BRIEFS

Pit problem postponed

SANFORD — The question of what to do about the Marquette borrow pit problem has been held off. The Seminole County Commission Tuesday discussed a judgment by a Circuit Court tribunal that had determined the commission was in error in not allowing Sid Vihlen to expand the pit as had been requested earlier this year.

A public hearing has now been scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 12, beginning at 7 p.m., at which time public input will be accepted. From that point, the commission will have the option of accepting the Circuit Court judgment and allowing Vihlen to expand the borrow pit, or decide to file an appeal with the Fifth District Court of Appeals in Daytona Beach.

Union vote

SANFORD — Members of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) voted to accept the most recent contract with the city of Sanford. The vote comes after nearly two years of negotiations.

While most of the matters in the union contract had been agreed upon during previous negotiation sessions, the main remaining items, pertaining to pay scales, were the last to be approved.

The vote by union members was 52 to six, with less than a 100 percent turnout by the 73 officers, corporals and sergeants.

Attempted murder

SANFORD — Marcus Oliver, 18, of Altamonte Springs was scheduled to make his initial court appearance this afternoon at the Seminole County Correctional Facility. He is charged with one count of attempted second degree murder.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, Oliver is accused of attacking 40-year old Leslie Ramery of Orlando with a baseball bat and rocks on Aug. 20. The attack reportedly occurred at 3 p.m., as Ramery and his teen-age son were leaving the Jackson Street Grocery in Altamonte Springs.

McDonough said the motive for the attack was apparently to steal the gold chains being worn by Ramery and his son at that time. Ramery sustained lacerations to his head but has since recovered from his injuries.

Special airport meeting

SANFORD — The Sanford Airport Authority has announced a special meeting Tuesday, Oct. 29, beginning at 4 p.m. A representative of Central Florida Terminals will be on hand to brief the authority regarding the first season of activities through the international departures facility by United Kingdom tour operators.

Several of the UK tour operator chief executive officers will be on hand for the meeting.

The special meeting will be held in the A. Kay Shoemaker International Terminal conference room, level II, at the Orlando Sanford Airport.

Grove anniversary

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The Grove Counseling Center, Inc., has announced plans to observe its 25th anniversary on Saturday, Nov. 9 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., at Eastmonte Park in Altamonte Springs. To observe the event, a Family Fun Festival has been planned, with activities and events planned for people of all ages.

The Grove has served Central Florida for a quarter century, providing a multitude of drug and delinquency treatment, intervention and prevention programs and services.

Abduction a wake-up call to city?

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Though neighborhood watch programs are still strong, the numbers patrolling the streets have decreased while the number of criminals prowling the area has risen.

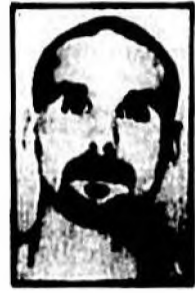

"There are a lot more dirtbags out there," said Bob Kuhn, founder of the Neighborhood Watch program in the historic Sanford residential district. "And there just aren't enough police."

Perhaps, the citizen patrols or additional police might have prevented a Monday night abduction of a district resident. Or perhaps not, Kuhn said.

"I think we need to be out there watching and calling the police," he noted.

Angela Toney's trip to the grocery store on Monday night turned into a horrible nightmare when a man, perhaps angered by her refusal to let him use the telephone, took her on a trip, at knifepoint, to Osceola County.

Seminole County Manager Ron Rabun, left, maintained a somber expression during Tuesday afternoon's County Commission meeting.

County manager resigns suddenly

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Not in recent history has word spread so rapidly around Sanford and Seminole County. People were talking to people, phone calls were coming in. Questions were flying regarding why Seminole County Manager Ron Rabun has resigned.

Although Rabun met with his staff at 9:30 Tuesday morning to give them the news, the information leaked throughout the area before that time.

He presented his official letter of resignation before the County Commission meeting Tuesday afternoon. The resignation was effective at the end of the business day, and was approved with hardly any discussion, by a unanimous vote of the commissioners.

Seminole County Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser has been named as interim county manager. Advertising for a replacement is expected to get under way in the near future.

Many people phoning the Sanford Herald regarding the resignation asked why he did it, and why it was effective immediately. In his letter of resignation, Rabun indicated he would be willing to continue in the position, but found it not possible.

The move is believed to have been instigated by Commission Chairman Dick Van Der Weide. In the opening line of his official letter of resignation, Rabun wrote, "Based upon a suggestion by yourself that it is appropriate that the new incoming board have the opportunity to select a new county manager, I hereby submit my resignation of..."

LAKE MARY — Police are searching for the driver of a Cadillac they believe rampaged through a Lake Mary cemetery Sunday.

Approximately three-fourths of the Oaklawn Cemetery grounds were damaged. Lake Mary police are attempting to locate a woman identified as Sherry Ann Hale, believed to be a resident of Sorrento, for questioning regarding the incident.

The vehicle is reportedly registered in Hale's name, and has been identified by Sanford police as also having been involved in a hit-and-run incident at SR-46 and Towne Center Blvd. Sanford police have the vehicle in custody.

Regarding the cemetery incident, Lake Mary police officer Leo Brunelle Jr. said he responded, "...to a call regarding a reckless driver driving a motor vehicle at a high rate of speed through the Oaklawn Cemetery. The vehicle was reported to have been tearing up grave sites and causing damage to these sites in the cemetery."

Officer Brunelle said by the time he arrived, the vehicle had left the area and was northbound on Rinehart Road toward Sanford.

While Brunelle's report said Cemetery Director Doug Phillips estimated damage at approximately $10,000, Cemetery Management official Jim Hora said damage was closer to $5,000.

"There were many ruins in the ground," Hora said, "and a lot of vases, at $60 each were destroyed, along with several benches and small trees that were hit."

By Tuesday afternoon, much of the restoration work had already been accomplished.

During the incident however, a number of persons told police they were fearful of their safety. A man, his wife and son, were in the cemetery when they said they heard the vehicle racing and bouncing in the cemetery then saw

Land purchase approved for county trail

By NICK PFEIFAUPE

SANFORD — The controversial purchase of CSX railroad corridor in south central Seminole County for use as the Cross Seminole Trail has finally been approved. Governor Lawton Chiles and the cabinet accepted the measure Tuesday.

Seminole County Commissioner Randy Morris, Oviedo Mayor Mimi Bruce, Seminole County Property Appraiser Bill Suber and other area officials spent Tuesday morning in Tallahassee making a presentation in favor of the project, part of Project 2000.

The agreed upon price is to be $8.9 million, below the $7.5 million originally requested. The higher amount had been rejected in late September by the governor and cabinet. At that time, Chiles and State Comptroller Bob Milligan voiced objections to the purchase, saying that the land cost was too

Crash landing at Publix

VENICE — A small plane crash-landed on the roof of a supermarket, injuring the pilot and causing minor damage to the store.

