There is no truth in these local kidnapping stories. We suggest that nerve-racked mothers inclined to dwell on morbid tragedies confine their newspaper reading to the society pages.

President Coolidge rightly reprimands naval heads for using war talk in an effort to put over big navy appropriations. It would serve the navy right if Congress distinguished it altogether.

Linbergh took a trip in a submerging the other day staying under the water for forty minutes. If the trans-Atlantic aviator want to continue to fly, he better stay out of those submarines.

We received a long letter the other day from Park Trammell explaining why he alone failed to give Robinson a vote of confidence. We do not believe that John Martin, if he were senator, would do things which require such lengthy explanations.

People in Miami finally raised enough quawk against Al Capone's presence in their midst to arouse the police department into ejecting him. Miamians don't mind ordinary knife battles, and pistol fights but when a man carries a machine gun in his pocket, they think it time to call a halt.

In a debate on the prohibition question the other day in Congress, Senator Swanson said, "Senator Glass shows such vehemence in debate no one knows what murder's consequence would follow if he had taken a drink." That shows he had good sense, the Virginia senator replied. Yeh, that was what was the matter with Judd Gray.

A Marine and a Gob in Nicaragua had a run-in with a trio of natives. The Americans were armed with automatics, the Nicaraguans with machetes. The Gob's automatic fired twice and then jammed. The Marine's was working fine. Although the Americans killed all three of their enemies without serious injury to themselves, we cannot imagine a keener disappointment than having an automatic jam at a time like that.

Not Much Of An Issue

Judging from the comments we have seen in those newspapers opposing the candidacy of Fons Hathaway for governor, his chief defect lies in the fact that he is running for one office while holding another.

Mr. Carlton explains that in a number of states there are laws which would compel any official, appointed to office, to resign before running for some other office.

We have not investigated the attitude of other states toward office holders running for other offices, in as much as we are more concerned with the attitude of our own state in regard to this matter.

Indeed we cannot see any reason in the world why being chairman of a state road department should automatically disqualify a man for some other office within the gift of the people.

As a matter of fact, it is not more or less customary for all office holders to use one office as a stepping stone to another? We believe that most senators, representatives, and governors, even presidents, we might add, have at one time or another held less prominent offices.

It is our humble opinion that a man's fitness for office should be based not so much on the present office he holds—or the city in which he lives—as upon the efficiency with which he has managed that office.

Modes Of Procedure

The point is, as we get it, if you must violate local laws, be an ambassador. Ambassadors, we understand, are immune to any action on the part of police authorities for infractions of local laws.

This fact was very clearly brought out in the automobile accident a few weeks ago in Washington in which the British ambassador was a party.

But the British ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, a gentleman, and of course, an ambassador, was immune to any suit, but first of all none was threatened.

By your disregard of the rules of the road and of the most elementary procedure you jeopardized the lives of your wife, your baby, and yourself.

Yesterday Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the upper chamber, interrupted Senator Heflin's vitriolic harangue against Al Smith and the Roman Catholics to rebuke the Alabama for his attacks upon a branch of the Catholic church.

Robinson said he not only would make it in Arkansas, but in Alabama as well.

Robinson threatened to resign as Democratic leader, Jim Reed got up and left the chamber. Copeland and others shook hands with Robinson.

That's Heflin, Alabama's Senior United States senator. That's the man who sits where Morgan and Pettus sat, where Johnston and Bankhead sat, where Underwood sat. He sits in the same chamber of Henry Clay, John C. Calhoun, Robert Hayne, Jefferson Davis, of Robert Toombs, of Wade Hampton, of Zebulon Vance, of Ben Hill, of John W. Daniels, of George and Washall, of John Sharp Williams and numerous other statesmen.

What a callous and wicked demagogue Heflin is! What a disgrace to a proud state that it's Senior Senator should invite the Democratic leader of the Senate to come to Alabama to be "tarred and feathered!"

AT 7:15 YESTERDAY morning, Harry Brooks, air pilot, shook hands with Henry Ford and William B. Mayo, Ford's chief engineer, and climbed into the air in a tiny flying machine that Detroit calls "Ford's flying flivver."

Brooks carried 48 gallons of gasoline, one quart of crinkling water, no food, and started to fly from Detroit to Miami, non-stop, in 14 hours.

YOU WILL KNOW this morning whether he finished the non-stop flight or not. If he didn't this time, he or somebody will do it later.

In England the tiny planes are called "Moths," with a wing spread of about 20 feet, go 200 miles an hour, and are in regular use.

MR. FORD HAS BEEN making flying flivvers for some time, but had not put them on the market, probably for fear that young people would be tempted to kill themselves. He sells his big all-metal three-engine planes, which, according to Mr. Jackson, vice president of the Standard Oil of Indiana, are as safe as Pullman cars.

