Lake Mary property taxes could climb

LAKE MARY — It's relatively common for a government budget to begin with a higher-than-expected tentative (proposed) millage rate. The rate is usually reduced when final budget hearings are held.

Such may, ... or may not be the case this year in Lake Mary.

The planned City Manager's annual budget message was not presented to members of the city commission Thursday night. Because of a lengthy meeting, and the item being last on the agenda, commissioners indicated there was not enough time in which to give the address.

"I recommend this be placed at the top of the agenda at our next meeting," suggested commissioner Gary Brender. "The budget message is very important, and should be presented to the citizens of our city."

In introducing the matter however, City Manager John Litton recommended setting the tentative millage rate at 3.8991. The original planned millage, used by the city for the past four years, was 3.7648. In comparison, the rolled back rate established by the County Property Appraiser was 3.6519.

Although Litton indicated he intended to continue with the recommendation for the 3.7648 millage, he requested the commissioners to accept the higher rate as tentative. "If we start

Airport revenue, expenses drop

By NICK PFEIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford commissioners Monday will discuss substantial changes in revenues and expenses outlined in the fiscal year 1994/95 budget for the Sanford Airport Authority.

According to preliminary budget statements, the preliminary revenues will be decreasing by $5.4 million from the 1993/94 budget. Expenses will be dropping by over $6.2 million from last year.

A great deal of the change in both categories is based on the aviation gas, oil and jet fuel operation. The airport has entered into a private contract to have an outside company provide those services. In the combined expenses for aviation gasoline and jet fuel, the change amounts to over $753,000. The revenue from those sales however, will be decreasing by slightly over $1 million.

According to Sanford Finance Director Carolyn Small's letter accompanying the proposed budget analysis, "It would appear capital projects and the related revenues will slow during the coming fiscal year, and gas/oil will be contracted out."

Small added, "Budgets for personnel costs, operating supplies and general maintenance have also been sharply reduced."

In industrial revenue income, the loss of the largest rent paying company, Cloudkiss Beverages, will reduce income by $152,964 this coming year.

Regarding the reduction in revenues, the budget analysis shows federal grants, amounting to $1,721,025 in 1994, are expected to be only $450,000 in 1995. Much of the money was allocated for construction of the major new arrival terminal, which is well underway at this time.

State grants expected to come in to the airport have also shown a marked decrease from $1.1 million to $300,000.

Miscellaneous income however, is expected to show a $175,300 increase over last year.

Discussion of the airport's agenda is scheduled for the city commission work session beginning at 5 p.m. Monday afternoon. The matter will not be formally placed on the agenda until a public hearing scheduled for August 22.

Columbia home; fish scrutinized

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA hustled thousands of little animals off Columbia on Saturday after the shuttle's smooth sunrise landing concluded America's longest space flight in more than 20 years.

It was the end of the line for the two surviving adult newts — dissections were planned by researchers eager to see the anatomical effects of 15 days of weightlessness.

A longer, brighter future awaits the four guppylike Japanese Medaka fish. They are headed back to Japan in a few weeks to live out their lives and mate to their hearts' content, under scientific scrutiny, as biologists look for any lingering effects of space flight.

"This is the important part of the mission, where the scientists get their samples," said NASA mission scientist Robert Snyder.

A one-day landing delay caused by offshore storms Friday gave Columbia and its crew of seven the space shuttle endurance record — 14 days and nearly 18 hours. The previous record was 14 days, 13 minutes, set by another Columbia crew last fall.

It also made Japanese astronaut Chiaki Mukai the world's female space-endurance champ. The all-time records of 84 days on NASA's Skylab in 1973-74 and 366 days on Russia's Mir space station in 1987-88 — as well as the runners-up — are all held by men.

"Excellent, excellent job," Mission Control told commander Robert Cabana and his crew after Columbia's wheels came to a stop. "Your record of 15 days on orbit for the shuttle has brought us closer to the next giant leap for humankind, when we live permanently in space aboard the international space station."

"It's been a great flight. I regret having to give it up," Cabana said before crawling out of the shuttle.

Mukai, a little weak and wobbly from 15 days of weightlessness, described the trip as "a wonderful memory." The heart surgeon and first Japanese woman in space was applauded by dozens of Japanese when she walked into a press conference room and again when she left.

"Definitely, this is my best day," Mukai said, smiling.

Besides biological experiments on the newts, Medaka, six goldfish, 126 jellyfish, 11,200 sea urchins, 180 toad eggs, 500 flies and millions of cells, the mission featured metal melting, radiation monitoring, fluid analyses, plant growth and medical tests on the astronauts themselves.

Readers speak: Silent Witness program a winner

By MARGIA DUNN
Herald Correspondent

Seminole County has adopted a program to help students feel that their complaints are being heard.

Violence, vandalism and drugs are reported almost daily within the schools. Students need to have the assurance of a safe place to learn. Through the Silent Witness program, these students have been provided with a phone number to call to report any problems. Issues such as another student trying to sell drugs, threatening bodily harm or picking a fight are some of the frequent calls that have been received. Adults as well as students spoke on their opinions of such a program. An anonymous call was favored by unanimous response.

Jean McLain said, "I think the program is wonderful. It's the best thing they've come up with. Maybe it will stop violence among our students and children. I have two grand-children in public school. So anything that can be done to make the schools safer for all would be beneficial."

Donna Sutton said, "I think it's a very good idea. My only concern is that the kids do remain anonymous so the other kids don't retaliate."

Cathy Thomas stated, "I think it's excellent. It's the best idea they have come up with. Weapons are a real problem and this would help control it."

Elizabeth Meras said, "I think it's a good idea. Sometimes kids don't want to go to their parents. They need someone to talk to. This is good."

Tyra Roy, age 8, said, "I think it's a good idea. We could call if someone tried to hurt you. I think it's good that the program is available."

Matt Bowlin stated, "They handed out cards at school. I just graduated. A lot of students just blew it off. A lot didn't want to tell on other people. The students didn't take it seriously. I think it's a good idea if people would take it seriously."

Mark Flannigan, age 9, said, "Maybe it's a good idea. It might keep you from getting hurt if you can call and let someone know."

Jacob Gariepy, age 8, stated, "I think it's a good idea. There are a lot of things that happen that don't get told because they're afraid they'll get in trouble with the person they told on. They're afraid they'll get picked on."

Debra Roy said, "I think it's cool but I'd want my daughter to tell me too. I have a little girl that's 8 and I don't like what's going on out there. She'd be able to protect herself and others by this program. I would never want her to report openly. I'd be afraid of retaliation."

Tracey Askew, age 16, said, "I thought it was nice. If something happened people would know about the problem. I know some people that called about a drug problem and it helped."

Alyne Faughnan stated, "I think there needs to be a monitoring system to it. Some kids may call as a prank. As a whole it's a good idea. I just think there needs to be follow-up to be sure the information is true."

Ralph McLain said, "I think it's good. I think this might be a way to get rid of the drug problems and other problems in the school."

Celina Williams said, "I think it's better for the students because it relieves the pressure from the kids that they might get beat up. It helps the school identify the problems too."

Eugene Roves, age 13, said,

"It's a good idea. By the people not knowing, you won't get hurt. I'd call if I didn't have to tell my name."

Connell Bell, age 12, stated, "I think it's a good idea. You won't get hurt or die if people don't know your name. I'd be afraid to call if I had to give my name."

Bobby Bradford, age 12, said, "I think it's a safe way to help the problems. This way you won't get hurt."

Sally Mitchell said, "I love the program. Something has to be done about the problems in the schools. Children can't learn if they are in fear of being hurt."

Clara Bunning stated, "Wonderful idea! It's too bad that there are problems like this in an environment of learning. Maybe a program like this out of the school system would help citizens feel safer."

Daniel Layton said, "I feel better knowing a program like this is in place. Kids fear their classmates who are bullies. This helps that problem."

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Clinton orders aid flights

WASHINGTON — Spurred by images of human calamity, the U.S. military is swinging into action to alleviate the suffering of Rwandan refugees with round-the-clock aid flights ordered by President Clinton.

"The flow of refugees across Rwanda's borders has now created what could be the world's worst humanitarian crisis in a generation," the president said Friday.

Clinton said the United States was undertaking a massive increase in aid, with the first relief flights taking off today. He authorized more than $100 million for military airlifts of medicine, food and water, bringing the total of U.S. aid for the Rwanda crisis to $250 million since April.

About 4,000 American troops will be involved in the relief effort for at least several weeks, said a senior Defense Department official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Citadel gets first female cadet

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Shannon Faulkner is arming herself against the tyranny of tradition, ready to cut her hair or put on a poker face as the first female cadet in the 151-year history of The Citadel.

"They always say the color of the corps is gray. I've seen in their faces the grayness," Ms. Faulkner said. "It's the solidarity stare. That's what I expect still and I will be putting on that same air."

But senior Shawn Edwards predicted cadets would go easy on Ms. Faulkner, who won her sex-discrimination lawsuit Friday when a federal judge ordered the all-male college to admit her as a cadet this fall.

"I don't see how you could have any option. Everyone will be gun shy," Edwards said.

Simpson enters not guilty plea

LOS ANGELES — O.J. Simpson stood straight and spoke forcefully, attacking the question with the same confidence that he once attacked opposing linemen.

"How do you plead?" the judge asked.

"Absolutely, 100 percent not guilty," Simpson said.

His plea at Friday's arraignment followed a week of legal and public relations maneuvers designed to show he has been falsely accused.

Simpson, 47, is charged with murdering his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and her friend Ronald Goldman, 25, on June 12. Prosecutors have not decided whether to seek the death penalty.

The nationally televised hearing brought Simpson a step closer to what promises to be one of the most closely watched trials in history.

Bar wants two men to stop law practice

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Florida Bar has asked the Supreme Court to order two central Florida men to stop promoting themselves as lawyers.

Bar counsel Lori Holcomb asked the court to direct Farrell Gordon and Craig D. Warren to cease practicing law in the state. Warren recently had an office in Altamonte Springs and once worked from a booth at Flea World.

"Gordon and Warren are holding themselves out as lawyers, which they are not, and in many cases, they are accepting fees, and doing nothing they promised to earn those fees," said Holcomb.

Holcomb said Gordon and Warren advertised in central Florida newspapers as Farrell Gordon and Associates, P.A., Gordon and Warren, P.A., Craig Warren and Associates, P.A., and Divorce Busters.

Neither Warren nor Gordon could be reached for comment.

Directory service provides an Orlando telephone number for Gordon. When the number is called, an answering machine responds with "Thank you for calling Divorce Busters." There was no listing in Seminole or Orange County for Warren.

