Analysis Finds Peacock Pit Odors 'Foul'

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

The standing water in the Peacock pit off Art Lane just outside Sanford's city limits "is foul," Ken Hooper, Seminole County Environmental Services director, said today.

But, whether the water is hazardous to the health of nearby property owners or is polluting the water table is beyond the scope of the chemical analysis done by the county department,

"We ran tests to determine ph (acidity level), conductivity and hydrogen sulfide level," Hooper said, none of which would answer the questions of health hazard or pollution.

"The water is foul and smells and has solids," Hooper's chemists observed.

Last week during an inspection of the property by state Department of Environmental Regulation officers, Hooper and personnel from his office, Hooper said, John McManamy, a DER environmental specialist, took water samples from the

Hooper said McManamy shared the samples with him and then never called back to give instructions on what he wanted done with them. Hooper said the first time he knew that his department was to analyze the samples was when he read it in a quote from a DER official Monday in The Evening Herald. "Nobody from DER told us what they wanted us to do," the county official said. Meanwhile, Len Kozlov, enforcement director at the DER's Orlando office, said the sample may have been sent to the agency's laboratory in Tallahassee for analysis.

Bob Patton, a chemist at DER's laboratory in Tallahassee, said he would need more information about the sample before he could acknowledge whether it has been received or not. Hooper explained that his Seminole County office has a local program with DER. "When complaints come in, we investigate and turn the results over to DER. We act as their eyes and ears, but we have no enforcement powers," Hooper

Hooper said the Art Lane problem has been around for a long time and his office has been regularly turning in reports to Kozlov and McManamy said earlier this week that they had requested the pit's owners to pull the matter from the hole for DER examination.

Kozlov sald Ralph H. Peacock, one of the owners, was asked by the state agency not to allow the dumping of any more materials at the site and that a warning notice was to be mailed to Peacock at his Longwood address Monday or

If Peacock ignores the warning, legal action could be taken against him through DER's administrative section or DER could ask the circuit court for an injunction to stop the dum-

Mrs. Peacock said problems over the fill operation and complaints by nearby property owners "are getting to me and making me sick."

She said Monday she and her husband had an appointment with their lawyer Monday afternoon.

Wednesday, Mrs. Peacock said that neither she nor her husband have any further comments.

Hidden Lake property owners in early December complained pungent orders from the Peacock fill operation bring tears to the eyes and causes nausea in some.

Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said the stench from the pit is similar to that around pulp and paper mills. Peacock explained he, his wife and his nephew, James L. Duls Jr., purchased a 10-acre tract a couple years ago which included a 24 to 3-acre abandoned clay pit. In a "beautification" effort, Peacock said, he was allowing discarded building materials to be dumped at the site to fill in the pit filled with water for a depth of 10-12 feet. After the pit is filled, he said, he plans to plant trees and landscape there.

He said he believed after water in the pit is filled with the discarded building materials and covered with dirt the objectionable smells will disappear.

Peacock said he and his nephew plan ultimately to build homes on other parts of the property.

The environmental section of the Seminole County Health Department said the fumes did not present a health hazard.

State Road 436. A state Department of Transportation official said there may be relief during the Christmas shopping season from the massive traffic jams predicted during the two years of construction on Seminole County's busiest highway. Henry Fuller, engineer with DOT's DeLand district office, said work on the project could be scheduled to relieve traffic snarts during the Christmas holidays.

Two additional lanes will be built on the highway between Boston Avenue and Douglas and Wymore Roads, the most heavily traveled portion of SR 436. More than 50,000 cars travel that portion of the road daily, according to county traffic counts.

Altamonte Springs officials have scheduled a meeting with DOT officials for Monday afternoon in DeLand to discuss ways to alleviate traffic snarls expected during con-

Altamonte Springs city commissioners and Seminole County commissioners this week approved similar resolutions asking DOT to consider alternative construction

The project is expected to take from 18 to 24 months and continue through at least one Christmas season.

"We auggested several possibilities," Altamonte Springs City Manager Jeff Etchberger said. He said the work could be done at night when the traffic on SR 436 is at a minimum or an incentive could be given for the contractor to speed up

"The whole thing is related to congestion and public safety," Etchberger said.

Jones Calls For Delay Of July Income Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Calling the income-tax cuts the "Achilles' heel of Reaganomics," House Budget Committee Chairman Jim Jones says this year's 10 percent tax cut should be deferred until the government can afford it..

The cut, the last in the tax program President Reagan pushed through Congress in 1981, is scheduled to go into effect July 1.

Jones, D-Okla., said the tax cuts robbed the government of tax revenue at the same time Reagan was increasing defense spending at a rapid rate.

He said delaying the tax cut, cutting defense spending growth, and reducing - not just postponing cost-of-living increases for Social Security and other benefit programs could lead to a balanced federal budget by 1988.

Reagan On P.R. Offensive

BOSTON (UPI) - With a quick lesson in computer technology and a swig of a beer, President Reagan stepped up a mid-term public relations offensive geared to the main themes of his State of the Union address to Congress.

Reagan flew to heavily Democratic Massachussetts Wednesday, his first trip to the state since becoming president, ostensibly to promote two recent initiatives: public-private job training and the potential of high

But while the day may not have been heavy on substance, it was filled with political images - so much, in fact, one Reagan aide likened it to "a d. f on the campaign trail."

One of the few exceptions came when Reagan, in remarks to executives of high-tech firms, hinted broadly it might be time to abolish the corporate income tax, a levy he called "very hard to justify."

Mubarak Seeks Assurances

But after weeks of negotiations, the talks on troop withdrawals are at a standstill — and so is Reagan's Sept. 1 plan calling for the Palestinians to live on the West Bank in association with Jordan.

He noted that this is an effort to bring the city government closer to the people and to get Sanford citizens involved.

Seminole Mapping Move Into Old SMH

Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County department heads and the county's architect are holding conferences to map preliminary plans for moving county offices into the old Seminole Memorial Hospital (SMH) building.

Director of Public Services and Development John Percy said Helman Hurley Charvat Peacock-Architects have been meeting with department heads for the past two weeks to ensure that offices are allocated to meet the needs of each department.

The preliminary plans, which should assign offices to each county employee who will be located in the old SMH building and diagram the basic design of the offices, are expected to be completed by the end of February.

The County Commission, its staff agencies, the supervisor of elections, property appraiser and tax collector are expected to move into the building, which will be renamed the County Services Building.

The structure currently bearing that name, the Roumillat Building at the corner of First Street and Park Avenue in Sanford, will be renamed the State Attorney Building, Percy said. The State Attorney's office will take over the building when other county offices vacate it later this year.

But one office which will not be moving to the old SMH building is the Clerk of Courts' finance office.

The office was scheduled to move but County Clerk Arthur Beckwith Jr. told commissioners he needed the office to remain close by. "He consults with the finance office on an hourly basis," County Administrator T. Duncan Rose said. Rose told commissioners they have the authority to assign county space. "We feel while it would be advisable to have them over there, we can live without it."

But commissioners said they would not force the finance office to move into the old hospital.

