POLICE

IN BRIEF

Bald tire brings arrest for both pill and pot

WINTER SPRINGS — Winter Springs police noted the bald tire on the rear of a car and because of that a Union Park man faces drug-related charges.

Police reported stopping the car of Douglas Michael Campbell, 20, on S. Moss Lane at about 1 p.m. Monday. They pointed out his faulty tire and learned he was driving with a suspended license. Campbell was arrested.

In a search police reported finding one Valium tablet and less than 20 grams of marijuana in his possession. He was charged with possession of both drugs and was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

The 1988 Suzuki jeep of Diane D. Smecke, of 102 Lamont Ave., Longwood, was stolen Saturday from Silver Leaf Court, Longwood. A sheriff's report valued the car at $12,000.

SANFORD — Seminole County sheriff's deputies continue an investigation into the robbery of a service station. The clerk at the Texaco station on Red Bug Lake Road, rural Winter Springs, told deputies the robber hit him on the side of the head with a 12-inch hunting knife.

A $300 radar detector was stolen along with about $2,600 in clothing from the car of Jack Mutchnik, of 2207 Earleat Court, Longwood, Tuesday, a sheriff's report said.

Court to reconsider civil rights ruling

By Andrea Neal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, voting 5-4, announced Monday that it will reconsider a major 1976 civil rights ruling, provoking four justices to predict that discrimination victims will lose faith in the court's ability to protect them.

The rare public airing of discord within the court suggests there may be a growing polarization between its conservative and liberal wings over the direction the court should take on civil rights law.

The court's action came in a pending race discrimination case that has already been argued on other issues. In a three-page unsigned order, the court announced it would hear the case again and directed the lawyers to discuss whether the 1976 Runyon vs. McCrary decision should be overturned.

The Runyon decision held that the Civil Rights Act of 1866 prohibits private schools from excluding qualified children solely because they are black. The ruling largely settled the debate over whether civil rights guarantees enacted after the Civil War protected blacks from discrimination by private entities as well as acts by government.

The law provides that all citizens "shall have the same right to make and enforce contracts as is enjoyed by white citizens."

Five members of the court voted to rehear the issue, including Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justices Byron White, Sandra Day O'Connor, Antonin Scalia and the newest member, Anthony Kennedy.

The court's three most liberal members, Justices William Brennan, Thurgood Marshall and Harry Blackmun, voted against hearing the issue, as did Justice John Paul Stevens.

Both Blackmun and Stevens wrote harsh dissents from the decision to hear the dispute, with Stevens labeling the court's action "a self-inflicted wound."

"To recognize an equality right — a right that 12 years ago we thought 'well-established' — and then to declare unceremoniously that perhaps we were wrong and had better reconsider our prior judgment, is to replace what is ideally a sense of guaranteed right with the uneasiness of unsecured privilege," Stevens said.

The decision to reconsider the issue will both adversely affect "the faith of victims of racial discrimination in a stable construction of civil rights laws," and "have a detrimental and enduring impact on the public's perception of the court as an impartial adjudicator," he wrote.

Blackmun said he could see "no justification for the bare majority's apparent eagerness to consider rewriting well-established law."

"I am at a loss to understand the motivation of five members of this court to reconsider an interpretation of a civil rights statute that so clearly reflects our society's earnest commitment to ending racial discrimination and in which Congress so evidently has acquiesced."

The outcome of the case won't be known for about a year. It will not be argued until next fall and a decision is unlikely before 1989.

Civil rights advocates have long feared that President Reagan's appointments to the high court could shift its balance on a host of issues, including racial bias and affirmative action. The administration, however, has had little success to date in pushing its view that affirmative action discriminates against whites and that civil rights laws have been extended too far.

Since the 7-2 Runyon decision, three Reagan appointees have joined the court — O'Connor, Scalia and Kennedy — and Rehnquist, who was appointed by President Nixon, was elevated to chief justice.

In the Runyon decision, the four justices opposing review on Monday were in the majority. Rehnquist and White were the two dissenters from the 1976 ruling.

The court will tackle the issue in a case brought by Brenda Patterson, who is appealing a ruling that racial harassment by an employer is not discrimination under Section 1981 of the 1866 law.

Patterson, a black, sued the Melean Credit Union of Virginia in 1982 after she was laid off, arguing she had been the target of racial harassment since she was hired in 1972.

Patterson's lawyer, Charles S. Ralston of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, said the court may have decided to consider the issue because of a lower court's recent ruling in another case that a private company could not be sued for discrimination on the basis of national origin.

"You wonder what precipitated this," he said, adding that recent decisions "seemed to indicate everybody accepted it and was moving on."

Three guerrillas, two Israelis die in clash

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Three Arab guerrillas trying to enter northern Israel on a mission against a civilian settlement fatally shot two Israeli soldiers before being killed in a shoot-out, army officials said.

Two Israeli soldiers also were wounded, one seriously, in the Tuesday clash 200 yards inside the Israeli border on the western slopes of Mount Dov, an army spokesman said.

The border incursion was the first since Palestine Liberation Organization leaders vowed to carry out reprisals against Israel for the April 16 assassination of PLO military commander Khalid al-Wazir, known as Abu Jihad, in Tunisia.

PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat accused Israeli agents of killing his deputy, and news reports from Israel have said the slaying was carried out by an elite commando unit.

Israel has made no public comment on the slaying, but Tuesday revoked the credentials of two correspondents working for U.S. news organizations who reported that Israeli commandos were responsible.

Glenn Frankel of The Washington Post and Martin Fletcher of NBC News were stripped of their press cards because they failed to submit their reports on the assassination to Israeli military censors.

Both Fletcher and Frankel, in separate reports, quoted Israeli sources as saying the killing was carried out by an Israeli commando team consisting of members of the Mossad intelligence agency, the army, the navy and the air force.

Reflections on tax reform law

Just to take a mortgage interest deduction this year, you may have ended up filling out a new and lengthy tax form. Even though Congress last year decided that the 1986 Tax Act's new mortgage interest rules would be unworkably complicated in many cases, and it therefore simplified them considerably in a 1987 law, that 1987 law won't apply until next year; hence this year's ungainly procedure. Of course, the 1987 law may itself be revised in a bill currently pending to correct several hundred errors remaining in both the 1986 and 1987 tax acts. And so it goes.

The good news is that those who don't itemize deductions and whose income is relative low and relatively simple (coming only from wages and bank account interest) will hardly know that anything's changed on their 1040EZs and 1040As. The bad news is that everyone else has to cope with up to 20 new forms applicable to individuals, some of which have to be filled out in their entirety just to find out that you don't need to submit them, and hundreds of new IRS regulations, some of which aren't even written yet.

