Vanzetti Denounces Latest Setback With Cry Of "Persecution"

Never Killed Any Man Yet; They Persecute Me," He Screams At Walls Of Prison

REDS' ATTORNEY MAKES MOVE TO U. S. HIGH COURT

Effort Is Made To Get U. S. Supreme Court To Review Sacco-Vanzetti Case As Final Effort To Save Lives

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (INS)

The dramatic fight to gain a stay of execution for the condemned men, reached here this morning to file a petition for a writ of certiorari in the highest tribunal. Musmanno, it was learned, could carry out only the most pertinent portions of the new court fight. The court is in vacation. No justice is in the city. Chairs in the court room are dust covered and the clerk's office is torn up by janitors. The only immediate result of the petition for review, it appeared, would be to lay a foundation for a new appeal for a respite for the men condemned to die after midnight, Aug. 22, for the murder of a South Braintree, Mass., gangster. This appeal, it was said, could be made to a justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, Massachusetts tribunals or to Governor Fuller. Experienced court attaches have expressed relief that any action comes too late to give the high court jurisdiction. The law provides that the applications for writs shall be made within 90 days after final action in lower courts. More than this period of time has elapsed since the Massachusetts Supreme Court handed down its affirmation of the conviction. Musmanno presumably will argue that the latest denial of exceptions by the Bay State court yesterday gives him a new starting point. Here filing of the petition, it was pointed out, does not mean a stay of execution. Execution is obtained, the writ would be laid formally before the court when it convenes on Oct. 3. There would be little delay in the high court, it is believed, as it is the policy of Chief Justice Taft to give criminal cases precedence. Should the writ be granted the (Continued On Page Three)

Arrangements Are Complete Today For Community Service

Arrangements for the community religious services to be held at the Municipal Pier Sunday night at 8 o'clock, have been completed according to an announcement this morning by those in charge. All of the protestant churches of the city have joined in an agreement to hold the services for the next two Sunday evenings. Rev. Frank Marler, pastor of the First Christian Church, will give the principle address of the evening. Other ministers, representing the participating churches, will occupy the platform and each will have some part in the services. Dr. Brownlee, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will preside over tomorrow night's gathering at the First Baptist Church, which is in charge of the following Sunday evening. A song service, led by the choir of the several churches, will be one of the features. All of the old time songs and hymns, familiar to almost everyone, will be used, according to Dr. Brownlee, who hopes the audience's response to the singing will be wholehearted. The Presbyterian male quartet and several other selections will be rendered by the instrumental music, which will also be one of the service features. Ample seating facilities have been arranged, it was announced, and a cordial invitation to the public to attend the services, has been extended by the heads of the various congregations.

MAY DIE FOR FIVE CENTS

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 20. (INS)—Her anxiety to save a five-cent piece will probably cost the life of Lorraine Oregal, 10, of the city, who is in a Charity hospital here with a fractured skull. She called to her brother to stop, and then leaped out of the car while it was in motion, striking her head. She is not expected to live.

HOPE GIVEN UP IN SEARCH FOR LOST EXPLORER

No New Signs Found Of Ashley Who Disappeared Into Nickajack Cave Last Monday And Hasn't Come Back

A Human Skull Is All That's Found

Underground River Is Dragged And Miles Of Passageways Explored In Search

SHELLMOUND, Tenn., Aug. 20.

The powers of darkness, whose secrets Lawrence S. Ashley, geologist-explorer and friend of the tragic Floyd Collins, had dared single-handed to steal, gave grim warnings to foolhardy mortals today as Ashley's friends probed every foot of Nickajack Cave in vain searching for the scientist who has been lost in its depths since Monday. As the rescue party, its hope turned to despair, poled its boat through the Stygian chill of the subterranean river of darkness, through a gloom widely articulated with the chattering chorus of a million bats, with the endless drip and trickle of unsewn waters, their lantern gleams picked out a white object upon a high ledge, above a bank of treacherous ooze. They paused breathless and expectant. They clamped nervously upon the slope clammy with mud of ages. And there they found the object to be a human skull. Perhaps that of another venturesome explorer of other years, who, like Ashley, had dared too greatly. The skull was like a symbol of the hopes of Ashley's comrades. They seemed dispirited and hopeless today. With no organized effort, they were beaten physically. Also, having worked night and day in endless shifts since the alarm was sounded Wednesday morning after Ashley had failed to return. Party after party, they have clambered over mud banks, over treacherous rockslides where a single false movement would loose tons of boulders through narrow and unfathomed passages that turned for miles into the heart of Sand Mountain sprawling giganticly beneath the terrain of three states. And when the eighth sally into the darkness was repelled last night, the rescue party led by Postmaster Bill Parker, a veteran and resourceful miner, returning haggard with weariness and disappointment, the workers admitted they were beaten and said they knew not where next to turn. Only a response from the state mine inspector O. P. Pyle, who has been asked to send experienced mine relief workers and modern equipment, will bring about resumption of organized search, it was admitted. Thus far the divers of the tiny community of Shellmound, among whom Ashley had lived for three years, have worked unaided in the search, sacrificing every other interest. Admitting his fear that Ashley is dead, Claude McBee, the geologist's assistant, went about preparation of grappling hooks with which to drag the icy depths of the river of darkness. The deeper basin of Echo Lake, which nestles black and unfathomable five miles back from the entrance, and another black pool toward which the searchers say they have found pointing a vague trail which appears to have been made by a stick dragged to mark the course for return. The searchers have found only Ashley's boat, a small, flat-bottomed craft, where he moored it to the slim bank of the black river when, apparently impatient of the increasing shallowness of the upstream, he abandoned navigation and set off walking and crawling over a sharply rising trail.

Redfern Is Getting Ready To Hop Off On Monday Morning

BIUNSWICK, GA., Aug. 20. (INS)—Paul Redfern, daring young Georgia aviator, planned to make his final test flight today before hopping off alone, perhaps Monday morning for Brazil. He has not been aloft since last Sunday. The entire week has been spent in tinkering with the monoplane "Port of Brunswick," and in awaiting a parachute and a barograph which came yesterday from the bureau of standards, but it was not of the type required for a distance flight, and it was necessary to wait until today for the arrival of a second barograph sent by a Baltimore factory. Redfern has completed the intricate job of taking out all the gas feeding pipes and lining them with rubber, to guard against the possibility of their developing leaks through the long-continued vibration.

