

Girl In School For First Time At Graduation

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Betty Sheer met her classmates last week for the first time when she received her high school diploma.

Betty's appearance at the nearby Jones Township High School commencement program was the first time the 22-year-old girl had even been inside a school.

She is afflicted with a rare disease that has made her almost as brittle as a china doll.

Her family says doctors have a name for it, but the simple explanation is that her bones are unable to store sufficient calcium.

Careful as she and her family have been, she's sustained more than 100 bone fractures. Her worst mishap several years ago came when she was dropped while being carried to a taxi. That time, she suffered multiple fractures of her thigh and, since then, has had to be in a wheel chair.

Her grandmother taught her at home for the first four years of her schooling. Then the township school board arranged to have a teacher visit her twice a week.

She has learned to operate a typewriter and now hopes to do secretarial work at home.

About 18 million passengers enter New York City elevators in a typical day and are carried about 125,000 miles vertically.

Herbert Roller, manager of the Rialto Theater, said available student passes will be available for the summer, which entitle holders to a reduction in admission price to 30 cents. However, Roller pointed out, holders of these passes, high school students, will have to be quieter during programs in order that adults may enjoy them. He said he would pick up any student on a moment's notice should he deem behavior of the holder should warrant such action.

Constitutional Guarantees Suspended By Guatemala

GUATEMALA (AP)—Guatemala's Communist-backed government ordered a 30-day suspension of constitutional guarantees today. The action was taken at an extraordinary session of President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman's Cabinet. It followed three weeks of rising tension following U.S. objections to the delivery of a large shipment of arms from Communist Poland to the Central American country.

Among the civil rights suspended was the constitutional article establishing freedom of expression and the press. The Cabinet said it was imposing the suspension in view of the "current situation." A week ago Arbenz

Adams Against Board Being Queried: Cohn

McCarthy Aide Says Army Counsel Threatened To Circulate Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—Roy M. Cohn swore today Army Counsel John G. Adams once said "nothing" to prevent the McCarthy subcommittee from questioning members of the Army's top loyalty board. And, Cohn testified, Adams threatened to cause an "embarrassing" report to be circulated about him unless the subcommittee withdrew subpoenas for loyalty board members.

Cohn, 37-year-old chief counsel to the McCarthy subcommittee, was back in the witness chair for cross-examination in the McCarthy-Army hearings.

His testimony on this point was in support of the McCarthy camp's contention the Army was trying to stop Sen. McCarthy's investigation of communism in the Army when it accused the senator and his aides of improper pressure for favored treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine.

Today's forenoon session of the 29th day of the televised hearings got underway 45 minutes late because the senators first held a closed door meeting to discuss the possibility of speeding up the hearing. There were reports of considerable sentiment to try to wind them up this week.

However, the closed meeting apparently produced little beyond another clash between Sen. Symington (D-Mo.) and Sen. McCarthy. Other senators described it as similar to their public row of yesterday.

The Democrats noted McCarthy's demand that Clark Clifford be called as a witness. Clifford was summoned to the witness chair immediately. The Republicans voted it down 4-3.

Clifford, a Washington lawyer, was special counsel to President Truman during part of 1 time. McCarthy declared yesterday he believed Symington and Clifford persuaded a "naive" Secretary of the Army Stevens to bring the charges against him.

Clifford, a U.S. described the Republican vote against calling Clifford now as one in "exactly as before" and in "subpoena witness on the advice of counsel."

Mundt said it did not receive possible eventual calling of Clifford if Special Counsel Ray H. Jenkins recommended it.

Rhee Accuses U. S. Of Wasting Funds For Reconstruction

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee today accused the United States of wasting Korean aid funds on "unnecessary administrative expenses" and proposed that he take over the U.S. financed rebuilding program.

Rhee said the ruins of Korean factories "stand gauntly for anyone to see, with the scars of reconstruction or rehabilitation despite the millions of dollars that supposedly were earmarked for that purpose."

"We received billions of dollars worth of goods and materials, but most of it was wasted," Rhee declared in an interview. "Whoever may have been responsible, we do not want to make sure that every dollar is spent honestly."

The ROK President suggested that the United States "grant dollar credits to the Republic of Korea, to be used by the government with France and Great Britain to supply a small staff of financial and procurement advisers and provide for strict accountability."

"We want to make sure that every dollar is spent honestly," Rhee declared. "The hardest job we have had here is to make haste slowly and try to advise Korea to spend the money wisely," he said. "They expect factories to spring up overnight."

