the state should start more residential programs, eliminate waiting lists and stop holding so many teen-agers especially minority teens not convicted of violent crimes - in adult jails.

Towey also said the state has spent nearly $1.4 million in attorney fees and in fees to federally mandated monitors during the past 10 years.

The motion will be filed Fri-day, when Paul has already scheduled a hearing to evaluate progress the state has made in addressing concerns of the monitor.

The legal argument underlying the state's motion, Towey said, involves a fundamental principle of American government: separation of powers.

The 1987 settlement, along with a follow-up agreement reached in 1992, binds the executive branch of Florida government to goals that can't be met without funds supplied by the legislative branch, according to Kim Tucker, chief attorney for the HRS.

The state also will argue that the power of the federal courts is limited to issues covered by federal law or by the U.S. Constitution, she said.

The question of authority was stirred up by recent proposals to spend more money on residential programs for teen-age criminals in serious trouble - although not in bad enough shape to warrant detention in adult

Jodi Siegel, an attorney for the Bobby M. class-action lawsuit. wrote Chiles earlier this month to express concern over a plan he had proposed to shift $9.7 million in Florida's $36 billion budget to build another 366 beds in residential programs during the next several months.

That plan, which needs Cabi-net approval, was delayed two weeks ago because the Legislature was in the process of debating a proposal to find more money for beds to expand the state juvenile justice system.

The price tag of the legislative plan, which Chiles is expected to sign, ended up at $4.6 million. Lawmakers disagreed on whether their bill pre-empted the governor's proposal and Chiles has not decided whether to bring the issue back before the Cabinet next week.

"It is still under review as to but it was. In part, that mpted the state's request to limit was, in p whether or not we're going to go to the Cabinet." Chiles' spokeswoman Jo Miglino said the state in violation of the hadn't seen the new HRS mo-Bobby M. settlement that pro- tion. ICE HARDWARE ICE HARDWARE ICE HARDWARE

We have all been told how drug abuse effects a person's mind. For school children, obtaining an education becomes impossible. Adults holding down a steady job can reach the point where there is no alternative but to

The majority of our population are not drug abusers. Unfortunately, the number appears to be diminishing as time goes by.

Non-users may believe they understand problems suffered by abusers. However, we believe there is not enough concern. Drug abuse is a far ranging problem that goes beyond only the users.

As an example, on Nov. 13, Sanford police reported approximately $2,100 in items had been reported stolen in various residential and business burglaries. On Nov. 15th, again, over $2,000 in items were reportedly taken.

Time after time, in arrest reports, police have indicated the burglar admitted to taking the items to trade for drug money. We suspect a majority of the items stolen are intended to be sold or traded for this purpose.

Drug abuse therefore, effects everyone. Members of the CCIB, City/County investigative Bureau, held a crack-down on drug sales this past weekend. Many persons were arrested, and a great deal of drugs were confiscated in Seminole and Orange counties. This helped, but it is only a small solution to a gigantic problem. The sale and/or purchase of drugs on the street will continue, regardless of how many CCIB raids are made.

If we leave the fight against drug abusers and distributors strictly to our law enforcement and government, we will be faced with a need for more officers.

This will eventually lead to higher taxes. One way or another, it is going to cost us more and more, regardless of what is done, unless we wake up.

One of the best ways to start making a difference is to join in the fight. Many people see what appears to be drug dealings going on. Yet they hesitate to inform law enforce-

Some actually know the names of dealers but don't want to turn them in. They may fear retaliation, or just don't want to become involved.

Yet it's that dealer's clientele who may be coming through a window to steal jewelry or family heirlooms to be sold for drug money. Abusers don't want people to report them.

Yet people have a choice. They can start reporting such violations, or they can continue being a victim.

It won't be easy, but reducing drug activities will go a long way toward combatling a great deal of crime.

Clinton's second political lynching

"high-tech lynching," but it's President Clinton who is putting this idea into practice. In less than six months, two distinguished black Americans - Lani Guinier and Dr. Clifton R. Wharton have been the victims of a presidential lynching.

Last week, Clinton scapegoated Deputy Secretary of State Wharton, the department's highest-ranking black, for the near total failure of Clinton's foreign policy.