No one was hurt inside the Publix after the Tuesday morning crash. Nearby shops were evacuated while authorities cleaned up spilled oil and removed the heavily damaged single-engine Cessna.

The pilot, Raymond McClelland, 52, received minor cuts to his leg, the Sarasota County Sheriff's Office said. McClelland was the only occupant.

After his aircraft lost oil pressure, McClelland tried to reach the Venice airport, less than a mile from the supermarket. But his engine stopped and he crash-landed on the roof, the sheriff's department said.

"I suddenly heard a sputtering sound like a 'bloop, bloop, bloop.'" I was wondering what it was and I looked up," witness Ron Hochman said. "Suddenly, I heard a boom, crash. And that was the last thing."

The plane bounced and skidded along the roof, coming to rest against the building's parapet, which appeared to have kept the aircraft from dropping off the building.

Smuggler dies of overdose

TAMARAC — A Jamaican drug smuggler died while carrying 24 cocaine-filled capsules in his stomach, the Broward Sheriff's Office said.

It is assumed that Webster Davis, 61, died of a drug overdose when one or more of the pellets broke, sheriff's office spokesman Ott Cefkin said Tuesday.

Davis arrived in South Florida aboard an Air Jamaica flight Oct. 9 and was last seen alive Oct. 12 when he drove to a shopping center in a borrowed car, Cefkin said. The man's body was found Oct. 15 next to a bank at the shopping center.

Davis is believed to have been going to a drug store to purchase a laxative, Cefkin said.

His death has been ruled accidental, but the Broward medical examiner's office will not know for certain if it was a cocaine overdose that killed him until results of toxicology tests are in.

The capsules were about twice as large as vitamin capsules. Davis had lived in Plantation and Lauderdale in 1982 and was staying with a sister in Broward County after flying into South Florida this month, Cefkin said.

Amtrak adding routes

JACKSONVILLE — Amtrak will add a train and revamp its routes between Miami, the Carolinas, and New York.

The Silver Palm will join the Silver Star and the Silver Meteor to offer Amtrak customers more travel choices, the company said.

The three trains will depart New York City and Miami every day in the morning, midday and evening. The southbound trains will arrive in Miami by late morning, late afternoon and mid-evening. The northbound trains will arrive in New York in mid-morning, late afternoon, and late evening.

The Silver Palm will provide direct Amtrak service between Miami and Tampa and continue north to Jacksonville, Charleston, S.C., Fayetteville, N.C., Washington, D.C., and New York.

In addition to the daytime service between Tampa and Miami, the Silver Palm also will provide daytime service from the Northeast to the Carolinas and overnight service from the Carolinas to Florida.

The new Silver Star routes will maintain a route from New York to Raleigh, N.C., Columbia, S.C., and Charlestonville. At Raleigh, Amtrak will offer customers a new daily connection between the Silver Star and the Piedmont to travel between Greensboro and Charlotte, N.C., and Florida destinations.

The Silver Meteor will continue its current routes between Miami, Orlando, Charleston, S.C., and Washington, D.C. with improved operating times.

Sentencing in murder of Miami woman

ST. LOUIS — A St. Louis County man will serve life in prison without parole for murdering a Washington University student from Miami and raping another woman.

Andre Bonds, 20, of suburban Richmond Heights, pleaded guilty Monday to charges of first-degree murder, robbery, rape, sodomy, kidnapping and armed criminal action.

St. Louis Circuit Judge Daniel Tillman sentenced him to 12 consecutive life terms and two consecutive 15-year sentences for kidnapping.

Afterward, the judge gave Bonds a few minutes with his mother, Diane Bonds, before sheriff's deputies led him away.

The teary-eyed mother said she hoped the victims' families "are OK."

Bonds also faces up to six life terms in prison on carjacking and other federal charges linked to the murder of Melissa Gail Aptman and the attack on her friend. Sentencing on the federal charges is scheduled for Dec. 15.

Cost of sugar tax battle climbs to a record $28 million so far

By JACQUE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A record $28 million has been raised in the fight over a proposal to produce money for Everglades cleanup by taxing sugar grown south of Lake Okeechobee a penny a pound.

The latest campaign reports, covering Sept. 27 through Oct. 11, show the bitter battle over Amendment Four has smashed Florida's record for campaign fund raising.

Contributions in that two-week period reached nearly $1 million a day. Of the total raised, the sugar industry leads tax supporters by almost 2-to-1.

The fight over casino gambling set a state record two years ago, with $18 million. Proponents outspent opponents by 10-to-1 but lost at the ballot box.

In 1990, former Gov. Bob Martinez and Gov. Lawton Chiles spent a combined $16 million, with the Republican incumbent outspending his Democratic challenger 2-to-1.

Amendment Four would add a tax on sugar grown south of Lake Okeechobee to the state constitution. The money would amount to an estimated $800 million over 25 years and would pay for Everglades cleanup. Citizens To Save Jobs & Stop Unfair Taxes, a group formed to fight the tax, raised $8.2 million in early October, according to a campaign report filed Monday with the state Division of Elections.

This year, the anti-tax campaign has raised a total of $18.2 million, most of it from the industry, including U.S. Sugar Corp., Flo-Sun Inc. and the Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative.

Save Our Everglades, the group that got the tax proposal on the ballot, reported raising $4.9 million, including a $3.2 million loan, between Sept. 27 and Oct. 11.

In that period, Paul Tudor Jones II, a Wall Street commodities trader, made the loan and also contributed another $1.2 million.

So far, Jones, who lives in Connecticut and owns a home in the Florida Keys, has accounted for $6.4 million of the $10 million raised by Save Our Everglades.

John Sowinski, campaign manager for Citizens To Save Jobs, predicted spending would level out by Election Day — but also defended the amount of money involved in the campaign.

Plane and simple

A jet owned by the United Arab Emirates and operated by Gulf Air Transportation Service (GATS) spent the day at the Orlando Sanford Airport in Sanford on Tuesday. About 9,000 pounds of shotguns and shotgun shells, which had been purchased from a shop in Apopka were being loaded on to the plane. According to Steve Cook, director of the airport authority, the jet was built about 20 years ago in the former Soviet Union. It was scheduled to leave today after an inspection by customs officials.

Clinton makes two Fla. campaign stops

By KATHERINE HUFF
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — When President Clinton spoke to a crowd of more than 10,000 at Miami-Dade Community College, he was among friends.

Old and young, white and black people interviewed during the president's appearance Tuesday said they preferred his positions on a wide range of issues — including education, abortion, Medicaid and taxes — to the platform offered by Republican challenger Bob Dole.

Clinton spoke at the college's North Campus to a diverse crowd during a two-day campaign visit to Florida. Polls show him holding a single-digit lead across the state, which hasn't supported a Democratic candidate in 20 years.

Peacefully jostling one another for a better view in the bright late-afternoon sunshine were women in African robes, young black men in baggy slacks, middle-aged white women with carefully coiffed hair and students of all colors in jeans and T-shirts.