Rhee said the United States and South Korea should withdraw immediately from the Geneva conference.

Give Ervin $100,000 For Study

The Attorney General Will Study The Problem Of Segregation In Public Schools

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—The Florida Cabinet today granted Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin $100,000 in emergency funds for research in the state's effort to preserve segregation of the races in the public schools.

"I don't believe Florida is ready for non-segregation. If we have to accept it should be on a gradual basis," Ervin said.

The attorney general said he would use the $100,000 to permit research experts of the University of Florida, Florida State University and University of Miami to help determine the practical effects of the U. S. Supreme Court ruling about non-segregation in public schools.

The court has given states a full year to fall in line with the ruling. Ervin said he would like to have the study completed by the end of the year.

Two Secret Agencies In Spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government's two most highly secret agencies—the Central Intelligence Agency and the Atomic Energy Commission—manage to stay inconspicuous most of the time. Now they've been pulled to the center of the stage.

The CIA is not only this country's super spy organization in other countries, but is the coordinator and clearing house on intelligence information in other agencies, such as the Navy, Army, Air Force, State Department.

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) during the Senate hearings on his row with Army officials, talked of Communist infiltration of the CIA. CIA Director Allen Dulles said that was false. Dulles once before refused to let McCarthy question CIA employees.

The senator's interest in the top-secret CIA must have chilled not only Allen Dulles but President Eisenhower as well. McCarthy has shown a willingness to disregard secret labels when it suits him. At the current hearings he urged all government employees to pump secrets to him.

For years the AEC—headed by a five-man commission—has managed to stay out of public squabbles. The AEC, like CIA, is protected from the public gaze by laws laying down the secrecy rules under which it must operate.

Now the five commissioners are in public dispute about how much panionship and will assume other beneficial qualities.

SOYBEANS—The Experiment Station distributed several lots of foundation seed of Jackson soy beans to qualified Florida farmers who agreed to produce certified seed under the regulations of the Florida Department of Agriculture.

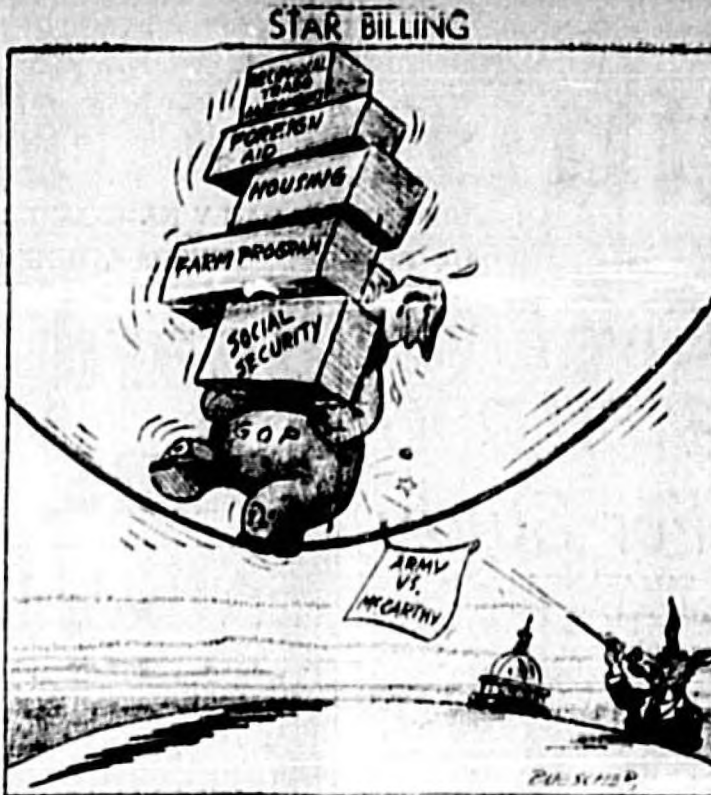

HONEY—Only California with the production of 24 million pounds and Minnesota, producing 22 million pounds of honey are ahead of Florida with 18 million pounds. Average yield per colony in Florida is 76 pounds as compared to the nation.

THE ORPHAN—Whats Labor and Industry got that the farmer ain't got?

Well its hard to say, but you might consider price protection wage protection and cost protection.

PASSING THE POTATOES—Crossing in the mail it is said, were two sacks of potatoes, one a present from the Governor of Maine to the Governor of Idaho, the other from the Governor of Idaho to the Governor of Maine. Wonder what governor said to governor. Maybe it was—"It's a long road between us, but we agree on eating more spuds."