Holcomb said in June 1992, a client paid Gordon $385 to handle a bankruptcy. Gordon never filed the paperwork in court, Holcomb said. In Oct. 1993, the individual spoke with Gordon to find out why the matter wasn't being pursued and was introduced to Warren, saying Warren was an attorney and would pursue the matter.

The bankruptcy was never filed. In Dec. 1992, another client paid Gordon $500 to handle her divorce. Gordon never filed the case, but told the client her divorce was granted, said Holcomb. In another matter, a client paid Gordon $225 to obtain a name change for their daughter. No services were performed, said Holcomb.

Holcomb said the Bar would seek restitution for the "many" victims of the pair.

Taxing situation is a paradox

It's government budget time once again. For government bodies which will begin their 1994/95 fiscal year on October 1, the time for preparations is now.

Seminole County, the school district, the cities of Sanford, Lake Mary, Longwood, and others, are working diligently toward coming up with an operational budget and setting a millage rate for taxation.

There is a great deal of work involved in preparing a budget. Needs must be met, projects must be financed, and previously obtained bonds need to be paid.

This is the one time of the year when many citizens wouldn't want to trade places with these elected officials, government administrators and department heads.

Let's look at both sides of government budgets.

No citizens want their taxes to be increased. Even a slight increase will draw objections. When roll back rates are mentioned, citizens often suggest they be adopted, as the city would receive the same amount of ad valorem tax dollars as during the previous year.

What happens the rest of the year? Where are the budget-trimmers then?

People demand more police protection, better fire protection, improved streets, drainage, water, recreation programs, parks, and many other needs.

Practically every social service organization or citizen group asks for financial support from the city and/or county.

In our school system, we want lower teacher-to-pupil ratios, more bussing, safer bus stops, cleaner and more modern school classrooms, better teacher and student supplies, and on and on and on.

People who don't have children in school often object to having any of their tax money being used in education. Yet if we end up with neighborhoods of uneducated youngsters, who will be the first to complain?

For most governments, the budget fine-tuning has been accomplished, and a tentative millage rate has been set. All is not over however. Formal budget public hearings will be coming up during the next two months.

Attend the hearings and study the budget. In most cases, and contrary to what some may believe, almost all of the fat has been trimmed. Department heads are going to get less than what they requested, but hopefully enough to operate as best they can.

There may be some politicians who try to get something pushed through on a budget which will be of benefit to their own careers. These however, will end up being discovered, and may not be around long.

If citizens are completely pleased with the city and/or county services they have received during the past year, and can get along with absolutely nothing improved, we will say hurray for the unchanged budget and millage.

If people will be expecting more than they have received in the past, then an unchanged or rolled back millage rate is not going to be of any help whatsoever.

Think about it.

Children need nurturing, training

Human beings are shaped by their experiences. Early experiences are critical to the socialization process. All children need to be nurtured and trained, yet the circumstances that many children are held hostage in mitigate against nurturance and socialization.

Social disorganization at the family level produces societal disintegration at the national level. There is a direct correlation between lack of childhood nurturance and training and escalating societal problems.

Homelessness is a condition that a child has no control over but may very well find himself or herself a victim of homelessness. Without normal shelter a child is deprived of one of the basic units that provide the cornerstone of security each child needs. Families with children are the fastest growing subgroups of homeless population and account for 43 percent of homeless population up from 32 percent in 1992. Estimates of homelessness vary. The National Academy of Science has estimated that 100,000 children are homeless every night. A 1993 survey of 19 cities by the National Law Center on Homelessness and Poverty (NLCHP) found that 72 percent of 147 surveyed programs were turning away homeless families due to lack of space.

One of the factors contributing to homelessness is the lack of housing for low-income families. Substandard, overcrowded housing is one step removed from homelessness. According to federal government guidelines, families should have to pay no more than 30 percent of their income for rent. Yet 2.7 million renter families with children must spend at least half of their income for housing.

SEMINOLE OPINION

Hunger is another demon faced by American children. President Clinton's 1994 budget recognized the need for proper nutrition and requested full funding of the WIC nutrition program for pregnant women and infants. Although the program was not fully funded it was significantly increased. The underlying cause of hunger is poverty. In 1992 14.6 million children in this country were poor. The Food Research and Action Center suggested that at least 5.5 million children younger than 12 experience hunger each year. Food stamps are utilized to combat hunger and 83 percent of food stamps are dispensed to families with children.

In 1993, Secretary Epsy created a National Forum on Hunger, an ongoing series of regional meetings.

Homelessness and hunger are possibly companions for many of our most needy families. The human suffering homelessness and hunger brings cannot be measured. Homelessness heralds a breakdown in basic living that most Americans take for granted. The stark realities faced by homeless families on a daily basis are: Where will we sleep? Where will we eat? Where will we obtain money? Where will we go when the weather is inclement? Will anyone attack us? Where will we take care of our personal needs? Children experiencing this type of stress relative to basic survival needs are also not having their psycho-social needs met.

Psychologists, sociologists, social workers repeatedly indicate that optimum psycho-social development is not enhanced when basic survival needs are unmet. Human beings are different from all other species of mammals. They require a longer period of nurturance before they are capable of caring for themselves. Everyone will agree that forces over which children have no control are absorbing all of their energy and they are deprived of the opportunity to develop their God-given abilities, then we as a nation are the losers. It will take a miracle for these children to grow up valuing society as we know it. Instead we may have an army of alienated citizens in the process of growing up.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Woman activist labeled infidel

BOSTON — She is not the female Salman Rushdie nor, for that matter, is she the feminist Salman Rushdie, whatever that hybrid might look like. But the 32-year-old Bangladeshi doctor turned columnist, poet, novelist and now outlaw may be stuck with that dubious moniker.

Taalima Naarin has become the latest face on the wall of the international post office, the newest most-wanted writer being targeted by the religious right wing of her own country, a right wing that makes our own pale by comparison. For speaking her mind she now has a price on her head.

If Naarin is not Rushdie, it's because Bangladesh is not Iran, and because this is more than a case of freedom of expression. Six years ago, Rushdie became an accidental crusader for free speech when the Ayatollah Khomeini condemned him to death for his novel, "The Satanic Verses." Naarin is being persecuted for specific beliefs she freely expressed.

This woman — more Erica Jong than Gloria Steinem — has written strongly about sexual equality and graphically about sexual freedom. In her columns she has written about women stoned to death for remarriage and flogged for fornication. In a BBC special she was seen provocatively lighting a cigarette and then, with the other hand, reading the Koran.

"Everywhere I look, I see women being mistreated and their oppression justified in the name of religion," she wrote last winter. "Is it not my moral responsibility to protest? Some men would keep women in chains, veiled, illiterate and in the kitchen."

In her columns, the thrice-married woman has said that a Muslim woman should be able to have sex as she chooses and to take as many husbands — four — as a Muslim man can take wives. The outraged mullah who called for her execution labeled her an advocate of "freedom of the vagina."

The long-simmering furor over Naarin came to a head last month after she was quoted in a newspaper interview calling for an overhaul of the Koran. The controversy exploded into demonstrations and street battles. An intimidated government ordered her arrest under a rarely used law that prohibits writing "intended to outrage the religious feeling ..." and she went into hiding.

This week, the foreign ministers of the European community offered her asylum and called on the government to protect her. Meanwhile in Bangladesh the Islamic right wing demanded that the government resign because it failed "to protect religion" from this woman.

Even some human rights advocates on her side can talk ruefully of Taalima Naarin as a one-woman shock troop who has undone the painstaking work of the more cautious change agents. But it's become apparent that she is less a cause of the backlash than its convenient target.

Bangladesh is a secular nation of 120 million of the world's poorest people — 90 percent of whom are Muslim. Today Khaleda Zia, the widow of an assassinated leader, heads the shaky coalition government in a country bedeviled by cyclones and floods, by overpopulation and illiteracy.

But over the past decade, a remarkable coalition of non-governmental organizations have struggled to empower women through programs encouraging literacy, jobs and reproductive health care. In the last year, these projects have been attacked by the religious right. It's believed that their leaders are also on mullah death lists. Just a few days before Naarin was forced into hiding, extremists destroyed a center for reproductive health care and literacy in northeast Bangladesh.

In this backlash scheme of things, Taalima Naarin is pointed to as "proof" that teaching women to read and write leads to blasphemy and that sexual equality is nothing but a road to promiscuity.

It's this attack that has somber echoes around the world. In just six weeks, the U.N. Conference on population and development will meet in Cairo to set the agenda for a world bursting at the seams with people. One tenet of the conference is that the way to slow population growth is through the advancement of women.

But what is promising to one part of the international community is still threatening to another. One group may talk about women having control. Another group still thinks about controlling women.

So it is in Bangladesh. There a woman boldly, maybe foolhardily, spoke out. Now she is hiding out. A true believer in sexual freedom has become the most recent "infidel" on the fundamentalist international hit list.

For speaking her mind she now has a price on her head.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Proud to be an American cynic

In case you haven't noticed, we are being scolded.

It's true. It seems a number of informed and astute people think that we, the American people, are getting far too cynical about politics and the political process.

Vice President Al Gore, for example, spoke to a luncheon of federal bureaucrats the other day and said that the public's mood of distrust "has fallen heavily on the largest institution in America — the federal government — and it has worn heavily on federal employees for much of the past two decades." He urged them to hang tough in the face of "deep and pervasive cynicism."

Washington Post columnist David Broder, who pauses often to waggle his finger in our faces for being too rough on our public servants, recently asserted that "cynicism is epidemic right now," and it "saps people's confidence in politics and public officials."

In a Baltimore Sun article, Rhodes College political science professor Michael Nelson explored the question, "America's Image of Politicians: Why Do We Hate Them?"

Well, let me count the ways... Tammany Hall, Teapot Dome, Joseph McCarthy, Sherman Adams, Bobby Baker, Richard Nixon, Spiro Agnew, Jim Wright, S&L....

Vietnam, Watergate, Koreagate, Irangate, Iraqgate, Whitewatergate, Nannygate, Scalpgate, Bimbogate....

Congress. Ah, yes, Congress. Where to start? With the 19 major pieces of legislation it has exempted itself from? With the $35,000 stealth pay hike disguised as "ethics reform"? With the Cost of Living Adjustment the lawmakers tacked on to their pay structure — the one that gave them an automatic pay raise of $4,092 last year and has jacked their minimum pay up to $133,644?

The bureaucracy. Ah, yes, the bureaucracy, that paper-eating beast that keeps growing and growing, those wonderful federal employees whom Al Gore says have been bearing the burden of our cynicism.

Bearing the burden? They enjoy virtually guaranteed employment, and it's inside work. They get good pay and great benefits and even auxiliary benefits in many cases. In 1991, the federal government handed out $487 million in bonuses to 895,559 employees. The Social Security administration awarded $32 million in bonuses to about 50,000 of its 85,000 employees. The Agency for International Development gave extra cash to 73 percent of its employees. We should all have their burdens.

