Hometown Boy

Marlette Enjoys Success As Cartoonist

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Former Sanford resident Doug Marlette and his editorial cartoons were featured recently on nationwide television on the ABC Nightline program. Recognized as one of the top five editorial cartoonists in the nation, Doug has come a long way since he began his cartooning career at the Evening Herald.

When Marlette first sauntered into the Herald newsroom, a scrawny 16-year-old, he bore a resemblance to the hero of his new comic strip, "Kudzu."

Kudzu Dubose (pronounced Dew-Bose) is described by his creator as "innocent as the dew of Dixie mornings" and brimming with "dreams of love and glory while only one thing stands in the way of their fulfillment... reality."

When Marlette took pen or pencil in hand and began to draw his cartoons, you knew this kid had a style of his own and was going somewhere, someday.

He was a Seminole High School student when he started cartooning. Marlette graduated in 1967.

After graduating from Seminole Community College two years later, he went on to Florida State University where he majored in philosophy. Upon graduation in 1971, it soon became apparent that the demand for philosophers "ranked only slightly higher than that for dirigible commanders."

So he made a wise and happy choice going back to his original vocation, cartooning. After cartooning for the Herald, Marlette worked for a time at the Orlando Sentinel with syndicated cartoonist Ralph Dunagin.

Marlette, now 31, became editorial cartoonist for the Charlotte (N.C.) Observer at the age of 22 and soon was nationally syndicated.

He began drawing from the time he was old enough blunderings are. I hope "Kudzu's" readership grows as spectacularly as the plant."

A small-town boy, Marlette grew up in Durham, N.C., Laurel, Miss., and Sanford. He is the son of U.S. Navy Chief Petty Officer E.M. Marlette, now of San Diego, and Mrs. Billie Marlette, who is now living in Jacksonville. He has incorporated his boyhood memories in the locale of "Kudzu" — the drowsy Southern hamlet of Bypass, N.C.

"There's a good deal of me in my principal character, Kudzu," he says, "and a good deal of Laurel and Sanford in Bypass. I located it in North Carolina because I was born there (Greensboro), but it could be anywhere."

Marlette's brother, Chris, still lives in Sanford and coaches basketball at Croom's High School.

"Although the location is regional, Kudzu's interest is general. Each episode will stand alone, but there is a narrative theme threading them together," Marlette said.

Marlette recently completed a year's study at Harvard under a Nieman Fellowship, the first cartoonist to receive one. This past January he was married to the former Melinda Hartley of Charlotte.

Turning out five editorial cartoons a week and seven panels of "Kudzu" doesn't leave him much time for anything else, but he does have a hobby.

"I play the banjo, he admits, "but maybe that's a compulsion, not a hobby."

'There's A Good Deal Of...Sanford In Bypass.'

to hold a pencil. He took art through public school and minored in it at Florida State. His editorial cartoons now are syndicated to more than 100 newspapers in this country and abroad and have been reprinted in such diverse publications as Time, Newsweek, Christian Century, Der Spiegel (West Germany) and Rolling Stone, as well as in textbooks and encyclopedias.

"Kudzu" is his first venture into comics. Why the name "Kudzu"? "Well, kudzu is a fast-growing oriental creeper," explains Doug. "It was introduced years ago in the South to control soil erosion and is now a menace that covers millions of acres. My Kudzu is something of a menace, too, or at least his

Hit-And-Run Fatality Leaves Mother Alone

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

It was midday, hot and muggy. Dozens of plants — stacked on shelves and hanging from the ceiling — diffused bright sunlight which poured through the windows of Judy Crews' Sanford home. A soft breeze played with her wavy brown hair as she sat in a porch swing talking painfully about her only son, David.

Twelve-year-old David Crews was killed Wednesday night when he was struck by a hit-and-run truck as he and his cousin — Ryan Stone, 9 — were riding their bicycles along South Sanford Avenue near their homes. Ryan remains in stable condition at Seminole Memorial Hospital. No arrests have been made in the case.

Judy Crews, who lives alone now in her duplex at 3410 Palm Way, painted a picture of her son as a boy who was ahead of his years, mature and responsible, yet loving the things most boys love, like football and fishing. He was strong and proud, the "man" of a fatherless home. Judy Crews doesn't know what she's going to do without him.

"He's all I had," she said, choking back tears as she lugged nervously at a damp handkerchief. "I'll never have grandchildren." Cancer years ago destroyed her ability to have children, and she has not remarried since she divorced her husband four years ago.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," she whispered, staring blankly off into the distance. "I just don't know."

The way David died was "so ironic," his mother said. "I remember him coming home from fishing that night — he loved to go bass fishing, went nearly every evening — and he said to me, 'Mom, a van almost ran over Ryan on our way home.'"

DAVID CREWS

"That scared me. I wanted to take him and Ryan over to Ryan's house in the car, but he wouldn't let me. He promised to be extra careful and said he would see me in the morning."

David Crews never saw his mother again. A pickup truck which Ryan said was weaving all over the road struck the two boys as they rode their bikes in the grass along the edge of the street. David's head and chest were crushed and he may literally have died twice.

Paramedics on the scene "thought he was dead," Mrs. Crews said. "When they got him to the hospital, they revived him, but he slipped back and died again." David was buried Saturday morning.

Mrs. Crews said she harbors no ill will toward the driver of the truck that killed her son. "He'll suffer enough in his own heart. There couldn't be anything much worse. But it does make me mad to think that he might have been drinking," she said. "Me and David detested alcohol. He promised me he would never take a drink," she added.

"He was a strong boy," Mrs. Crews said. "That's the only thing that keeps me going, knowing that David wasn't afraid to die. 'Don't worry about it,' he'd tell me. 'I'm ready.'"

"David was like that. He was so grown-up for a 12-year-old. He had so much good sense. You'd think you were talking to a 30-year-old man."

Although he had done poorly in school this past year, "David promised me he would make straight As this year," Mrs. Crews said. "He was looking forward to going back."

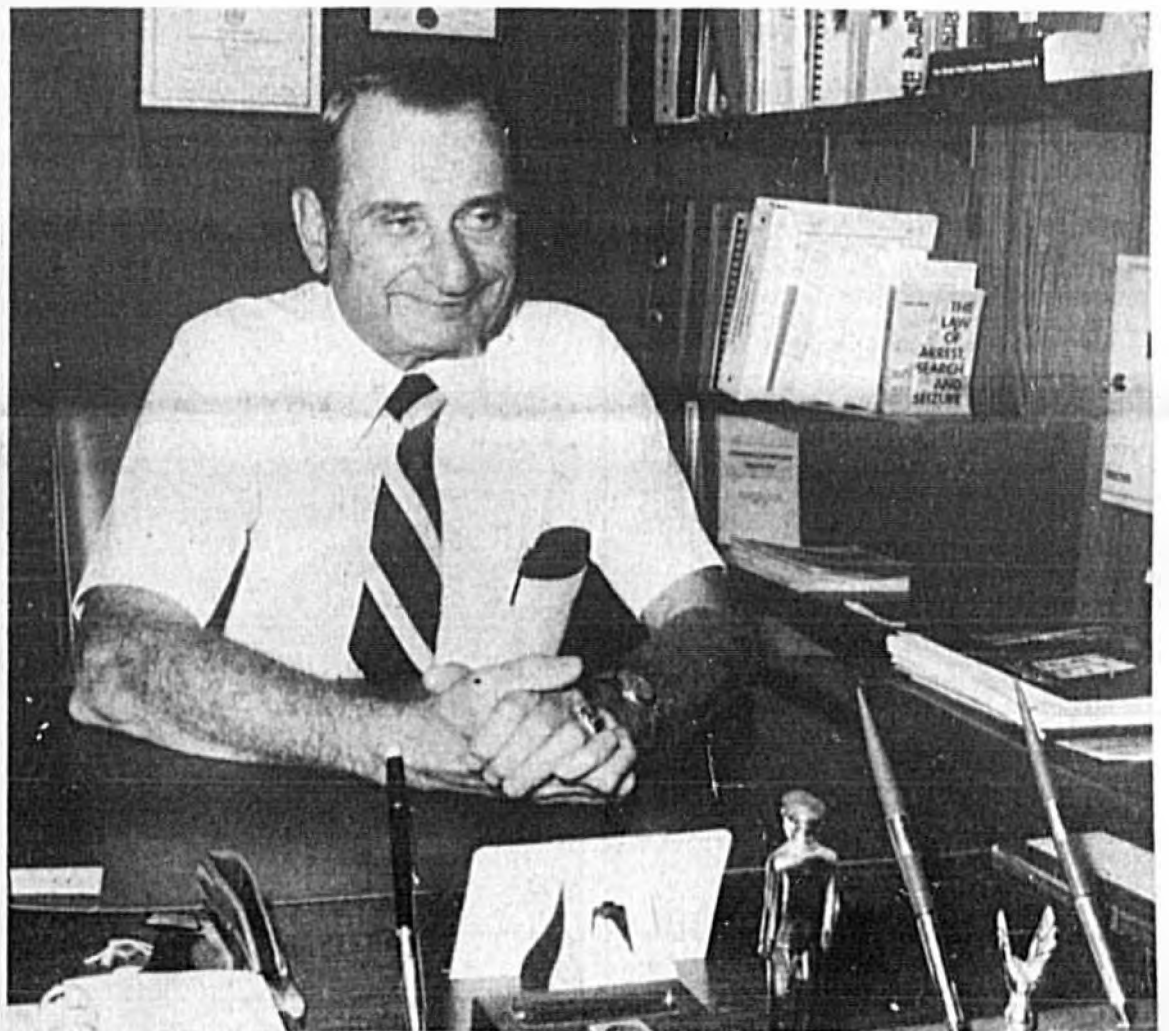

Until then, however, he was content to fish. "Boy, did he fish. He cut grass all over town to buy his fishing gear," his mother said. "He didn't go for just old cane poles. He did it right."

And what he caught, he cooked. "I tell you, that boy loved to cook," Mrs. Crews said. "He had already made up his mind that when he grew up he was going to be a chef. I believed it. He cooked nearly all our meals at home. He liked to get fancy sometimes and cook those gourmet recipes, but I didn't like all the spices."

Inside the house, the sound of muffled sobs drifted out onto the porch. Mrs. Crews looked kind of embarrassed and offered, "It's mother. She can't stop crying. . . She just can't."

She paused and bit her lip. "David, God love him, would be so ashamed of us for crying. He used to say only babies cry."

But Judy Crews couldn't help it. Her lips quivered and a single tear rolled gently down her cheek.

Says Retiring Police Chief

Cooperate To Combat Crime

By JOHN DIXON
Herald Staff Writer

As Seminole County grows, so does the need for county and city police agencies to "cooperate and communicate" with each other for a double-barreled attack against organized crime.

That is the philosophy of George C. Karcher, 64, who retired Friday after serving as Casselberry police chief since June 1, 1971.

Karcher does not believe elements of organized crime have been established here, but he does think law enforcement agencies should be on the alert for such activity. "Organized crime is increasing in Central Florida, but I can't say its taken hold here in Seminole," Karcher told the Evening Herald.

"I think we've mounted concerted intelligence efforts so that we can take appropriate action against this criminal activity," said Karcher, referring to the "close cooperation" between the Seminole County Sheriff's Department and city police departments.

Karcher said Sheriff John Polk has been "most cooperative" in improving law enforcement efforts. "That's been one of my great experiences in my 10 years here," he added.

"The growth of the county is bound to attract businesses that provide inroads to the growth of organized crime, and it all boils down to one thing—money. Where there's no money, there's no organized crime," said the veteran law enforcement official.

But police vigilance is essential, Karcher stressed.

"Whenever we get an inkling of organized crime, we try to take steps to weed it out. We all coordinate personnel and the interchange of information so that we can act promptly and effectively."

Noting the impact of economic growth, Karcher said, "We're in for a big expansion in the northern part of Seminole, especially the Lake Mary area, where the growth is tremendous."

Similarly, the former police chief sees "continuing growth for Casselberry that will call for expansion of all types of law enforcement services."

Burglaries, thefts and criminal mischief (vandalism) are the three most prevalent crimes now, Karcher said.

"But we have about nine Neighborhood Watch programs in Casselberry, and they are producing results," he added, stressing the importance of citizen participation in combatting crime.

Karcher said his interest in law enforcement was partly influenced by several members of his family who were active in police work.

"But actually my experience as a New York City police officer was a kind of continuation of my Army experience in World War II. The whole New York City Police Department was flavored with ex-GIs," Karcher said. He served for five years in Europe and joined the New York police force in 1946. Before he left the department in 1966, he had attained the rank of lieutenant.

From 1966 to 1971, before he was appointed Casselberry police chief, he was chief security officer at Long Island College Hospital in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Asked about his plans for the future,

Karcher grinned and said, "I've been so busy winding things down that I haven't had time to consider all the things I want to do. But I do plan to stay in Casselberry and do some consulting and teaching in police science at Seminole Community College. For now, however, I plan a very limited work effort."

Summing up his decade of service as police chief, Karcher said he believed his most important accomplishment "was the development of this department into a fine, functioning professional organization."

He continued, "When I came here, the department consisted of nine employees—two clerks and seven officers. Today we have a total of 46 employees—32 sworn officers and 10 clerical staff members, plus four members of the animal control unit."

Karcher wears a big smile whenever he talks about improving the police force, and there is every indication that his former associates share his enthusiasm about the progress the department has already made. As one police officer put it, "Karcher started from scratch and built the department into one of the most highly respected police organizations in Florida."

Why, then, did he choose to retire? "I thought this was an appropriate time to step down," Karcher said, "because we are now in a sort of hiatus—an interim period before we experience another upsurge of community growth. When that upsurge occurs, it will call for many organizational changes, and I knew I would be leaving the department in good hands."

Pilot Feels Lucky After Crash-Landing

"I remember tromping around, but I don't remember the crash. I do know that I was very, very lucky."

That is how Troy Simmons summed up the ordeal he faced when the plane he was piloting crashed in an open field on the Lee Ranch property, three miles southeast of Chuluota.

Simmons, 27, was found wandering in a wooded area Friday afternoon, about 18 hours after his demolished plane was discovered.

"I remember spending the night out there. The mosquitoes and rain were terrible," Simmons said Saturday when contacted at Winter Park Hospital, where he is being treated for leg and shoulder injuries.

Rescue workers were directed to the crash site by Civil Air Patrol cadets who had spotted the downed plane from the air. But the plane, a Cessna 172, was unoccupied. So a search party was organized.

"I don't remember wandering away from the plane," said Simmons, who lives in Chuluota. "When I came to, I somehow got the idea that I was in the Okefenokee Swamp in Georgia."

When rescuers finally found the pilot, he had wandered about 500 yards from the plane.

Simmons said he does remember taking off early Thursday night from the Seminole Flying Ranch, where he had rented the plane. The Flying Ranch is a small airport located between Oviedo and Chuluota.

"I've been a licensed pilot for three years, and I've always been a conscientious pilot. But I don't know what caused the crash," Simmons said. "I wish I did. I wish it would come back to me."

"I do know one thing. I'm going to join the Civil Air Patrol. I'm very grateful to those cadets."

Simmons and his wife, Neida, have two children. He works in Winter Park as a mechanic. — JOHN DIXON

WORLD IN BRIEF

Death Of Another Hunger

Striker Leads To Rioting

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Irish hunger-striker Kevin Lynch died early Saturday in the 71st day of his protest fast in Maze Prison, and hundreds of supporters immediately charged into the streets to fight police with guns, rocks and fire bombs.

Lynch, 25, who was serving a 10-year term for gun possession, was the seventh Irish republican inmate to die since May in a so-far unsuccessful campaign to force concessions on prison life from British authorities.

Another hunger striker, Kieran Doherty, also 25, was reportedly blind, deaf and near death in the 72nd day of his fast.

"Kevin Martin Lynch, a prisoner in the Maze Prison, died Saturday at 1 a.m. He took his own life by refusing food and medical intervention for 71 days," the statement from the Northern Ireland Office said.

