LAKE MARY - Lake Mary police Detective John Woods said this morning he expected to make an arrest, within hours, of one person, believed to have been connected with the estimated $50,000 damage at the Oaklawn Cemetery Memorial Park last week.

"Following an investigation and working on several tips," Woods said this morning, "we believe we have enough evidence to make at least one arrest." Woods said the person is a 16-year old juvenile.

One of the incidents connected with the cemetery destruction was the theft of a $2,600 casket lowering device which had been kept in a wooded area adjacent to the cemetery. "We haven't been able to determine if that was actually taken during this damage spree," Woods said, "so we are not presently planning to file any robbery charges. Sanford nixes lounge too close to churches

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - It was an oft heard story; a man's right to establish a business, versus city codes which prevent it. In this case, the business owner lost the battle.

George Currie wants to establish a lounge business at 2491 Park Avenue, which would sell alcoholic beverages. The building is located near the intersection of Park Avenue and 25th Street. within the physical confines of a strip center. Currie had previously indicated his hours of operation would not interfere with any church

In seeking to establish his business however, Currie found the structure is located approximately 1,600 feet from a church, with a second church also less than 2,000 feet away.

Toxin returned

MELBOURNE - A stolen vial of toxin that causes botulism was back in custody at Florida Tech after security staff found it in a library book return box.

An anonymous caller tipped off the private university to the location of the vial, school spokeswoman Debbie Duschl said Monday.

Botulinal toxin attacks the nervous system and makes the muscles lose their ability to contract. If the respiratory system is affected, it can lead to death.

Six to eight deaths are attributed to botulism each year in the United States, mainly from improperly prepared homecanned foods.

The vial of white powdery toxin was stolen Thursday or Friday along with $2,500 worth of checks from four biology

School officials said the general public wasn't in danger even though the toxin could cause potentially deadly poisoning if swalled, inhaled, or otherwise introduced into the body.

Senate panel approves tobacco lawsuit bill after victim speaks

By BILL KACZOR

Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Tobacco lobbyists didn't stand a chance when Louise Dresch was rolled into a Senate committee room in her wheelchair.

The 62-year-old Tallahassee woman, wheezing and struggiing to speak with an oxygen tube in her nose, urged the Commerce Committee to approve a bill designed to reduce opposition to the 1994 tobacco liability law. The state is using the law to sue the tobacco industry over smoking-related dren and great grandchildren. "COPD is taking my life away.

Ms. Dresch said she is dving because of the cigarettes she has smoked since she was 14. The committee voted 10-4 for the bill (SB 12), which would narrow application of the 1994 law to tobacco cases and exclude other products.

"I have COPD - chronic obstruction pulmonary disease,' Ms. Dresch told the panel. "I'm in what they call end stage."

She said that means she may be unable to celebrate next Christmas with her grandchil-but it's really eigarette addiction that is to blame for killing me," she said. "Three generations of my family have been slaves to the tobacco industry."

She said her mother died of the same disease and one of her daughters has emphysema she also blamed on smoking.

The bill next goes to the Senate Judiciary Committee where it may not be so warmly received. Judiciary Chairman Fred Dudley, R-Cape Coral, cast one of the negative votes in Commerce.

Dudley said he plans to pursue an amendment that also would make the law apply to alcoholic beverages when the bill gets to his committee, although his proposal was soundly rejected in Commerce.

The legislation would amend the law that is critical to Florida's effort to make tobacco companies pay $420 million a year toward the cost of treating Medicald patients for smoking-related illnesses.

Committee rejects smoking bill

TALLAHASSEE - The Senate Commerce Committee rejected a bill that would have allowed local governments to impose smoking limits on restaurants that are stricter than those in state law.

On Monday, the panel unanimously voted against the bill (SB 1202), including the sponsor, Sen. John Grant, R-Tampa. That, however. allowed Grant to make a motion to reconsider the bill when the committee meets again next week.

The measure drew opposition from tobacco and restaurant interests.

Discovery Zone files for Chapter 11

Associated Press Writer

JACKSONVILLE - The financial problems of Discovery Zone weren't on Cameron Tucker's mind as he romped with his pale in the maze of tunnels and slides to celebrate his 4th birthday.

But on Monday, the Discovery Zone in Mandarin closed and the Fort Lauderdale-based parent company filed for protection from its creditors while it reorganizes under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code.

The company, which operates 347 indoor playgrounds and fitness centers nationwide, blamed its financial woes on a rapid expansion.

'I was really surprised to hear they were in bankruptcy," said Cameron's mother, Wilma bustling with children during her son's birthday party, which ended with pizza and a cake.

"The kids love it, they have a blast," she said. "I would definitely do it again."

Discovery Zone said it would continue to operate while using the Chapter 11 protection to remedy its money problems.

In its bankruptcy filing in Wilmington, Del., Discovery Zone listed $164.4 million in assets and $366.2 million in debts. The bankruptcy filing lists the Bank of New York as the largest creditor, holding $128 million in bonds. "Discovery Zone is a viable concept, and we have an opportunity to revitalize our operations with new marketing programs and entertainment Ms. Tucker couldn't believe it because the Discovery Zone was Discovery Zone's chief executive.