You're not supposed to grump, because there was no way to broadly overhaul the old tax code without broad disruption of old habits. Besides, the loss of a number of traditional middle-class deductions is supposed to be balanced by the new, higher standard deduction. But that higher deduction, for non-itemizers, doesn't go into effect until the 1988 tax year. Meanwhile, the cost of hiring accountants has jumped with the cost of their new, far from glitch-free, computer programs. The IRS itself is giving out incorrect tax advice to between one-fourth and one-half of those calling in for help. And when the dust settled April 15???, an expected 6.2 million taxpayers had given up and requested extensions.

Fair the new tax law may be. But simple? Not on your life. On the other hand, that has its advantages. In part because of the new law's complications, the feds estimate that they will only get around to auditing about 1 percent of individual taxpayers this year, down from more than twice that rate 10 years ago.

An IRS footnote

This just in: The Internal Revenue Service, harshly criticized earlier this year for giving taxpayers the right answers to their questions only 61 percent of the time, is getting more accurate.

A new report from the U.S. General Accounting Office finds that the IRS is now giving accurate information 62 percent of the time.

With this kind of steady improvement, we can look forward to the day sometime in the next century when a taxpayer can call this agency and have a reasonable chance of obtaining correct information.

The IRS accuracy rate is one of the more amazing measures of federal ineptitude we have seen. It is incredible on its face; it is more incredible to realize that this comedy of errors is funded by the same taxpayers who are regularly supplied with wrong answers.

Congress deserves at least partial credit for this uncanny level of incompetence. In performing the miracle of tax reform, it has rewritten the tax laws so cleverly that people trained by the federal government to understand and explain them are unable to do so.

The number to call for IRS advice is 1-800-424-1040. Why would anyone call it? Well, why do people play the lottery or jump from airplanes? Americans love to take risks. The IRS knows this. If we could expect to get the correct answer every time, how much fun would it be?

New York City's development with soul

NEW YORK (NEA) — Battery Park City, offering luxury town houses and condominium apartments at prices up to $840,000 per unit, appears at first glance to be another real estate development catering to overpaid young urban professionals.

"It could have been a yuppie haven," admits Meyer S. (Sandy) Frucher, who's in charge of the ambitious project, but he says that didn't happen because New York Gov. Mario Cuomo "was committed to giving it soul."

When the governor inherited responsibility for the state-owned project overlooking the Hudson River after assuming office in 1983, he was disturbed that his government housing to sell to wealthy New Yorkers.

Cuomo appointed Frucher president of the Battery Park City Authority and gave him a mandate to transform the project into a socially useful enterprise.

Frucher, in turn, has earmarked $1 billion in Battery Park City profits for deposit in the nation's largest housing trust fund. It will finance either new construction or rehabilitation of existing apartments to provide desperately needed shelter for low- and middle-income renters during the next decade.

That unique program eventually could pay for as many as 60,000 new apartments and its first phase already is underway, with Battery Park City's money being used to finance the rehabilitation of about 60 abandoned buildings in Harlem and South Bronx. One-third of the 1,850 units will be reserved for those now homeless.

That aid is desperately needed because President Reagan has slashed federal housing assistance more severely than almost any other domestic program. "New York City alone has lost $7 billion in government housing assistance since Reagan was inaugurated," says Frucher.

One recent study, commissioned by the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corp., predicts that by early in the next century 18.7 million Americans will lack affordable housing — but the construction of new public housing already has been virtually halted.

Similarly, Harvard University's Joint Center for Housing Studies recently reported that 5 million renters and 4.5 million owners live in substandard housing across the country. "America increasingly is becoming a nation of housing haves and have-nots," the center concluded.

In addition to alleviating those problems, Battery Park City's executives are attempting to fashion a model of manageable, human-scale urban development on a 92-acre Hudson River landfill created in lower Manhattan when tons of dirt were excavated for the adjacent World Trade Center.

Fully 30 percent of that space has been set aside for parks, plazas and other public facilities — including a 1.2-mile-long esplanade along the river and the Winter Garden.

Frucher's state agency eventually will spend $4 billion on what he describes as the largest mixed-use real estate development in the country — but Battery Park City is much more than a triumph of money and size.

The quality of both its planning and its execution led New York Times architecture critic Paul Goldberger to characterize it as "close to a miracle" and "one of the better pieces of urban design of modern times."

Promoting risky banking

WASHINGTON — Americans old enough to remember the Great Depression are mindful of the importance of keeping banks safe and sound. Bank failures after the 1929 stock market crash wiped out the savings of countless people.

To prevent a repetition of the collapse of lending institutions, Congress passed the Glass-Steagall Act. Banks were prohibited from speculating in stocks and instruments of corporate debt. These risky activities were outlawed.

Fifty-five years later, Congress is ready to scrap the Glass-Steagall safeguards. The Senate Banking Committee has approved legislation that would allow commercial banks to speculate in securities, to sell insurance, and engage in other activities long restricted. One has to wonder at the thinking of the senators on the committee. Their decision to allow risky investment activities by banks comes roughly five months after the stock market crash of October 19 which wiped out billions of dollars worth of value in stocks and endangered major investment firms. A new generation imagined that it couldn't happen.

The committee's approval of banks taking risks comes at a time of profound instability in the banking industry. Major money center banks have a colossal amount of bad debt on their books. Loans to Latin American countries have gone sour. The likelihood is that the banks won't receive much interest in the future on these loans, let alone repayment of principal. A debt moratorium in Latin America—a real possibility—could cause major banks to collapse, with a ripple effect through the country. The U.S. government already has had to bail out large banks; many others are on the endangered list.

It's been said that the United States has become a kind of Casino Society in recent years. It's time to stop playing fast and loose in the financial arena. If the U.S. Senate as a whole favors stabilization of the nation's banking system, it will shelve the legislative proposal recommended by the Banking Committee. It's time to focus on safety in banking.

Failed space park saga is Washington tale

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The White House came within a hair of endorsing a $700 million government lease on a private "industrial park" in space, even though there was no competitive bidding on the project and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration wasn't sold on the idea.

The saga of the space park is a classic Washington tale of influence and power. This time, those with power say they went out of their way not to influence anyone. But their names may have been enough to put a shine on the deal anyway.

Space Industries Inc., a young Houston firm, orchestrated the political game for its proposed orbiting industrial park. The company hoped to capitalize on the Reagan administration's plan to privatize much of what the government planned to do in space, and planned to rent parts of the facility to private companies that needed to test products and theories in space.