REGINALD McKENNA, British banker, says the whole world is now on a dollar basis. Gold is "only the nominal basis of currency."

A GENTLEMAN THAT has read but hasn't taken the writer's advice about not selling things short, a local aviator, "What makes you say that?"

To learn with a dollar is worth 60 cents now, as compared with 1911. Anything that was intrinsically worth a dollar 14 years ago is worth a dollar and 60 cents now.

SOME MEN SHOULD be employed to write Mr. Rockefeller's mental biography. Dr. Ludwig, who wrote an excellent life of Napoleon might do it. Ostrogorski, the Russian, who wrote the book on democracy, could do it well. Mr. Estimer, of the Saturday Evening Post, could do it even better, but is probably too busy.

"NEEST THOU A MAN diligent in his business, he shall stand before kings,"—the Bible. Seest thou a man diligent in the chain-store business, he shall stand among kings of money.

The woodworth stores earned more than $5,000,000 last year. Ten cents isn't much, five cents seems little. If 20 cents make one dollar. If you had had the copper pennies in the United States you would be worth $50,000,000.

TALCOTT WILLIAMS, good newspaper man, who managed Joseph Pulitzer's school of journalism, is dead, and probably answering Joseph Pulitzer's questions in heaven.

No matter what Professor Williams tells him, Joseph Pulitzer will not be satisfied. He always was dissatisfied. That's why he succeeded.

"OH, NOTHING, JUST a little cold in the head." You have often heard your sniffling friend say that. Learn now, from authority, that colds in the head cost this country in lost time, doctors' bills, etc., one thousand, five hundred million dollars a year.

Colds weaken the body's power to resist disease and causes probably one third of the deaths. There is no such thing as a "little" cold.

BUT OUR President, congress and army and navy departments, should remember that several countries in Europe and at least one in Asia exceeds us so greatly in air power that they could do us, if they chose, what we have just done to Sandino.

We need fighting air planes, not merely a simple force of the Nicaragua size.

AL SMITH FELLOWSHIP FORUM

Granting, for the sake of argument, that Al Smith is fitted for the Presidency, he is the only man in the Democratic party so qualified? Surely, a party that can poll fifteen million votes is not reduced to such a state of poverty! There are many reasons why we do not admit that Al Smith is fitted for the Presidency, that under the Constitution, he is qualified for that office, but waiving those reasons for the time being, and considering only the matter of availability in a political emergency, is there any Democrat who is going to say that Smith is the only man to whom that party can turn for leadership? If he is, then God save the party, for nothing short of Divine intervention can save it.

Newly everybody knows that the great majority of Democrats, the country over, are against Al Smith. They deplore his candidacy, and fervently hope that something may happen to remove him from the political field. Then if he should get the nomination, it would be against the wishes of certainly three-fourths and probably an even greater percentage of Democrats. He is not their leader, and even if they could bring themselves to support him at all, it would be a grudging and not an enthusiastic support, and with that sort of spirit, the rank and file, the Democratic party isn't going to win any victories next year or any other year.

We submit, then, that even on the score of availability, Al Smith does not stand the test. If nominated, it would be not merely against the wishes, but over the violent protest of a large majority of his party. He would thus be unpopular in his own party, an unwanted candidate forced to the front by a noisy and tricky minority, taking advantage of peculiar circumstances enabling that minority to rule for the time being.

Do the Democrats who love their party only next to their country, wish to permit such a thing to happen? Surely not, and it can be prevented if the Democrats, remembering that theirs is a party which believes in majority rule, will go to work, bring out a leader and organize their majority for the fight.

Peltzer's Amateur Rank Unimpaired According to Secretary Don Ferris

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—It may interest to those progressive who are making ready to themselves into a large group next month that the status of Herr Doktor Peltzer, as a runner, remained unimpaired without change, in spite of the fact that the secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, Daniel J. Conroy, secretary treasurer of the U. S. Amateur Athletic Union, and a member of the important foreign relations committee, and it was made to me by way of clearing up what declared to be a "false impression," gained in some quarters, that Peltzer has not even been discussed by the committee and will not be so discussed each time as the Herr Doktor does with regulations.

There has been no vote, says no "understanding" among the members of the committee as to whether or not Peltzer should be allowed to run in the amateur ranks. Peltzer comes to the committee as a gentleman, it seems that the committee were getting their ante merely were Tuesday.

As far as I personally know, individual members of the committee may feel just as they did before.

That were so, then two votes, by Gustavus Kirby, New York, and Joseph B. MacCabe, Chicago, stand against Peltzer's amateur status on any American track.