HOT STUFF—Fresh chile; whether green or red, is a very rich source of ascorbic acid. As in other plant foods the amount of ascorbic acid is influenced by growing conditions, particularly sunshine.

He has been named to serve as a director and member of the board of the Curtiss National Bank of Miami Springs which was granted a charter here last week. In town to receive the charter with Bill Lantaff were: Edward Mercer, president; Richard Marzane, cashier; and Thomas B. Curry, member of the board.

Another Election—Here last week the Florida State Society held their annual election. Officers for 1954-56 are: Dick Stringfellow, an attorney for the CAA, president; Bob Williamson, Leesburg, member of Congressman Syd Herlong's staff, first vice-president; Miss Iva Dunn, St. Petersburg, who works for the RFC, second vice-president; Mrs. Jeanette Lits-American Council on Education, secretary; and Miss Jane Monk, Miami, a secretary in the office of Senator George Smathers.

The Congressman and his wife, Inez, attended graduation ceremonies and then all went on for a few days vacation at their home in Crestview.

Family Reunion—The Herlongs will soon be together again. By this week-end, Syd's wife, Mary Alice; Margaret, 19; and the twins, Sydney and Dorothy, 15, will be with him. Maintaining two homes—one here and another in Florida—is one of the biggest problems of a Congressman. Now that Margaret has finished high school—and young

French Haven't Forgotten Yanks

OMAHA BEACH, France (AP)—What was it like on the beaches of Normandy 10 years after D-Day?

The French people showed yesterday they haven't forgotten the 9,485 Americans still in St. Laurent Cemetery and those thousands of others who died here but are buried in their homeland.

French Tricolors decorated every small town to welcome visitors. More than 25,000 turned out to hear speeches at Utah Beach by France's President Rene Coty and U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. President Eisenhower's personal representative.

Gen. J. Lawton (Lightning Joe) Collins and Gen. Lee T. Gerow, commanders of the two American corps that landed here on June 6, 1944, were among the host of high-ranking Army, Air Force and Navy officers present from half a dozen countries.

There were bands, lines of marching men and speeches about half a dozen celebrations in Normandy, but in the end it was the 9,485 crosses at St. Laurent, just behind Omaha Beach, that gave the deepest lesson in unity.

They presented, row on row, one of the major costs of the Normandy landing, a mighty Allied effort that saw 326,547 men, 54,183 tanks and vehicles and 104,428 tons of material poured across the beaches in six days.

In the first 24 hours of the assault, American forces suffered some 18,000 casualties on Utah and Omaha beaches.

Lt. Col. Russell R. Raab of East Orange, N.J., estimated 95 per cent of the visitors to the cemetery yesterday were French. They are still friendly to Americans, he said. Almost every French family in this area lost someone during the war.

Several veterans who fought on this same beach 10 years ago had returned for the pilgrimage. There also were dozens of Normandy veterans in the special honor guard of about 400 U. S. troops brought here for the ceremonies.

The feeling they seemed to share was expressed by Lt. John J. Moglia of Ft. Meade, N. Y., who said:

"I always wanted to come back to see this piece of terrain under different conditions. Now the places I could never forget are hard to find. If it weren't for the cemetery, the beach would look like a summer resort. Most of the obstacles that were here 10 years ago are gone now."

"Yes," said Lt. Col. Albert H. Smith Jr. of Baltimore, Md., who hit the beach in one of the earliest assault waves. "It's amazing there are so few of the scars of war left. The years have been kind to these hills that we beat up so." When the speeches and ceremonies were over, the honor guard still carrying rifles, began to wander among the rows of nameless crosses. Each had been decorated with small French flags.

Under the chill, overcast sky, the soldiers walked about among the crosses. Some knelt at the name they had sought and found. Several took out their handkerchiefs and wiped away tears they made no attempt to hide.

One stood with bowed head, his rifle held downward with both hands, until it was time for the honor guard to go on to Utah Beach and the next ceremony.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN
 JOAN seemed not to hear. She just sat there, looking at Todd, her disappointment so deep and bitter she could not find words.

"Darling, I guess I didn't say it right. Let me try again. You see, this is the thing. I'm responsible, now, not only for myself but for you, too. I'm glad to be. Don't mind it like me. I've learned that thought. But it does make me consider twice where maybe I only considered once, before. And I honestly feel we shouldn't spend that gift money, even though it was intended for us to spend. Or yours, either. I think we ought to hang on to it all and let it be the start of a nest-egg."

