Eckstein Proposes Sanford Protest Expressway

By Brian Sullivan
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford City Commissioner Whitely Eckstein says he will be coming to Monday's regular commission meeting with a proposal to express the city's displeasure with the idea of an expressway through Sanford. And with the stated approval of Mayor Bettye Smith and Commissioner Bob Thomas, he apparently has enough votes to get the measure passed.

Eckstein said he will suggest a letter be sent to each member of the expressway authority stating the belief an expressway coming into Sanford would be too disruptive.

He said that is the belief of his constituents in the Idyllwild and Grove View subdivisions.

Eckstein said he thinks the letter will have influence with the expressway authority because it will express the feelings "of the people" and the authority members who are elected officials will be up for re-election in due course.

While Smith and Thomas back the idea, Commissioner A.A. "Mac" McClanahan said he'll have to look at the alternatives and the letter itself before he can comment. Commissioner John Mercer was unavailable for comment Thursday and today.

Eckstein said his constituents asked him if the commission as a body could take a stand and speak with one voice on the issue. At Monday's meeting Eckstein will be asking the commission to vote on acceptance of the proposal. If the letter is agreeable to the commissioners then a copy will be sent to each member of the expressway board.

Mrs. Smith said, "I commend Mr. Eckstein" for proposing the letter "and I would in no way oppose him."

The mayor went on to say that a large turnout by the public at Monday's city commission meeting couldn't hurt.

As an alternative to the expressway entering Sanford, Eckstein's letter will suggest possible termination points at either County Road 427, U.S. Highway 17-92, or the extension of Lake Mary Boulevard.

Southern Bell workers Steve Stonacker, left, and Roy Mellor work to repair disabled phone wires on First Street Thursday afternoon.

1,000 Phones Out After Cable Mishap

A thousand telephones were knocked out of service in downtown Sanford Thursday when a city work crew apparently crushed a ceramic conduit allowing water to ground out phone lines.

"Well, it's a situation of good news and bad news," said Southern Bell spokesman Larry Strickler.

The bad news was what hundreds of customers found out just after 11 a.m. — 1,000 phones were out of order. The good news, he said, was that the phone line was not crushed and service was restored around 2 p.m.

If the lines had been severed, it would have taken at least 24 hours to repair, Strickler said, because they are not color coded and would have required individual testing for a correct splice match-up.

Strickler said a city work crew doing road work on First Street wanted to move the underground phone line a few feet to continue its renovation work. The plan was to crack the hard conduit, move the pliable inner conduit, wrap it in larger flexible conduit then recover it with dirt and continue their work.

Instead of gently tapping the ceramic conduit with a hammer, a backhoe bucket was used, Strickler said. That crushed the ceramic conduit, broke the seal around the paper wrapped wires in the pliable conduit, and allowed water to seep in. The water grounded the lines, Strickler said.

Fortunately, the area was pumped out right after the incident and the line dried and put back in service. If the line had sat in the water for a day, Strickler said about 1,000 feet of cable would have had to be replaced because the water would have seeped further.

Thursday, cable repair technicians wrapped each line in waterproof tape and were planning to seal the line.

Strickler said he is not sure whether Southern Bell or the city will pay for the repair cost.

"We're going to look at that. See CABLE, page 16A

Police Chief Disputes Objections

Lake Mary Employees Sign Anti-Probe Letter

By Gene Lindberg
And Tom Giordano

A letter critical of how Lake Mary police initiated their investigation into alleged impropriety when city-owned equipment is put out for bids has been circulated at city hall and was signed by the city manager and other city employees.

The letter, which, according to Police Chief Charles Lauderdale, may include such terms as "reminiscent of Nazi Germany" and "Gestapo," reportedly has been turned over to city commissioners.

City Manager Bob Norris said Thursday he signed the letter. He said he did so as a position statement in which he and Jim Orloles, director of public works, voiced their objection over the manner in which police engaged in their investigation.