"A successful Chapter 11 reorganization will address the problems caused by the company's rapid expansion and put Discovery Zone on stronger flnancial footing." she said.

Aside from closing stores that were losing money, the com-pany said it would try to negotiate cheaper leases at existing locations.

Robert Mead, a company spokesman, said it was too early to say how many stores would be closed or how many em-ployees affected by the Chapter 11 filing. "We're examining each store on a case-by-case basis," he said.

Social Security to play stock market?

By DIANE DUSTON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - For the first time in its history, the Social Security system would invest some of its money in the stock market if the government follows the recommendation of an advisory council.

Private companies with pension funds are required to diversify their investments and so should Social Security, said Edith Flerst, a Washington attorney and member of the Social Security Advisory Council.

The 13-member panel will unanimously recommend this investment change in its report later this spring, she and two other members of the council confirmed Monday in testimony to the Senate Finance subcommittee on Social Security.

But there is a major split among the members on whether individual workers should decide which stocks to buy or the government should do it for

"I am one of six members who believe the risk should be borne collectively by the trust fund," Fierst said.

Funds for Social Security the retirement system created during the Depression - are invested in special-issue U.S. Treasury securities. But stocks, over time, outperform government bonds.

The stock investment plan Fierst envisions would be in broadly based index funds so as to minimize government interference in private business.

A panel appointed by the president and approved by the Senate would determine how much and which stock funds to buy. It would also monitor the progress of the investments.

Fierst's view is the most conservative of the three proposals the council will give to the Social Security Administration.

The most radical position is being pushed by Sylvester Schieber, a Washington economist on the council who would have every worker put about half of his or her payroll taxes into a "personal security account."

These accounts would be similar to individual retirement accounts, commonly called 401K plans, offered by many

The PSAs would be mandatory, but workers could choose how the funds in them would be invested. The funds would be held by private investment firms.

The savings that would be created under these options would grow to be so large that it would be impractical to have them invested through a centrally managed fund, said Schieber.

But Fierst argued that Schieber's plan would be bad for workers who make poor investment choices or retire when the market is in a downswing. How will the 75 million Americans who have never invested in the stock market know which choices to make? she asked.

plan favors high-paid workers, she said. And it is more vulnerable to insider trading problems and other swindles that plague the stock market, she

"Payments on Social Security have always been made and on time," Fierst said. "There have been no scandals. This is not true for the private markets."

A third recommendation, that goes beyond Fierst's but not as far as Schieber's is a plan to create individual accounts from 1.6 percent of the payroll deduction.

invest that amount, but it would be held by Social Security rather than a private investment firm.

In retirement, the benefits

Furthermore, the Schieber would be added to the person's monthly Social Security payment.

This plan would preserve the protections of the current Social Security system while raising national saving, said Edward Gramlich, a University of Michigan economist who chairs the advisory council.

He said his moderate response to modernizing the Social Security system "provides a convenient way to get some retirement funds invested in equities."

The advisory council was appointed in 1994 to make Workers could choose how to recommendations to the Social Security Administration on how to cope with the growing population of retirees.

A bit of history

This week marks the anniversary of several tragedies in our nation. This Thursday is the 17th anniversary of the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant accident on the Susquehanna River, southeast of Harrisburg.

In that disaster, equipment and other failures reportedly brought the facility close to a meltdown of the uranium core, which threatened extensive radiation contamination. The cause of the problems remains under investigation after all these years.

Monday we marked the 85th anniversary of a disaster at the Triangle Shirtwaste Co. in New York City. Minutes before the seamstresses were to leave work for the day, fire broke out, with many trapped in the 10-story building because management had locked doors and secured windows. While the fire lasted only 18 minutes, 146 persons, almost all women, perished.

There have been many other disasters over the years, caused by problems at the workplace. Many people have ancestors who may have perished in a situation of this type.

In the time period since the Shirtwaste fire. many changes have been made, including the restriction against locking doors of a business when employees are inside. In the case of the nuclear plant, many changes have been brought about to prevent any similar situation from occurring elsewhere in the nation.

Our point here is to call attention to the fact that no matter where we work or under what situations, we are often in danger. We may have regular fire inspections or safety inspections by officials who are knowledgeable in that field. Unfortunately, they only happen a few times such year.

What we suggest is that every business conduct an internatal safety check on a regular basis. The more often this is done, the better it will be for everyone concerned. management as well as labor.

We also suggest that employees who may find possible problems, take it upon themselves to report them to management. They may not prove to be serious or lifethreatening, but any problem which goes unresolved, could lead to even bigger problems.

The need is for everyone to practice safety at the workplace at all times. It could save jobs, it could save businesses, structures, and

They say nobody likes a squealer, but when it comes to protecting and preserving our safety, people should and must speak up.

No one wants to see any more disasters such as we have had in this last week of March in the past.

Reforming immigration reform

How important is immigration policy? Suppose America had adopted an Australian-style immigration code early on, and stuck to it. We quite possibly would have ended up like Australia. It's very important.

The Congress is now working on a major immigration bill, introduced by Sen. Alan Simpson, R.Wyo., and Rep. Lamar Smith, R. Texas. The proposed legislation is complicated. and still in the process of being shaped. But it can be tested against some uncomplicated ideas regarding population growth.