But back-to-back headlines explained the real reasons for the bankruptcy of Clinton's policy. On the day Wharton's resignation was accepted, a front-page New York Times story, 3 PLAYERS SEEK A DIRECTOR FOR A FOREIGN POLICY STORY, described the ineptitudes of Secretary of State Warren Christopher, Secretary of Defense Les Aspin and National Security Adviser An-especially galling is that both are members of two of America's most distinguished black families.

Lant Guinier's father, Ewart, was a prominent black scholar who headed the African-American studies department at Harvard. Clift Wharton's father became the first black career ambassador, serving with distinction in two major posts. Both families are members of W.E.B. DuBois' "talented tenth.' But what does Bubba Clinton do? Savage their reputations and sidetrack their careers. Guinter's legal career has already been well-publicized. Less well-known is Wharton's distinguished career. This is where the media's intractable racism has been a tacit partner in justifying administrative racism.

Stories about his resignation alluded only to him as a former president of Michigan State University and "a former pension fund executive." The latter is like calling Picasso a painter.

Wharton has been the CEO for TIAA-CREF, the country's largest private pension fund, as well as the president of the State University of New York system and a former chairman of the board of the Rockefeller Foundation. He is a managerial genius, a distinction for which no official at the State Department is known.

Both parties put spin on results

- The ballots had scarcely been counted when politicians, parties and activists of various stripes were trying to put their own spin on the results. Most of these views, naturally enough, were almost blindly partisan.

Republicans say Democrats are in big trouble because the GOP had the three big victories of the year: George Allen over Democrat Mary Sue Terry for Virginia governor; Christine Todd Whitman over Gov. James Florio in New Jersey; and Rudolph Giuliani over incumbent New York Mayor David

Democrats counter that each race stands on its own merits and that Terry, Florio and Dinkins each lost for a different reason. Democrats insist that there were no overriding anti-Democratic themes in this set of off-year

Objectively, however, the results were not good news for the Democrats. If the results show anything, it is that voters are still angry and still want change. By and large, voters turned incumbents out while saying no to

At the local level it is crime - not the economy, texes or budgets — that is really worrying people. From New York to Seattle, 17 major cities elected mayors (actually there will be runoffs in Atlanta and Miami). The one unifying factor in all these races was that crime was the key issue in every one. The results showed that in communities where crime is the issue, angry voters will try to turn incumbents or incumbent parties out of office. In New York, it was former prosecutor Giuliani who was the narrow winner. In Detroit, it was former judge Dennis Archer.

Fear of crime showed up in a Texas vote approving a $1 billion bond issue to build new prisons - the state's fourth prison bond issue since 1987. In Washington state, voters easily passed what is being called the "three strikes and you're out" initiative mandating most three-time felons be given life sentences with no parole.

Voter anger against politicians showed up in the passage of term-limit proposals in New York City and Maine, and New Jersey voters passed a measure to allow for the recall of elected officials. Also, voters in New York's large Monroe and Suffolk counties, and in the city of Plattsburgh, approved term limits for county and city officials. Downey, Calif., did the same for city council members.

The voters' negative mood showed up in votes on gay-rights measures. In Cincinnati-and in Lewiston, Maine, voters rolled back gay rights measures that had been previously approved by the city council, while voters said no to gay rights in a non-binding referendum in Portsmouth, N.H.

But some votes ran counter to the trend. Washington state voters refused to rollback a $1 billion legislative tax package meant to balance the state budget and pay for healthcare reform. The measure would have tled future tax growth to average income in the state. In North Carolina, where state borrowing is rare, voters approved a record $740 million in bonds for state colleges, water projects and parks. Voters in Ohio approved a $200 million bond lasue for parks and natural resources,

Supporters of school vouchers which places into parents' hands public funds that they can use to send their children to private schools -- say the defeat of the voucher initiative in California will not slow down their national campaign.