Word of his death was spread through Belfast's Catholic neighborhoods by women and children blowing whistles and crashing garbage can lids against the pavement.

Police and British army troops almost immediately came under sniper fire in the Ardoyne, Lower Falls Road, Turf Lodge and Andersonstown districts of Belfast. They responded with volleys of plastic bullets and house-to-house searches for the gunmen.

Live Bombs Found in Reactor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — French inspectors have refused to enter the Iraqi nuclear reactor destroyed by the Israelis because of the presence of two unexploded 2,000-pound bombs, the nuclear attache at the French Embassy said Friday.

Bertrand Barre said he has received word from his government the bombs were discovered by photographs of the reactor at Osirak, which was destroyed by Israeli warplanes last June 8.

He said there are about 150 French technicians and approximately 20 French inspectors at the site.

"Our inspectors will not go into the reactor," Barre said. "It is up to the Iraqis to remove the bombs."

Senegal Rebels Holding Out

DAKAR, Senegal (UPI) — Senegalese troops swept into the neighboring West African nation of Gambia, routing leftist rebel troops from most of their positions and rescuing Vice President Aasan Musa Camara.

The rebels, seeking to topple the elected Gambian government of President Si A Kairaba Jawara, continued to hold out in isolated pockets Saturday, however, keeping Jawara's wife Ghilla hostage along with several government ministers and leading citizens.

The rebels, who tried to seize power Thursday while Jawara was in London to attend the wedding of Prince Charles, also controlled the government radio station in the Gambian capital of Banjul.

Friday, some 400 paratroopers from the neighboring west African state of Senegal entered Gambia to help forces loyal to Jawara.

Haig Attends Conference

CANCUN, Mexico (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig said he hoped the conference of foreign ministers meeting to discuss the North-South dialogue could get away from the "confrontational and sterile" approach of the past.

Haig arrived in the Caribbean resort town of Cancun late Friday for the two-day conference, which will set the stage for an Oct. 22-23 summit of the heads of state of 22 nations, among them President Reagan.

Some of the other nations attending the conference — a continuation of the so-called North-South dialogue between rich and poor nations — are Great Britain, Japan, France, Canada, Mexico, Sweden, Austria, Bangladesh, Algeria, Yugoslavia, Brazil, India and Venezuela.

Goat Case Delayed Due To Ill Judge

Ingeborg Morris, who has battled Seminole County officials for nearly a year over 13 goats she keeps unlawfully at her Longwood home, was scheduled to be sentenced Friday morning for keeping livestock in a residential area, but the proceeding was canceled due to the illness of county Judge Wallace Hall.

A new sentencing date has not been set. The hearing was postponed after Hall underwent surgery earlier this week for a lung infection. Four years ago, Hall lost more than half of one lung due to cancer. Then, in June, he suffered a collapsed lung. Hall entered a Gainesville hospital on Monday with his newest respiratory ailment and was operated on Wednesday. He is scheduled to be released from the hospital within the next few days.

The charge for which Mrs. Morris was to be sentenced has been pending since Feb. 23 when she pleaded no contest to violating the county ordinance which prohibits livestock in residential areas.

She pleaded no contest to a similar charge on Oct. 13 and was fined $25. The second case was being held in limbo until a ruling was issued on the county's civil lawsuit seeking to prohibit Mrs. Morris from keeping her goats.

Circuit Judge Joseph Davis Jr. last week gave Mrs. Morris until Monday, Aug. 3 to get rid of the animals. If she doesn't comply, Davis ordered county animal control officers to seize the goats and put them up for adoption.

MAN MUGGED, RUINED

An elderly Sanford man was assaulted by two bottle-wielding women and robbed of $40 Thursday afternoon as he walked along a city street.

Bennie Paine, 64, of 98 Castle Brewer Court, told police that he was walking down Ninth Street near Holly Avenue when he was approached by two women about 20 years of age.

Paine said the women hit him in the head with the bottles, took $40 from his pants pocket and fled on foot. Paine was not seriously hurt, according to police.

HIT-AND-RUN VICTIM STABLE

A 9-year-old Sanford boy who was struck by an automobile as he rode his bicycle near his home Wednesday night, remained in stable condition at Seminole Memorial Hospital this morning with a fractured right leg and forearm, and scalp lacerations.

Ryan I. Stone was riding his bike north along South Sanford Avenue near State Road 427 about 9:10 p.m. when he was

PAIR JAILED ON DRUG CHARGES

Two Seminole County men were arrested Wednesday on multiple charges of drug law violations after allegedly selling thousands of illicit pills to an undercover narcotics agent.

Charged with possession of and trafficking in a controlled substance was Calvin E. Cheverell, 33, of 243 Thomas Drive, Casselberry. He was being held under $10,000 bond. A second man Jeffrey Joseph Tobin, 26, of 460 Ohio St., Sanford, was jailed under $8,000 bond on charges of possession, sale and delivery of a controlled substance.

The pair were arrested about 4:45 p.m. Wednesday in the parking lot at the Sanford Marina after they allegedly sold 5,000 quaaludes to an undercover sheriff's deputy for $7,000.

STABLE, RINK SUED

Horseback riding and roller skating can be dangerous. At least, that's what Kathleen Brownworth and Maria Raphine Jackson apparently think.

Brownworth, who claims she was hurt in a riding accident at an Oviedo stable earlier this year, and Jackson, allegedly injured while skating at an Altamonte Springs roller rink, have filed suits in Seminole County courts seeking to recover damages.

The 15-year-old Brownworth and her mother, Margery, are suing Stonehedge Stables, Red Bug Road, and stable owner Pam Hill for $2,500 in connection with a March 28 accident in which the Brownworth girl fell off a horse and was hurt.

During the course of her ride, Brownworth reportedly fell when the saddle on her rented horse slid off. The suit claims Hill or her employees were negligent by failing to securely attach the saddle. Jackson is seeking an unspecified sum in excess of $5,000 from the All American Roller Rink on State Road 436 on a negligence charge.

Jackson claims that she sustained "embarrassing and painful" injuries June 31 when she was knocked down while skating at the rink. Jackson is charging rink employees with negligence for failing to stop two female skaters from "skating in a fast and dangerous manner."

No trial date has been set in either suit.

A MEATY CASE

Sanford police were continuing their investigation today into the theft of $729.55 worth of meat from two Continental Foods trucks.

According to a police report, someone broke into the trucks sometime late Thursday or early Friday while they were parked at the company's office at 2100 Country Club Road, Sanford. Taken were several cases of assorted meats.

Police later chased a car seen near the crime scene at the time in question, but the four male occupants of the car, escaped. All of the stolen merchandise, however, was recovered.

Bani-Sadr Vows Revenge In Iran

BEIRUT (UPI) — Ousted Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr, declaring "Khomeini is over," vowed in an interview published Saturday to fight to overthrow the hardline fundamentalist clergy who rule Iran.

"The main objective of our struggle now is to put an end to Tehran's rulers and prevent agents of the United States from taking over the authority," Bani-Sadr said in an interview published by Beirut's As Saafir newspaper.

Bani-Sadr, who was ousted by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and forced into hiding, Wednesday flew from Iran to exile in France aboard a hijacked military airliner.

"Khomeini is over, and the proof of that is the outcome of the recent elections. I still consider myself to be the legitimate President of Iran, because I do not consider the coup against me as legitimate," Bani-Sadr said.

Air Controllers Strike Threatened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government and the air traffic controllers' union are resuming negotiations on a new contract with positions that are "light years apart," the federal official mediating the talks says.

The 13,000-member Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization Friday set a Monday morning strike deadline, and refused a government request to extend it one week.

Union president Robert Poli and Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis met briefly Friday afternoon to discuss new demands made by the union following its rejection of a tentative pact reached June 22.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett, who returned earlier in the day from the marathon negotiations in New York that ended the baseball strike, sat in on the meeting.

"We're kind of light years apart," he said. "I hope we're able to get a little bit closer" before the strike deadline.

Union and management negotiators will meet this morning. Lewis said Poli made new demands that, according to preliminary calculations, would cost more than $600 million.

That is a far cry from the 42-month, $39.3 million wage package negotiated last month but overwhelmingly rejected by the membership earlier this week.

As federal employees, controllers are forbidden to strike. During the last round of negotiations, the government threatened disciplinary action and even arrest of controllers who walked out.

A strike could ground more than half the nation's commercial airline traffic. The airlines handle approximately 800,000 passengers daily, plus more than nine-tenths of intercity first-class mail.

The Air Transport Association, representing 33 of the nation's largest airlines, has estimated a strike would cost the industry $80 million a day. The trade association, which holds a permanent injunction against a controllers' walkout, has promised to seek damages immediately if a strike is called.

Army Influence Grows In Poland

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — The Polish parliament approved the appointment of two more generals to key Cabinet posts in a reshuffle that apparently diminished the influence of professional Communist functionaries in the regime.

The changes were announced at a parliamentary session Friday that also charged the government with finding quick and concrete solutions to the serious shortages in food, especially meat, which have sparked nationwide protests.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass said Friday that Polish Communist authorities were unhappy about the resurgence of protests in Poland following its special party congress this month, and it hinted the Warsaw regime may be about to take stronger action "to restore order."

At the parliamentary session, Prime Minister Wojciech Jaruzelski, an army general, shuffled four Cabinet posts. He named Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak to head the Interior Ministry, which controls the police, and Gen. Tadeusz Hupalowki to the Ministry of Administration and Local Economy.

Parliament immediately approved the reshuffle, which brought to four the number of generals in the 30-member cabinet, including Jaruzelski, who also is defense minister.

"It reflects the feeling that generals are more acceptable than the traditional party apparatchiks," a Western diplomat said of the reshuffle. Apparatchiks is the term for full-time party functionaries.

Jaruzelski also replaced Deputy Prime Minister Mieczalaw Jagielski, the chief government negotiator with the workers in Gdanek last August and named a new Labor and Wage Minister.

The Warsaw branch said it would declare a nationwide strike alert as of Monday and a two-hour warning strike Wednesday — to be followed by an appeal to the national union leadership to call a nationwide 24-hour strike in late August — unless the situation improves.

IN BRIEF

House Votes To Retain Minimum Social Security

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House has overwhelmingly approved a measure calling for continuation of the $122-a-month minimum Social Security payments, but the Republican controlled-Senate, despite liberal efforts, will wait until fall before taking up the issue.

The Democratic-sponsored measure was approved in the House Friday on a 404-20 vote.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee said the measure will be referred to the Senate Finance Committee and considered in "routine" fashion.

The minimum payment is received by about 3 million people each month, but the administration's budget-cutting program will eliminate the benefit for future recipients in December and for current recipients in March.

Existing law sets a flood of $122 a month in retirement benefits aimed at those who did not work long enough under the Social Security system to receive regular benefits.

Congress begins a five-week vacation next week.

Hotel Evacuated Due To Fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—A "suspicious" fire in a third-floor suite forced the evacuation of 200 guests from five floors of the Sahara Hotel on the Las Vegas "Strip" Friday night.

The 7:39 p.m. blaze was contained in the single suite and brought under control within moments. Most hotel guests were permitted to return to their rooms shortly after 8 p.m.

Two guests were treated for smoke inhalation. No other injuries were reported.

The fire occurred just one day after the nearby MGM Grand Hotel reopened after extensive renovation required by last November's devastating fire that killed 85 people.

Propane Reservoir Explodes

MOAB, Utah (UPI)—A bolt of lightning triggered an explosion today at an underground reservoir filled with propane. Flames shot 100 feet into the sky, at least 11 people were seriously burned and 3,000 others were forced to flee a 10-square-mile area.

Firefighters poured water on the blaze, that erupted late Friday and was still raging early today on surface pipes atop the reservoir, in an attempt to prevent it from spreading into the giant underground reserve itself and triggering another explosion that could be catastrophic.

'Jesus Must Have Sent You'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—A Charlotte woman told police a rapist abandoned his attack on her because she told him her religious beliefs didn't permit sex outside of marriage.

The woman, who is in her 20s, said a masked man entered her apartment through a window between 3 and 4 a.m. Friday and told her "If I didn't do what he wanted me to he'd cut my throat."

She said she told him she was a Christian and could not have sex with anyone but her husband.

"I said Jesus must have sent you by here, and it must be your time to be saved," said the woman. After further discussion along those lines, she said, he "just walked out."

IN BRIEF

Miami Safe From Dengue Fever, Despite A Few Cases

MIAMI (UPI) — Health officials say there's no threat the dengue fever rampant in Cuba will spread to south Florida — despite the first confirmed cases of the disease among arriving Haitian "boat people."

"There is no public health threat because of the procedures being followed" at the Krome Avenue refugee camp on the outskirts of the Everglades west of Miami, a U.S. Public Health Service official said Friday.

Blood tests taken on "five to seven" refugees who stopped by Cuba on their way to the United States and arrived with high fevers showed they had contracted the mosquito-carried disease that Radio Havana says has stricken 150,000 Cubans and killed at least 50, the health service official said by telephone from Washington.

All of the stricken refugees — who arrived in one boat about a month ago, at the height of concern about the Cuban dengue outbreak — have recovered, said Dr. Lionel Laine, a physician at the Krome camp on the outskirts of the Everglades.

Drug Probe Hits Prosecutors

MIAMI (UPI) — An investigation of drug sales by employees of the Dade County State Attorney's Office, which has brought the suspension of one prosecutor, the firing of a secretary and charges against three other secretaries, will continue, officials say.

Other employees are under investigation Wayne Black said Friday.

New Police Chief Assumes Duties

Former Assistant Police Chief Fred McGowan assumed his new duties as chief of the Casselberry Police Department Saturday, succeeding George C. Karcher, who retired Friday.

Also assuming new duties Saturday was former Police Sgt. Winthrop A. Gates, who was appointed assistant police chief, filling the vacancy created by McGowan's promotion.

McGowan, 54, was appointed police chief about a month ago when Mayor Owen Sheppard requested special permission from the Civil Service Board to follow an "in-house promotion" policy in filling Karcher's position. Sheppard said he wanted to promote "from within" because of the "high quality" of the men in the department. "I felt there was no need to look elsewhere," he said.

The board agreed. McGowan was offered the promotion, and he accepted.

McGowan has been a member of the Casselberry Police Department for nearly nine years, having previously served 21 years with the New York City Police Department. Prior to joining the New York police force, he served four years in the Marine Corps and also worked for the Sperry Corporation.

Gates, 54, was appointed assistant police chief Thursday after Karcher recommended him for the position. McGowan concurred in the selection of Gates, and Mayor Sheppard approved their choice.

"I'm happy to have him," said McGowan. "His management skills and knowledge of law enforcement will be of great value."

A native of Ludlow, Mass., Gates joined the Casselberry Police Department on Oct. 1, 1973, after retiring as a Navy chief petty officer and ending a 27-year military career. He was promoted to police sergeant in 1975.

During his off-duty hours, Gates attended Hollins College and earned a master's degree in criminal justice.

Asked how he felt about his new promotion, he said, "I'm quite pleased."

Gates and his wife, Marjorie, live in Longwood.

Moore; airport attorney William C. Hutchison; AMF plant manager Skip Breakiron; Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Manager Jack Horner; AMF Engineering Manager of Production Randy Hepler; Sanford Airport Authority Chairman John Daniels; Bob Douglas and Dennis Courson of Flagship Bank of Seminole; and J.S. "Red" Cleveland, airport manager.

Powerboat Plant Expanding

Construction is ready to begin for three new structures at the Sanford Airport for AMF Inc. Cost of the new structures, according to J.S. "Red" Cleveland, airport manager, is $508,000.

Cleveland said the new structures containing 36,300 square feet will provide AMF with a total of 100,000 square feet of manufacturing space on the 7.9 acres which the firm has under lease from the Airport Authority.

AMF Crestliner-Robalo, noted for its high quality powerboats, was founded at Sanford in 1969 by Jud Garvin and Maurice Stewart as the Robalo Marine Co. Unable to find a production line boat that met their standards for offshore fishing, these two men commissioned C. Raymond Hunt and Associates, naval architects, to design a hull for "blue water" fishing.

