Judge lifts water injunction

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Residents in the troubled Ridgewood Villas apartment and condominium complex are still receiving water, even though a circuit court ruled that the city of Sanford could turn the water off because of a $17,500 unpaid bill.

In a deal brokered between city attorney Catherine Reischmann and attorneys for Central Florida Legal Services, representing several tenants of Ridgewood Villas, the city will leave water on for now if rent and condo association payments begin to be made by the residents.

Ridgewood Villas residents will have water as long as rent is paid

Water in uninhabited portions of the Ridgewood Villas apartment and condominium complex near Seminole High School was turned off by the city on Tuesday.

The city received permission to turn off water at the complex when circuit court Judge Seymore Benson lifted a 30-day temporary injunction that had been issued on July 23 by Judge Carmine

Bravo.

Water was turned off Tuesday in building No. 4 at the complex, which is vacant, as well as in a clubhouse. Sanford officials are negotiating with representatives from the remaining four buildings at the complex for payment terms on $17,500 in unpaid water bills, said City Manager Tony VanDerworp. No residents were affected by water being turned off in portions of the complex on Tuesday. City officials said 28 of the 60 units in the complex are currently occupied.

"We've been working with this set of buildings for a year now," VanDerworp said. "We have to resolve this issue. The rest of our utility customers are paying for this debt."

On July 21, the city turned off water to the entire 60-unit complex because of the unpaid water bills. Water was restored two days later when the injunction was ordered.

The court ordered water to be restored. See Water, Page 2A

Joshi says Winter Springs project is still in the works

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

WINTER SPRINGS — Las Vegas developer Rohit Joshi said Tuesday that plans for a 900-acre town center in Winter Springs are still alive, even though he defaulted on a deal to purchase 436 acres in the center of the proposed development.

Joshi, who is chairman of Joshi & Associates, missed a July 1 deadline to make a deposit on 436 acres of property owned by the Schrimsher Group. He will discuss the development's status with the Winter Springs City Commission on Aug. 9.

The Schrimsher Group last week notified the city that Joshi is in default of the contract. Michael Schrimsher, vice president of Schrimsher Properties, said the land is for sale to anyone, including Joshi.

The original goal for starting construction on the project was Oct. 1. Joshi said he hopes construction will begin "in the near future," but that "phasing and financing of the project" could be altered.

"These challenges are not uncommon for development projects of this size and complexity," Joshi said.

Joshi plans to expand the existing Winter Springs Town Center with apartments, homes, shops, a hotel, a conference center and a sports museum.

Winter Springs Mayor Paul Partyka said Joshi has told him he is close to signing contracts with some of the smaller property owners along the State Road 434 corridor.

"As for the Schrimsher property, to me, that's for the two of them to work out," Partyka said.

Partyka said he is confident that even if Joshi's plans for the town center do not succeed, significant development will still occur along the State Road 434 corridor.

"That's going to happen just because it's there," Partyka said. See Joshi, Page 2A

Christian Coalition ruling won't hurt candidate West

By Russ White
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Returning Tuesday from a two-week fishing trip, Seminole County Commission candidate Jim West learned that a federal judge ruled Monday that the Christian Coalition did not illegally aid Republican candidates in 1996 by distributing voter guides to churches.

West, who is attempting to unseat two-term commissioner Daryl McLain in District 5, is the acting executive director for the Christian Coalition in Florida. Although he would not comment on how the court decision affected his race against McLain, West said he considered the judge's ruling to be just.

"The Christian Coalition doesn't tell voters whom they should vote for — it supplies them with educational materials," West said.

Coalition officials nationwide said they're confident the ruling will help the socially conservative group regain lost clout and donors after two difficult years.

"It allows us to go unfettered into 2000 for the largest, most comprehensive, get-out-the-vote effort in the history of grassroots politics," said Randy Tate, the coalition's chief lobbyist.

Seminole County Republican Executive County Chairman Jim Stelling said Tuesday that the Christian Coalition's court victory would affect the county races only if there is a small voter turnout — as there was in See Coalition, Page 2A

Longwood police win award

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — An increased emphasis on railroad crossing safety and a consistent effort at cracking down on DUI offenders has led to a national award for the Longwood Police Department.

Glen Victor of the Central Florida Chapter of the National Safety Council made the official presentation of the prestigious Law Enforcement Traffic Safety (LETS) Award to Longwood police chief Tom Jackson prior to the start of this week's city commission meeting.

"We chose to single out the Longwood police department because of its consistent commitment to traffic safety and its recent railroad safety campaign," said Victor. "The Longwood department takes a very active role in combating a serious DUI problem."

Chief Jackson credited the award in part to an off-the-wall public safety campaign focusing on railroad crossing safety in Longwood and the hard work of the department's traffic unit.

"MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) has been the support behind our success in combating the DUI problem," Jackson explained. "They donated two on-board video cameras that help make compelling cases in court against those who drink and drive."

Jackson also singled out patrol officer David Gross.

"In addition to his normal duties, officer Gross has individually accounted for 77 DUI arrests in the last fiscal year. He has something like a 99- See Longwood, Page 2A 1998 when West gave a scare to Randy Morris in a District 2 race.

"A high voter turnout reduces the impact of any special interest group," Stelling said. "But if voters stay away like they did last year, the effect could be profound."

The voter guides have been a source of contention nationwide since the Coalition first began distributing them. In 1998, sensing he had little chance to get a favorable review from the Christian Coalition, Morris did not return his candidate's survey.

"My opponent (West) wrote half the questions in the questionnaire," Morris said. "Why ask why?"

Morris said Tuesday that he agreed with all of the principles of the National Christian Coalition.

"The problem is that the Florida group is nothing like the national group," Morris said. "The group here is made up of a small cadre of self-serving politicians and wannabees."