Vanzetti And His Sister Luigi Meet In Charlestown Prison First Time In Years

STATE'S PRISON BOSTON, Aug. 20. (INS)—"Bartolomeo." The shaking voice of a heart-broken sister echoed through the death house in this prison today. "Luigi." One of the most widely known prisoners in the world threw himself into the arms of the woman who had traveled across the Atlantic to give him a sister's consolation before he went to eternity in the electric chair. The words Bartolomeo and Luigi were the only words spoken for several minutes as Vanzetti and his sister clung to each other in loving embrace. The grim old walls of Charlestown had never witnessed a sight of such pathos. The doors of Bartolomeo Vanzetti's death cell has been opened to allow his sister to enter. This was the first time in the history of the state's prison that such a procedure was allowed. Vanzetti and his sister from far away Italy spoke Italian. Miss Vanzetti came to the prison from the home of Mrs. Jessica Henderson, wealthy Sacco and Vanzetti defense worker who lives in Wayland, Mass. Nicola Sacco wife of Vanzetti's fellow prisoner was with Miss Vanzetti, Mrs. Henderson and A. Filicini, organizer of the Sacco and Vanzetti defense fight. Filicini told reporters as Miss Vanzetti walked to the death house that she came solely to offer her consolation as a sister. The prison chaplain was ready for a call to the doomed man although Filicini said the Miss Vanzetti would not attempt to influence her brother regarding his religious or economic opinion. Mrs. Sacco and Miss Vanzetti, both holding back tears and with heads bowed down, were pathetic figures as they walked slowly down the corridor to the death house with Warden William Hendry at their side. Mrs. Sacco stood with her hands gripping the bars of the cell of her husband as they conversed in low tones. Miss Vanzetti and her brother hurriedly in Italian. It was their first meeting in years and they had much to tell each other—much to discuss.

ENGINEER OFFERS SOLUTION TO CITY PROBLEMS HERE

A. P. Haggard, Supervisor Of Public Improvement Program In City Gives Statement On Economic Phase

Plans for the solution of the civic problems confronting the City of Sanford are contained in a statement issued to The Herald today by A. P. Haggard, city construction engineer, who for the past six years has designed and supervised $3,000,000 worth of public improvements. Mr. Haggard's proposals have been made in a thorough study of local conditions, and his suggestions represent what he believes to be the best remedies for the economic situation in Sanford. Mr. Haggard has been in direct contact with the affairs of the city government for several years. On completion of the paving construction, which will be within 30 days, Mr. Haggard will join as a partner a firm of engineers of national reputation. He stated today that he has never before worked in a community which has a wonderful co-operative and progressive spirit as is shown in Sanford, and he wishes to thank everybody who even in the smallest way, has helped to make the construction program in Sanford a success. In connection with the publication of his statement, Mr. Haggard announced that within 15 days engineering work on the principal city improvement, paving construction, will be completed. Forty thousand dollars worth of work remains to be done before the project is completed, Mr. Haggard estimated. Following is Mr. Haggard's statement in full: "Sanford is in a critical period of its history, and only by the cooperative endeavors of each individual in the community, directed by sane and judicious leadership, can it retain what it has accomplished in the past without loss, and even benefit from its present critical predicament. "The causes leading up to Sanford's present critical position are briefly enumerated as follows: (1) General depression throughout Florida on account of an over extended boom of the state; (2) (Continued On Page Three)

139 Sanford People Boast Name Of Williams, Smiths Next, Johnsons Third

The Williamses have it. A review of the city directory shows Sanford with more citizens by the name of Williams than any other cognomen. There are 139 Williams with close upon the Williams come the Smiths 131 strong. Unlike the Williams, however, a majority of the Smiths are white. There are 131 with this popular name, 46 of them being negroes. Third in popularity are the Johnsons with a total of 99. Sixty-four of the Johnsons are negroes. Jones, which is a most uncommon name in Czecho-Slovakia but extensively used in the United States, stands fourth in Sanford's directory. The Joneses are represented by a total of 86, just four behind the Johnsons. Only 40 white citizens of Sanford lay claim to this name. After the Joneses are the Browns 75 strong, 44 of them negroes. The Whites are sixth in the list but are only 38 strong. Sanford has 12 Greens with 15 others who spell it Greene. The various trades are well represented in the directory with many Barbers, Bakers, Carpenters,

DURANT THINKS BULL MARKET IS STILL GOOD

Millionaire Auto Manufacturer Predicts Continued Rise In Stock Values And Lower Rate For All Time Monies

Insists Money Is A Drug On The Market

America Is Drifting Into Bull Market Which Will Extend Over Period Of Many Years

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (INS)

"Stocks will sell higher than ever before in the history of the country." William C. Durant, millionaire motor manufacturer and the "biggest bull in Wall Street," made this prediction today as he sailed for Europe on a vacation. Coming at a time when the stock market has just passed through one of the most enthusiastic bull markets of modern times the prediction was regarded as extremely significant in Wall Street. "In my opinion," said Durant, "good securities—with emphasis on the word 'good'—will sell higher than ever before. Money is so plentiful it is almost a drug on the market. There is every prospect that in the very near future the present rate for time money will be considerably reduced. "I believe we are drifting into a so-called bull market which will extend over a period of years to come. I know many students and specialists will differ with me, but that is my belief. Durant smilingly declared he is a "bull of America," at home or taking a vacation abroad. "And he obviously is. Two years ago he came into Wall Street and, operating on the bullish side of the market, is reported to have made millions on the rise in price of stocks and general motors. Cast iron pipe and United States Steel. His particular "babies" General Motors and cast iron pipe, have risen steadily. General Motors advanced from 70 to the equivalent of 354 points in those two years and the market price of cast iron pipe soared from 80 to 215. Regarding General Motors stock, he said: "I notice common stock of General Motors is being split up. If, as I understand it, the object is to secure wider distribution and to give the public an opportunity to purchase stock of this company at reasonable prices, it probably will be necessary to make another split up in the future. Switching to politics, Durant said: "Calvin Coolidge may not choose to run for the presidency but the people may choose to nominate and elect him. Coolidge is a good president and has made a wonderful record."

Cantwell Makes His Big League Debut Against The Pirates

Sanford baseball fans and friends of Ben Cantwell, former star twirler of last year's championship Celerymen, will learn with interest of his major league debut yesterday in the uniform of New York Giants, who purchased Cantwell several weeks ago from the Jacksonville club for the reported consideration of $25,000, the highest price ever paid for a Southeastern League player. Cantwell's first appearance in the big leagues was against the Pittsburgh Pirates, one of the strongest clubs in the National League and an aggregation known for its terrific slugging. Going into the box in the seventh inning after the Pirates had scored eight runs and knocked out two pitchers Cantwell checked the opposition and held them scoreless for the next two innings. He allowed two hits. Cantwell's performance is considered of stellar quality and his work is reported to have impressed Lowell Cantwell, manager of the Giants, Sanford fans, who have followed Cantwell's career with considerable interest, hope to see their favorite in action again, soon. The ex-Celery-Fed is very popular with local fandom, which regards him as a Sanford product because it was his brilliant record last year that started him on the road to the majors.