Yes, Americans are cynical about politics and government. This nation was founded by plunders and profiteers, and we were cynical toward them. We are governed today by hypocrites and pretenders and we are cynical toward them.

The director of the White House Office of Administration hops a military helicopter for a golf game in northern Maryland. He gets caught and says the president might be playing there and thus the trip was tantamount to a reconnaissance mission for him and a "training mission" for the helicopter crew.

Sen. Alphonse D'Amato, the ethically challenged New York Republican who has repeatedly censured Hillary Rodham Clinton for making big profits on the futures market, files papers showing he made $37,125 in a single day on a stock investment.

Yes, we are cynical, and God bless us for it.

In case you haven't noticed, we are being scolded.

History

Lake City, Fla.; Leesburg, Fla.; and Sanford, Fla. We arrived at Sanford on Oct. 3, 1925. We traveled 1,024 miles and used 95 gallons of gas.

We drove a 1923 Dodge touring car. Traveling then was different from today. There were no motels but places near most towns where you could pitch a tent. On the driver's side, mounted on the running board was the cupboard with eating supplies. We had a tent with a flap which was put over the car when we camped. Mother and Dad slept on cots in the tent. I slept on the back seat. Raymond on the floor in the back, padded with quilts and Ruth slept on the front seat. Everything was packed and stowed on the car when we traveled.

As we got further south we had to rely on directions from the local people. There were very few paved roads and I remember in Georgia the clay dust being six inches deep on the roads. In Washington we went to the Washington Monument and had to walk all the way up as the elevator was not working.

We did not travel on Sundays. I don't recall much about the trip except one night in Georgia we were camped some place and heard the blacks sing. Also, the hogs came through the camp and got everyone awake.

To get to Sanford from Leesburg we had to go to Orlando and then to Sanford as there was no road from Mt. Dora to Sanford. The bridge across the Wekiva was built later.

There was a tourist court in Sanford called French's. We lived in a one-room cabin there for several weeks and I started school in Sanford in the seventh grade. We moved to Lake Mary about the last of October to a house on Second Street, which has since been torn down.

Any paved roads in the area were of brick and only eight or nine feet wide. When you met a car each pulled off the side keeping one wheel on the bricks so you wouldn't get stuck in the sand. Some remnant of the old Highway 17 can still be found between Sanford and Longwood.

The road to Lake Mary from Sanford at that time was a clay road that ran along the railroad. Country Club Road was paved, I think, in 1927. This was the first paved road to Lake Mary.

When we moved to Lake Mary it was mostly inhabited by natives or Georgia Crackers. I was subject to all kinds of tricks by the native boys. I remember being out in a boat on Crystal Lake and the waves were lapping the bottom of the boat. I asked the boys I was with what that was. They told me it was an alligator slapping the bottom of the boat with its tail. Of course I learned later they were just teasing me. I discovered a field of what, I thought, were watermelons and took one home. Upon cutting it open it was white inside. The local boys thought I was stupid as it was a citron which was not edible. A watermelon has white stripes which join together to make a band around the melon but citrons have white stripes that never join together. This is the way I learned to tell the difference. The local boys thought I should eat some of the elephant ear leaves. I did and my mouth burned for some time. The boys thought it was funny that I was so ignorant.

When we moved to Lake Mary there was only one store, owned and operated by Mr. A.E. Sjoblom. He was the founder of Lake Mary proper and laid out the city with many parcels reserved for parks and are still to this day. He was a Swede. Later, he built a brick building and the old store that was next to the railroad was then torn down.

He was also the postmaster for Lake Mary. For some reason he took a liking to me and I, on occasion, would help him make his reports to the post office. I could add figures faster than he could. Adding machines were unheard of at that time. One of the privileges he extended me was helping get the mail dropped off by the train - one southbound and one northbound. The mail sack was suspended on a hook and as the train went by the mail clerk in the train extended a hook and snagged the outbound mail bag and at the same time kicked off the mail for Lake Mary. This is not done anymore.

Another privilege extended to me was to flag down the northbound train if there were freight or passengers to board. I did this by waving a white handkerchief or cloth at the engineer as it came around the curve. The engineer would acknowledge by blowing the steam whistle.

There was a family by the name of Ring who lived at the east end of the block. Mr. Ring was married to one of Mr. Sjoblom's daughters, Robinson Springs where Soldiers Creek went through. He trapped a lot and I remember how he would set a large baited hook suspended above the water and tied with a chain. The gator would grab the baited hook and that was all until Mr. Ring would get there and put a 2x4 along its back and tie it and bring it home and skin it for its hide and edible tail meat. The lake was the eastern part of Crystal Lake at the north end of First Street. I learned a lot from Mr. Ring as he was always trapping and bringing home possums and coons, etc.

The Rings had four boys and Fred was my age. We went together a lot. The other boys were older and drove an old Model T Ford. The Ring boys, the older ones, thought it was fun to go into Goldsboro, a colored town, and ask an old gentleman the way to Pensellucky, Bokalooka or Bogicycle Bay. We always got directions. These places didn't exist. If we tried this today, we would be highly criticized and probably be run out.

The casino was built also over the water on Crystal Lake. Dances were held weekly. There was also a bathhouse and dock with diving boards. This was where we mostly swam until Evansdale Park was opened on the West end of Lake Mary. I do not know when the casino and bath house were torn down. We used to fish under the casino dock dropping a hook and line through the cracks in the floor and try to catch the bream under there.

I acquired the Sanford Herald paper route for Lake Mary. I don't remember how I got it, but I kept it until we moved out to Lake Emma in late 1928. My paper route covered all of Lake Mary from the Lake Mary-Longwood Road to the Ferguson place now on Lake Mary Boulevard. I walked it every day but Sunday and all sand roads at that time. In the summer I had about 40 customers and in the winter months I had about 70 customers. The paper was 15 cents a week and I think I got six cents. There was no Sunday paper.

The Yankees came in the winter and asked questions. One old gent asked me what we Crackers did for a living. I told him we ate grits and skinned gators in the summer and skinned the Yankees in the winter. He never again asked questions.

I started to school at Lake Mary in the seventh grade and went through the ninth grade, the only year there was a ninth grade. At first there were only three school rooms but two more were added later. As near as I remember the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades were in one room taught by Mr. C.P. Priest. After two rooms were added it was sixth, seventh and eighth, then eighth and ninth the one year.

When the extra rooms were added, Elliott Wilson and I were the janitors. We each got $20 per month. In the winter months we had to get up early and get fires going in each of the big pot-bellied stoves in each of the rooms. We were privileged to leave class any time to tend to our duties. Elliott moved away after the eighth grade and Mr. Darrow became janitor, a job he held for many years.

School, to one of my age, I guess, was quite boring. At lunch time we sometimes went to the old schoolhouse, which was about where Lake Mary Boulevard crosses Country Club Road. We could usually find a flying squirrel nest in the moss and put the squirrels in our lunch box so we could turn them loose in the classroom and cause problems. (We only did this when the teacher was out of the room.)

I was once sent to find a Christmas tree for the room but down in the swamp I found an alligator about three feet long that had most of its tail chewed off. I brought it to school and tossed it in the classroom. Such screaming and carrying on you never heard. I caught the devil but it was worth it. There used to be lots of fish in the little lake by the school. Once I set a pole with bait and slipped out of class to look at it. It had been pulled a little way out by a fish. I took off my shoes and waded out to reach the pole when someone called my name. It was the principal and I caught the devil. Caught a small bass too!

Mr. Priest was not much older than some of us but could play the piano. He was ahead of his time when it came to school education. He later quit teaching and went to Texas. He came back and enrolled in the College of Education at the University of Florida and graduated with high honors. He was my roommate the last semester I was in school there. He was a lifelong friend and used to come visit Lola and me when we lived in Palm Beach.

with a higher tentative millage," he said. "we can reduce it during the formal budget hearings. But if we start low, it is almost impossible, at least very complex, to reduce it should the need present itself."

The need however, may have presented itself earlier in the same meeting during the extensive citizen rally regarding the need for the city to take a more active roll in controlling the E. Lake Mary Boulevard widening project.

During the discussion, several mentions were made concerning the need for the city to obtain additional funds for the boulevard work. Both City Manager James Patton and City Finance Director Randy Knight told the commissioners that no additional funds were available at this time to finance any such project.

Knight had reported between $40,000 and $167,000 may be left over from Phase I construction on the boulevard. That project, now completed, runs from Country Club Road, west to Markham Woods Road.

The new project, Phase II, runs from Country Club Road, easterly to Sanford Avenue, in Sanford.

The citizens have not only expressed concern with how the eastern side of the boulevard will look in comparison to the western area, but whether or not the county and city of Sanford, which have all but a mile and a quarter of the boulevard in Phase II, will join in and create a well-landscaped area.

A committee of city officials and citizens has been formed to look into the needs of Phase II, and come back to the commission with recommendations for the work. Of primary importance however, is the need to determine how much money the project will cost, and from what source the financing will come.

Should the city determine that additional bonds must be floated, Knight has already predicted the city may have to raise the millage.

Until the final 1994/95 budget hearings in Lake Mary therefore, the millage rate is only tentative. It may be lowered to the level of the past four years, or it may be raised.

IN BRIEF

YMCA's Y-Track is on track

LAKE MARY — The YMCA intersession program, known as Y-Track, is designed to provide exciting, challenging activities for children when they are out of school. The YMCA strives to provide an environment where children can grow in spirit, mind, and body — where they can learn values like compassion, cooperation, self-reliance, respect for themselves, others, and love. Like all YMCA programs, child care is open to all, with financial aid available to families unable to pay full fees. The Seminole Family YMCA has convenient Y-Track sites located in Longwood, Winter Springs, and Sanford. For more information, please contact the Seminole Family YMCA, 665 Longwood-Lk Mary Rd., Lk. Mary, FL 32746, (407) 321-8944.

Back to school night

The first Sanford Middle School PTSA meeting of the 1994-95 school year will be held on Aug. 9, at 7 p.m. After a brief meeting in the school gymnasium, parents will be invited to follow their students' schedules and to meet their students' teachers, in keeping with the school slogan, "Working together to reach the stars." Teachers will be greeting parents and discussing their programs for the new year.

Sabal Point's 'partnership'

There is a unique partnership or should we say "partnership" going on between Sabal Point Elementary and Wekiva Basin Geo Park (Wekiva Springs State Park). During the 1993-94 school year, Sabal Point was one of three elementary schools in Florida to participate in a "Partnership."

On the first day the teachers returned to school, the entire staff visited the park for a welcome back activity, an orientation, and a bus tour of the park. The teachers then brainstormed project ideas. Classes of students visiting the park also celebrated Earth Day. The Rangers visited classrooms to teach science lessons and share information about their profession during Career Week.