Unemployment And A Recovery United Press International Treasury Secretary Donald Regan predicts unemployment, now at 10.8 percent, will average a "distressing" 10.9 percent this year - but the economy will improve The difficulties of Americans has spurred the citizens of Hannover, West Germany, to collect $6,250 for people in Most of the aid was contributed by German auto workers concerned about the plight of their American counterparts in Detroit, where the slump in the U.S. auto industry has left tens of thousands jobless. The bad times in Detroit, a huge customer of the steel industry, are reflected in the announcement by Bethlehem Steel of a $1.14 billion quarterly loss — the largest ever for an American company. In an appearance before Congress Wednesday, Regan

"The economy now stands poised for recovery. In fact, the recovery may well already be under way at this moment." But he said his office predicts a "distressing" unemployment rate likely to average 10.9 percent this year, declining in future years. He said the administration projects "modest" economic growth of about 3 percent by the end of 1983 - about half the normal recession recovery rate - picking up to the 4 percent range in 1984 and beyond. In Bethlehem, Pa., the Bethlehem Steel Corp. announced it lost $1.15 billion in the fourth quarter and $1.47 billion in 1982 - the most red ink the firm has ever recorded and the largest quarterly loss of any company in U.S. history. The Labor Department reported in Washington productivity of the nation's shrinking work force climbed at an annual rate of 2.7 percent in the fourth quarter of 1982, but was up only 0.2 percent for the entire year. Recession layoffs cut the hours worked by 2.6 percent for the year. For workers, the increase in raises for 1982 was 7.3

percent, compared to a 9.6 percent gain in 1981. At a Treasury Department briefing, it was announced the government will raise a record $8.7 billion in new cash in the money markets through March, part of $59.5 billion in anticipated borrowing.

The otherwise routine announcement was highlighted by a note of unaccustomed drama, as Treasury Undersecretary for Monetary Affairs Beryl Sprinkel declared, "I am not intending to resign."

Sprinkel has been embroiled in a dispute with Treasury Secretary Regan which erupted after a Jan. 17 news conference in which Sprinkel told reporters in Paris American policy was changing from one to control inflation to one that Another Treasury Department source said Sprinkel had been "ambushed" by the foreign press and thought he was repeating statements already made by Regan, not contradicting administration policy.

Gov. Graham Considering Road, School Tax Hikes

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Gov. Bob Graham already is lobbying for a gasoline tax increase to provide more money for roads and he says he may fight for other tax hikes for education.

Better education requires more money, among other things, and he will recommend tax increases to provide it if state budget analysts don't conclude that the economy will recover from the recession soon and revenues from current taxes will grow significantly.

He did not say disclose what is under consideration, but lobbyist Charlie Reed, deputy planning director Glenn Robertson and chief Cabinet aide Jere Moore said the possibilities include an increase in the required local property effort for public schools, which would mean a property tax hike for many counties: elimination of some sales tax exemptions; and a boost in the corporate profits tax.

Carter, Kissinger At UF?

GAINESVILLE (UPI) - Hoping to attract a "certified national intellectual" to replace outgoing University of Florida President Robert Marston, a list of 56 possible replacements - including former President Jimmy Carter and ex-secretary of state Henry Kissinger - has been assembled.

Former Attorney General Griffin Bell, ex-Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Elliott Richardson, who held several Cabinet posts under Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, also are amongithe nominees.

Death Linked To Tax Fight

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - A man whose restaurant was closed by the Internal Revenue Service has apparently committed suicide, the Leon County Sheriff's Department said.

Sheriff's spokesman Dick Simpson said Eugene Patronis, 39, was discovered by his wife and a friend Wednesday in his garage with a car engine running. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Patronis was the manager of the F&T restaurant, which his father founded in 1932. Federal agents locked its doors Monday for alleged non-payment of taxes.

Israel considers the outposts the No. 1 demand, outweighing Lebanon's concern over foreign forces.

Walesa Back On Payroll

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) - Polish prelate Jozef Glemp flew to Rome today to receive a cardinal's hat amid charges the Western media have built a "bad climate" around Pope John Paul II's scheduled June trip to his homeland.

In the northern seaport of Gdansk, Lech Walesa, the former leader of the disbanded Solidarity union, said Wednesday he has been put back on the payroll of the Lenin shipyard but had no word on when he could get his old job back.

Deadly Red Tide Is Linked To Asthma

TAMPA (UPI) - Researchers have linked the red tide organisms that periodically turn Gulf of Mexico waters reddish-brown and litter Florida beaches with dead fish to asthma attacks

Until recently, the foul aroma of rotting fish had been blamed for eye and respiratory distress suffered by some residents in coastal areas hit by the red tide. Researchers now believe toxins released by red tide microorganisms are the villain.

Scientists at the University of South Florida and the James A. Haley VA Hospital in Tampa say laboratory tests indicate airborne toxins from red tide cause a muscle in the windpipe to contract, triggering an asthma attack.

"We are trying to identify exactly what it (toxin) is," said Dr. Richard F. Lockey. director of the Division of Allergy and Immunology of the USF College of Medicine.

Lockey said the toxin used in tes.3 on animals was obtained by growing the organisms in the lab, grinding them up and running them through a centrifuge. He said in nature, researchers think the toxin is sent into the air by wave action.

"When the bloom is flourishing, the thrashing of the waves gives off an aerosol that blows onto the beach, causing itchy eyes, teariness, running noses and coughing in normal people," Lockey said. "Asthmatics are very susceptible and it makes them wheeze."

Lockey added that additional research is needed to prove beyond any doubt that it is toxins from red tide organism, and not some other material like rotting fish, that trigger asthma attacks.

"That's the missing link," he said. "We have not made the connection. That has to be done at the beach. We do not have sufficient quantities in the lab."

Lockey said the research work at the beach will be done by scientists at the Mote Marine Laboratory in Sarasota when an outbreak of red tide occurs.

"We have shown that the red tide toxin causes asthma attacks in animals and now we need to show how it gets into the air." Lockey said. "That is the lasting and ultimate proof we need.

"We have made the connection between red tide and asthma attacks in animals but we have not made the link between humans and red tide toxins," he said. "But we still feel the implications from our work is very, very important."

Lockey said a survey of patients with bronchial asthmas who were known to have been exposed to red tide toxins during past outbreaks revealed most suffered attacks after the exposure.

There have been many items isolated as triggering asthma attacks, Lockey said, but this research pinpoints a previously unknown

"We have discovered a new mechanism which could be involved in asthma. This is an on-going project. In the past 10 to 12 years, we have made a lot of progress, but there is a long way to go," he said.

Researchers at Mote Marine Lab have been working with red tide for a number of years and one thrust of their research is how to control or prevent red tide outbreaks.

Dr. William Taft of Mote Marine said recently that lab tests have shown a pea-green marine micro-organism known as Gomphosphaeria aponina was found to be lethal to the larger red tide organism, known as Ptychodiscus brevis.

Taft said researchers hope to be able to test the effect of the anti-red tide organism in open Gulf waters by the end of the year.

One problem researchers face is coming up with enough of the G. aponina organisms to combat a red tide outbreak in open waters,

When an outbreak of red tide litters coastal waters with dead fish, many people may suffer asthma attacks. Researchers say a toxin from the red tide may cause the respiratory problems.

and another is how to disperse them.

Red tide occurs periodically in Gulf waters, and occasionally along Florida's Atlantic Coast line and in the northeast. So far, scientists have not developed a way to accurately predict when an outbreak will occur or learn what causes an outbreak to end.

"The crucial thing is that if we predict a red tide bloom is going to hit in two weeks, we've got to have a culture we can produce in two weeks," Taft said. "If we have a culture that takes two months to produce, we can't do a thing about the outbreak.

