Work On Boulevard Progressing Rapidly

As an indication that the construction of the boulevard is going ahead at a rapid rate is the announcement by the War Department yesterday that an application has been made by the Kreia Contracting Co., Inc., who have the contract for the work, for a permit to dredge a certain portion of Lake Monroe.

The work proposed is as follows: Dredging over an area of 100 feet, the area lying 10 feet from the water front of the city of Sanford. This dredging will be carried to a depth of about 1 1/2 feet below the present lake bottom, or to a depth of approximately six feet below mean low water. The site of the proposed work is approximately 3000 feet west of the municipal pier at Sanford.

LEIPZIG, Oct. 25.—(A.P.)—The supreme court today sustained President Von Hindenburg's removal of the Prussian government from office July 20 and his appointment of Chancellor Franz Von Papen as commissioner for that state with the power to name substitute officials. Hindenburg's emergency decree for re-establishment of security and order in Prussia is compatible with the federal constitution, Chief Justice Edwin Bumke announced.

NEGRO IS SOUGHT FOR SLAYING OF ALABAMA PAIR

50-Year-Old Salesman And His Girl Friend Are Slain In Woods

GADSDEN, Ala., Oct. 25.—(A.P.)—A negro highwayman today was sought in Birmingham as the slayer of Tom Russell, 50-year-old furniture salesman, and his companion, Miss Thelma Groover, 29-year-old daughter of a minister, in an abandoned field near here Sunday night.

The search switched from a probable "revenge" theory yesterday afternoon to a robbery motive, after officers had traced the ownership of a single barrel shotgun found at the scene of the crime to W. D. Jones, who had reported theft of the weapon on Sunday night.

A negro was seen to enter the Jones home shortly after 6 o'clock Sunday night and later emerged carrying the weapon.

During the afternoon the small radiator owned by the team employing Russell and in which the couple was seen at 7 o'clock Sunday night was found in Birmingham. Authorities believed the slayer of the couple had driven there and abandoned the machine in a white night shirt.

Frank Dick, who lives 150 yards from where the bodies were found and who described them, told officers he heard a single shot at about 10 o'clock Sunday night and a moment or two later heard thuds of blows. Dick saw a few moments later, a woman said "Let's go, my friend," and he saw a car drive away.

Russell was shot with a shotgun and his head beaten, and Miss Groover's skull was crushed. The single barrel shotgun, its stock splintered and broken, was found nearby.

The man apparently had been slain in the road, where authorities now believe he had parked, and his body dragged into the field. Miss Groover apparently was slain in the field.

New Hoover Sign Is Hung Across Street

R. D. White, of Lake Mary, in charge of Republican headquarters in the Melch Building this morning called attention to the fact that the "Hoover" sign that now appears across First Street between the Melch Building and the Sanford Atlantic National Bank, was placed there through the generosity of Hoover sympathizers who quickly came forward to pay for the sign that was taken down by unidentified persons early last week.

The present sign is similar to the one that was destroyed. It is hung from a wire cable stretching across the street, and was painted by members of the staff of the Nipper Sign Shop on Magnolia Avenue.

KEITH MILLER MET IN LONDON BY LANCASTER

Principal Witness In Clarke Case Eludes Awaiting Throngs At Steamer's Pier

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(A.P.)—Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, one of the principal witnesses in the recent murder trial at Miami of Capt. William N. Lancaster, eluded crowds of curious persons yesterday when she came back to England from the United States.

She was aboard the steamer American Banker, which was moored at King George V dock, but she went over the side while the vessel was negotiating the lock, and was ashore an hour before the other passengers.

Captain Lancaster, who was acquitted in Miami of the murder of Hamilton Clarke, a companion of Mrs. Keith-Miller, which was yesterday reported in Liverpool. He was in London when the American Banker came in, and he assisted her in getting away from the crowds.

One of the passengers aboard the American Banker explained: "We know Mrs. Keith-Miller was heading for the pier, but she was surprised when she saw the boat was still in the lock and she was put over the side and left."

Most of her luggage was left aboard, she taking only two or three small trunks. A tall Italian man, wearing a heavy overcoat, was waiting with a car on the pier above the dock and she went to the car and drove quickly away.

The tall Italian man was Captain Lancaster. Only two or three persons aboard recognized either him or Mrs. Keith-Miller.