Fine Male Chorus To Be Heard Here In "My Maryland"

Until the advent of "The Student Prince" the musical play had suffered from the fact that its male choruses had been recruited from among the group of men who did not suggest vigorous masculinity. The male chorus in "My Maryland," when it sings "Your Land My Land," contains a group of singers whose range and power are equalled only by the tunefulness of singing and the aggressive masculinity of the group. As one flapper remarked in the lobby of the theater the other night: "I never had a whole lot of men in a crowd give me a thrill before in my life."

There is nothing worse than a chorus of jackknives mincing and attitudinizing in imitation of the men they are not, and by the same token a group of rollicking "he-men," with the unmistakable signs of masculine thunder in their singing makes it a joy. With the "My Maryland" group the four choirs are well balanced, the voices individually are fine, the leadership is inspiring and the emotional response is strong and sensitive.

Prior to the presentation of the "Student Prince" companies, membership in a male chorus often had a certain stigma. "My Maryland" still further impresses the hearer that the male chorus has become what it should be—a stepping stone for leading roles for men who are working toward that end.

In view of the fact that among the many women of the stage a great many, if not most of its stars have come through the chorus (and it was not so many years ago that a girl in the chorus was looked upon with askeance by Mrs. Grundy by the mere fact of her occupation), it is pleasant to know that the real male chorus has taken its proper place. "My Maryland" the musical romance comes to the Milan on Friday night for a matinee and night performance.

WILLIAMS QUILTS SOON AFTER 5 YEARS IN OFFICE

gress in municipal program has been in keeping with Sanford's rapid growth.

During his tenure of office the City has constructed over 50 miles of paved streets, followed extensive programs in building bridges, sidewalks, storm and sanitary sewers, purchased and operated for two years the waterworks and gas plants, installed an elaborate white water system and erected a library, city hall, jail, band shell, green house and zoo. Municipal docks and a yacht basin together with a mile have been constructed, the municipal golf course has been acquired and a municipal athletic field has been maintained.

The City Manager has held general supervision of the two utility plants, police and fire departments, city parks, and sanitary work. A modern method of street sweeping and garbage collection has been installed upon his recommendations and various other equipment has been purchased under his suggestions.

As purchasing agent for the City, Mr. Williams takes pride in the fact that he has given local merchants and business houses preference insofar as it has been possible. By his advice a general budget system has been installed during the past few months and is so efficient in its operation that it is now possible for complete reports to be rendered daily by each department.

Last summer when it became necessary for the municipality to adopt drastic economical policies, Mr. Williams led the way by paying the operating expenses until they could be met by an eight and half mill levy, which is declared the smallest assessment for that purpose in effect in any progressive city in the state.

Mr. Williams is largely responsible for the beautification program that has been followed in the maintenance of public grounds, parks, and streets. Shrubs, trees and flower plants have been set out under a fixed scheme as prepared under his supervision.

Being an experienced construction engineer, Mr. Williams has been able to give particular attention to the upkeep of streets, sidewalks and bridges and maintains that the City has incurred no judgments for damages sustained during his term of office.

Improvement In Celery Shipping Noted By Berry

any of the other marketing agencies, which results disastrously for us very often. This could be helped greatly by the appointment of a celery distribution board which could function in an advisory capacity, upon being informed daily by the sales-agencies as to their direct shipments and diversions of cars of celery to the different markets, and this, too, without divulging any "trade secrets" of those marketing agencies confiding such information to the board.

"As an example, last season Boston was given three times as many cars of celery on one day as it should have had. My own organization happened to move two cars of celery to Boston on that day, but we had no knowledge that other shipping agencies were using Boston heavily that day and if we could have been informed by a celery-board that Sanford was shipping twelve cars of celery to Boston that day we certainly would have put at least one of our own cars on some other market.

"Also, in the case of the smaller markets this lack of knowledge of where our Sanford celery is going and in what quantity, militates against us greatly because the small markets are afraid to buy freely from us for fear we will put more cars on their small markets than they can stand.

"Personally, I believe wholeheartedly in cooperative marketing and it is to be regretted that the three cooperative marketing associations at Sanford cannot 'march under one banner,' but if they are not yet ready to do this they might at least cooperate among themselves, as they are permitted to do under the Capper-Volstead act, in the proper distribution and sale of their products to the great benefit of all growers of celery in this district and so, of course, to the benefit of all who profit directly or indirectly in this great crop of ours.

"Something more will have to be done than we, so far, have done if we are going to continue to produce these huge crops, for, with our present methods of distribution and sale, we are heavily over-producing and inevitably face the alternative of crop reduction or else a better method of distribution and sale.

The U. S. Bureau of Markets, in its comprehensive report for the season of 1927, states plainly at the beginning of its report that "The prevailing low price received for Florida celery during the 1927 season can largely be accounted for in one word, OVERPRODUCTION." The Government is correct in this statement, in my opinion, and instead of being proud of the fact that Florida shipped 7507 cars of celery last year (of which Seminole County shipped 2337 cars) we should be ashamed of the fact. For, if we could have put a thousand cars of celery in storage at this end or thrown them into Lake Monroe or kept them off the market in any other way we would have made a profit on our celery crop last season instead of losing half a million dollars.