Morris said a Coalition recruiter called his aide and asked if she were a Christian. The aide told the caller she was a Catholic. "No, you're not a Christian, then," the caller said before trying someone else. An apology soon followed.

And McLain claims he tried to join the Florida Christian Coalition a few years ago but was rejected.

Florida Christian Coalition spokesperson Mary Cuckuck said that West recently became the Florida group's acting executive director following the resignation of John Dowless. She said the executive director manages the day-to-day operations. Dr. Max Karrer of Jacksonville is the state chairman of the Coalition.

The socially conservative

Coalition was founded by the Rev. Pat Robertson, once a presidential candidate. He was thrilled with Judge Joyce Green's decision Monday.

"It's a major victory for free speech in this country," Robertson said. "There's no question it's full speed ahead with what we're doing."

Joyce's ruling overthrew a lawsuit that the Christian Coalition's voter guides and phone banks and other operations were partisan activities to aid certain Republican candidates. The group argued that the guides were covered by free speech and did not specifically advocate a candidate's election or defeat, and thus should not be regulated as campaign contributions.

"Not only the Christian Coalition but everyone else who wants to get involved in politics will be free to do so," Robertson said.

Schools considers ways to boost minority grades

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — In Seminole County public high schools, 30.5 percent of Black students do not have the 2.0 Grade Point Average required to gain a diploma.

Another 22.5 percent of Hispanic high school students also have GPAs under 2.0. All of Seminole County's high schools are above state averages for Grade Point Averages. However, educators in the county are recognizing a need to address racial and cultural concerns.

"We are seeing some disparities, and we are just beginning to analyze what they mean," said Seminole High School principal Karen Coleman. "It is a process that is receiving significant attention in Seminole County and at Seminole High School."

Among the county's White high school students, 12.7 percent have a GPA under 2.0. Six percent of the county's Asian high school students have GPAs under 2.0, and three of the county's 24 Native American high school students are not on pace to graduate.

"There is a heightened awareness of a disparity," Coleman said. "The next step is to develop strategies to deal with this in a positive manner."

Coleman said that educators and guidance counselors in each of the county's high schools are working together to try to better educate students from multicultural backgrounds.

Overall, grades for Seminole County students are consistently above state averages.

Compared to 27.3 percent of high school students statewide who lack the 2.0 GPA needed to graduate, Seminole County has a low total of 15.8 percent.

Likewise, just 6.8 percent of the county's high school students have GPAs under 1.5, compared to 14 percent statewide.

Seminole High School's student grades are better than state averages. However, the 25.2 percent of the 2,118 students with GPAs below 2.0 is the highest total in Seminole County.

The next highest total belongs to Lyman High School, with 18.4 percent of the 1,981 students not on pace to graduate.

High achieving students at Seminole High School, who are members of National Honor Society and Mu Alpha Theta, take part in after-school tutoring programs under the supervision of sponsors.

"Quite often hearing it from a peer can help a student understand," Coleman said.

A Homework Hotline is being established at Seminole High School, in which parents leave messages about assignments on a phone mail system. Teachers also give weekly and mid-term progress reports, and send letters home or call when there is a problem.

Marion Dailey, director of instructional support, said that every school in the county is developing strategies to raise grades.

"From special tutoring for ninth graders to notifying students and parents when there is a problem, the schools are doing everything they can to improve the education given to students," Dailey said.

For instance, at Lake Brantley High School, principal Darvin Boothe said teachers are sponsored by Excel Alternatives to mentor students. Boothe said that 70 students regularly participate in the program.

Teachers and counselors immediately make phone calls home when a student falls behind, Boothe said. The students can also re-take courses that they made "D's" or even "C's" in to replace the grade.

A total of 15.1 percent of Lake Brantley High School's 2,808 students lack the 2.0 GPA needed for graduation.

"The problem group is ninth graders who come to us from middle school unprepared, and have to remain behind a year or more," Boothe said. "We pay special attention to repeat ninth graders with after-school tutorials."

At Winter Springs High School, 14.1 percent of the 1,642 students lack a 2.0 GPA.

Other school totals 13.4 percent out of 2,418 students below 2.0 at Lake Mary, 13.1 percent out of 2,014 students below 2.0 at Lake Howell, and 12.4 percent out of 2,531 students below 2.0 at Oviedo high schools.

Not surprisingly, 57.1 percent of the 448 Seminole high school students in alternative schools established for at-risk youth have GPAs below 2.0.

School Board member Diane Bauer said that while raising grades is important, she hopes teachers will stress mastery of subject matter over grade point average.

"There is room for improvement," Bauer said. "It's not so important that we raise the grades as it is how we plan on raising that GPA. It's hard to teach until a student says 'Yes, I want to do well.' I want to be real careful about the approach we take."

percent conviction rate — he and our other traffic officers deserve the recognition for this award. They are dedicated to the task."

A portion of the award was credited with a borrowed idea from an off-beat television commercial with actor Dennis Leary warning of the perils of failing to change oil engine on a regular basis.

"I saw the commercial a couple of times and got a real kick out of it," said Jackson. "Then we tried to take that off-beat approach and come up with something that really provided a strong visual reminder about safety at railroad crossings — something that really stood out."

Jackson took the idea to Robin Gleason of the Seminole County Traffic division and the concept was put to use.

A blue visual on a white background instead of the normal yellow and black railroad crossing warnings was developed, and then came the catch phrase: "Big train — little car — you passed the cross bar."

Jackson said one of the problems Longwood has experienced with its two prime railroad crossing areas at SR 427 and 434 was that typical traffic light cycles would often leave several cars hung up on the track areas with nowhere to go.

"People were literally getting hung up on the tracks," said the chief.