Norris said he feels police should have notified him and Orloles that the investigation was about to occur. He said the first time he learned of the investigation was while police officers "were simultaneously" converging on the city's maintenance garage and city hall to examine records and look for evidence.

Chief Lauderdale says Norris' objections are unfounded because police, in investigations such as this, need to proceed with the least possible danger of damaging their probe.

The investigation, according to Lauderdale, centers on a number of city-owned pieces of equipment and automobiles which were put up for bid in April 1986, as well as the overall practice of how the city allows such equipment to be put up for bids and whether there is a lack of checks and balances to prevent wrongdoing.

"There would always be the suspicion of a conflict of interest," he said.

Apparently the letter was given to the city commission at its meeting last week without a copy being issued to the press. Commissioner Paul Tremel said he was told that every city employee except police department personnel had signed the letter, which addressed the issue of how investigations are to be handled within the city concerning city employees. He said that he could not remember how many names were on the letter and that he had thrown the letter away but remembered the "gist" of it.

Tremel said that while he did not think the letter would be read at the next commission meeting, he did feel that a procedure should be established "once and for all" concerning investigations within the city that primarily deal with city employees. He said his reaction to the letter is that certain city employees, by signing the letter, have made a statement urging the city to establish a policy in the city as to how city investigations will be handled. He said he interpreted it as a plea from city employees that said "Let's establish this procedure," and in that light, did not feel that Norris' signature was inappropriate. As to the wording in the letter, Tremel said he did not remember the exact wording but did say the letter contained "regrettable language."

Lauderdale said Norris' signing the letter "was very poor judgment from a city official."

Orloles said Thursday he did give the commission copies of his letter at its meeting last week, but that he no longer had a copy of it. He said 14 persons, including himself, signed the letter. He said he did not ask anyone to sign the letter, but when he showed it to city employees, "they offered to sign it." Orloles said that after Norris read the letter, he passed it on to other people in the room who read it and signed it.

Orloles said that when he was leaving the room Norris said, "Wait a minute, give it to me," and then he signed the letter.

Orloles said the letter basically stated his objection to a police investigation of city employees without written permission from the commission. He said that Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess had specifically stated at a January

Oviedo Woman Murdered Before House Set Afire

A woman whose body was found in a house gutted by fire in Oviedo Thursday was murdered before her home was set afire.

An autopsy Thursday determined that Evelyn Graham, 62, of 188 Stephens Street, was killed before a set fire roared through her one-story wooden home.

"We feel terrible," said Adele Allen, Mrs. Graham's neighbor and mother of Mrs. Graham's son-in-law.

"It's just tough on me to look out there at her burned home.

"She lived on a fixed income. She was quiet and kept to herself. It's a terrible thing to do, especially to her," said Mrs. Allen.

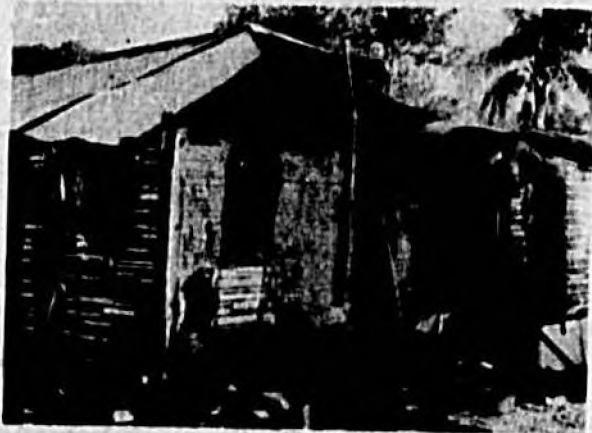

Preliminary autopsy results indicate the woman was dead before the fire because there was no soot in her lungs. Another test is being conducted to confirm that initial finding by determining the level of carbon monoxide in her body at the time of death. Mrs. Graham was also struck repeatedly on the face, head and back. It may be difficult to determine what caused the puncture wounds because of fire damage.