"If you can call this place a nest!"

The words broke from her against her will. She saw the shocked surprise on Todd's face. But she did not care. In a moment he would be leaving her to go catch a bus to the city. In a moment the day would stretch before her, long and fertile, if they parted with hard feelings between them. But she didn't care. Flushing abruptly, she reached down with a hand that shook to take her soiled plate and carry it out to the kitchen. Before she could touch it, Todd had risen, too, and with one swift movement had jerked her to him and was holding her close. At the feel of his enveloping arms, she burst into tears.

"Oh, Todd!" she whispered. "I'm sorry! I'm terribly sorry!"

"So am I. Listen, honey, we'll compromise."

"No."

"Yes. We'll compromise."

She melted in his neck, all her anger suddenly gone. "No," she said again. "It's right. I don't know what was the matter with me. I was awful. Because you're right and I know it." She laughed suddenly up at him through her tears. "Somebody has to think of the emergency. Somebody has to be careful. Somebody has to be the head of this family—uh, dear, where's your bank?—and it ought to be well by you. I don't want the job!"

He laughed now, too, while he dabbed at her face with his big, clean, nice, tobacco-smelling handkerchief.

"Thanka. I feel better. In fact, I feel all right. Heavily! Let's forget the whole business. I just went off my trolley because—"

"Because why?"

"Because I was thinking—well—we never are going to have any money, Todd. You said so yourself. Teachers simply never do. So if we don't get things now when we have, when do we? If you follow me!"

"Yes, I follow you. I thought of that, too. That's why I said let's compromise. Now blow your nose before it goes and mites at us and promise me you'll be a good girl while I'm away today."

"Oh, don't be so sweet. You'll have me crying again."

"Don't you dare. Listen, this is what I want you to do. Go out and scout around—anywhere you want—" want to take the car and go off into the country to your favorite antique shops, if you like. He goes all day. But don't turn up tonight without a detailed list of the things you want to buy and their prices."

"Oh! You mean that? Really?"

"Really."

She drew back in his embrace and studied his face. "Yes, you do, don't you! But—tell me! Do you hate me? Despise me? For asking you say that?"

"No, honey, no. And you didn't make me, anyway. I was coming around to myself."

She put up one finger and laid it on his lips for him to kiss. "I like to think I made you," she said softly.

"You witch! All right, then, think it."

She wound her arms around his neck. "Why do I love you so much?" she murmured. "When you're really so horrid!"

"Am I horrid?"

"Nothing but snakes and scalls and puppy-dog tails. Which, being interpreted into adult language, means you're tight-fisted and cautious and—uh—excruciatingly nice!" she tightened her arms. "Promise me something?"

"Anything."

"Promise me," she begged, "not always to be so tight and wise. Will you? I couldn't live with you, if you were. Go on a bust once in a while and get down to my size."

He laughed her.

"Okay. You pull me down to your size whenever you think I'm lardy and righteous and need it. Now! Shower all over? Sure? How about going to the bus station with me, then? We'll latter drive. I'm late."

"Oh, good idea! I'll take the palopy and drop you off, Todd, then I'll go on out to Riverside to the place where I saw that adorable corner cupboard I told you about."

"And I won't come back till noon, she was thinking. I can't face another Hunter this morning. She has tested me all up inside. I'd never have thought with Todd it hadn't been for her twisting me up. By noon maybe she'll have taken the hint and realize I sometimes have plans of my own for my days. Maybe if I do this today, she'll let me alone in the future."

Joan had a beautiful time the whole morning. The sun was bright, the air was golden clear, and in her reconciliation with Todd, in her anticipated pleasure of buying long-dreamed-of furniture for her home, and in her un-expected escape from the close surveillance of her mother-in-law, she felt an upsurge of light-hearted joyousness. She went not only to Riverside but on further into DuSsex county and then around in a big circle to Clifton. At every place she took careful and copious notes on the pieces that interested her, and before she knew it the noon whistles were sounding over the country. It did not matter. There was no time to call her back. She would just get a sandwich and a soda at some drug store and return at her leisure.

Joan stood very still while the hot wind of a familiar rebellion blew away all her calm coolness. Why did mother Hunter have to come sniping up here, anyway? She had heard the car go out and had seen Joan in it. She must have. They had gone right by her kitchen window.

It was true that she had completely forgotten about the garden club luncheon and her promise to drive mother Hunter to it. She probably shouldn't have—but she had to. She had to. There were plenty of people willing to take the minister's wife! All she had had to do was telephone someone, just the way she used to before Joan married.