"They were extremely anxious to avoid publicity," an official of the steamship line explained. "It was arranged that Captain Lancaster should be waiting with a car on the pier above the dock on his arrival earlier in the day. The captain said he intended to make another long distance flying trip and that it would have no other pilot than Mrs. Keith-Miller."

Strong Winds Lash California Towns Inflicting Damage

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—(A.P.)—Strong winds reaching an estimated velocity of 60 miles an hour in some places were blamed today for the death of a boy, three others injured in property damage, and indirectly led to the death of a man engaged in search for two hikers who escaped from a brush fire that perished their lives.

Lelia Martin, 19, was fatally injured when swept in the air by a gust of wind into the path of an automobile at Ontario. Charles White, 40, of Arroyo, was engaged in a search for P. R. Lundy, Monterey banker, and Lloyd Nelson, Arcadia school teacher, was killed in 160 foot fall at the bottom of a canyon on the slopes of Mount Peak.

Nelson and Lundy were sought when they failed to return from the ascent of the mountain. Nelson was found injured in falling down the same canyon in which White was killed. Lundy was not hurt. Property damage from the wind or brush fire was reported in Los Angeles, Ontario, and Glendale.

Packing Houses Asked To Hire Local Labor

A letter, mailed to owners of the seven citrus packing houses in Florida this morning by the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, asks that each do its part to aid by a resolution passed by both the Citrus Growers Association and the Florida Citrus Exchange calling upon all packing houses to employ local help wherever possible.

It is believed locally that the unemployment situation will be given real assistance in the employment of local labor which is said to be just as experienced in the handling and packing of citrus as that which drifts into the county every year from other sections. Many homes in the Central Florida section are opening daily although most of the work at present consists of repair and renovations.

Premier Of Greece Sees Another Milestone Go By In Battle For Democracy

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 25.—(A.P.)—Another milestone in his battle to become premier for the first time, King Constantine, today saw the final triumph of the republican cause in Greece as a result of the recognition of the republic by the royalist party and the dissolution of the military league.

Yenikios, whose bitter fight against royalism has not always been favored by the Greek citizenry, as evinced by their overthrow of his government and recall of King Constantine before the World War, was launched upon his career of power by the military league.

The recent pledge by royalist party leaders to support the republic resulted in the disbarring of the league, which commanders decided its mission finally had been achieved.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

RICHES HAVE WINGS: Labour not to be rich: cease from thine own wisdom. For riches certainly make themselves wings; they fly away.—Proverbs 23: 4, 5.

NEVER THE TWIN SHALL MEET: Yours was the soul of the Lotus and mine was the heart of the rose.

But the Western eagles tell us And the Eastern Master knows.

That the gods in their starry heavens And the friends in their sulphurous hell.

Have sworn that the Rose and the Lotus Forever apart must dwell.

So they hedged you round with mountains And with oceans prisoned me,

But you came over the mountains And I came over the sea—

And we met one night on the moon-path Where the moon-witch loves to nod—

She who is wiser than Satan, She who is older than God,

And she wedded us there in the half-light, White Lotus and Scarlet Rose.

But the vows that we made on the moon-path Neither God nor the devil knows.

Hedley Field Malone, international divorce lawyer, has divorced himself from the Democratic party, we gather from a recent announcement.

The fashion dictators proclaim that Mrs Hoover was seen wearing a hat on her recent trip to Detroit. Probably to protect her from insect contamination.

One thing is so strange about this campaign. We haven't heard anything from "Hell and Maria"—Tanque Tribune is it your idea that he ought to be willing to take the stump for eighty million dollars?

Peter O. Knott says that "the only soft spot in the state today is the question of taking care of the bonded debts of various cities and towns, but if the municipalities will avail themselves of the refunding statutes passed by the last legislature they will be able to work out their own situation soundly." Maybe you can, but we can't.

Federal reserve reports indicate that some $250,000,000 in bonded money has returned to circulation since July 29, and during the same interval the gold stocks of the country have increased $275,000,000. The figures are interesting not so much because of the purchasing power they themselves involve, but because they represent credit expansion to a possible limit of at least five billion dollars.

Newspaper readers should learn to discriminate between the various leading news services. The United Press (UP) is of the Scripps-Howard interests. The International News Service (INS) is a privately controlled news service of the Hearst interests. The Associated Press (AP) a non-profit non-partisan association of practically all the daily newspapers in the country, is the only absolutely reliable, unbiased, and authentic source of news in the country.