Americans aren't having many babies. Fer-tility rates are dropping again below the "replacement rate." Therefore, if legal immigration is discontinued. America would go into a slow-motion depopulation in the decades to come. If immigration is substantially reduced. we will grow only very slowly. Is this good or

It's no good geopolitically. A no-growth or slow-growth America does not square with some nice notions we have been hearing about: "America is the only superpower," or "a second American century." The early decades of the next century will see major population growth in other areas of the world. Of course, it is true that mere population size does not guarantee global

The other half is less recognized. The projected shortfall will come about because boomers had so few children of their own. The baby boom was followed the nomination pinned to his lapel like a campaign button, may I suggest he drop the "little wife" thing. You know, the bit where he says of Liddy. "When she is first lady, she will not be in charge of health care." Or worse yet. the times when he says, "She'll not be in charge of health care. Don't worry about it. I've already worked that out."

Many economists believe the Consumer Price Index, on which COLAs are based, actually inflates inflation. ### Dropping the little wife thing

I know it's been a real crowd-pleaser in the primaries, a thigh-slapper among the redmeat, angry-man contingent of the Republican Party. It's a routine in which the accomplished Liddy Dole shows how she's accomplished the wifely smile that says, "Oh, he didn't mean it that way." But for every applause he registered on the hate-Hillary meter, there is an unrecorded wince among women who know a put-down when they hear one. Running Liddy as the un-Hillary, running Bob as the anti-Hillary, is For one thing, Bob Dole isn't like that. Nor is Liddy Dole. Nor is their marriage. Nor is this subliminal tack against the uppltyness of the president's partner going to help with the women voters who are more up for grabs than the Democrats like to believe. Liddy Dole makes the most unlikely un-Hillary since Marilyn Quayle. Liddy and Hillary were both class presidents, both law school graduates. They're both intense. religious, driven perfectionists. Only Liddy was Liddy and Bob, the Cabinet secretary and the Senate leader, were the power couple for whom the term co-presidency was first invented. In the old days, they got the biggest applause lines when introduced as a Dole-Dole ticket. And while Liddy is his closest adviser, Dole has arguably more women in his innermost circle than the president. If Liddy has learned anything-from watching the hatcheting of Hillary, it's that she'd rather keep her day job at the Red Cross. Bob Dole is going to need some of the votes of those wincing women if he plans to get to the White House. These are the women who are avoiding the Republican primary. The female share of the primary electorate was expected to be about 53 percent. But only 45.5 percent of the Republican voters in lows were women, only 44 percent in New Hampshire and 41 percent in New York. That's not just a gender gap. That's an enthusiasm gap.

Let's go back to those wonderful yesteryears of 1992 and 1994. The difference between the Clinton "mandate" and Gingrich "sweep" wasn't just the much-heralded angry white men who went Republican, but the unenthusiastic women who stayed home. The

WASHINGTON - Now that Bob Dole has women's share of the vote dropped a critical 21/2 percent. They were 56 percent of the nonvoters

As Republican polister Kellyanne Fitzpatrick says. "The gender gap is no more a permanent political fixture than anything else in politics." To win, Republicans are going to have to attract the women on the fence, including what the pollsters like to call - in one of those wonderfully ambiguous phrases — suburban swing women.

They are also going to have to change the party image. When asked in one poll what springs to mind when they hear the word Republican, women offered up words like "white men," "old men" men," "old men" and "rich men." And just plain "men,"

Dole has problems in that department. He's stuck with an anti-abortion plank that three-quarters of his own party would like to get rid of. He's stuck with Raiph Reed and the crowd who want him to

Running Liddy as the un-Hillary, running Bob as the an-ti-Hillary, is a bad act.

pick a more conservative running mate bye, bye Christie Whitman. And he's stuck with Pat Buchanan, who threatens to turn the San Diego convention into a sequel of "Dallas: The Attack on the Uppity Woman."

There's a lot more to the women's vote than first lady politics but women are, um, sensitive to symbolism.

As a role model, may I suggest Bill Weld, the Republican who squeaked into the Massachusetts governor's chair with the help of those female suburban swingers. Now running for the Senate, the savvy Weld not only refused to trash the first lady, he offered to "be a character witness for Hillary Rodham

Bob Dole might choke on those words. But frankly. I'd like to see a campaign that appealed to women on economic substance rather than first lady symbolism. I'd like Dole to stop saying who isn't going to be in charge of health care and tell us who is, and what he plans to do about health care. But first he has to stop dissing the distaff.

Remember what suffragist Susan B. Anthony said? "No self-respecting woman should wish or work for the success of a party who ignores her sex." Susan B. was a Republican.

In order to operate his lounge, Currie is required to obtain a distance variance, as the city codes require a 2,000 foot distance between a church and a commercial establishment licensed to serve alcoholic beverages.

The request was discussed during the commission work session Monday afternoon, and brought up for a formal decision during the regular commission meeting. The vote was three to two to deny the request.