The president pledged that if re-elected Nov. 5, he would create volunteer brigades to teach children to read, lower interest rates to reduce the cost of maintaining schools and building new facilities and hook up every classroom and library to the Internet.

Quayle stumps in Fla. for some GOP hopefuls

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Former Vice President Dan Quayle told cheering students Bob Dole has a "fighting chance" to beat President Clinton and urged them to help Republicans hold their lead in Congress.

"I'm disappointed in the polls, but hopefully I'm not going to be disappointed in the results on Nov. 5," Quayle said after a rally Tuesday at Florida State University for GOP congressional candidate Bill Sutton.

Quayle wouldn't reveal his own political plans after addressing about 500 students. He is chairman of Campaign America, the organization dedicated to electing Republicans to Congress.

"I haven't really gotten that far," he said. "I'm enjoying myself and the politics of 1990."

I'm working my heart out for congressional candidates all over the country, and for Bob Dole. We'll see what lies ahead for us."

After his speech, Quayle moved into the crowd in the campus center courtyard where he was mobbed by students who wanted to shake his hand and get autographs for campaign posters and copies of his book, "Standing Firm."

"He's gotten kind of a bad rap from people but he is a very intelligent man who stands firm on his beliefs," said Charles Fenwick, 18, a freshman from Tallahassee who said he will vote for Dole in his first time voting.

A Clinton supporter in the crowd, sophomore psychology major Meredith Mills, 19, of Bradenton, said she was "kind of surprised" Quayle appeared.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — A year and 20 days after a jury acquitted O.J. Simpson, another jury in another courtroom does the whole thing over again to decide whether it believes he is a killer.

Opening statements were to begin today with lawyers for three plaintiffs and one defendant spelling out for a mostly white jury just what the evidence will show during the trial, expected to last four months.

Simpson, 40, was acquitted last October in the June 1994 slayings of ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman. Ms. Simpson's estate and Goldman's family are suing Simpson for unspecified damages, claiming he is the killer.

Prior to opening statements, Superior Court Judge Hiroshi Fujisaki was to consider some lingering legal issues, including a plaintiff request that jurors not be told about former Detective Mark Fuhrman's no-contest plea to perjury relating to his use of the word "nigger." Plaintiffs also want Fuhrman's criminal trial testimony ruled off-limits.

The first witness, sources say, will be Karen Crawford, the manager at the restaurant where Goldman was working the night he died. Crawford placed into an envelope the eyeglasses Goldman took to Ms. Simpson's house, where he was killed.

Other early witnesses on the plaintiff's list are Pablo Fenjves, whose recollection of a howling dog indicated that the time of the slayings was about 10:15 p.m., and Stewart Tanner, a bartender who said Goldman probably left work around 9:50 p.m., sources said.

But there also will be some new faces and some new evidence, led by a photograph purporting to show Simpson wearing the same style of rare Italian shoes as those worn by the killer.

Other differences: — Simpson must testify. Since he can't be tried again on murder charges, he enjoys no Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination.

— No prosecutors. This time, it's lawyers for the relatives of Ms. Simpson and Goldman trying to build a case against Simpson.

— If it doesn't fit, there's no one to acquit. Simpson can't go to jail this time. The penalty if he loses is money.

— A heavier burden for the defense. Reasonable doubt won't do it this time for Simpson. The plaintiffs need only prove their case by a preponderance of the evidence. If the jurors think there's a better chance than not that Simpson was the killer, he loses. Also, the verdict doesn't have to be unanimous; a 9-3 margin suffices.

— A different jury makeup. The old jury had nine blacks; the new one has nine whites.

State asking court to delay giving violent inmates gain time

By SHIRAZ BATE
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The state is asking the Florida Supreme Court to set aside its ruling giving violent inmates the right to shorten their sentences until the U.S. Supreme Court can rule on the subject.

On Tuesday, Attorney General Bob Butterworth filed a motion asking the state court to delay implementing its Oct. 10 ruling that the policy of denying violent inmates the ability to earn "incentive gain time" violated their constitutional rights by changing the ground rules of their imprisonment after they were already behind bars.

The Department of Corrections estimated that 22,000 of the state's 64,000 inmates would benefit from the ruling — including about 1,800 who would be eligible for immediate release because of gain time they would have earned these past six months.

Deputy Attorney General Pete Antonacci said his office filed the motion Tuesday because it plans to appeal the recent ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court "so the Department of Corrections does not have to let out a bunch of dangerous people."

In addition, the high court is scheduled to hear oral arguments Nov. 4 on another Florida gain-time case that could affect the Oct. 10 decision, Antonacci said.

That case will examine whether Florida could rightfully take away "provisional gain-time credits" awarded to prisoners in the 1980s solely to alleviate crowding. If the high court rules against Florida in that case, tens of thousands of prisoners would get back those credits that were taken from them in 1993, resulting in earlier release dates.

Baya Harrison, the Monticello lawyer who won the Oct. 10 ruling on behalf of a Clearwater murderer, said he plans to oppose Butterworth's motion. "Trampling on the Constitution doesn't bother these people," Harrison said.

Antonacci said he hopes the Florida Supreme Court rules on the state's motion within the next several days.

Gravesite damages

Some people have little respect for departed family members. This was shown vividly Sunday in the damage done to Oaklawn Cemetery near Lake Mary by a person in a Cadillac reportedly using the cemetery as a dirt race track.

It has also been proven in the past by persons vandalizing graves and cribs at other area cemeteries.

What possesses these people? We don't know, and we doubt if even they themselves have any answer. Some graves are broken open by persons, mostly youngsters, seeking a thrill. Others may do it for what they believe is some cult ritual. Neither of these reasons is logical or sane.

Are we to believe that cemetery damage doesn't hurt anyone?

With only a few exceptions, everyone, in every gravesite, has decedents who are still with us. They look on the gravesite as the final resting place of someone they held dear to their hearts.

Then along comes some person with no sense of compassion, and that resting place becomes a disaster zone mentally, in addition to costly.

We find little excuses for such behavior. If, for example, the Lake Mary Oaklawn Cemetery damage is ever proven to have been caused through alcoholic consumption, we doubt that even a person who is "stoned" could be as ill-caring.

Every one of us has a relative in a cemetery. As such, should we not give that consideration when we hear of such incidents?

If and when Lake Mary police locate the person responsible, file charges, and have the matter go to court, we hope the verdict will be severe.

People who damage cemeteries and gravesites didn't hurt us physically, but we have been hurt emotionally, and as far as we are concerned, that is a serious crime as well.

Answer to column

I would tell James Sweeting that GOP hatefulness has not backfired, democratic liars have succeeded. Let me explain.