"So far, there has been no explanation of why red tide blooms stop," Taft said, adding it may be the result of sufficient amounts of G. aponina being present in the outbreak area.

The G. aponina organism was discovered during lab work by Dr. Dean F. Martin at USF, who sent samples to Taft's researchers in the summer of 1981.

Martin said G. aponina caused the red tide organisms to go into a "resting state."

Jury Suggests Life Term For Killer Ramos

Despite pleas from prosecutors for the death penalty, a Seminole County jury recommended a life sentence for a Cuban immigrant convicted in the rapeslaving of a Cocoa housewife.

Circuit Judge William Woodson said Wednesday he will set sentence for Juan Ramos, 25, within six weeks Woodson has the option of overturning the jury's recommendation.

The exact vote of the 12member panel was not required and prosecutors did not ask for a poll, said Woodson. In a sentence recommendation, only a majority vote is necessary. The jury Tuesday found Ramos guilty of first-degree murder in the stabbing death of Susan Cobb, 27.

Mrs. Cobb was beaten. raped and stabbed 17 times in her home April 23. An 11-inch butcher knife was left embedded in her chest.

"The knife was there as one final touch to Juan Ramos' masterpiece," prosecutor Chris White told the jury.

Prosecutors maintained during the seven-day trial that Ramos, who lived a block from Mrs. Cobb, was infatuated with the woman.

He often told co-workers he wanted to have sex with her and feigned an interest in Mrs. Cobb and her husband as a trick to get into her home, White said.

Ramos killed her when she refused his advances. White ### one rural area and the state of Alabama are suffering increases in infant mortality rates that is being blamed on the recession and

government budget cuts. The Food Research and Action Center, a Washington-based study group, released

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Six Southern cities, statistics on infant mortality it said it gathered in a national telephone survey. "After years of steady progress, infant mortality rates are going up once again statewide in seven of the states surveyed, and in 34 local areas," said Nancy Amidel, the group's director. "That shouldn't be happening," she added. "Something is bad wrong."

The group said cities especially hard-hit by the recession tended to have higher death rates for infants.

Alahama was one of seven states, and the only one in the South, to record a rising infant mortality rate. The state suffered an increase from 12.9 deaths per one thousand live births in 1981 to 14.8 deaths in 1982.

Also recording increases from 1960-81 were Jacksonville, and Gadsden County, Fla.; Raleigh, N.C.; Memphis and Nashville, Tenn.; and Norfolk and Roanoke, Va. Statistics from 1982 were not available for the cities. The infant mortality rate in Jacksonville has been rising steadily since 1979 when it was 8.6 per thousand infants. In 1980 it increased to 14.7 and 1981 figures showed 15.7 deaths per thousand. Gadsden County, Fla., the only rural area in the South mentioned in the report, increased 16.4 in 1981.

Raleigh's infant mortality rate was 13.5 deaths per thousand in 1979. It increased to 16.4 in 1980 and jumped again to 18.8 in 1981. Memphis also suffered a rise for the second straight year, from 15.5 in 1979 to 16.3 in 1980 to

In Nashville, the rate jumped from 12.5 in 1980 to 13.6 in 1981. Norfolk was another city suffering a second straight annual increase. The rate was 14 deaths per one thousand live births in 1979, 15.1 in 1980 and 16.7 in 1961. Roanoke recorded 11.9 deaths per one thousand in 1980 and 15 in 1981. The statistics count infants who die during the first year of life. The national rate is currently 11.7 per one thousand births.

The report said two-thirds of the infant deaths are associated with low birth weight, or infants weighing less than 51/2 pounds at birth. Also, the death rate for minority infants is at least twice as high as the rates for whites.

"More bables are being born with very low birth weights and more babies are dying because their mothers lacked basic food and health care," said Ms. Amidei.

"The tragedy behind these figures is that we have the knowledge and the programs that could make a difference," ahe said, adding that many of them have already been the victims of Reagan administration budget cuts.

Ms. Amidei called on the administration to restore full funding for the programs, which include Medicaid, maternal and child health from 16.5 deaths per thousand live births in services, in fiscal 1984.

Dropping Japanese Trade Barriers

The recent meeting between President Reagan and Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone in the White House made it clear to the head of the Japanese government that further steps must be taken to open the Japanese domestic market to American imports.

But it probably also made clear to the head of our government that these steps can be taken only at great political cost to the responsible Japanese officials.

The barriers that protect the Japanese market are not going to crumble quickly or easily. They cannot be dynamited. They must come down, block by block.

The Japanese farmers are not about to plow up their rice paddies, cut down their citrus groves and slaughter all their beer-fed beef cattle simply because their costs of production are far higher than the cost of importing rice, oranges and beef from the United States.

Moreover, the Japanese retail distribution system is highly complex and inefficient, by our standards. It protects the small merchants, who are often retired working people, from competition. It works against foreign imports, but practical politicians cannot ignore the selfish interests of the many small shopkeepers.

Our retail market, the most attractive in the world to Japanese manufacturers, must remain open. But that will be impossible unless the Japanese move faster to open up their market to

The pressure is on. The Japanese leaders must realize that they have to make a decision - either drop their protectionism or face protectionist reprisal.

We must realize that the barriers aren't going to come down overnight. It will take time. We must apply a strong and steady pressure and be patient.

Farm Foreclosures

We speak with some reluctance about the plight of Colorado and Ohio farmers who are losing their farms at foreclosure sales and are demanding a government moratorium on farm foreclosures.

The issue of debt moratoriums is not just a farm issue. In Pittsburgh, Pa., the sheriff of Allegheny County has refused to carry out lawful court orders to auction off a number of homes for default of mortgage payments.

This kind of action is compassionate but unjust. The simplest definition of justice is the payment of one's debts. And, when payments are not made, creditors are entitled to foreclose.

In the case of farmers, the price of farmland has been increasing for a long time, despite sagging farm income. Many are the farmers who, after complaining for years about low prices and poor crops, have sold out and become instant millionaires. Land prices have soared unrealistically high, burdening farmers with more debt than they can manage to repay. Some farmers have paid too much for land. Others have mortgaged their land too heavily and cannot refinance, now that farmland prices have started to decline. High interest rates have compounded

The only way to get land prices down to a realistic and economic level is to have some forced sales. Individuals who are overextended or inefficient or simply unlucky will have to suffer. They are entitled to compassionate help, but not to a general debt moratorium. That sounds cruel, but it is, we believe, inevitable.

Government should stand aside and let the free market work its will.

BERRY'S WORLD

"... And now, ladies and gentlemen, the State of the Union ... "

Mary Ann Campbell, a reporter for the Orlando Sentinel for more than 20 years, died this week. It was an end to her tough battle with cancer and several years of grief in her life.

First her eldest son, John, who had suffered with asthma all his life, died leaving a widow and two small children. And then Malvin, her husband for most of her adult life, succumbed to

The toughest part for her had to have been her continuing on after Mal's death. Anyone who was close at all to Mary Ann knew of her absolute devotion and great admiration for her husband that grew stronger over their many years together.

As a professional journalist, she was dedicated to reporting the whole truth as she saw it. She was a tough competitor and a joy to work around and with.

Mary Ann came from the old school of news reporters. She learned the job by doing it, working as a correspondent for some years covering the mundane but important local news of churches, the schools and the happenings among people in her community of Winter Springs before she went full time with the Sen-

Her endless list of friends ran the gamut from the well-known to the unknown. She will be missed and remembered by many.