In the printed meeting agenda, City Manager Bill Simmons said he had actually found two churches within the 2,000 foot distance.

in work session discussion, Commissioner Whitey Eckstein vouched for Currie's credibility. saying they he had known him, and believed he would provide a good addition to the local business community.

Later during the regular meeting. Eckstein again commented on the matter. "I know I've spoken against granting any variances to the 2,000 foot limit in the past," he said, "but this business would be located on a main artery leading into Sanford, and I feel granting an exception would be a benefit to the city."

Again stressing that he had known Currie, "for a long time." Eckstein said he knew there were several other properties in existence within the city within a 2,000 foot distance. "I believe turning down this request would be restricting his (Currie's) rights," he added.

Commissioner Kerry Lyons took a different approach. "I think that the fact that this business is on a major artery is a good reason for turning down the request," he said. "People coming into our city would have the impression that we are a city of bars." Lyons said he couldn't vote in favor of the request.

When the matter was brought up for a formal vote during the commission meeting, Lyons was Joined by Commissioner Lon Howell and Mayor Bettye Smith in turning down the variance request.

Currie, who was on hand for the meeting, attempted to speak on the matter, but was quickly informed that the request was not a public hearing, and his input would not be accepted. 'We have already made our decision," Mayor Smith, "but if you want to discuss it, we'll give you that opportunity at the conclusion of our meeting.

When he finally had the opportunity to speak. Currie said the commission's decision left him "dumbfounded."

"I dare any of you to walk in the commercial areas of Sanford and not find a church and bar within the 2,000 foot distance," he said. "There are probably 200 churches in this town," he said. "How could you set up a business anywhere without running into this problem?'

Currie read portions of a Sanford Herald article regarding the expected influx of British tourists arriving at the Orlando/Sanford Airport. "They tell us the British are coming," he said, "and it's going to be up to us to give them some reason to come into Sanford. I don't see why a nice. friendly atmosphere business I want to have wouldn't help draw some of them.'

Commissioner Lyons observed, "All of us ton the commission) approved the requirements of a 2,000 distance, so I don't see why we should make any exceptions in it at this time.

"I've been here a long time," Currie concluded, "and I'm sold on Sanford, but it's a hard town to work with."

Lucid: Floating into Mir like coming home to friends

By MIKE DRAGO Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston -Floating into the Russian space station Mir for a five-month stay was like "coming back home to see your friends," NASA astronaut Shannon Lucid said

The 53-year-old blochemist, two days into her stay aboard the sprawling outpost, said Russian crew mates Yuri Onufrienko and Yuri Usachev have been most gracious as Shuttle Atlantis docked with Mir on Saturday night to drop off Lucid and more than 5,000 pounds of water, experiment equipment and other supplies. The five remaining shuttle astronauts will bid farewell to Lucid and the Russians on Thursday.

"We're really going to miss Shannon," Atlantis pilot Richard Searfoss said.

Lucid said that, so far, station life agrees with her. She likes the food, has slept well and has already staked out part of Mir as her own personal space.

"I felt very comfortable coming in," she said. "It was sort of like coming back home to see your friends. And they, Yuri and Yuri, have gone out of their way to make all of us feel very welcome and very comfortable in their home."

Edmund Muskie dead at 81

WASHINGTON - Former Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskle, a longtime Maine senator whose emotional defense of his wife may have cost him the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972, died early today at Georgetown University Hospital after suffering a heart attack. He was 81.

He underwent successful surgery last week to clear a blocked artery in his leg but suffered a heart attack a few days later while still in the hospital, said his assistant, Carole Parmelee of the law firm Chadbourne and Parke. Muskle died at 4:08 a.m. EST, the hospital said.

Muskle joined the law firm in 1981 after serving as secretary of state under President Carter.

In 1972, Muskie was an early favorite to win the Democratic presidential nomination but lost to then Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

Campaigning in the New Hampshire primary. Muskie was speaking from a flatbed trailer outside the Manchester Union Leader newspaper, denouncing a story critical of his wife, when he broke down in angry emotion.

The episode came to symbolize the collapse of his quest for the White House. "It changed people's minds about me, of what kind of guy I was," he later told author Theodore H. White. "They were looking for a strong, steady man, and here

Russia lifts ban on U.S. chicken

WASHINGTON - Russia has agreed to lift its ban on imports of U.S. chicken in return for assurance that all poultry shipments will be checked for salmonella - a test not required in the United States.

Russia requires that its domestic poultry be checked for salmonella, a potentially deadly bacteria, and complained that U.S. imports do not meet its safety standards.

Under the agreement announced by Vice President Al Gore. samples from each poultry shipment will be tested for aalmonella according to Russian procedures.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is working on new rules to improve meat and poultry inspections within this country. The rules, expected out in about a month, may include microbe testing for salmonella.

The department has acknowledged that "there is a gap in the system and we have not routinely checked for pathogens," said Jacque Knight, spokeswoman for the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service.

"We believe we will come up with the best combination of testing to better protect consumers," she said.

U.S. officials have said Russia was using the ban in part to protect its domestic chicken industry, and questions linger about other Russian trade practices regarding chicken.

WASHINGTON — Smokers trying to quit soon can buy a new nasal spray that gives them a squirt of nicotine to help resist cigarette cravings.