In May, Sabal Point and Wekiva Basin Geo presented a program at the State Partnership Summit meeting. Linda Sawyer, Sabal Point's assistant principal, and Ranger Linda Lamont were also interviewed by the Sunshine Network.

For information on how your business or organization can become a Partner in Excellence with a Seminole County school, please call Jane Lane, Dividends School Volunteer Program, (407) 322-1252, ext. 483.

With an emphasis on group participation and the use of videos, students are improving their skills and preparing for the GED test. There is also a monthly speaker program which is open to all members of the community. For more information about these free classes, call the GED office of Seminole Community College at 328-2007.

Grant application is approved

WINTER PARK — Rollins College is pleased to announce that the U.S. Department of Education has approved the college's grant application for the continued implementation of its Educational Talent Search Program in Lake, Orange, Osceola and Seminole counties.

For the 1994-95 school year, the U.S. Department of Education has appropriated $224,752 to fully support the program's activities. Rollins' Educational Talent Search will assist 800 middle school, high school, and out-of-school individuals from limited income families who are first-generation potential post-secondary students. This guidance program will be administered in partnership with schools and community-based agencies. Its purpose is to encourage completion of secondary school and enrollment in programs of post-secondary education and/or reentry into secondary school or post-secondary programs.

The Rollins College Educational Talent Search Program will provide year-long continuous academic advisement and assistance to eligible and qualified students in an effort to augment their post-secondary educational opportunities. The program's services include assistance meeting admission and financial aid requirements for post-secondary educational programs, career exploration activities, academic advisement, assistance accessing available school and community resources, and guidance in acquiring support to address social, personal, familial and academic concerns.

Middle school, high school and out-of-school individuals interested in attending college are encouraged to seek the services available through the Educational Talent Search Program. A detail program description is available by calling (407) 846-1558.

Firsthand look behind rumors

Students dispel rumors about Seminole High School

By LINDSAY HODGES
Special to the Herald

As a student zoned for Lake Mary High School, but attending Seminole through the Academy of Health Careers, I hear a lot of rumors about the campus and students of Seminole High. When I decided to apply for admission into the academy, all of my friends had some rumor to tell me about the high school.

The rumors: Seminole's campus is total chaos. There is a large amount of violence inflicted between students on the campus. Some people say that academics are not emphasized by the school. SHS is for dummies. These are just some of the rumors that are said to hurt the reputation of the school.

The truth, Seminole is a very organized campus with someone around every corner to help guide you down your path to success. I have attended SHS for one year, and in that time frame I did not see one fight. Seminole is notorious for the guns on campus, and not one gun did I see during the last school year. Academics are the focal point of Seminole High teachers and administrators. If you are having trouble grasping a subject, most teachers will go out their way to help you understand. SHS is not for dummies. We are proud to have students attending high school scholar programs all over the country. One student received a full scholarship to MIT last year. About 70 percent of SHS graduates go on to receive post secondary education.

Jeremy Kaplan, a sophomore, states, "The first reaction most people had when I told them I was going to Seminole was that I should get a bullet proof vest. After attending Seminole for one year I can say, without a doubt, it has been a very positive experience."

Birgit Delazonos remarks, "My impressions of Seminole High now are that it is a great place for an education and fun. There is a wide variety of extra curricular activities ranging from Health Occupations of America to the award-winning Marching Band and Chorus."

Most students do not like the reputation they have as an attending teen. They do know that the reputation is way off track. Seminole is a great school for everybody, from the administrators to the students. Gretchen Schapker, the principal, is known for the hard work and pride she has in her school. She states, "The negative perception is not the reality here. The faculty, staff, and students of SHS cordially invite anyone to campus to meet us or to discuss our academic program. We're rather tired of the false rumors. Come and see for yourselves."

Trio serve as friends on campus

DELAND — Three Stetson students from Seminole County, John Durrant of Altamonte Springs and Laurie Polaky and Jill Tomlinson, both of Winter Springs, will be FOCUS (Friends on Campus) advisors at Stetson University this fall, according to Nancy Jones, director of student life at Stetson. The FOCUS program is designed to help freshmen and transfer students become acquainted with the campus. In addition to orientation activities, advisors also assist new students with their academic planning and social adjustment. Classes at Stetson begin Sept. 7.

Durrant is the son of John and Carol Durrant, Altamonte Springs, and a graduate of Lake Mary High School. Polaky is the daughter of Alfred Polaky and Nellie Polaky, both of New York, and a graduate of Storm King School, Cornwall-on-Hudson, N.Y. Tomlinson is the daughter of Johnnie Tomlinson, Winter Springs, and a graduate of Oviedo High School.

Florida's first private university, Stetson ranks as one of the four best regional comprehensive universities in the South in the 1994 U.S. News & World Report College Guide. Through the colleges of arts and sciences and of law and the schools of business administration and of music, Stetson pursues excellence through superior teaching, close student/faculty interaction, creative activity, and programs solidly grounded in the liberal arts.

Saying goodbye to summer (camp)

Friday, July 15, was the last day of the summer for the children enrolled in Lake Mary's Summer Day Camp. To celebrate, an unbirthday party was held. After a water balloon battle with Program Director Marge Carver (shown here serving pizza), the children enjoyed pizza and cupcakes. The short summer program was tied to the schedule of four of the five elementary school tracks, which returned to school on Monday, July 18.

Aquacise is good therapy Everybody should get into the pool!

By RENÉE KEITH
Herald Columnist

SANFORD — One proponent of looking and feeling the very best you can has a solution for people in some pain who seek a regular form of exercise.

Doctors have long said the secret to well-being is the right combination of diet and exercise.

If exercise seems a bit out of the question for you right now, due to such conditions as arthritis pain or post-operative stress of weak and stiff joints, consider diving in to a sport that is less stressful to your body.

Give AquaCise a try.

Here is a method of supervised exercise that not only is a lot of fun to do, it's also geared toward helping those with medical problems whose doctor feels this type of exercise would be beneficial.

According to Robin Frances, the adapted aquatic coordinator at the Westmonte Recreation and Civic Center in Altamonte Springs, "AquaCise or any type of therapeutic pool exercise can be rewarding in many ways. To see someone leave here without the walker that they came in with, gives everyone a special feeling." If one's pain has become so great that they are rendered immobile, this therapy just might be the answer for them. Of course, not enough can be said as to how it helps the cardiovascular system.

Another way to look at the benefit of these classes is how it enhances one's socialization skills. It gets people mixing with other people and even the possibility of new friendships being made. That in itself is a great healing tool.

Dottie Anthony, who lives in Sanford, takes part in AquaCise three times a week. "I've been going now for one-and-a-half years for a heart condition that I have. These exercises help strengthen my overall body thereby strengthening my heart and increasing my breathing capacity," she said. Anthony went on to explain how therapeutic pool exercising has also helped her with yet another painful condition that she identified as Fibromyalgia. "Fibromyalgia is where you have pain for no apparent reason. In my case, the pain is from my ears down to my waist." "I've never found anything that has helped my condition more than doing AquaCise," Anthony concluded.

So, if you and your doctor feel that your mobility problem could benefit from AquaCise, then by all means, just give it a try. In addition to being therapeutic in nature, the classes are also designed to be psychologically sound, physically challenging, and socially stimulating.

Dental tips for vacation

July brings summer into full swing, and summer means vacation travel for millions of Americans. Whether driving the family to Disney World, or hitting the beach in Jamaica, packing a dental emergency kit is good protection against a spoiled vacation, says the Florida Dental Association.

Dental emergencies can happen anywhere and anytime. Being prepared can make the difference between handling a dental problem and getting on with your fun, or having it ruin your plans. Pack these basics for your trip: oil of cloves, aspirin or a substitute, gauze, cotton, floss and paraffin.

Here are some tips on how to handle possible dental problems:

Toothache: Rinse your mouth well with warm water and gently floss between the teeth to remove any trapped food. Use a cold compress on the outside of the cheek if there is swelling, and take a pain reliever. Never place an aspirin directly on the tooth or gum.

Broken tooth: Rinse with warm water, apply cold compresses to the cheek, and get to a dentist as soon as possible.

Knocked out tooth: Rinse the tooth lightly in running water, but don't scrub it, and touch it as little as possible. Put the tooth back in the socket and hold it firmly in place. If you can't reinsert the tooth, keep it in a glass or container of water or milk, to keep the nerve clean and moist. Get to a dentist within 30 minutes if possible, to improve the chances of the tooth being saved.

Objects wedged between teeth: Gently remove the object with floss and avoid cutting the gums. Do not use a sharp instrument.

Loose filling: Apply oil of cloves to cotton, squeeze out the excess and place a small piece of cotton in the cavity. Or cover the cavity with paraffin, and take aspirin as needed.

Staying fit

Seminole Community College students, like people all over the county, are trying to get into shape. Under the guidance of instructor Joy Hinkle, the students in this step aerobics class at SCC slim down and shape up. Being in shape is one of the best ways of feeling good about yourself, experts say.

A New Breakthrough In Hernia Repair

Hernia repair is no longer major surgery. Recent advances, like the mesh technique, have made it as simple as a one-day "walk-in, walk-out" procedure.

A new laparoscopic technique now available at The Hernia Center of Central Florida has simplified things even further. Because this procedure requires only small incisions, it lessens pain and further speeds recovery time.

The Hernia Center is operated by Surgical Associates, an established team of skilled surgeons who have practiced in Central Florida since 1973 and have performed literally thousands of hernia operations.

If you're suffering from a new or recurrent hernia, we can help. For an appointment, call:

The benefits and risks of getting out there on-line

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald SHIP Patrolman

This week, we'll take a break from our Information Superhighway cruising to review some of the benefits and risks of getting out there by way of on-line services. These subscription services offer a wealth of information to draw on and open up new forms of communication not possible before modern-day computers. Use of on-line services also opens up new hassles and costly problems that also didn't exist without computers. Like everything in life, there's a double-edged sword to the rainbow at the end of the pot of gold. That's what I always say. (Or was it "There's a double-edged rainbow at the end of the golden sword?")

Anyway, let's first take a quick review of cybersurfing basics, again. The Information Superhighway is a massive, largely unrelated network of computers full of stuff all connected by way of telephone lines. The IS began back in 1969 with a TOP SECRET military project (big surprise, huh?) in a few years, that cat squeezed out of the bag and rapidly became the Internet, which we'll go into in a later column. For now, it will suffice to say the Internet is an interlinked bunch of computer systems, big and small.

The most accessible of these stuffed computers are the on-line services. These services include CompuServe, American Online, Delphi, Prodigy, GEnie and a host of smaller ones. To get connected to them, you need a computer outfitted with a modem which is connected to your telephone line, and a program which allows all this to work.