In December, 1970 AMF Inc. purchased the Robalo Marine Co. In succeeding years, the product line has expanded many times and this year AMF powerboat operations were consolidated in Sanford as AMF Crestliner-Robalo.

The firm employs 138 persons in the manufacture of 12 Crestliner and 10 Robalo models. The expansion will triple Crestliner-Robalo's manufacturing capacity.

Leroy C. Robb Construction Co. is the contractor and it is expected that the facilities will be completed within 120 days. Flagship Bank of Seminole is providing the financing. — DONNA ESTES

Rebuild Weak Air Defenses

The neglect of national defense over the last two decades has left the United States with so many serious deficiencies in forces, weapons, etc., that the Reagan administration must be frustrated by the fact that it has to confront so many of these problems all at once.

High on the list of most critical shortcomings is the sad state of America's continental air defense. Increased Soviet air attack capability, coupled with reduced American ability to detect enemy bombers, has left the United States more and more vulnerable to a surprise bombing attack. Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Lew Allen Jr. pointed out at a hearing before the House Armed Services Committee.

Because of the reductions in our North America air defense assets, critical deficiencies exist in our ability to detect, assess and defend against even a small-scale bomber attack," said Allen.

The trouble dates back to when former President Lyndon B. Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara decided to downgrade U.S. air defenses in favor of a Mutual Assured Destruction strategy which relied on the offensive power of strategic nuclear missile forces to deter not only a missile attack but a bomber attack as well.

Since that time there has been a series of reductions in the air-attack defense systems, including deep cuts under President Richard M. Nixon, so that warning and surveillance radar units have been reduced to 110 from 408, and fighter interceptor aircraft have been cut to fewer than 300 from 2,600 most of which were built in the 1950s. Surface-to-air missiles have been dropped from 490 to zero.

This, of course, is a shameful situation. There are large gaps in radar protection due to these irresponsible cutbacks. Furthermore, the ancient, token interceptor force doesn't have the capability to deal with supersonic bombers such as the Soviet Backfire.

Rep. Ike Skelton, D-Mo., a member of the House Armed Services Committee who initiated these hearings on depleted continental air defenses, points out that low-flying planes can easily penetrate the Distant Early Warning Line, the U.S. radar system which is supposed to guard the nation from air attacks from the north.

Lt. Gen. James Harringer, commander in chief of the North American Aerospace Defense Command, recommends a $600 million upgrading of the porous DEW line to close the "holes" in its coverage.

In addition, Gen. Allen says a new $1 billion radar system that can sense enemy bombers more than 2,000 miles away is needed to further bolster the nation's deteriorating air defense system.

Equally important is the need to greatly strengthen our tiny fighter interceptor force.

It should be five or six times larger than it is and it should have the latest high-performance aircraft rather than the vintage planes that average 25 years old.

Sharply upgrading our air defenses will cost billions. But this is the price that Americans have to pay for the Rip Van Winkles who ran our national defense into an incredible state of unpreparedness.

BERRY'S WORLD

"If we go on this new 'Beverly Hills Diet' does it mean we'll automatically become 'LAID BACK'?"

By DORIS DIETRICH

The resounding peal of appealing bells—wedding bells—aroused the world Wednesday when the Prince took a Lady for his beloved bride.

Ah, such sweet sentiments!

This true, romantic story portrays the typical fairy tale that entralls many a little girl before she grabs that first grade reader.

And surely every female must dream of some handsome, dashing Prince Charming come charging to her rescue sooner or later during adolescence and beyond.

The royal family has charmed me since my early childhood. Other than that dimpled darling of a dancer, Shirley Temple, Queen Elizabeth II has always been my idol.

I recall the fuss and ado in our household when Edward VIII abdicated the British throne in 1936 for the American woman he loved, Wallis Warfield Simpson.

My youthful, giggly aunts, who wore stars in their eyes and their hearts on their sleeves, had photographs of Prince Charming...oops, King Edward VIII, in a dashing officer's uniform while Mrs. Simpson was photographed in a sophisticated bare gown and long opera style gloves. Her sleek dark hair, parted in the middle, was partially covered with a hat adorned with an opulent ostrich feather (now it seems sort of dowdy and in tacky taste).

My aunts were totally thrilled that this attractive American siren reflected womanhood in its most powerful form—luring a king to abandon the throne in the name of love.

God save the King!

Back to Elizabeth II. How could I help but be attracted to this powerful noble lady? She made a terrific impact on my life the day she was titled a "real princess" during coronation ceremonies, May 12, 1937, when her father, George VI, was crowned King of England after his lovesick brother abdicated the throne.

The radio and newspapers carried glowing accounts of the pompous event. It was the talk of the town—but worse yet, the talk of my household.

In my own childish mind, I was swept up in the excitement that the colorful coronation was thoughtfully planned to honor me. But no mention was made of me on the radio nor in the papers—nor anywhere, for that matter.

The harsh truth of the matter is, I was devastated,—crushed. You see, it was my birthday. Where was MY cake? MY party?

At least, Elizabeth and I have a lot in common, I rationalized through the years. She became a princess on my birthday. Really now, I say, we do share a date. Right?

Formerly, my ambition was—to someday—have an audience with the Queen and inform her of our longtime, overwhelming relationship. Hey, Liz, are you listenin'?

Informed Consent Threat

WASHINGTON — The Declaration of Independence promised a government that derived its power "from the consent of the governed." But that commitment cannot be fulfilled if the people are not qualified to provide informed consent.

Informed consent requires knowledge of the issues — yet much of the requisite information is in the hands of public officials, elected and appointed, who supposedly represent the best interests of the citizenry.

In theory, those citizens ought to have full access to all materials affecting decisions made in their name. In practice, it doesn't quite work that way — and that's why a strong Freedom of Information Act is so important.

Approved by Congress and signed into law by President Johnson in 1966, the FOIA was strengthened by amendment in 1974 — but today it is in danger of being gutted by a coalition of politicians, bureaucrats and special-interest groups uneasy about public scrutiny of their work.

President Reagan has never displayed any enthusiasm for full disclosure. During the first six months of his tenure, the White House has quietly but effectively throttled the flow of public information throughout the government.

Attorney General William French Smith, in one of his first acts after taking office, abolished the Justice Department's procedural guidelines requiring federal officials to justify withholding information from the public on the grounds that disclosure would be "demonstrably harmful."

Although Smith's action probably was more symbolic than substantive, it sent a message throughout the government: The Reagan administration is not particularly interested in unfettered freedom of information and is encouraging bureaucrats to resist requests submitted under provisions of the FOIA.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Central Intelligence Agency have been campaigning for several years in favor of restrictive amendments to the law, possibly even exempting those two agencies from all FOIA requirements.

The FBI and CIA claim that their work is hampered by the law, but neither has ever been able to provide a single convincing example of FOIA-mandated disclosure that adversely affected their lawful missions.

Moreover, the law already includes exemptions that allow the FBI and CIA to deny requests for information that would harm "national defense or foreign policy" or compromise "investigatory files compiled for law enforcement purposes."

Some of the nation's biggest corporations and most powerful trade associations are lobbying for restrictive amendments because they have been embarrassed by disclosure of information in government files about their questionable practices.

(Ironically, the business community has been by far the most prolific user of the FOIA because government files contain vast amounts of otherwise unobtainable data about competitors.)

Finally, too many federal employees view the FOIA as a threat to their job security because it requires disclosure of materials documenting their mistakes, poor judgment and incompetence.

FBI Motor Fleet Looks Like Lemons

WASHINGTON — Those automobile chase scenes that are featured nightly on television might be hard for the FBI to duplicate in real life. If an agent should get involved in a high-speed chase, he might wind up calling for a tow truck.

An Internal Justice Department audit report shows that the FBI like most other American car owners has been ripped off by auto mechanics. In its pursuit of the bad guys, the FBI operates the third-largest motor fleet in the government. But apparently the G-men seldom check under the hood.

"Inadequate maintenance and repair practices have left a number of bureau vehicles in poor emergency response readiness," the auditors warn. They add that "other vehicles may have been operated in an unsafe condition."

Every beginning driver learns that he should get an oil change every few thousand miles. The auditors checked 160 FBI cars at random; 18 had been driven between 15,000 and 30,000 miles without an oil change;

Dwight Eisenhower II

Dwight Eisenhower II

In a recent column, I called attention to the re-evaluation of the Eisenhower presidency that is now going on among scholars, and to President Reagan's sound instinct in looking back to the Eisenhower presidency as a kind of model.

I would like to return to the subject of Eisenhower, whose Diaries have just been published, whose papers are now available, and who has been the subject of a rash of new books and articles.

Dwight Eisenhower was really not the grandfatherly man with the famous grin and the scrambled syntax. He was razor-sharp and decisive.

Let us return for a moment to one of his decisive moments, a decisive moment for the world.

At 4 a.m. on June 5, 1944, Dwight Eisenhower strode into the library of Southwick House, a spacious country mansion not far from the great Portsmouth naval base in England. The outer rooms bustled with military activity. Southwick House was Eisenhower's headquarters for the invasion of Europe.

The rain and wind crashing against the black windows of the library defined Eisenhower's problem. Minutes earlier, he had driven along the blacktop road and turned up the long access road to Southwick House.

Sometimes the wind was so strong the rain blew sideways in horizontal lines. It was the worst June storm in living memory. The English Channel is always choppy. Since June 3, powerful waves had been battering the cliffs of Dover, crashing over the breakwater at Calais, punishing the coast of Normandy.

D-Day had been tentatively set for today, June 5. One June 4, at a 2 a.m. meeting, with hurricane force winds lashing the countryside, the Chancell, Eisenhower canceled the June 5 invasion date, postponed it one day to June 6. If it had to be further postponed, past June 7, it would have to wait another two weeks for favorable tides.

Driving to this meeting of his top commanders, Eisenhower had passed miles of waiting tanks, trucks, artillery pieces, jamming all roads leading to the coast.

In every southern and eastern English harbor, landing craft and troop ships were loaded with troops on the fine edge of combat readiness. In English rivers the elements of the great artificial harbors looked like huge floating crates. Someone had remarked to him that the weight of metal in England was so enormous that only the hundreds of barrage balloons with their cables prevented the island from sinking out of sight altogether.

Eisenhower entered the library looking trim in his tailored battle jacket. He looked tense to those who greeted him. General Montgomery wore baggy corduroy trousers and a sweatshirt. Admiral Ramsay and his aides wore immaculate navy blue and gold. Eisenhower's chief of staff, General Walter Bedell Smith, greeted him tersely. A roaring fire in the fireplace fought the gloom outside. Eisenhower crossed the room and sat on a sofa, and the meteorologists were brought in immediately.

Group Captain Stagg, a tall Scot, smiled through his tiredness. "I think we have found a gleam of hope for you sir," he said.

Eisenhower looked at him intently. "The mass of weather fronts coming in from the Atlantic is moving faster than we anticipated. We predict there will be rather fair conditions beginning late on June 5 and lasting until the next morning, June 6, with a drop in wind velocity and some break in the clouds. Ceiling — about 3,000."

His charts showed, however, that the bad weather would then recur, with high seas and low visibility. Otherwise, predictions were hazardous.

At best, the meteorologists were telling Eisenhower, he might expect about 24 hours of passable weather.

Leigh-Mallory of Bomber Command wanted to know about cloud conditions. Could his bombers operate?

Admiral Ramsay asked about conditions at sea, the wind velocities.

When all the questions had been asked, there was complete silence in the room. It lasted for five minutes.

Eisenhower sat quietly on the sofa, saying nothing. Then he looked up.

He said, "Well, we'll go."

JULIAN BOND

Corporate Giving Is Falling Short

When Ronald Reagan was candidate Reagan, he assured those among us frightened by his budget proposals that the private sector would take up the burden of helping the deserving poor.

Since his swearing-in ceremony seven months ago, the president and his advisers have made the same claim again and again — private efforts would replace government assistance for the needy.

Corporate and individual philanthropy, it was argued, would constitute a 1980s version of the church poor box. Encouraged by the tax breaks given to business and upper-income Americans, a flood of charity would be released to shoulder the human burden government has shrugged off.

That burden is considerable.

The Urban Institute in Washington, D.C., estimates that there will be reductions of $128.2 billion in federal spending for social welfare, health, the environment, the arts, and for publicly financed housing between 1981 and 1984. Nonprofit organizations working in these fields will lose $27 billion in public funds over the next five years.

But 1980's gifts from the private-sector corporations and company-operated foundations totaled only $2.5 billion. These gifts would have to increase by 144 percent to make up for government reductions and to keep pace with inflation.

Some of the Reagan cuts, as expected, will cause higher costs.

Slashes in spending for welfare, unemployment compensation and job-training will mean increases up to $600 million in the food stamp program — increases a conservative congress is sure to reject. In 1982, the food stamp benefit level must be reduced further to extend benefits to newly eligible beneficiaries forced onto the rolls by the administration's austerity elsewhere.

So yesterday's cuts create tomorrow's costs, and no one seems to know or care who'll pay.

According to some businesses, it won't be them. Less than one-third of the two million companies doing business in the United States today make any kind of philanthropic gift at all.

Only 35 percent corporate gifts in 1979 were devoted to what the American Association of Fund Raising Council calls "health and welfare." Prospects for increases in such gifts, or for an increase in the number of donors is not great.

"You cannot send a Mailgram from Washington to all corporations and say a funny thing happened, and expect they will be ready immediately to make up the shortfall — life is not like that," says a spokesman for the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Corporate giving declined in 1980. At 1979 levels, it reached only $2.52 billion a year.

Perhaps the Japanese, who have successfully out-manufactured and out-sold Americans businesses will be willing to step in and do their share.

They can probably out-give their competition, too.

OUR READERS WRITE

Sheriff Has To Beg

I have been following the accounts of Sheriff John Polk's battles with the County Commission, regarding his budget request, in your paper. I get so angry that he has to beg for enough money to operate his office adequately.

Seminole County has grown by leaps and bounds in both incorporated and unincorporated areas. This population increase has naturally resulted in a much greater demand for police services. The published statistics on serious crimes have shown an alarming increase in all categories and most people are aware of this, if they read the papers, or watch TV.

What has not been as well publicized, as the crimes reported in the FBI statistics, is the increase in the citizen's requests for assistance in settling neighborhood feuds, domestic arguments, barking dogs, loud music, checking out door-to-door salesmen, and other calls of a similar nature that have resulted from this increase in county growth. In the last few years the number of complaints answered by the Sheriff's Dept. each month has almost doubled, yet the same number of deputies, covering the same amount of area, are expected to do the job.

Perhaps I am biased because my husband is a deputy sheriff, and I am aware that on a recent occasion, when he was working the evening shift, he could not even have his dinner on three successive evenings because his calls were back-to-back. Some of the zones are too large to be covered by one deputy and should be divided into two zones. This means, of course, that more deputies would be needed for the new zones.

It seems that the County Commissioners are afraid of losing a few votes and do not want to give Sheriff Polk what he needs to do the job. One Commissioner has stated his belief, that the Sheriff can get by if, "...he learns to manage his budget a little more tightly". Maybe the Commissioners should talk to some of the citizens who have been the victims of robbery, burglary, vandalism, or a drunk driver and see how they feel about putting more men in a patrol car.

I do not want to pay anymore taxes than need be, but I also would like to think that I am living in a county that is being adequately patrolled. So, to the County Commissioners, why don't you think about the good of the county, instead of your reelection. We have a great Sheriff and I would like to give him credit for the job he is doing.

My main interest was in the last three paragraphs of her article in which she writes, "this new school is one of the most innovative educational buildings in the country." Then she goes on

Save Social Security

"Social Security Must Be Saved". You have opened up one of my favorite subjects. To "Save Social Security" these things must be done:

First, the peoples' minds must be disabused of the idea that "The Trust Fund" is a sacred cow that can be milked forever and ever.

In fact it is a "Bull" that eats your taxes at the rate of 5-to-6 percent a year with no return for the money. This is according to the head of the Social Security office in Orlando. He did not say it in just those words, but that is what it amounted to.