The Food and Drug Administration announced Monday that Nicotrol NS was approved for sale even though inhaling the pure nicotine poses a small risk that smokers will become as dependent on the mist as they are on cigarettes.

Smokers should try to use the spray for just three months and never longer than six months - to reduce that risk, the

McNeil Consumer Products, which will sell Nicotrol NS, said the appay, will be in pharmacies later this year, but wouldn't give an exact date or price.

Despite the risk, Nicotrol NS "will be a very big help Ri amokers in general, but specifically to the heavier smokers," said Dr. Richard Hurt, director of the nicotine dependency center at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

"It's clearly safer for the patient to use the nicotine nasal opray than cigarettes."

Mad cow disease fears rage on

LONDON — Irish police patrolled the border with Northern Ireland today to block British cows from slipping in and British Airways said it has stopped serving British beef to children as fears about mad cow disease raged on.

Thalland joined the list of more than 20 countries that have banned imports of British beef. In Britain, consumers rejected beef in growing numbers, confused about the risks. But Health Secretary Stephen Dorrell insisted today it remains "a safe product," and claimed Britain's critics have got it wrong.

"I agree with The Sun newspaper this morning which says it isn't the cows that are mad, it's the people that are going mad." Dorrell told BBC radio. "Livelihoods are being threatened by goesip.

The revolt against British beef started last Wednesday, when Dorrell announced that scientists believe the cattle disease was the "most likely" cause of 10 human cases of Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease, a similar degenerative illness. At least eight victims have died

The government admission has sent the $6 billion British beef industry into a free fall.

Scientists say mad cow disease was caused by the practice of supplementing cattle feed with sheep offal infected with the brain-wasting disease, scrapic. Such feed was banned in 1969.

Dorrell told Parliament on Monday that British beef was as safe for children as it is for adults and that the risk of getting Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease was "extremely small." He instated that no new action was needed to root the disease out of British herds, even though Britain has 400 times the number of mad cow cases as the rest of the world combined.

Mandela's lawyer denies assault report

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa - President Nelson Mandela's lawyer says a newspaper report that Mandela was assaulted by his ex-wife. Winnie, after they separated in 1992 is "devoid of any truth."

A weekly newspaper reported Sunday that the former Mrs. Mandela, who now uses the name Winnie Madikizela-Mandela, attacked her husband more than once, and that a bodyguard once drew a firearm to protect the president. The report was attributed to an unidentified source.

Wim Trengove, Mandela's lawyer, said Monday the president was "disturbed and upset" by the report in the City Press newspaper, which he said never attempted to verify the report with Mandela.

Mandela, 77, and his ex-wife were divorced last week after 38 years of marriage. Mandela spent 27 of those years in prison until his release in 1980, followed by four years of negotiations that culminated with the nation's first all-race election in 1994 that brought him to power.

During the divorce hearing. Mandela accused his ex-wife of having an affair. The judge granted the divorce despite repeated attempts by Madikizela-Mandela. 60, to get the hearing postponed.

Oscars: Fresh faces in unusual places

By JOHN HORN AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES - Role reversal was the rule at the Academy Awards, where an actor. Mel Gibson, won for directing, an actress, Emma Thompson, triumphed for screenwriting and rookies looked like pros.

Gibson's "Braveheart" won a leading five Oscars on Monday night, including best picture and director. Gibson also starred in the epic about a 13th-century Scottish patriot.

Gibson, a plaid vest flashing from between the lapels of his tuxedo, thanked writer Randall Wallace and producer Alan Ladd Jr. for bringing the script to a 'fiscal imbecile.

'Now that I'm a bona fide director with a golden boy," Gibson said during his acceptance speech, "I suppose what I really want to do is act."

"Braveheart" was only Gibson's second outing as a director, the first being "The Man Without a Face" in 1993. He follows a line of Oscar-winning actors-turned-directors: Robert Redford, Warren Beatty, Woody Allen, Kevin Costner.

Thompson, an on-screen acting force from "Howards End" and "The Remains of the Day." won for her screenplay adaptation of the Jane Austen novel 'Sense and Sensibility" - her first produced movie script.

And clearly, inexperience was no hindrance. Nicolas Cage took the best actor award for his role as a suicidal alcoholic in "Leaving Las Vegas," his first appearance in the category. Mira Sorvino ("Mighty Aphrodite") and Kevin Spacey ("The Usual Suspects") collected Oscars for supporting actress and supporting actor in their first nominations.

Sorvino thanked her father as the veteran actor openly sobbed in the audience. "When you give me this award you honor my father, Paul Sorvino, who taught me everything I know about acting," she said.

Spacey thanked his mother for driving him to acting classes when he was 16: "I told you it would pay off, and here's the pudding.

Cage breezed to the podium and marveled that "Leaving Las Vegas" could be made for $3.5 militon, and on 16mm film stock when most movies are made on 35mm or 70mm film.

"I know it's not hip to say it but I just love acting and I hope that there will be more encouragement for alternative movies where we can experiment and fast-forward into the future of acting," he said. Nomination veteran Susan Sarandon won for best actress for "Dead Man Walking," her first win in five tries. In a three-hour, 36-minute show with Whoopi Goldberg as host, political comments and discussion of national Oscar pickets were kept to a minimum.

