Deputy police chief tapped

By VICKI DeSORMIER

Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - He has spent more than half his life as a Sanford Police officer. Now Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire is the department's deputy chief.

Whitmire replaces Joe Dillard who was appointed to the department's top position at the start of this year after the retirement of Chief Ralph Russell.

The new assistant chief has been praised for his leadership skills and his ability to work well with othem.

He has also been lauded for quality work and for his ability to win the respect of those in the community with whom he works. Whitmire has remained involved in the community though he has moved up the administrative ladder in the department.

Whitmire, 47, has been a commander in the department for the last several years. He has been assigned to duties including that of media haison and has been lauded for his work by the department.

Since May 1992, Whitmire has been the commander in charge of the investigative unit for the Sanford Police. Department. No one has been assigned to replace him in that position so until a replacement is named be will continue as the leader of that division and he will serve as a spokesman for the department with regard to Bes Whitmire, Page #A

County stalls search for manager

By AUSS WHITE Herald Stall Writer

SANFORD - A not-so-lunny thing happened Tuesday when the Seminole County Board of Commissioners seemingly was prepared to choose an appropriate method to find a new county manager - they abruptly side-stepped the whole. matter.

'If you're selling your house, you clean it up before putting it on the market." Commission Chairman Randy Morris said. "No manager worth his sail would want to come in here now."

Commissioners Daryl McLain and Win Adams agreed with Morris and voted against beginning the manager's search until April or May Commissioners Grant Maloy and

In an age of 100-channel televisions and computer games, parents now can provide the chance for their children to create and learn for themselves through the amazing wonders of music

Kindermusik, a unique program of learning and enrichment for parents and their children eighteen months through five years of age will he offered for Sanford families starting January 16

Through singing, moving, listening, playing simple percusaton instruments and creative . tivities. Kindermusik classes provide a joyful environment in which musical instincts are encouraged and fundamental skills begin to develop. This musical stimulation becomes a well of positive experiences that parents and their children can draw from, during and after class, said Amy Gonzalez, a long-time Sanford resident and trained Kindermusik teacher.

A program called Wee Ones music and movement also is being offered for parents and their babies four months, through eighteen months.

Gonzalez, who has a degree in Music Education and a special certification in Orfi-Schulwerk, will be the instructor. Gonzalez has been a Music Specialist in the public school system for seven years. Long interested in young children, she said she feels that the Kindermusik program is the perfect answer for introducing the musical arts to young children.

Best of all, the classes even hold eighteenmonth olds' attention before the first half-hour is up. "Even the parents are amazed. That's the arts--that's what music does.

"I have so much fun," she went on. "It's not even like work. Kindermusik is designed to enhance the parent/child relationship. Some people are born naturally at case with their bables--but some are not. Parents learn to relate one-on-one with their child better. Before the courses are over, even the stiffest father is down on the ground, singing and tickling his child."

In addition to strengthening young children's exciting new relationship to the world, Kindermusik encourages them to learn at their own pace. The emphasis is put on the process, not the performance. "No one says, "That's not right," or, 'let's do it better." The teacher helps draw out what is inside the

Fugitive caught after 18 years

MIAMI - It is said the arm of the law is long, but so is its memory, al Michael Cullison found out 18 years after he fied the United States on a charge of helping import 70 tons of marijuana.

Cullison, 46, pleaded guilty Tuesday to conspiracy to import marijuana when he was a member of the Zion Coptic Church. He and 18 others with the church were indicted on marijuana charges in 1979, but Cullison fled to Jamaica.

He was caught in Havana, Ill., in 1995, when he was stopped for driving 60 mph in a 50 mph zone. A routine check showed he was wanted by U.S. marshals.

In a 1979 trial, members of the Zion Coptic Church showed up in crimson robes and green-and-gold uniforms. The trial resulted in several convictions, including that of Thomas Francis Riley, the head of the sect in Miami.

In the Middle East, Coptics are Egyptian Christians.

The members of the church and their families lived in a mansion on one of the islands between Miami and Miami Beach. During the trial, the church members said they smoked marijuana as a form of religious communion. The local church sect no longer exists.

U.S. District Judge William M. Hoeveler, who was the judge at the 1979 trial, will sentence Cullison on March 25.

Spy Shop owner sentenced

MIAMI The Canadian owner of Spy Shope International will spend 37 months in prison for illegally selling electronic listening devices installed in beepers, light bulbs and other items.

At a sentencing Tuesday, U.S. District Judge K. Michael Moore also imposed a $100,000 fine on John Demeter, the owner of the South Florida business, and ordered him deported to Canada.

Demeter was one of five people with Spy Shops to be con-victed as a result of a 1994 federal sting against the company's three stores, two in Dade County and one in Broward County. The other four people were sentenced earlier this month.

Demeter was convicted last year of conspiracy to import the illegal listening devices from Japan, of actually importing them and of possessing the equipment. He also was convicted of money laundering.