To "Kill" this Bull, and immediately save $3 billion, the Trust Fund must be "Monetized". This can be done under USC 31 Section 401 which permits the government to issue federal banknotes—not federal reserve banknotes which cost the taxpayer interest. Federal banknotes cost nothing except the cost of printing.

Section 404 forbids the cancellation of such notes. The profit from their issuance belongs to the government, i.e. the people, not the Federal Reserve banks.

The privilege of creating and issuing Money—at present worthless paper, as are federal reserve notes—is the supreme prerogative of government.

This money-paper could be loaned to the banks at 3 percent with the requirement, that this money be loaned for housing mortgages at 6 percent.

What a shot-in-the-arm this would be to the economy. It would give $4.5 billion to Social Security without cost to the taxpayer.

If, it should be said that this would be inflationary, then the Banknotes could just be held for use in paying the obligations of Social Security. Even this would save the Social Security taxpayer-Workers $3 billion a year. When the money that supposedly goes to pay this interest is put in the general revenue fund, another bond is put in the Trust Fund. To get this money to use for Social Security, more taxes must be collected to pay off the bond.

Nature has an exact example of this type of thing: where the Ants put the Aphids on the new growth and collect the honey-dew the Aphids (workers) produce.

Here's for waking up the "Aphids" to the fact that they are being "milked" by the political ants.

I have advanced this idea to our senators and Rep. Bill McCollum and have heard nothing from them. I guess they are afraid of hurting Federal Reserve, Chairman Volcker's feelings.

S.B. "Jim" Crowe

Pleased To Have Feather In Office

Commissioner Robert Feather's stand against a $2 tax increase by our school board is a proper stand. His eight year tenure as a school board member certainly qualifies him as one with expertise in the matter. I commend him. I am sure most of us who voted for Mr. Robert Hughes believed him when he promised to "hold the line" on taxes all during his campaign. It seems all politicians can give good reason for not keeping their promises after they get in office. Possibly that is the reason so many are voted out of office each election year.

Though most of us are for our children getting the best of education, now is not the time when taxes should be raised. Many people have all they can do to make ends meet now with inflation and taxes as they are. The average worker's income for five of the twelve months of each year goes to the government for taxes now. Surely that is enough.

I am pleased to have a man like Feather representing us on our Seminole County Commission.

FORREST I. GREENE

The Price Of Decrees

Our Sheriff tells us by way of the newspaper that he is mandated by the state and federal decrees that he must do certain things that he objects to in carrying out his constitutional duties. It might be that, if the Sheriff would publicly list those requirements and the amount of money it costs to comply with them, that we, as taxpaying and concerned citizens, could contact our state senators and representatives and also our U. S. Sen. Paula Hawkins, and our U. S. Congressman Bill McCollum, to see if they can't get these state and federal rules and regulations off our backs, thereby reducing the amount of new taxes to finance these directives.

Bear in mind that nobody in Tallahassee, Atlanta, or Washington, D. C., is paying the price of these imposed decrees. It's the taxpayers of the unincorporated areas of Seminole County who will pay if the added taxes are imposed.

What right does the State Cabinet and the Governor have to grant these requested taxes the sheriff is asking for if his requests are turned down by our Board of County Commissioners?

Neither Cabinet members nor the Governor has the basic right to cause our people here in Seminole County to pay more of our money to improve the lot of a bunch of law-breakers to let them live a good life at our expense.

They broke the law and deserve nothing but the barest necessities for doing so. If the convicted law-breaker was given a menu of corn bread and beans, had to sleep on a cot in a tent surrounded by a bobwire fence instead of a classy hotel, he, at least, may not want to be a second repeater.

Each convicted law-breaker should be made to work for his keep and have to pay back every cent for food and lodging when he is released. I say the whole criminal situation is out of hand and can only be brought back to sensible reality by an aroused citizenry who have to foot the bill.

Have we, as citizens, lost out completely when we are told it costs nearly 30 dollars a day to keep a law-breaker when all of us have to watch our budget and many people cannot afford half that amount to live a normal life?

We cannot live long as a free people when we allot nearly $11,000 per year for a law-breaker and less than $1,000 to educate a little child.

Urge Solons To Support A Draft

We urge President Reagan, Sens. Lawton Chiles and Paula Hawkins and Reps. Bill McCollum and Bill Nelson to initiate and support a draft to man our armed forces. Our founding fathers believed in a citizen army wherein every person, regardless of his position, served this nation in time of military need. We believe the need is now.

As long as the United States has over two million people under arms, it is inherently dangerous to this country's long-term stability that so large a voluntary army has so little emotional, economic or political investment in the nation it defends. Anyone who cares about this county knows that it is inherently wrong and morally offensive that our most favored young people are exempt from defending it.

Those to whom society has given the most should repay that gift in part by participating in its military defense. In this way the military services, the society and the individual would all benefit. If all Americans shared the obligation of our service, all might also share in a sense of community. Mercenaries will never provide the dedicated service required to successfully defend this country.

We urge you to forge a citizen army consisting of a cross-section of our youth, in accordance with the views of our founding fathers, in which every citizen shares some sacrifice, and therefore, strengthens our bonds of democracy.

Your views on the proposed "draft" will be appreciated.

Public Vs. Private

Last year some 36,000 students were enrolled in Seminole County public schools. The current school budget is for $97,150,000. That comes to an expenditure of $2,700 per student.

Area private schools charge the following tuition: (1) Park-Maitland... $1,650, (2) Bishop Moore... $1,175, (3) Trinity Prep... $2,650. Private schools have a philosophy of "earn or get the hell out." This is one of the reasons why students graduating from private schools tend to be much better college students than those from public schools.

My point is that we should dissolve the public school system in favor of private schools. All students would still get a free education through ad valorem tax dollars. Our children would get a better education at no additional cost to the taxpayers.

In addition, we could sell or lease the public school facilities we now have for significant sums of money in the millions of dollars. But then where would the teachers on tenure who are incompetent be able to get and hold employment?

Ex-Mayor Margie Hess Sees Her Hometown Progress

Margie Hess, mayor of Lake Mary in 1974, during a visit this past week, was delighted with the progress being made on the restoration efforts at the old Chamber of Commerce building in the city.

The city officials planned to move into the 1920s vintage building this weekend. It is to be Lake Mary's new city hall.

Mrs. Hess, who last visited Lake Mary in 1978 said she was pleased to see how much the city has grown. She, her husband, George, who unsuccessfully ran for the county commission at one time in the early 1970s, and their family moved from Lake Mary in 1977.

They now make their home on a farm in Mt. Vernon, Ill., located half-way between St. Louis, Mo. and Evansville, Ind.

The Seminole County Commission has sent a certificate of appreciation to Gaylene Wurick for her service during the past 19 months on the county's planning and zoning commission. She is being replaced by Sara Jacobson of Sanford on that advisory board.

As often happens to Sanford citizens who come to the city commission for assistance, Dan Pelham, principal of Sanford Middle School received a solution to a problem this week and an appointment to a city board at the same time.

Pelham asked the commission for strong enforcement of city anti-loitering laws across the street from the middle school.

The commission agreed to order that enforcement and then appointed Pelham, on the recommendation of Commissioner Eddie Keith, to the city's charter review committee.

When Pelham arrived later in the meeting he was told the commissioners had approved his request and that he had been unanimously appointed to the committee. He was also told that the charter board's next meeting was to be

Parties & Politics

the following night. Pelham assured he would be present.

Pelham, then assistant principal at Sanford Middle School, won a seat on the county commission in the late 1960s. Midway in his term the school board offered him a promotion to the principalship of the school and he resigned from the commission to accept the job.

Pelham's first love has always been education. When he was a football player at the Florida State University, he gave up the chance for a professional football career to pursue instead a career in education.

On Aug. 25 at 7 p.m. the county commission will hold a public hearing on its proposal to raise refuse disposal rates from the present $6.70 per ton to $9 per ton.

In pointing out the schedule for the public hearing, Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said he couldn't help but inform the Sanford City Commission what a bargain the city is getting.

He said while the county commissioners are anticipating a rate of $9 per ton, Sanford hauls refuse to Orange City, across the county line in Volusia, and pays 90 cents a cubic yard, which equates to about $3.60 to $4 per ton.

A letter from an athletic coach from Scranton, Pa. commending one of Sanford's finest has been duly noted by the city commission.

Ken Blewitt, athletic director of Lackawanna Junior College, said in the letter that the college's baseball team, of which he is head coach, visited the Sanford area some weeks ago to play a number of games in mental and physical preparation for their game schedule upon returning home.

While here, it seems, his players were involved in a scrape "that could have had tremendous consequences."

"When it came time for questioning and explanations I met a man on your staff that deserves more than just a thank you from us," Blewitt said.

He went on to say that Sgt. William Bernosky handled the entire incident in a professional and tactful manner. "He handled it in such a way that he made my boys realize what a grave mistake they had made and they can now use this error as part of their educational growth," he said.

A line in Zonnye T. Dixon's letter of resignation from the Sanford Housing Authority Board of Commissioners got the attention of Mayor Lee P. Moore.

Reading the following line from Mrs. Dixon's letter to the city commission: "I now feel that my efforts and time expended are severely thwarted by the manipulative procedures-practices exercised by the tenants," Mayor Moore had some advice for his colleagues.

He suggested the commissioners view the line as "some sort of gable" in coming up with a name of a person to replace Mrs. Dixon.

The final public hearing before the county commission on Sheriff John Polk's proposed budget for the new fiscal year was the hottest public meeting of the week.

Commissioner Sandra Glenn had worked out a compromise proposal with Polk earlier in the day. The compromise called for Polk to be given $320,000 in addition to a $4.5 million allocation tentatively approved by the commission previously. With this additional money requiring no tax increase the sheriff was to fund whatever he felt had a higher priority. She received no support for her compromise.

The budget approved by the county commission gave the sheriff $300,000 more than the $5.5 million to use as he sees fit.

Meanwhile, the commissioners were battling individually on the "deputy in the school" pilot program requested by a parents' group. Two of the commissioners—Robert G. Feather and Bill Kirchhoff—stated their strong opposition to the concept.

Commissioner Barbara Christensen

was just as firmly in favor as they were opposed.

The School Board has already allocated $18,500 to pay the salary of one deputy in the school.

Mrs. Christensen said she felt the county commission should allocate money for a second deputy.

Kirchhoff said while programs of this sort are created with good intentions, similar programs in other nations have gotten out of hand. "I've had relatives disappear in the past. I'm not interested in getting into programs where something like this could happen again," he said.

Kirchhoff said if discipline problems have developed in the school the school principal could come to the commission and ask for help or the school board and the parents should go to the Legislature, asking for permission to form their own police force.

Feather, a former school board member, said if the principals and deans of students were doing their jobs in each of the schools no deputies would be necessary.

Make Sure You See Straight: Get A Thorough Eye Exam

Elderly people are gathered at a meeting.

The secretary reads the minutes of their last session. Then he passes around some printed material for consideration.

The members stir. One pulls his reading glasses from his pocket. A second simply closes one eye and squints at the document.

A third holds the reading matter at arm's length. A fourth pulls out a magnifying glass and peers through it.

Since age 40, most of us have been losing our ability to see. Ophthalmologists say that 98 percent of us will have some vision impairment by the time we're 80.

But don't worry. The majority of us won't go totally blind.

For clarity we note that the government uses the term "legally blind." A legally blind person may still have some vision.

The National Association for the Visually Handicapped prefers to skip the word "blind" altogether. Its emphasis is on "low vision." This is not the same as total blindness.

Low vision can be diagnosed and treated by specially trained doctors using special equipment.

This is a relatively new field of medical practice. Not all eye doctors understand the optical problems of patients with limited sight.

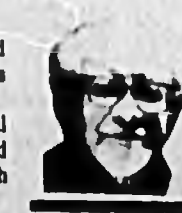

Can a low-vision expert help you?

You won't know until one of them gives you a comprehensive examination, advises the National Association for the Visually Handicapped.

The organization adds that your chances for success also depend upon you as a low-vision patient. You cannot be helped—no matter how good your doctor is—unless you put forth the necessary effort.

Moreover, you determine what constitutes success or failure. Success to one person may be failure to another. You must listen carefully to what the doctor says can be done for you and then set your goals accordingly.

A great deal is happening in this field of ophthalmology. Aging magazine, published by the federal government, reported earlier this year on a special contact lens that aids patients following cataract surgery. Purchases of the lens qualify for Medicare benefits.

Finally, it is vital for the public to recognize partial or low vision as a genuine disability. Questions such as "What's the matter, are you blind or something?" may or may not upset you.

But to many they are annoying and stigmatizing.

For more information on low vision and its treatment, write to the National Association for the Visually Handicapped, Department L, 305 E. 24th St., New York, N.Y. 10010.

Enough's A Nuss, Altamonte Owns Sectional Crown

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

OCCOE — "Gary, you'll get your chance. Just be ready." Altamonte Manager Gene Letterio must have told those eight words to pitcher-outfielder Gary Nuss 15 times.

Friday night at the Sectional Tournament that chance came and Gary Nuss was ready. The lanky blond drilled a single past San Mateo pitcher Chip McFatter to chase home Jimmy Fox in the top of the 12th inning as Altamonte went on to capture the Major League Championship with a 7-1 victory over Jacksonville-San Mateo.

Altamonte will compete in the State Tournament at Plant City against the state's three other sections. Letterio's crew goes into the tournament unbeaten—a distinct advantage since losses carry over from Sectional play.

It was not just the bat work of Nuss, though, that saved the Altamonte crew. He also turned in three sparkling innings on the mound in relief of starter Mike Schmit.

"Schmitt" turned in an excellent mound performance for nine innings as he battled head-to-head with Jacksonville ace Cliff Gaines. Schmit made one mistake—a high fastball to Steve Carlisle in the third inning which the San Mateo first sacker crunched over the scoreboard in center field. Ironically, it was Carlisle's only hit of the tournament.

Otherwise, the polished right-hander was near perfect. He fanned 13 hitters and walked three. At one point he fanned four in succession, but it looked as all would go for naught as Altamonte was being dazzled by Gaines.

The blond-haired righty, who pitches from a stretch position, was sailing along with a 1-0 edge going into the sixth inning. Jimmy Fox, however, reached Gaines for a single to initiate the inning. Schmit then looped a single to right center, sending Fox to third and Schmit to second on the throw.

Neal Harris rifled a base hit to right field which tied the game at 1-1, but the ball was hit too sharply for Schmit to score. Ryan Lisle then walked to load the bases with no one out.

Gaines, perhaps seeing his master piece slipping away, reared back to fan Bruce Carlson, Dan Beaty and Anthony Laszaic to keep the game deadlocked going into the final half inning.

Things remained deadlocked until the beginning of the eighth when unexpectedly, home plate umpire Joe Sylvester keeled over while sweeping off the dish.

Sylvester was quickly administered air and a rescue vehicle was called. The game was delayed a half hour. Sylvester was taken away in a rescue vehicle, but returned later to watch the game.

Even more unexpectedly, Gaines' mother suffered heart pains and was taken to the same rescue vehicle. Between trips back and forth to the van to check his mother's condition, Gaines courageously composed himself when the game restarted.

When the eighth opened, he struck out Harris, Lisle and pinch hitter Jeff McGeath on 13 pitches. In the ninth, a two-out walk to Steve Shakar and the irrespressible Letterio's third single threatened Gaines. The tall right-hander, though, induced Fox to ground to the second baseman who made a nice tag on an elusive Letterio for the third out.

The ninth was the last Altamonte would see of Gaines since Little League rules prevent a pitcher from going more than nine frames on a given night.

Gaines finished the night with 15 strike outs, walked three and gave up seven hits. On four occasions he whiffed three or more batters in a row.

With both Schmit and Gaines gone, Nuss and McFatters took over the pitching chores. Nuss sailed through the 10th, but encountered trouble in the 11th when Fox dropped a throw at first base.