Early on, I recommended that when you plunge in and buy a computer, you buy one with a modem already installed. With a Macintosh, adding a modem isn't too difficult. With a PC, you have to contend with IRQ channels and other internal workings of your computer that frequently don't work if you overlook some idiotically minute detail. And computers are comprised of millions of idiotically minute details, any one of which threatens to fill hours with aggravation and heartbreak.

To access the on-line services, your computer will dial up a local number and send along some messages to log you on and whack! There you are.

Potential Problem Number One: the local access number...

All of the major services and most of the smaller ones can be reached by way of a number in Orlando or even Longwood. Now that north Seminole County telephone service has crept into the 70s, the most you'll pay is a quarter to dial in. But if you live in Deltona, GET OUT! No, just kidding. But if you do live in West Volusia, guess what: Any call further than the house next door (practically) will be long-distance. This means you must pay 15 to 17 cents a minute to travel on the Highway. That's more than the Turnpike. Even Delphi's low rate of about $25 for 30 hours of full Internet access means you'll pay $180 in long-distance charges. "Ouchhh!" screams the wallet. That's enough to keep a cyber-puppie real close to home. The best rate I've found is 10 cents a minute. But that still adds up to a monthly long-distance bill of $120. Not so friendly, eh?

Logging on to most of these services is usually pretty easy. All of them but Delphi offer their own programs which do much of this dialing and log-on work for you and help you to find your way around once you're there. I had no problems with the software provided for GEnie, Prodigy or America Online, but ran into some hassles with CompuServe. And if you recall, it took dozens of telephone calls to get through to someone who tried to help. I finally resolved the problem myself. Though it wasn't the fault of the CompuServe Information Manager, it would have been nice to reach someone a little easier who could have been a little more helpful.

Potential Problem Number Two: customer support...

Most dial-up assistance is helpful when your problem is simple or you're computer-astute, but there's no guarantees to that.

Once you've logged on, you'll find a plethora of useful and fun services. With the more graphically-oriented American Online or Prodigy, you'll find pictures and weather maps and even sounds. You can read national news at any time or plot a trip. You can even book a flight with several of the services. You'll find information about your favorite hobby or avocation. In terms of specialized information, CompuServe stands out as the diverse service, although many of CompuServe's best services require an additional charge. You'll find games for your whole family and even a huge new family of other members to have "chats." American Online excels at instant-response chat services but at an additional fee. All on-line services offer chat but Prodigy, which plans to add sometime this year.

Each service also offers hundreds of files and programs which you can "download" to your computer for use. These files can contain anything from the text of presidential speeches to the locations of clubs. You can also download programs to enhance your computer's capabilities or games. Many of these programs and files are free or require a small fee.

Potential Problem Number Three: there's danger in them files...

And this is a big one, folks. Remember hearing about hackers back in the Seventies?

These were often portrayed as rascally pranksters who would "break" into computers and do such cute things as wipe out bank accounts or erase huge telephone long-distance debts. You don't hear much about them do you? Well they're out there and the new cypergame is creating computer viruses. Viruses are usually tiny programs which hide inside your regular programs. After you start up your newly-down-loaded program, everything seems fine at first. But sometime later — maybe weeks — a problem arises. If you're lucky, the only problem will be an annoying message that suddenly pops up on your screen, then disappears.

If you're not lucky — and the Patrolman falls into this category — your computer files suddenly start transforming into hieroglyphics and everything starts coming up error messages. Not too rosy, eh? The "possible virus" which infects my PC now has forced me to spend $120 to have someone smarter than me obliterate everything in my computer and start over. And now I'm beginning to have problems again.

The moral is: be extremely prudent in down-loading files from these services. They all use state-of-art virus checking programs but new viruses are being created daily at a much faster pace than they're being found and programs are written to correct them. I would recommend downloading files to a "floppy" disk (one of those things you pop into a slot in your computer), then carefully scanning them with a good anti-virus program. DOS 6.0 comes with a fair one, but Norton and Central Point make better ones. Most anti-virus programs can be updated from time to time for a small expense in an effort to keep up with the hackers. But...

Schrader grabs Fram 500

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Ken Schrader rocketed into the lead two laps from the end, then held on to win the Fram Filters 500K Busch Grand National race at Talladega Superspeedway.

Sterlin Marlin, who had the closest thing to a dominating car in a race that saw 30 lead changes among 14 drivers in 117 laps, was leading a pack of 15 cars going down the backstretch on lap 116.

As Marlin's Chevrolet neared the third turn, Schrader and Terry Labonte hooked up to draft past Marlin on the low side of the track.

Schrader was able to hold off Labonte by less than a car-length, with Dale Earnhardt, the defending race winner, third, Marlin fourth and pole-sitter Jeff Purvis fifth in the scramble.

Young's home runs key Bullets

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

LAKE MARY — Freddie Young blasted a pair of home runs and Danny Bogaajis twirled a masterful two-hitter as the Seminole Animal Supply Bullets from Longwood crushed Convergent Resources from Oviedo, 11-1, in six-innings Friday night in the NABF (North American Baseball Federation) Pat Torre League Championship Tournament at Lake Mary High School.

The second-seeded Bullets were to have faced the top-seeded Lake Mary Mudcats in Saturday's winners' bracket finals.

Young, a rising junior at Lyman High School, lofted a solo home run to left leading off the second inning and, after walking in the third inning, crushed a long two-run homer to left-center in the sixth.

Bogaajis was outstanding, with his only difficult inning being the fourth. Convergent Resources scored its only run during that inning and had the bases loaded with two outs. But Bogaajis got himself out of the jam by picking a runner off second to end the inning. The righthander finished with four strike outs and walked three.

Pacing the Bullets were Young (two home runs, two runs, three RBI), Kiley Calapa (double, two runs, two RBI), Koller (double, run), Mike Hench (single, run, two RBI), Mike Paulus and Jason Shipley (one single and one run each), Jason Datz and Jason Gronert (one single and one RBI each), Lance Odom (single) and Wes Hunter and Jason Petreacu (one run each).

Mark Metcalf singled and drove in the lone Convergent Resources run. While Mike Peterson singled and Andy Neufeld scored the run.

Schumaker squeezes Juice's title hopes

Lake Mary Mudcats outfielder Bryan Schumaker had a big evening for himself in a 3-1 victory over the Chet Lemon Baseball School Juice Friday.

Schumaker was one-for-one, walked twice, stole a base and scored two runs as the Mudcats advanced to the winners' bracket finals of the NABF Pat Torre League Championship Tournament at Lake Mary High School.

The final three teams left in the double-elimination event are to play today at the LMHS baseball field. The two teams with one loss will meet in the losers' bracket finals at 1 p.m., with the winner moving into the 11th hole against the last remaining undefeated team at 4 p.m.

If both teams have one loss after the 4 p.m. contest, the necessary game will be played at 5:30 p.m. Monday.

Cost is $2 for adults, $1 for students, with children under 12 free.

LAKE MARY — Bryan Schumaker paced the offense and Luis Rivera and Robert Gaffert did not allow an earned run as the host Lake Mary Mudcats trimmed the Chet Lemon Baseball School Juice, 3-1, to advance to the winners' bracket finals of the NABF (North American Baseball Federation) Pat Torre League Championship Tournament at Lake Mary High School Friday night.

Schumaker scored twice and reached base all three times he came to the plate as the top-seeded Mudcats moved on to face the Seminole Animal Supply Bullets from Longwood in Saturday's winners' bracket finals.

The three teams who survived from Saturday's play will play today. The losers' bracket finals will be at 1 p.m., with the winner of that game playing the undefeated team for the championship. The if necessary game, both remaining teams with a loss, will be Monday at 5:30 p.m.

Rivera, who worked out of a bases loaded, two out jam in the fifth inning, worked the first six innings, striking out five and giving up six hits to get the pitching victory. Gaffert worked a perfect seventh inning for the save.

Doing the damage for the Mudcats were Schumaker (1-for-1, two runs), Jason Yero, Nick Soza and Rene Perez (one single and one RBI each), Mike Bulky (single, run) and Scott Bryan and Jay Reynolds (one single each).

The Juice were led by Sebastian Hoodles (2-for-2, RBI), Jeff Murray (2-for-3), Mark Westberry (double), Dave Medici (single) and William Morrow (run).

Gender equity: Fair play or Pandora's Box?

A year ago, the Florida Legislature amended the Florida Educational Equity Act of 1984 in an effort to bring about gender equity in athletics at Florida schools. It began with a switch from slowpitch to fastpitch softball for high schools and community colleges. Where does it go from there?

Champions crowned in dart league

Special to the Herald

SANFORD — The Playtime Dart wrapped up its spring season with league finals and All-Star competition this past week.

Bobby Buckley and Kenny Doyle emerged as the women's and men's All-Star champions, respectively.

The ladies' championship came down to a battle between two previous winners and two very good newcomers. Buckley, who plays for the Bamboo Magic out of Bamboo Cafe, survived over another Bamboo Cafe competitor, Jolynn Moreland, who plays for the Wantabee's. Finishing third was Raynell Barnes out of Touchdown Pub and fourth was Q-Biz' Stephanie Fortna.

Doyle, who competes for Oop's from Q-Biz, won out over the B All-Star winner, Lenny Arnold, who plays for the Cobras' out of Quivers. Third was A runner-up T.J. May from the Quivers' Blind Darts and fourth was Ted Ingram from Lake

And they may get them before the end of September.

According to Ms. Nancy Benda, director of the Florida Department of Education's Equal Education Opportunity Program, the recommendations made by the Task Force on Equity in Athletics are well on their way to becoming the law of the land.

Make that the rules of the land.

"The recommendations have been made by the task force to the commissioner (of education)," explained Benda. "The recommendations have been reviewed and have been forwarded to the state board of education for possible adoption as rules. While they're called rules, they carry the force of laws.

"It'll probably be September before the board has the opportunity to decide on the recommendations."

The review process resulted in few changes in the recommendations made by the task force, which was created by the 1993 enactment of House Bill 899.

"Section I, which defines gender equity in athletics, has been accepted by the commissioner to become rules largely without change," Benda said. "There were some minor modifications to Section II (which breaks down the primary definition)."

There was some rewording of one of the recommendations for post-secondary institutions that had to do with scholarship monies; the elements of support services have been further

New fishing products unveiled in Dallas

By JIM MATTHEWS
 For The Associated Press

DALLAS — A "sparky" new plug, a system to turn any floating crankbait into a suspending plug, a new rod made with Spectra fibers, and two innovative trolling motors highlighted the 1994 Sportfishing Expo in Dallas.

The annual American Sportfishing Association event is the unveiling of the industry's new product lines. With tackle sales up about 10 percent in 1993 over the previous year, the mood at the show last week was upbeat.