"The implementation of the new signs has really caused motorists to take more notice and handle those two intersections with more respect."

Longwood's chief also cited the department's traffic unit for implementation of its safety check points.

"We have more than 150,000 vehicle pass through Longwood per day — it's like the cross roads of Seminole County," Jackson said. "When you stop to think that only 14,000 people live year, we deal with an extremely high volume of traffic for a city our size."

The LETS award marks the second national award the Longwood police department has received in 1999. Earlier this year the department's motorcycle unit won a national award for graphic design on the unit's Harley Davidson bikes from Law Enforcement magazine.

on July 23 after hearing a complaint from Central Florida Legal Services.

However, when water was restored, portions of dry-wall in the living room of one apartment and the bathroom of another apartment collapsed because of the water pressure. The tenants were temporarily housed by the

The complex was placed under a closure notice by a state inspector on July 7 because of health and safety code violations. The operating license for the complex was revoked.

VanDerworp said building No. 4 is being boarded up to keep residents from entering. In addition, panels on electrical boxes that were exposed are being closed.

"They (exposed electrical boxes) were a threat to public safety," VanDerworp said.

Residents have been moving out of the complex because of the water dispute and complaints about poor management.

Lovestrand ponders clerk's race

By Joe DeSantis

LONGWOOD — Longwood Mayor Paul Lovestrand confirmed Tuesday that he is seriously considering a run for Seminole County's Clerk of the Court position.

"I haven't officially announced," Lovestrand told the Seminole Herald. "But I'm giving it very serious consideration."

The multiple-term Longwood commissioner said he expected to make a formal announcement in about two weeks.

"I'll know for sure very shortly," Lovestrand said. "I've been talking to a number of people who can help, and I'm getting very close to making a decision. It's looking good."

Lovestrand would challenge incumbent Clerk of Court Maryanne Morse, who has held the position since 1989.

The clerk's position is responsible for three main duties: chief financial officer for the county; official recorder for the county; and record keeper for the court system.

In addition to serving on the Longwood board of commissioners, Lovestrand works in financial management.

"If I run I think I can do an improved job for the county, especially in the area of auditing," he said.

The clerk of the court position carries an annual salary of $107,000.

Chris is going to Washington

Chris Drummond has been summoned to Washington. It's the call of his life. A call that ought to echo across the land, for Chris's life is a genuine profile in courage.

When they told Chris last week that he had won the 1999 Elizabeth Boggs Award from the President's Committee on Mental Retardation, his parents cried.

Greg and Joanna Drummond knew they had raised an exceptional young man, one who has made a difference in his community and beyond. Now, others — even in Washington — know it, too.

His story may go all the way to the White House. Certainly, the president and first lady have time to hear about Chris Drummond's remarkable life.

Chris was born with cerebral palsy. He had no left eye. When he was old enough, a socket was created for an artificial eye.

Chris needed surgery for a brain cyst when he was three months old. He was epileptic.

It took grit for Chris to walk and talk. More grit to live up to the title his parents gave him — "Superboy." If he tried, Chris could do just about anything, they told him. He did more than anything. He did the near impossible.

Without looking for personal reward, Chris has spent more than half his 34 years working tirelessly to open doors for the developmentally disabled. He's Vice Chairman of the Seminole County Council for the Disabled. He also serves on regional and state appointed committees.

Chris wants to find safe housing and improved the quality of life for those who are developmentally disabled. He realizes many of those who are disadvantaged are going to be left on their own when their parents or caretakers are no longer alive.

Chris wants to prevent incidents like the one four years ago when a woman drove her developmentally disabled son to a wooded area in Maitland. There, she doused the boy and herself with gasoline and lit a match. The woman lovingly had cared for the son for more than 35 years. She was no longer able to care for him and she had no money. She found no one to help.

"I don't want that to happen ever again," Chris said. "Surely, there's a place for us. Surely, someone will help."

The Drummonds have built extra rooms to their Longwood home. They've also set up a trust fund to aid Chris and several others. They've arranged for the services of a caretaker.

"I'm lucky," Chris said. Luck, it has been said, is the residue of design.

In Chris's case a grand design.

Our View

Time to come clean It's long past time for the Humane Society to have a full accounting of its finances

The Humane Society of Seminole County is acting like a recalcitrant puppy who has chewed the new sofa cushions while the owners are away. Instead of fessing up to its mistakes surrounding a failed concert promotion that may have cost the organization $150,000 or more, it's attempting to hide its dirty laundry under a cloak of secrecy, obfuscation and abominable public relations practices.

With the exception of one board member who has been forthcoming with information about the fiasco surrounding the agency's "Pet Rocks" concert this spring, its executive director has chosen to initially stonewall, and now has basically put a gag order out on the society's employees and board—to the point it appears the Humane Society is violating its own by-laws about access to information. Even the thought of holding a Humane Society event at a dog track brings questions to mind about the agency's common sense, let alone its fiduciary finesse on behalf of the Fido's and Fluffy's of our community.

When a high profile event with big expectations goes bust, it is human nature to finger point and blame fix. There appears to be plenty of blame fixing to go around in the society's latest fiasco involving internal operations. Sweeping it under the carpet and failing to acknowledge the damage done does little but undermine the good the agency provides on behalf of thousands of Seminole County animals. Losing money on an idea gone to the dogs is one thing that can be forgiven. Lack of accountability can not.

It is also unfair to throw the baby out with the bath water. Management's latest faux paw (intentional) casts an undeserved negative and skeptical eye on the Human Society's front line employees and volunteers. They are the one's directly involved in the daily operation and care of needy animals, but have little to say about the agency's decision making process, management decisions or fund raising efforts. Wasn't it just a few years ago that the secretary/treasurer skipped off with somewhere between $60 to 90,000, and has still not been apprehended and punished?