Leviathan To Make Another Air Test

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (INS) LEVIATHAN, flagship of the United States lines, the vessel from which Clarence D. Chamberlin took off with his plane and demonstrated the practicability of ship-to-shore air transport, sailed today, and tomorrow will again take part in an air mail experiment. The United States naval seaplane PN-10, piloted by Lieutenant C. H. Schildhauer, will take off from Squantum, Mass., about daybreak and, overtaking the Leviathan about 225 miles from New York, will try to drop two sacks of supplementary mail on her forward deck and return to the airport.

FLIER SEARCHES FOR OTHERS BUT GETS SELF LOST

Driving "Dallas Spirit" Aviator Hunting For The Missing Dole Fliers Is Believed To Have Fallen Into Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.

Capt. William Erwin, who took off from here late yesterday afternoon in the "Dallas Spirit" to search the seas for the missing planes of the Dole Honolulu race, is believed to have fallen in the sea. The last word from the "Dallas Spirit" was picked up here at 8:02 P. M. (Pacific time), saying that the ship was in a tall spin. Through early hours of the night the plane that carried Capt. Erwin as pilot and A. H. Eichwald, navigator, was in constant radio communication with the receiving station in Oakland. At 8:55 this message came from the "Dallas Spirit": "We are in tail spin. "Relay that, we came out of it O.K. But were surely scared. It sure was a close call. We thought it was all over but we came out of it. The lights on the instrument board went out and it was— "Then "9:02 P. M.—We are in another. "Since then no word has been received from the "Dallas Spirit." The commander of the 12th naval district of San Francisco figures the position of the planes at approximately 592 nautical miles from San Francisco. Three of the flares were reported to have been sighted by the West Sequana shortly after midnight, Pacific coast time, today. A fourth flare was seen about 4:20 A. M., the freighter reported. The flares shot into the sky from a point about three miles off the steamer's starboard bow, the wireless message reported. The West Sequana is standing by till daylight to investigate the source of the rockets. The full report of the sighting of the signals follows: "Three flares falling to red were sighted by our mate and lookout off the starboard bow. The distance was approximately three (Continued on Page Three)

2 Men Are Beaten, Burned To Death Baltimore Section

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20. (INS)—A friendly murder in which one man was burned to death and another so badly burned that he probably will die was perpetrated early today in the middle river rowing district. John C. Haraway, 25, is dead, and his companion, Chester Pug, 23, is dying in Baltimore city hospital. They were beaten up, gasoline poured over them and a match applied to their clothing. Haraway died on the operating table in great agony, screaming "This kid got me, the kid got me." A short time later, police arrested a local pugilist known as "Kid" Julian, and Edward Gaff, his companion. No explanation was received as to the theory held by the ship's officers regarding the flares having been seen distinctly. The possibility was expressed here in marine circles that the signals might have been those of a run runner somewhere off the coast and that in the hours of darkness the ship had moved out of sight of the searching West Sequana. In marine circles it was said that the captain of the West Sequana should not have proceeded unless he was sure that nothing was floating in the vicinity of his ship. The theory that the flares were those of a run runner was given credence by E. R. Bohner, federal prohibition administrator. He said that the run runners have been using flares not only for ship to shore signals but also for ship to ship communication. Recently, he said, the flares have been used more often by the run-runners. They are especially valuable on cloudy nights, their reflection against the clouds adding to their visibility and clearness.

DOLE FLIERS AND GIRL STILL LOST IN OCEAN

"Dallas Spirit" Adds To List Of Those Missing As Result Of Dole Air Derby

Hopes Are Raised By 4 Red Flares

Pacific Freighter Reports Nothing Was Found In Vicinity

Six Dole fliers and a daring girl passenger were feared to be in peril of their lives today, somewhere on the broad Pacific between the mainland and Hawaii.

Capt. Bill Erwin and Alvin Eichwald of the "Dallas Spirit" are believed to have crashed into the sea late last night while flying a zig-zag trail over the great circle course. Erwin and Eichwald had taken off from the Oakland airport yesterday afternoon to fly to Honolulu in search of the "Miss Doran" and the "Golden Eagle," which were lost while racing in the Dole $35,000 derby last Tuesday. Pilot J. Auggy Pedlar, navigator Vilas Knope and Mildred Dwyer of the "Flying Schoolmarm" from the crew of the Buhl biplane. Jack Frost, pilot, and Gordon Scott, navigator, are in the cockpit of the "Golden Eagle." The search today for the missing fliers, although stretching across the entire 2400-mile Honolulu-San Francisco airway, centered at two points, approximately 600 miles and 300 miles off the California coast. The West Sequana, thought to be between 250 and 300 miles off the Golden Gate, electrified the search on both sides of the Pacific early today by reporting the sighting of four distinct reddish flares. The freighter is about 820 miles away from the last position of the "Dallas Spirit," prompting the belief that the signals may have been shot up from the "Miss Doran" or the "Golden Eagle." Three destroyers, the Lavallette, the Sumner and the Hazelwood, were converging on a point about 1060 miles off the coast where Capt. Erwin's "Dallas Spirit" sent out its last radio call. The airplane following the great circle course in search of the "Golden Eagle" and the "Miss Doran," also rushed to the supposed position of the West Sequana. Observation planes will shoot from the Langley's decks to take up the search for Erwin and Eichwald, who are believed to have gone down on their flight of mercy. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20. (INS)—A hope which was brightened for a few hours today that traces of the missing Dole flight planes had been discovered 250 miles off the Pacific coast flickered out shortly before 9 A. M. when the freighter West Sequana reported by wireless through the federal telegraph company that its search for the source of flares it believed it had sighted in vain. "We are proceeding on our course to Shanghai," the freighter reported in a message which had been filed at 8:39 A. M. The vessel had circled for four hours about the spot in the ocean which the flares had come. No explanation was received as to the theory held by the ship's officers regarding the flares having been seen distinctly. The possibility was expressed here in marine circles that the signals might have been those of a run runner somewhere off the coast and that in the hours of darkness the ship had moved out of sight of the searching West Sequana. In marine circles it was said that the captain of the West Sequana should not have proceeded unless he was sure that nothing was floating in the vicinity of his ship. The theory that the flares were those of a run runner was given credence by E. R. Bohner, federal prohibition administrator. Fergus and Sweeney In Hurling Duel With Orlando Ace Having Better Of Argument

Sanford Knobs Score In Eighth

Two Teams Will Play Here Saturday; Sanford Drops Full Game

ORLANDO, Aug. 19.—Sanford lost a 12-inning struggle to Orlando in the first of the series yesterday afternoon at Tinker Field. It was a pitchers' battle between Fergus and Sweeney with the latter having an edge. The Orlando hurler allowed six hits while Wee Willie was giving up nine.