"With the rods, reels, lines, and lures that are out now, the fishermen are never going to have anything better," said Steve Pennaz, executive director of the 450,000 member North American Fishing Club and editor of North American Fisherman magazine in Minnetonka, Minn. "Fishermen can match their equipment to the exact situation and the result is going to be more fish."

The A.C. Plug, which created excitement at the show, was one of the products cited by Pennaz. This plug, which has developed a reputation as the premier trophy largemouth bass bait in just two years of use in Southern California, was introduced by the Fred Arbogast Co. of Akron, Ohio, under a marketing and manufacturing agreement with the lure's designer, Allan Cole.

The imitative crankbait is larger than any other crank plug on the market designed specifically for largemouth bass, and it features a unique jointed body with a long rubber tail that makes it incredibly lifelike.

The lure has racked up more catches of trophy largemouth bass than any other lure in bass history, according to Sonny Cody, national sales manager for Arbogast, which is marketing the bait nationwide for 1995. The company had orders for at least 200,000 of the plugs by the end of the show on Saturday.

While the A.C. Plug stole much of the attention in the lure category, suspending baits continue to be perhaps the hottest nationwide trend in new lures for bass and other gamefish. Storm Lures of Norman, Okla., has revolutionized the category with its new Suspended System.

"It opens a whole new era for doctoring baits for different needs. This is going to be hot for Storm and hot for fishermen," said Pennaz.

The adhesive weights are added to the keel of any floating lure to make the bait neutral buoyant for any water condition. Storm brought out a new model suspending Thunderstick prepackaged with Suspended to allow anglers to fine tune the bait, but the Suspended can be used with any lure — although some very buoyant models might take a whole package of 80 dots.

Also cashing in on the suspension lure concept, PRADCO, the lure conglomerate from Fort Smith, Ark., added a suspending Bomber Long-A to its line for 1995, joining the suspending Rogue introduced last year. The Daiwa Corporation of Gardena, Calif., new in the lure marketplace for 1995, brought out a suspending bait under its Team Daiwa line of lures called simply the Minnow.

Riding a wave created by the super lines made from Spectra fibers introduced last year, Johnson Worldwide Associates of Racine, Wis., under its Mitchell rod line brand, showed a whole line of SpiderCast Rods in both spinning and baitcasting. The new rods, made from a graphite-Spectra composite material, are reported to be much stronger than regular graphite and are designed to handle the stresses anglers are placing on tackle with the zero-stretch, high-strength Spectra and Kevlar fishing lines.

Also in the rod category, the Hawk Handle of Austin, Texas, was one of the most innovative designs shown at the Expo. Designed by Alan Warren of AMWAR, the patented "hogleg" handle allows the angler to grip the rod normally while an extended butt rests against his forearm, reducing stress and allowing for greater leverage when casting, reeling and fighting fish. Prototypes were shown on a series of Castaway baitcasting bass rods which are expected to be produced for 1995 by this Montgomery, Texas, company.

MotorGuide of Tulsa, Okla., dazzled many at the show with a new trolling motor operated by a wireless, remote control pad that can be operated either by hand or by foot up to 100 feet away from the trolling motor. At a demonstration on Lake Texoma, MotorGuide's Gary Dellabon drove a bass boat around from the dock like a kid's toy boat with the new Laser RF. Price: around $500.

Environmentally friendly products were a huge theme of the show, with most of the major lead weight companies — especially Bullet Weights and Water Gremlin — offering lines of unleaded weights and sinkers.

FutureBait, of DSD Technologies, Inc., in Santa Clarita, Calif., exhibited a biodegradable substitute-plastic line of soft baits from worms to crawdads that were as lifelike and pliable as plastic. The baits are also made with natural ingredients so they have flavor and scent built into the material.

Daiwa also showed samples of a biodegradable monofilament fishing line that is said to break down completely in the environment within two years. While the new line won't be available this year, it shows the direction the industry is moving on its own.

The show was not all about new, high-tech equipment, however. At least two companies dusted off successful designs and names from the past.

Eagle Claw re-introduced two popular rod lines: the Sweetheart and the Granger. The Sweetheart is made from polyester fiberglass, just like the original, according to Don Hoben with Eagle Claw.

"The yellow rod has always been our trademark and years and years ago we made a polyester rod called the Sweetheart that was one of our most popular rods. We have duplicated that rod and brought back the polyester glass construction this year," he said.

Eagle Claw also showed a series of new rods under the Granger name. Eagle Claw bought this classic rod company in the 1950s, best-known for its fly-fishing tackle, and the new Granger will feature rods and reels from $60 to $160.

Johnson celebrated two products with special commemorative versions of the Silver Minnow, the most popular weedless spoon of all time since it was introduced 75 years ago, and the 100B spincast reel, which had its debut 40 years ago.

Also luring attention at the show: Aquavet of Hayward, Calif., is importing live Russian mosquitofish larvae for use as bait for panfish and trout. The bait are packaged in a substance that allows them to survive for weeks and not die when they are out of the water.

From Shimano's introduction of the Calcutta four years ago, there are now more than a dozen models of high-end round reels on the market: Abu-Garcia, Sebco, Shuster, Browning, and Lays are all making products, and all of the reels feature die-cast or machined aluminum frames, multiple ball bearings for smooth performance, and fine drag systems. All retail for about $100 or more.

Zebco joined Fenwick and Shimano in marketing spinning reels with a balanced rotor and handle for completely wobble-free reeling with its Quantum Energy series.

Ice catches quick for fresh seafood

The heat is on, and anglers must be particularly careful this time of year to ensure that their catch remains fresh from water to table. I always deposit freshly caught fish directly upon ice, where they will remain cool even on the hottest of days. Fish that are not placed on ice should be kept alive in a live well or on a stringer.

Seafood is the most perishable of all meats, and any type of fish will begin to decompose rapidly with out the proper care.

It is always a good practice to use one ice chest for fish and another for food items and drinks. It is virtually impossible to keep both in the same ice chest without getting either the food or the drinks "aimed."

I prefer to use bags of crushed ice to keep fish fresh. My fish box is five feet long, and I will typically use six to eight bags of ice for a day's fishing. By keeping the ice in bags, my cleanup at the end of the day is much simpler without having to deal with a mass of loose ice chips.

At the end of each trip, I flnet my catch and put the filets in one gallon "zip loc" bags. I then will take a waterproof marker, and label and date each bag. The fresh fish is then packed with water, and each bag is slipped tight and placed in the freezer. Fish that is frozen in water will keep for well over a year without any freezer burn. Fish that is simply frozen will keep for only a month or so before becoming freezer burned, discolored, and tough.

We all spend a lot of money, time and effort in catching our fish, and it makes good sense to take care of our catch properly.

When freezing fish, make certain to use "freezer" bags, which are thicker and more durable.

FISHING FORECAST

Freshwater fishing is very slow due to the extreme heat. Plan on bream and catfish through September. Fish are more active in the river, where currents keep the water cooler.

Sebastian Inlet is having good action with snook (season closed), redfish, ladyfish, jack crevalle, tarpon and flounder. Live shrimp or finger mullet are the best baits. Also look for snook and tarpon back in the Sebastian River.

Offshore action out of Fort Canaveral has improved greatly, with king mackerel and cobia biting with regularity. Wahoo and dolphin are more scattered. Bottom fishing for grouper and snapper has also improved. A few king mackerel and cobia are also in and out of the busy line and off the beach. Redfish and trout are rated as fair on the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers.

If you like fast action with shrimp, try Ponce Inlet. Swarms of sheepshead, drum, redfish, jack crevalle, and a few flounder are eager and waiting. Trout and redfish are rated as good back in Mosquito Lagoon.

broken down; and there have been some changes in the recommendation concerning compensation of coaches.

"The issue of the compensation of coaches is addressed by Title IX," explained Benda. "The way it is now, if coaches of comparable sports are not paid equitably, it can be assumed that the lesser-paid individual isn't as good a coach. That's one way of raising a flag (suggesting gender inequity)."

"Everything else has been pretty much adopted as it was written."

Everything, that is, except the recommendation concerning funding and revenue, especially financial resources provided by booster clubs.

In the league playoffs, The Ladies A League was won by the mother/daughter team of Jolynn Moreland and Christina Moreland, who represented the Wantabee's from Bamboo Cafe.

The Wantabee's defeated the other Bamboo Cafe squad, Bamboo Magic, 7-2 in the finals.

The Ladies B League title also went to mother/daughter duo as Quivers, represented by Judy Tesla and Fonda Sheehan, tripped Touchdown Pub Team #5, 7-5.

In the Men's A final, the Oop's from Q-Biz edged the Blind Darts from Quivers, 7-6.

The Men's B League went to Nice & Easy out of Lake Mary Pub over 2 Big-1 Old from Bamboo Cafe, 7-5.

The Mixed A final featured a tremendous comeback as the Bamboo Diddlers from Bamboo Cafe jumped out to a 6-1 lead

"We need to do a lot of work in that area," Benda admitted. "Booster clubs are a situation unto themselves. The money raised should be allocated fairly, but we just don't know that much about booster clubs. They don't report to the district school board, so there's no way to know how the money is being spent."

"One way a school may dispense with the appearance of potential impropriety is to have a single booster club supporting the entire athletic program instead of having a booster club for each team."

Not only is Section III, which deals with enforcement, ready to be adopted, six of the seven recommendations have already been implemented. The seventh, which called for "adequate staff and resources" for the Department of Education and Board of Regents to monitor compliance, will have to wait for another budget year.

"The self-review plans have been completed, submitted, and are being evaluated, which satisfies the first two recommendations," Benda said. "In the last year, we (the Department of Education) have conducted 13 regional training sessions (as required by the third recommendation) to help administrators understand what needs to be done."

The fourth recommendation, which deals with penalties for non-compliance, is already in place in the form of previously passed laws and adopted rules. The fifth and sixth recommendations, which concern monitoring efforts by the Department of Education and Board of Regents are being developed continuously.

"It's a situation where we've begun implementing policy while still developing it," said Benda with a laugh. "But the overall response has been positive. Either that or it's the recognition that this is the law and this is the way it's going to be."

Next Sunday, Benda discusses the attitude exhibited by school administrators during this period of extreme change.

Winn Dixie donates to help flood victims

SANFORD — Everyone helped. Many will benefit. Winn Dixie presented a check Tuesday to the American Red Cross of Albany, Ga., to help flood victims in Georgia, Alabama and the Florida Panhandle.

Larry Beck, marketing director for Winn Dixie Orlando said, "This contribution is important to all of us in the Winn Dixie family because so many of our associates were personally affected by the flood."

He continued, "In fact, several have been left homeless. The Red Cross are heroes in our book."