Remember how the Democrat controlled House and Senate promised President George Bush that they would cut spending if he approved one of the largest tax increases in American history? They then ridiculed old George for reneging on his "read my lips" no tax increase pledge to help a two bit Governor of Arkansas become President with forty-three percent of the vote (Ross Perot helped too). Presidential candidate Bill Clinton had reasons for saying he was tired of hearing about the subjects called character or family values. His youthful protest against America's policy in Vietnam on the streets of Moscow's Red Square (set your heart out, Jane Fonda) should be ignored. Don't even think about the fact that he could not have been in Russia at the height of the Cold War without KGB approval. Candidate Clinton also promised to cut taxes for the middle class if elected. One of his first acts as President, with the help of a democratic controlled House and Senate, was to sign into law the biggest tax increase in American history. He later made a statement to a group of businessmen, "I'll bet you think I raised your taxes too much. I think I did too." James Sweeting forgets that about a year ago Democratic politicians running for re-election in 1986 were trying to distance themselves from an irrelevant President Clinton. He and they rose from the ashes by calling a Republican proposal for reducing the growth of Medicare a CUT in Medicare. An outright lie bought by the AARP crowd hook, line and sinker. Democrats succeeded in making Americans believe that Republicans would dirty our water, foul our air and have old people forced to eat dog food. That is not hatefulness, that is just good politics. Bear in mind that telling the truth about a Democrat is hatefulness to those who love government control (liberals). Those of us who love the truth and less government control just might surprise you liberals in November.

Will California pass Proposition 209?

After the presidential race and perhaps certain senatorial races on Nov. 5, the most closely watched and by long odds the most important contest on the ballot anywhere will be Proposition 209 in California: the California Civil Rights Initiative. For California is the bellwether state in this as in so many other respects, and how it votes on this issue will go far toward deciding whether America continues to honor individual merit or decides officially to reward people with state jobs, contracts and college admissions on the basis of their race, ethnicity or gender.

The CCRRI is based squarely on the principle that underlay the Civil Rights Act of 1964. It even echoes its wording, for its key clause, which would amend the state constitution, is majestic in its simplicity:

"The state shall not discriminate against, or grant preferential treatment to, any individual or group on the basis of race, sex, color, ethnicity, or national origin in the operation of public employment, public education, or public contracting."

Why should such a provision even be necessary, in view of the clear intention of the 1964 Civil Rights Act? It is necessary because, beginning in the Johnson and Nixon administrations, a series of executive orders, judicial rulings, and regulatory decrees have quietly turned that Act around exactly 180 degrees.

Instead of forbidding preferential treatment of any particular group, government policy has become to favor members of allegedly "disadvantaged minorities" with state jobs, state contracts, and admissions to state colleges that they could not obtain competitively, on their own merits.

No law of Congress or decision of the Supreme Court has ever authorized a racial preference (for example), unless there was explicit proof of prior discrimination in that business or college against members of a particular race. Yet in California applicants for admission to state colleges with demonstrably superior academic qualifications have been routinely rejected because they were of the "wrong" (usually white or Asian) racial background. The same is true of applicants for state jobs, and businesses making the lowest bids for state contracts.

In short, the state of California has been up to its ears in a system of race preference.

Moreover, preferential treatment hasn't been confined to black citizens, whose ancestors at least were unquestionably disadvantaged by the legacy of slavery. The politicians have expanded the honey pot to include all sorts of minorities -- Samoans, for example -- who have never suffered discrimination at all.

In short, the state of California has been up to its ears in a system of race preference, and just hoping nobody would notice. Well, at last they have noticed. The State Board of Regents has already voted to eliminate such quotas in college admissions, under the leadership of Gov. Wilson and a courageous black regent named Ward Connerly, who knows all too well how race preferences can devalue the worth of a diploma awarded to an unqualified recipient. Now Connerly is leading the battle for Proposition 209.

The critical importance of Proposition 209 resides in the message its passage (or defeat) will send to the rest of the nation, and to Congress. If the biggest state in the union votes strongly against race preferences, even while giving its electoral votes to Mr. Clinton, politicians won't have to have a degree in rocket science to figure out that that particular stealthy game is up.

Rules girl, Rules boy

When I first heard about "The Rules," the dating primer that has become a runaway best seller, I assumed it was full of the same old courtship cliches, trite but to a certain extent true.

After all, dating does have a degree of game-playing to it. Self-loathing creatures that most of us humans are, classic tactics like playing hard-to-get frequently work. And it should come as no surprise that people who comb their hair and wear decent-looking shoes tend to be more popular than those who eschew such superficialities.

So I have no problem with the idea of using a few strategic moves to get a person of the opposite sex interested -- waiting a day or so to return a call, playing the field, wearing lipstick, etc.

But have you seen this thing? It makes Cosmopolitan look like a feminist manifesto. Here is just a sampler of the world according to "The Rules":

... On Humor: "Don't tell sarcastic jokes. Don't be a loud knee-slapping hysterically funny girl... When you're with a man you like you must be quiet and mysterious, act ladylike, cross your legs and smile."

... On What to Talk About on a Date: "If you're smart you'll stay cool and just listen to what he says. Follow his lead."

... On Why You Shouldn't Ever Call Him: "Have you noticed that the conversation is almost always better when men call you?"

... On Why He Should Always Pay: "Why deprive him of the joy of feeling chivalrous?"

... On Independence: "(Some women) feel their diplomans and psychics entitle them to do more in life than wait for the phone to ring. These women, we assure you, always end up heartbroken when their forwardness is rebuffed."

It's like one of those hilarious "How to Date a Boy" movies from the '50s. The ones they show late at night on Comedy Central. The ones that make you so happy to live at a time when women freely assert their independence and their sexuality.

But this is no joke. A lot of women are making authors Ellen Fein and Sherrie Schneider very rich -- and not just by plunking down $9.99 for the paperback. They're also paying 45 bucks apiece to attend "Rules" seminars. Some are even paying $850 an hour to get personal counseling from the authors. In short, they're emptying their wallets for the opportunity to be told that they have to act like a nitwit to attract a man.

But what really baffles me is, who are these men? And why would anyone want to date -- or, God forbid, marry -- them? Who wants to have dinner with someone who doesn't want to hear your jokes and opinions? Who can respect someone who continues to call, even after you treated him like dirt?

And what self-respecting man would want to date a woman who is vapid, conniving and rude.

But last I was missing something. I quizzed my boyfriend Andrew on our courtship. I thought we were pretty happy, but perhaps things could have been even better. Would he like me more if I had never plucked him up at his place (Rule 4)? What if I refused to pay for dates (Rule 4 again)? Or never returned his calls (Rule 5)?

He insists that he would not. However, Andrew is also smart enough to date a feminist columnist. So he's probably not your typical Rules Guy.

But that's the problem with this book. It reduces both men and women to very, very stupid stereotypes.

It makes Cosmopolitan look like a feminist manifesto.

MORTON KONDRACKE

Ethics issue could boost turnout

Bob Dole fumbled his well-telegraphed character attack on President Clinton recently, but he may be able to maximize Republican turnout on Election Day if he sustains the assault.

Republicans should have made the ethical climate in the Clinton administration a key campaign issue months ago, but Dole can still use it to supplement the get-out-the-vote efforts of his party and allied groups like the Christian Coalition, which has an unprecedented effort under way to reach 45 million religious conservatives.