For the Humane Society to respond to its latest setback with an air of arrogance and an attitude that as a private organization it owes no explanation to anyone, is a recipe for disaster and detriment for all involved. To attempt to silence its employees and provide no access or accounting to its income and expenditures is insulting. Outside of an occasional grant, the agency receives the wealth of its operational budget from bequests and individual contributions from the public. For that they owe the public a mea culpa and a sense of accountability.

Legal services marks 25 years

To the Editor:

Last Friday marked the 25th anniversary of the Legal Services Corporation, which provides funding for Central Florida Legal Services locally. When President Nixon signed legislation creating the LSC on July 23, 1974, he established a means for all US citizens to have "equal access" to justice in non-criminal matters, such as wrongful eviction, family courts, domestic violence, consumer fraud, termination of benefits, and breach of contract.

All of us at Central Florida Services want to take this opportunity to remind the general public of the precious commodity we have in our justice system. While no system is flawless, ours is the best world-wide. The Legal Services Corporation and Central Florida Legal Services are not only dedicated to the low and moderate income among us, but to the community at large. Over the years, Central Florida Legal Services has come to the aid of the working poor, needy children, victims of domestic violence, the disabled, and the elderly. In the future, we will continue to do so, as we honor our commitment to liberty and justice for all. It is through the efforts of agencies such as ours, and the attorneys who take the quality of life for all Americans is among the highest in the world.

In celebrating the 25th anniversary of LSC, we celebrate and reconfirm our national commitment to equal justice, not simply as an abstract principle, but as a living, breathing program that provides disadvantaged people with access to the law, affords them protection of their rights while informing them of their responsibilities under the law and offers them a means of resolving their disputes and a sense that government exists to help them help themselves.

To the Editor:

On my front porch I can sit and watch the world of historic Sanford on a daily basis. In the morning strangers walking to work stop and say good morning. Neighbors wave hello as they drive by. We always have a cup of coffee for a visitor. This is not the world that I see written about so often. These neighbors are from a vast assortment of income levels and social levels they all have one common thread, they all live here in the Historic District.

The Sanford Historic district is a community of many diverse people. It is not the have and have nots, it is a blend of many professionals and working families who choose to live here because of the charm this district has. I have heard from some residents that people who move here need to prove to us that they will be good for the neighborhood and do the right thing for the preservation of the district. Hold on here when did this become a closed community?

It is quite alarming that over the last year many people refer to the Historic District in such negative terms such as the "Hysteria district", "the dogooders", my favorite is "move to Celebration." When Celebration is modeled after communities like ours.

Controversy seems to dog the district. When an individual in the district makes a comment the whole district is at fault. In July 28th issue of the Herald Editorials there was a letter from Ms. Metts, from a resident in the historic district that individual represents only his opinions on the project that Ms. Metts has. The residents of the district share many different opinions on that issue, so lets be careful not to lump everyone into these published comments. This is not a meant to defend Ms. Metts, it is meant to try and prevent all of us from being

"VERY cool oh-so-baggy pants — for an old guy."

Baby Boomer and Gen Y'er find some ways to connect

My summer study of Generation Y is nearing an end — and not a moment too soon. I'm not sure I could take much more confirmation of how out of touch I have become.

My 21-year-old cousin has been my houseguest for the summer, and as is often the case with these cultural exchanges, things haven't worked out quite the way I expected. I had assumed that I would spend the summer teaching him things. Given my status as a cousin, rather than his mom or dad, I thought I could sneak in a little positive influence every now and then — force-feed him educational TV, change his music interests, get him beyond the sports pages of the newspaper.

While some of those hopes were realized, for the most part he has been the teacher and I the student. He has taught me trendy words and phrases, introduced me to TV shows I'd never seen, given me heartburn and reduced me to riotous laughter — sometimes unintentionally.

His Atlanta sojourn has come at an awkward time in his life. Having lost an academic college scholarship because of mediocre grades, he was forced to move back home with his parents in Montgomery, Ala., where he attended a local college. But after a short time of enduring that indignity, he began to feel a little, uh, crowded. And his parents a little, uh, vexed. So he began lobbying me: Could he spend the summer with me if he found a job in Atlanta?

Sure, I said. How bad could it be? I laid down the house rules, assuring him that I have a one-strike-and-you're-out policy. He has been faithful to the rules (mostly), since he didn't want to be sent back to his parents. A well-reared young man, he takes out the trash, mows the lawn and washes my car.

Had I understood what I was getting in for, though, I would have added a few more rules. Among them: Don't insult me with your youth-distorted perceptions of age. He once described a colleague as an "old guy, at least 40." Ouch. After meeting a friend of mine, he referred to him as "one of the old guys" he'd seen playing basketball at a local gym. O-w-w-w!

Still, we have tolerated each other well. I've found myself absorbed in his favorite TV shows, both fascinated and repelled by his favorite rap groups and amused by his dating rituals. I've seen more music video cable channels than I knew existed, watched sports channels I'd never heard of, and argued over the merits of Lattrell Sprewell, one of the bad boys of professional basketball. ("Genius," says he. "Thug," say I.)

He has introduced me to the HBO dramas "The Sopranos" and "Oz," known for their violence but also for thoughtful writing and acting. For that I thank him. He has also exposed me to a host of the characters who populate professional wrestling, known for fake violence and stupidity. For that, I can't forgive him.

He has laughed at my expressions of genuine outrage at the casual vulgarity that flavors so many TV sitcoms, even those aired during prime time. We have laughed.

