Firearm Accidents

Parents or other adults are largely to blame for the accidental death by firearms of more than 500 American children a year, according to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. For it is explained, loaded weapons being left where children can get at them cause much of this loss of child life. Children constitute about one-fifth of all the persons accidentally killed by firearms in the United States each year.

"That the responsibility for these fatal shootings can be laid principally to the carelessness of parents is borne out by the company's death claim records of insured children who were accidentally shot to death in 1942 or 1943," the company states.

The large majority of these accidents, about two-thirds, it says, occurred in homes. Most of the children killed in such accidents were injured in their own homes, but there was also a sizable percentage who were mortally wounded in the homes of young playmates, and a few were killed in the homes of relatives. "Surely parents must know," the company says, "that children are fascinated by firearms. In spite of this, the insurance records indicate that guns are kept in places easily accessible to children—in bureau drawers, in desk drawers, on the kitchen shelf, or in a closet, and children come upon the weapons while searching for such things as marbles, pocket knives, flashlights, or other articles."

The remaining one-third of the young victims were accidentally shot while playing on the street, in open lots, in public buildings and other places, or while hunting. stray bullets fired from an unknown source caused a few deaths, but in most instances the wounds were self-inflicted or were caused by a gun in the hands of a young companion. In the teenage group, a large number of the boys received their fatal injuries while hunting.

In this insurance experience, largely urban, pistols and revolvers accounted for about half the deaths in the home, the company states. Most of the fatalities occurring outside the home were caused by rifles or shotguns.

The records show that a few children were the victims of wartime souvenirs—old Army pistols that belonged to their father who had fought in the First World War. No incident was reported that involved weapons of the pre-war era.

Army Food

The War Food Administration has issued an order that all chickens sent to the Delaware-Maryland-Virginia region are to be held until the armed forces until a quota of 110,000,000 pounds has been met. State police are cooperating with agents of the WPA in stopping all chicken-carrying trucks which do not have authority for their trip from the WPA. All highways will be watched, and if necessary further checks will be made at poultry receiving points in the big cities.

All of these measures are being taken under authority of an executive order of two years ago, which directs that Government agencies may take appropriate steps to insure equitable distribution of foods. The unfortunate circumstance that it should be necessary to take them is true that there is an unusual demand for poultry because its purchase does not take meat points. But surely there are still plenty of meat and meat substitutes available. It shouldn't take the extra services of already overworked agents and police to insure that our men, fighting in sticky mud and driving snow, have good holiday meals.

Unstable America

Despite the depression, Americans generally think of their country as the soundest economically in the world. It is surprising therefore to hear from Sir William Beveridge author of the much-discussed Beveridge plan for British social security, that we are far from that position.

"Depression", he says in his new volume about his plan, "is contagious in proportion to the size and strength of the national economic system from which it comes. Today the strongest and most productive national economy in the world, that of the United States, is also the least stable."

His criticism is directed toward our wide fluctuations in employment. "The adoption", he adds, "of a policy of full employment by the United States, would be the most important economic advance that would happen in the whole world."

How to bring about this full employment is the theme of the book, "Full Employment in a Free Society." It is being carefully studied in Great Britain, and should be by responsible statesmen in the United States.

Don't know what to give him (or should we say them?) for Christmas? Well, maybe we can help you out—just look over the suggestions listed below—they're bound to give you some ideas.

National Safety Council Issues Warning Against Xmas Accidents

CHICAGO, Dec. 18. (Special)— For a happier Christmas—avoid accidents!

The National Safety Council notes that appeal today in an increasing nationwide campaign to reduce the huge accident toll that annually mars the Christmas holiday season.

"It is a simple fact," said Ned H. Dearborn, president of the Council, "that this is not going to be a Merry Christmas for a lot of people. There are few homes in America that have not felt the touch of war in one way or another."

"It cannot be helped. But we can help to prevent holiday accidents that also bring tragedy and grief, or make a mockery of Christmas in thousands of American homes."

"An accident that brings death or suffering into the home at Christmas is a sure way to remove the last vestige of the holiday spirit. It is a sure way to ruin Christmas completely for that boy in uniform who is fighting to insure for his family the very security and happiness an accident destroys."

"The safest thing to do on the home front is to go to a little extra trouble to prevent these accidents that make things tough for the boys on the battlefield."

There is a lot of difference between the risks a fighting man must take and those we thought best to invite. His risks may shorten his war. Our may prolong it."

The Council pointed out that deaths from accidents on the out-of-war, they are a challenge no serious-minded person can ignore."

The Council's records show that accidents killed 9,150 persons last December—the biggest toll for any month in 1943.

Christmas holiday accidents contributed heavily to this toll.

How High Is Your Blood Pressure?

By W. V. Bitting
Touchton Drug Co.

Years ago it was considered rather impudent to ask anyone but a person very close to you a specific question about the condition of his or her health.

In these days of tumult, strife and anxiety the question behind this message, if sincerely asked, may set in motion a process that will be in motion the means of prolonging life, for many people have high blood pressure and are unaware of the fact.

