Police Pay Raise Endangered

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The 6.4 per cent cost-of-living pay raise tentatively granted to Sanford police for the budget year beginning Oct. 1 may be a dead issue and discussion of police grievances are on "hold."

At least that was the indication from Sanford City Manager W. E. Knowles, who warned city commissioners today not to discuss police department grievances or salaries because the unionization move in the police department is apparently "on" again.

Along with a memo to city commissioners, Knowles wrote to the city's special labor attorney, David Komreich, of Miami, seeking advice on the city's next move.

And he advised city commissioners that the Orange County Police Benevolent Association (OCPBA) — which has been seeking recognition as the police department's bargaining agent — has not withdrawn its petition to the state's Public Employees Relations Commission (PERC) for recognition, a hearing and an election.

Despite the reported 26 to 9 vote of the police officers, both members and non-members of the OCPBA, two weeks ago, Knowles said in a memo to the city commission it "appears the union is planning to give the city a workout and force the issue all the way regardless of what the men expressed in their vote."

Currently, a hearing by the state's PERC is scheduled for Sept. 7 and Knowles said in addition to the hearing, a PERC-supervised election will have to be held and "all of this could take several months."

The city is scheduling public hearings on the 1978 budget for mid-September.

County Reviews Inspection Procedures

Catching Drainage Woes A Complex Job

By MARK WEINBERG
Herald Staff Writer

A Seminole Countyman builds his dream house and moves in. Two weeks later he has a small river flowing through his carport. Whose fault is it?

Chances are the answer is nobody's fault, says County Development Director John Percy. He says he's concerned that the county's procedures for reviewing subdivision and building permit applications do not include airtight ways of spotting potential drainage problems before they happen.

"We catch over 90 per cent of potential drainage problems now," said Percy, "but when someone moves into a new house and runs into a drainage problem, he feels somebody's let him down, and that somebody is the government."

Percy admits that "We don't have a comprehensive program to identify these situations," and he's considering ways to solve the problem.

A solution involves important philosophical questions, according to Percy: "What do we need to do to cut down the number of these problems homeowners face, and how far should government go to protect people?"

Percy is compiling an inventory of the county's controls on development. "I find serious loopholes, the next step would be to develop some ways of plugging them."

"When we look at problems like this, each division (involved in the subdivision and building permitting process) says 'Nobody assigned it to us' and they're right when you examine the situation closely," Percy said. "The alternatives are either to assign it to somebody (redesign the system), or take a stand that it's not the government's responsibility."

Drainage problems usually occur in areas of the county that were designated for subdivisions more than two decades ago. "Many of these subdivisions were built lot-by-lot, and the good lots — on top of hills — were developed first. The less desirable ones get developed later. Another typical situation is that a subdivision was planned and then the economy went bust and it was never developed," said Percy.

"Back then there was no technical review of proposed subdivisions like we have now," according to the county development director.

Here's how the technical review works: When someone wants to develop a piece of property, he submits a preliminary development plan to the land development division. The process of dividing a piece of property into parcels for development is called "plating." The division examines the plat proposal and development plan to see if they follow the county's subdivision regulations, which were updated in 1976.

The development plan also goes to the county commissioner in whose district the proposed development is located. If the district commissioner approves the preliminary plan, the developer prepares detailed engineering plans which are examined by a plat review committee.

That committee consists of the county engineer, a building official, representatives of the environmental services (utilities) division, fire division, county school board and the Soil Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

If the committee gives the go-ahead, the planning and zoning commission studies the case and makes a recommendation to the Board of County Commissioners, which has the final say on whether to allow the development.

If the district commissioner disapproves the development plan, the developer can revise his application to eliminate the potential problems spotted by the commissioner and resubmit the application, or he can appeal his case to the planning and zoning commission.

"Through these procedures we usually catch drainage problems pretty early," said Percy.

The county development director added that when the developer takes the next step — submitting an application for a building permit — the county engineer checks to see if the proposed structure would be in a flood-prone or other drainage problem area or a "moratorium area," one in which the commissioners have declared a moratorium on building permits due to the land's unsuitability for development.

"We're looking for ways to improve the situation," said Percy. "It's one of those problems that picks away at you year after year."

The homicide department is handling the case because the investigation has to do with removal of a body, he said. Deputy Chief John Molnar said the men were arrested for investigation of attempted burglary.

The Commercial Appeal, reporting that explosives were confiscated during the arrests, said a cemetery employee had told the newspaper that the suspects planned to blast open the mausoleum. The newspaper said police reported the quantity of explosives found did not appear sufficient to gain access to the tomb's interior.