Mrs. Clinton now spins God

Only a couple that has been emboldened by their escape from impeachable offenses would try to spin God. But Hillary Rodham Clinton — veteran of cattle future profiteering, a failed attempt to nationalize health care, champion of children raised by the government village and not parents — has done just that and more in an interview for Talk magazine.

affairs. She sounds like a car salesman discussing miles per gallon. Look how far he can go without a fill-up. The years between the Jennifer Flowers affair and whoever she found out was after that were "a very good stretch."

Bill Clinton has been a "good" father and husband, she says, leaving us to wonder what would constitute a bad husband real saint, Paul, writes that "all have sinned and fallen short of the glory of God," he does not engage in a theory of moral relativism. He diagnoses a human condition that is true for all, regardless of how individual sinners categorize their sins. None of us, including a first lady, gets to make the rules or render judgment.

Bill is "sorry," she says, which, in another context, could be an accurate diagnosis. But sorrow that doesn't lead to repentance is no more than personal disgust at getting caught. Bill Clinton, like all of us, is responsible for the choices he makes. It's bad enough when he refuses to accept responsibility. It is worse when those closest to him won't do what is in his best interest, namely, announce that his day of reckoning has arrived.

"Peter betrayed (Jesus) three times," says Mrs. Clinton, "and Jesus knew it but loved him anyway." Bill Clinton is no Peter, and she is certainly no Jesus. But the analogy is revealing. From the beginning, these two have seen themselves as the saviors of the world and those who oppose their agenda as sons of Beelzebub. This is why they have been able to get away with so much. To oppose saints is to oppose God Himself.

So we have moved to another level. The Clintons are beyond all accountability because, like the Blues Brothers, they are on a "mission from God." God help the rest of us sinners.

In it she reduces herself to that Tammy Wynette, stand-by-your-man caricature she said she was trying to avoid in 1992. In remarks that should encourage every man who has wandered, or has been prone to wander, from his wife into the arms of other women, Mrs. Clinton again enables a man who has never been forced to accept responsibility or be held accountable for his actions (some other account will pay his $90,000 contempt-of-court fine, not him). It's not his fault, she says, that he is a tomcat. He had a troubled childhood. Plenty of people who had troubled childhoods don't do what he does. It's about moral choices. He's depraved, all right, but it's not because he was deprived.

Mrs. Clinton is a textbook enabler. Even her "enemies" reappear. That "vast right-wing conspiracy" is mostly responsible for the Clintons' troubles. Never them. Always us.

Mrs. Clinton surveys her marriage and sees success in the number of years between and father and how a man who has not had an affair would rate with her. Maybe she grades on the curve.

In the most enabling comment of all, Mrs. Clinton refuses to lay any blame at her husband's feet, but claims his concealment of affairs were designed to shield her. Clinton, of course, does not limit his lying to sex. He can lie about anything, from important to trivial matters, such as golf scores and whether he was the first president to host the late John F. Kennedy Jr.'s return to the White House.

But it's when she dabbles in theology that Hillary Clinton outrageously misrepresents the doctrines of sin and grace.

Borrowing from Catholic theology, she says, "there are sins of weakness and sins of malice, and this was a sin of weakness." While it is true that a murderer is worse than a person whose parking meter expires, both are lawbreakers. In a theological sense, our reference point is to a Holy God, not theologians or personal opinion. So when a scraped into the same heap. On my front porch we talk about the good of our community. We talk about the fact that my business partner was recently in the Hospital and our neighbors here in the district came to help with food, support and love. Too many listed individually. Take the Sanford Historic Trust's Walking Driving Book what a beautiful piece or how about the wonderful piano recital that Mr. Stef Pritchard gave in February. From where I sit I can see the Ritz theater coming together as a future vessel for culture in this town. We will reap more benefits as a neighborhood with positive news and events.

We have a community that is talented, caring and willing to help who live here. This is not a walled community or a closed community but a community of diversity. I find it quite exciting to see the change on a daily basis. We are definitely a front porch community. This is how I see it from my front porch.

Ward praises kids for kindness

To the Editor:
There are Super Kids in Sanford! Reading Life Magazine, July issue, under Random Acts of Kindness I came upon positive news regarding 15 students at Wicklow Elementary School in Sanford. Enclosed is a copy of the article, which says "After learning about the blanket shortage in Kosovo refugee camps, 15 students at Wicklow Elementary School in Sanford, Florida, collected 100 pairs of blue jeans form peers and faculty and turned them into homemade quilts."

Who are these little heroes? If you ran their photo and I missed it I am sorry, but since they made "national" news it would be nice to see them honored. Nice to know we have good young people and great teachers I Sanford.

Mom dreads in-laws arrival

DEAR ABBY: After one miscarriage and three years of infertility treatments, my husband and I are expecting twins. While I should be excited about this news, I'm not — for two reasons.

I have a great relationship with my mother, who has agreed to come and help when the babies are born in September. My husband's sister and family, who live out of town, are also thinking about coming to visit at that time. While I love my sister-in-law dearly, I don't know that I will feel up to entertaining her family while trying to adjust to being not only a new mom but a new mom of twins. My husband has asked that I not alienate his family, but all I can think about is how tired and stressed I will be trying to adjust to the new life.

My second dilemma is my mother-in-law. She's a very pessimistic and paranoid woman whose family has allowed her to control every family situation. She never smiles, can't find the joy in living, and tries to tell others how they should live their lives. I've asked my husband why he and his sister allow her to act this way. He says they've tried talking to her, but all she does is cry.

Abby, my mother-in-law is already providing me with unsolicited advice on how to take care of myself. I can just imagine what kind of unsolicited child-rearing advice I'll get when the children are born.

I don't want to alienate my husband's family, but under the circumstances I find it hard not to. Any advice?

DREADING SEPTEMBER

DEAR DREADING: Accept the fact that your mother-in-law is trying to show her love and concern for you, so smile, nod and tune her out. Once the twins arrive, assure her that they are under the care of an excellent pediatrician — and you'll mention her suggestions to the doctor to be sure they don't conflict with the medical advice you are already receiving.