The California school voucher initiative, which would have given parents about $2,800 a year. falled by about a 71 percent to 29 percent. The California loss is being blamed on the fact that opponents, led by powerful teachers unions, out-spent supporters by more than 10-to-1, and that those who drafted the initiative did not listen to national voucher proponents and allow for a phase-in period. Opponents argued the initiative would cost cash-strapped California $2 billion in the first two years mainly to fund students already in non-public schools. Supporters of vouchers say they expect some form of their proposal to either be debated by state legislators, or be on state ballots in 1994 in Colorado, Georgia, Florida, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio and Oregon. They even say they believe they can qualify another voucher initiative in California in November 1994.

Most of these views, naturally enough, were almost blindly

Finally, in two of the most watched contests of the year. San Francisco voters approved Proposition BB allowing 24-year veteran police Officer Bob Geary to use his ventriloquist's dummy, Officer Brendan O'Smarty, while on patrol, despite objections from police commanders. Geary uses the dummy to do things like help quiet domestic disputes. And in Piqua, Ohio, voters refused to let Roxie, a miniature potbellied pig, live in town. City law forbids agricultural animals within the city limits.

Lobbying fertile for former lawmakers

WASHINGTON - Former Rep. Murty Russo. D-lll., should know better than most people that money talks with members of Congress. He served there for 17 years before losing his seat in last year's Democratic primary.

These days Russo works for Cassidy and Associates, a heavyweight Washington lobbying firm with strong Democratic ties. Although he is banned from lobbying Congress for a year after leaving office. Russo has left a money trail that leaves no doubts about his intentions. in the first six months of 1993. Russo contributed more than $17,000 to members of Congress and candidates. according to public documents reviewed by our reporter De-borah Acomb.

None of Russo's contributions are against the law. Like any citizen, he has a constitutional right to contribute to any political campaign, within the limits of the Federal Elections his intentions. Commission rules. But in a town where campaign contributions are the currency of influence, Russo is setting the pace for his former colleagues.

When Congress imposed the one-year lobbying ban for former members in 1989, the intent was to slow down the infamous 'revolving door," whereby former members use their connections to obtain lucrative jobs lobbying Capitol Hill. Russo's trailblazing suggests that contributions may be one way of staying in touch. Although Cassidy and Associates has represented everyone from AT&T to the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, its specialty is winning grants and tax breaks for health care interests and universities. When congressional appropriators meet to divide the budget spoils, it is Cassidy's job to make sure its clients receive their share of academic "earmarks" and other goodles that Congress doles out during appropriations. Russo's giving pattern reflects a keen knowledge of the Capitol Hill power structure: $1,000 to Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif., chairman of the health subcommittee on Ways and Means, of which Russo himself was a member until last November: $1,000 to "Friends of Bob Carr." Carr, D-Mich., chairs the transpor-tation subcommittee of the House Appropria-tions Committee: $1,000 to Rep. Tom Foglicita, D-Pa., who also sits on the House Appropriations Committee. Russo also opened his pockets for two of his former superiors on Ways and Means: beleaguered Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, Dill., and second-ranking Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla.

Russo, who didn't return our phone calls, is by no means the only member of last year's departing class who's found a second career in the corridors of power. According to a report by the watchdog group Public Citizen, dozens of former members have gone to work for groups that lobby Congress. For example, former Reps. Dennis Eckart, D-Ohio, and Beryl Anthony, D-Ark., now work for Winston & Strawn, a Chicago law firm with a Washington office that engages in lobbying. Former Rep. Ed Jenkins, D.Ga., who gave more than $5,000 to members of Congress in the first six months of 1993, is now partners with former congressional aide John Winburn in the firm Winburn & Jenkins.

There is no evidence to suggest that any former members are violating their one-year lobbying ban. Even if some were, there are enough loopholes in the current legislation to prevent anyone from getting caught in the act. There is currently a bill in the House, the Revolving Door Sunshine Act of 1993, which would require all former high-level public officials to report all official contacts with the government for five years after leaving office. The bill, introduced by Rep. John Conyers. D-Mich., was recently reported to the floor of day. Only one specific bill'was sought by the county, to drop county-provided optional insurance for local judges. Most judges take both the state and county coverage, which is sometimes duplicated, county officials

City-county annexation battles have been virtually non-existent since 1988 when a newly-elected commission majority sought to end disputes, whether county attorneys believed annexations were legal or not. The county had won most previous annexation battles.