A Real Blast At Elvis Tomb?

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Four men who police say were plotting to steal Elvis Presley's body and hold it for ransom were arrested early today outside the cemetery where the rock 'n' roll singer is entombed.

The Memphis Commercial Appeal reported that the men were carrying explosives with which they planned to blast open the mausoleum containing the body. Police would not comment on that report.

Lt. S.T. McCochren of the homicide squad said in a statement that police had received confidential information several days ago that a group of persons planned to break into Presley's mausoleum at Forest Hills Cemetery, take the body and hold it for ransom.

Officers from the department's tactical unit staked out the suburban Memphis graveyard. On Saturday, McCochren said, suspects were seen in the area of the cemetery, located on Elvis Presley Boulevard. He said the men were apparently making a trial run.

At 12:21 a.m. today, he said, officers arrested three men in a car near the Forest Hills gates and took a fourth man into custody outside the cemetery. McCochren declined to say whether any of the four entered the cemetery or when they would be arraigned. He said they might be charged later today.

The homicide department is handling the case because the investigation has to do with removal of a body, he said. Deputy Chief John Molnar said the men were arrested for investigation of attempted burglary.

The Commercial Appeal, reporting that explosives were confiscated during the arrests, said a cemetery employee had told the newspaper that the suspects planned to blast open the mausoleum. The newspaper said police reported the quantity of explosives found did not appear sufficient to gain access to the tomb's interior.

Molnar said that as far as he knew no extortion threat was made.

Presley, who was 42, was entombed Aug. 18, two days after his death from a heart attack.

Police said Swain, a ward of the state like the other two, had been living with Walker and Walker's wife for about three weeks. The couple has had foster children for several years.

Glady's Walker, 45, said she didn't believe her husband ordered the burning. She said she was working at the time it happened.

"My husband loved Vernon," she said. "He loved them all. He wanted to help them. He tried to show them where they were wrong."

At the hearing last Thursday, Judge Hosemann ordered Brian Jr. held in protective custody at an undisclosed home until the conclusion of his father's trial.

The court warned defense and prosecution attorneys they could only talk with Brian Jr. on court order and together. The attorneys today were reported scheduled to talk to the boy this afternoon.

Earlier, officials from State Atty. Douglas Chesbire's office alleged that Brian Jr. was an eyewitness to the shooting of his infant brother and said that Brian Jr. had used a gun cleaning rod to demonstrate how the shooting took place.

Custody Battle Ends—Child With Parents

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

The two-week custody battle over the seven-year-old daughter of a man accused of murdering his infant son was back in court today and the girl was returned to her parents, court officials said at Sanford.

They reported Circuit Judge Tom Waddell Jr. ordered Beth Ann Cliequeno released from custody of the state Division of Family Services (DFS) to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Raymond Cliequeno, in a juvenile court hearing.

Someone Saturday afternoon took the little girl from her mother as her father was posting $10,500 bond and being released from Seminole County Jail. Those who took the child reportedly were DFS workers.

Cliequeno, 34, has pleaded innocent and is scheduled for trial Sept. 19 on second-degree murder and possession of a sawed-off shotgun charges in connection with the Aug. 13 slaying of his six-month-old son, Vincent, at the family's trailer home of Pineyway Drive, south of Sanford.

Division of Family Services officials weren't available for comment this morning on what authority they used in taking custody of Beth Ann on Saturday.

In a hearing last Thursday, Chief Seminole-Brevard Circuit Court Judge A. J. Hosemann Jr. ordered the little girl

DEAR POLKS: Know what I just saw? My friend, Bill Kealy, did something his housewife even knew he did. Got that? Anyway, I was visiting his house and he showed me how he has his turntable and FM Bill has three of those cubes.

He has one lying down on the floor and the other two are upright, and the other two are long ways on top of that. Sliding on the top cube is the receiver and then the turntable on top of that. You could arrange these any way you want. You could have them all upright and one long and two short or wide, space them along the wall.

Other decorations (if you want) and hooks to hold the board. Decorate the cubes apart. Then hang the board on the wall. Hang the board on the wall and you will have a handy place to keep your keys.

NATION IN BRIEF

Carter Plans Fireside Chat To Push Panama Canal Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter apparently feels as strongly about the proposed Panama Canal treaty as he does about the nation's energy problems. Because of his concern over dwindling energy supplies and continued reliance on imported oil, Carter made a nationally broadcast appeal for the support of the American people. Now, the President says he will use a fireside chat to push for American backing of the Panama Canal agreement. Carter said Sunday that the consequences would be very severe if the treaty is rejected.