The game went into extra innings after Sanford took the score in the eighth by shoving across a run when Rene Allen walked, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on Bill Meyers' single to center. The Celerymen threatened on other occasions but were not serious enough to result in any runs.

The Colts drew first blood in the second frame when Vinn walked but was out when Tinker attempted to sacrifice. Abrams doubled and Joe came all the way home. From then until the twelfth the Orlando team was held in check by Fergus' fine pitching. In the final frame Phil Wells singled over second and went to second on a sacrifice. Wells was put out between second and third on Tinker's grounder and Tinker went to second in the scramble. Abrams singled and Tinker scored.

Withrow and Culbreth are scheduled to take the mound in the second game this afternoon. The two teams play in Sanford on Saturday.

As a result of Sanford's defeat and Miami's victory the Celerymen dropped a full game behind the east coast team in the pennant fight.

Dempsey Followed By Admirer Crowds On Arrival In Windy City

CHICAGO, Aug. 19. (INS)—Jack Dempsey was not the heavyweight champion of the world, but he is certainly the most popular ex-champion that ever trod the streets of Chicago.

Accompanied by his wife, Estelle Taylor, and a number of friends, Dempsey has arrived here to begin training for his title bout with Champion Gene Tunney, scheduled for Soldiers Field, Sept. 22. Although Dempsey passed up his favorite downtown hotel for a night, he was met at the North Shore, and from there he and his wife and friends were escorted to the Tremonts hoping to get a night of their idol.

The alleged "bull wench" will get his first workout today when Jack picks a round of golf with Leo P. Flynn, his manager, Promoter Tex Rickards and several friends.

Dempsey will begin work on Monday in earnest at his Lincoln Field training camp. Tunney is expected here next week.

TILDEN WILL PAIR WITH HUNTER FOR COMING MATCHES

Tennis Association Undecided About Whether Johnston Or Williams Will Get Other Assignment In Six Weeks

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Above and beyond fallacy and mere supposition stood the fact today that only two considerations remained 100 percent certain about the American Davis Cup team, as named yesterday, and these were that Bill Tilden will play no. 1 in the singles and that he will team with Francis T. Hunter in the doubles match. They say Billy Johnston is an absolute walk-in for no. 2 singles spot; in fact, that eventually seemingly has been taken for granted by everyone with the possible exception of the Davis cup selection committee.

The writer happens to know that that committee right this moment is wavering in its choice between Johnston and R. Norris Williams and will take nothing for granted, except its own invincibility, until such time as it sees what it may see.

Everything depends on how Johnston plays when he comes east for the final workouts leading up to the challenge round. If he looks anything like the Johnston of old, he can't be kept off the team with a ball and chain if he doesn't and Williams can show quite a society hand shake, then Williams will get the nod without the slightest compunction.

For the committee is trying to win this Davis Cup meeting if it loses all others between now and the hereafter and the trouble with Johnston is that he represents that fearsome element, the unknown. He has played only a minimum of tournament tennis since last year and he wasn't too good then.

Knowing Williams for what he is and Johnston for what he may be, it might as well be conceded that the latter is the favored candidate up to and including the present. There is no anti-Johnston feeling in the committee because Billy didn't come east early during this, of all seasons.

As a matter of fundamental fact, the committee well realizes that it is lucky to get Johnston to come on at all. He has done much for the sport of lawn tennis in America and the committee has come for him to do something far himself. Only a last-minute appraisal to Johnston's loyalty persuaded him to become a candidate for the team in the first place. He is a busy man on the Pacific coast and his extended tennis season cramps his style considerably.

In addition, he felt that if he escaped the humid weather of August in and around New York, he could play better tennis in September. The committee has professed complete sympathy with all of his ideas but the fact of the matter is that August hasn't been kind, which probably means that September will be, and that the committee, not having Johnston in action, is prepared to turn thumbs down on him when it does not him, provided his form justifies that action.

When Tilden returned to the United States from his European invasion he is quoted as having said: "It's up to Bill Johnston." If Johnston is ready, he is of the frail wire type, noted for his competitive longevity. Although Johnston doesn't hope to equal the record of Norman Brookes, who played in Davis cup matches 61 times, he was well along in his 40's, "Little Bill" feels he has at least a few more years of international play ahead of him.

With the Yankees 15 games in the lead, the Washington Senators awake from their pennant dreams today and turned to ward off a flank attack by the onrushing Detroit Tigers. The Bengals have won seven straight and trail the Nats by only 2.5 games.

Rain prevented the Red Sox from being fed to the Tigers yesterday but the Senators lost to the Browns in the twelfth, 6 to 5. Walter Johnson was taken out of the box. The Nats are 6 to 5 favorites to win both the American League pennant and the world's series, according to odds quoted in Wall Street. The Cubs are favored to cop the National League flag at 8 to 5. Pittsburgh is a 4 to 1 shot St. Louis 7 to 1 and New York 10 to 1.

The Yankees won again from the White Sox 5 to 4, in the twelfth inning. Wiley Moore, crack relief pitcher, lung up his second victory in 24 hours.

Cleveland's losing streak and Philadelphia's winning streak were shattered as the Indians trimmed the A's 2 to 1. Joe Shute did some sweet pitching while Bishop's error cooked Connie Mack's hush. A lot of "crooked" baseball will be crowded into a few hours this afternoon in the National League as all the pennant contenders, held idle by rain yesterday, will play double-headers.

U.S. TO WIN NET CUP THIS YEAR, SAYS JOHNSTON

California Star Is Confident America Will Retain Reward Despite Tilden's Showing

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19. (INS)—"Little Bill" Johnston believes the United States will keep the Davis Cup for at least another year.

Johnston isn't ignoring the great French internationalists—Lacoste, Cretchet, Barot, and Brugnot—but he feels that he and "Big Bill" Tilden who have kept the coveted cup in the United States for the past six years will still have enough "stuff on the ball" for at least one more season.

"Little Bill" confided those tentative opinions in an interview with International News Service today. "I think we will win again this year," Johnston ventured. "I believe Tilden will win his games—"

And then, modestly, he added: "I may be able to get one of mine."

Confident of Winning
"You think the American team will win despite Tilden's defeat by both Lacoste and Cretchet in European tournaments?" Johnston was asked.

While Tilden and his doubles partner, Francis T. Hunter, were campaigning overseas in preparation for the Davis cup series "Little Bill" stayed at home in San Francisco, stayed at home conditioning, conditioning himself on local courts. Johnston played in only one important tournament, the Pacific Coast championships. He won the singles titles for the umpteenth consecutive year.

"Your staying in California this year instead of going east for the Atlantic seaboard tournaments, was an experiment wasn't it?" Johnston was questioned.

"Not an experiment," he denied, "merely a matter of necessity. I couldn't get away from my work."