Firefighters were called to the woman's home around 2:39 a.m. Thursday and arrived to find the home engulfed in flames. Within a few minutes a crowd gathered to watch the fire and people in the crowd told firemen that Mrs. Graham was apparently missing.

Fire Chief Andy McDaniel said the fire was too advanced on arrival to have gone inside and look for Mrs. Graham, even if they had known she was inside.

Firefighters doused the flames in about 18 minutes and fire inspectors began their

Clearing Way For Homeless Aid

Senate Kills Pay Raise Repeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate killed an amendment that would have repealed a congressional pay raise Thursday, clearing the way for passage of a bill to authorize $423.2 million in aid for the homeless.

On a 68-29 vote, the Senate approved a parliamentary maneuver that dropped the anti-salary hike language. Sixty votes were needed for approval.

By knocking out the pay raise amendment, the Senate removed the largest obstacle that had faced the bill, which would authorize housing, medical and other aid to the homeless.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said he had feared that if the language rescinding the salary increase was included in the bipartisan measure, it would have devastated the effort to help the homeless because the House would not accept it.

As a result, Byrd, of West Virginia, fought through the day to gather support for the parliamentary step to prevent the language from being added to the bill.

But Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., the sponsor of the anti-pay hike amendment, tried to hold off Byrd and force the vote to come Friday, when he hoped many senators would have left town to begin an Easter recess.

However, after both Democratic and Republican leaders agreed they had the votes to kill his amendment, Humphrey conceded defeat.

"The majority leader has won," Humphrey said, adding he had "held out as long as we can, as long as we reasonably should."

Byrd did not want the Senate to vote directly on the pay raise question, knowing there is considerable political pressure on lawmakers to oppose

Get Information About Epilepsy's Many Forms

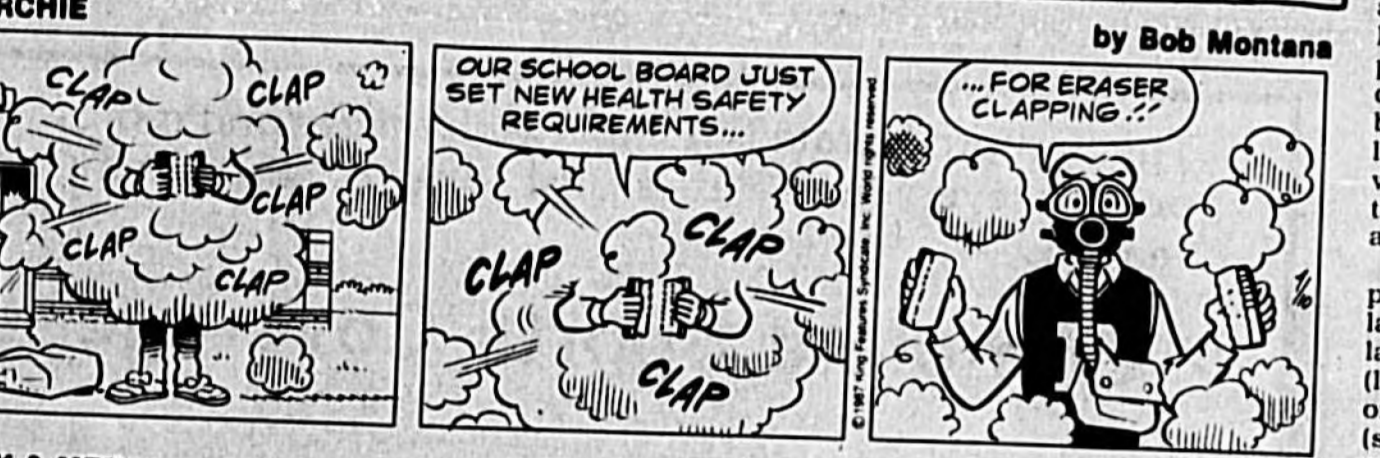

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — Two years ago, my daughter (who is now 8) developed a tendency to have seizures. Where can we get more information on epilepsy?