Laetrile Study Underway

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is planning to find out whether the health records of cancer patients taking Laetrile support contentions that the controversial substance has been helpful. But officials believe that a review of the case studies of several hundred cancer patients will confirm the government's position that the purported cancer cure is worthless. They say, however, that if the review does not conclusively support their stand, the government would consider testing Laetrile for the first time on volunteer human cancer patients.

Lance: 'I'm Fully Disclosed'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director Bert Lance is denying a published report saying he failed to disclose all of his financial holdings and debts to a Senate committee early this year. "I'm the most fully disclosed fellow around anywhere that I know about," Lance said in response to a report in Sunday's editions of the New York Times. The newspaper said Lance submitted an incomplete net-worth statement to the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee in January as it began his confirmation hearings.

Looting, Fighting Erupts During London Carnival

LONDON (AP) — Police met with organizers of London's Caribbean Carnival in an attempt to head off more violence today after gangs of black youngsters rampaged through the streets during the opening night of the festival.

Air Traffic Strike Ends

LONDON (AP) — Assistant air traffic controllers end their four-day strike at six of Britain's seven major airports at midnight tonight. They planned to resume a slowdown at London's two airports and appealed to French and Spanish controllers already on a slowdown to coordinate with them. Assistant controllers at Prestwick, the Scottish airport that handles much trans-Atlantic air traffic, said they would continue on strike.

Vance Reports On China Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — A knowledgeable Carter administration official says Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance found Chinese leaders to be confident and more relaxed than their predecessors. The official, who declined to be identified, said Vance painted the new picture of Chinese leadership Sunday when he briefed President Carter on his just-completed state visit to Peking.

Carter On The Canal: His Work Cut Out

WASHINGTON — It will be a cold day in Panama when Ronald Reagan changes his mind about the canal. And the issue Reagan dramatized has not lost its political punch, which is why President Carter faces a tough campaign to sell the Senate on a treaty that would yield U.S. control of the Panama Canal and Zone at the end of this century.

In his drive for ratification, which will take 67 Senate votes, Carter is going to have to convince a group of politicians that he should take the risk of supporting the treaty despite widespread opposition among their constituents. He is going to have to do it at the beginning of a congressional election year.

There is no better evidence of the problem Carter faces now

"I would never give up...control of the Panama Canal!"

CANDIDATE CARTER than the way he handled the issue when he was a candidate himself — and said he did not favor relinquishing control of the canal. Politicians, at least successful ones, do not customarily take positions that contradict the views of the voters.

So, in presidential campaign debate, Carter said he would keep negotiating with Panama on such issues as U.S. payments and the reduction of American forces, but vowed:

"I would never give up complete control over practical control of the Panama Canal Zone ..."

The President acknowledges he will be changing his mind, and said he believes others will, too, as the American people come to understand the terms of the treaty.

Actually, there are two agreements, one to yield control in the year 2000, and the other to guarantee the permanent neutrality of the waterway along with the right of the United States to keep it open and secure.

"I am convinced that it is advantageous," Carter said. "I was not convinced of this fact, say, a year ago."

Now his task is to convince voters and, to them, two-thirds of the Senate. It is the more difficult because, as negotiator Ellsworth Bunker said, the Canal has a constituency and the treaty does not.

"I am convinced it is advantageous. I was not convinced of this fact, say, a year ago"

PRESIDENT CARTER feelings it aroused.

The public opinion polls reflect voter opposition to the treaty. The most recent published survey, conducted by NBC News, showed 55 per cent of those surveyed opposed a treaty to eventually give Panama control of the Canal Zone, and only 27 per cent favored it. The rest weren't sure.

The White House is waiting for a poll of its own, while lining up the campaign for Senate ratification. Political and business leaders from states with

Slight Tax Increase Seen

Proposed Longwood Budget Up $79,000

Despite a proposed $79,000 increase to run Longwood's city government in fiscal 1977-1978, city property owners will find their tax bills pretty much the same as this year's.

The City Council will hold a public hearing Sept. 12 on the proposed general fund budget of $755,644, which carries a proposed tax levy of $214,695 calling for a tax rate of $2.91 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

That compares with this year's general fund budget of $676,560, an increase of $79,084; which carried a levy of $203,201, and a tax rate of $2.65 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

Under the proposed budget, all four department heads will receive a flat salary increase, plus a 6.4 per cent cost of living increase. Other city employees will receive an increase of 6.4 per cent cost of living increase and Council recommends CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) employs working for the city receive similar increases.