Nuss then went to 3-0 on Byron Turner. He regrouped, however, and fanned Turner on three straight pitches. Next he dipped a nice curve past Carlisle and grabbed a bunt attempt by Greg Smith in midflight.

McFatter, a junk-throwing left-hander, was easily disposing of Altamonte's bats with a shoe-top curve ball. He retired the side in order in the 10th and pitched out of a semi-meas by getting Laszaic on a fly to right in the 11th.

Herald Photos by Sam Cook

There's no doubt who's number one Friday night in Occoe. The Altamonte Major League squad of Gene Letterio just took 12 innings to prove it by knocking off San Mateo, 7-1.

In the 12th, though, Nuss had had enough. Letterio reached base for the fourth time with a walk. Fox faked a bunt and bounced a Baltimore chop on which McFatters barely nipped Letterio's Pete Rose dive into second.

He then worked the count to 1-2 on Schmit, but plunked him on the right arm to put runners at first and second. It didn't seem to matter when he fanned Harris for out number two.

Nuss was slow in coming out of the dugout, but Letterio said he never wavered in pulling the soon-to-be-hero. "Gary is our number one pinch hitter. Three times he's been in the on deck circle when the last out was made. But when he got his chance I knew he would hit," assured Letterio.

Nuss promptly answered Letterio's calling by whistling the first pitch over a startled McFatter's head into center field. Turner's throw was on the money, but Danny Connell couldn't handle the hop as Fox threaded his way home with a head-first slide.

"I was a little nervous," said Nuss about the tight spot. "But I knew he would put the first pitch down there (strike zone), so I was ready for it."

Nuss might have been ready for that pitch, but Jacksonville wasn't ready for what happened next. With Schmit on third and Nuss on second, McGeath watched four wide ones to get the table for catcher Beaty, who roped a double to score two more for a 4-1 advantage.

After a wild pitch, Laszaic cracked another two-bagger to widen the lead to 6-1 with two RBI. "A" then advanced to third base on a wild pitch and coasted home for the final 7-1 margin when Connell's throw found its way into left field.

Nuss retired three of four hitters in the 12th to secure the win and mounds of praise from Letterio. "Gary has always been asked to carry the load on any team he's been on because of his (5-foot-11) size," said Letterio about Nuss whose older brother was a Lyman standout and pitched in the Boston Red Sox organization after a fine two-year career at Valencia Community College.

"I depend on how a kid looks in practice and Gary's had some real impressive practices. Just ask the other kids," insisted Letterio.

After Friday's showing, it's apparent no confirmation is needed.

Just like his Altamonte team, first baseman Jimmy Fox's bubble never burst as the Majors finished the Section Tournament unbeaten and will now head for the State Tournament Monday in Plant City.

Altamonte Major League Manager Gene Letterio seems to be pointing the way to Plant City to his troops Friday in the Section Tournament at Occoe. Altamonte followed the finger with an exciting, 7-1 12-inning victory over Jacksonville-San Mateo to earn a spot in Monday's State Tournament in Plant City. See Monday's Evening Herald for complete tournament details.

Suspended Legion Trails, 4-2 As Rains Interrupt Action

"We shouldn't be losing. It should be 3-to-3."

Altamonte Legion Post 183 Coach Bob McCullough was out of luck Friday afternoon, though, as Orlando raced to a 4-2 lead in the opening game of the two-out-of-three series at Sanford stadium before rain halted action in the bottom of the eighth.

But because of an American Legion rule that all tournament games must go the distance the two clubs resumed play Saturday morning to complete game one and then started game two.

A two-out two-run Phil Burgess single finally gave Post 286 its 4-2 advantage in the sixth.

McCullough's crew squandered opportunities early in the game to back the defending league champs against the ropes.

A leadoff triple by shortstop Bob Parker led to a first inning 1-0 Altamonte lead. However, they blew chances to add to their advantage in the third and fourth innings.

In the third Parker drew a walk, stole second and moved to third on a

Dave Martinez sacrifice. Catcher Bryan Holzworth then hit a deep fly ball to left center, but Parker trotted home thinking there was two outs instead of tagging up. Cleanup hitter Hob Reich couldn't drive Parker in with two outs and Altamonte held onto its narrow one run lead.

Orlando scored its first run in the top of the fourth when Jeff O'Dell singled with one out, stole second, moved to third when Jim Chickowski missed the throw from Holzworth and trotted home when Hob Reich threw the ball past third.

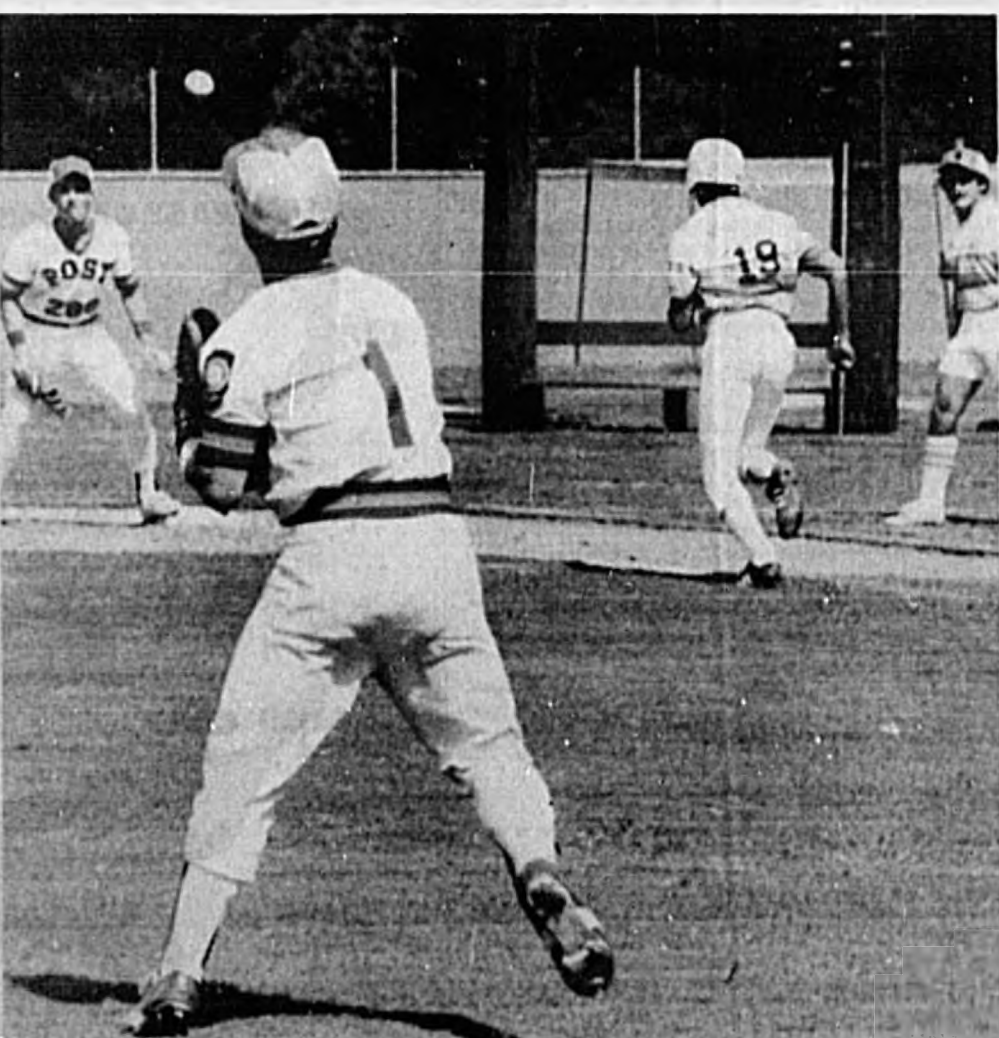

Post 183 again had an opportunity to post runs on the board in the bottom half of the fourth. Third baseman Jerry Winterhalter and Chickowski looped singles to right and moved into scoring position on a fly to right by John Reich. But Orlando starter Jerry Ryder got designated hitter Benton Wood to ground out to end the threat.

Both clubs added fifth inning runs and Orlando's two in the sixth were the difference prior to the rain.

Orlando will be without the services of Kevin Smith and Jeff O'Dell the rest of the series. Smith came up with a sore arm and didn't even dress out for Friday's opener.

O'Dell, who is normally an outfielder, filled in for Orlando at second base. In the eighth, Holzworth plowed into O'Dell while he was attempting to complete a double play effort. The SCC slugger had to be carried from the field with an injured knee.

In game two this morning, Orlando started either Leil Cornell or Burgess — both side armed right-handers — on the mound while Altamonte used either Gary Smith or Parker.

Sanford Gator 'Bundini' Hypes Ali's Comeback

Special To The Evening Herald
Drew "Bundini" Brown, Jr., Sanford native and trainer of Muhammed Ali said this week upon the opening of Ali's training camp in Deer Lake, Pennsylvania, "If we weren't serious about a comeback we wouldn't be here."

Bundini, the flamboyant figure who is familiar to anyone who has seen an Ali fight is as tall as Ali and always in his corner during rounds pumping up the champ and giving him bits of strategy.

During the rounds his loud booming voice can be heard shouting such phrases as his familiar, "float like a butterfly, sting like a bee."

Bundini was relaxed during the first week of camp. As he leaned against the ring in his black Ali Staff tee shirt after taping the three time heavyweight champ's hands, he discussed Ali's comeback chances.

'I am a gator from Sanford,' Bundini often claims while giving the special gator handshake with pinky finger opening like a gator's lower jaw.

"Ali was sick during the last fight in Las Vegas. He had taken too many thyroid pills and he couldn't break sweat. Anyone who has ever seen him fight knows that was not Muhammed Ali."

"In 14 rounds he never threw a single punch." Bundini, who has not only trained Ali but champion Sugar Ray Robinson before him, has circled the world with Ali many times but has never forgotten his Sanford roots. "I am a gator from Sanford," he often claims while giving the special gator handshake with pinky finger opening like a gator's lower jaw.

Bundini states that he will be attending to Ali during the next six or eight weeks of training in Deer Lake while the champ sharpens his reflexes and drops an additional twelve pounds in a slower, more controlled manner than the last weight loss which proved to be his undoing.

At that time Bundini says Ali will be taking on heavyweight challengers, perhaps two in an evening, in exhibitions in his effort to regain his license from the American Boxing Federation.

If this cannot be done Bundini reports that Ali plans to challenge the title-holder in one of many locations out of the country where he still retains a boxing license.

Strike Behind, Recurrence Still Lingers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major-league players and owners virtually have put the baseball strike behind them but questions remain over how baseball can prevent the crisis from recurring.

The settlement reached early Friday morning by Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, and Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owners, quiets the sport's labor problems for the duration of the tentative four-year agreement.

But it remains to be seen if the acrimony between players and owners will renew itself when the Basic Agreement expires following the 1984 season.

The agreement had three basic points: —A player pool system was adopted as the solution to the free-agent compensation issue that touched off the strike on June 12.

—Owners won a one-year extension of baseball's basic agreement.

—Players will receive accredited service strike time.

Ratification of the pact is expected with the executive board of the Major League Players Association meeting in Chicago at noon CDT today to review and probably recommend acceptance.

"I doubt there will be any problems among the players about accepting it," said Phil Niekro, player rep for the Atlanta Braves. "They realize it is as good as both parties are going to get."

Meanwhile, all 26 teams begin formal workouts today with many teams scheduling exhibition games for the latter part of next week. Play resumes with the All-Star Game in Cleveland Aug. 9 and championship games start the next day.

"It's the worst thing that's happened in the game in terms of crisis," said Commissioner Bowie Kuhn when asked to access the damage to baseball's reputation. "It's the worst crisis we've had. I do think the compensation achieved here will be good for the fans and worth the long fight. I think that will be proved in the years ahead."

"It's clear both sides lost," added owner Jerry Reinsdorf of the Chicago White Sox said. "The strike was senseless."

The strike, settled at 5:45 a.m., EDT on the 50th day, forced cancellation of 706 regular-season games, or 38 per cent of the season.

The owners have the option of implementing a split-season structure and many team officials are leaning toward the idea. Under that system, the teams that led their divisions at the time of the strike will be declared co-champions and all teams will start even beginning with games of Aug. 10.

If a team was to win both portions, the club in that division with the next-best winning percentage for the year would play the division winner.

"My sentiment would lie with a split season, not because we're fortunate enough to have been in first place at the time the strike occurred," said Philadelphia owner Ruly Carpenter. "But it would be very beneficial to those teams five, six, seven games out of first place. It would mean added hope to their fans. I believe that would be fair."

The owners will meet in Chicago Tuesday to consider the option.

"It's more equitable to start from scratch," Kuhn said. "A new start is fairer to all 26 clubs. I also think it has potentially great appeal to the fans. You can argue it both ways."

The agreement revolves around ranking players, and those include the top 30 per cent of each respective position group using statistics based on a two-year average. Type A ranking players will consist of those in the top 20 per cent and Type B ranking players shall be from 20 to 30 per cent.

Tough Tournaments

Astros Blank Bronco Gals; Sanford Softball Men Lose

Friday could be classified under the heading "tough tournaments," for area softball teams.

Manager Roger Richardson's Seminole Broncos were shut out by the Jacksonville Astros in the opening round of the Southern Regional for age 15 and under girls at Jacksonville.

"Our bats didn't work," was how Richardson assessed the Broncos' four singles. Shiela Dixon, Michelle Brown, Jill Lewis and Marcia Lewis stroked the Seminole safeties.

The Broncos fell behind 4-0 via some sloppy fielding in the second inning and never recovered. Jacksonville added two more runs in the sixth inning to hand Kathy Richardson her ninth loss against 18 victories. Fifteen fly ball outs also hampered Seminole.

Seminole never advanced a runner past second base. Saturday morning, the Broncos played the Tampa Mustangs at 11:45. The Mustangs lost to the Clearwater Confederates, 4-0 in the other opening round game.

Further down the east coast in Melbourne, Sanford's class "A" softball teams weren't having much better luck in the Florida Recreation Softball Association Tournament.

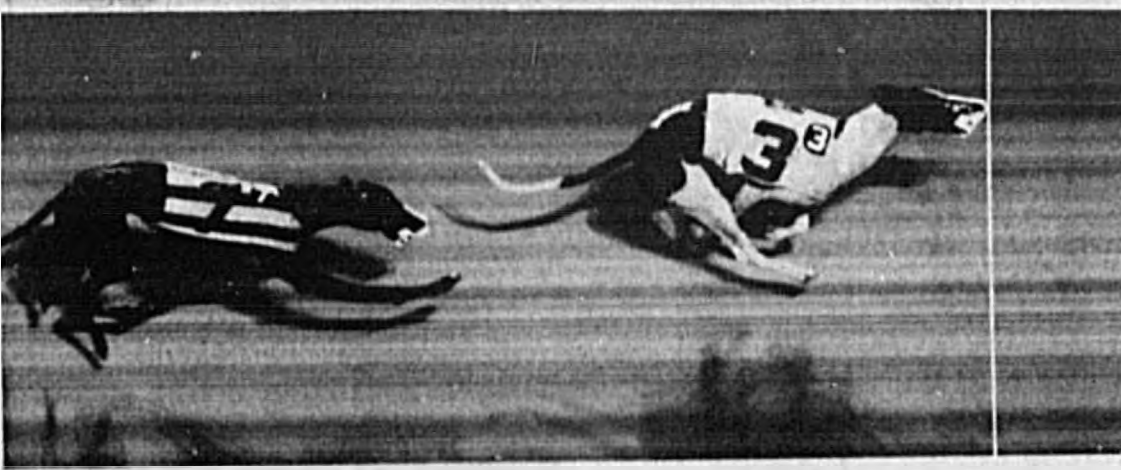

Kenny Hall's Oviedo Auto Parts squad was squashed by Ace Auto, 19-1. Oviedo jumped back into action

Saturday in the losers' bracket with a 2 p.m. game.

Despite three singles apiece from Don Anderson, Joe Benton and Tony Dunkinson, Sunnland dropped a 13-5 verdict to the Daytona Beach Sonics. Sunnland played its second game Saturday at 3:15 p.m.