Former County Commissioner Bob French of Casselberry is known as a nice guy, but few know that even wild creatures kind of like him.

About three weeks ago, he saw a hole in a planter at the edge of the patio at his home. A few days ago, he discovered that it wasn't a frog that dug the hole. It was an about-to-be mother

The creature gave birth to nine bunnles in the hole. She's obviously perfectly at home in the planter and doesn't mind at all for Bob and his family to watch as she nurses her young.

When she leaves the nest for times, she covers her babies with fur and her nest would be hard to find if one doesn't know it's there, French said.

Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore had little sympathy this week for County Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather's request for a delay of a year to 18 months on beginning construction on his proposed life-care center.

The center is to be built on formerly city owned property, adjacent to the Evening Herald Building, fronting on Lake Monroe.

The city sold the 81/2 acre tract to Feather on the condition that he begin construction by

March 1, this year. The city could decide to exercise a reverter and purchase back the property if the development plan is not followed.

Edgerton VanDenBerg, an Orlando attorney representing Feather asked for the extension, saying Feather could not get financing because of the reverter clauses, adding Feather would file a development plan for a sales office, a model complex and other facilities if he were required to adhere to the March 1 deadline.

Moore said Feather had promised an i3-story tower and he didn't consider the sales office an appropriate replacement for the tower. He said Feather had promised to make periodic reports on his progress and hadn't done so.

"You're asking us on blind faith to extend the contract for a year. The Commission's been reasonable, but I don't think it's been a two-way street," Moore said.

The mayor said the Commission had walked the extra mile and should not be expected to make a decision immediately.

The Commission delayed acting on the request until its Feb. 14 meeting. In the interim the state is to either grant a certificate of need for the project or to reject Feather's request. The certificate is necessary for Feather to build and operate his planned facility.

Pursuing Support Prematurely

By DONNA ESTES

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (NEA) - Like voters in other states, even the most dedicated political activists here in California aren't especially enthusiastic about becoming immersed in another presidential campaign at this early date.

But that lack of interest hasn't deterred the growing band of aspirants for the Democratic presidential nomination from the pursuit of a political prize which won't be awarded until the summer of 1984.

Thus, when the California Democratic Party held its statewide convention here recently, no fewer than seven potential presidential candidates were on hand to address the delegates, entertain them at parties and solicit their support.

When the delegates were surveyed in two separate straw polls to ascertain their candidate preference, the results were inconclusive at best and misleading at worst. Although those surveys strongly suggested that the delegates (many of them political leaders in their own communities) are in no hurry to commit themselves, that didn't stop the candidates from organizing elaborate political operations.

There were "boiler rooms" equipped with banks of telephones to contact delegates in their hotel rooms, "whip systems" to transmit the candidates' desires to followers on the convention floor, and a surfeit of political operatives prowling hotel lobbies and convention hall corridors.

Four of the candidates - former Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Sens. Alan Cranston of California, John Glenn of Ohio and Gary Hart of Colorado - hosted parties for not only the 1,726 delegates but also an approximately equal number of hangers-on, alternates and spouses.

The politicians are hardly limiting their frenzied campaigning to California. At one of the numerous press conferences held during the three-day convention, a Cranston aide boasted that the senator "has been to New Hampshire more times than all the other candidates combined."

Hart, another typically recentless campaigner, arrived here with a schedule that included 11 meetings with various interest groups and politicians during a three-hour period on the first evening of the convention.

The Asian-Pacific Caucus was allocated exactly 13 minutes of Hart's time, while the Women's Caucus and Black Caucus qualified for 15 minutes each. The Hispanic Caucus received a relatively generous 20 minutes, but the Labor Caucus, Gay-Lesbian Caucus and Rural Caucus had to settle for only 10 minutes

Cranston, determined to make a showing befitting his status as one of the state's leading politicians and to alter the widespread perception that he is not a serious presidential contender, devoted the entire six days prior to the convention to a tour of California organized for the sole purpose of meeting more than half of the convention delegates. "There's a lot of pressure from people saying we've got to make Alan look good in his home state," explained one party insider.

DON GRAFF

Human Capital Defended

If you can tear your attention away from the details of the great arms debate in Washington long enough, there's a basic question that deserves at least a few minutes consideration:

Granting the national necessity of a massive defense establishment, what are we ultimately defending?

It is a question that is at the heart of recent remarks by Alan Pifer, outgoing president of the Carnegie Corp. Pifer is retiring after 17 years at the head of the foundation created by Andrew Carnegie in 1911 for the advancement and diffusion of knowledge and understanding.

Pifer's remarks introduce the Carnegie annual report, and they are unusual in that they focus not on the condition of the corporation but state of the society in which it functions.

Pifer views that with both sorrow and hope. Sorrow because of a "short-sighted and uncharitable spirit" he sees at work in current efforts to dismantle social programs established not only to help those unable to help themselves but to develop the nation's human potential.

"It took years to summon up the national will to put these programs in place," Pifer observes, "and now they are being torn down with a degree of haste and thoughtlessness that is truly astonishing."

Not, he fears, without considerable cost to individuals and society.

The dismantling comes at a time of nuajor alterations in the American population. With a declining fertility rate, fewer Americans are being born proportionate to the total population, which puts a higher premium on the smaller numbers who are the future of the "Human capital formation," Pifer terms it, and waste through inadequate nutrition, health care, education and motivation can no longer be afforded. Especially among minority communities. Blacks and Hispanics, because of their higher fertility rates are contributing proportionately more young Americans to the limited number of productive workers. Making the most of them is a national challenge. It will not be met by a nostalgic return to laissez faire. Trickle down from reduced taxes and an expanding economy offers no magic way to meet social needs without having to pay costs. "Economic growth has never by itself guaranteed that the necessary investment will be made in broad human resource development," Pifer writes. "Nor has such growth ever raised substantial numbers of those at the bottom of society out of poverty."

Neither can the states and private agencies compensate for a federal abdication of social responsibilities. The former do not have the resources and the latter, while vital to a healthy society, cannot begin to substitute for government — a point which Pifer, as head of a philanthropic agency with assets approaching $400 million, can make with some authority.

He sees Americans at a fork in the road, and here is where he also takes hope. Taking one fork, they would be guided by principle that a federal social role is wrong and unaffordable in conjunction with a strong defense capability. It should be restricted to the fewest "deserving poor" - the very old, ill and physically handicapped.

But Pifer does not expect Americans to take that fork. Rather, they will opt for the other, realizing that a vigorous federal social role is fundamental to a stable society, to the development of its human resources and ultimately to its security.

Back to the great debate, what we must immediately defend is, of course, our very existence. But beyond that, it is the quality of a society that depends upon the advancement of all of its people not as a matter of social justice but of practical necessity.

Ignoring this fundamental truth would be, in Pifer's words, "more dangerous for this nation than any alleged missile gap or other shortcoming in armaments."

Salmonella Vaccine Near

ATLANTA (UPI) - Medical researchers have found a way to prevent the bacteria that causes salmonellosis, including typhoid fever, from growing in host tissue, paving the way for development of a vaccine against this widespread disease.

Most human salmonella infections in this country result in "food poisoning," a selflimiting intestinal disorder which lasts only a few days, and would not warrant vaccination, says Stanford University researcher and microbiologist Susan Hoiseth.