"Until we greatly improve our marketing facilities we need no more celery farmers and no more acres of celery in Seminole County or in Florida but, on the contrary, we need a reduction in acreage until such a time as our distribution and profitable sale of celery catches up with our present production."

Early Dining Coming Back

Later dinners among fashionable people of London are passing. The nine and 10 o'clock meals that have been hooked up with cocktail parties are being replaced by comparatively demure repasts at seven and eight. One reason for the change is that women are learning that the cocktail hour, followed by a very late dinner, with more to eat or drink in the early morning, is causing them to put on weight.

BIBLICAL SHIELD IN CRASH

Mahzel, a device taken from the shield of David, and which has been carried by devout Jews for 5,500 years, is being commercialized in Europe as a lucky charm. The fad started when it was told that Levine had the sign on his airplane when he flew the Atlantic. Mahzel also appears on the Ark of all synagogues.

Circle Number Four Of All Souls Church Has Oriental Party

Amid a picturesque Oriental setting, a Chinese dinner dance was given Wednesday evening at the Yacht Club by Circle No. four of All Souls Rotary Confraternity of which Mrs. Elsie Walsh is chairman. Assisting Mrs. Walsh were Mrs. J. E. Gradick, Miss Mary McMahon and Mrs. J. C. Maurer Jr. The large club room had been transformed into a veritable Chinese tea garden with all kinds of Oriental suggestions. The walls were hung with quaint Chinese prints alternating with blue and yellow panels depicting scenes of the Orient. The windows and door ways were hung with fringed draperies of blue and gold. Over head gay colored Chinese lanterns were suspended, and cast a rich glow over the pretty scene.

The dinner tables were centered with beautiful Chinese narcissus and from 6 to 9 o'clock a most delicious Chop suey dinner was served by a group of demure Chinese maidens wearing gorgeous Chinese costumes of satins and silks richly embroidered in gold dragons and brilliant colored flowers. In their hair were chrysanthemums to match their dainty costumes. These maidens were Miss Rose La Verne Hurt, Miss Julia Higgins, Miss Margaret Berner, Miss Katherine Schirard, Miss Nona Fellows, Miss Alice Cremer, Miss Irene Brandt, Miss Len B. Wathen, Miss Madeline Mallem and Miss Katherine Hanson. The hostesses too were attired in elaborate costume of the East.

After dinner dancing and cards were enjoyed until a late hour. Music was furnished by a local orchestra and the evening was one of exceptional pleasure. The prize for top score among the bridge players awarded was a handsome black satin pillow embroidered in a large gold dragon. The men's top score prize was a novelty ash tray.

This was one of the largest affairs given this season and was attended by not only many local people but a large number of out of town guests.

Miss Charlotte Stryker of Philadelphia, Pa., who has been the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Ralph Wright, left Wednesday for Tampa where she will spend a few days with her aunt Mrs. L. B. McLeod before returning to her home.

Exquisite in every detail was the lovely bridge party given Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. Alice E. Hill entertained at her home in Rose Court, honoring Miss Mary Elizabeth Puleston who leaves Friday for Boston, Mass. The rooms of this spacious home were ablaze with quantities of sweet peas, petunias, violets and ferns. The pastel tints were featured in both decorations and in the bridge accessories.

Tallies done in blue and gold bowls filled with spring flowers were used in keeping scores for the interesting games and at the conclusion of the fifth progression, scores were collected by Mrs. Samuel Puleston and the prize for top score, silk hose, was won by Miss Mildred Slemmons of Orlando. The cut prize, a pocket vanity case, done in lavender, was won by Miss Mildred Holly. Mrs. Hill presented her guests of honor with a piece of lingerie as a memento of the occasion.

At the tea hour the bridge accessories were removed and refreshments of creamed chicken in patties, potato chips, saltines, olives, celery, peach Melba topped with whipped cream and individual cakes fed-in-pink were served by the hostess assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Robert A. Newman, and Mrs. Puleston.

Irving Loucks entertained the members of the Afternoon Tea Duplicate Bridge Club most delightfully at her home on Magnolia Avenue. Bowls of sweet peas, violets and narcissus were placed with artistic effect about the where the card tables had been set up. The games of duplicate bridge proved most interesting and at a late hour when scores had been added it was found that the highest scores for the afternoon had been made by Mrs. Robert J. Holly Sr., and Mrs. William Moore Scott. At the tea hour the tables were laid with dainty covers and refreshments of hot tea and tasty sandwiches were served.