As to that last line—"I would have loved to have gone with you," Oh, Joan knew that all right! She did not need to be reminded.

When she finally reached the house again, it was well past two o'clock. The house was silent around her and for this she felt relief. Mother Hunter must be out. Approaching the living room, which she had left in haste and disorder after the stormy breakfast scene with Todd, she thought to herself that she probably should have returned here first and tidied up before going off on her hunt for antiques. She had not even put away the margarine and milk. No doubt the margarine was spilling now and the milk sour. But, if so, she did not care. She felt so much better after her outing that she could forgive herself for this careless bit of extravagance. She felt calm and cool and happy. She felt restored to herself once more.

At the open door she came to an abrupt halt in surprise and consternation. Everything had been folded up and put in its place, the crumple had been dumped out of the toaster and it was standing all shiny and clean on the tray stand. Even Todd's hat may have been emptied and washed.

"I might have known," she said to herself with a sinking heart.

She moved slowly into the kitchen. Here, too, mother Hunter had been busy. Not a dirty dish to be seen. The counter top had been scoured, the dish cloth hung up to air and the towels to dry. Joan opened the refrigerator door. Yes, the margarine and milk were there.

It was then that she saw the note propped up against the coffee canister. Reading for it, she read:

"Joanne, dear. I heard you go out and when you didn't come back I thought I had better take care of things for you before they spoiled. Don't forget this in the day the Garden Club meets for its annual luncheon. It is to be over at the Gray Beaches Country Club and I'm counting on you to take me there. Mother Hunter."

"Oh, my goodness now and you're not here yet. I do wish you would let me know when you're going off like this. I don't know how to plan. It's most upsetting. Besides, I would have loved to have gone with you."

Joan stood very still while the hot wind of a familiar rebellion blew away all her calm coolness. Why did mother Hunter have to come sniping up here, anyway? She had heard the car go out and had seen Joan in it. She must have. They had gone right by her kitchen window.

For Mercury's new engine is controlled by an "automatic brain"—a unique new kind of 4-barrel carburetor, with the two rear barrels vacuum operated. During all normal driving, enjoy the gas-saving economy of 2-barrel operation. But when you want to pass, or climb a hill, the two rear barrels cut in instantly, automatically, to give you the extra power you need.

Unlike some other cars, Mercury provides this high-efficiency carburetor on all models as standard equipment. So, you can enjoy this instant four-barrel performance whether you choose a Mercury with standard, overdrive or Merc-O-Matic transmission.

And, of course, Mercury's new 161-horsepower overhead valve V-8 is also standard equipment on every model. You don't have to buy a higher priced model to get the power you want and need.

Come in and let us show you what Mercury's new passing power can mean to you. See why it pays to own a Mercury.

Sanford May Have Professional Baseball Club This Season

Jacksonville Beach Sea Birds Owners Are Considering City

By TOMMY KUHN
Sanford, a town that has to suffer, because they do not have a professional baseball club, may finally get a team. The Jacksonville Beach Sea Birds, the number one team in the Florida State League, have not been drawing as many customers as they should be and the owners of the club are thinking about switching the team to Sanford.

Julian Jaxon and H. G. Cowart, owners of the Jax Sea Birds, have given Sanford a great deal of consideration. They told John Krider, president of the FSL, that they would notify him on the 10th of June as to whether or not they are going to bring the team here.

The two owners of the ball club came to Sanford last Sunday on a special mission to look over the baseball facilities. They visited Memorial Stadium and if not with their approval they thought that the stadium was the best baseball park in the Florida State League.

Also the two owners realize that if they move the team to Sanford it will save other FSL teams travel expenses and will also draw fans to Sanford and make more money for them.

The park is centrally located in Florida and is close to all the other Florida State League teams. The other teams had been spending huge sums of money traveling up to Jacksonville Beach.

Sanford should not have any trouble drawing people to see the ball games, if we get the team. Sanford has always been one of the biggest drawing powers in the Florida State League.

Last year Sanford had a team that didn't even come close to winning the pennant and they drew the second highest attendance mark in the FSL. If Sanford gets the Sea Birds, they will probably draw the biggest crowd in the FSL this year.

Jaxon thinks that the city is the right place for a team, but he is still thinking about the money angle. He still is not sure of how much of a crowd the team would draw if they were in Sanford.

Jaxon mentioned that he is also thinking about the Sea Birds in Jacksonville Beach, who are also without a team in the Florida State League this year. Each one of the cities are trying to bring the team into their own town.