But one particular type of the bacteria, salmonella typhi, causes typhoid fever, a much more serious disease. While typhoid fever is no longer common in the United States, it is still a serious problem in many parts of the world.

"In this country, salmonellosis continues to be a major problem in farm animals and it is an often fatal disease of calves, resulting in large economic losses," says Hoiseth.

The Journal of the American Veterinary Association recently estimated that the diseases caused by salmonella bacteria resulted in losses to the poultry industry of $77 million annually, $53 million to livestock, and $625 million in human productivity. It is one of the major diseases transmissible from animal to man.

There are many different types of the saknonella bacteria, but Holseth says a vaccine could be made for just about any strain desired.

Results of the research by Hoiseth and Dr. Bruce Stocker, professor of medical microbiologyat Stanford, were presented at a recent meeting of the American Society for Microbiology in Atlanta. "Injection of vaccines made from killed salmonella bacteria has never been very effective, whereas the use of live but nonvirulent organisms gave much better protection," said Hoiseth.

"The problem has been to find or make salmonella strains which would elicit immunity but which cannot themselves cause disease by multiplying in the vaccinated subject, or regain virulence by mutation."

Using modern genetic engineering techniques, Stocker and Hoiseth created a specific block in the genetic makeup of the bacterium, preventing it from getting a required nutrient, folic acid, which is needed by all living organisms. Without the folic acid, the bacterium could not multiply. The result was a live but non-virulent salmonella vaccine.

The vaccine, according to Hoiseth, has already been sucessfully tested in mice and has been used to protect calves against infection by a virulent salmonella organism.

The vaccine the two researchers developed "is pretty much ready to go," according to Hoiseth. Before it can be generally used, however, it must go through extended human field trials and licensing procedures.

A second paper presented at the microbiology conference indicated the bacterium strains that cause typhoid fever require two nutrients to grow and become virulent, both of which could be blocked. These strains may prove suitable as live vaccines for prevention of typhoid fever, the researchers said.

JACK ANDERSON She Can Work, Says Social Security

WASHINGTON — In the past two years, 86,000 mentally impaired Americans have lost their Social Security disability benefits and have been cast adrift in a world that is sometimes beyond their cognition.

This is the tragic story of just one of them: Kathleen McGovern. Her fragile world of TV soap operas and dependence on others began to crumble in August 1981. That's when she learned that her $297-a-month disability payments would be cut off. Social Security Administration bureaucrats had decided she could hold a job and support herself.

Mrs. McGovern was stunned by the decision. Since 1973, she had been consistently diagnosed as a paranoid schizophrenic; she had been hospitalized at least eight times thereafter. Deemed unable to work, she became one of hundreds of thousands of mentally impaired individuals receiving Social Security disability benefits.

The agency failed to inform the 40-year-old woman that her appear shown have been handled immediately by a judge. Instead, she was subjected to an improper, seven-month "reconsideration" process.

As the SSA now admits, "Mrs. McGovern's case was mishandled in terms of recognizing the applicable appeal procedure." Worse was to come. Because of a "transcription error," McGovern's file incorrectly noted the date on which she had first become eligible for benefits.

Twice during her appeal process - once in an interview with a doctor paid by the Social Security Administration - McGovern gave indications that she was considering suicide because of the cutoff. But the agency did nothing. (Belatedly, the agency conceded that it "should have secured more information about Mrs. McGovern's mental condition.") In December 1981, the doctor made these diagnostic notations on McGovern's condition: "Totally dependent. Unmotivated. Cannot shop for self. Cannot prepare meals except very rudimentary items."

Despite this clear evidence of McGovern's helplessness, the government used the doctor's report as the basis for its conclusion two weeks later that there were "no marked restrictive qualities to her day-to-day living." (The agency now admits that "in light of the conflicting statements it is clear that further investigation was warranted.")

Last February, McGovern lost her appeal. Judged by a perfunctory review of her vocational skills, she was deemed capable of working as a waitress. The evidence that led to this decision included "wage records showing several years' experience as a waitress, and a description of the job of waitress as it appears" in government dictionary of job titles.

After the government reaffirmed the denial of her disability benefits, McGovern was hospitalized briefly for depression. On June 2, she was found dead in her Philadelphia apartment. The coroner ruled her death due to natural causes.

Though it's too late to help McGovern, the Social Security Administration has modified the procedures it uses in its accelerated eligibility reviews. Some have been denounced by Commissioner John Svahn and, again, in a preliminary General Accounting Office investigation requested by Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa.

Also a federal judge in Minnesota. reviewing the Midwest Region's policy, issued a blistering attack on the bureaucrat's Dickensian penny-pinching procedures, calling them "arbitrary, capricious, irrational and an abuse of discretion."

Footnote: A Social Security spokesman told my associate Tony Capaccio that the agency's internal studies show that its termination decision have been correct 97 percent of the time. The decision in the McGovern case, now admittedly "mishandled," was one of those adjudged correct.

DAYTONA BEACH - Ray Ridenour was trying to be nice. The eccentric Daytona Beach basketball coach paused with 33 seconds to go in Wednesday night's Mid-Florida Conference game with Seminole Community College and yelled a few consoling words to Raider coach Bill Payne.

"Bill, you'll finish second," said Ridenour, "You'll beat those other teams. I've never seen a team with worse

Ridenour could have added - "Or with such a listless effort." But he was being nice which is what most coaches do after they thrash you by a 98-79 score.

"We just came out and had one of those confirmed Payne about the crucial 19-point blowout to the Scots.

"There wasn't much intensity and we panicked when we got behind. Our inside game was nonexistent."

It all came at a poor time. If the Raiders envisioned any dreams of overtaking conference leader Lake City, they may have vanished Wednesday night. The loss snapped a four-game losing streak and leaves the Raiders with a 5-2 league mark. They are 15-8 overall.

Lake City trounced Valencia to improve to 7-0. Daytona, a good club in its own right, is 4-3 and 17-5.

Payne wasn't too amused with Ridenour's remarks. "Ridenour thinks he's smarter than me, but he's not," said the first-year SCC coach. "The only second we got (sewed up) is the one we

Reagan: Bear Was Larger Than Life

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) - In the White House President Reagan eulogized Paul "Bear" Bryant as a hero larger than life, but in the city streets and country roads of Alabama he was much more than that.

"There was just always Bear," sobbed a 26-year-old department store clerk in Birmingham, "just like there was always Jesus."

The Alabama football coach, whose grim, craggy visage and hound's-tooth hat became a symbol of the indomitable will to win, died of a massive heart attack Wednesday, Just 28 days after retiring. He was 69.

where Bryant coached for 25 years, said, "The whole university stopped. All of Tuscaloosa should have stopped. As far as I am concerned, the whole planet should have stopped." Perhaps Bryant's greatest trait was his ability to motivate players but he also had his critics. He was was never considered a football innovator and many thought he was too slow to integrate his team. Bryant was accused of striking his players, calling the shots on what teams play in certain bowl games, and coaching dirty football.

After the 1962 season in which his team had a 7-4 record, far below Bryant standards, he announced his retirement Dec. 15, then coached the Crimson Tide for the last time Dec. 29, in a Liberty Bowl victory over Illinols.

Several years ago, when a reporter asked Bryant if he was considering retirement, he growled "Quit coaching? I'd croak

Bryant Succumbs To Heart Attack

Paul "Bear" Bryant not only won more games than any other college football coach in history, he also left an indelible impression on the game.