Sanford's third entry—Rich Plan—didn't fair much better, dropping a 14-5 decision to Daytona's A's. Billy Griffith slapped a triple and two singles to pace Rich Plan. Randy Brown rapped three singles and Levi Haines had a triple and a single.

Rich Plan played its second game Saturday at 2 p.m.

Hondo Highwayman hits the wire for its ninth win Thursday at the Seminole Greyhound Park. K's Cardinal picked up second place honors.

Seminole Two Major Titles At Stake

Two major titles are yet to be decided as Seminole Greyhound Park enters the stretch drive of its maiden season of racing—the All Distance Kennel Championship and the individual victory crown.

The All-Distance Kennel Championship will be decided between Aug. 11 and Aug. 26 as 16 participating kennels each nominate two greyhounds for the 5-16ths of a mile distance, two for the 3-8ths and one for the 7-16ths. Each entrant competes twice a week over a two-week qualifying period, accumulating points for the respective kennels.

The top eight kennels in points at each distance have the opportunity to name their entry in the Aug. 26 finals. On that evening, championship races will be staged over the three distances, and the kennel which accumulates the most points from those races will be crowned All-Distance Kennel Champion.

The track wins championship is presently being hotly contested by some 19 greyhounds with six to nine wins each. At the top of the list going into this weekend were Flash Signal and Beaver's Bomber, both from the Scheele Kennel, along with Hondo Highwayman (Wayne Stovous).

In with eight wins were GE's Hession Sun (Scheele), K's Cardinal (Jack Kahn) and Norton's Queen (Ralph Lons).

The track wins championship could go right down to the final race of the season. Since the top greyhounds will obviously play important roles in the All-Distance Kennel Championship, versatility becomes a key factor.

Obvious threats at the 3/8ths distance are Norton's Queen, Loose Spender (Strong), Something Real (D.Q. Williams) and Drif's Chrysler (E.J. Alderson).

To Bold To Hold (Williams) is generally conceded the top 7-16ths competitor at the track, but competition also comes from Frostproof Mo (Robert Mendheim) and Silver Champ (Dick Andrews).

Other 5-16ths speedsters who figure to sway the balance of points include K's Majorette (Kahn), CK's Breakaway (Jarrett Kennel), WP Cornwall (Deryl Clark), Blazing Memory (British Sterling), K's Cardinal (Kahn).

Scheele and Williams have the kennels with the most apparent versatility. Scheele not only has the likes of Flash Signal, Beaver's Bomber and GE's Hession Sun looking strong in 5-16ths, but GE's Greco has distinguished himself at both 5-16ths and 3-8ths, the latter evidenced by a third place finish in last month's Grand National.

All-Distance format will stage qualifying races on Tuesday and Wednesday (Aug. 11 and 12) and again on Friday and Saturday Aug. 14 and 15). After a second round the following week on the same nights, the finals will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 26.

Raines Re-Directs Goals For Major League Restart

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

With Lou Brock's stolen base record fading like a $2 shirt, Montreal Expos' outfielder Tim Raines has redirected his major league baseball goals into different areas.

The Sanford swift one stole into the hearts of every baseball speed freak with 50 thefts in his first 55 games. He was light years ahead of Brock's record 118 steals.

Then came the strike and there went Raines' rookie dream. At first he thought the waitout was temporary. "If I can get 70 more games, I can still break the record," he assured all interviewers.

As the strike lingered, however, Raines' chances grew slimmer and slimmer to do something no mortal — much less a 21-year-old rookie — had ever done.

Only 53 games remain on the Expos' schedule when it resumes Monday, Aug. 10 in Montreal against Pittsburgh. "It would be very hard," said Raines Friday morning while packing his bags for West Palm Beach.

The Expo players left Friday for their spring training site. Olympic Stadium in Montreal is currently occupied with the likes of Vince Ferragamo, Billy "White Shoes" Johnson and other football Allouettes, so Raines will head south for his mid-season training.

When further pressed on the stolen base mark, Raines said he would be satisfied with 80 and a Montreal pennant, which he places foremost on his objectives.

"I don't want to kill myself going after a record," said Raines. "And I'm not going to worry about it. We're four games back and we've got to make up those games."

"We lost six games with the Phillies because of the strike. That's not going to make it any easier," pointed out Raines about the current league leaders. While there was nothing Raines could do about the wiped out games, the former Seminole did do something about his physical well-being. "I'm in good shape," said Tim who worked out at Sanford Memorial Stadium and played in a few semi-pro games for the Sanford All-Stars during his mini vacation.

Raines weighs 180 pounds which is just five pounds over his playing weight. "I'm a little fat," he laughed, "but I can take those pounds off in camp. Mostly I'll work on my hitting."

The transplanted second baseman was hitting .322 when the strike took the bat out of his hands. He feels he can hit .300 and would like to continue to lead the league in runs scored.

Raines biggest dream, though, hopes to be realized before the season starts. He wants to play in the All-Star Classic rescheduled for Cleveland on Sunday, Aug. 9.

Although All-Star balloting has been inconclusive, it very doubtful that Raines earned an outfield spot through a write-in campaign. When NL managers picked an All-Star team during the strike's most boring times, though, Raines held down an outfield spot along with teammate Andre Dawson and George Foster of the Cincinnati Reds.

Phillies' Manager Dallas Green is almost certain to add one of baseball's most exciting players to the NL squad. "I think I deserve it," Raines understated. "That'd be neat playing in front of all those people."

"And you know the National League ain't gonna lose if I can help it. But I gotta get there first. Then I'll worry about how I do," reasoned Tim. "I might just lay one (a bunt) down to get on base and go."

Raines wasn't just thinking about bunts when the strike was discussed either. He felt the owners were doing a "little laying down" themselves when it came to strike negotiations.

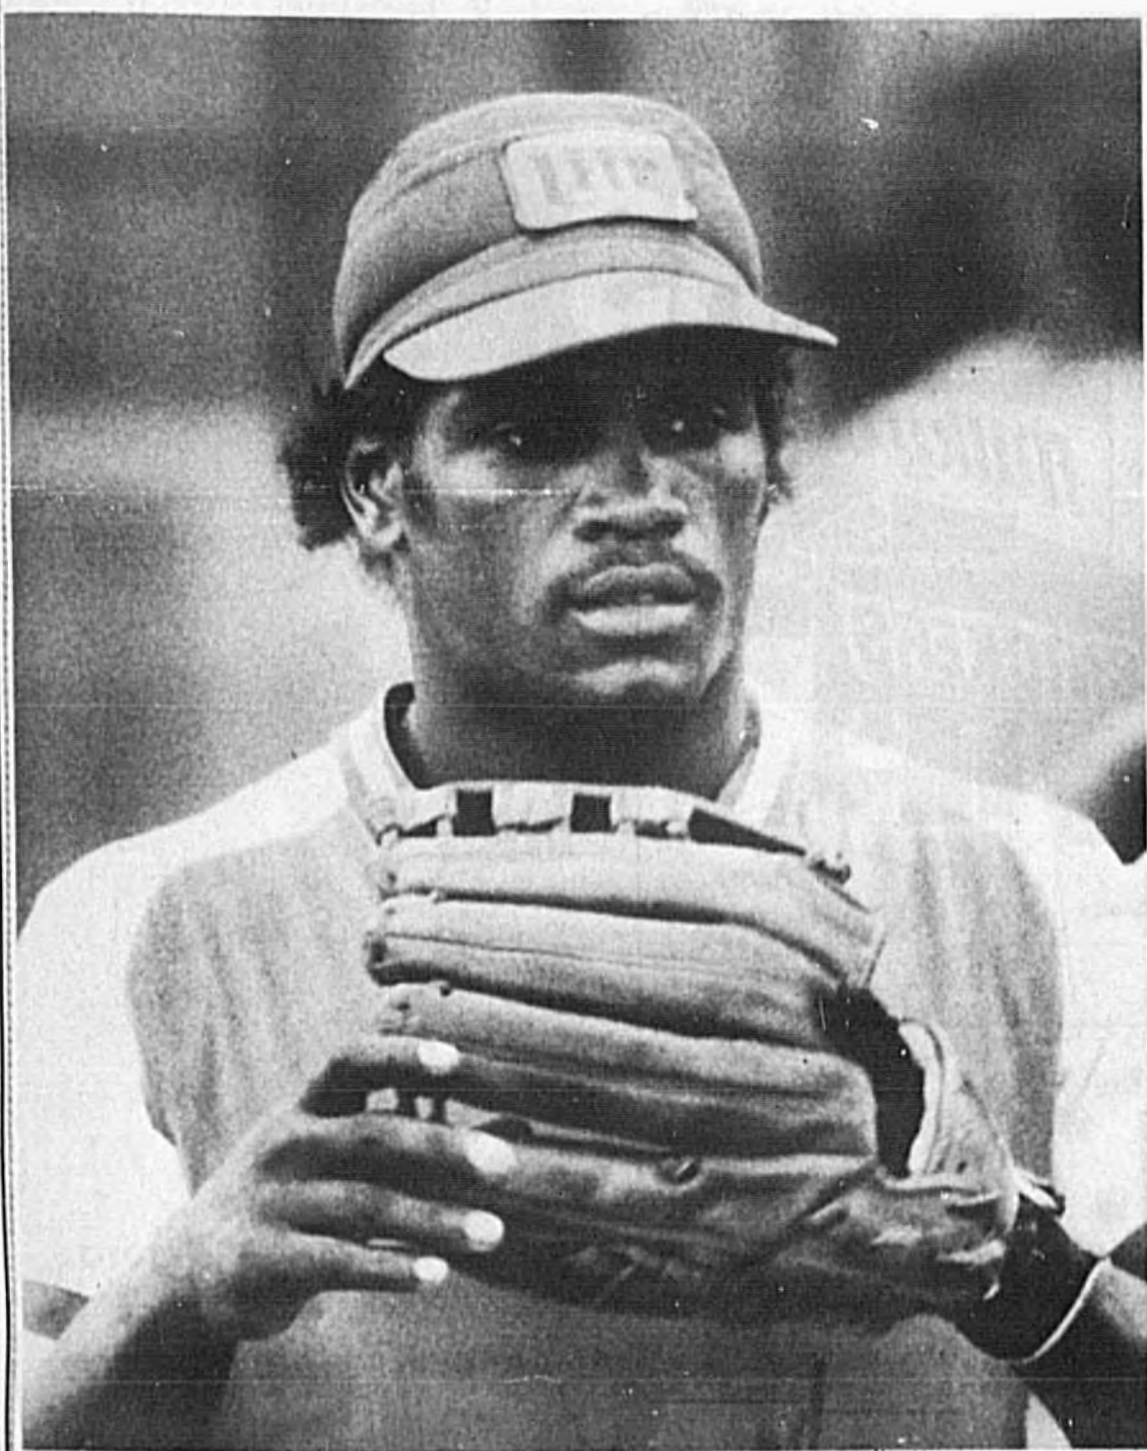

"All I can say is, 'It's about time it's over,'" said Raines about the strike. "All the owners were trying to do was break the players' union, but we held together. They just wanted their insurance money."

Raines heard about the strike finally ending through Montreal officials at 1:30 a.m. Friday. "I was up when they called. It was a relief," said Tim.

Raines wasn't up, however, when the phone jingled again at 4:30 a.m.

"4:30 in the morning. Can you believe that, man?" asked Raines. "Why in the hell would some (Montreal) writer call me at that hour?"

As fast as you move Tim, maybe he figured that was the best time to catch you.

Tim Raines renews his quest for the stolen base record when baseball resumes.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Young Holds Off Pressure For Deadlock With Caponi

DANVERS, Mass. (UPI) — Kathy Young has yet to feel the pressures of a Sunday afternoon in contention but she's holding up remarkably well in her first real shot at the big money.

Young, 26, from Portland, Ore., shot a career-low, nobogey 67 Friday to move into a tie with Donna Caponi after two rounds of a $150,000 LPGA tournament. Both players are at 137, seven under par.

"I can't remember the last time I played without making a bogey," said Young, who is 75th on the money list with her best finish being 18th at the Arizona Copper Classic in March.

Thompson Takes Over Canadian

TORONTO (UPI) — It was fervently hoped by most of the players in the Canadian Open that Leonard Thompson would content himself with life among other mere mortals in today's third round of the Canadian Open.

Thompson went on a rampage in the second round and shot a course and tournament record 9-under-par 62 to lead the $340,000 PGA event by four strokes.

Serum Saves Twins

Gary Serum hopes to be back in the major leagues next year. If he keeps pitching the way he did Friday night, he won't have to wait that long. The crafty right-hander bailed the Orlando Twins out of a ninth inning jam to lift the Twins to an 8-7 victory at Chattanooga in Southern League play.

The Twins held an 8-5 advantage entering the ninth inning, but Joyce Reyes had trouble getting anybody out. Manager Tom Kelly then turned the ball over to his former major leaguer who stifled the Lookout attack.

Serum's relief made a winner of left-hander Jack Hobbs who improved his ledger to 8-7. Gary Gaetti clubbed his 25th home run and Tim Teufel smacked his 14th as the O-Twins moved within eight of the Southern League mark by Asheville of 146.

OVIEDO OUSTED

Fernandina Beach first baseman gets to the base too late to stop a single by Oviedo's Dave Wood (crossing bag) as the Oviedo base coach looks on. Oviedo dropped the championship game to Fernandina Beach, 10-4 Saturday as numerous throwing errors led to the District 14 downfall. Wood, Terry Gammons and Randy Ferguson had hits for the Oviedo squad, which fell behind 3-0 early and couldn't comeback in the Saturday morning clash at Fustis.

Attraction Raises $5,460 For Vietnam Veterans' Fund

Cypress Gardens raised more than $5,000 for the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund during Honor Vietnam Veterans Month, according to officials at the Florida tourist attraction.

Conducted at the request of the Florida commanders of the American Legion, Disabled American Veterans and Veterans of Foreign Wars, Cypress Gardens distributed special coupons offering visitors $1 off the price of admission. For every coupon presented at the gate during June, $1 was contributed to the memorial fund.

"Not only do we appreciate the donation," said Jan Scruggs, founder and president of VVMF, "but we also appreciate the fact that programs such as this increase the public awareness about the memorial fund."

Bulmer Graduates From NAU

William Hawkins Bulmer of Longwood was among the 2,225 graduates who received degrees at Northern Arizona University's 1981 Commencement.

A dazzling new form is shown in the 1981 paintings of Geneva artist Benini, left, born out of the open skies of Florida, seen through the eyes of a mind pilgrim. The painting:

BENINI: A Rose Is A Rose Is A Rose

By SAM FRANCIS
Special To The Herald

When Benini first painted a lake in the background of his paintings in December, 1979, he was living in a century-old, wooden house in Evinston, Fla.

He had no plans to move. But soon after, he was approached by a professor and his wife who wanted to buy the historic home. About the same time, his urge to live near the water surfaced again.

The paintings with lakes in the background now seem highly prophetic. Within three months of the time he painted them, Benini bought a cottage on the shores of Lake Harney in Seminole County and built a studio there with 18 windows overlooking the water.

He lives there now, after a long journey that brought him from his homeland Italy via Grand Bahama, where he lived on a houseboat topped with a pyramid, then to Evinston — now Geneva.

I caught up with the artist several days after the grand opening of Halsey's in Winter Park which featured Benini's paintings in the premier exhibition of its fine arts program. My curiosity was aroused after witnessing the mob scene at Halsey's, when more than 1,000 well-wishers showed up for the unveiling of Benini's latest works.

After a brief introduction to some of his newest paintings, we discussed art and life, as the waves of Lake Harney gently lapped the beach before us.

"Ignorance is the one quality everyone is born with," Benini said. "Through passages called environment and experiences (life), this ignorance gets whittled away, constantly changing the essence of man."

"One of the measuring tools of this eliminating of ignorance is art, and blessed are the communities that have achieved an appreciation for the arts. A high degree of harmony and a higher respect of man's achievements usually pervade these communities. As life progressively evolves from a survival level to a level of sophistication, it marks the growth of a civilization."