The New York World Telegram says that "A new cabinet post to be filled by Alvin E. Smith will be created by Gov. Roosevelt if he is elected president. It was learned today that the Democratic nominee already has discussed his plan to name the popular New Yorker, provided he will accept, to an office in which he can utilize his ability in handling federal financial and re-organizing government departments. Why not make him head of the Bureau for the Prevention of Dangerous Violations?"

Italy's Plea

Premier Mussolini spoke with tactful humility in Turin the other day when he urged the cancellation of the war debts by the United States. And well he might for it will be recalled that in the debt funding agreement of 1925 Italy received the most generous treatment of any of our foreign debtors. When he said "I hope the people of the United States will not repel this vessel (this ship of debts) which carries a cargo of hope and anxiety to so many people. Would that your 'No' could be heard on the other side of the ocean and touch the heart of that great people", we hope he had not forgotten that the United States has already reduced Italy's obligations to us by some eighty percent.

The original loans to Italy made during the war carried interest at the rate of five percent. When this debt was funded in 1925 a reduction was made in the accrued interest from five percent to 4.25 percent, and the interest on the principal payments, extended over a period of 62 years was even more greatly reduced. For the first five years of the agreement, no interest at all was charged. For the next ten years it is only one-eighth of one percent; thereafter it is gradually increased until it reaches the extremely low rate of two percent. The average rate for the entire 62 years is 0.4 percent, representing a reduction in aggregate principal and interest of 80.2 percent.

No other foreign country fared so well. The reduction granted Yugoslavia was 75.9 percent; Austria, 74.1 percent; Greece, 72.1 percent; and from there they range on down through five other debtor nations to Great Britain where the reduction was only 30.1 percent. Great Britain has already made payments equal to more than half the entire Italian debt. Italy on her total debt of $2,407,677,500, has made payments aggregating only $25,000,000. This year she is called upon to pay $14,706,125 including interest. It is this sum and gradually increasing sums through the next fifty-five years which Mussolini is so anxious to escape.

The cancellation of the Italian debt would likely mean the cancellation of all the war debts. Theoretically this would mean a transfer of the war burden from European countries to the American taxpayers of $11,679,000,000 principal and $10,679,000,000 in interest over the next two generations. That is a large sum to ask the American people to assume. The principal alone represents half the entire public debt of the United States. The annual payments represent a gradually increasing income to the United States from $250,000,000 a year up.

There should be no question of sentiment on our part in this question of European debts, as Premier Mussolini would like to create. The only valid question in the argument is whether it is physically possible for European countries to pay their debts to this country. The debts, it should be remembered, are payable only in gold. The entire gold stocks of Italy on June 30 of this year were only $298,000,000, scarcely enough to properly stabilize her currency. Obviously any material reduction in these gold stocks would seriously jeopardize her economic life.

The only way in which Italy can secure the gold with which to pay her debts is to sell the products of that country abroad for gold. The ports of this country, the principal market of the world, have been closed to her, as well as other European nations, by tariff walls. The problem then is whether we can reduce the tariff and allow foreign goods to compete with those of our own country, or cancel the war debts, and pass the burden of the war on to the American taxpayers.

Football Reforms

Several reassuring signs have been noted on the football horizon this year indicating that the great collegiate sport is purging itself of harmful factors and is advancing along lines which will insure the game its continuance as an important athletic adjunct to undergraduate life.

The adoption of the new "safety" code last year by the rules committee, after a season of an unusually large number of fatalities, has to a great extent minimized the dangers of the game. So far this season ten deaths have occurred due to football injuries, and of this number nine were among sandlot teams where official supervision to enforce the new regulations was lacking. Only one death has been reported by a college club. Last year fifty deaths resulted during the entire season.

In this respect alone football has justified the confidence of every fan in its ability to overcome and correct the evils which have threatened to destroy the game entirely. But more than this, there have been other events recently which have augmented this trend towards a better game.

The ruling of the Southern Conference in declaring ineligible the Tulane captain, Nello Felts, on the charge of playing professional baseball, is a further sign that the men who hold the destiny of football in their hands are determined to keep it, like Caesar's wife, above suspicion. We don't know whether Felts was guilty of playing professional baseball, but if he was, and we believe the Southern Conference officials must have investigated thoroughly, then their decision was commendable.