Bryant, 69, died of a massive heart attack Wednesday afternoon, less than six weeks after retiring as coach of Alabama. where he served for 25 of his 38 years as a college head coach. Bryant retired Dec. 15 with a 323-85-17 career record.

"He's going to be missed by an awful lot of people," said Ray Perkins, the former New York Glants' coach who was named as Bryant's successor at Alabama. "I don't know if there's another man who has been connected with football that's touched as many lives as he has. The man's meant so much to me and not just as a coach but as a person."

Perkins is one of at least 45 men who played for Bryant and went on to become head coaches in college and the pros. Jackie Sherrili, who also played under Bryant at Alabama, now coaches Texas A&M, where Bryant coached from 1954-57. "Coach Bryant was more of a father figure to me," Sherrill said. "... There's never been anyone who's touched as many players, people he's worked with ... or done as much for the game of college football. You know, it's funny, here's a man whose been so many years in the public eye and yet he has no enemies. What else can we say?"

John David Crow, the only Bryant-coached player to win the Heisman Trophy, called Bryant's death "a great personal loss for me."

"We were very, very close," said Crow, who won the Heisman as a Texas A&M running back in 1957, "It's really very difficult for me to say anything about something that hurts me and my family as much as this does.

"I can say I'm real proud and feel good about the fact I knew he knew how much I loved him and how much he did for us." Among those who expressed sorrow over Bryant's death were President Reagan and NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle. Reagan called Bryant "a hero who always seemed larger than life.

"He was a hard, but loved taskmaster. Patriotic to the core, devoted to his players and inspired by a winning spirit that would not quit, Bear Bryant gave his country the gift of a life unsurpassed. Embracing the impossible seemed easy, he lived what we strived to be," the president added.

Rozelle said Bryant left his imprint on professional football. "Bear Bryant left a major mark not only on collegiate football, but indirectly on the NFL, through his coaches and players," Rozelle said. "He will be deeply missed by all of us."

Joe Paterno, who guided Penn State to the national championship last season but lost all four of his career games against Bryant, called him "a man who set standards not easily attainable by men. He was a giant and we will miss

Former Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes said, "I shall miss him as a friend and as a great leader. The impact Coach Bryant had upon his players and his coaches was the greatest of any coach in football."

September, 1979. The cafeteria at Bryant Hall on the University of Alabama campus was brimming with laughter, jokes and talk of the football season to come as the Crimson Tide players sat down to their traditional pre-game steak dinner. All of a sudden. silence filled the once noisy dining hall. The reason, coach Bear Bryant had just entered the room.

At the time, I was a sports weiter for the University's newspaper, The Crimson White, and I was lucky enough to be assigned to cover the legendary coach and his team for the two years I was at Alabama. In those two years, Alabama won a lot of football games and a national title but what I learned from Bryant - the motivation and guidance — he provided his players will be carried far beyond the football field.

On Wednesday afternoon at 1:30, Bryant dled at Druid City Hospital (in Tuscaloosa, Ala.) of a massive heartattack only six weeks after he retired as coach of the Crimson Tide. He was football coach in college football history with 323 victories. The word

"winner" serves to describe Bryant better than any. He knew how to win and taught his disciples how to be winners at life.

Upon entering Legion Field in Birmingham for the first Alabama game I ever attended, I soon spotted the Bear in his familiar pose, lerning up against the goal post, scoping the stadium as the Tide warmed up for its encounter with the Baylor Bears. His presence could be felt by probably every one of the more than 78,000 fans packed in the stadium. Bear Bryant and Alabama football games were the biggest things in the state.

I followed Bryant and the Crimson Tide through a perfect 13-0 season and a victory in the Sugar Bowl over Arkansas which gave Alabama its second straight national title. In the two years I was associated with the Alabama football teams, one occasion stands out that attests to Bryant's compassion for the young people he worked with.

During the 1980 season, Alabama was playing Kentucky and Bryant was going for his 300th victory. During halftime our paper's photographer came up to the press box and said it was too hot on the field for him, so we ended up changing places.

Well, it was the first time I had ever used a camera during a game and while I was trying to focus during one play, all of a sudden Alabama's Major Ogilvle and two Kentucky defenders landed on top of me.

I was a little slow coming around and when I opened my eyes and looked up, there was Bryant standing above me. He looked at me and said, "Are you all right son?"

I'll never forget that moment and all the great times I spent with Bear and the Alabama football team. Just like hundreds of Bryant's players around the nation will carry with them always the memory of Bryant and the great

Cubs, White Sox Swap 6

CHICAGO (UPI) - Pitcher Dick Tidrow, traded from the Chicago Cubs across town to the Chicago White Sox, says his new team got a steal.

Tidrow, part of a six-player deal Wednesday, sald the Cubs gave up more than they got in handing the White Sox righthander Randy Martz, infielders Pat Tabler, who hit .342 and had 105 RBI with Iowa in the American Association, and Scott Fletcher; who hit .313 with 60 RBI at Iowa - plus himself.

The Cubs got lefthander Steve Trout, 6-9 last year with a 4.26 ERA, and righthander Warren Brusstar, 2-0 for the Sox with a 3.44 ERA after being acquired from Philadelphia Aug. 30.

"I think the White Sox got a steal," Tidrow said from his Kansas City home. "They got two pitchers for two pitchers and they got a real fine player in Tabler and a real good utility player in Fletcher.

Third Time A Charm As 'Noles Tip Boone

It took three tries, but the Seminole High Fighting Seminoles finally beat the Boone Braves. A fourth-quarter surge in which the Tribe built a 10-point lead vaulted coach Chris Marlette's squad to a 50-42 victory Wednesday night at Seminole High.

"We really earned this win," Marlette said about Seminole's seventh straight win. "Boone is a pressure team and our kids didn't fold. They really wanted this. win."

The Tribe, 15-7 overall and 8-1 in the Five Star Conference, made five more field goals than the Braves in the first half but Boone, 12-6 overall, managed to stay close by hitting three of six free throws in the last two minutes of the half. Seminole, which hit 13 of 21 shots, led 26-20 at Intermission. Boone made 8 of 11 shots in the first half.

Again in the second half. Boone managed to stay within striking distance by converting its charity tosses. A fourpoint Seminole lead was cut to one when Andrew Hungerford hit a layup and a free throw for a three-point play that made the score, 30-29.

Hungerford's free toss came at 4:10 in the third quarter, from that moment until 1:07 left in the game, the Braves did not make a shot from the field. Still, Boone managed to stay in the game by hitting 9 of 11 free throws in that span of time.

"We didn't get any breaks at all," Marlette said. "We thought we should have beaten them (Boone) the first two times but we didn't get many breaks in those two games."

Rickey Nooney scored two goals and had an assist as Seminole High's soccer team pulled off a 3-0 upset over Trinity Prep Wednesday night.

Bone Won't Sideline Von Schamann

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI) - Miami's Uwe von Schamann is determined that a little thing like a broken bone in his lower back isn't going to keep him out of Sunday's Super Bowl against the Washington Redskins.

Von Schamann, the Dolphins' kicker. sustained the injury two weeks ago in a playoff victory over San Diego. He rested all of last week before the Dolphins faced the Jets for the AFC championship and decided just before the game that he would be able to kick.

Miami won 14-0 and von Schamann needed to kick off only three times and attempt two extra points. He did not have to try a field goal.