NASA agreed to launch the industrial space facility with the Space Shuttle. But Space Industries needed more than that from the government. The small company needed a big financial backer, such as the U.S. government, as its prime tenant in space.

The Houston firm took its proposal for a $700 million, five-year government lease to the powerful

Hijacking, war linked

PARIS (NEA) — During the last 90 days Iran's war effort against Iraq has sagged badly. Iraq has won several major battles. Tehran has more frequently come under missile attack, and, most ominously for the mullahs, military recruitment has fallen off to the point where it threatens Iran's war effort.

Western intelligence experts stationed in Paris believe these factors go a long way toward explaining seemingly unrelated recent activities including the hijacking of Kuwait Airways flight 422 and clashes between U.S. and Iranian warships in the Persian Gulf.

The more the experts study the hijacking of KU422, the more convinced they are that it was among the best planned and most sophisticated ever carried out. The experts are now certain that Iran was behind the effort, and the 747's initial stop in Mashhad in northeastern Iran was the key to the entire plan.

Several experienced military and security men were passengers on the plane and carefully observed what transpired. Their observations show the depth of Iranian involvement.

After the Kuwaiti jumbo jet took off from Bangkok on April 5 it was taken over by as few as four, or at most six, hijackers. They were armed with several small caliber pistols and a few small hand grenades. It was obvious that several of the hijackers had a thorough knowledge of the 747 aircraft, as they moved immediately to secure the plane so storming it would be almost impossible.

The crew was instructed to fly to Mashhad. The hijackers, who had been tense and nervous, relaxed when the plane landed in Iran and began to act as if their mission had already been accomplished.

From several witnesses it is now clear that in Iran at least three and possibly four additional hijackers came on board. They carried heavy machine pistols, several crates of much larger grenades and what are believed to be plastic explosive and arming devices. Moreover, the hijacker who appeared to be in charge between Bangkok and Mashhad started taking orders from several of the new arrivals.

What happened on the ground in Mashhad and later in Cyprus and Algeria is now seen as carefully calculated. First all Westerners were released, apparently to prevent a rescue attempt by the U.S. or Britain or other Western nation. Then gradually, other hostages were released until, at the end, the only ones remaining on board were Sunni Muslims, almost all of whom were Kuwaiti.

The two passengers who were killed and thrown to the tarmac at Larnaca, Cyprus, were both Sunnis, as is Kuwait's ruling Al Sabah family. No Shiites, who account for most of the Iranian population, were mistreated.

Jackson's New York education

The New York Democratic primary was real Americana, a toe-to-toe of unmeltable and impolite ethnics, an education for Jesse Jackson, the elimination round for Al Gore—really tough stuff.

Point number one. In the furnace of American street-fighting politics, the Rev. Jesse Jackson is, I think, genuinely beginning to understand the manners of American pluralism. Jackson is beginning, slowly, to learn that he has to hear, actually hear, American Jews. True enough, Mayor Ed Koch had to hit him on the head with a two-by-four, saying out loud that Jews would have to be "crazy" to vote for Jackson.

Until the New York primary Jackson was a thorough provincial. He thought he could kiss Arafat and fool around with Farrakhan. And seem a bit frivolous about the survival of Israel.

Oh no, Koch told Jackson. That's not the way things are on this street.

It is also becoming clear that Jackson really does want to be president one day, not this year, but one day—and it's not out of the question. But in his long march toward the Oval Office he shows some signs of shedding his terribly vulnerable radicalism. Of course it's fun to be a protest candidate and launch verbal fusillades at the centers of American economic power. It's fun to have advisors who are close to being communists. But if you also think it would be nice to be president, all of that will have to go overboard. There are signs, however faint, that Jackson is evolving, under pressure, in the direction of seriousness.

At the highest levels of the Democratic Party right now there is serious consternation about the vice presidency. Dukakis, slugged Jackson in New York, but he did not bury him. On the basis of the votes alone, Jackson has certainly earned the second spot on the ticket.

But that's where the top Democrats become glassy-eyed. They know the Republicans have in the can those TV spots of Jackson kissing Arafat. Yelling long live Castro. Embracing Ortega.

Rescue team boards disabled submarine

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Rescue crews, battling rough seas and high winds, boarded the disabled attack submarine USS Bonefish off the Florida coast Tuesday but did not enter the vessel in search of three missing crewmen for fear of toxic fumes inside.

An explosion and fire ripped the 29-year-old submarine just beneath the surface of the sea Sunday, injuring 22 sailors and forcing the crew to abandon the 219-foot ship.

If the three missing crewmen are dead, they would be the Navy's first submarine fatalities in 20 years.

A small crew from the USS Petrel boarded the Bonefish and closed a hatch to keep sea water from swamping the vessel. They did not go below, Chief Terry Horton said, because of questions about lingering fumes and because 24 mph winds and 6-to-8 foot seas were buffeting the vessel.

"The weather's deteriorating," Horton said. "With those safety considerations, it's obviously slowing everything down. No one will go below until it's safe to do so."

The Petrel will assess damage and determine how to proceed with towing operations. If damage is not too severe, the boat probably will be towed to Charleston, S.C., where the Petrel is based, the Navy said.

The missing sailors were identified as Lt. Ray Everts Jr., 30, Naoma, W.Va., Petty Officer 1st Class Robert Gordon Jr., 39, Willis, Texas, and Petty Officer 3rd Class Marshall Lindgren, 21, Pisgah Forest, N.C.

Also standing by the Bonefish, dead in the water about 160 miles east of Cape Canaveral, Fla., was the fast-frigate USS McCloy. Due to arrive Tuesday afternoon was the USS Hoist, a salvage ship dispatched from Norfolk.

The fire erupted in the submarine's forward battery compartment while it was about 50 feet deep on a training mission with the guided-missile frigate USS Carr and the aircraft carrier USS John Kennedy.

The Bonefish immediately surfaced and the crew fled to the Carr. The exact cause of the explosion is not yet known.

The 22 injured crewmen, all suffering smoke inhalation, were flown to a naval hospital in Jacksonville, Fla.

Two sailors — identified as Lt. J.G. Edmund Collins, 34, of Park Forest, Ill., and Petty Officer 1st Class Antone Silvia, 28, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., — remained in serious but stable condition, the Navy said. The other injured sailors were to be released Tuesday and flown back to Charleston.

The remaining 67 crewmembers were taken by the Carr to Mayport Naval Station, Fla., then flown Monday to the Charleston Air Force Base.