After agonizingly public internal discussion, Dole unleashed character attacks on Clinton only recently. And in the final presidential debate, he took pot shots at the president on a range of ethics issues instead of honing in on the Whitewater garden question.

A top Republican activist remarked that "Dole's attack needed dramaticity and theater. He should have walked over and confronted Clinton and said, 'Mr. President, Americans have a right to know: Do you plan to pardon former business associates who might implicate you in fraud charges?' Instead, he noted senatorial. He referred to the scandals, but got out of Clinton's way."

It's entirely possible that Clinton would have slipped away even from a more confrontational Dole, especially since the "town hall" debate format prohibited questioners or moderator Jim Lehrer from following up on any questions.

The format required Dole to persist on his own in getting an answer from Clinton on the president's implication that he might pardon convicted Whitewater defendant Susan McDougal, currently in jail for refusing to answer grand jury questions about Clinton's role in the affair.

Dole also should have honed in on "Filegate," demanding to know how 800 confidential FBI files on Republicans could have been entrusted to Craig Livingston, a political operative. Dole mentioned the scandal twice, but failed to make it clear and relevant. Moreover, no questioner was present to ask about it.

After this election is over, the Republican and Democratic parties need to review presidential debate formats and consider returning to the panels of journalists that were the debate norm through 1984.

The format was replaced by the single moderator and town meeting format when the parties staged a coup, displacing the previous debate-sponsoring organization, the League of Women Voters, with the Commission on Presidential Debates.

Even though the panel format encouraged journalistic questioning -- which reached its extreme when CNN's Bernard Shaw asked Democrat Michael Dukakis how he'd feel about capital punishment if his wife was raped and murdered -- the format also encouraged probing questions and permitted follow-up.

I admit to prejudice on the issue, having been a panelist for the 1984 debate at which Ronald Reagan launched the "age question" out of the park. Still, that debate included sharp, unexpected questioning of Reagan about his policy toward Philippine dictator Ferdinand Marcos and of Democrat Walter Mondale about his support for a nuclear freeze.

Under the current format, what gets discussed is almost entirely under the control of the candidates, and they tend to specialize in well-practiced speeches.

All polls confirm that Clinton and Vice President Al Gore beat Dole and veep candidate Jack Kemp hands down in this year's three debates, although some Republican activists think Dole's late aggressiveness on ethics will energize the Republican base and help turnout -- if he keeps the drumbeat going.

"Republicans and Republican-leaning independents need to know that Dole is fighting for this job," said one GOP activist. "If he can't drive up turnout with any positive emotion, maybe he can do it with hatred for Clinton, which is quite strong in our base."

Polls continue to show Clinton with a double-digit lead over Dole, and without some energy at the top of the ticket, there's a fair chance that demoralized GOP voters will stay at home and allow Democrats to regain control of Congress.

As I reported recently, GOP congressional candidates are not to begin telling voters in mailings and phone calls to turn out to elect a GOP Congress to keep Clinton from having a "black check for liberalism."

The Christian Coalition, moreover, is planning "the most ambitious, aggressive, and expensive get-out-the-vote effort in our history," according to executive director Ralph Reed.

Ironically, a message of "hatred" from Dole will help energize a base supposedly inspired by a religion based on love.

Dole mentioned the scandal twice, but failed to make it clear and relevant.

the vehicle heading in their direction. "The entire family had to run away to avoid being hit by this vehicle," Brunelle said.

Confusion was evident at first. Some witnesses said the vehicle was a Pontiac, with a white male wearing a black baseball cap.

Sunday afternoon, Sanford police notified Lake

Mary that they had the suspect vehicle, a 1987 Cadillac, at SR-46 and Orange Road. The driver was not in the vehicle, but the report said it matched the description of the one being sought. It appeared to have suffered extensive damage to the front end and undercarriage.

The vehicle was also missing three hubcaps. Lake Mary police had already recovered three hubcaps at the cemetery, matching the fourth which was still on the Cadillac.

Sanford police also said the grill and lower front end spoiler assembly were missing. They had also been located in the cemetery.

According to Sanford police officer Frank Hewitt, the vehicle had been identified as being in a hit-and-run crash at I-4 and SR-46.

After the vehicle was abandoned, other witnesses said they saw a woman trying to flag down passing vehicles for a ride. The woman was described as a white female, five foot four to five foot five, wearing a black leather cap, white shirt, black leather vest, black pants, and high heels. Her hair was described as a "bleach blond."

The Lake County sheriff's department said the description matches closely that of suspect Sherry Hale.

As of this morning, Lake Mary police Capt. Sam Belfiore said he had not been notified that Hale had been located. "There is still some question about the identity of the person in the vehicle," he said, "but we are working closely with Sanford police in this because of the SR-46 situation."

The investigation is continuing. At the present time, in connection with the cemetery damage, Lake Mary police are planning on charges including reckless driving, use of a motor vehicle in the commission of a felony, and driving with an expired tag (located on the Cadillac).

Milligan had objected to what was then a $65,700-per-acre purchase price commenting, "It just doesn't make any sense to me at all."

The governor and cabinet however, rather than voting against the proposal, agreed to table it in order to give the matter further consideration.

Since that time, the total purchase price for the CSX corridor was lowered, and the latest cost has now apparently pleased at least a majority of the cabinet members.

Milligan however, stuck with his beliefs and voted against the purchase even at the lower price during yesterday's cabinet meeting. He was joined by Attorney General Bob Butterworth, who indicated he believed the price could be lower if there were additional negotiations.

The Cross Seminole Trail will become one of three showstate trail projects in Seminole County. It will be jointly developed with the cities of Winter Springs and Oviedo, playing a key role in the economic development of all areas concerned.

3.5 mile Cady Way Trail in Orange County, forming the beginning of a regional network.

The lowering of the price from $7.5 million to $6.9 million was the second reduction in the amount sought by CSX. Originally, CSX tried to sell the same corridor to Florida Power Corporation for $20 million, but that deal never got off the ground.

There was no immediate indication at Tuesday's cabinet meeting when the closing date might be, but it was originally expected to take about 60 days after the governor approves the measure.

for the program in Tallahassee Tuesday, returning in time for the afternoon County Commission meeting.

board," he added. In submitting his resignation, Rabun has requested a lump sum severance pay, according to his contract, equal to six months salary, beginning Nov. 22, plus payment for any accumulated leave or other requirements.

"I have enjoyed almost every single day of my service in Seminole County since my first day on March 4, 1991," he wrote to Van Der Weide. "I feel that during my tenure a great deal has been accomplished in the areas of transportation, tourism, sports, economic development, financial management and emergency preparedness.

These strides would not have been possible without the support of the present and past boards, as well as the assistance and advice of an excellent staff."

In conclusion Rabun wrote, "Notwithstanding these accomplishments, and my own willingness to continue to serve the county, I understand and support the need for an organization to periodically make a change in its top leadership. In that endeavor, I wish the board the best possible success in its search for a new manager.