The sentence of just over three years was the minimum under sentencing guidelines that U.S. judges usually follow. The maximum was 47 months.

The equipment was imported from Micro Electronics of Tokyo, prosecutors said. An American sales representative pleaded guilty about a year ago in New York City to illegal importation of the bugging devices. He testified against the men sentenced in Miami and is awaiting sentencing.

Whitmire is a native of Sanford and a graduate of Seminole High School. He also has a degree from Seminole Community College and has completed work from the University of Central Florida.

During his quarter century with the police department, he has served as the department's first training officer. He was the officer who created the training policies that are still used today.

Whitmire began service with the department working with the patrol and traffic divisions before moving into administration.

The department, under new leadership, is moving in a new direction in the community. Chief Dillard has said that Whitmire's leadership skills and community rapport will help move the whole department into the direction it needs to go in order to solve the problems facing law enforcement and the community in Senford.

Zoning board to hear two requests

By MOK PPEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Only two items are listed on the agenda for this Thursday evening's meeting of the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission.

A public hearing will be held regarding a request for public storage at 2905 S. Orlando Drive, for the purpose of a truck rental facility.

The second items is a request for a conditional use submitted by FSV, Inc., of Deitona, located at 930 and 940 State Street (Sanford Plaza), for the purpose of alcoholic beverage sales for consumption on premises.

Other than possible additional items from the floor or commission members, these are the only two ftems presently listed.

Several items involving new businesses in the Sanford area however, were approved during the past two P&Z meetings.

At the Dec. 19 meeting, the P&Z approved a conditional use for property at 500 French Avenue. The old Gregory Lumber site is being proposed by a Longwood company, for use as a boat dealership. The portion of property on the western side of French Avenue would be used for boat displays, with sales and storage to be in the old lumber company building. Service work would be handled away from the property.

The matter received unanimous approval of the P&Z.

Also at that meeting, an 80,000 square foot assembly facility was approved for 699 Aero Lane. Invacare is planning on a busines to assemble handicap items such as beds for hospitals. That item was also approved.

While it also requires an amendment to the city's comprehensive plan, it was sched-uled for Monday night's Sanford City Commission meeting. At the Jan. 2 meeting of the out the mess.

Annoying Maloy, too, was why the commission tabled the issue without hearing an executive search presentation by Carol Ann Dove, acting Human Resource director.

Dove said that "ideally" a new manager would be hired by May June 1st at the latest. Her report detailed the search methods that were available.

Commissioner Adams said that "under the circumstances, I'm satistied with the decision we made. We have a lot on our plate, a lot to accomplish before looking for a new manager.

"The reason I voted the way I did is based on my experiences while at Robert Half, the personnel placement firm. What I learned is that it is best to clean up things in order to attract top-flight candidates. "Right now, we're not losing anything and may actually be gaining because of the way Gary Kaiser is helping clean things up." Adams said.

Because of Tuesday's decision, Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser will continue as acting county manager for several more months. Kalser drew bravos from each of the commissioners on Tuesday for his performance since assuming Rabun's duties.

A week ago, Adams told the Sanford Herald, that Kaiser was "thrust into a pile of doodoo, and is handling things."

How much longer will Kaiser need to continue is the major question. It now looks as though it will be April or May before the county will begin its search for a permanent manager - a position that will pay $95,000 or more annually. (Rabun was making $117,000).

Rabun resigned under pressure amidst controversy over an internal investigation of the county's land acquisition division. This investigation followed the dismissal of Land Acquistion Coordinator Joyce Suber, who officials said worked on her son's Gulf County campaign for property appraiser while on county time.

Since then, there have been two audits and a Florida Department of Law Enforcement criminal investigation.

Last week, the county's public

Dr. King's message today

Today is the anniversary of the birth of Dr. Martin Luther King. Jr. black civil rights leader, minister and recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize (1964). He was born in Atlanta on Jan. 15, 1929, and assassinated in Memphis. Tenn. on April 4, 1968.

Immediately after his death, state after state began observing his birthday as a holiday. It became official nationwide on Nov. 2, 1983 when the president signed a bill to make the birthday a legal public holiday.

While the Jan. 15 date is the actual birthdate, the legal holiday is the third Monday in January: this year. Jan. 20.

Dr. King had a dream; we've all heard that mentioned time after time. It was not only included in his most noteworthy speech, but set a desire in the minds of many people to have a similar dream.

He dreamed of a world in which all races would be working, playing, generally existing together without the division which has kept them apart almost since this nation was conceived.

Unfortunately, not all of the people feel the same. The division, which appeared to be ebbing slightly in Dr. King's final days on earth, seems to be getting wider again.

Everyone is dividing everything. We have a United Way drive, and a Black United Way Drive. We have Miss America beauty contests and we have Miss Black America beauty contests.

Schools often separate races by holding both black and white class reunions. It makes one wonder where Hispanic and Asian youngsters are supposed to fit in.