Of course a lot of things will have to be taken into consideration by Jaxon and Cowart. Can each of the two cities draw as big crowds as Sanford? How much money could the Sea Birds make? Also other things have to be considered. Things like the type of ball park and facilities each town has to offer.

Sanford Navy Meets Sanford Giants Tonight In Stadium

The Sanford Navy will meet the Sanford Naval Air Station baseball club in Memorial Stadium. This will be the second meeting of the two clubs. This will get underway at 8 p. m. today.

In the first engagement between the clubs, the Navy handed the local Giants a 7-3 setback. Before then, the Giants had won seven straight games and now have lost for themselves an impressive 7-2 record and lost record.

When the Giants meet with the Navy, they will have one objective in mind, and that is to repay the men in blue for the defeat. By doing so, they may eventually become Sanford's leading team. This, however, will not be as easy as talking about it, for the Sanford Navy Indians have a strong team with every man present being a threat to the game at all times.

One example is their pitcher John Sewartz who is the Navy's leading hurler and better in the number three slot.

The Giants will move into Memorial Stadium with a revised lineup and many different inclusions.

RAINED OUT.—The Sanford Cardinals were to play the Pinecastle baseball team last Wednesday night at 8:00 p. m. in Memorial Stadium, but due to a small storm the game was postponed until Thursday night. Come 8:00 p. m. Thursday evening in the local stadium the same thing happened. Game called because of rain.

The game had to be made up, so Sunday in Kissimmee each manager decided to play the game in Sanford Friday night. The game will start at 8:00 p. m. and will be played in Memorial Stadium.

IDEAL MAN.—Tom Nugent, Florida State University's imaginative young head football coach, is noted for one of football's most inventive minds. Originator of the 'I' formation, the double quarterback, and the typewriter middle, Nugent has come up with a fourth football novelty. It's an all-purpose clinic for coaches and players, designed particularly for high school and college quarterbacks, that Nugent calls "Teasing Fancy."

The clinic, which will feature professional all-stars Otto Graham, Sammy Baugh, Bobby Layne, Harry Gilmer, Bobby Thomson, and Pete Piliu, opens a three-day run on the FSU campus Thursday.

Those behind the move contend that the football player who devotes himself seriously to the old Indian sport during the spring will be fully as battered and muscle-sprung as he would have been from scrimmaging daily under the direction of his football coach. They say his wind probably will be better, as lacrosse is a game which lays great stress on running as well as on being able to take punishment.

The change-over is a particularly logical one in the Ivy League, where the football player who has flourished for many years. Football coaches at Yale, Harvard, Princeton and other member schools are being urged by lacrosse enthusiasts among their alumni to throw their influence behind the movement. They see in the spring practice a golden opportunity to further popularize a sport which has made steady gains in recent years.

The only thing the footballer will not get, they say, is a chance to learn new plays for the next campaign. They guarantee he'll get everything else, including all the body contact he can stand up to. They claim, in fact, that he's likely to regard football as a pretty tame pastime after a spring spent among the stick wielders.

It will require several seasons, apparently, for the football stars to gain first string status on any of the top lacrosse teams. The experiences of those who donned the face mask and tried the sport for the first time this spring indicate that it isn't possible just to crash in among seasoned lacrosse players and stand the gaff in time, however. It is anticipated that the better athletes will find the combination a natural one.

Having witnessed only one lacrosse free-for-all, an exhibition at the 1948 Olympics, we are not prepared to go into its finer points. It is possible, however, to state that Canada's national game, lacrosse, not ice hockey, provides a flow of vigorous and skilled action for 60 minutes and that it obviously is not for weaklings. The stick with the little net on its end with which they flip the hard rubber ball around is unyielding and raises lumps.

TID BITS IN SPORTS. Ralph Farlan may prove to be one of the top hitters on the Sanford American League baseball team. Allen Baxley went off on his last ball game. Jimmy Motta plans to attend the "Passing Fancy" football clinic at Florida State University.

Randy Farrell, former Jay Seminoles High School baseball player, plans to play ball in Melbourne, Fla. in the 1949 season. Moved up to Wichita of the Western League, then Dallas of the Texas League. Last season pitched for Tulsa of the same league where he had a 12-12 record. Has been plagued with wildness in minors but has good strikeout record. Was married at home plate prior to a night game, then pitched a one-hitter.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
New York (AP)—Up through the Eastern tier of states, where spring football practice is being slowly but steadily abolished, a determined effort is afoot to swing the more muscular students over to another sport which remedies very little in the gridiron game to the matter of abrasions and contusions, namely lacrosse.