The change in the County Commission however, will be on only one seat, as Grant Maloy takes over the seat held by Pat Warren. Other than that, the commission will remain unchanged.

Several months ago, Rabun had actively sought the county manager's position in Volusia County. After making the top 10 list, his name was selected as the prime candidate, but the Volusia County Council and Rabun were unable to agree on a salary he had requested.

Rabun would not comment on the future of his career in county government or indicate any possibilities in employment.

Abduction

Toney was uninjured and her assailant is in a jail cell in Osceola County awaiting a decision on what charges he will face.

According to Cmdr. Dennis Whitlock of the Sanford Police Department, James Whitlock, 25, could face charges of armed kidnapping in Osceola County. He could face armed robbery charges in Sanford where the ordeal first began.

Toney, who lives on Park Avenue in the downtown historic residential district, told police that she had been unloading groceries from her car at about 9:30 on Monday evening when a man approached her and asked to use her telephone and for a drink of water. When she refused and went into her residence, the man reportedly followed her, grabbed a kitchen knife forced her to drive with him to what ended up as a location in Osceola County.

According to Toney's report to the police, they stopped in Longwood to buy cigarettes and beer, but she had been too afraid to escape at that point.

She told police that Whitlock had smelled of alcohol before stopping to purchase additional drinks.

Police said Whitlock was a transient and had recently lived in a weekly rental in the Sanford Historic District, but that he listed his present address as Baldwin, Ga. He and Toney did not know one another prior to Monday, police said.

According to the police report, Whitlock had first ordered Toney to drive to downtown Orlando and then changed the directions and was heading toward Interstate 75.

When they stopped for gas and to ask directions, Toney told police she felt it was time to make her move. The woman is said to have run from the car after which she called for police.

Kuhn said he believes the city has to "wake up" to the police needs in Sanford and hopes that this incident, while unfortunate, serves to wake "the powers that be" to what is needed.

"I think that Miss Bettye (Mayor Smith) and the powers that be in Sanford just don't see this as a problem," he noted. "I hope that they will see what we are faced with and will give us more police officers to fight the crime here in Sanford."

Kuhn said the neighborhood watch program has diligently made calls and there is a response from the police department, though it is often slow because the officers are overburdened with calls.

"And then they (criminals who are arrested) are taken to jail and they are slapped on the wrist and they are out and back in and out and back in," he said. "Something has to be done to keep these dirtbags off the street."

Renegades take over top spot at Pinehurst

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — There has been a change at the top of the standings of the Sanford Recreation Department Women's Fall Pinehurst Park Slowpitch Softball League.

Ritchey's used a pair of big-run late innings to win its third straight game and On The Ball split a doubleheader to fall out of first place for the first time this season.

Ritchey's scored four runs in the sixth inning and six runs in the seventh inning to widen a 3-2 advantage and defeated the Jaguars 13-6 in the opening game of the evening.

On The Ball then kept pace, scoring nine runs in the second inning and eight runs in the fifth inning to triple the score on Bad Girls 21-7. But the co-leaders missed a chance to take back sole possession of first place when the Renegades scored 11 runs in the fifth inning to erase an 8-7 deficit and beat On The Ball 21-15.

Next week, Ritchey's (4-1) plays a crucial doubleheader against the Renegades (3-2) at 6:30 p.m. and On The Ball (4-2) at 7:30 p.m. Bad Girls (0-5) takes on the Jaguars (2-3) at 8:30 p.m.

Daylight in Chase rankings

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Jacobsen Enterprises took care of its own business, then got some help from the Sharks to take a two-game lead in the Sanford Recreation Department Women's Fall Chase Park Slowpitch Softball League Tuesday night.

Jacobsen Enterprises took a 7-1 lead in the second inning and never looked back in opening the evening's action with a 9-5 triumph over Mother's Kitchen.

And then in the nightcap, the Sharks scored five runs in the bottom of the second inning to erase a 6-3 deficit and slowly built the lead from there to defeat Doggie D-Tailing 12-7 and move into a tie for

Cowboys, Rattlers clinch titles

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It wasn't easy, but the Cowboys in the Seniors and the Rattlers in Minors both remained unbeaten and wrapped up the championships in their respective divisions in the Sanford Recreation Department Youth Flag Football League Saturday at Sanford Middle School.

In the Minors, the Rattlers remained undefeated by edging the Bengals 27-26 in a great game and the Golden Knights scored with less than two minutes left in the game to get their first victory of the season over the Bulldogs 13-6.

In the Majors, a couple of upsets turned a four-way tie for first place into a two-team race for first and a three-team race for second. The Dolphins got even with the Raiders with a 26-13 triumph; the Jaguars upset the Steelers 21-13; and the 49ers and Cowboys stayed tied for first as the 49ers blanked the Cardinals 19-0 and the Cowboys topped the Falcons 13-6.

In the Seniors, the Cowboys clinched with an 18-6 victory over the Hurricanes and the Bears edged the Giants 6-0.

In this week's schedule, which has the Minors and Seniors playing their final games: in the Minors: 9 a.m. — Golden Knights (1-4) vs. Bengals (2-3), 10 a.m. —

Rattlers (5-0) vs. Bulldogs (2-3), 11 a.m. — Cowboys (4-1) vs. 49ers (4-1), noon — Falcons (0-5) vs. Raiders (3-2), 1 p.m. — Cardinals (0-5) vs. Jaguars (2-3), 2 p.m. — Steelers (3-2) vs. Dolphins (3-2), Seniors: 3 p.m. — Cowboys (5-0) vs. Bears (3-2), 4 p.m. — Hurricanes (1-4) vs. Giants (1-4).

MINORS
G. Knights 13, Bulldogs 6.

Pat Bowers set up the Golden Knights' first touchdown with a 15-yard run and Kashi Vallot got the score on a 14-yard run. Brandon Welby added the extra point on a center sneak and the Knights held a 7-6 halftime lead, which they held until Joe Kurman added a late touchdown on a 27-yard run.

Barry Stevenson scored the Bulldogs' touchdown in the first half on a 30-yard run.

Rattlers 27, Bengals 26

Kevin Riggins scored all four of the Rattlers' touchdowns and also scored two extra points, but it was a Maurice Thomas to Jonathan Mangum extra point pass that spelled the difference.

Riggins scored on runs of 35-, 22- and 39-yards and also added a 42-yard kick-off return.

The Bengals got a 43-yard touchdown run from Daniel Sherman, a 12-yard TD run from Charles

Cone, Williams give Yankees new life in series

By TOM WITHERS AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — No, there won't be a sweep. And, no, the Braves aren't invincible. The Yankees aren't that bad either, are they?

In case you decided to do something else Tuesday night, and who could blame you after a pair of horrific evenings in the Bronx, listen up.

The World Series is worth watching again.

New York won its sixth straight postseason road game, 5-2 over Atlanta, trimming its deficit in the best-of-7 series.