He seemed at ease, accustomed to questioning about his art, yet reluctant to spell out detailed explanations of his work. "The work speaks for itself," is the way he put it; but he encouraged — in fact, he seemed to enjoy my own efforts to verbalize what I saw and felt in his paintings.

Benini's views on art in Florida reflect his presence here. "At the onset of the '60s, Florida seems to be the open frontierland for art. Private enterprise is booming and an ever-growing sophisticated national and international audience is beginning to support the arts in their various formats."

A number of recognized artists have chosen Florida as their living place, particularly in fields like painting and sculpture, that do not require an immediate audience.

I proceeded to look for answers in his work, hoping to glean more information about the creator in the process.

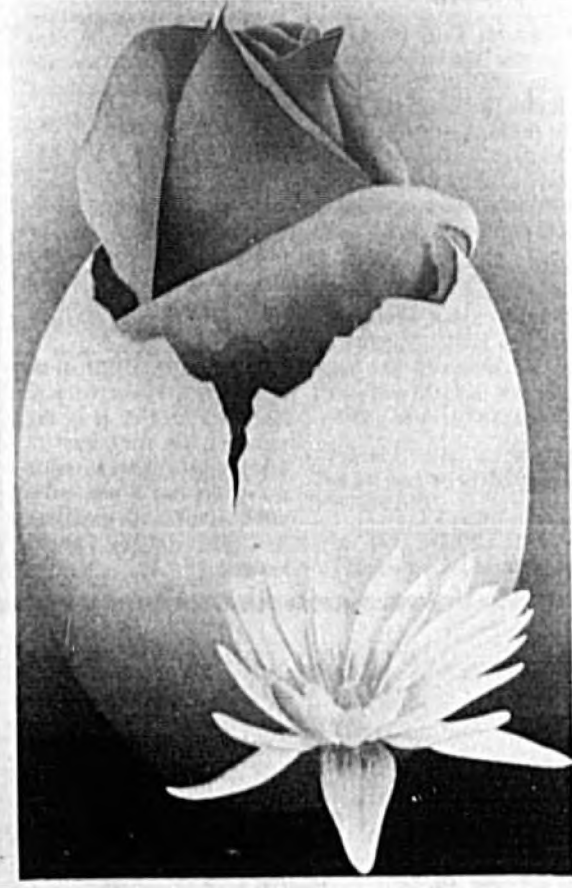

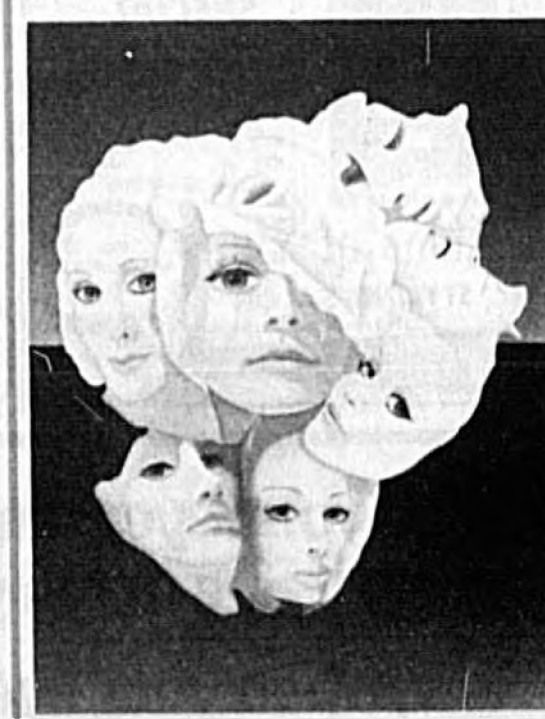

I knew the bare facts — Master of mystical roses and the super-conscious; veteran of more than 55 one-man shows in museums, galleries, and universities throughout the western world; internationally known for his huge Superroses, monochromatic canvases up to eight feet wide. I also knew he abandoned a highly successful career as a business entrepreneur to pursue his art fulltime.

In his manner of living, he seems to seek no greater pleasure than to excel in his profession, devoting himself mainly to study and painting. The walls of his home are lined with books. What is this man seeking? And how does

See BENINI, Page 18

Benini has painted not roses, but the rose, as the conveyor of many great themes, visual analogies of life's questions. 'Blue Winter Wind,' upper left, was painted in 1981 and is three feet by five feet. 'Pleiades,' lower left, is four feet by five feet. 'The House of Wide Beliefs,' 1981, is three feet by four feet.

Lake's Thirst Quenched; Thanks To SISTER Inc.

By DORIS DIETRICH
OURSELVES Editor

Lake Carollo is a charming, restful little spot probably called "the pond" or the "lake in the park."

It's a placid little lake—nameless to many people who seek tranquility in the calm, mirror-like waters while picnicking or just communing with Mother Nature.

Like many other area lakes, Lake Carollo tucked away in Fort Mellon Park, Sanford became thirsty during the recent drought. Too bad the old, old Sanford landmark is drying up.

And then SISTER came to the rescue.

SISTER Inc. is a group of Sanford businesswomen who get things done. They're Sanford's Interested Sarahs To Encourage Rejuvenation.

The women discovered that a free flowing well was located in the park near the site of the old municipal swimming pool.

Could the water flowing from the well be piped into the thirsty little lake?

Under the direction of Jim Jernigan and the City of Sanford, Lake Carollo is now rippling with new life and a higher water line.

Vivian Buck, president of SISTER, says she is excited over the completion of the piping—a SISTER project for 1981.

Mrs. Buck said the $600 piping cost was paid from proceeds from the second annual ice cream social, "Sunday in the Park."

"The lake is definitely higher," Mrs. Buck said. "It is a nice, pleasant place for relaxing and watching the ducks." Sorry, but no fishing or swimming.

And now SISTER plans to take the piping project a step further. They are embarking on a beautification and landscape program around the park.

"But we will be asking the assistance of other service clubs and groups to complete this," Mrs. Buck said.

She mentioned that SISTER's next undertaking will be to install a sprinkler system to water the projected plants around the lake.

"Jim Jernigan is working it up," she said, "so the work can be done in three phases."

In the meantime, while park patrons are enjoying Lake Carollo, SISTER is finalizing plans for the next ice cream social, Oct. 4, to help pay for the sprinkler system.

"Our annual ice cream social is our main fund-raising project," Mrs. Buck said.

Hot Cars Deathly To Kids, Pets

DEAR ABBY: Unless I get this off to you now, I may forget my anger and frustration.

This afternoon when I pulled into the parking lot of a grocery-deli, I found myself alongside a compact car with a cute little white dog inside.

I did my shopping. When I returned 15 minutes later, the car and dog was still there. It was sweltering hot and the windows were up, so I looked around for the owner, waited a few minutes, then tried to get into the car to crack a window so that poor dog could get some air. The doors were locked, so I went back into the store and asked who owned the car and dog. A man in a T-shirt, cool and comfy, claimed ownership and said he had not been in the store 2 minutes. Untrue, of course.

Abby, please tell your readers that when a dog is left in a car, there is no need to lock the doors for protection against thieves — the dog is the threat. And please say something about the cruelty of leaving a pet in the car with no ventilation on hot summer days.

Dear Abby

DEAR DOG LOVER: Thanks for the opportunity to share some important, timely facts: When the temperature is 85 degrees outside, the temperature inside a parked car (even with the windows slightly open) will reach 102 degrees within 10 minutes. And in 30 minutes, it will reach 120 degrees!

The normal body temperature of a dog is approximately 102 degrees; it can withstand approximately 108 degrees for a very short time before suffering irreparable brain damage or death. Never leave a child or a pet in a parked car in the sun — even with the windows open.

As the song goes: "Bless the beasts and children, for in this world they have no choice, they have no voice."

DEAR ABBY: My younger brother did not graduate from high school with his class because he was told he didn't have enough credits. He felt terrible about it, but reacted maturely. He decided to go to summer school to make up the credits and get his diploma that way.

A week after graduation took place, my mother got a telephone call from my brother's high-school counselor, stating that school officials neglected to count the points of a night class he had taken the first semester; that he had plenty of credits and should have graduated with his class!

My mother requested that the principal write a letter of apology to my brother to make up for the humiliation he had suffered. The counselor said the principal would be glad to write such a letter.

So far no letter has been received. What should we do? BIG SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Call and job the principal's memory. A letter of apology is small restitution for such a colossal gaffe.

DEAR ABBY: I met a very attractive, eligible widower last winter, and we've been keeping steady company since.

My only complaint is the way he keeps talking all the time about Mildred, his deceased wife. I never talk about my deceased husband. Outside of that, he is a decent man and we get along just fine.

He has asked to marry me, but this is the way he proposed to me: "How would you like to take Mildred's place?" UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: If he has a sense of humor, tell him that since Mildred is in the cemetery, you don't want to take her place. But if he wants a new life and a new wife, you'll consider it, providing he quits talking about Mildred.

he set out to find the answers to questions that haunt him? Speaking in his customary plurality, he explained, "We set out to a life of creativity with the same spirit as a pilgrim. We have lightened our emotional and physical baggage to a minimum, in order to be able to wander through the paths of the mind in our quest for the self."

"We have journeyed through the past, uncovering tracks previously known to us and yet buried in the sands of memory and we are constantly taking the first steps on to new paths."

"There are no limits to all that needs to be known, and to our capacity in due time to do so. Our respect for the passages of life has increased with the unfolding of our understanding, and each bit of light has dispersed the fear of darkness and brought the elements of faith into our life, a faith free to grow, unbound by dogmas. As a forever evolving element, Art needs total freedom."

His approach to life overlaps his approach to art. With this in mind, the paintings reveal certain clues we might not otherwise find.

For example, we see evidence of his intensive contact and research with nature. The unfolding pageantry of an endless succession of roses and the exploration of design, color fields and interplay of light and shadow within them; the human figure; snakes; eggs; birds; mountains. Through the ripple of a muscle, to the minute detail of an eye, to the tension of a poised snake, we detect an extensive study of nature and her movements.

What we can't see is the radical act of simplification — the focusing, the discarding of countless choices and ideas to come up with the final selection of one particular style, one finished product.

We are also aware of the corresponding exploration of ideas and questions voiced in the paintings. These are suggestive works. Each painting goes beyond the sum of its elements. In the depths of the unconscious, Benini's paintings evoke the atmosphere of a lost paradise or a promised land yet to come, where man at peace can contemplate his existence before the eternal beauties of nature.

"Pleiades," a four feet by five feet canvas, suggests both presence and absence, a horizon that splices both dream and reality. At the far edge of the tangible and the imaginary, it invites us into the domain of pure contemplation.

Benini has a true passion to pursue the unknown, to jump right into the midst of mystery, hammer away at fantasies and facts alike, creating a rush of creative violence that eventually erupts into a surprisingly composed and tranquil painting.

To grasp Benini's art, we must approach it with a mind open to travel into the realms he opens up for us and even beyond. It is art that allows us to transcend our time and what we usually see around us. He gives us a dialogue to the distant, and puts the mystery back into our lives.

In "Paris's Dilemma," Benini fuses form and void, linking foreground and background so they evoke an unprecedented feeling of transience. Curves are diaphanous and lose themselves, petals waver and disappear, and what seems precise disappears into a prophetic abyss — organic matter in perpetual motion.

Such paintings cross over the bridge between the actuality of life and the ambiguities of life.

Benini works with acrylics on canvas. The extent of his dexterity with the brush is evidenced when viewers mistake his work for airbrush, a technique he never uses. He is capable of orchestrating any mood, color or emotion with the hand-held brush. He is also master of suggesting the full power of the palette thru the use of one predominant color. Blue, now, supplemented by whiteness, accented by isolated spots of vivid color, reveals the intensity of vision in a world of futuristic mythologies.

No artist in the world has made more extensive or symbolic expressions of the rose. Although Benini has concentrated on the design and structure of the rose, he constantly pursued more than that. He painted not roses, but the rose, as the conveyor of many great themes, visual analogies of life's questions. He explored its universal symbology, he entered it as one enters a cave, he circumvented it, painted it as the human body, the sky, earth, inside the philosophical egg and deep within the cavern of the psyche.

In Benini's 1981 paintings, a different mood transpired — a pictorial and spiritual metamorphosis that goes beyond our sense of everyday reality. The real value of the work, as I see it, is the way it offers valid and universal truths in a dazzling new form, born out of the open skies of Florida, seen through the eyes of a mind pilgrim.

Slave Auction Sparks Army Benefit

Doris Dietrich OURSELVES Editor

The Salvation Army's annual banquet Tuesday night at the Sanford Civic Center beckoned a host of supporters to share in the victory dinner, so-called by George Touhy.

Although a slave auction was not listed on the program, this segment of the friendly gathering sparked a great deal of excitement and enthusiasm.

The SA advisory board members donated slave services—bid for by supporters. The board offered a variety of services.

Auctioneer George Stiffey's soothing spiel or chant provided an authentic professional air as some of Sanford's finest faced the auction block.

Maybe the "most valuable slave" was just what the doctor ordered—maybe not. The bidding escalated into a heated and heavy contest between a doctor and a doctor's wife—W. Vincent Roberts, M.D., and Gerry Weldon, wife of Dr. Earl Weldon, president of Seminole Community College, the slave up for bid.

Dr. Roberts seemed carried away, and from time to time, consulted with his wife, Sheila, before raising Gerry's inaudible bid.

The auctioneer's chant gained momentum—faster, faster!

Dr. Roberts got down to serious business, first, by removing his jacket. He gulped water, swabbed at his brow with a bright red napkin and reached for another cigarette.

Gerry Weldon finally gave up and did not exceed the $500 bid of Dr. Roberts — who seemed relieved.

SA executive board president Clyde Long directed a remark to Gib Edmonds, president of First Federal of Seminole about the value of FF's director Dr. Weldon. Well put.

Charlotte Smith earned the title of "super saleslady" for selling 44 $25 tickets to the benefit banquet. And Sheila Roberts ran a close second with 39 tickets to her credit.

Jack Horner, executive manager of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, introduced several "friends of the army" including Mrs. Sara Krider. The gymnasium at the SA is named for her late husband, John Krider, and also the late Harold Kastner.

Last year's United Way campaign chairman and president of UW this year, Dave Joswick, presented a check to SA from NCR.

Dave was accompanied by his wife, Barbara, an automobile accident victim the preceding day.

According to the SA's Capt. Carl Phillips, about $26,000 had been raised toward the projected fund of $150,000 to ease the army's financial burden.

The program was presented by Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole and School of Dance Arts under the direction of Miriam Wright, one of the owners and teachers at the school and artistic director and choreographer of BGS.

Miriam deserves plaudits for putting the spectacular show together with limited dancers and stage crew available. Her sister, Valerie Weld, and husband, George, have been in the Virgin Islands, among other paradise spots, combining business with pleasure.

Among those attending the groundbreaking for Ronald McDonald House in Gainesville were Tom and Barbara Hunt, Nancy Crawford, her daughter, Mandy; president of the Junior Woman's Club of Sanford, Gail Berger, Joan Edwards, Dr. and Mrs. Vann (Laura) Parker and Jean Clontz and her mother, Alice Toney, and Jean's daughter, Lisa.

Friends of Viola and Woodrow Clark plan to roll out the red carpet when the Clarks visit in Sanford next week from their home in North Carolina near Hendersonville.

The former Sanford couple have entertained numerous friends from here. Recent guests of the Clarks were Lucy and Bud Leyer, Val and John Colbert and Jerri and Bill Kirk.

Joanne P. Mize, a family counselor and teacher at Seminole Community College and a doctoral candidate at Nova University, Fort Lauderdale, attended the university's ninth annual Summer Institute of the Center for Higher Education held at the Diplomat Hotel, Hollywood.

The focus of the 1981 Summer Institute, which brought together some of the finest minds in the fields of higher education today, was, "Educational Research: Problems, Practices and Potential."

Nova University doctoral candidates, all of whom are working professionals in the field of higher education, gathered for seminars and lectures and to interrelate with their peers from every corner of the United States and Canada.