As for your sister-in-law, tell her sweetly that you would love to see her — perhaps during the holidays — after you have regained your strength and you and the babies have a firmly established schedule. To do so is not "alienating her" — it's asserting your right to recover from the delivery.

Summer Fruit Desserts

I confess that summer is probably the only time of year that my kids eat their recommended five daily servings of fruits and vegetables. Peas from the garden, fresh corn and cucumbers, even salads attract them as they do at no other time of year. And instead of forcing an apple or banana down, as they do in the winter, they happily gorge on the melons, berries and tree fruits (peaches, nectarines, plums, apricots) that summer brings in abundance.

Most of these fruits can be served plain, and fancy recipes for them are not lily-gilding. But when company's coming, you are forgiven the urge to glitz. Here are some simple recipes for smashing fruit desserts.

Before you start, a few notes. The dessert soup is tasty and elegant, but if my children are any measure, it is not child-friendly, as the flavor of the wine is strong (the same applies to the gratin and the melons in spiced wine). Kids will like the watermelon granita. The gratin of summer berries, from Le Cordon Bleu cooking school's collection of books, calls for making a sabayon, a French version of the Italian "zabaglione," traditionally a frothy dessert sauce of egg yolks, Marsala and sugar. It is delicate, so make it right before you serve it. The granita is a fancy name for slush, and the recipe comes from the Williams-Sonoma book "Summer," by Joanne Weir. If you make it a day ahead, or it accidentally freezes too hard, run it through the food processor and then refreeze. It won't have the true "granita" texture (which is like that of shaved ice) but it will still be delicious.

flavor a bit overbearing. I suggest using one or two cinnamon sticks. Yield: 6 2/3-cup servings.

GRATIN OF SUMMER BERRIES

2-3/4 cups mixed berries, such as strawberries, blueberries, raspberries and blackberries
2 whole eggs
2 egg yolks
5 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon kirsch

Wash and pick over all the berries, and stem the strawberries, if using. Arrange the fruit on four oven-proof plates or shallow bowls.

Half fill a large saucepan (or bottom of double boiler) with water and heat until simmering. Have ready a heat-proof bowl (or the top of double boiler) that will fit over the pan without actually touching the water.

Place the whole eggs, egg yolks, sugar and kirsch in the bowl, then place the bowl over the pan of simmering water. Whisk or beat with an electric mixer for 10 to 15 minutes, or until the mixture is thick and creamy, and leaves a trail as it falls from the whisk or beaters.

Preheat the broiler to high. Spoon the egg mixture over the berries and quickly broil until brown all over. Watch closely as you broil the gratin; browning should not take more than a few minutes. Serve immediately. Yield: 4 servings.

SUMMER MELONS IN SPICED WINE

2 cups late-harvest dessert wine such as Muscat or Sauterne
1 tablespoon honey
4 slices fresh ginger, each 1/4-inch thick
1/2 vanilla bean
5 pounds assorted summer melons, such as cantaloupe, honeydew, Crenshaw, casaba, in any combination

In a saucepan combine the wine, honey and ginger. Cut the half vanilla bean in half along its length and scrape the seeds into the pan, then add the pod halves as well. Place over high heat and bring to a boil. Reduce the heat to low and simmer, uncovered, for 5 minutes. Remove from the heat. Discard the vanilla pods and ginger slices and let cool.

Meanwhile, halve the melons. Scoop out the seeds and discard. Using a melon baller, scoop out balls of the melon flesh and place them in a large bowl. Pour the cooled spiced wine over the melon. Cover and chill for 1 hour.

To serve, divide the melon balls evenly among chilled individual bowls or wine glasses, spooning some of the wine over each portion. Yield: 6 servings.

WATERMELON GRANITA

4 to 5 packed cups seedless watermelon chunks
1 cup water
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice mint or tarragon, well-chilled slices of melon, for garnish (optional)

Place the watermelon chunks in a blender and puree until smooth. Strain through a fine-mesh sieve into a bowl. You should have 2 cups of puree.

In a saucepan over high heat, combine the water and sugar. Heat, stirring, just until sugar dissolves. Add the sugar syrup and lemon juice to the watermelon puree and stir well. Pour the mixture into a shallow, 9-by-13-inch metal or glass baking dish.

Place, uncovered, in the freezer until ice crystals begin to form, 1-1/2 to 2 hours. Using a fork, stir to break up the mixture. Return to the freezer and freeze, stirring with the fork every 30 minutes to prevent the mixture from forming a solid mass. It should be evenly crystallized and like slush in another 2 hours.

To serve, spoon or scoop the granita into chilled serving dishes. Garnish with mint or with small, well-chilled pieces of melon, if desired. Serve immediately. Yield: 6 servings.

Bombats claim AAA crown
Early offense gives league leaders enough lead to edge I.S.By Dean Smith
SPORTS EDITOR

LAKE MARY - The Bombats got off to a fast start and held on to claim the Championship in the City of Lake Mary Department of Parks and Recreation AAA Spring Slow Pitch Softball League at the Lake Mary Sports Complex on July 21st.

The Bombats scored three runs in the top of the first inning and four runs in the top of the second inning to build a 7-2 lead and withstood a comeback effort by I.S., which would have forced a playoff for the championship with a victory, edging the second place club 8-6.

In the other game, Map Attack scored six runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to win its first game of the season in a slugfest with Liberty Mutual II, 17-15, in a game stopped after five innings by the time limit.

No results were received from the scheduled game between Liberty Mutual I and Cross/Bones.

With the results, the final standings for the league are: Bombats (8-1), I.S. (7-3), Liberty Mutual II (5-5), Liberty Mutual I (4-5), Cross/Bones (3-6), and Map Attack (1-9).