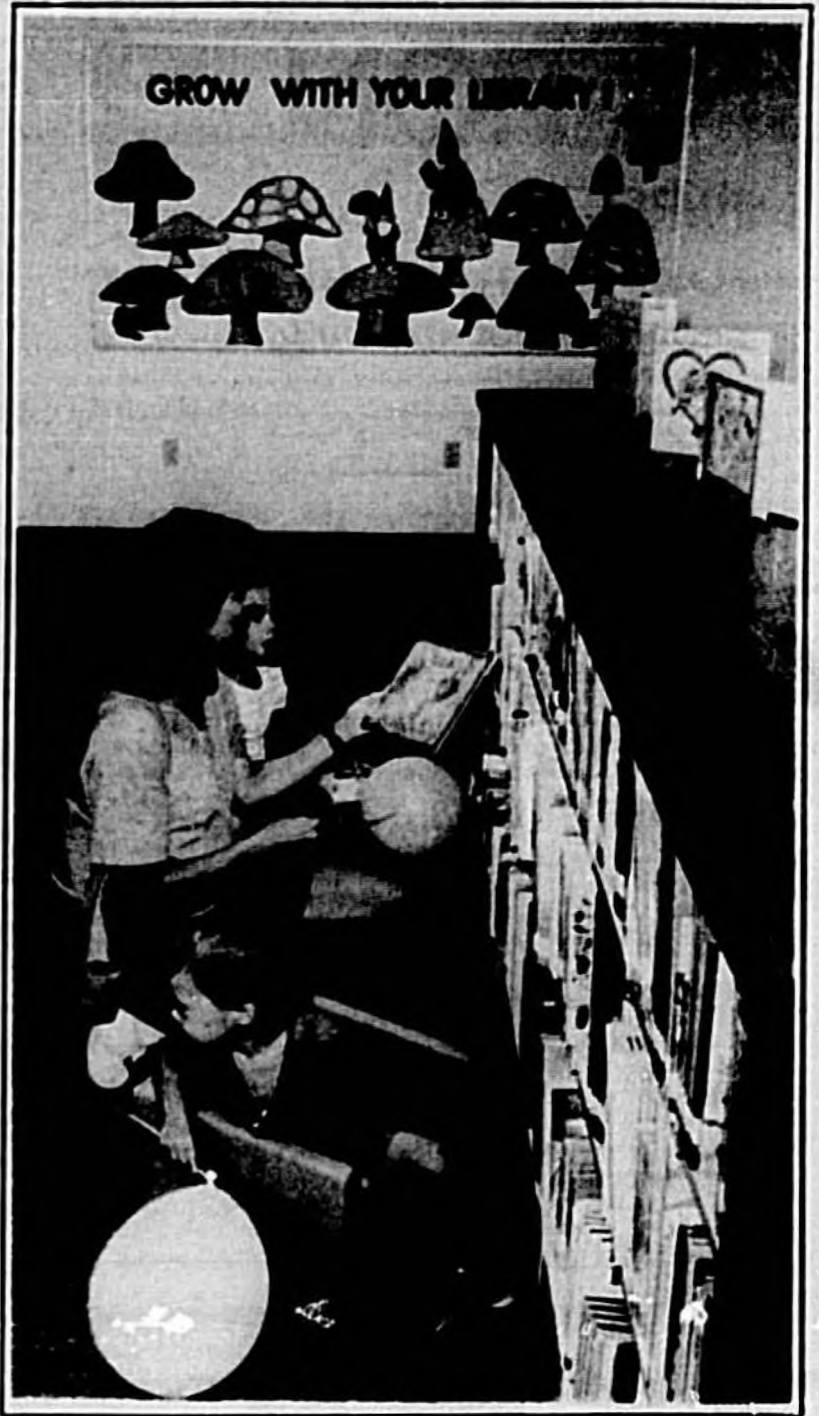

The Bonefish left Charleston April 16 for a training mission in the Caribbean. The Navy uses its four diesel-powered submarines to simulate Soviet subs in training runs, as the Soviets operate about 100 diesel subs.

Non-nuclear submarines use their diesel engines while on the surface and their quieter electric motors, powered by large batteries, while submerged.

The last fatal accident involving a U.S. submarine occurred May 21, 1968, when the nuclear-powered USS Scorpion sank in the Atlantic with the loss of all 99 men aboard.

The Navy's worst peacetime submarine accident came April 10, 1963 when 129 crewmembers went down with the nuclear-powered USS Thresher off the Massachusetts coast.

The last serious submarine accident reported worldwide was an explosion and fire Oct. 3, 1986, that killed three Soviets. The submarine sank two days later, after the crew had abandoned ship.

Fraternity brothers arrested for sexual assault at FSU

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Two residents of a Florida State University fraternity house have been charged with sexually assaulting a drunken female student who was later dumped at another fraternity house.

Both have been jailed without bond and more charges are pending, FSU Police Lt. Jack Handley said Tuesday. "More arrests are also possible."

Leon County sheriff's spokesman Dick Simpson identified the men as Byron L. Stewart, 21, of Orlando, and Daniel G. Oltarsh, 24, of Fort Lauderdale. Both men listed their Tallahassee address as the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house on the FSU campus.

"They are each charged with one count of sexual battery," Handley said. "This is a life term felony if there is a conviction."

House honors colleague; begins debate on defense budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After a pause to honor a colleague, the House was poised to embark today on a two-week, $299.5 billion defense spending odyssey that will deal with four major arms control issues in its opening rounds.

Up today were proposals to lock the "Star Wars" research effort into a narrow testing program under the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty and a proposal to force the administration to keep U.S. strategic nuclear weapons systems within the numerical limits of the unratified 1979 SALT 2 agreement.

But first, the House planned to adopt a defense bill amendment asking the Navy to name its next Trident ballistic missile submarine after Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., who ran the House Armed Services Committee from 1975 to 1985 and died last week at age 83.

Federal drug fight panned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 200 mayors and police chiefs, disputing Attorney General Edwin Meese's claim that the war on drugs is being won, are pushing a 25-point demand for more federal spending and legal strength in the battle.

Under sponsorship of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the leaders from more than 100 cities adopted a statement unanimously at the conclusion of a two-day meeting that declared: "Illegal drugs are a critical international problem affecting our nation, clearly equal to other national security threats."

In a sometimes blunt confrontation with Meese before the document was adopted Tuesday, Mayor Joseph Paolino of Providence, R.I., spoke for many colleagues when he told the nation's law enforcement chief. "We sincerely feel that the [drug] policy of the federal government isn't a policy."