"Little Bill" declared, however, that he had religiously drilled himself for the Davis cup series. "I haven't worked out every day, of course," he explained, "but I have practiced as much as I could. I don't need an intensive training period, like a boxer, because I am playing the year around."

Johnston's record for the Davis cup matches is better than that of his lucky teammate, Tilden. The "mighty midget" has dropped 139 games in his six years of play in Davis cup tournaments; Tilden has lost 219 games in the same length of time.

Davis Cup Record

Johnston and Tilden have both played twelve matches in these six years. Each lost only one. J. O. Anderson, the Australian, defeated "Little Bill" in 1923; Rene Lacoste won from Tilden last year. Tilden lost twelve sets in Davis cup play; Johnston has lost only seven.

"Little Bill's" career as a tennis internationalist began in 1920, although he had been a prominent figure on the courts since he was 19 years old. He is now 33. In his first appearance in Davis Cup play, Johnston defeated Norman Brookes, "the grand old man" of Australia, and he also beat Gerald Patterson in the same series. Other victims of his flashing racket in Davis cup matches were Zeno Shimizu and Ichaya Kumagane, the Japanese; James G. Anderson, and John F. Hawkes, the Australians; and Jean Herotra and Rene Lacoste of France.

When Tilden returned to the United States from his European invasion he is quoted as having said: "It's up to Bill Johnston." If Johnston is ready, he is of the frail wire type, noted for his competitive longevity. Although Johnston doesn't hope to equal the record of Norman Brookes, who played in Davis cup matches 61 times, he was well along in his 40's, "Little Bill" feels he has at least a few more years of international play ahead of him.

Hoover, Lowden Most Discussed Candidates

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 19.—Lowden and Hoover are the only presidential possibilities discussed widely. Lowden is sure of a strong (and a support) which is organized. Hoover has hosts of admirers among the business men of the state but they are as yet not organized.

The prompt endorsement of Hoover by Henry Ford and Senator James Couzens turned the attention of the public toward the secretary of commerce as no political endorsement could have done. If Coolidge is definitely out of the race, Hoover will, in the opinion of political observers here, fall heir to much of his strength in Michigan.

What Doctors Say About Smoking and Throat Protection

An advertisement based on the opinion of 9651* physicians

Mary Lewis, Famous Metropolitan Star, writes:

"Because they never irritate the throat and because of their finer flavor, Lucky Strikes are my favorite and of all whose voices are precious."

"Can I really smoke without irritating my throat, even if my throat is unusually sensitive, and even if I smoke as much as I please?"

A number of physicians, many of them leading physicians, in various parts of the United States, were recently asked these two questions:

Q1—In your judgment is the heat treatment or toasting process applied to tobaccos previously aged and cured, likely to free the cigarette from irritation to the throat?

9651 doctors answered this question "YES".

Q2—Do you think from your experience with LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes that they are less irritating to sensitive or tender throats than other cigarettes, whatever the reason?

11,105 doctors answered this question "YES".

You have noticed in the newspapers and magazines the opinions of many whose voices must be maintained unimpaired—opera singers, actors and actresses, men prominent in public life, radio announcers. These opinions are confirmed by the opinions of those whose business it is to know.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation - No Cough.

*WE HEREBY CERTIFY that we have examined signed cards answering Questions One and Two and that there are 9651 affirmative answers to Question One and 11,105 affirmative answers to Question Two.

ADVENTURE
 By Maurice Dooling
 —In Commonweal—
 Why should I seek adventure in strange places
 Or countries far away
 When I know what adventure matches
 With my own every day?

If I but leave you dear, and pass that curtain
 To find a pipe or pen,
 I know that I can never be quite certain
 I shall return again.
 If I permit my glance from yours to sever
 What time the eyelids fall
 I cannot surely know that I shall ever
 See you again at all.

I cannot raise my hand to fondle simply
 Your hand or cheek or hair
 But it may fall beside my body limply
 And never reach you there.
 I cannot speak one word however aimless
 That I can surely tell
 (God grant my words to tell you
 'Tis not our last farewell.

Why should I seek adventure in strange places
 Or countries far away
 When I know what adventure matches
 With my own every day?

Dawes Versus Young

A number of prominent men have been mentioned recently as potential candidates for the presidency next year. The list includes notables in both of the major parties. Of more than passing interest are the reports that link the names of Vice President Charles G. Dawes for the Republican nomination and Owen D. Young for the Democratic nomination. At the same time Young as his party's nominee is a possibility and anything can happen in a year's time.

Mr. Dawes appears certain to be in the midst of the fight at the G. O. P. convention next summer. His candidacy is just as strong as those of Hoover and Lowden, and many leaders of the party are of the opinion that if Dawes will only give encouragement to his candidacy, he will become the standard bearer with little effort. However, Dawes has remained silent and what has been done in his behalf has been accomplished through the work of his closest friends.

As matters stand now, Young is not a favorite for the party nomination. The names of Al Smith and William G. McAdoo completely overshadow his as the battle lines begin to form. However, the next Democratic convention may be a repetition of the one four years ago with the forces of McAdoo and Smith in a deadlock. In such an emergency a compromise candidate will be the only solution. As a candidate under those circumstances, Mr. Young is as favorable as any of the others and more so than many of those mentioned.

The possibility of Dawes facing Young in the presidential election although remote at this writing, would furnish the public with more interest than their conflicting personalities would at first indicate. The two men, who worked together to formulate the famous Dawes Plan, would offer an interesting contrast fighting each other in politics. Dawes generally has been given credit for the reparations agreement but there are those on the inside who insist that Young deserves a large part of the honor. Apportionment of this credit might furnish most of the campaign thunder if these two men are nominated.

Infantile Paralysis

In 1927 when an epidemic of infantile paralysis was prevalent in this country, Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy during the Wilson administration, was afflicted. For several years he was unable to walk but recently has regained the use of his legs.

Learning of the successful treatment of patients at Warm Springs, Georgia, Mr. Roosevelt has authorized the treatment of ten children suffering from this malady at his own expense, "even if it takes three or four years".

At the same time in Fort Worth, Texas, an epidemic is reported in which thirteen new cases developed last week. There a serum treatment recently discovered is being applied to the victims with remarkable success and the public health director has encouraged his patients with the statement that out of five cases treated, cure was effected in every instance.