On the Wednesday softball schedule, the City of Sanford Recreation and Parks Department Men's Spring Wednesday Night Slow Pitch Softball League will conclude the season with a tripleheader at Pinehurst Park.

Courtyard by Marriott of Lake Mary (7-4) will challenge league champion Pebble Junction (10-1) at 6:30 p.m. and Nobles Communication (4-6) will look to finish the season with a .500 record when it takes on M.T. Muggs (1-10) at 7:30 p.m. and AAA Services (2-9) at 8:30 p.m.

Tennessee Country Saloon (9-3) and Wells Contracting (6-6) have already finished their campaigns.

The Bombats took advantage of two big errors to score its first-inning runs. David Lambert led off with a walk and one out later went all the way to third when Danny Johannes reached on a two-base error.

Jennifer Rengel drove in the first run with a single and Dave Pliitnik brought home Johannes by forcing Rengel at second.

Several present and former Orlando Magic players were on the move on Tuesday as forward Bo Outlaw (top) re-signed with the Magic, while guard Nick Anderson (left), the first-ever college player drafted by the Magic and the last of the original members of the expansion team in 1989, was traded to the Sacramento Kings and former center Rony Seikaly (above) was released by the New Jersey Nets.

Magic wheel and deal

Special to the Herald

ORLANDO - The Orlando Magic have obtained former lottery selection Tariq Abdul-Wahad from the Sacramento Kings, along with a future first round draft selection, in exchange for Nick Anderson, Magic General Manager John Gabriel announced Tuesday.

The deal also creates a $3.5 million trade exception for Orlando.

"While it's difficult to see Nick depart, we are looking forward to bringing in a young talent like Tariq, while also gaining another future first round draft pick," said Gabriel. "Nick has been a part of so many special moments over the past 10 years and will always be in the hearts of Magic fans."

Anderson, the last remaining member of the 1989 Magic expansion team, has appeared in a team record 692 regular season games, while starting 563 contests. He is Orlando's all-time leading scorer (10,650 points), having averaged 15.4 point per game, 5.3 rebounds per game, 2.8 assists per game and 1.5 steals per game over his 10-year career.

Anderson was the first college draft pick in franchise history, as he was selected out of Illinois with the 11th pick overall in the first round of the 1989 NBA Draft.

Tariq Abdul-Wahad (6-foot-6, 223-pounds, pronounced TARIK, ab-dool-WA-hed) averaged 9.3 points per game, 3.8 rebounds per game, 1.0 assist per game and 1.2 steals per game in 24.6 minutes per game.

Last season for Sacramento, he started all 49 games in which he played, while scoring in double-figures 22 times. He scored a season-high 19 points, while grabbing a career-high-tying nine rebounds vs. the L.A. Clippers (April 29).

Known as a tough defender Abdul-Wahad limited opposing starting shooting guards to 13.9 points per game on the season.

Abdul-Wahad averaged 8.6 points per game and 3.8 rebounds per game in the 1999 NBA Playoffs (first round series, five games vs. Utah), while shooting 46 percent from the field and 81 percent from the free throw line.

Abdul-Wahad was originally selected by Sacramento as an year's PGA TOUR event."

He also said the 18th hole will be lengthened by over 25 yards, greenside bunker complex reconstructed and green recontouring and expanded to accept shots from longer irons.

"We're happy to announce that we'll spend in excess of $500,000 for the renovation of the Copperhead course in advance for this year's JCPenney Classic, to be held November 29th to December 5th," commented Westin Innisbrook Resort's General Manager Michael Wely. "Significant improvements will help protect the integrity of the Larry Packard designed course."

Wely also commented that, "this renovation, along with other planned upgrades to services, will greatly enhance the Copperhead golf experience."

Tournament Director, Gerald Goodman, said that, "the Copperhead has always been a great test of golf and the renovation should make it one of the top venues on the PGA Tour."

head golf course superintendent Rob Giampietro said the renovation includes installing one of the finest Bermuda Putting surface grasses known as "tif eagle," as well as the modernizing of the greens' irrigation system and rebuilding several greenside bunker complexes.

Also included in the renovations is the installation of continual cart paths on the Copperhead with an emphasis away from play to protect the fairway playing surface prior to the scheduled tournaments.

The resurfacing of the course is supervised by Troon Golf, an Arizona based owner and manager of some of the finest golf courses in the world.

undergraduate out of San Jose State with the 11th overall pick in the 1997 NBA Draft.

He averaged 6.4 points per game and 2.0 rebounds per game as a rookie in 1997-98.

His career-high in points is 31 vs. Vancouver (April 19, 1998). Overall, in 108 NBA games over two years, Abdul-Wahad has averaged 7.7 points per game and 2.8 rebounds per game.

Abdul-Wahad legally changed his name from Olivier Saint-Jean on November 10, 1997. He became the first French citizen to play in an NBA regular season contest on November 11, 1997 at Miami.

MAGIC RE-SIGN BO OUTLAW

ORLANDO - Free agent forward Charles "Bo" Outlaw, Orlando's top returner from last year in field goal percentage and blocked shots, has re-signed with the Magic. General Manager John Gabriel announced Tuesday.

Per club policy, terms of the contract were not disclosed.

"We're extremely excited to return a player of Bo's athleticism, heart and hustle," said Gabriel. "He's proved to be one of the better shot blocking forwards in the league. We're pleased he elected to join us again, as we continue to fortify our frontcourt."

Outlaw (6-foot-8, 210 pounds) averaged 6.5 points per game, 5.4 rebounds per game, 1.8 assists per game, 1.4 blocks per game and 1.3 steals per game last season, while shooting 54.5 percent from the floor.