Bomb attack on U.S. Army train in Germany; no injuries

BERLIN (UPI) — A bomb attack on a U.S. Army duty train traveling to an American outpost in West Berlin damaged the train's locomotive late Tuesday but the 31 American passengers escaped injury, authorities said today.

The German engineer was cut by glass from his shattered windshield when the bomb went off on the tracks in West Germany as the train passed.

An explosion, the second attack on the train in seven months, ripped up about a 15-foot section of track at 11:11 p.m.

The train, which travels daily between Frankfurt and West Berlin, arrived in the divided city 110 miles inside East Germany 30 minutes late, an American spokesman said. He said none of the American passengers or U.S. train crew were injured.

The explosion took place at Hedemuenden, a West German town about midway between Kassel and Göttingen.

Rough seas repel convoy

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — The first U.S.-escorted tanker convoy to enter the Persian Gulf since last week's naval clashes with Iran was forced to turn back because of choppy seas that made it difficult to spot possible mines in the volatile waterway, shipping sources said.

The shipping sources said American warships escorted two reflagged Kuwaiti tankers through the Strait of Hormuz and into the southern Persian Gulf before dawn Tuesday, but then had to retreat because of bad weather.

"Choppy seas make it more difficult to spot mines, and nobody wants to risk sailing into one," a gulf-based shipping source told United Press International.

Orange County's last dairy leaves

ORLANDO (UPI) — Orange County's last commercial dairy farmer packed up his milking machine and moved north Tuesday, leaving his shrunken acreage to hay and sod for lawns in the inexorable march of Orlando urbanization.

John Cloyd said relocating outside central Florida to near the Georgia line was inevitable with an aging farm needing modern improvements and no room to expand.

"I just didn't want to have to build a place where I'd have to tear it down in a few years," he said. "Up there, I don't think I'll have to, at least not for my lifetime."

With his drive up Interstate 75 to Hamilton County west of Jacksonville, Cloyd left behind his family's farm operation of three decades—and more than 100 years of the dairy industry in Orange County.

There were 93 dairies in metropolitan Orlando in 1940, but the post-war boom and housing demand began to swallow vacant land. County agriculture was dealt another blow in 1967, when Walt Disney arrived to build the nation's largest tourist attraction.

"Even before Disney it was fading. And after Disney, as land values soared—well, agriculture cannot compete with urbanization," said Henry Swanson, a former county agricultural agent and regional agricultural history author.

Cloyd's family once owned nearly 1,000 acres and a dairy herd of about 600 head. He now has about 130 head, most of them relocated earlier to the 500 acres he bought near Jasper.

While it was a major factor, more than Orlando's growth led to the dairy farmers' demise in Orange County.

Before World War II dairies were needed near population centers to ensure a supply of fresh milk, explained Ken Platt, a former Orange County dairyman who moved to adjacent Lake County seven years ago.

But 1950s improvements in storage and transportation technology enabled milk to be shipped long distances, Platt said. Proximity to population became less important.

Cloyd's family will retain ownership of the 300 acres and the land's agricultural tax status by growing hay for animal feed and sod for residential and commercial development landscapes.

"We've sold it three times," he joked about his property, but each time groups holding options on the land saw their projects fall through. Cloyd said a group of Australian land speculators now holds an option good until 1989.

Shuttle work is behind schedule

By William Harwood
UPI Bureau Writer

COCOA BEACH (UPI) — Work on the first post-Challenger shuttle mission is running about 10 days behind schedule and assembly of the ship's redesigned solid-fuel boosters is proceeding slower than expected because of a safety-first philosophy, NASA officials said Tuesday.

But Arnold Aldrich, director of the shuttle program at NASA headquarters in Washington, said he is optimistic booster processing will pick up speed as engineers get more familiar with new procedures.

He said if the remaining work goes reasonably well, Discovery will blast off on the 26th shuttle mission sometime in August.

"Currently, our plan for a launch in August appears very promising, although the processing of the flight elements here at the Kennedy Space Center is running a few days down on our internal schedule," Aldrich told the 25th Space Congress, a yearly gathering of space officials from NASA, the Air Force and the aerospace industry.

"This is primarily due to the care and effort being made on the first pass through procedures, both in the solid rocket motor area and in some of the orbiter processing areas."

NASA's formal "target" date for Discovery's launch is Aug. 4. But the latest internal planning date at the Kennedy Space Center, based on progress preparing the orbiter and its boosters for launch, is Aug. 13.

Aldrich confirmed Tuesday that flight processing is running "about 10 days" behind schedule. But he said he does not favor setting a new official target date until Discovery's two boosters are assembled, or "stacked," for flight.

The current schedule calls for the boosters to be completed around May 22. Discovery would be attached, or "mated," to the boosters and its external fuel tank around May 31 and the completed assembly would be rolled to the launch pad around June 9 for a crucial flight readiness firing of the orbiter's three liquid-fueled main engines on July 1.

"The key, really, is completing the stacking, completing the mate and moving out of the Vehicle Assembly Building," Aldrich said. "That will dictate what date in August we can come down on as our next hard target for a launch."

The giant rockets have been redesigned since the Challenger disaster to minimize the risk of another catastrophic booster failure and new assembly procedures have been devised to make sure critical O-ring joints are put together correctly.

Work to stack the left booster is running behind schedule, but Thomas Utman, deputy director of the Kennedy Space Center, said he expects the "learning curve" to improve as work progresses, which should allow engineers to make up lost time assembling the right-side booster.

"One of the reasons we're behind that schedule is as we go through this first operation, it is a very meticulous operation," he said. "If there's any doubt, we're fixing it. This is our approach to this whole schedule activity."

"We have to have a schedule that sets a goal. But it is not driving us. Our schedule is being driven by finishing the technical requirements so when we're done we know we've got a good piece of hardware and we're ready to fly."

He said it is too soon to set a new official launch target and that "we really don't have enough information to decide what date" might be realistic.

Bank remodeling contractors say they haven't been paid

SANFORD — Hughes Supply, Inc., Orlando, has filed suit in Seminole County Circuit court, against North Orlando Associates, Limited Partnership, Tree Electric and Robert W. Whitaker, Sanford, doing business as Robert W. Whitaker Construction. The plaintiff charges that Whitaker owes $24,949.58 for electrical services sold and delivered in April and May last year. However, Whitaker said

Tuesday he has not been paid money due him from General Contracting work done at the First Union National Bank building last year. He said he is preparing to sue North Orlando Associates, and Stanley Sandefur, who sold the building to North Orlando Associates, in order to get $120,000 due him for the job.