DEAR DR. GOTT — My job requires sitting most of the day. By 5 p.m., I am bloated with gas, feel quite uncomfortable and look pregnant. Walking relieves the problem. What causes this bulge?

DEAR DR. GOTT — Prolonged inactivity can retard intestinal peristalsis, the muscular contractions of the bowel wall that propel digested food to evacuation. When the intestine becomes sluggish, gas pockets and bloating will appear. Discomfort results. I suggest that you try to move around more during the day. Take a short walk around the work place in midmorning and midafternoon. Use part of your lunch hour to walk — and, by all means, try to get some walking in before work and after the whistle blows.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report on EPILEPSY. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 1369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title. You may also contact the Epilepsy Foundation of America (4351 Garden City Dr., Landover, MD 20785) for additional information.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For months I had vague pains all over my body. I had insomnia and frequent urination. Finally, my digestion deteriorated so badly that I made an appointment with a doctor. Two days before I saw him, I stopped using all milk products. The improvement was dramatic and unbelievable. I had been using milk treated with lactase, and apparently that wasn't enough. Do you have any thoughts about this apparent allergy?

DEAR DR. GOTT — Ordinarily, patients with milk intolerance lack a specific intestinal enzyme, lactase, that digests milk sugar (lactose). The use of pre-treated or pre-digested milk products (such as yogurt or Lactaid) usually solves the problem of gas, abdominal cramps and bowel disorder. However, some people may be allergic to the non-lactose components of milk. Ask your doctor for a referral to an allergist who, by testing, can pinpoint the exact component in milk to which you may be sensitive.

Overwatering Greatest Problem In Maintaining A Good Lawn

Alfred Bessen Urban Horticulturist 322-2500 Ext. 181

April normally is a rather dry month. But, after our recent rains, I begin to wonder if this will be a dry month. If you recently fertilized your lawn, you'll probably need to do a little supplemental watering. Don't count on heavy rainfalls to do the job.

Unfortunately, our soil in most instances doesn't hold moisture very well — this compounded by rapid evaporation during warm weather. Regular irrigation is essential to maintenance of an attractive lawn — especially during spring and summer. Three things — watering frequency, amount you apply and the time of application — must be carefully watched if it is going to be effective.

There are several clues to a lawn's need for water. If bluish-gray spots appear in the lawn, and then begins to turn brown, water is needed. If you walked on it, water is needed. And if a soil sample taken from the root zone of the grass feels dry and crumbly, water is needed.

You'll have to adjust watering frequently to your soil's specific capacity to hold moisture. And, this will change, depending on the season of the year. In summer, grass may need watering as often as every three or four days, while in winter, it may need water only every two weeks. Too much water can be as bad as too little. Don't water until the signs of need appear. Then, water immediately. Any delay could cause permanent damage.

Watering times and the amount you apply are definitely related. You want to wet the entire root zone without saturating the soil. Light, frequent waterings are inefficient and too much water is both harmful and wasteful. Constant saturation retards root growth. And, if more water is applied than the soil can absorb, the extra is lost as runoff.

As a rule, apply about one-half to one inch of water each time. This is roughly 300 to 600 gallons of water for each 1,000 square feet of lawn area. Remember, though, the best amount depends on your specific soil type.

Now that you've got that figured out, you must decide when to water. True, watering during the heat of the day will cool the grass. This practice wastes water, which is rapidly lost through evaporation. To conserve both water and money, apply water early in the morning, when it is more likely to soak into the soil, rather than raising the humidity in the air.

Use common sense. You don't want your grass to die of thirst, yet you don't want to drown it. At each application, supply only enough to wet the root zone without runoff and don't water again until your lawn shows the need.

Now that you know watering is essential for a nice lawn, next comes the mowing. Mowing is fairly uncomplicated. However, some folks fail to mow a lawn in a hurry.