Police Chief Greg Manning, whose present salary is $11,500, under the proposed budget will receive a $500 raise, plus 6.4 per cent, for a total salary of $12,768.

Public Works Director Tommy Jackson, who was appointed to the post in March, received a similar increase, to $12,768. Hired as a CETA backhoe operator Dec. 1, 1975, the following May, Jackson was promoted to pipeline foreman at $6,520 a year. On Nov. 1, he was placed on the regular city payroll and his salary increased to $9,750 when he was made acting public works director. In March his salary was raised to $11,500.

City Clerk Onnie Shamale, an elected official who will be completing her 19th year in office in December, will receive an increase from $9,363 to $12,000 (including the 6.4 cost of living boost).

Fire Chief Charles Chapman's salary will be raised from $8,800 to $11,500 plus 6.4 per cent for a total of $12,236. Council's salary will remain the same.

Amounts budgeted for the various departments this year and the amounts budgeted for the 1977-78 year are as follows:

State Officials Move To $43 Million Capitol

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — In the space of a weekend, Florida's domed Capitol has been changed from a bustling seat of government building to quiet relic of another time. Many of the people who worked in it, including Gov. Reubin Askew, are now set up in new quarters in the austere high-rise new Capitol that took six years and more than $43 million to build.

The move went into high gear Saturday as legislative officials finished most of their transfer into the 22-story structure.

The canoeists left on the river trip Friday afternoon from SR-50 in Orange County.

Seminole deputy G.L. Trombley reported an Orange County Sheriff's helicopter spotted the stranded men about 1 a.m. Murphy and Kelley and their gear were recovered at 3 a.m. after a Seminole Sheriff's boat was taken to the scene by land units and used to reach the island through the hyacinth

Shot By Spear, Teen Survives Accident

BOYNTON BEACH (AP) — In what his mother calls "a miracle by God," a 13-year-old boy has survived being pierced by a four-foot, barbed fishing spear.

Andrew Odum of Lake Worth was in fair and stable condition late Sunday at Bethesda Memorial Hospital after surgeons removed the spear from his midsection in a four-hour operation.

"God guided that spear through him," said Malveretta Odum, Andrew's mother, who is a registered nurse. "It could have hit five major organs."

Andrew and his family had gone for an outing Saturday evening on Beer Can Island, just south of Boynton Inlet on the Intercoastal Waterway. Sgt. Jerry Arbour of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office said Andrew and a younger sister went to one side of the small island. Andrew was in the water about ten feet from shore when he spotted a fish and asked the sister to throw him his spear gun, said Arbour.

The sister tried to straddle a tree trunk over the water but failed to slip and tossed the gun, Arbour said. The weapon, powered by a heavy elastic device, fired as Andrew reached for it.

"The spear discharged, lodging in his midsection and coming out the other side," said the sergeant. The metal spear had struck just below the rib cage on the boy's left side. Mrs. Odum, hearing cries of the terrified sister, found Arbour, drew still in the water leaning against the log.

She said he cried: "Mother, the spear has gone clear through me."

"He wanted me to pull the spear out," she said, "but as a registered nurse I know it was the worst thing I could possibly have done."

Time May Solve Weight Problem DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 30-year-old female, weight 135 and am 5 feet 8. I'm basically healthy and active. I can't gain more than three to five pounds at a time or keep them for very long. My appetite is poor most of the time, especially if I become upset. And I cannot eat fresh, raw vegetables and fruit. My mouth starts to itch and I break out in a rash on my face or arms. I also smoke about a pack of cigarettes a day.

Dr. Lamb not, you need to get bulk some place and you can get that from whole cereals or bran. You can get some potassium from milk and milk products although it is not as good a source as fresh fruits and you might need vitamin supplements if you truly cannot use fruits and vegetables. They are one of the four basic food groups for a reason.

BRIAN CLIEQUENO AND ABBOTT HERRING

Investigators recovered a sawed-off 12-gauge shotgun from a small point at the rear of the Cliequeno trailer after the slaying and David said Monday in court that laboratory tests show it takes eight-to-ten pounds pressure to pull the trigger of the 1975 model weapon and the hammer must be pulled back. Davis admitted that, despite 15 days investigation by sheriff's detectives, the prosecution hasn't been able to come up with a motive for the infant's slaying.