Whitaker says he was the general contractor for remodeling work done at the bank building last year. After Sandefur sold the bank building to North Orlando Associates last September, Whitaker received no more money, he said. "The money was to have been escrowed to finish the building. It was not done," Whitaker said.

Whitaker noted that Tree Electric, the electrical contractor hired for the remodeling work, has not been paid for its services either.

It had been an April to forget for Keith Hernandez of the New York Mets. At the very least, there hadn't been much to remember.

The five-time all-star first baseman and career .301 hitter struggled through New York's first 17 games with a .158 batting average, no home runs, and four RBI.

Well, Hernandez's memory banks were jarred, along with Atlanta's pitchers Tuesday night. The left-handed swinger launched two home runs, including a grand slam, and totaled seven RBI — including his career 1,000th — in leading Dwight Gooden and the Mets to a 13-4 pasting of the Braves.

"I've had better days hit-wise," Hernandez said. "But I don't think I've ever had seven RBIs. It will be memorable because I got my 1,000th RBI."

Hernandez, 34, clubbed a two-run homer in the fifth, then highlighted New York's seven-run eighth inning with his seventh career grand slam. He also drove in a run on a fielder's choice to help a not-so-steady Gooden become the National League's first five-game winner.

The right-hander, 5-0, gave up 10 hits and three earned runs in pitching his third complete game this season. Gooden struck out five and walked three.

Atlanta got to Gooden early, jumping to a 4-2 lead after four innings. But as Mets shortstop Kevin Elster said: "It seems like he gets a win no matter what he does."

"He's Dwight Gooden and he was born to get those wins," said Elster, who went 4 for 5 with two RBI and two runs scored. "It gives us a little confidence when he's out there. We know he's going to hold them and we'll get some runs for him."

In this case, "we" turned out to be Hernandez.

New York tied the score 4-4 in the fifth as Hernandez connected on a two-run blast off Atlanta starter Tom Glavine.

The Mets went ahead for good by scoring two runs in the seventh off Jim Aker. O-2. Hernandez drove in the second run on a fielder's choice.

Hernandez finished his night — a good week for some players — in the eighth inning by crunching a 2-0 pitch from Charlie Puleo well into the seats in right, just inside the foul pole.

Astros 3, Phillies 1

At Houston, Mike Scott, 4-0, allowed three hits over eight innings while equalling a National-League season high with 12 strikeouts to help the Astros stop a three-game losing skid. Two of Houston's three runs scored on errors by Philadelphia's 11-time Gold Glove winner Mike Schmidt.

Padres 1, Cardinals 0

At San Diego, Eric Show, 1-3, scattered 10 hits in pitching the Padres' third-straight shutout, extending the team's scoreless-inning streak to 33 1/3. Carmelo Martinez hit his first homer of the season with two out in the seventh for the game's only run. St. Louis' John Tudor made his first appearance of the season and pitched six scoreless innings.

Pirates 2, Giants 0

At San Francisco, John Smiley, 1-2, permitted four hits in 8 2/3 innings to help the Pirates, 14-4, reach their best start since 1937. The 23-year-old left-hander didn't allow an extra-base hit. Jim Gott notched his second save. Pittsburgh's Mike LaValliere went 2 for 4, upping his National League-leading average to .412.

Cubs 7, Dodgers 3

At Los Angeles, Chicago turned four Dodger errors into five unearned runs, and Greg Maddux, 4-1, gave up eight hits over eight innings. Los Angeles' Tim Lary, 2-1, was the victim of the poor defense. The Dodgers, the worst fielding team in baseball last season, had made only 11 errors in their first 15 games this season.

Indians run record to 15-4

United Press International

Baltimore should salvage hope from watching the only American League team to finish last season with a worse record than the Orioles — the Cleveland Indians, who are off to the best start in the major leagues.

While the Orioles sank deeper into ignominy Tuesday night, the Indians continued their unexpected assault.

At Minneapolis, Minn., the Orioles ran their record season-opening slide to 19 games and pulled within one loss of tying the AL mark for consecutive defeats by losing 4-2 to the Minnesota Twins. Opponents have outscored the Orioles 118-36.

At Cleveland, Joe Carter drove in five runs with a pair of homers, hitting the Indians to a 12-6 victory over the Seattle Mariners. Cleveland improved its record to 15-4, the team's best start since 1966. The Indians have won nine of their last 11 games and extended their club record for victories in April.

The Indians finished 1987 at 61-101, six games behind the Orioles in the AL East. Cleveland's resurgence is based on improved pitching.

Indians starter Tom Candiotti, 4-0, allowed 12 hits, struck out 10 and walked one in pitching his fourth complete game and the Indians' major league-leading ninth. Last year, Candiotti did not win his fourth game until Aug. 3.

"The guys got the big hits and they picked me up," Candiotti said. "After I struggled in the first few innings, I got into a good rhythm and was able to throw the curveball for strikes." Orioles Manager Frank Robinson is sure his team will need pitching, in fact shutout pitching, to win a game.

"I guess it's going to take a shutout, no matter how long it goes: 15 or 20 innings," Robinson said. "Mike Morgan threw a shutout this year for 10 innings and we still didn't win the ballgame."

"So evidently we're going to have to throw a shutout. Give up no runs until we score a run."

Said Morgan: "I know we won't lose 162 games. That's a fact. And I'm gonna throw another shutout somewhere along the line."

Kent Hrbek hit two homers, a two-run shot that tied the score 2-2 in the sixth and a solo blast that meant an insurance run in the eighth.

Randy Bush broke the tie in the sixth, giving Frank Viola, 2-1, a victory over Morgan, 0-4. Jeff Reardon pitched two innings for his fifth save. The Orioles managed just three hits.

Before a Metrodome crowd of 21,172, the World Series champion Twins spotted Baltimore a 2-0 lead before moving the Orioles within four games of the modern major-league record for consecutive defeats. The 1961 Philadelphia Phillies lost 23 straight.

Seeking to avoid their 20th straight defeat, the Orioles send veteran left-hander Scott McGregor, 0-3, against Bert Blyleven.

Reds dump Expos

Reds 5, Expos 2

Neighborly peace exists with effort

DEAR ABBY: Your recent column piece on the top 10 problems of 1940 compared to those of today really struck a nerve. When I was in high school, our biggest problems were similar to those in Charles Osteen's letter...