The exception occurred in 1992 when Casselberry sought to annex a proposed subdivision. Brittany Gardens, and several smaller parcels. The annexation law at the time required a vote of the affected unincorporated residents and the city residents. The annexation was approved by city voters, but no voters lived on the lands to be annexed. The county challenged the action in court but lost.

Subsequently, Constantine, in an effort to clarify the issue. sponsored a new law which allowed cities to annex land without a vote if a large land owner agreed. But wording was added by another lawmaker before the law was adopted which allowed the city to annex adjacent smaller parcels, even if their owners didn't want in to the city.

County Attorney Bob McMillan said the loophole served to allow cities to annex a subdivision. then add on the tax-rich fastfood restaurant next door, taking revenue away from the county.

Constantine said he is working on clarifying language which would allow the properties to be annexed without a vote, but only if 50 percent or more of the owners of each property agreed. Lawmakers said they were supportive of the request to abolish a special 1972 Seminole County law which allowed the county to provide insurance to judges. At the time, said Deputy County Manager Sharon Laisure, the state Judicial coverage was poor so commissioners at the time offered the better county insurance.

In the years to follow, state coverage improved, but many of the county's circuit and county judges opted to continue taking the county insurance as well as the state policies. The program now costs the county about $24,000 annually.

Several lawmakers chided delegation chairman Sen. Gary Slegel, R-Fern Park, to sponsor the bill. Siegel, a lawyer practicing before Seminole County benches, didn't commit to do so, but said the request would be taken up at the next delegation meeting Nov. 23.

Senate prepared to vote on crime bill

By LARRY MARQASAK Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Senate is on the verge of passing a $22.3 billion anti-crime bill but then faces a contentious debate over a five-day waiting period for handgun customers.

Senators agreed to vote today on their response to the public's growing fears of crime. The measure would expand potential use of the death penalty, increase prison time for dozens of offenses, authorize thousands of new police officers and finance new prisons.

The bill is headed for a conference committee, with no prospect this year of reconciling the massive Senate measure with scaled-down anticrime legislation passed by the House.

Senate prospects remained uncertain. meanwhile, for legislation to require a five-day waiting period and background check for handgun customers.

The battle will be fought over two issues favored by gun control opponents. The opponents want the bill to supersede more restrictive waiting periods imposed by some states and cities; and demand a time limit on the waiting period - whether or not a planned system of computerized, instant checks was operating.

"We feel very good about the situation," said the chief sponsor of the waiting period, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio.

Attorney General Janet Reno today predicted passage for the gun-control measure, which she called "an important first step" to getting guns out of circulation.

She was equally confident on the prospects for the crime bill.

"I feel very sure it's going to pass. ... I think everyone recognizes the need to get police officers to the streets." Reno said in an interview on NBC.

The overall anti-crime bill would authorize 100,000 new local police officers, additional federal agents and a beefed up prosecution force.

In addition, the measure would authorize $100 million a year, from fiscal 1994 through 1998, to help state and local governments increase their crime-fighting resources.

The bill does not appropriate any anti-crime funds, but expects to get the money from a planned reduction of the federal work force from the 1994 through 1998 fiscal years.

The death penalty would be expanded to cover some 50 federal offenses, including murder of a law enforcement officer, drive-by killings and carlackings which result in death.

The increases in penalties would mean mandatory life sentences for those convicted of a third violent erime or a third major drug felony. The harsh sentence could only be triggered by a federal conviction in the third case, although previous state and local convictions would count toward the total.

Other penalty increases in non-death penalty cases would result from convictions for:

—Transferring a gun to a juvenile when there's knowledge the youth intended to use the weapon

-Using guns in federal offenses and in violent crimes where the weapon crossed state lines. If the weapon was used in a murder, the death penalty could be imposed in states that do not have capital punishment.

-Rape and family violence offenses. Other key provisions include scholarships for students who agree to become police officers, a ban on 19 semiautomatic assault weapons (no weapons now in someone's possession would be affected) and language to combat violence against

The bill also calls for development of a national criminal background check for those who care for children, the elderly or the disabled; drug treatment grants, and restrictions to prevent state motor vehicle departments from releasing personal information without someone without his or her consent.