Close cutting these will practically destroy them. Generally, these grasses should be cut with a rotary mower with the blade set at three inches high, the year around. Keep your blade sharp. Dull blades do a tremendous amount of damage. Avoid mowing the grass when it's wet. Dry grass is easier to cut and won't clog the mower. And it's wise to use a bag to catch the clippings. If clippings are allowed to build up, they tend to smother the grass, promote thatch problems and invite insects and diseases to dinner.

Actually, when to mow should be based on the amount of growth since the last cutting. Generally, once a week will do it. You should mow often enough so that not more than one-fourth to one-third of the total leaf surface is removed at each cutting. In other words, leave more than twice as much leaf surface as you cut off. Excessive one-time mowing will shock grass severely, so it's a good practice to mow regularly during the growing season. During the winter, lawn growth is much slower and will need fewer cuttings.

Remember, use common sense. Overwatering is perhaps the greatest problem in maintaining a good lawn. And you will leech out all the nutrients, too. Thus, you will need to fertilize more often to compensate for the loss. Let your lawn tell you when to water! Happy gardening!

Doctors Of Law Add Degree Of Confusion To Title Issue

Dear Abby: Recently a "Dentist's Wife in Utica, N.Y." took you to task for your reference to "all of the doctors and dentists," noting that dentists are doctors — doctors of dentistry, and should be recognized as such. You agreed with her, and so do I.

Dear Abby: It's all right with me. Some lawyers get to the scene of an accident before a doctor. And with the threat of malpractice suits so common, fewer physicians are volunteering as "Good Samaritans." So an accident victim might be better off with a lawyer.

Dear Abby: Thank you for assuring a reader that it is perfectly all right to send a note of sympathy and flowers to someone who has lost a beloved pet. There is yet another way: "Sophie" — an aged terrier — received a lovely card from our animal shelter advising me that a contribution had been made in honor of Sophie from a thoughtful friend of mine. As an animal lover, I thought that this was an especially loving gesture on the part of my friend, and I want to pass it along to you, hoping you will share it with your readers.

Dear Virginia: I heard from many other animal lovers suggesting that a contribution to the local humane society in memory of the deceased pet would be a fitting way of expressing condolences. And by the way, the amount of the contribution is never disclosed.

'Boogles': A Hocky Puck-Hard,
Baked Sphere You Love To Chew

A Throne Made Of Bagels

Story And Photos
By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

With cornbread drowned in butter and molasses and biscuits to sop gravy what would a Southerner want with a hocky puck-hard, baked sphere that tries to look like a doughnut and is touted in Yankee-made movies and other works of fiction from above the Mason-Dixon Line?

The answer ten years ago when 54-year-old Frank Perrotta, a transplant from Long Island, N.Y., opened a bagel shop in Southeast Seminole County, was a resounding NOTHING!

Well, bagels, which Webster defines as hard, glazed rolls with the name derived from "ring" in Yiddish, might have been considered as replacements for horseshoes in a backyard game. They could have been served up as supplementary ammo in a rockfight or thrown out as a lifesave to someone you wanted to sink.

But none of those options were likely since, Perrotta said, most of the locals had never seen, touched or tasted a bagel. They may have heard the word mixed with cream cheese and lox, during limited exposure to Northern "culture." But if the word bagel rolled off a drawling Dixie-bred tongue, an unlikely idea at that time, it passed through a translation mode and came out "boggle."

It was a mind boggling situation for this man who aspired to be Bagel King.

Armed with a 90-year-old recipe learned in New York City Jewish bakeries from the age of 12, Perrotta, a Christian, aimed as a bagel baker to cater not only to the taste of the area Jewish community that in 1977, he said, numbered about 8,000.

If he was going to fulfill his dream of building an empire out of dough — tempered with a bit of yeast, malt, sugar, salt and vegetable shortening, Perrotta knew he would have to win over the tastebuds of Florida crackers and other Southern-born doubters. Doubters, who when given a choice would opt for a fat-fried, sugar-loaded, gooey glazed doughnut, over this plain Jane import.