Goldberg quickly moved to defuse the Rev. Jesse Jackson's call to protest the show because there was only one black person out of 166 nominees.

Ridiculing Jackson's call for all Oscar participants to wear rainbow-colored ribbons to signify their concern, Goldberg quipped: "You don't ask a black woman to buy an expensive dress and then cover it with ribbons."

Several hundred of Jackson's followers marched outside ABC stations across the nation, but the issue was insignificant inside the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion.

Not that the evening was without its highly charged moments.

In a surprise appearance.

paralyzed "Superman" actor Christopher Reeve came out onto the Oscar stage in his wheelchair and issued a call for more socially responsible

Following a movie montage from such issue-driven films as "Norma Rae," "Philadelphia,"
"Coming Home," and "Thelma and Louise," Reeve urged Hollywood to continue making movies more centered in virtue than profits. "Hollywood needs to do more," he said. "Let's continue to take risks. Let's tackle the issues. In many ways our film community can do it better than anyone else."

Kirk Douglas, his speech impaired by a recent stroke, received an honorary Oscar for '50 years as a creative and moral force in the making of motion picture community." He has never won an acting Oscar despite a remarkable film career that includes "Spartacus." "Lonely Are the Brave," "Lust for Life" and dozens of other

In the first game Lake Howell's Ricky Padilla evened his record at 2.2 by giving up one earned run on four hits while striking out six and walking none.

Split gives softball team shot at second

From Bloff Reports

SANFORD - Seminole Community College railied to win a marathon in the first game, but could not pull off the same magic in the second game as it split a Mid-Plorida Conference softball doubleheader with Valencia Community College on Sunday. The Raiders accored a run in the bottom of the seventh to tie the game at 6-6 and then won 7-6 on bases-loaded walk to winning pitcher Heather Hutchinson in the 10th in the opening game. SCC led early in the second game, but the Matadors came up with four runs in the top of the seventh and held off the Raiders to make the final score 8-6 VCC.

We did a great job in the first game — coming from behind in the bottom of the seventh to tie the score," said SCC coach Courtney Miller. "What hurt us the most was the five errors and leaving 17 runners on base. We have to step up and come through with the hits when runners are in scoring position.

"In the second game we were just going through the motions for most of the game. We had three errors in the fourth inning that led to three uncarned runs. We made a galiant effort in the seventh to come back, but we just fell short. We're not out of

THE TIME KEEPER

y Bon Summers (Business Review Writer)

R.D. "Bob" Lowry is a Horologist. He is a maker of clocks, a person who is skilled in the repair of various time pieces treasured and handed down through the ages of time.

To be qualified and certified with this title a great many hours of training and dedication in the craft is needed.

Horology itself is the science of measuring time which includes the art of building instruments in order to tell time.

The repair, rebuilding or reconstruction of time pieces is where the craftsman reaches back to the thousands of hours experience he has had in order to complete work on a complicated French. German or Grandfather clocks hundreds of years old. Working with exceptional rare antique clocks is one of Bob's specialties and helping individuals who wish to form a clock collection is also something Bob always enjoys. Whether it is a single piece to grace the mantle of their home or office or a collector who eventually has a "clock shop" in mind for future retirement, you will appreciate the 17-year resource of knowledge of this expert. As a former teacher at a Horology Clock

School at one of the local Florida Technical Schools. Bob Lowry is such a person. He has hundreds of hours of teaching behind him. He is a Lifetime member of the National Association of Watch and Clock Collectors, a member of the American Clock and Watch Institute and a member of the British Horological Institute. He is known throughout the business community, is a native of the area and resides in Sanford. Florida.

A great deal of travel comes with the territory of clock repair and since Bob is interested in buying and selling as well as repair work, he is always interested in one piece or a collection of clocks anywhere in the United

Bob Lowry with one of his antique clocks.

Over the years antique clocks have become his specialty. Clocks such as the popular Regulators are always in demand but grandfathers, bracket, wall and mantle as well as any foreign built clocks from France, England. Germany and Switzerland are of interest to him, whether buying or repairing.

It is fascinating to talk with Bob about the steps he takes in dismantling a time piece. how each step is carried out as to cleaning. repairing and various procedures of proper drying (all this takes time) and the final steps of rebuilding the timepiece from replacing teeth in a gear, rebushing, straightening pivots that are bent, to replacing broken springs and the care of returning it to its owner. Bob said, "regardless of who does your clock repair, ask questions such as: Are they certified? How long have they been in the business?

Antique dealers rely on his service. Often the "works" of an antique clock will be shipped to him, repaired and shipped back.

Future vet helps care for animals

By BUSAN WEN Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - A love of animals has been the motivating drive that has kept Mindy Flamenbaum active in her volunteer efforts with the Orlando Humane Society. She has adopted one of the kittens to whom she was a foster parent.

As a student at Seminole Community College, Flamenbaum has set her sights on a career in veterinary medicine. Her plans were to transfer to University of Fiorida in Gainesville next year to continue that dream.

Five out of the eight months she has lived in Sanford have been spent volunteering as a "foster parent" for the Orlando Humane Society. She has pro-vided a safe shelter, nourishment and care for over 17 felines during that course of time.