But now the pain is back and von Schamann is faced with another week of doubt.

"I stayed away from kicking last week and my back felt good just before the game," he explained, "I told Coach (Don) Shula that it felt all right after the pre-game warmups and he gave me the go-ahead to kick. I was fine during the game. The adrenalin was flowing and I was feeling no pain.

"But it tightened up again now and I'm going to have to rest my back again all this week. What I plan on doing is taking it easy until Friday or Saturday - just resting it - and then work a little on

Von Schamann, a fourth-year pro from Oklahoma who beat out popular veteran Garo Yepremian as a rookie in 1979, is hoping the rest and heat treatment can get him through the title game.

"It's not really unbearable pain," he said, "but I do feel it pulling. It doesn't hurt so much that I can't stand it but it does hurt. I kicked under pretty bad circumstances (a muddy field) against the Jets and I'm confident I'll be ready. I used the longest cleats I could find for the most traction and if it rains this Sunday, I'll be prepared for it."

Von Schamann doesn't think the drastic reduction in practice over the last two weeks will bother his accuracy.

"Not at this stage of the season," he said. "I'm in good shape and I've done a lot of kicking. I usually only do about 35-40 kicks a day at most and maybe more near the end of the week when we work out with the special teams. But basically, I use a lot of weights during the week and do a lot of running to work on my legs.

"My legs are strong and I'm not concerned about the field goals. I kicked two against San Diego and also some extra points after the bone was broken in my back. I'm concerned about the kickoffs. That's where you really have to get your body into it and that's where all the stress goes into the back."

Riggins Reveals His Lighter Side

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Washington Coach Joe Gibbs had just delivered an eloquent speech Wednesday on the importance of changing a game plan every week when Mr. Predictable in the Redskins' offense stepped to the podium.

Fullback John Riggins, fielding questions while his teammates waited in a separate room, revealed the lighter side of quirky personality as he ended his personal news blackout four days before he hopes to snuff out Miami's lights in the Super Bowl.

Riggins comes into Sunday's matchup with a record three straight 100-yard rushing performances in the playoffs.

"Riggins gives their offense the strength you have to have to cause defense problems," said Miami Coach Don Shula. "You keep giving the ball to the guy and the defense has to tighten up to stop him and it opens up your whole offense. Riggins is a no-mistake player he doesn't leave the ball on the ground. He reminds me an awful lot of (ex-Dolphin star) Larry Csonka."

Gibbs realizes No. 44 has been a marked man ever since the playoffs began, but he can't help calling his number 35-40 times per game for blasts up the middle behind the self-named

"Hogs" of the Redskins' offensive line. "John has really done the job for us in the playoffs," Gibbs said. "He really doesn't talk to me a lot but he came up to me before the playoffs and asked to be used more. He said he felt he was coming close to the end of his career and he wanted the opportunity to run. He's been going great guns .... "Actually, our approach has been to strive for balance. We've run well in the

The Dolphins thought they had left the soggy weather behind them in Miami, but the National Weather Service said Wednesday a severe tropical storm was headed for the Los Angeles area Thursday, with a 100 percent chance of rain. There was a possibility it would rain

Miami led the NFL in total defense and Washington ranked second, but Shula isn't convinced the game will be a throwback to the NFL era of grind-it-out

"You can never really predict those things ahead of time," Shula said, "but I think we've done well offensively during the playoffs. Last Sunday's game against the Jets is really no barometer because of the rain and mud we were playing in."

Tribe Topples Apopka, Rams Pin Hawks

Seminole High's wrestling squad came through with perhaps its best performance of the year in a 48-24 victory over Apopka Wednesday. "We wrestled real well, it's the best we've done in a while," Seminole coach Scott Sherman said. "The kids are starting to hit their peak and with districts two weeks away, it's a good time to do it."

Mike Clark started things off for the Tribe as he pinned Pete Garcia in 3:30 at the 106 weight class. Tony Brown (129), Kevin Tapscott (135), Vince Clark (141), Tony Turner (142) and Gary Gonterman (170) all came through with pins for the Seminoles whose dual meet record improved to 4-6.

At one point in the match, Seminole had five straight pins in building an insurmountable 48-9 lead before the Tribe hit its weakness, the heavier weights.

Ronnie Watson was moved from 115 up to 122 to wrestle Apopka's top man in Bruce Ellison, "Ronnie had him (Ellison) beat until the last two seconds when Ellison pulled a reversal for two points and won the match," Sherman said. Ellison edged Watson, 7-8.

Arms Talks Marked By Willingness To Compromise

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) - American and Soviet negotiators resumed talks today to limit medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe amid new signs of a will to compromise and mounting global sentiment to halt the arms race.

Chief American negotiator Paul H. Nitze and his Soviet counterpart Yuli A. Kvitsinsky met at the Soviet diplomatic mission to launch the fourth round of Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces talks that began Nov. 30, 1961.

The negotiations were resumed after a two-month Christmas

Posing for photographers outside the Villa Rosa, the conference building within the Soviet diplomatic complex, neither of the negotiators made substantive comment before beginning their 55th session.

The talks are under pressure of an approaching deadline the planned deployment later this year of new NATO nuclear missiles in Western Europe. Western officials cautioned, however, early agreement is unlikely.

But there were signs of a new will to compromise. Both chief negotiators returned to Geneva this week with statements including the term "equitable" to describe the accord they sought. There was little elaboration because of a mutual news blackout.

The meetings also come amid mounting sentiment in Western Europe, the United States, Japan and other nations to end the nuclear arms race.

Talks center on the 600 Soviet medium-range missiles already in place. The Soviet arsenal includes 250 mobile SS-20s targeted on Western Europe - each triple-warheaded and with a range of 3,100 miles. The talks also are focusing on NATO plans to deploy 572 American cruise and Pershing-2

President Reagan's "zero option" calls for Moscow to dismantle its missiles and NATO to forego deployment. But Washington is under pressure from its European ailles to move away from the all-or-nothing approach.

Nitze said he was ordered by Reagan to "explore every possibility for an equitable agreement" and also said this week he was "not locked into" the "zero option" - his first such expression of possible compromise.

Soviet leader Yuri Andropov has proposed to reduce SS-20 numbers to 162 to match British and French missiles, but NATO has rejected the offer.

Testifying after the jury had been dismissed for the night Wednesday, Zende Clark of Washington told how she had been the victim of a well-dressed, handsome, educated man who claimed he was Hastings.

She said the impersonator knew intimate details of Hastings' private life and she had checked his claims in a "Who's Who" book.

Defense co-counsel Patricia Williams asked Ms. Clark, "Did he constantly brush his teeth?"

Gignoux of Maine laughingly ruled Ms. Clark's testimony inadmissible because it "is not remotely, conceivably relevant ... even though it might titiliate the jury."

Hastings, a 46-year-old Altamonte Springs native, directing his own defense, has attempted without much success to introduce testimony that confidence men are prone to trade on the good names of judges without their knowledge to solicit bribes.

Group Helps TONIGHTS TV Parents With Gay Children

DEAR ABBY: This is in reply to "Sick Inside," a mother who fears her son may be gay. She wrote that her husband had a heart condition and she was afraid he couldn't handle discussing the situation.

Please let that mother know that in all the years of helping parents to understand their gay-lesbian children, we have never lost a parent. However, we do know of gay-lesbian people who have committed suicide because their parents either did not understand them, or refused to accept

Whether her son is gay or not, we here at PARENTS FLAG (Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays, Inc.) are in a position to support and help her. We have parent groups and contacts throughout the United States.