"When I first got here I had a lot of Southern people come in and say, 'What's that?' They were a little leery. I used to give a lot away. Hundreds of dozens free, so they could see how it tasted and they came back to me.

"They called it boggle, but they got to know me. And Southern people, once they get to know you, the hospitality comes out and they would buy something and always some back."

That kept Perrotta in his un-air-conditioned kitchen, where he said the temperatures sometimes rise to 125 degrees. His two shops today, with a second being opened at Sand Lake Center in Altamonte Springs three years ago, by some would be considered sweatshops. He and eight workers, between the two shops, sacrifice comfort for the sake of the dough, which must have heat to rise and then must be chilled before being shaped into rings popped into a purifying kiln and then on to an oven to complete the baking.

A man with a mission — the bagellization of Central Florida — Perrotta, made subtle changes in the form. He softened the roll a bit and experimented with flavors and seasonings.

Onions, garlic, sesame seed, salt, cinnamon, raisins, blueberries, honey, walnuts and pumpernickel helped take Perrotta beyond bagel basics.

Bagels, he said, should be crisp, not hard. However, he said, chewy bagels are still ideal comforters for teething babies. And adults who munch on bagels, he claims, will keep their teeth, because chewing bagels strengthens the gums.

Aside from those benefits, Perrotta claims, his bagels, which contain no preservatives, are downright good for you as well as good tasting.

"These aren't the frozen bagels you get in the supermarket. These are made right here and are completely different," he said. Perrotta said refrigerated his bagels have a shelf life of one week, and frozen they live on indefinitely.

Some like them hot. Some like them cold, and Perrotta said a refrigerated bagel warms in a microwave oven in about 15 seconds and a frozen bagel heats up in about twice that time.

They can be downed plain or fancied up with spreads, meats or just about any addition personal taste calls for, Perrotta said. And Central Floridians are downing his bagel sometimes at the rate of 500 dozen a day.

Southerners can now order boggelling bagels in restaurants, hotels, at his shops and even at convenience stores.

"I want to thank all the Southern people, because they helped make me what I am, Bagel King," Perrotta said.

Yippee! Yahoo! Yuppies!

By Mark Schwed
 UPI TV Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — For those blissfully unaware, a "dinc" is a yuppie unit consisting of a man, a woman, and lots of cash. It means Dual Income, No Children.

So what then are we to make of "Sweet Surrender," a new NBC situation comedy debuting April 18 on WESH-TV, Channel 2, (8:30-9 p.m. EDT) and featuring a former "dinc" unit that has sprouted kids?

Well, we are to think it sweet and heartwarming, of course.

Have you ever taken a heaping bowl of mint chocolate chip 'n' chunk ice cream, smothered it with hot fudge, dunked it in chocolate sprinkles, and topped it with marshmallow sauce and pineapple syrup? If you had, you would have discovered the true meaning of the words sickeningly sweet.

"Sweet Surrender" swims in such a sauce. Mom and dad are pretty and rich, the kids are wonderful and cute, and the friends are so fine, too. Yech.

But all is not lost. "Sweet Surrender" is mildly appealing at times, if you don't mind feeling sticky all over when the 30 minutes is done.

There is the hard-working man, the perky housewife, a son, a daughter, two in-laws, and three friends (a married couple and a single man) — the nuclear family of the 1990s — yuppies, their offspring, their parents (divorced, separated or widowed), and their fabulous friends, who are equally successful.

This is not the first time networks have delved into the yuppie universe. The best known yupster is Alex Keaton, Michael J. Fox's cash-conscious creation on NBC's "Family Ties."

The first "dinc" couple were contained in ABC's "Jack & Mike." She's a beautiful newspaper columnist, he's the handsome owner of three trendy restaurants in Chicago and together they make dashing yuppie love.

As networks continue to delve into the yin and yang of yuppie life, they keep adding to the universe. The yuppies in "Sweet Surrender" are so unselfish that they even have children. Since they can no longer be called "dincs," a new name had to be found.