The process will include a visit to a physician and close adherence to his advice.

This is the 15th of a series

T. E. L. Class Enjoys Christmas Party

Members of the T. E. L. Class of the First Baptist Church enjoyed their annual Christmas party in the annex of the church last Thursday night with a crowded dish supper, prepared by Mrs. M. Cumming assisted by Mrs. W. L. Stoudenmire.

Mrs. W. P. Brooks, Jr. led the devotional which included an offering.

The Christmas Story and the group enjoyed singing Christmas carols with Mrs. E. M. Carroll accompanying on the piano.

Following a short business session presided over by Mrs. Carroll gifts were presented to each member from the large decorated Christmas tree which stood in one corner of the room.

Those present were: Mrs. Carroll, Mrs. K. Roeder, Mrs. E. Benten, Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. E. Kader, Mrs. Lillian Vickery, Mrs. A. J. Stark, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. T. M. Sibley, Mrs. Linda Stark, Mrs. Minnie Hiltner, Mrs. J. A. Cunningham, Mrs. H. N. Lunley, Mrs. M. Cummings, Mrs. W. L. Stoudenmire, Miss Maude Jenkins, Miss Minnie Stewart and Miss Marie Stewart.

Lee Home Is Scene Of Philathelia Class Party

The home of Mrs. John L. Lee Park Avenue was the scene of the annual Christmas party of the Philathelia Class of the First Baptist Church. The residence was beautifully decorated with arrangements of evergreens, multi-colored lights and quantities of glowing flowers.

Mrs. Harry Hansen, dressed as Santa Claus, distributed the gifts which included hand-made items.

Plants, flowers, and blossoms on straw berry plants were killed, but with protection following new ones should be ready for market about January 1st. Growers were refusing to sell at the 20 cent per pint ceiling price because of frost and certainly will not be satisfied if that ceiling is continued following their loss now.

The Wauchula Market will have little movement of produce for several weeks.

"Sanford will get produce from other sections of the State but volume probably will be reduced somewhat on some items by the frost. Plenty of citrus fruits will be available, including lemons. Other produce will include beans, cabbage, eggplant, lettuce, English peas, peppers, potatoes, squash, tomatoes and bunch green onions, radishes and turnips."

"Movement at Pensacola will very slow this week."

"The Sunter County Market at Webster livestock sale last Friday grossed $14,840.00." Wilson said.

of produce destroyed at four and one-half million dollars. Slight damage to celery and no damage to cabbage except for very young plantings is reported. Potatoes, however, were killed. English peas apparently were not damaged.

"Tompano estimates overall bean damage at about 10 per cent, and about 40 per cent to bloom ends of young beans set. Exposed beans crops on 20,000 acres of unirrigated land were very badly damaged. Replanting of this acreage will be difficult due to extremely dry weather. Peppers, eggplants, tomatoes, cucumbers and squash were damaged about 40 per cent. Vegetable movement there was 68 carloads last week but will drop considerably this week. Demand is good for all produce and prices are holding."

"Fort Pierce reports approximately 60 per cent of the squash and other tender vegetables and 10 per cent of the tomatoes were damaged."

"Arcadia reported a low temperature of 28 degrees which destroyed vegetables and froze ice in oranges."

"Plant City area was blanketed with frost, with temperatures dropping to 25 degrees. Fruit and blossoms and forms on straw berry plants were killed, but with protection following new ones should be ready for market about January 1st. Growers were refusing to sell at the 20 cent per pint ceiling price because of frost and certainly will not be satisfied if that ceiling is continued following their loss now."

to ease pressure on the Duren front of the Ninth Army from the west.

The German army does not appear to have resources for such adventures, and it seemed likely the main objective was to disrupt Gen. Eisenhower's winter offensive.

four to eight, many were captured.

The battle flared along a 60-mile front from Rothenburg 10 miles south of Ingolstadt to Aachen, 25 miles into Luxembourg, where at least two small penetrations were made before the Americans held.

Associated Press Correspondent William F. Boni said the land assault was concentrated some 23 miles south of Aachen, where Germans, infantry and from 30 to 50 tanks overran advances American positions in the area of Homfeld on the route to the Ardennes forest.

From Homfeld, two miles inside Belgium, the Germans pressed on west to within 10 miles of Malmedy before the attack eased late in the afternoon. The doughboys appeared to have the situation fairly well under control.

Rundstedt's order to his troops declared, "Strong attacking armies are advancing today against the Anglo-Americans. I don't need to say more to you men in your units. It is your duty to give everything and achieve the superhuman for our fatherland and our people."

Headquarters Not Alarmed

Supreme headquarters said that while the German drive represented a major effort which is not under estimated, there was no reason for alarm or anxiety.

Information at supreme headquarters was that the Germans made three major advances toward the American lines, and had attempted others which were seized off.

A dispatch from the First Army front said the German attempt appeared to be to ease pressure on the Duren front east of Aachen and on the Saar and Palatine fronts.

One from the Ninth Army front said it was doubtful if the German high command hoped to capture and hold any large areas of territory.