SANFORD - Who has the best girl's basketball team in Seminole County?

It may just be the second week of the season, but Lake Howell and Seminole will meet in the finals of the Lady Noles Basketball Invitational Saturday night with early county supremacy on the line.
Thursday night at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium, the Silver Hawks and Tribe both came away with convincing victories over Volusia County powers Mainland and Deltona, respectively.

With Deanna Graves controlling the defensive end and Christine James dominating inside. Lake Howell won all four quarters to cruise to its sixth win without a defeat_67-48.

James led all scorers with 22 points on nine of 12 shooting from the floor and grabbed 15 rebounds, while Graves popped in 21 points, most of which came off her eight steals. Kelly Kohn, who was celebrating a birthday, also had a good game, scoring 14 points and handing out six assists.

Seminole struggled through foul trouble and a poor shooting night by Tennishia Eason in the first half, but outscored the Wolves 30-13 in the second half and improved to 3-0 with a 58-40 triumph.

Eason had her usually good all-around game with 26 points. 14 rebounds, nine steals, five assists, one blocked shot and one charge taken. But she was was just 10 of 29 shooting from the floor. Belinder Morgan and Mindee Hampton added nine points and seven steal each, while Dana Merrick chipped in with eight points and three steals. The Tribe pressure defense made up for a sub-par

Addiction linked to 'kind of a language'

DEAR MARY: I've noticed something about our family that I just can't believe is purely accidental. My grandfather was an alcoholic, my father was an alcoholic, my two sisters and I all married alcoholics (one of them widowed from her first alcoholic husband and married "another" alcoholic), and my three nieces all married alcoholics, although one of them has since gotten divorced.

Everybody likes to say that there's no good men out there and that's why this keeps happening in our family. But if that's true, why do I have friends and go to church with people who are wonderful husbands and fathers and have no alcoholism in their families? Do you think this is just some 80-year streak of bad luck running through our clan or are we doing something to make it happen?

ON A ROLL WITH ALCOHOL

DEAR ON A ROLL: What you've noticed has been documented and studied many times. While some therapists do not believe that it is anything more than random selection, most people in the addiction and prevention fields believe it is a part of the addictive cycle. Let's think of addiction as a kind of language. Once an addict is established in the family. everyone learns to speak the this person. After the children in a family have learned the "language" of addiction and addicts, when it's time to form relationships of their own, they are attracted to people who speak the same language. Of course, this selection process doesn't go on at a conscious level, it operates at an emotional level which is much more difficult to recognize. Again, while others may not agree, I do not see leaving the addict as the only solution to breaking the cycle. As you have noticed if we continue our co-dependent behaviors, we'll simply find another addict to bond to because addicts need codependents, but co-dependents also need addicts.

Defrosting holiday turkey

Two thawing methods: Refrigerator and cold water

There are two methods for defrosting turkey: refrigerator defrosting and cold water defrosting. Remember to keep your turkey cold while defrosting and cook it as soon as possible after defrosting.

Refrigerator method: Place turkey or turkey parts on a tray in the refrigerator in their original packaging. Allow the following amount of defrosting time: Whole turkey -24 hours defrosting time for each 5 pounds. Turkey breast - 1.2 days. Turkey parts -24 hours.

Cold water method: Place turkey or turkey parts in their original packaging under cold water in a sink or deep pan. Change water as often as needed to keep it cold. Allow the following amount of defrosting time: Whole turkey - 30 minutes defrosting time for each pound. Turkey breast - 4 to 8 hours. Turkey parts - 2 to 214 hours.

Helpful hints: Food safety - do not defrost turkey at room temperature. In the time it takes the center to defrost, the surface of the turkey could become warm enough for bacteria to multiply to danger-remove stuffing immediately and slice turkey. Keep extra stuffing hot in a 200°F. oven while you cat. Never leave cooked turkey, stuffing or gravy at room temperature for more than 2 hours.

Always refrigerate a fresh or defrosted turkey. Cook within 2 to 3 days.

Never partially cook turkey and finish cooking later. Helpful hints: Leftovers - after cooking.