Mrs. Blake (Joyce) Sawyers flew to Edison, N.J. to meet her new grandson, Stephen Blake Hobbs, the son of her daughter, Donna, and her husband, David Hobbs.

Birth

Mrs. David and Donna (Sawyers) Hobbs of Edison, N.J., announce the birth of a son, Stephen Blake, who weighed in at 7 lbs., 10 1/2 oz. on July 24.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sawyers, Sanford. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hobbs, Charlotte, N.C. Great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Burke Steele of Sanford.

Gingerbread N' All That Grand Opening at Browser's Barn

A grand opening will be held down at Browser's Barn, if you're from Sanford, or up at Browser's Barn, if you're from Altamonte Springs, Aug. 4 through 6, that's Tuesday through Thursday, which are the days we will open regularly from now on.

In the Barn you'll find The Bunkie Spoon — a free room serving soups, salads, sandwiches and desserts from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Tea and coffee hours are 9:30-11 a.m. and 1:30-3 p.m. The menu has been fast tested by friends and some strangers, who have become friends, in the last few weeks. They've been coming back so it must be good.

In the Loft — an assortment of antiques and collectibles put together by a group of eight dealers. We have a nice selection of Murmurs and some things miniature, too. Dee's Pottery Shop — plants that can only be described as decorative items, they are so lovely and abundant.

And there's no telling what you may find in the Moe's Nest, whatever it is, you may be sure that it's handcrafted and attractive.

We're also having a visiting artist series, with different artists or craft workers setting up in the through way for several days at a time. Margaret Newman, a well known and hard central Florida painter, will illustrate this program for us. She will be exhibiting some of her favorite paintings for our grand opening. Some will be for sale, but some will be from her private collection of her work, making this a rare opportunity for Newman followers to see things she normally does not show.

All in all, our group has had fun putting Browser's Barn together. We hope that it is a place to relax and enjoy. We hope that you will join us for this grand opening celebration. Browser's Barn is located at 130 W. Jessup Avenue in the Langwood Historic District. To reach it, find the intersection of S.R. 434 and S.R. 427 (also East Lake Street) between U.S. 192 and I.A. Turn north on 427. About three blocks up you'll see Langwood Village Inn, an old Victorian Hotel. The good office is next Jessup Avenue a little dirt road right behind the post office parking lot. There's a trap about a half block west, where there's plenty of off street parking.

If you should get lost — some do — call 831-4481 and we'll re-route you from where you are.

Mormons Advocate Being Prepared

Oscar the Grouch, the grumpy Sesame Street character lives in a garbage can, as any child can tell you. And while you don't have to take up residence in one, living out of a garbage can could save your life in the event of a disaster, says the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons).

However, this particular garbage can has to be one stocked carefully with emergency supplies. Admittedly, not everyone will experience earthquakes, floods, fires, hurricanes, tornadoes or flat tires in their lifetime, but if they do will they be ready?

At a general conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, church members were instructed to include among their recommended year's supply of food, clothing and fuel an emergency two-week supply. And a good place to store much of it, they were told, is in a garbage can.

A sufficient stash of food, medical supplies, flashlights, blankets and other necessities can be unobtrusively stored in a clean garbage can in a corner, in a garage or under a table. If disaster strikes, you're prepared. Just grab the garbage can and head for shelter.

If a can would be too heavy, use a backpack for the same purpose. Have it packed and ready to go, conveniently stored where it's accessible. Or if you have a car, consider keeping part of your trunk stocked with emergency supplies. This is a wise idea for times other than disasters, too. If you have a flat tire or a suddenly dead engine in an isolated place, your emergency supplies might help, say the Mormons.

Under some conditions, however, relying solely on a cache in a car won't help unless the trunk storage is packaged in an easily carried form. You couldn't take much with you if you had to carry heavy cans and bulky sweaters in your arms. But a backpack makes it simpler.

The emergency supply should include several essentials. Consider water purification tablets, matches, candles, a filled canteen, a flashlight, batteries, warm clothing, a first-aid kit, a transistor radio, needed medications, an area map, food and if there is canned food—a can opener.

You might also include a poncho or other protection against rain, first-aid instructions, a list of emergency aid locations in your community, basic tools, flares and a sleeping bag.

Probably the heaviest item on the list is food. Light, freeze-dried foods that need only moisture and cooking are available, although they can be expensive. Avoid carrying food in glass containers. Store foods that are not easily perishable and are high in calories and nutrients. Also include vitamin tablets.

Once you've organized an emergency stash, spend an afternoon with your family or close friends discussing what steps to follow the Mormons advise. Choosing a central meeting place in case of disaster will save anxiety and worry. It's also wise to instruct family members in turning off gas, water and electricity sources. This can help protect your home from the backwash effects that often accompany disasters.

You might never experience a catastrophic disaster that will pit your life against your preparation and ingenuity. But if you do, this simple supply might save your life, they point out.

Blessing Of The Fishing Fleet

Ancient Custom With A Modern Touch

BAYOU LA BATRE, Ala. (UPI) — A Medieval European custom, the blessing of a fishing fleet, is celebrated religiously in this small Gulf Coast town — complete with a distinctive American touch.

A Catholic archbishop, dressed in a white gown with gold trim, outstretched his arms and blessed the fleet of two dozen fishing boats, which were adorned with a colorful array of flags, banners and statues and packed with merry-makers.

Police Chief Ralph Harbison estimated the turnout for the 32nd annual St. Margaret's Fleet Blessing last Sunday at 15,000 to 17,000.

"Other cities along the Gulf Coast have a fleet blessing, but they're not as pretty as ours," said Willie Louise Bryant, who has served as chairman of the town's biggest social event for 21 years.

"It's really a European custom," she said. "It was just picked up here — I'm not sure who came up with the idea."

A wide range of activities mark the blessing, which is annually set on the last Sunday in July. There's a Fleet Blessing dance, a flea market, an art show, a parade through the streets and, most importantly, a parade of the fishing boats up and down the bayou north of Portersville Bay.

In town, the high school band joined a color guard, fire engines and cars carrying the maiden of the fleet and other dignitaries, including U.S. Sen. Howell Heflin, who attended his third straight blessing.

"It is a significant and meaningful event that honors the gallant fishermen who brave the elements to catch shrimp," said the Alabama Democrat.

The parade participants tossed bubble gum and candy to children along the parade route, who scrambled to collect the booty.

Two miles away, on the waterfront, the crowd included tattooed ladies, naked babies and toothless sailors. They munched on a seafood dinner served in a loading dock converted into a dining hall.

"Our seafood meal is a wonderful deal," said Mrs. Bryant. "All the shrimp and the fish are donated by the local seafood houses. Some of the boatmen will give it to you right off the boats."

Smiling women dished up 3,000 pounds of shrimp, 4,000 crabs and 2,500 pounds of catfish. A heaping plate was served for $4, and late comers got the same meal for just $3.

On one 60-foot shrimper, a country band played. Kegs of beer were tapped on several boats and it didn't take the crowd long to empty them out.

"This year we didn't, but sometimes they'll get a little out of hand," chuckled Police Chief Harbison. "It's a combination of the heat and the alcohol."

Tooting their horns, the boats untied from the dock and drifted out into the steamy bayou for the parade. One boat was packed to the brim with at least 250 celebrating passengers.

Some were adorned with Bible verses, some simple slogans such as "God Bless America" and even "Roll, Tide."

A huge American flag covered a side of Archbishop Oscar Lipscomb's craft. A statue of Jesus, arms outstretched, decorated another.

Mrs. Bryant said Bayou La Batre's blessing usually has as many as 75 boats, but this year many were already shrimping in Texas, where the season began early.

There's quite an incentive to decorate the boats. Mrs. Bryant said $10,000 in prizes goes to the most colorfully prepared shrimper.

"It's a big thing for this town," said Mrs. Bryant. "We draw from all over the state, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi."

HE GAVE HER A SONG

Karen Harris, (shown above with her back-up group) soloist, recording artist, and a former member of The Festival of Praise Spurrrows, will appear at the Trinity Assembly of God located at 875 Elkcam Boulevard, Deltona, on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. She began her musical career at age 8. While attending the PTL School of Evangelism, she joined the musical family of PTL Club television program. She has been the guest on several other Christian television programs. Her latest album is "God Gave Me a Song" on Sweetwater Records.

The Role Of The Ritual In Worship

The focus of the interview with Dick Cavett shifted to the Episcopal Book of Common Prayer.

"How long has it been," the erudite Yale-educated television personality asked his interviewer, "since you've read the marriage vows in the old Book of Common Prayer? That language! And they're changing that glorious language to modern language. Appalling."

That led interviewer Barbara Harrison to ask, "Do you like rituals?"

"Yeah," said Cavett. "I've come to realize that the very things I found tiresome about rituals in earlier life are the things that make them important. The familiarity of rituals is so comforting."

Then he quoted a line from "A Letter to His Daughter" by William Butler Yeats: "May she live in a household where all is custom and ceremony."

This got Cavett to reflect a little on his own life as far as rituals go.

"Sometimes," he said, "when you live in a nerve-jangling absurdity of television, you find yourself having just the simplest envy of the guy who lives out in Mesa, Arizona, and makes a bracelet every day, and then when he's through with his bracelet, he gets on his horse and rides back home and has his dinner at the same time every day and goes to bed at the same time every night, and the pattern is repeated and repeated."

Ms. Harrison reminded Cavett that he was hopelessly romanticizing "the guy with the bracelet."

Cavett agreed. "Maybe I'd be bored with a life like that," he admitted, "but something a little closer to that would be desirable. It would be nice to have more pattern."

While we are trying to discover what has gone wrong with modern life, it might be a good idea to ask ourselves whether the disappearance of ritual and pattern and tradition hasn't been partly responsible for our unhappy state.

"We don't always realize the impact of these little things on family life," says author Barbara Myer, "until our grown children return home and comment on the good feeling these

Saints And Sinners

traditions give them."

I know this is true from my experience with my own children.

When they were growing up, we always said a little table grace. Now they have all left home. Most of them live or go to school in the East. None are churchgoers, but whenever they come home — frequently with their friends — and we sit down to a meal, they all, without any self-consciousness or embarrassment, bow their heads and join in the table grace they learned as little children. I always find this very moving.

The rituals of churchgoing also can play an important role in our lives. The words and songs and acts that we return to week after week become for us an intimation that, although much in our lives is transitory, there are some things that abide in their everlastingness.

(Of course, not all customs are worthwhile. Cleveland Amory, in "The Proper Bostonians," tells of old Judge John Lowell sitting down to breakfast in his home one morning with his wife.

The maid enters and says something to Mrs. Lowell in a low voice. It is obviously bad news. Mrs. Lowell communicates this news to her husband: There is no oatmeal.

This is no minor domestic tragedy; Judge Lowell has, up until this morning, had oatmeal for breakfast every single day of his life. It is a Proper Bostonian custom.

How will the judge react? He lowers the paper he has been reading and says to his wife, "Frankly, my dear, I never did care for it."

Some customs are probably worth breaking. But we must be careful not to throw out all customs with the oatmeal.

4 Things The Bible Can Do

Pastor's Corner

By FRED BAKER, MINISTER, Sanford Church of Christ

Isaiah 55:10, 11. "For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the things whereto I send it."

The Bible is a very old book, as we consider time. The work of writing began about 1500 years before Christ, and it was completed near the close of the first century of the Christian era. All of this adds up to the fact that the Bible, as we now have it, is a book of antiquity.

This, however, does not imply that the Bible is out of date. On the contrary, its heart still beats as strongly as ever, and its truth is always waiting to be laid bare. The truth which this Holy Book contains is as relevant today as it was when it was first recorded.

The men who wrote the Bible had no idea that it would speak to all men, in all lands, at all times, and virtually in all languages; but that is precisely what has happened. This Grand Old Book is as much alive in this century as it was at any time since it was written (completed), and its message is as relevant in this scientific age as it was in the ancient pastoral setting from whence it came.

The reason for the Bible's great vitality is the unchanging nature of the human race. Man's outward actions may change, from fighting with spears to fighting with bombs; but his inner urges are always the same. When once we learn to sift the eternal truth contained in the Bible from the details of its outward events, we will find a new source of strength for our lives.

Let us consider four things which the Bible can do for us: — It can introduce you to God. — It can make us feel worthwhile. — It can show us how to find forgiveness. — The Bible holds out to us a living hope.

Special Performance For The Deaf

Florida's official state play, "Cross and Sword," has designated Wednesday, August 5, a special night's performance for the deaf. There will be 18 interpreters on duty offering assistance at the box office, concession stand, and gift shop, and of course to interpret the entire play.

A special section of the amphitheatre has been set aside and two groups of interpreters will interpret the play for the deaf. Tickets for this section may be purchased at a 10 percent discount off the regular price of $4 for adults and $2 for children under age 12, for the deaf and their immediate families.

"Cross and Sword," now in its 17th year, is a story that leaves the audience proud of its American heritage of pioneers and settlers and is family entertainment.

For more information, contact Cross and Sword, P. O. Box 1965, St. Augustine, FL 32084; or call (904) 471-1965.

For Sunday, August 2, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY August 2, 1981

Like dripping water can eventually cut through solid rock, so your material gains may come slowly in the year ahead. The possibilities are good, so be patient.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your greatest benefits might come today through people you don't even know. It's possible you may never be made aware of those who make your success possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Group involvement offers the type of activity you'll be looking for today. If you don't already have plans, get on the stick and bring your crowd together.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In your own gentle manner you get everyone's attention today. Those you deal with are drawn to you because of your genuine concern for them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your philosophical and happy-go-lucky attitude makes you a fun person to be around today. Any gathering where you are found will be one of merriment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even your opponents will appreciate the way you handle challenging situations today. Good sportsmanship and lightheartedness makes you a fun contender.

For Monday, August 3, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY August 3, 1981

From time to time this coming year, unusual developments could provide you with sudden windfalls. You must be very alert, however, to be able to recognize your opportunities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Something in which you're involved and which now appears to be a losing proposition could suddenly take a turn for the better today. Expect the unexpected. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try not to let timid inclinations take hold today in areas where you should be assertive. If you think positively you'll act positively. The results will be gratifying.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Prejudging situations is counter-productive and could work against your best interests today. You're luckier than you think.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your involvements with friends should turn out satisfactorily for all concerned today, but don't try to press issues where proper foundations have not been laid.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) No one will say that you are an opportunist today, but they will be able to say

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The way you're able to offer advice and yet not offend the person involved allows this individual to stop defending his position and make the necessary change.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There is nothing selfish about your outlook today. Your major concern is how your associates fare and not how well you make out. This makes you the real winner.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Dan Cupid is sitting on your shoulder today, looking to sweeten an old romance, or to shoot arrows at those he feels to be worthy of you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Arts and crafts may offer you the most pleasurable outlet today, especially projects which might require either dexterity or muscle development.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone for whom you have good vibes may show a little more than just a platonic interest in you today. You'll welcome the overtures.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Material items are likely to come to you today through your dealings with members of the opposite sex. Their aim will be to please you.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Put in words your desires today to one who might be able to help make them realities. Sometimes even those closest to us don't know what we want unless we tell them.

how that you are one who knows how to take advantage of opportunities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you feel you don't have the answers for solving a problem facing you, ask the advice of a clever friend who has previously provided you with solutions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In your commercial dealings today, focus only on the facts and not on wishful thinking. Your possibilities for profit are promising, provided you're logical.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try to keep your goals in harmony with your mate's today, rather than seek to gratify selfish interests. When you pull together each will benefit equally.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against a tendency today toward daydreaming. If you concentrate on your work, however, the results will be rewarding.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Uncharacteristically, you could be a trifle jealous today of one you are fond of and who also thinks highly of you. Beware of the green-eyed monster.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could find yourself in a situation today where you may feel justified in making excuses. Rather than rationalize, strive for achievement.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Don't turn pleasurable activities today into something other than what they were intended to be. Fun and games shouldn't be taken seriously.