Yaps — Young Affluent Parents — were born.

So "Sweet Surrender" is about yuppies, not yuppies, and all the troubles that the nouveau rich have with the little squirts. Apparently, it's not the same as the old days. Kids still hurl food at the wall or spill it on the shag carpet, brothers still slug their sisters or at least yank their hair, and sons still like to watch dads shave.

As always, children must be handled with kid gloves, but — and here's the catch — they must also be treated with respect, as miniature adults.

"Sweet Surrender" comes in a pretty package. Now if only they'd put something inside the box.

'Hee Haw' Is Great But Where's Buck Owens?

Dear Dick: My husband and I watch "Hee Haw" all the time. We think they are all great, but haven't seen Buck Owens on for quite some time. Roy Clark is just great without him, but we're wondering if Buck quit the show or what? — Mrs. K.M., Bridgeport, Neb.

Dear Mrs. K.M.: Lots of folks are wondering about old Buck and why he isn't out there, a-heelin' and a-hawin' every week. Well, the word out of Nashville is that Buck is into so many other things — he owns radio stations and cattle ranches and such — that he just didn't have nary a time for that show any more. So he up and quit, and they don't expect him back for a passel of shows, if then.

Dear Dick: During last year on "Spenser For Hire," Spenser (Robert Ulrich) had a dark-haired girl friend. I thought their relationship in the show more appealing. I may have seen her on the show or two, but what happened to her? I've not seen her at all this season. — J.G., Houston, Texas.

Dear J.G.: I agree that the show has lost something with the absence of Barbara Stock, as Susan Silverman, Executive producer Juanita Bartlett felt that the show would work better if Spenser's girl friend was in a field more closely allied to his. Susan Silverman had been a teacher. Now, this year, his girl friend (Rita Flori, played by Carolyn McCormick) is an assistant D.A. The

Ask Dick Kleiner

Spenser books all featured Susan Silverman, and my feeling is that the show doesn't work as well without her.

Dear Dick: Could you please tell me the name of the actor who plays a character named Angus on "General Hospital"? The credits roll by too fast to catch it. — J.O., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Dear J.O.: Put your set on Slo-Credits. But, meanwhile, the actor is an Englishman named Guy Doleman. Don't get too attached to the character. I have it on good authority he will be killed off soon.

Dear Dick: I hope you can help me. I need to know if Billy Warlock (Frankie, on "Days of Our Lives") is the same actor who played Eddie on "The Munsters." — C.S., Loudon, Tenn.

Dear C.S.: No. Butch Patrick played Eddie — and did not grow up to be Billy Warlock.

Dear Dick: On the soap "Days of Our Lives," Roman and Mariena recited a poem at their wedding that begins, "For this is the season of love..." I've tried to copy it several times and can't catch it all. Please tell me where I could get a copy. — D.W., Amarillo, Texas.

Dear D.W.: Write to the show, in care of Columbia TV, Burbank, CA 91523, and they will send you a copy.

Dear Dick: My family and I are great, great fans of the TV reruns of "M*A*S*H." I was wondering — when B.J. entered the show, was Colonel Blake the commanding officer? — P.S., Stuart, Fla.

Dear P.S.: No. Blake (McLean Stevenson) and Trapper John (Wayne Rogers) left and were replaced by B.J. (Mike Farrell) and Potter (Harry Morgan). There was no overlapping.

Dear Dick: What does the J. in Michael J. Fox stand for? — C.B., Seneca, Mo.

Dear C.B.: Follow this carefully, because it isn't as simple as you might expect. The J. stands for either Andrew or Nothing, depending on your interpretation. His real name is Michael Andrew Fox, but when he became an actor, the Screen Actors Guild said they already had a Michael Fox, so he would have to use a middle initial. He didn't think that Michael A. Fox sounded right, so he arbitrarily picked J. It stands for Nothing, as a J., except that it really stands for Andrew — oh, well.