Commenting on "poliomyelitis," or infantile paralysis, Time has this to say:

"Doctors include infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) among the respiratory diseases. So far as is known, the disease only occurs in man and he is the sole source of infection (monkeys have been infected in clinics). Transmission may occur through insects and other animal carriers, but there is no definite evidence. No organism has been isolated which has been proved to be the cause of the disease. "Paralytic manifestations appear sometimes early, sometimes late. Recovery may be complete, or partial or complete disability develop. The central nervous system is attacked, sometimes involving the brain, always the spine. "Although prevalent all over the world, infantile paralysis especially attacks those living in the colder climates. It occurs usually during the dry, hot months— from May to November. One attack apparently confers an immunity of high degree but doctors know of second attacks. "Since the cause and mode of transmission have not been definitely established, efforts to control the disease and prevent it have been along general lines. Disinfection is essential; antiseptic gargles are of questionable value, even probably harmful. After-treatment is of the greatest importance. If properly treated, deformities may, to a large extent, be prevented. During the acute stage, massage and exercise should not be resorted to, but the paralyzed part kept in its normal position through splints. To such orthodox treatment, Dr. Martin's serum is an experimental adjunct.

FEWER AND BETTER NEWSPAPERS TAMPA TRIBUNE

Some editorialists are alarmed unduly so about the remarkable decrease in the number of daily newspapers in the first six months of 1927.

Arthur Robb, in Editor And Publisher, has kept tab. He reports that the number of daily newspapers of general circulation in the English language decreased in that period from 2,001, to 1,952. This is the largest decrease ever recorded in six months.

Yet, Mr. Robb shows less than a dozen of these disappearing journals passed out because of financial failure. The others were wiped out or submerged as a result of the increasing tendency toward consolidation of newspapers, meaning fewer but better papers.

PROTECTED GAMBLING PALM BEACH INDEPENDENT

The Alma news stand punchboard operator, or we hope ex-operator, seems to be wise. Notwithstanding his victory of two weeks ago over the law, he has taken his punchboard off his counters, which shows either that he has enough of his protector is scared.

A number of other punchboard operators have also put their boards out of sight. They may be bootlegging them in back corners or from under the counters, but that is lots of trouble for the money. After a while they may put them out in full sight again, but this they may be sure of, as long as the Independent is in the city they will travel straight or find the road rocky. The next time we have evidence that a man is operating a punchboard, we are going to print his name. It is against the law for a man to have a punchboard or other gambling apparatus in his place of business, and it is the duty of the officers of the law to confiscate such apparatus and arrest the operators. Of course, we are aware that a police officer risks his job by being too faithful to his oath of office, but it isn't going to be that way always.

As Brisbane Sees It

Beer And Bull Fight. Don't Buy "Air" Stock. A Gold Mine Hen. Too Much Wealth. By ARTHUR BRISBANE Copyright 1927 by Star Co.

MEN CAN GET used to anything, if they must. For years we have had beer without alcohol; recently with representatives of the "friendly society" looking on, 6,000 Americans enjoyed a bull fight without blood.

The bull fighters carried nothing sharp but red cloths to annoy the bull. Cares were provided for which the amateurs could flee for safety. It may be that the red flag is really more cruel than pincushion's lance, or matador's sword. Many humans prefer being hit to being insulted. The bull may feel the same way.

IT WILL NOT be colored Lindbergh's fault if Americans are wretched out of their savings by gas rich quick flying machine company promoters. Young Lindbergh has requested this writer to say for him that he does not recommend stock in any flying machine concern, that he is not connected with any concern offering stock for sale, and has not authorized anybody to use his name.

If he ever should organize an airplane company, it won't offer stock to the public until the stock is actually earning money. You may depend on that. Don't waste your savings.

MORE IMPORTANT THAN any gold mine is a single combed white Lophorn hen named "Lady Lindy," living and laying at Gentry, in the wonderful state of Arkansas. She establishes a record for the whole world by laying 149 eggs in 149 days. The Missouri hen that laid 141 eggs in 141 days and then rested, is ex-champion.

THE EGG CROP is so gigantic in value that if every hen could lay 50 additional eggs a year, the proceeds would soon pay the national debt and it could be done if hens would devote to egg-laying energy now used in molting, getting new feathers they don't need.

A featherless hen, like the hairless Mexican dog, living in an electrically warmed and lighted coop, with only four hours of darkness per day, intensively producing 1,000 eggs in three years, then disappearing in chicken stew, is conceivable.

THAT THIS country is frightfully rich in natural resources, is shown in the fact that our chief worries are concerned with too much wealth.

The oil men complain of too much oil. The iron men of copper men is too much copper. Copper mine owners seek to prove that supplies are decreasing. They ought to pray for supplies inexhaustible.

NEW GOLD MINES, copper mines, oil wells are found everywhere. United States material wealth runs to millions of billions. And in that thin layer of dark gray matter called the "cortex" just underneath the human skull, there lies wealth born of ideas, greater than all the wealth in the big earth.

A GENTLEMAN of Yonkers was accused of being drunk and causing his large police dog to "bark at a child." The child, eight years old, was severely bitten, while the dog's owner looked on. Dog and owner appeared to enjoy it, the owner, according to charges made, releasing the dog from the leash that it might attack the child.

THIS IS UNUSUAL, but whoever parades the street with a police dog or any other dangerous descendant of wolves, and a possible carrier of rabies, risks children's safety and should be held responsible for whatever the dog may do, as though he had done it himself.

The law now holds the dog's owner or blameless unless it can be proved that his dog had bitten somebody previously. "For each dog one free bite without penalty" is the silly law. That should be changed.

IN CHICAGO, WHERE gambling on the race tracks is legalized, because self-indulgent rich men and grafting politicians want it, this happened:

The Lincoln handicap was run. Official reports show that the foolish public bet $655,000. The track got $12,575 of that money and paid $2500 to the state. It also paid to the state 20 cents each on 18,000 paid admissions.

Of the gambling money, race track gamblers got $42,575, plus the proceeds of 18,000 paid admissions, minus 20 cents a head, the state got $6100, the foolish public left it $6100 at the track.

Gambling is illegal, for the small man. But when a few prosperous men and grafting politicians get together, an arrangement can conveniently be made to legalize gambling, built it up as a settled vice, and take about $800,000,000 a year from the public through-out the country.

"To show my faith in these men and this community, I have $400 00 in cash of which I will pledge $200 to the capital stock, and $200 to place on time deposit in the new institution, if Mr. Lake and Mr. Key will head the new bank while they are cleaning up the old bank's business..."

"The next important step is to analyze the needs of our producing area. For agriculture it will be necessary for a few selected, experienced and well informed men to analyze the foreign markets as to when they will plant, how much they will plant, when they will place the produce on the market, and into what markets they will send their produce. After obtaining this information, they will advise, regulate and adjust our planting the amount we shall plant, the kind of produce we shall grow, when to expect, to a day if possible, our produce to be ready for the market, and then to select the market..."

"All this general planning is to be done before the growing season and then designated as the general plan for this community's production. This general planning to be formulated by a few of the best and most experienced minds of the community and submitted for the approval of the majority, and ways and means found to make the general plan practical and just for the greatest number of growers..."