Refrigerate and use leftover turkey, stuffing and gravy within 2 to 4 days. Wrap

Preparing a turkey for cooking:

· Buy one pound of furkey per person for turkeys that weigh 12 pounds or less, 34 pound per person if turkey is over 12 pounds: 1/2 pound per person for bone-in turkey breast.

• Unwrap the defrosted turkey. Free legs from tucked position. Do not cut band of skin over legs. Remove neck and giblets from both cavities. Rinse turkey inside and out with cold water, pat dry.

· Stuff body and neck cavities lightly, if desired. Use 1/2 cup stuffing per pound for turkeys under 10 pounds: ¾ cup per pound for turkeys over 10 pounds. Add 30 minutes to roasting time for stuffed turkey. • Tuck drumsticks under band of skin or tie together loosely with string or thread. if desired. Fold neck skin under the back and hold in place by twisting wing tips under the back or secure with a small skewer. Proceed with directions for cooking a turkey by following the method that best fits your time schedule and desired cooking results. Helpful hints: Stuffing - Never stuff turkey ahead of time. Instead, mix dry ingredients for stuffing in advance. Then add liquid ingredients and stuff just before

When cooking a stuffed turkey, add 30 minutes to the roasting time. The stuffing should reach a temperature of 160° to 165°F. To check the stuffing, insert a meat thermometer into the thickest part of the stuffing and leave it for 5 minutes.

Bake extra stuffing in a casserole alongside the turkey during the last 30 to 45 minutes of roasting time.

Helpful hinter Testing for doneness - A meat thermometer is the best guide to turkey doneness. For whole turkey, insert meat thermometer into thickest part of inner thigh, not touching bone. When whole turkey is done, the thermometer should read 180° to 185°F.

For turkey breast, Inset meat thermometer into thickest part of breast, not touching bone. When breast is done, the thermometer should read 170° to 175°F.

No meat thermometer? Press thickest part of drumstick with protected fingers. The turkey is done if meat feels soft and drumstick twists easily in socket.

Share holiday blessings with others

DEAR ABBY: Last year, on the night before Thanksgiving, after cleaning my house, putting a turkey in the oven and making some pies, I sat down to relax and read Dear Abby. In your column, you had suggested that people invite others to share Thanksgiving, particularly those whose families were far away and those who don't have family

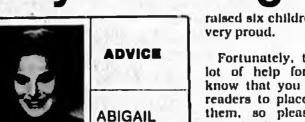

Abby, the time to run that column is well before Thanksgiving, so the people who receive the invitations will feel they are truly wanted and not just an afterthought. My husband teaches a Sunday school class for single adults. The last two years we have invited anyone who wants to come for Thanksgiving to our house. Each guest signs up to bring a specific dish, or drinks or paper goods. Last year we had 18 friends (including one couple whose family lives out of state, nine single adults and seven children). We had a wonderful time visiting, watching television and playing games.

Others in our church also extend invitations to out-of-state transplants and singles at Thanksgiving and Christmas. it's always a blessing - a wonderful opportunity to get to know them better. I encourage your readers to make room at their tables for Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner, God will richly reward you.

BECKI SIMMONS, METROPOLITAN CHURCH OF GOD, BIRMINGHAM, ALA. DEAR BECKI: I recall this biblical injunction: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." (Acts 20:35)

DEAR. ABBY: Twenty-five years ago, I became chief baby sitter, chauffeur, nurse, counselor and caretaker of my husband's three children. I had three of my own, so suddenly we were a family with four teens and two preteen children. We weren't exactly "The Brady Bunch," and it was the most

Bed rest best for Coxsackie virus

DEAR DR. GOTT: Have you any information about the Coxsackle virus that is never mentioned in this country but of which about 27 types have been reportedly identified? In Britain it is taken very seriously by the virologists. My son suffers from this condition, and it has resulted in his inability to walk more than a couple of blocks without utter fatigue, breathlessness and severe chest pain. Possible cardiovascular causes were naturally first exhaustively investigated and ruled out, with Coxsackie virus pinpointed as respondent to the contract of the contract of

DEAR READER: There are, as you pointed out, more than 30 strains of Coxsackle virus (first discovered in the upstate New York town of Coxsackie), and each specie can cause disease, ranging from mouth ulcerations to paralysis.