Suddenly, everything about this Series seems different.

"Everyone was talking about how great the Braves were, where their place in history was," said David Cone, who allowed one run in six innings for the win. "Well, if we get one more win, the series goes back to New York. That's interesting."

A day earlier, the Yankees appeared ready to begin their all-seasons prematurely. They couldn't do anything offensively in the first two games against John Smoltz and Greg Maddux. Their starting pitchers didn't deliver and they seemed anxious to flee New York, where the fans were getting restless.

But with Cone leading the way and Bernie Williams returning to his October form with a two-run homer and three RBI after disappearing for two nights, the Yankees again are strutting with the same confidence they showed in making short work of the Baltimore Orioles in the ALCS.

One win was all it took. One more and it's a best-of-3.

"I believe with one win that the whole mood and momentum changes," New York manager Joe Torre said. "Maybe getting away from home is the blessing. We've played unbelievably well on the road all season."

The Yankees have another thing going for them tonight. For the first time, they won't be facing a pitcher named Smoltz, Maddux or Tom Glavine. Left-hander Denny Neagle is no walk-over, but his name doesn't bring a chill to the spine.

New York will counter with lefty Kenny Rogers, who was only granted a start in the series when Game 1 was postponed by rain.

Sanford's Tim Raines walked leading off the first and Derek Jeter followed with a well-placed sacrifice bunt. Williams, hitless in the series, then lined a 1-2 pitch from Glavine to center, bringing in Raines.

The Yankees had one run, and it felt like five.

New York added a run in the fourth when Darryl Strawberry, back in the lineup after sitting out a game to rest his broken toe, singled home Williams.

Meanwhile, Cone was making it very tough on the Braves. Helped by some solid defense from catcher Joe Girardi and first baseman Cecil Fielder, the right-hander went into the sixth inning with a two-run lead before giving up a run by walking Ryan Klesko with the bases loaded.

Torre had already been out to visit Cone once in the inning, and the right-hander convinced his manager to leave him in. With Javy Lopez coming up, Torre never left the bench, putting the game in Cone's hands.

Cone got Lopez to foul out to Girardi, and for the first time, Torre was able to call on his bullpen with a lead — something he had pointed to as the key to the series.

Cans open dinner possibilities

By MANALISA CALVA
NEA Food Writer

With the elections imminent, I've been reading a lot about the so-called "soccer moms" - the voting bloc composed of women who spend their weekends at their children's soccer games and are, according to the polls, concerned about such issues as education and health care.

Well, with two kids involved in sports - soccer in the fall, basketball, skating and skiing in the winter, football in the spring - I think I qualify as a soccer mom. And while I too am concerned with education and health care, my more-immediate concern on game nights is supper.

Now, I've heard people moaning for years about how the two-income family, the microwave, TV dinners and take-out has ruined the family meal. Bore! Anyone with kids knows that it's school sports that ruined the family meal. All the parents I know are constantly flying between their children's games, picking one up at gymnastics and dropping another off at track. I have neighbors with FOUR athleticly inclined youngsters. "We just sub stuff and take it on the road," she says. Follow the bouncing parent.

Now, "nubing" a frozen dinner is not the only way to go. One of the easiest ways to make decent, healthy, freezer-ready meals is to make use of canned goods. I know that "canned food" got a bad rap somewhere along the way - it doesn't sound "fresh" and "seasonal" - but when I look at my pantry I am amazed at the number of canned food I depend on. Tomatoes - whole, chopped, puréed, sauce and paste - for soups. Beans - black, kidney, garbanzo (chickpeas) and cannellini - for another. Chicken, beef and vegetable broth. Canned tuna. Anchovies. Artichoke hearts. Beets. Sauerkraut. Pineapple and pears. I prefer frozen corn to canned, but will use the latter in a pinch. The point is that canned food can reduce preparation time while still helping you prepare "home-cooked" meals.

Here are some of my quickest canned meals: For a Tuscan-style tuna salad: use 1 pound canned cannellini beans, drained, with 1 can of tuna, drained, fresh or dried basil, chopped red onion, salt, pepper, oil and balsamic vinegar to taste. For a fat-free black bean dip: purée 1 pound canned black beans (drained) with 3 tablespoons each orange juice and balsamic vinegar, a clove of garlic salt and pepper to taste. Instead of spending money on a jar of "pizza sauce," open a can of "Spanish-style" tomato sauce (an 8-ounce can costs about 25 cents), spread it on your pizza dough and sprinkle with mozzarella and oregano. Try a salad of canned chickpeas, roasted red peppers, chopped scallions and Italian dressing. Make a soup by adding some cooked pasta or orzo to a can of chicken broth.

The recipe below came from the Steel Packaging Council, which makes the cans that the producers fill and that we can put on our pantry shelves.

And now that we've got dinner taken care of, we can turn our energies to education and health care. And don't forget soccer.

LEAN GREEN CHICKEN CHILI

- 1 pound boned and skinned chicken breast
- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1 medium clove garlic, peeled and minced
- 1 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 can (28 ounces) tomatoes, drained
- 4 sliced sliced jalapenos, drained
- 2 cans (4 ounces each) sliced green chiles, undrained
- 2 cans (4 ounces each) small white beans, undrained
- 1 cup ground Monterey Jack or sharp Cheddar cheese
- 1 Chopped fresh cilantro and tortilla chips, for garnish

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Put chicken in a 9-inch square baking pan. Toss with 1 teaspoon of the oil, the salt and pepper. Bake 10 to 15 minutes until chicken is cooked through. Let stand until cool enough to be handled, then shred (you should have about 3 1/2 cups).

Heat remaining 1 teaspoon oil in a 2-quart nonstick saucepan over medium heat. Add onion and celery. Cook about 5 minutes until tender. Stir in garlic and cumin and cook, stirring occasionally, 1 minute.

In a blender or food processor, puree the drained tomatoes and jalapenos slice. Add to the saucepan along with the green chiles, beans and cooked chicken. Simmer, partially covered, about 30 minutes until flavors blend.

Sprinkle with cheese. Garnish with cilantro and chips. Serve with rice or couscous, if desired.

Yield: 8 servings.

Sex advice in magazines offers useful help to some

DEAR ABBY: May I offer a slightly different point of view regarding "D.S.'s" comments in your column about explicit articles in women's magazines?

As a therapist, I have treated a number of lonely, socially inadequate men and women who have had little social contact with others and lack the skills to develop warm and sexually satisfying relationships. Some of these people have physical disabilities; some are sexually shy, withdrawn or physically unattractive. It is this population, and many of us who are seeking a little escape - and yes, even titillation (heaven forbid!) - who read the articles in women's magazines. Personally, I have seen articles that were helpful to women who have had very little exposure to the nuances of their sexuality. In fact, I have recommended several of these articles to clients because they normalize sexuality.

I say to women who are offended by these articles, "Don't buy the magazines." There's room for all kinds of people in this world. What could be more positive than reading about love and sex?