"The next important step is to analyze how, when and where to spend the public money within the city of Sanford and Seminole County, keeping in mind that the money spent must accomplish the most good for the majority of the people..."

"The first step in this line is to rigidly retrace on maintenance and operation and then immediately commence new construction of public works beneficial to the community in the future, with borrowed money if necessary..."

Violation of the constitutional guarantees of due process of law constitutes the last ditch legal fight of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense attorneys. Only on this basis, it was said by court attaches can jurisdiction be assumed.

Should Justice Mc Reynolds, who has been in Washington most of the summer, return within a few days, an application for a stay of execution may be made to him, it was expected that an appeal would be made to Justice Holmes in Beverly, Mass., as the Boston district comes within his province.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (INS) — Captain William P. Erwin, who disappeared somewhere over the Pacific while taking part in the search for the missing Dole flyers, was a World War aviator and was three times decorated for bravery in action on the western front, according to war department records. He was credited with bringing down nine enemy planes.

As a member of the first aero squadron he was first cited for his work at Chateau Thierry and a few weeks later was again honored for his operations in the same sector. Later in the summer he was awarded the distinguished service cross for action at St. Mihiel. Erwin was born at Ryan, Oklahoma, Oct. 18, 1895. He attended school at Amarillo, Texas, and later studied music in New York City and Chicago.

When he enlisted in the army on Aug. 15, 1917, he was an accomplished pianist and composer of music and had taken part in many notable concert tours.

NEW CHAPTER IS WRITTEN IN LIFE OF STAGE BEAUTY

Body Of James Heath, Last Of Evelyn Harris' Mates, Taken From Ground For Re-examination Upon Request Of Sisters

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 20.—(INS)—When the cloths rattled down on the coffin of James McN. Heath in the Woodlawn Cemetery, Tampa, for the second time this week, it closed another chapter in the life of the once beautiful Evelyn Harris Gill-Bennett-Heath. Tragedy has come to her most unexpectantly in the past half dozen years, the years that elapsed since she left the home of her husband, William S. Gill, broker and New York newspaper man, who had married her after she had made a successful career in the Broadway theatrical circle.

Twice this week has the body of her late husband been laid in the tomb. He died at Bayshore Hospital of tubercular meningitis. Mrs. Charles H. Burke, of Americus, Ga., and Mrs. W. B. Freeman, of Tallahassee, Ga., sisters of the young man, were for some reason not satisfied with the reports of his death. They came to Tampa this week and demanded that the body be exhumed and an autopsy held.

State Prosecutor Parkhill refused to order the raising of the body, but permitted them to have it exhumed and the autopsy held privately. This was done and the half-dozen physicians who made the examination confirmed the diagnosis of the doctors who had attended the man in his last illness. He died of tubercular meningitis.

It was another queer chapter in the life of this remarkable woman, but the remarkable coincidence of it all is that the principal witness for the state when the former husband, Raymond Bennett, was tried for murder in Tampa four years ago, is also in the public prints today. Until 30 days ago he was assistant cashier of the Exchange National Bank of Tampa. He has been found $8,000 short in his accounts. It is charged. He has confessed the defalcation and is awaiting action by the United States Treasury Department, which will prosecute the case. He admits that the money was lost betting on the dog races.

C. J. Hardee, who was attorney for Raymond Bennett and who secured his acquittal, has also been getting columns of publicity this past week through his altercations with Judge Leo Stinaker, judge of the municipal court, who ordered the raid on the Key Club and the taking of moving pictures to be used in evidence in the case. Hardee is attorney for Archy Cerf, proprietor of the Key Club.

These three people, all of whom appeared so prominently in June, 1923, when Bennett shot and killed Herbert Crothers, young lumber dealer of Tampa, in the public street, have all come to the front again in the same issues of the papers, but each on separate matters.

Mrs. Heath was first Miss Evelyn Harris, of Chattanooga. Her family was poor and she worked at a ribbon counter in a department store there. But she had ambitions. She was of wondrous beauty and an accomplished dancer. She went to New York to break into the big time on Broadway. Her beauty won for her a minor place and her ability and determination won her success. It was only a short time until her name was playing in the electric lights and she was one of the hits of the theatrical world in the big city.

Then she met "Milly" Gill, one of the most popular men in New York. They married and he established a city home in West End Avenue, one of the fashionable resident streets of the Upper West Side. They had a magnificent country home at Huntington, Long Island.

Gill left his wife for a business trip to Europe. Upon his return he looked for her at the dock but failed to find her. He hurried to their West End house. It was empty and deserted. He went to Huntington and found the country mansion also stripped. Then he learned that in his absence his wife had obtained a divorce and had married Raymond Bennett son of one of the wealthiest families of Chattanooga.

Bennett had established one of the finest homes in Florida. Twelve miles north of Tampa he owned 200 acres of orange grove and on it was beautiful Lake Bennett, where he had canoes, motor boats and row-boats of every description. He had built a wonderful house on the estate with a living room that was large enough for a public auditorium. He had automobiles and horses and everything that could make life a dream.

Here he brought his bride and they began the conquest of Tampa society. It went slow at first. Then opportunity came when the Daughters of the Revolution decided to put on the "Florida Follies of 1924." A young newspaper woman who was doing society on one of the Tampa papers and was interested in the production, suggested Mrs. Bennett and society immediately reached but for the former Broadway star and overnight she became the most important woman in Tampa social circles.

LEVINS IS ONLY WITNESS AGAINST ACCUSED SLAYER

Man Doomed To Electric Chair And Subject To Hallucinations Will Be Lone Person To Testify Against Friend

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 20. (INS)—When Leonard Thompson is called for trial for participation in the murder of five members of the family of Looney Merrell, May 21, last, in their shanty home on the outskirts of Tampa, the only witness against him will be Benjamin Franklin Levins, confessed murderer of Merrell and his wife, whom it is alleged has been insane for years, subject to hallucinations and was discharged from the army on those grounds.

Levins by his own confession, was found guilty of murder in the circuit court here July 20. Last Monday his attorneys, Douglas R. Dewey and Charles E. Jones, who had been appointed to defend him by the court, he being without means, made application for a new trial. They asked that the appeal be amended to carry the newly discovered evidence. Judge F. M. Robles refused this plea on the ground that there was no precedent providing for the amending of a petition for a new trial. He thereupon refused the application and sentenced Levins to death.

Judge Robles advised the attorney to take the matter to the pardon board and ask for commutation of the death sentence on the ground that the prisoner is insane. No appeal will be made to the supreme court.

Thompson's case is now in the peculiar condition that the only witness for the state is admittedly insane. Whether the confession of part in the murders is correct or not is submitted to doubt. Nevertheless he is under sentence of death for a murder which he may never have committed but, having become impressed with the stories of the crime, his disordered brain caused him to make confession.