Those behind the move contend that the football player who devotes himself seriously to the old Indian sport during the spring will be fully as battered and muscle-sprung as he would have been from scrimmaging daily under the direction of his football coach. They Call Musial Slugger Because Of Percentage

NEW YORK (AP)—They don't call Stan Musial a "slugger" for nothing. Not only does the 33-year-old St. Louis Cardinal hold the National League record for the highest slugging percentage among 10-year men past or present, but averages compiled by the Associated Press revealed today that he is well out in front this season with a .785 slugging mark.

Musial has collected 150 total bases in 191 times at bat. He has slammed 13 doubles, 3 triples and 19 home runs among his 141 hits. In a little more than 11 seasons with the Redbirds, Stan has piled up 3,896 total bases in 6,664 trips to the plate for a slugging average of .585. Babe Ruth holds the American League lifetime record of .670.

The breakdown of Musial's 2,292 safeties through last night's game against Brooklyn looks this way: 1,395 singles, 481 doubles, 145 triples and 276 homers.

Frank Sauer of the Chicago Cubs ranks second in Musial in the 1941 National League slugging competition. The veteran outfielder has hit for 110 total bases including 55 doubles and 18 home runs in 150 at bats for a .528 mark.

In the American League, Al Rosen of Cleveland is setting the pace with a .623 average. The husky first baseman, who led the league in 1953 with .612, completed 90 total bases before he was sidelined last Saturday with a broken right index finger. Al has 340 hits and 13 home runs among his 55 hits.

Slugging averages are computed by dividing the total bases on all hits by the total official times at bat. The phenomenal Willie Mays, surprising many observers with his distance hitting, is third in the National League with a .609 average. The 23-year-old New York Giant outfielder has connected for 40 doubles, 3 triples, 16 home runs and a total of 121 bases in 181 trips.

MINNIE MINSOON of the Chicago White Sox is runner-up in slugging in the American League. The colorful Cuban, one of the big factors in the improved showing of his club this season, has the circuit's most total bases (115). He has batted .392 for a slugging mark of .592. Minnie shows 10 doubles, 7 triples and 9 home runs.

Girl Who Wrote To Martians Receives Avalanche Of Mail

ALBUQUERQUE — Every-body's writing to little Linda Sue Russell — except the Martians.

The 9-year-old "Little Girl Who Wrote the Martians" is receiving a stream of letters offering advice, prayer, thanks and hope from all over the country.

"Linda Sue recently wrote her simple letter addressed to Mars. It said:

"What business I am writing about is to stop the earth people from fighting. All they have is war, war, war and I'm getting tired of it, in here."

The Martians never came. But grateful people answered for them. "Bless your heart and more power in your war and I can't wait for a child has the vision of what is right."

"A young boy from Mobile, Ala., who doesn't want Linda Sue's schoolmates to laugh at her, wrote: 'I am the Martian you wrote in and I would like to also war in the earth too. I'm afraid I can't come to your city but I can write to you.'"

The lad asked Linda Sue to draw a map showing where he should land his space ship. On the bottom of the letter was a

Cohn Testifies Adams Used Schine As Threat

McCarthy Aide Says He Thought Army Counsel 'Nasty' In Matter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roy M. Cohn testified today Army Counsel John G. Adams coupled talk of sending Paul G. David Schine overseas with efforts to halt the McCarthy subcommittee investigations of Ft. Monmouth, N. J., and the Army loyalty board.

Cohn, under questioning by Army counsel Joseph N. Welch in the 30th day of the Army-McCarthy hearings, said Adams left an impression that "what happened to Schine depended on what Adams thought."

Cohn insisted he didn't care whether or not Schine went overseas, but said he thought Adams had been "nasty" about it.

Adams testified that Cohn flew into a rage and threatened to "screw" the Army, when told Schine probably would be sent overseas as most draftees were. He quoted Cohn as saying also that Robert T. Stevens would be through as Secretary of the Army. Cohn has denied making such statements.

The Senate investigations subcommittee got back to the meat of the controversy between Sen. McCarthy and Army officials after a renewal of the continuing clash between McCarthy and Sen. Smathers (D-Mo.).

At the outset of the 30th day of hearings, Smathers offered to testify as a witness in this case if McCarthy will let a special senate committee investigate the Wilson subcommittee's financial dealings.

There was a hot exchange in which McCarthy said he was willing but declined to sign a formal agreement proffered by Smathers.