The action of Coach Charlie Bachman in demoting three of his star players for disobeying his orders is indicative that the coaches are contributing in a large way to dispelling the mounting opinion that football is being played solely to win games and without regard for the moral welfare of the players. Bachman is evidently as concerned with building character as he is with bringing home the bacon, and as long as this sentiment prevails among our football officials the destiny of football will always be a bright one.

(Continued From Page One) The young growth to cut out the crooked trees, the decayed trees or the undergrowing trees and to prevent ravages of fire in the growing forests," he said a few moments later in explaining that reforestation did not consist of planting seedling trees.

"These are things which any beginner in agriculture or forestry should know, and, I may add, are things which my secretary of agriculture will know." Roosevelt said there were thousands of acres of land in the southern part of the Appalachian Mountains, in which trees were growing indiscriminately.

"If there are any good trees, financial or otherwise, or other reasons why the federal government should not undertake the protection of its own property," he asked.

"Here again is another field for the employment of great numbers of our citizens."

"During these weeks I have made it abundantly clear that I propose a national agricultural policy which will direct itself not only to the better use of our hundreds of millions of acres of heavy type of land in the United States, but also to the rehabilitation of that half of our population which is living on or directly concerned with the products of the soil," he continued.

Roosevelt said the President had accepted a speech that he had prepared, a "doctrine of department" or "doctrine of the land," which was the "doctrine of the land."

"He said in substance that the farmer must wait the long way of process of industrial reconstruction before and that reconstruction is the way of the farmer."

The candidate said Roosevelt was concerned the constantly improving condition of industry and the growing unemployment had caused most Democratic supporters to most deplorable and prompt unemployment.

The three-point program which he repeated, called for raising the level of his experiments and to promise that after the election he will see what can be done to put an end to these false stabilization operations of which the nation complains and by which the farmer is being destroyed.

"The New York governor said there was going to be a 'new deal' after Mar. 4 in the relations and more leadership."

"We ought to have less vacillation and more action."

"The time has come to eliminate political secretaries of agriculture and to substitute for them a secretary whom the farmers and the foresters will recognize as one of their own."

"We are certainly paying attention to the department of agriculture to get something new, useful and more useful."

"I have been thinking of the things going to happen that we are going to do for the farmer and the forester."

"I am going to insist that we get the things that the farmer and the forester want."

"I am going to insist that we get the things that the farmer and the forester want."

tax load of the farmer, wrestling with the farm mortgage problem, and restoring the purchasing power of the farmer with the tariff as an aid.

"I believe that we ought to have in Washington a little less research and a little more thinking," he said, "fewer figures and more ideas; fewer committees and more action; a better relationship in which only Democrats and Republicans as well will take part."

He praised Governor Russell, of Georgia, recently nominated as the Democratic candidate for United States Senate, and said the governor has obtained a balanced budget in Georgia by cutting down expenditures instead of raising taxes.

"And I want to say also, for enough to be heard in that section of the country in which the White House and the Congress are located that Governor Russell did not wait for a political campaign to start considering how to get within his income," he added.

The high such a combination as Roosevelt usually receives for her native state, Roosevelt passed yesterday. The speech that marked the first time in recent years that a Democratic presidential candidate has seen fit to come to campaign into the heart of the South.

"The difficulties are so vast and so unlimited that I approach the subject not only in ignorance but in humility," Mr. Norman said. "It is too much for me."

"I wonder if there is any one in the world who can really direct the affairs of the world, or of his country, with any assurance of the result his action will have?"

"Why, a year ago, could have foreseen the year 1932 which we have drifted little by little? First we have risen down, then we have risen up, then down, then up."

"The confused affairs of the world have brought about a series of events, an increasing tendency which appears to me at this time as being outside the control of any man and any government and any country."

"I believe that if every country that is a part of a movement, could get together, it would be different, but we do not seem to be able to get together."

"I have been driven to one conclusion. We must take, for the moment, a short view, and we must plan for a long one."

"I am willing to do my best when it comes to the future. I hope we may all see the approach of light at the end of the tunnel. Some people already have been able to point out that light to us, but I do not think it is so certain, but I admit that, for the moment, the way is not clear."