Levins made several confessions, but rather the same confession in several forms. He first assumed blame for the murder of all five members of the Merrell family. Later he changed this and claimed to have murdered only Looney Merrell and his wife, alleging that Thompson had gone with him to the Merrell home and had entered the bedroom where the children slept and that he murdered three of the children with an axe.

Levins also, when asked by the police if he had any part in the murder of the family of Bee Bawell and a boarder in Tampa, June 25, 1926, readily confessed those murders but this confession was not used in court against him having nothing to do with the Merrell case.

He later told his attorneys, Dewey and Jones, that he had nothing to do with those murders and that he was a prisoner there until June 30 and he could not have been guilty of the first murders to which he had confessed.

That Levins had been discharged from the army because of insanity was not learned by his attorneys until last week. He had told them he had been discharged but said it was because of disease. They made application to the war department for a certified copy of the discharge. The war department refused to give this unless a proper official made the request, setting forth the reasons necessitating it. Judge L. L. Parks, of Circuit court, then wired the authorities at Washington giving an outline of the case. A certified copy of the discharge was then forwarded from Washington and arrived here last week. It showed that Levins had been discharged because of "a psychopathic condition which would be progressive and which led him to hallucinations."

Under the law Levins is now barred from a new trial although he is admittedly insane and his testimony against himself and against Thompson is worthless. The only course left open to his attorneys, Dewey and Jones, now is to make application to the pardon board for commutation of sentence to life imprisonment.

The society for the imposition of the death penalty for murder has become greatly interested in the case of Levins. That is his weak mental state he readily answered the police questioning him when they asked him about the Roswell murder and confessed to a murder which he could not possibly have committed, throws serious doubts on his story of the Merrell murders also. Thompson has steadfastly maintained his innocence. He admits having been with Levins for several days before the mur-

Development Program Will Cost Soviet Government More Than Billion Dollars

MOSCOW, Aug. 20.—(INS)—Nearly one billion dollars of new business awaits foreign concerns who are willing to take the pains to sell to the Soviet government. This sum is contained in only two items of the budget which the finance commission proposes for the fiscal year 1927-28 beginning October 1.

Half a billion is recommended for construction and improvements to revenue yielding industrial plants including machinery and equipment. Almost an equal sum will be spent for extensions, repairs and rolling stock of the giant railroads, large and steamship systems.

Internal Loan Two-thirds of the cash for these undertakings is proposed to be taken from the currency revenue. An internal loan of approximately $100,000,000 is all that is believed necessary to keep the budget balanced. The present rigid pay-as-you-go policy of the government is to be continued.

Foreign loans, the commission said, are urgently needed to speed up industrial expansion, which in present can go only to the extent of available revenues. Though the national income is expected to increase 7 per cent next year, it will not be materially raised. In general the financial conditions of the country is pronounced "increasingly satisfactory." The conversion, the unit of paper currency equal to 10 rubles, though artificially stabilized, is backed by 25 per cent gold reserve.

Year's Expenditures Total expenditures for the coming fiscal year are estimated at 5,412,000,000 rubles (about $1,700,000,000), an increase of 11 per cent over 1926-27. Sources of income are estimated as follows: 67 million rubles from direct taxes on incomes, property and for use of land; 1,460 million rubles from indirect taxes on food staples, paper and tobacco; 1,650 million rubles from profits of government railroads, steamship and large lines; 184 millions from customs, and 12 millions from profits of the post office, telegraph and telephone systems, and approximately 750 million from other state enterprises.

Neglect of the sink causes skin and waterbugs. Keep it at all times free from scraps. After pouring dirty water down the waste pipe, follow with clean so that the foul water will not remain in the trap.

When washing the glassware by the pieces in the warm water, they will be wet on the inside. Uncolored expansion of the glass caused by part being suddenly heated is what breaks them.

Baby Falls 100 Feet But Escapes Death

Although he fell 100 feet when he toppled off the sill of his father's hotel room window in Nashville, Tenn., 2-year-old Roland Wolfe today is recovering in a hospital, suffering only from a fractured left arm and right leg. Roland, shown here in his hospital bed, happened to land squarely on the shoulders of Raymond Garnette of New York, (inset), who was walking along the sidewalk beneath the window. Garnette escaped with a few bruises and a cut forehead. The location of the Wolfes' hot room, and the line of Roland's fall, are shown at the left.

Forestry Service Members Begin An Extensive Survey Of Mississippi Conditions

DENVER, Aug. 20.—(INS)—Representatives of the United States Forest Service in the Rocky Mountain region will start immediately on an extensive survey of drainage conditions on the northern watershed of the Mississippi valley in an effort to secure as much as possible all available information that may aid in flood prevention and control on the Father of Waters—the Mississippi river.

The work of the Rocky Mountain foresters will be in conjunction with an exhaustive survey upon the location and area of forests needed on the Mississippi watershed as a part of a proposed flood prevention and control program to be worked out by the federal government.

E. A. Sherman of the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, is made as a response to one of the most unique among the many suggestions offered with a view to controlling floods of the great river.

The author of this suggestion estimates that 85 percent of the cubic space between the leaves from Cairo to Baton Rouge is occupied by "giant cottonwood forest and other kinds of tree growth of all sizes" and urges that the area be completely stripped of the trees to make more room for the water.

"It is unquestionably true that this land area does support lowland hardwood forests of great extent and value. Possibly 85 per cent of the surface area is given to growing trees. 'But' said Forrester Sherman, 'the computation of cubic feet occupied by the tree growth must be based on the space actually occupied by the trees rather than the entire land surface on which the trees grow, and when so computed the space between the leaves does not appear to be nearly so choked or usurped by the trees. Actual investigations on representative lands in the Mississippi Valley have shown, for example, that the cottonwood produces a maximum of 6,900 cubic feet of wood per acre at fifty years of age, with an average height of 136 feet. This means about 50 cubic feet of wood volume for each acre-foot (43,560 cubic feet) of surface. In other words, though 85 per cent of this land surface may be taken up by land growth, that tree growth is occupying not 85 per cent but about 1.9 per cent of the cubical space, and its effect toward raising the flood level or retarding the movement of the waters is seen to be wholly insignificant. 'Certainly,' the forester points out, 'any trifling disadvantage thus caused is overwhelmingly counterbalanced by the benefits derived from making this land, which is useless for any other continued production, grow trees.'"

Expansion Of The Domestic Trade Promotion Division Of Commerce Bureau Planned

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(INS)—Expansion of the domestic trade promotion division of the commerce department, to bring it up to the standard established by the foreign service, is planned by Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

With foreign trade promotion well developed, department experts are turning their attention to creation of a scientific service in production, distributing and marketing, that business panics will be a thing of the past.