"I heard about the program from a friend," she said. "I love animals. This was ideal because I could taken them into my apartment and they can become a part of the family.

Flamenbaum now has three cats including one who was was adopted from the Humane Society after residing in her home as a "foster baby." Squeeky received attention and love from her and then became another permanent feline in the

The driving force behind her volunteer efforts was named as . the "love for all types of animals." She extends herself to the organization for whatever free time she can afford.

"I love to be able to help and love the animals," she said. "They're so helpless and so many people mistreat them. I just want to help."

According to Flamenbaum she retrieves the kittens and as a "foster parent" they reside with her until they reach a weight of two and a half pounds and are spayed or neutered. Then the cuddly balls of fur are ready for adoption.

"The Orlando Humane Society advertises that they are available for adoption," she said. "The people will call me if they are interested. I speak to them over the phone and then meet them at my apartment."

Flamenbaum added the importance of the meeting process. "They get to see the kitten and what it looks like. They also get to see its personality. I can see what they are like and their personality and determine if the kitten and individual(s) are compatible and if their personalities match."

Providing "litter, food and lots of love and attention and socalization" was named as the top priorities of a "foster par-ent." Flamenbaum takes her position seriously and encouraged others to become involved.

The truths about trees

The following truths about trees and tree care come from the book "Your Florida Landscape" by Dr. K. Ruppert and Dr. R. Black, published by the University of Florida. Most trees do not have taproots. The deep roots that grow directly beneath the trunks of some trees are known as taproots. Taproots may develop on some trees in the woods in well-drained soils. Taproots generally do not form on trees planted in urban landscapes nor do they develop when the soil is compacted or the water table is close to the soilsurface. Some cake and pieces will develop taproots when planted in sandy, well-drained

Roots grow far beyond the edge of the branches. A tree growing in the woods has a root system reaching well beyond the outer perimeter of its branches, often to a distance from the trunk equal to the tree's height. Roots on trees and shrubs planted in a landscape grow to about three times the branch spread within 2 or 3 years after planting.

Most roots are in the top 3 feet of soil. The finer roots are concentrated in the top foot of soil. Most tree roots are located within the top 3 feet of soil. In well-drained soil, some roots grow 10 feet or deeper beneath the trunk. However, because the majority of the fine roots are concentrated in the top foot of soil, minor soil disturbances can injure or remove a large portion of the absorbing roots on a tree. Especially vulnerable are trees growing near construction sites.

AL FERRER injuries inflicted by heavy equipment during construction (or at any other time) can cause major and permanent damage to the tree. Because a tree does not replace injured tissue (heal) like an animal does, a wound or injury to its trunk, branches or roots permanently reduces the tree's capacity to fend off insects, disease or other potential stresses. Many roots are destroyed when heavy equipment operates over the root system. Even one pass over the root system with heavy equipment can cause significant root damage.

To save a tree during con-struction, do not disturb soil beneath the branch driplines. Because 50 percent of a tree's root system is located betweeen its trunk and its dripline, sturdy fences should be constructed at the dripline to prevent equip-ment and vehicles from operating in or crossing over this sensitive area. Tree roots extend much further than the dripline. However, it is usually not practical to protect the entire root area. Protecting the area within the dripline and good irrigation management are the most important measures in helping to prevent construction-related tree decline.

If a tree survives the first 2 to 4 years following construction, it may still die from construction-related injuries. Trees may decline quickly or alowly after construction of a building. Often, branches begin dying within a year or two due to severe root damage. The tree may be dead within 3 or 4 years. Even if a tree does not show obvious signs of decline for many years, branches may quickly lose leaves and begin a rapid decline following a drought period. A year or two later, the tree may be dead.

Trees do not heal, but they are capable of isolating injured tiesue from healthy wood. When trees are injured, they do not replace the cells lost in the indeveloping around a trunk wound or pruning scar is simply closing over the injured tissue. not healing it. In order to stay alive, a tree must seal off injured tissue from its healthy portions. The storage capacity and func-tions of the injured parts are forever lost. Additional injuries seal off more wood, which further reduces the supply of available energy and can cause the tree to slowly starve.

Wound dressings and pruning paints do not prevent wood rot.

marriage life before ife accepts

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for years. A letter in your column today really caught my eye. It reminded me of a conversation I had with one of my sisters years ago.

The letter was written by a woman who was irritated that her husband of 12 years still kept old letters from a former girlfriend

My sister and I were looking through some old picture albums when she came across a picture of my husband and a pretty girl, taken before we were married. She looked puzzled and said: "How come he still has pictures of his old girlfriend? I sure wouldn't let my husband keep pictures of his old girlfriends!"

I replied: "Listen, I didn't find him under a cabbage leaf. He wasn't born the day before he mar-ried me. He had a life, and she was part of it. I also had a life before him and I have mementos of that life. Our experiences make us what we are, and any and all memories he chooses to preserve are fine with

"We have been married almost 40 years. He has stood by me during good times and bad, and has been a loyal and loving husband always. He's been a wonderful father to our daughter and a wonderful grandfather as well. And the best part of all is that he chose me to marry. So he can keep as many pictures, letters and souvenirs from his past as he cares to. I have kim!" PAT IN ST. HELENB. ORE.