The latest edition of our "About Our Children," with Information in five languages (English, French, Chinese, Japanese and Spanish), is now available free if the request comes with a stamped (20 cents), long, self-addressed envelope. The address: Box 24565, Los Angeles, Calif. 90024.

> ADELE STARR, PRESIDENT

DEAR ABBY: Last summer my fiance gave me a necklace for my birthday. It was worth about $100. It came with a card saying, "A gift from ( )," and Gerald signed his name.

We have since broken up because of his mother's constant interference. She has called me several times to tell me that Gerald wants the necklace back. I told her that I would have to hear from Gerald, so she put him on the phone and told him what to say. I decided to keep it anyway.

Since then she has called me several times and asked me where the necklace was, and I have told her I have no intention of returning it. I found out the other day that Gerald still owes $100 on the necklace. (The store called and informed me.)

I know I am legally entitled to keep it because I have proof it was a gift. My parents say I don't have to give it back or pay what's owed on it. My friends say I should give it

Gerald. DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is being married soon. She's living in a onebedroom apartment and has no room to store anything. After the wedding, she and her husband plan to live in the same apartment. Would it be proper to include a letter with the wedding invitation suggesting that if anyone wishes to give a gift, money would be greatly appreciated?

Our daughter wants to do this, but my husband and I wonder if it would be considered poor taste. SOMEWHERE, U.S.A.

DEAR SOMEWHERE: You and your husband are wise to wonder. To include such a letter in the wedding invitations would be in very poor taste.

DEAR ABBY: You said New York is called "The Big Apple," and Cleveland is known as "The Plum." Then a reader asked if there's a city known as "The Pits."

Yes, it's "Pittsfield, Mass." M.M. IN PITTSFIELD,

Gasoline Prices Plunge 5 Cents

Florida gasoline prices have plunged by over 5 cents per gallon at the self-service pump since mid-December, the latest AAA Clubs of Florida Fuel Gauge report shows.

For the first time since last spring the latest Fue! Gauge found stations in several markets selling self-service regular for under $1 per gallon. Cities in the survey reporting gasoline selling for under $1 per gallon included Orlando, Tampa, Pensacola, Venice, Port Richey and St. Petersburg.

While full service gasoline prices did not drop as much as the self-service; the latest survey did show a drop of about 4 cents per gallon for both regular and unleaded since

The latest survey showed self-service regular dropped by 5.8 cents per gallon to $1.065 per gallon and self-service unleaded dipped by 5.4 cents per gallon to $1.157.

While no area had average prices of under $1 per gallon for self-service regular, St. Petersburg with $1.015 and Pensacola with $1.014 were clusing in on the dollar per gallon average.

The latest substantial price drop at retail means the average price of self-service regular has dropped by 12.5 cents per gallon since July and self-service unleaded has dropped by 11.1 cents per galion over the same period.

Bike-A-Thon Chairman

Karen L. Johnson CPA, has been appointed chairman for the annual "Wheels for Life" Bike-A-Thon in Lake Mary, to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. The event is scheduled for March 26, with a rain date of April 9.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is a researchtreatment-education center where physicians and scientists working side by side have actually succeeded in rewriting medical textbooks through painstaking research and treatment advances.

This institution is the largest childhood cancer research center in America. It owes its establishment to a promise made years ago by entertainer Danny Thomas. His dream became reality when the doors of this non-sectarian research hospital opened in 1962 dedicated solely to the conquest of hopeless diseases of children.

When St. Jude Hospital accepted its first patient, the survival rate for children diagnosed with acute lymphocytic leukemia was less than 5 percent. Today, the disease-free survival figure for children in long-term remission has grown to more than 50 percent. Procedures that originated at St. Jude are now being used to treat children throughout the United States and other parts of the world.

St. Jude Chidlren's Research Hospital has treated children from 43 states and 29 foreign countries.

For more information persons may call Ms. Johnson at 339-1905. Volunteers are needed.

Muscles Stretch; Rectocele Enlarged

DEAR DR. LAMB - About two weeks ago my gynecologist told me I have an enlarged rectocele. I asked what to expect and he said it would not require surgery. The only problem I will have is constipation, probably. He said I should take Metamucil for that.

What happens if this rectocele becomes larger? How will it affect my bowels or other parts involved? Incidentally, I'm 57 and have five children.

I've already had three major operations. One was for removal of my gallbladder, another for a complete hysterectomy and the last one for a bladder operation, the Marshall-Marchetti procedure.

Can you explain my problem a little more in detail for me?

DEAR READER - A woman who has had several children is more likely to have some of the problems you have had. A rectocele is a hernia. Basically, the muscles around your vaginal vault have been weakened and stretched.

The muscular wall at the back side is a partition between the vagina and the rectum. When the muscles are stretched and weakened, the rectal tube herniates through into the vagina. This is most likely to happen when there is increased pressure as during a bowel movement.

You need to avoid constipation to avoid straining. And if the rectum herniates too much it may be mechanically difficult for you. If the condition becomes too much trouble, a surgical repair of the partition that strengthens the muscle wall can be done. It is done frequently.

Your bladder operation, too, was required because of stretched muscles and woman may have difficulty body functions necessary to ticularly when laughing or during activity.

The conditions associated with weakened pelvic muscles are discussed more fully in The Health Letter 14-12, Hysterecotomy, Cystocele and Rectocele, which I am sending you. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - 1 am 25 years old and am breastfeeding a six-month-old baby. I know I should be taking some kind of supplement but don't know what or how much. Is there a vitamin I can take to increase my appetite? Eating doesn't appeal to me, normally. I can't afford a doctor. My baby, my fifth, was delivered by a midwife.

DEAR READER - When a woman is breastfeeding she needs additional vitamins and minerals of all types. Particularly she needs additional calcium and phosphorous and additional protein. To meet these requirements I suggest you use at least a quart of milk a day, along with a wellbalanced diet.

I would prefer that you have your doctor tell you what you need but if you are unable to see a doctor, at least take one of the regular daily vitamin preparations with minerals each day.

Vitamins won't stimulate your appetite but you do need to consume sufficient calories to maintain your weight level. which you tell me is only 118 structures that hold the pounds. If you don't get urethra and bladder in the enough calories your protein proper position. In that case a will not be available for your holding her urine, par- your health while nursing.

Vulnerable: Both Dealer: North North East West 14 Pass INT Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: $10

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Pessimistic Pete let the club lead come around to his ace and studied the dummy for some time before leading to the second trick. A less pessimistic declarer would have wasted no time. He would simply have taken and lost the heart finesse. After that start, East would have led back the jack of diamonds and the defense would have wound up with two diamonds, one heart, the ace of spades and satisfied smiles. Pete would have seen that as usual when he was declarer, all finesses were wrong Pete's study finally showed him a line of play that would give him game and rubber irrespective of the location of the red kings provided that West hadn't led that 10 spot from a seven-card suit and that spades would break better than six-one.

He led a heart to dummy's ace at trick two and discarded a diamond on the queen of clubs at trick three. West scored his king of clubs for the second defensive trick. but Pete had time to get a second diamond discard on the club jack and end the rubber as a winner. Note that had West opened a trump, Pete would have had no way to develop that play of swapping two diamond losers for one club loser.