Beck said Winn Dixie's support efforts go back to Hurricane Andrew, when the company was the first corporation to donate $1 million for those relief efforts.

The money was donated from the corporate level, representing all Winn Dixie stores throughout the various districts.

The check was presented in Albany by Bill Calkins, president of Winn Dixie's Jacksonville Division, through Hugh J. Quinn, executive director of the Central Florida Chapter of the Red Cross.

After returning to Central Florida, Quinn said, "This financial assistance helps in so many ways. For example, it takes $50 a week to feed just one adult flood victim. Baby formula costs $25 a week. New clothing for a child who has lost everything averages $80. In all, providing

Join apprentice training program

SANFORD — An open house will be held Monday at Seminole Community College, for the Associated Builders and Contractors, (ABC), apprenticeship training program.

According to Nancy Trimboli, director of education for ABC, the open house is for anyone interested in getting involved in the program, including owners, training directors, supervisors, and especially prospective apprentices.

She said apprenticeships are currently available in carpentry, plumbing, drywall, sheet metal, fire sprinkler fitting and welding, and many also be offered in painting, iron working and HVAC.

At the open house, visitors will be allowed to tour the facilities, inspect the textbooks and meet the instructors.

Registration will begin for the apprenticeship programs on August 8 and 9, at the SCC campus from 4:30 p.m. until 7:30 p.m. It will also be held on August 16 during the same hours, at the ABC building, 450 N. Wymore Road in Winter Park.

The apprenticeship programs are for two, three or four years, with both classroom instruction and hands-on experience provided.

"Any business person who would like to become involved in this apprenticeship program, or any individual who is considering becoming an apprentice, should be at this open house," Trimboli said. "There is no charge, and the benefits could be extremely profitable."

Trimboli said the cost for individuals who sign up for the apprentice course would pay approximately $350 per term plus text books. "But in many cases, including private individuals," she said, "we have discounts of up to $50 which we can offer."

"A great deal of the time we try to get a member organization to sponsor the participant," Trimboli commented, "and they may pay for part or all of the tuition. Then there is often a requirement for a try-out period."

The Associated Builders and Contractors, Inc., is a nationwide organization consisting of approximately 14,000 members. Trimboli said there are almost 200 members in the Central Florida Chapter, which is located in Winter Park.

"Right now," she said, "we have about 200 people involved in the apprenticeship programs through ABC, and we are doing everything we can to help improve the employment picture and availability of trained workers."

For additional information on Monday evening's open house at SCC, or ABC, phone Nancy Trimboli at 628-2070.

The Open House at Seminole Community College will be held in Building 3 on the college campus.

Area is popular destination

By NICK PFENFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Ryder Consumer Truck Rental has released the most recent survey on moving Americans. The survey has been conducted by Ryder since 1974.

The Orlando area, which includes total figures from Orange, Seminole and Osceola counties, is considered the 13th most popular destination for Americans relocating to metropolitan areas (defines as those with populations of 300,000 or more).

Over the past 12 months, 109 households have moved in the Orlando area for 100 which have moved out. Total figures were not revealed in the preliminary report, just the comparison between those moving in against moving out.

Ryder says that Miami is the largest source of people moving into Orlando. Surprisingly, Miami is listed as the largest source of people moving out of Orlando.

In Sanford, T.J. Mehl owns the Ryder franchise. He is located at 3216 S. Orlando Drive. "I wouldn't say Miami is strong right now," he commented, "but when Hurricane Andrew caused problems down there, we had a lot of people coming up here. Right now however, it's relatively slack from Miami."

Mehl said the Sanford area is very popular with people moving in from New York. "We also bring folks in quite often from North Carolina," he added.

The city attracting the largest percentage of families moving in was listed as Las Vegas, Nev., where 126 move in for every 100 moving out.

In Florida, Jacksonville was listed ninth, with West Palm Beach 10, just slightly higher than Orlando.

The rankings are based on information gathered from Ryder's 4,600 truck rental outlets nationwide, as well as statistics from various government agencies.

Rudy Halen with one of his three-dimensional Victorians.

Local artist to display at CIA, unbirthday party

The Lake Mary Community Improvement Association will hold their quarterly general membership meeting Monday, July 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Building at 260 N. Country Club Road in Lake Mary.

The program for the evening will feature the work of Lake Mary artist Rudy Halen and other works of art from the Lake Mary Seniors.

Halen and his wife, Edna have lived in Lake Mary since 1978, coming to the area from St. Augustine. Halen is a retired electrical engineer from Stromberg-Carlson. He will be featuring at the meeting replicas of houses and buildings, presented in a unique manner.

His works are three-dimensional in nature, but suitable for framing and hanging on any wall. His favorite buildings are period Victorians, which he replicates with attention to detail and color.

Halen also produces shadow boxes in the shape of store fronts and barns, to which he adds extra touches such as shop items or miniature animals.

Edna, an artist in her own right, is usually responsible for these miniatures and the shading and painting of the backgrounds.

The Halens have worked in many mediums, ranging from arts and crafts to fine arts. Halen said he was one of the first artists in the state to work in copper. The Halens owned a shop in St. Augustine called the "Copper Cricket."

They attend many shows. He participated in the recent Old Lake Mary Days celebration and is currently preparing for the Lake Mary-Heathrow Festival of the Arts. His favorite shows are

LAKE MARY

Great Day in the Country in Oviedo and the Longwood Arts and Crafts Show.

Halen says Florida needs more "creative craftsmen," artist who fall somewhere between crafters and fine artisans. That is what he is aiming for.

The CIA will also be presenting a proposed slate of officers. President Joe Roeder says beware. "If you are not at the meeting, you may be nominated or re-nominated. Remember we're just like Dracula, always looking for new blood!" The public is certainly invited to attend this evening of art and socialability and to explore what the CIA is all about.

Unbirthday party

Friday, July 15, was the last day of the summer for the children enrolled in Lake Mary's Summer Day Camp. To celebrate, an unbirthday party was held. For the party, the children made T-shirts with thumb prints of their friends. Then everyone went outside and chased Program Director Marge Carver and Recreation Supervisor Terry Diederich around with water balloons. Terry, or Mr. Mooch, as he was known to the kids, emerged from the fray almost unscathed. But Marge was soaked. After the water balloon battle, the children enjoyed

Blue ribbon women

Sanfordites shine in professional, civic endeavors

Oh, to be first. What a thrill, at times, to be a blue-ribbon winner. And Sanford has its share of these special, accomplished, hard-working and competitive women.

Just as sure as God made little green apples, Ms. Eve started the whole thing.

Come to think of it, the apple was a crimson red, savory, succulent morsel dripping its own luscious nectar ... a trifle too tempting for the supposedly disciplined and macho Adam to resist.

There's no doubt about it, not only have women excelled in their stereotypical roles as wives and mothers, but many have ventured outside the home to find their niche in the business world. Some manage a job with finesse and return home to change their hats to take on a different role, often executing mental and pebbled details.

When you and I were young, Maggie, women opted for careers

SANFORD

as nurses, schoolteachers and secretaries. Not so, today.

Just take a look at the prosecutor in the O.J. Simpson pre-trial hearing in Los Angeles. Although petite and somewhat feminine, the no-nonsense Marsha Clark stood up admirably to the nation's hottest top guns in the legal profession. There was no flamboyance ... no flair ... no feminine wiles ... just the facts, ma'am.

Numerous Sanford women have shed heads of sweat (oops, girls glisten, horses sweat) and maybe a few drops of blood along their climb to success, be it professional or domestic engineering. Our women are truly blue ribbon winners in invading traditional male territory.

Take a look at Lourine Messenger, reported to be the first woman in Seminole County politics. Lourine, a live wire in her 80s, was elected supervisor of elections, a job she held while also working for the Sanford Herald. The late Cami Bruce held this post for a number of years followed by Sandra Goard.

Today, Maryanne Morse is Seminole County Clerk of the Circuit Court, the first woman to hold this elected position.

Further, on the Sanford scene, Bettye Smith is in her third term as mayor Sanford. Bettye, the first woman mayor, has made tremendous strides in governmental as well as in civic and cultural circles. She was also the first woman to join a traditional men's organization, the Sanford Lion's Club of Lions International. Subsequently, the membership voted her in as president, consequently making her the first woman president of the local Lions.

Life began at nearly 40 for Bettye, a registered nurse who returned to college at age 39. After receiving her master's in 1977, Bettye founded the Sexual Assault Victim Services at the Seminole County Sheriff's Office where she served as a deputy for about five years. Her accomplishments are phenomenal.

In the professions, Dr. Maria Perez was the only woman physician in Sanford in the early '60s. Maria and her husband, the late Dr. Luis Perez, finally settled in Sanford following their dramatic and daring escape from Communicative Cuba under the tyrannical command of Fidel Castro.

Dr. Maritza Pastis arrived on the scene later as a pediatrician. Today, there are a number of other women physicians serving the Sanford area.

Nikki Clayton went down in history as the very capable Seminole County attorney. A number of sharp women lawyers in every capacity are seen daily at the Seminole County Courthouse.

In education, women have trod their way into the principals' chairs. But Gretchen Schapker is the first woman principal of Seminole High School, succeeding Wayne Eppa. The personable principal has represented the school with dignity and her outstanding accomplishments point to progress as well as academic excellence for the school.

As the first woman president of the Sanford Kiwanis Club, Janice Springfield has returned from New Orleans where she was a delegate of the club to the International convention. Accompanying Janice was her husband, Wendell. Also attending as a delegate was Walt Smith, past Kiwanis president, who was accompanied by his wife, Charlotte.

Thousands of Kiwanians from around the globe attended the confab. "We had a good time," Janice said. "I was impressed." She mentioned she had never attended a gathering of this magnitude.

Janice had never considered joining a traditional men's organization when she was approached by a Kiwanian in 1989. "I'm sure men (Kiwanians) don't want a woman member," she told the club member.

He assured her they wanted her for the first woman member. She said she struck a bargain with the club and agreed to join if the vote were unanimous. The rest is history.

Janice liked the concept of the club's all-out efforts to support youth in the community. "I have never regretted it," she said. "It makes you feel so good working hard on a project to know that you are doing something for young children."

In the banking industry, when she was working for Flagship Bank before the merge with SunBank N.A., Janice was the highest ranking woman banker in the state. She was later the first woman group president of SunBank N.A. in Orange County. Today, she is first vice president of SunBank in charge of private banking in Seminole County.

Peggy Hardin will be installed as the first woman president of the Sanford Optimist Club in October. Peggy, a retired schoolteacher after 30 years, said she was invited to join the club by another retired teacher.

She said she liked the club's focus on youth and in particular the annual band festival. "I spent all those years with youth," she said. "When they tore the school (Sanford Middle) down, it was time for the old lady to go, too," she laughed.