The German army does not appear to have resources for such adventures, and it seemed likely the main objective was to disrupt Gen. Eisenhower's winter offensive.

Smaller attacks were mounted all along an 80-mile front from Duren south to the area of the German fortress city of Trier in what looked like a grand attempt

If we wish to be free; if we wish to preserve inviolate those inestimable privileges for which we have been so long contending—we must fight!

Jap Airfield Captured On Leyte Island

Advance On Mindoro Continues Unopposed As Airmen Hit Enemy Shipping

(By Associated Press) American infantrymen driving into the center of the crumbling Yamashita line on Leyte Island captured the enemy headquarters and seized the airfield intact clamping down a princess of thousands of trapped Japanese.

Other Yanks reinforcing the Philippines continued unopposed their advance on Mindoro Island. Allied planes destroyed between 80 and 105 enemy planes in farflung attacks. Enemy reports said B-29s were over Tokyo again last night.

The airfield is now in U.S. Gen. Douglas MacArthur said it will provide another base for American planes which have been pressing the war of attrition against the enemy.

Headquarters also announced that the First American Cavalry has taken Lolo, six miles north of Valencia in Ormoc corridor.

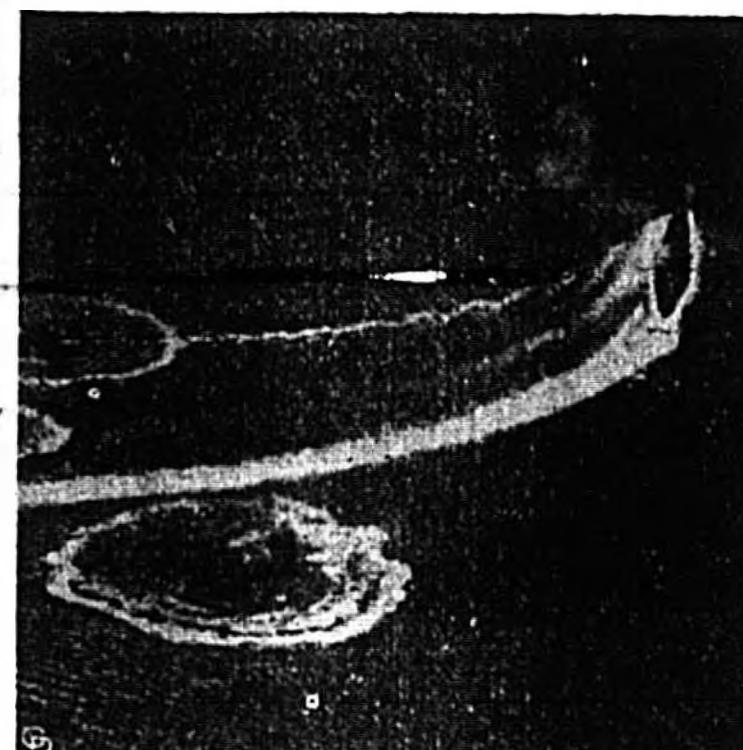

Valencia had been the head quarters of Gen. Sozaki Suzuki, commander of the Japanese Thirty-fifth Army.

The advance beyond Valencia apparently passed the Seven-second Infantry Division within striking distance of an encounter with the Thirty-second Division which is driving down the corridor from the north.

Accord Among Big 3 Stated By Churchill

Briton Has No Doubt As To Co-operation Of U.S. And Russia In All War Aspects

LONDON, Dec. 20 (UPI)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons in a debate on British foreign policy today that the three great powers were in "entire agreement about the general aims which bind our alliance," but added "whether there is complete agreement on every aspect of the settlement of this question altogether."

He asserted that so far as the United States and Russia are concerned he had "not the slightest doubt that the complete and effective cooperation will go on in all aspects of the war."

The Prime Minister and his colleagues retreated before an intense labor party delegation last night for immediate consideration of the Greek situation in the House of Commons and agreed to debate the question today.

The administrative committee of the labor party met after yesterday's session of Commons during which Churchill repeated repeatedly refused to discuss Greece and unhesitatingly supported a bill that Parliament take up the subject of British intervention in Greece immediately despite Churchill's insistence that no good purpose could be served by further public discussion now.

During a question from the House, Arthur Bevan, leading labor speaker and longest Parliament member of Churchill's cabinet, asserted the country was already divided on the Greek issue and badly needed a statement of debate on the subject.

He asserted that the vote of confidence which Churchill forced on the Greek issue only 11 days ago did not represent the true sentiment of the nation. Churchill admitted that the vote in which only half the total membership of the House participated might not fully represent the opinion of the House.

These losses, they stated, were due to the October hurricane, high winds, sand and damage and frost. Most growers were reluctant to estimate freeze damage, feeling that it is too early to forecast. The estimate was, however, set at a minimum figure according to M. L. Culkin, president of the Greater New York Red Cross War Fund drive for 1945. He had last year's campaign in Brooklyn where he has reported the career of the Brooklyn Dodgers to radio since 1938.