Abigail Van Buren

There are seldom simple solutions to pervasive problems, but I have one I'd sure like to see tried. It is for parents to once again teach their children the time-tested values of respect for the law, their teachers, their elders, other people's rights and, most of all, for themselves as the future of this country.

Right here in my own neighborhood we are daily faced with school children who run amok, sass their elders, trespass on private property, trash the streets—all with their parents' approval, even encouragement. One father even had the gall to tell me that his kids had a "right" to play in the street in front of my home and if I didn't like it, I could move!

R.L.A. (OLD COOT IN OXNARD)

DEAR R.L.A.: Can do. Here they are:

- 1. Thou shalt love thy neighbor, but not his wife, nor shalt thou covet thy neighbor's house, or his car, or any other thing he owneth.
2. Thou shalt keep thy dog, thy stereo and thy lawn mower quiet while thy neighbor sleepeth.
3. Thou shalt borrow from thy neighbor rarely, and when thou dost, return undamaged and without delay that which thou has borrowed.
4. Thou shalt not allow thy pets or thy children to run amok, despoiling thy neighbor's lawn, flower beds and fence.
5. Thou shalt keepeth thy lawn green, thy fence painted and thy driveway uncluttered, even as ye shall also keepeth thy vehicles in thy garage where they belong.
6. Thou shalt watcheth always for criminals and fires in thy neighborhood and guardeth thy neighbor's home and property even as thine own.
7. Thou shalt not useth thy home for any unsightly or illegal activity.
8. Thou shalt always stand ready to help thy neighbor in his hour of true need even as he doth for thee.
9. Thou shalt not parketh thy camper, thy RV or thy van in the street where it blocketh thy neighbor's view and createth a safety hazard to all.
10. Thou shalt not hold wild parties or orgies that last until weve hours unless thou dost invite thy neighbor, too.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

'Waved' chicken needs sauce or glaze to get crispy, brown

What's your favorite way to prepare chicken? I'm not sure anymore if I have one favorite way because we enjoy chicken in almost any way, shape or form. We have it at least once a week.

By removing the skin, where most of the fat is stored, we remove most of the calories and the cholesterol. It certainly is economical. This week, leg quarters were as low as 35 cents a pound and breasts were 99 cents a pound. A very wise shopper would purchase some at these low prices and freeze for later use.

Chicken does not brown nor does it get crisp in the microwave oven without a browning or crisping agent. Browning agents such as a bouquet sauce or a glaze work very well without affecting the flavor for a whole chicken.

Sauces and crumb mixtures enhance the appearance and flavor of chicken pieces. Chipped beef gives these chicken breasts a unique flavor.

Midge Mycoff

chives: spoon onto each chicken breast. M/W on 100 percent power, uncovered, for 5-6 minutes or until heated through. Crumble bacon and sprinkle over chicken. Serves 6-8, with 200 calories per piece.

Make your own chicken nuggets from chicken breasts. Serve with a lemon sauce for an appetizer or snack.

CHICKEN NUGGETS

1 pound chicken breasts, boned and skinned
1 1/2 cups finely crushed club-type crackers
1/4 teaspoon paprika

Combine crushed crackers, paprika and garlic powder on waxed paper. Place butter in a small microwave-safe bowl, M/W 30-60 seconds or until melted. Dip chicken in butter then into crumbs, coating evenly. Place in 12x8-inch baking dish. Cover with paper towel. M/W on 100 percent power for 7-8 minutes or until chicken is done.

Combine honey, lemon juice, cornstarch, bouillon and water in 2-cup measure. Mix well. M/W on 100 percent power, uncovered, for 2-3 minutes, or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring once. Serve chicken with sauce for dipping. Makes 48 nuggets—40 calories each. This is an adaptation of an old favorite.

CHICKEN AND DUMPLINGS

1 small onion, sliced
1 cup carrots, sliced
2-3 pounds chicken, cut up
1 can condensed cream of chicken soup
1/2 cup frozen green peas

Combine carrots, onions and soup in 2-quart casserole. Pour juices from chicken into soup can and add enough water to fill can; add vegetables. Stir in salt and pepper. Cover with casserole lid. M/W on 100 percent power for 6-7 minutes or until mixture boils, stirring once. Stir in chicken and frozen peas.

Meanwhile, prepare dumplings by combining baking mix and milk in small mixing bowl. Stir just until combined. Drop tablespoon onto hot chicken mixture, leaving center open. Cover with casserole lid. from out of state to be in on the program, but did not arrive until too late because his flight from New York was cancelled without explanation. The only flight he could catch went to Daytona Beach and it took him two hours to get to Casselberry. In addition to Carlson, 34 of Daniel's scouts went on to become Eagle Scouts. Several of them were at the dinner.

Master of ceremonies was Robert Nobel, whose son was a former troop member. Also on the program were the Rev. David Brazelton, church pastor, who gave the invocation; Eric Burton, who led the Pledge of Allegiance and Scout Oath; Dan Casselberry, who spoke briefly and gave the benediction; the new scoutmaster Richard Daves, who gave the welcome; District Commissioner Harvey Francisco, Brian Howlett, Frank Carter, Charles Bourcier, Ed Owens, Walter Bagley, Keith Biremyer, James Ennis, Herb Lesquier and Jack Sears.

Daniel came to Central Florida in 1957 from Kansas where he joined Boy Scouts at the age of 12. He said he was "miserable" when he was out a year before becoming an adult leader at 19. He was post advisor for an Air Explorer Post and a scoutmaster before coming to Florida.

One of the first things he did on arrival was to visit the scouting council office to learn of troops in the area where he might help. Among the awards he has received are the Silver Beaver, the District Award of Merit, the Ace Award in Air Exploring, the Wood Badge and the Scouter's Key.

During his tenure, the troop logged more than 50,000 miles in trips and campouts. The majority of miles were traveled in the three buses owned by the troop—named Betsy, Jimmy and Miss Kitty. The troop also has hiked many miles. Daniel is working on his third 100-mile patch and a number of the boys have received one.

Golden couples to celebrate in fete

SANFORD — All couples married fifty years or more in 1988, as well as families and friends of such couples, are welcome to Sanford's seventh annual Golden Wedding Anniversary Celebration on Sunday, May 1, for a renewal of vows.

Sponsored by the Senior Citizen Committee of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, the 2-4 p.m. celebration is to include the pledges of devotion, led by the Rev. Ed Johnson of First Christian Church in Sanford, and a party afterward.

Enough cake and punch for 200 people will be donated, along with tickets to be drawn for a RiverShip Romance boat cruise. A keyboardist and soloist will provide appropriate matrimonial music, and will play dance music if couples are in the mood to cut the rug.