In 31 games, Outlaw scored in double-figures 10 times, while pulling down double-figure rebounds in five games.

He saw his streak of 199 consecutive games snapped on March 8th after suffering an occult fracture of his left fibula. Prior to his injury, Outlaw led the team in rebounding and blocked shots.

Off the court, Outlaw was named winner of the Rich and Helen DeVos Community Enrichment Award.

In his first season in Orlando (1997-98), Outlaw averaged a career-high 9.5 points per game, while leading the team in blocked shots (181), steals (107) and field goal percentage (55.4 percent). He was the only Magic player to see action in each of Orlando's 82 games, while starting 78 contests.

Outlaw's efforts garnered league votes for Defensive Player of the Year, the All-Defensive Team and the Most Improved Player Award. In addition he was named to Turner Analyst Hubie Brown's "All Floor Burn Team."

Outlaw, undrafted out of the University of Houston in 1993, has appeared in 393 NBA games (113 with Orlando, 280 with the L.A. Clippers). He has averaged 6.6 points per game, 5.0 rebounds per game, 1.5 assists per game and 1.64 blocks per game during his career.

PENNY HEADED TO PHOENIX?

PHOENIX - Published reports in Orlando and Arizona are saying that sometime on Wednesday or Thursday, the Orlando Magic will re-sign free-agent guard Anfernee "Penny" Hardaway and trade him to the Phoenix Suns for two players and draft picks.

According to the reports, Hardaway will fly to Phoenix today to meet with Suns officials, which he had already done last month, and then return to sign with the Magic, who will then ship the guard to Phoenix for forward Danny Manning, center Pat Garrity and two first round draft choices.

In other NBA news concerning former Magic players, center Rony Selkaly was released by the New Jersey Nets.

Selkaly, 34, played only 88 minutes this past season and scored 13 points before missing the rest of the lockout-shortened season with a sprained ankle and a foot injury.

For his career, the 6-foot-10 center scored 9,991 points, an average of 14.7 per game, and 9.5 rebounds per game.

Hosaflook followed with an RBI single.

I.S. cut the lead to 3-2 after one inning as singles by Dave Noble, Steve Donovan, Stephanie Sierputowski and Wally Wiland plated two runs, with Sierputowski and Wiland getting the RBI.

But the Bombats put the game out of reach in the top of the second inning with seven consecutive one-out singles by Nancy Schaefer, Johannes, Rengel, Plitnik, Storolis, Hosaflook and Clarissa Carmona scoring four runs. Plitnik and Storolis drove in one run each, while Hosaflook had two RBI.

I.S. scored single runs in the second inning, on a sacrifice fly by Ernest Dorsey, and the fifth inning, on an error, to cut the margin to 7-4, but again the Bombats answered with a run in the top of the sixth inning.

I.S. scored two runs with two outs in the bottom of the sixth inning on an RBI single by Joel Kean and an error and had the tying runs on second and third base when the game ended on a fly out.

The late game turned into a beauty if you like offense. Liberty Mutual II took a 5-0 lead in the top of the first inning on the strength of a two-run single by Steve Passwater, but Map Attack answered right back with four runs in the bottom of the first inning.

Map Attack then grabbed the lead in the bottom of the second inning on an RBI ground out by Melinda Ragland and an RBI double by Todd Cronson.

Liberty Mutual II regained the lead in the top of the fourth inning as a two-run single by Michael McClelland was the key blow in a five-run outburst.

The lead was short-lived, however, as Map Attack answered with a five-run fourth inning of its own with a two-run double by Tom Royal and a two-run single by Doyle Kirkland and an inside-the-park home run by David DelleDonne bringing home the runs.

Liberty Mutual II came right back in the top of the fifth inning with another five-run explosion, taking a 15-11 lead. McClelland's two-out, bases loaded triple was the big hit.

The final rally was left for Map Attack, however, as it realized that a win would stop the embarrassment of going through a winless season.

Walks to DelleDonne and Ragland and an error off the bat of Cronson loaded the bases with no one out.

After an out, Chris Ragland walked to score the first run and Brett Vanderbrink followed with a two-run double to cut the lead to one run, 15-14.

Kirkland then put Map Attack ahead for good with a two-run single. Royal then singled and Storolis brought home the insurance run by forcing Royal at second.

Providing the offense were: Bombats: three hits - Jennifer Rengel (run, RBI), Jason Hosaflook (three RBI), Clarissa

Carmona; two hits - Dave Plitnik (three runs, two RBI), Kathy Storolis (RBI); one hit - David Lambert (double, run), Danny Johannes (two runs), Nancy Schaefer (run).

I.S.: three hits - Joel Kean (double, RBI), Steve Donovan (run); two hits - Rick Dimmick (two runs); one hit - Dave Noble (two runs), Stephanie Sierputowski and Wally Wiland (one RBI each), Rick Flesch; one run scored - McLeod Glass; one RBI - Ernest Dorsey.

Map Attack: five hits - Tom Royal (three doubles, two runs, two RBI); three hits - Todd Cronson (double, three runs, two RBI); two hits - Brett Vanderbrink (double, two runs, three RBI), Doyle Kirkland (two runs, RBI); one hit - David DelleDonne (home run, four runs, two RBI), Kathy Storolis (run, RBI); one run scored, one RBI - Melinda Ragland.

Liberty Mutual II: three hits - Mike Meister (triple, double, three runs, RBI), Michael McClelland (triple, five RBI); two hits - Katie Solomon (double, three runs, RBI), Karen Finelli (three runs, two RBI), Steve Passwater (two runs, three RBI); one hit - Jason Proddian (two runs, two RBI), Errin Wilson (RBI), Billy Gatzmeyer (RBI); one run scored - Patricia Vetro.