It is my hope that those obsessed with pornographic reading material seek therapy, for that obsession is extreme behavior which indicates the need for intervention. I suggest that "D.S.'s" overly concerned response to magazine articles is indicative of her own problems.

Thank you for giving me a forum. It gave me to see repression by people who need to "let it all out."

BARBARA ROSENKRANTZ, M.A.

DEAR MS. ROSENKRANTZ: Your letter was a breath of fresh air. Obviously a great many readers are interested in the information that frank articles about sex provide, which is the reason publishers are doing such a land-office business at supermarkets.

Only when readers demonstrate that these articles are no longer of interest will the contents of magazines change.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a man my age (40) who has never asked me out. He calls me occasionally and always returns my calls and seems glad to hear from me. He has turned down every invitation I've extended - with legitimate excuses but no rain checks. He has never mentioned another woman but appears jealous if I mention a man.

I've been a "friend" long enough - I want more. I've done everything except tell him how I feel. I have been overweight most of the 18 years I have known him, and wonder if this could be the reason he isn't pursuing me. Or is it possible he just hasn't caught on?

Please think hard on this one, Abby, because I've been trying to reel this man in for a very long time.

GETTING IMPATIENT

DEAR IMPATIENT: If he hasn't responded in 18 years, he's not likely to start now. It's obvious that he regards you as a friend, and nothing more.

If you're willing to settle for friendship, stick around. Otherwise, go fishing in other waters, and you just might come up with the catch of the day.

Is drug linked to painful joints?

DEAR DR. GOTT: About five years ago I was given prednisone for an incurable eye disease called uveitis that caused almost total loss of sight. Over the years, the dosage has been reduced, and my doctor decided the disease was in remission. I began a slow withdrawal from the drug. Since then, I've experienced horrible joint pain, and nothing I take relieves the symptoms. Blood tests show no evidence of arthritis in my system.

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR READER: Certain forms of chronic arthritis can also affect the eyes. If, for example, the uveitis is treated with prednisone (a steroid), the joints may remain painless because inflammation all over the body is suppressed by the drug. Once a person reduces the dose of prednisone (or discontinues the medicine), the joint pain may reappear in spasms.

Despite your normal blood tests, I'll bet that you have some type of underlying arthritis, such as lupus or rheumatoid arthritis. Raise this issue with your family physician, who should be able to sort things out or refer you to a rheumatologist for further assistance.

Prednisone is a wonderful drug. It probably saved your vision. However, it causes troublesome side effects, such as diabetes, hypertension, cataracts and osteoporosis. Therefore, you don't want to use it unless you really need it. At this point, you should focus on the cause of your arthritis.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a recent column, you responded to a psychiatric nurse who believed that the lunar cycles caused inappropriate behavior in many of her patients. Although you debunked such a myth, you mentioned that "crazies" come into your office at times when the moon is full.

I was deeply offended by your answer. Emotional disorders are no joke, and I believe that you have been very insensitive to the thousands of families that are trying to cope with mental illness. You showed a distressing lack of professionalism, and I think you owe the public an apology.

DEAR READER: In the column you refer to, a nurse wrote that her psychiatric patients become more unmanageable during full moons. I pointed out that there isn't any relation whatsoever between human behavior and the cycles of the moon and planets, despite a rich mythical heritage that such reactions occur. I concluded by saying that my secretary and I have noticed that "crazies" seem to congregate in the office during full moons, so maybe the theory ought to be re-examined.

I think you're over-reacting. I shouldn't have to tell you, I was not deprecating patients (or their families) with emotional disorders. Rather, I was lightheartedly pointing out that some mentally healthy patients seem especially aggravating and demanding — even unreasonable — at certain times of the month. I am not qualified to judge the behavior of truly emotionally disturbed patients, as I am not a psychiatrist. Yet most doctors joke about the full moon and the "effect" it has on routine patient visits. This was merely my way of acknowledging some fluctuation in patient behavior. For you to extrapolate late my tongue-in-cheek comment is an indication that you

1. have no idea of the problems associated with medical practice,
2. take things too seriously,
3. interpret terms inappropriately,
4. have no sense of humor, or
5. all of the above.

Mental illness is serious business for families, patients and the professionals who care for them. My term "crazies" referred to mentally competent adults in a general medical practice, who drive me nuts at certain times, but I still value them.

The reference was meant to be amusing, and the vast majority of readers took it in that context.

Did I mention that I opened your letter on a night that the moon was full? What do you suppose that means?

Active or passive?

By Phillip Alder

Claude Bernard, the 19th-century French physiologist, claimed: "Observation is a passive science, experimentation an active science." How does that relate to bridge?

Not much! It seems to me that, despite the lack of movement, almost everything at the bridge table is active. You actively observe the cards played. You actively try to think of the best bid or play. Nevertheless, when defending, you can adopt an active or passive approach. When being active, you are positively trying to win tricks. A passive defense involves leading a suit — often trumps — where you aren't looking for tricks. You are just trying to avoid blowing any tricks. The hard part is deciding which approach is better.

You, West, lead the heart ace: two, three, seven. You continue with the heart king: four, nine, queen. What now?

This deal was in the August issue of Australian Bridge. At both tables in a key match, the two Wests continued with the club ace at trick three. As you can see, soon thereafter South claimed his contract. He drew trumps and ruffed his last low club in the dummy.

The killing defense is a trump switch at trick three. Declarer will probably win with dummy's queen and play a club to his queen. But West wins with the ace and returns his second trump. Declarer can ruff one club but must lose a second club trick for one down.

If East has good diamonds for his response, South must have everything in the black suits to justify his jump to game. This alone points toward the right defense.

In today's deal, against four spades,

Success in enterprises you create or manage is indicated for the year ahead. Your chart also shows involvement in larger endeavors than you've attempted previously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are the kind of person who is usually diligent and responsible, and you do what others expect you to do. However, today could be an exception. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1788, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10188.

SARITANUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Some of the limitations you experience today could stem from the extravagant and carefree way in which you've managed your resources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In order to maintain smooth relationships with family members today, try not to be too opinionated. Do not close your mind to their needs and ideas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Several difficult things can be accomplished more easily than you anticipated today, but do not take your opportunities for granted.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Try to stick to your budget today, because if you lack discipline, you may be more wasteful than usual with your resources.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to rely too heavily on certain people today. When you need help, these people might be too self-absorbed.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) If your generosity is abused today, it could be your fault. You will be inclined to make commitments you know you shouldn't. Try to be practical.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An important financial matter should be assessed from every angle today. You may not have as many options as you think.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Partnership arrangements might not be important to you today, especially if you are allied with a person who thinks primarily about himself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not try to give work to others today if you should be taking care of it yourself. The tasks you delegate will probably be ignored.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Speculative situations might intrigue you today. Unfortunately, however, you may not fare too well if risk-taking is a factor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) An old friend who is interested in your welfare might have some advice for you today. Listen to this person's suggestions, but analyze the problem independently.