The couple who has logged the most wedded years will be driven by limousine to and from the celebration. At present, a couple that has been married nearly 70 years is the front-runner, said Barbara Forster of the Visiting Nurse Association.

Door prizes and prizes for couples with the most children and grandchildren will be given.

Certificates will be passed out to all renewers of wedding vows. An application to attend the event can be obtained by calling the Sanford Chamber of Commerce at 323-2212 or Barbara Forster at 323-4773. Forster said couples should call no later than Thursday.

The celebration in part commemorates President Reagan's proclamation of May as Older American Month.

"Older American are our country's most important reservoir of knowledge and experience," said Congressman Bill McCollum (R-Altamonte Springs), who authored the proclamation resolution. "Designating this month (May) for our senior Americans is one small way of expressing our deep gratitude for all they've contributed and continue to contribute to our society—an immeasurable and invaluable gift."

Inexpensive Cavity Prevention: Dental Sealants Protect Your Children's Teeth

By sealing the chewing surfaces of their teeth, dental sealants help your children stay cavity-free!

The chewing surfaces of molars are the most cavity-prone areas of your child's teeth. Unfortunately, they are also the most difficult areas to protect with fluoride. That's why the American Dental Association recommends that dental sealants be applied to permanent molars of all children as part of routine preventive dentistry. A "sealed" molar is actually ten times less likely to experience decay because bacteria and food debris cannot enter its tiny pits and grooves.

Sealants, which are tooth-colored or transparent plastic resins, are painted on the teeth in liquid form and quickly harden into thin, very strong coatings. Their protection can last for up to five years, but they should be checked regularly.

The combination of sealants for the chewing surfaces and fluoride for the smooth surfaces of tooth enamel is a cavity-fighting powerhouse. Dr. Richard J. Simonsen, Chairman of the Department of General Dentistry at the University of Tennessee and author of several scientific studies on sealants, explains:

"With proper use of fluorides and proper use of sealants, children in families that are motivated to follow their dentist's advice on diet and oral hygiene will very likely stay cavity-free."

Sealing teeth is a simple, painless and inexpensive procedure. Ask your dentist about its potential for your children, or call our office, no cost consultation.

Rare intestinal illness is usually managed

Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife has Whipple's disease. She's been receiving antibiotics for a year and is not suffering, but a recent biopsy shows that the disease is still present. Does this disease ever get cured? What health progress can we expect?

DEAR READER: Whipple's disease is a rare intestinal disorder marked by malabsorption of nutrients, excess fat in the stool, anemia and joint pains. The cause is unknown, and the diagnosis is made by biopsy of the small intestine.

Although antibiotics — and sometimes cortisone — are useful in relieving symptoms and producing remission, the disease tends to recur. In short, Whipple's disease is treatable, but incurable by present methods. As long as your wife is aided by antibiotics and continues to take them, her health problems can be kept under control.

Many patients have discovered that support groups are useful in helping patients adjust to the disease and avoid complications. Contact the Health Information Clearinghouse (800-336-4797) to find out the name and location of organizations devoted to the support of Whipple's patients.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Our son, 30, lives with us, does not use drugs or alcohol and holds a steady job. However, trying to get him up in the morning is terrible. We have to physically push him around to get him to work on time, although at work he is fine. He takes Tegretol and Primidone twice a day. He wasn't always this sleepy. Would hypnosis help?

DEAR READER: Tegretol is a potent anti-convulsant and specific treatment for trigeminal neuralgia. It can cause drowsiness. Primidone also is an anti-convulsant, used to treat epilepsy, that can cause fatigue.

From the information in your question, I conclude that your son has a seizure disorder under treatment. Because both his medicines can upset his sleep pattern, he may be overmedicated. I suggest that you bring his sleepiness to the attention of his doctor so that the physician can make alterations in the dosage.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my new Health Report on EPILEPSY. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

No one questions that it is a fine idea to set a contract when you're a defender. Nor would anyone contradict that it's good to take as many tricks as possible. Sometimes the defenders' play to maximize the number of undertricks is a mite daring, as in today's deal.

The four-spade bid by East was ambitious, for sure, but he felt that with both West and North passing, there was a fair chance that West held enough fillers to give him a shot at 10 tricks. And he certainly had the play leverage of that eight-card suit. Finally, when you start the bidding at a really high level, your opponents sometimes make a bidding mistake. That's what happened. Normal defense against four spades would hold

East to eight tricks — down two. But South feared that a double would be misconstrued, so he bid five hearts.

Everybody passed, and West led the ace of diamonds. That swallowed partner's king, but East was able to ruff the diamond continuation. It looks easy now to cash the spade ace to set the contract, since obviously West would have led a singleton spade, but East wanted it all. If he played ace and a spade, declarer could ruff with the jack or queen and then play his heart ace, dropping East's king to escape for down one. So East led the queen of spades, retaining the ace. South of course had to follow, and West ruffed. Now East got another diamond ruff with the king of hearts to set the hand two tricks.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
APRIL 28, 1988

In the year ahead, you will be able to make some major changes that you have long contemplated. Their effects may not be too noticeable at first, but as time passes, their value will become very apparent.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be too negative about something on which you are presently working. This could have a restrictive influence on your imaginative processes. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to restore the relationship. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Fooling around with something speculative in the hope that you can increase your resources the easy way might not be a wise move today. Evaluate your risks.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful today that you are not overly critical of your mate or loved ones, even though you may feel you're trying to be helpful. Use praise instead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Tasks will be doubly hard to perform today if you lack the proper attitude. Don't dwell on the difficulties of the job; dwell on what you're accomplishing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you analyze your budget at this time, you'll see you are wasting money on many unnecessary expenditures. A failure to tighten your purse strings could cause you regrets later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's not important how many things you start today; what really counts is how many things you finish. Strive to be persistent and methodical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's best not to pass on unflattering information today that you heard about another person. Your report will not make a favorable impression on your listeners.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec.

21) Someone who is obligated to you for something you did for him/her in the past might not come through as you hoped. Stay on top of this matter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Protect your self-interests today, but not to the point where you treat them like an obsession. If you aren't considerate of others, you might not get what you want for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even the smallest fibs will have a way of compounding themselves today. If you depart from the truth, be prepared for ripple effects.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to borrow anything from friends today unless it is absolutely necessary. If you do, be extra careful to return it when promised.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today, you may get involved in a situation where another person has more say over matters than you do. If you fail to cooperate properly, it will be collectively detrimental.