In fact, infection with the Coxsackie A7 virus resembles polio. Coxsackie viruses commonly cause heart inflammation. Other virus-induced disorders include rash, lung disease, meningitis, conjunctivitis, chest pain, fatigue and headache. The viruses are often recognized in the U.S., as well as other countries.

The diagnosis is made by blood tests or by isolating the virus from tissues or body fluids.

There is no treatment for Coxsackie virus infection, which tends to run its course with time. Bed rest is helpful; complications are treated as they arise.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a black male who cross trains using weights and jogging. The pigmentation around my mouth decreases and the pigmentation on the side of my face increases simultaneously when I increase physical activity. This has been going on for about 13 years: however, it has elevated in intensity for the last two. It only takes weeks of great physical activity to appear, but months of inactivity to fade. Why?

DEAR READER: You have stumped me completely. I do not know the cause of your

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Today's deal features a deduction of debatable dogma and a false-card of faithful flawless-

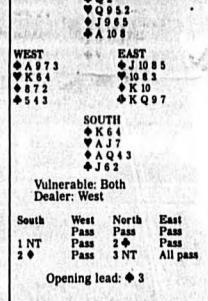

In the world championship match between the Netherlands and Poland, both Wests led the spade three against three notrump. After declarer wins with dummy's queen, his best play is a low diamond to the queen. When it wins, he should cash the ace next, since he is short of dummy entries.

The Dutch declarer, Enri Leufkens, made this play, but for a different reason. He assumed. with scant mathematical validity, that as West held only four spades, he probably had 4-3-3-3 distribution; and East had 4-3-2-4. With another four-card suit, West might have led that one instead. After the spade queen, a diamond to the queen and the diamond ace, dropping East's king. Leufkens entered dummy with a diamond. He finessed his heart jack and, with the favorable lie of the heart suit. was assured of nine tricks.

The Polish declarer didn't play by the book. Instead, after winning with the spade queen, he led the diamond jack: king, ace, seven. Now South should have cashed the diamond queen, trying to drop the 10 from either opponent. But West's mandatory false-card had given declarer a losing option, which lured him to destruction.

South continued with the heart jack from hand, which held. Then he played the ace and another heart. West won with the king and switched to a club. Declarer won with dummy's ace and led the diamond nine, hoping to pin the eight in West's hand. As you can see, it didn't work and he finished two down.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede YOUR BIRTHDAY Nov. 20, 1993

In the year ahead ventures or endeavors which you operate independent of others could be remarkably successful. Don't bring associates into the act unless they can offer something you can't.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In order to be an effective leader today, you must delegate some of your authority instead of trying to cling to it. You make an unattractive dictator. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you, Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not negatively prejudge people or developments today. If you do. you might unconsciously create conditions that could make things worse or invite turbulence.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you're pretty good at sizing up opportune situations or trends. Today, however, this faculty might be dormant instead of active. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's important today you realize the world is not operating on your schedule or time table. Don't procrastinate where duties and responsibilities are concerned.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is not a good day to make presentations to others regarding things on which you are not 100 percent sold yourself. Your disbellef will be readily perceived.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You were born with an inquisitive nature and usually friends don't find your curiosity offensive, but if you ask too many probing questions today, it could perturb companions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're capable of noteworthy achievements today, but those in your cadre might not be. Don't lessen your effectiveness with weak allies.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If your boss wants things done a certain way today, comply with his/her wishes instead of striking out on your own. You're in a no-win arrangement. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unless you've tested the system. product or thing for yourself, it's best not to pass yourself off as an authority. It you don't know what you're talking about, mistakes could result.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today if you make a definite commitment, follow it through to its end, even if it inconveniences you in the process. Others mustn't think your word cannot be relied upon.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today if you have to work in close conjunction with others, make it a harmonious experience and not a competitive one. Individual interests must be replaced by a collective one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Instead of going on a spending spree today, analyze your expenditures to see if you can economize. Your earning potential is good, but your extravagance is detrimental.