Members of the subcommittee were still talking a quick wind up of the hearings, but McCarthy told reporters he probably will ask for a two-week recess when Cohn leaves this week end for National Guard training at Camp Kilmer, N. J.

"That is my present plan," McCarthy said. "I'll want him here. Roy knows more about this case than any body else. We won't ask for any deferment of Roy (from training) at all."

Body Studying Two Proposals

The County board of commissioners are today investigating the proposed establishment of a boat landing in Lake Monroe and at Johnson State Lake.

Mrs. R. E. Mitchell and Chandler Vail of the Sanford Boat and Club together with Forrest Breckenridge, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, have informed the commission that Francis P. Whitehead of the State road board, has expressed his willingness to spend approximately $1000 for the building of a boat landing in the lake.

The landing, if built will be located just south of the Highway 17-92 bridge over the St. Johns River, according to Breckenridge.

The two men and one woman requested that the county help make the area attractive, and added that more than 400 boats are expected to take part in the Seminole Indian Cruise to be held July 15.

Forster Lansing, president of the Seminole Sportsman's Association, proposed that the commission allocate money in turn a five-acre tract of dedicated land bordering the Wekiva River into a public park.

Stanford Physicist Will Head Center

PAISO ALTO, CALIF. — Nobel prize winning physicist Felix Bloch has been granted a leave from the Stanford faculty to become head of the new European Nuclear Research Center.

Prof. Bloch will assume the new post in Geneva, Switzerland, where the center is being created for non-military research by 12 nations.

A letter of praise arrived from the 52nd call letters for the 12th annual Science Fiction Convention, to be held soon in California.

"We can't promise you that there will be any martians present," the letter said.

However, it made Linda Sue an honorary member for the convention and invited her to attend.

The letters keep coming. In the hope Linda Sue won't give up her dream and will go ahead with her plans to see the Martians "in my own spaceship," Linda Sue's mother, Mrs. Arthur Russell, said.

"Linda Sue and I will try to answer as many letters as we can. We feel very thankful for them."

An editor in a New Bedford, Mass., newspaper, enclosed by a grand mother (an old one), seemed to sum up the thoughts of most of those writing Linda Sue.

"In the meantime, the rest of the inhabitants of this wretched earth may be assured that peace, with or without help from outer space, is far from unobtainable as long as there exist the faith and hope of a rising generation typified by Linda Sue."

NATO Commander Warns Russians Against Attacking

LONDON (AP) — NATO supreme commander in Europe, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, warned Russia last night that the West will meet a Soviet attack with "heavy weapons in our arsenal" including atomic bombs.

"If war with Russia should come this year, the NATO commander said, 'the Soviet Union should be defeated.'"

"I do not want to say we would win," he said. "But in a third world war there would be no winner."

Gruenther also said he believed he was not sure time was on the side of the West but that the moral and atomic superiority was mounting. He explained that he was more disturbed by the "degradation" of the West.

But at present, he said, the West have no answer to the "big American B-47 jet bomber" plane which can fly as fast and so high that there is no defense against it in 1954.

Gruenther said of the B-47 which recently flew the Atlantic in 10 hours 40 minutes.

Churchill said the West is "pursuing through strength and not through cunning."

He said that if the Russians would impede European peace and if differences split the Allies it would lead to "general arm and disarmament."

Kiwianians Make Plans For Trip

Final plans were made at today's regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Sanford Kiwanis Club for the organization's boat trip to Blue Springs located on the St. Johns River.

Scheduled to leave at 3 p.m. next Wednesday, the group will return by the light of the moon, which will be full that night.

The two boats to be used for the trip will leave from the Brumley Boat House at the foot of Celery Ave., according to Ed Lane, chairman.

Those members who cannot join the boaters because of business reasons may register at the Sanford Western Union office. "If this is done no makeup meeting will be necessary," Lane commented.

Douglas Stenstrom, president, A. C. Wilson and Robert Strickland, vice-president, reported on the 30th annual International Kiwanis convention, which they attended recently as delegates of the Sanford group. The convales was held in Miami.

Nominee Refuses Uoff Post.

PHILADELPHIA — The hunt for a new University of Florida president apparently is back to the square it started six months ago.

Dr. Philip G. Davidson Jr. was offered the job yesterday by the board of trustees and the change from Philadelphia to Gainesville has been reported in the face of Adkins' resignation threat to hold up his pay.

Davidson would be honored to accept the offer, but he declined to do so until he had been named to the post of Uoff president.