DEAR PAT: Wow! What a sessible attitude, My congratula-tions to both of you. You are lucky to have found each other.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning "Distraught Middle Child," whose sister and brother refused to attend her wedding if the other one was going to be there.

You were right on when you said it was unfair to have put her on the spot. However, Abby, I believe "Dis-traught" would find less grief with these petty people if she were to extend the invitation to both of them, and let them wreatle with the decision of whether or not to attend the sister's wedding.

By forcing them to make the decision, she is removing herself from their game. If she doesn't invite either one, they will undoubt-edly haunt her with that for the rest of her life.

SHARON L. RUDD. EUGENE, ORE

DEAR SHARON: Your oug-

and let the brother and sister make the decision to attend the wedding or stay home was the intelligent way to handle it. Why didn't I think of that?

DEAR ABBY: Is it proper at bridal or baby showers to place a thank-you note at each luncheon plate instead of sending individual thank-you notes following the gift opening?

I should think if a person had cared enough to spend the time and money for a gift and attend the shower, a personal note of thanks (which would take five minutes at the most) and a 32-cent stamp aren't too much to expect.

Your opinion, please.

Is biopsy needed for breast lump?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Seven years ago I had a mastectomy because of a lump in my left breast that was found to be malignant. This week my doctor found a lump in my right breast that did not show up on a mammogram. He suggested I do nothing for six months since he believes it is non-malignant and is a fibrocystic growth. Could a fibroid be felt on physical examination and not seen on mammogram?

DEAR READER: A benign fibrocystic growth is more dense than the surrounding normal breast tissue. This is the reason it can be felt as a lump.

Ordinarily, such growths are visible on a mammogram. However, they usually can be distinguished from mallgnancies; for one thing, they ordinarily do not contain flecks of calcium, as do many breast cancers.

I do not know why the fibrocystic area was not visible on the mammogram. Perhaps you have so-called "cystic" breasts, so that several areas of hyper dense tissue were evident, obscuring the area in question. Thus, the X-rays were inconclusive. Ultrasound would probably have solved the problem, but, apparently, was not used.

In any case, you should definitely continue to be monitored. As you know, breast cancer on one side enormously increases a woman's risk of having a malignancy in the opposite Consequently, if the fibrocystic area grows - or even if it remains stationary for several months - you may want to consider biopsy, just to be on the safe side. One last option: Seek a second opinion from a surgeon who is well-versed in breast diseases.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 39-year old female in good health. I exercise three to four times a week by playing tennis, fitness walking or roller blading. Lately, my knees often feel weak when I walk up or down stairs, and I am worried that I'm headed for greater problems as I age. Is there anything I can do to strengthen my knees, and would you recommend wearing a brace on my knees as I see some women do on the tennis court? DEAR READER: The problem you describe — some weakness on stairs - is probably due to quadricep deconditioning. The quadricep muscles of the thigh flex and extend the lower leg. You can strengthen these muscles with special exercises, such as leg lifts, or use the machines designed for this purpose in fitness centers.

I do not believe that your knees are to blame, because you are not experiencing pain. Therefore, I don't recommend knee braces, which are useful primarily for unstable joints, such as can occur from injuries or arthritis. Braces protect but do not rehabilitate. I think that you would be better served by a program of strengthening.

ago a salesman stopped by our farm selling weed spray. We bought some thefore all the concern about toxic chemicals). Through the years we used it sparingly but still, even today, vegetation does not grow well. This spring we mixed good soil on top, thinking the dilution would be OK and because my husband wanted a garden. I have refused to cat any of the produce because of the "contaminated" soil, and my husband thinks I'm crazy. Who's right?

DEAR READER: Many herbicides remain in the soil and can affect future plant growth. Others are biologically degraded to harmless substances. Before condemning your new garden, try to discover (through the salesman's company) what ingredients were used in the weed spray.

As has been pointed out many times, defense is the hardest part of bridge. If you would like to learn more about this aspect of the game, read the new book "Defensive Signals" by Marshall Miles (C&T Bridge Supplies; 800-525-47t8; $20.95 pp).

The title of this expensive 215-page paperback is misleading because Miles covers everything including leads (both opening and in the middle of the deal), defensive strategy and deduction. Although Miles discusses the basics of defense, the book contains mostly high-level material. And the author prefers upside-down signals, using them from page 62 onward. (In case you are interested, I agree with Miles that these are better than normai signale.) This is one of the easier deals in the book. Defending against three no-trump,

West leads the heart five, declarer winning with dummy's jack. Now South runs the diamond queen to West's king. West switches to a club. After winning with the ace, how does East know what to do next? If partner started with acequeen-fifth of hearts, a heart is the killing return. But with this layout, the only winning play is a club.

The answer is supplied by West's club lead. If West leads his lowest club, East should return a club. Whereas if West leads a high club spot, East should switch back to hearts.

Here. West switches to the club two. so East wins with the ace and leads back the club 10, defeating the con-

As Miles points out, after dummy is exposed, high spot-card leads are used to discourage the return of that suit.