"I am really looking forward to being president," Peggy said. "They asked me and I accepted. I felt it was time for a woman to be president. I am looking forward to getting more women involved, along with men."

Although Peggy feels times have changed and women are accepted in primary men's roles, "Women are still being watched."

She recalls years ago, teachers were not allowed to participate in political organizations. But Peggy joined the Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee. However, she told the superintendent and he gave her his support as long as she did not bring politics to the classroom.

Florence Koragn was the first woman to join the Sanford Optimist Club, followed by DeLores Leah and Mary Tobin.

Mary's husband, "Bud," was a member and she attended Optimist functions with him. A realtor with eight children, Mary decided it was time to combine their efforts and do something together. "I wanted to join," she said. "I was not a member of anything else."

DeLores was instrumental in organizing an Optimist Club in Lake Mary.

Paul Porter, president of the Sanford Rotary Club, said this club presently has one woman member, Carolyn Towles, principal of Idylwild Elementary School.

Paul hopes the membership will increase this year. "We need to be on the lookout for new members at all times — both sexes," he said.

There, you have a preview of Sanford's 20th century women. And there are others, many others. Move over, Lawton. Sanford has already had a native daughter, Donna Lou Harper Askew, gracing the state as first lady. A woman just may be in line for your chair.

Between the game room and lounge area, there is plenty to do, people to see and video games to play. Of course, there is the dance floor with Mike Meadors of "Mike's Mobile Music and Light Show" blasting the crowd with current hits and those great "oldies" like "YMCA" and "Shout." Featured at the microphone is the wild and crazy "Disco Scottie" in his helmet moving and dancing, his enthusiasm so contagious that the audience mirrors the excitement he generates.

Both Mike Meadors and Disco Scottie offer their talent and services at a considerable discount to the "Night Moves" teen club; the Longwood Police Department is responsible for conceptualizing and actualizing the dance club, just helping make Longwood a fun and safe place to live.

At present, the cost for this great night of entertainment is $5 per student. If the Longwood Police Department could purchase the film to produce a "picture" identification card for each student, the entry fee will be reduced. Any donations will be greatly appreciated and accepted; just call Assistant Chief Baker at 280-3400.

"Night Moves" changed to country-western music with line dancing and instruction on Saturday nights and sports a crowd from toddlers to the great grandparents age range and it's a great success!

The doors open at 7:30 p.m. The professional line dancing instruction begins at 8 p.m. and continues with various dances through 9:30 p.m. Mr. Paul Berlett, head instructor at Seminole Community College supervises as his assistant, Steve DeMoor, instructs the line dancing at "Night Moves." Mr. DeMoor's assistant, Loren Hardy, a national competition participant and winner, helps by demonstrating throughout the crowd. The cost for the evening from 7:30 until 10:30 p.m. is $3 per adult; $2 for children under 12; children under 2 are free.

It's great fun and anybody can do it! According to Wes Colon, a first timer at Night Moves, "It's for all ages and there's no drinking and it's fun and I'll be back."

If you think you're not interested in line dancing, come on out and watch the great talent; they're good, they're having fun and it's entertaining just to watch. A special congratulations to Assistant Chief Baker for instituting the country-western night; it's a great success!

Man may walk again with right attitude

DEAR READERS: "Sitting" wrote from his hospital bed to say his doctors had told him he would never walk again. In an effort to encourage him, I replied: "You will never walk again." It is indeed a devastating verdict. However, I would like to hear from readers who were told they would never walk again, but with determination, therapy and the grace of God, they did.

Did I get letters! Among them were several surprises. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Sitting," who was told he would never walk again: My father was also given that bad news.

Dad worked on the shipping docks, and nine years ago, he suffered a near-fatal accident when a load of steel fell off the skids. It bounced onto both his feet, crushing them so badly that they had to be reconstructed with pins.

The doctors said he'd never walk again, but he didn't buy that hopeless verdict. With determination, therapy, and the support of his family and friends, he was up and walking at the end of three months!

Please don't give up. Ever! I am rooting for you!

GOMBONE IN TORONTO, CANADA

DEAR ABBY: In March 1968, en route to my job at Northwest Airlines I was hit head-on by a drunk driver. I suffered a fractured skull, a broken jaw, and both arms and legs were also broken.

The doctors said I'd never walk again. I said I would. With therapy, hard work and prayer, I not only walked again — I danced.

LUCKY IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR ABBY: Please pass this on to the person who was told that he would never walk again.

I had a friend who was in a plane crash, and when he regained consciousness, his physician told him he would never walk again.

Several years later, he was attending a charity ball, and he bumped into that physician. "Hello, doctor," he said. "Do you remember me?"

The doctor looked at him, and gasped, "Why, you're walking!"

My friend replied, "No Doctor, I'm dancing!"

My best regards to you, Abby.

B.J. PETERSON, LOS ANGELES

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in regard to "Sitting." My grandpa was in World War II. After the war, he returned to marry the girl who became my grandma.

After five kids and taking over his father's construction business, Grandpa was stricken with polio. His doctors told him he would never be able to walk again — or have children.

Well, it wasn't long before he was walking, working in his father's construction business, and chasing seven kids around.

This November, we will celebrate his 75th birthday. I'm lucky that my grandpa is the stubborn, hardworking, determined man he is, or I wouldn't be here — considering that my mom was born after the doctors had told Grandpa that he could never father another child.

PROUD GRANDDAUGHTER

TOMORROW: Letters from readers who didn't walk again, but nevertheless went on to lead productive lives.

(Problem? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69626, Los Angeles, Calif. 90066. All correspondence is confidential.)

 pizza and cupcakes.
 The city's summer camp had a successful, if short, summer.

They made tie-dyed shirts, participated in games and contests and made various crafts. The children also went on a field trip every week. They went bowling, to Q-Zar, to the Central Florida Zoo, to Leaps and Bounds, and to see the movie "The Lion King." Enrollment this year was down from previous years, due to year round school. The city is currently discussing the possibility of offering intercession camp, but no decision has been reached.

Intercession programs

School in Lake Mary started one week ago. That means there's only two weeks until the first intercession. If you are still scrambling to find an intercession program, there are several local ones. Some groups are offering intercession only for Green Track since that is the largest track in Seminole County.

Listed below are intercession programs offered by local child care facilities and other businesses in our community. The list is provided for your information and is in no way recommended or supported by the Seminole County School Board or the Sanford Herald.

The Central Florida Zoo in Sanford will be offering Nature Niche. There's a possibility you might be a bit more curious than usual today. This could induce you to probe into things about which two friends don't want you to know.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very careful today when recommending persons or companies to friends. If things don't work out, they might try to pin some of the fault on you.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you're pretty good at making decisions when left to your own devices, but today you might seek counsel from persons who not only confuse you, but also provide you with faulty information.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Instead of trying to reason things out logically today, you might try to force square pegs into round holes. If you don't use your head, you might just as well have stayed in bed.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be very cautious today in any type of arrangement that requires financial risk-taking. The odds could be with the other guys, making it difficult for you to win. Copyright 1994 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

By Phillip Alder
 Look at the North hand in the diagram. Partner opens one heart; what do you respond?
 If you use limit raises, you have no problem: you bid three hearts. But if you employ forcing raises, you are fixed. You must "fudge" (invent) a response like two clubs, which is a misdescription and asking for trouble.
 Suppose you add the heart king to the North hand. Now the forcing raises have no problem: they bid three hearts. It is the limit raises who must fudge (or use a conventional aid like the Jacoby Two-No-trump Response).
 Besides thinking limit raises are more logical, I am convinced that if you must fudge, you should do it when you have game-forcing, not game-invitational, values, because you enjoy greater safety with your extra strength. Your misled partner is less likely to do something disastrous.
 On to the play. In four hearts, South won the spade lead in hand with the king, drew trumps and took the club finesse. East won with the king and exited with a club to dummy's ace. Declarer played a spade to his ace, a spade to dummy's queen and called for the diamond jack. However, East covered with the king and returned a second diamond: one down.
 The club finesse was a mirage. After drawing trumps, declarer should have cashed his remaining spade winners before continuing with the ace and queen of clubs. Whether the defender who wins with the club king leads a black suit (which concedes a ruff-and-discard) or a diamond (declarer plays second hand low), South has only two diamond losers.

Shooting

 The children's home and a porch light burned in the mid-morning on Saturday. Bright orange-red hibiscus bloom in front of the house which was the scene of the tragic discovery by police Friday afternoon.
 The woman's husband and children's stepfather, Joseph Thomas Board, learned of the footings after he returned home from work with a lawn mower and found members of the media, television crews, neighbors and police outside his home.
 Sanford Police Commander Thomas Whitmire said he is not aware of any problems in the daily which might have provoked the shootings but the investigation will continue.
 "We wanted to ask him some questions," Whitmire said, "but we was so distraught he was not to answer them. We are going to have to come back Monday or at some point. He wanted to get to the hospital as soon as possible when he found the little girl was still alive." Other family members were also too distraught to give detailed statements to police.

 "We have absolutely nothing to lead us to believe that we have anything other than the mother killing the kids then committing suicide herself," Whitmire said.
 The bodies of the children were found in two bedrooms while Dorothy Board's body was found on a couch.
 Ashley was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital in grave condition where she died. Board was dead at the scene and her body was also taken to CFRH. Autopsies were performed Saturday morning but it may be two or three weeks before toxicology test results are completed, according to Whitmire. All four of the victims died of gunshot wounds to the head.

 Whitmire said the initial investigation revealed Board had been treated for depression about three years ago and had attempted suicide by drug overdose.
 "Apparently, she was hospitalized at that time," Whitmire said. "I don't think she was currently under treatment."
 The two other children were airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center where the boy died shortly after arriving. Heather was transferred to Arnold Palmer and placed on life support. The family opted to donate her organs after she died.
 A Mass for the children was offered Saturday at All Souls Catholic Church where they had attended school. Gramkow Funeral Home is in charge of funeral arrangements.

 understand how humans might adapt to much longer days in space, such as on a trip to Mars.
 Two of the four adult newts carried by Columbia died during the mission. But researchers waited their arrival with as much anticipation as the live ones, maybe even more, to see that they could learn from their deaths.
 Other in-space casualties:

more than 80 newt embryos, a few flies and possibly a newborn Medaka. Researchers feared one of the adult Medaka may have eaten the baby.
 More than 200 scientists from around the world participated in the mission, and all but one of the 82 experiments were accomplished.
 The National Aeronautics and Space Administration's next shuttle mission, an Earth-monitoring flight by Endeavour, is scheduled for next month. Columbia doesn't fly again until September 1995. It will be sent to Rockwell International's shuttle assembly plant in Palmdale, Calif., this fall for routine maintenance. This trip added 6.14 million miles to the ship's odometer.