No doubt, for every one of these racial divisions, people can come up with a reason they believe is appropriate. There is often a reason, but how will this division ever be eliminated if we continue to think that way, act that way, and conduct our lives in that manner?

What the futurists predict for us

The only thing we can know for sure about the future is that it won't be what the futurists say it will be -- except for death and taxes.

One magazine that looked ahead 25 years in 1975 to the year 2000 told us that by that time "cars will be whisked along computer-driven highways as the driver reads his paper, looks at TV or plays a game of hearts with his passenger."

On the brink of the new millennium we are not any closer to no-hands driving than we are to Rachel the computerized robot who, once she was programmed, was supposed to "dust and vacuum, change the sheets, scrub the floors, set the table, serve the meals and do the dishes."

Another futurist who peered into the beyond and saw some of us living on the moon by 2000 turned out to have been looking through rose-colored binoculars.

Happily, some of the more pessimistic predictions about the year 2000 do not appear to be just around the corner either. One alarmist said in 1970 that at the turn of the next century we "will have traffic jams that will last for days. A motorist will leave the office at 5 Monday evening and arrive home on Thursday." Talk about your gridlock.

But the futurists' biggest mistake has been in their time-table of what awaits us in the controversial field of genetic engineering. Churches and humanists generally were worried - if not positively aghast - at the possibility that mankind in the future will be subject to all sorts of scientific manipulation that could remake the human race.

Vance Packard, who died recently at age 82, predicted in the mid-1970s that "embryos will be for sale on the 'seed market' starting perhaps a few years from now."

He envisioned someone like Arnold Schwarzenegger ("Mr. Universe") or former pro basketball star and Rhodes Scholar Bill Bradley (most recently a U.S. senator) being induced to supply semen, which would be united with the best genes taken from a woman, perhaps like Sophia Loren -- "someone not only spectacularly beautiful but having an engaging

futurists say it

personality" -- to eventually produce a race of perfect human beings.

"There has been serious talk," said Packard in his best-seller "The People Shapers," of genetic engineering to produce women without breasts.

Packard said he first heard the idea expressed at a conference on medical ethics. More than 50 scientists, physicians and philosophers were present. The medical doctor proposing the idea pointed out that millions of women are or will be victims of breast cancer. Enormous sums of money are being spent on research and treatment of the disease.

He said the whole problem could be eliminated simply by snipping off a bit of the breast tissue at birth. The operation would be as uncomplicated as circumcision on baby boys.

He went on to say that for modern women, breasts are often a hindrance on the job --"certainly if they are foresters, jockeys, soldiers or mechanics. And they are also an encumbrance in sports."

Some of the projected experiments to genetic engineering "make your skin crawl." said Packard. One plan being considered, he said, was the creation of subhumans to do menial work by lowering the amount of oxygen given the unborn, resulting in a lowered intelligence.

Fortunately, the future is not in the hands of the futurists.

Is it Miller Time for feminists?

Will feminists ever be happy?

It's probably the most common complaint about feminism -- that we're still fighting a battle that was over long ago. Equality is won, and feminists should just hang up their hats and get a cold brewsky.

The fact that many women still have some quibbles with the way our society treats women outrages these critics. When will they be satisfied? they ask. Will they ever shut up?

It's actually a decent question. Sexism will never be completely eradicated from this country, but there should be a day when we feminists decide we've reached critical mass. So in that spirit, I'd like to offer the top in-11.4 feminist Miller Time. I will shut up when: . The lead anchor on the network news wears pearls. When a woman sits behind that desk and tells America what's important and why, I'll know that shull

People who are truly clear thinking, and realize that all people on earth are human beings and deserving of equal opportunities must start leading others.

Dr. King had a dream. Many others have that same dream. How many years, decades or centuries will it be before that dream becomes reality?

Thanks to the Community

The scros of Kappa Sigma Omega Chapter Alpha Kappa Algha Borority, Inc., thank all of the participants at their 1998 Pask & Green Ball. The proceeds from the ball will fund our community programs for 1987. It is the support of the community throughout the years that has made possible all of our accomplishments during the past two decades. We are particularly inducted to these who return for class rousians and join us in our gala celebrations.

Kappe figme Omege Chapter Sorors are hard working and dedicated to providing service to this community. They recently traveled to Jekyli island, GA for their ClusterIII meeting and were recognized for their leadership. sisteriness and support of Alpha Kappa Alpha Kappa Alpha's Nation Thrust. Our bastleus (president) Soror Eddye K. Walden was named by the regional director. Dr. Lucretia Peyton-Biewart to the Regional Leadership Team as Chaster III Coordinator. She also was cited for her sisterliness by winning the Soror-Laretta P. Jenkins. Bisterly Relations Award. Fifty-five percent of the chapter members were in attendance and won the Soror-Theima Mosley Attendance Award.

Kappa Sigma Omage Chapter won all of the awards presented at the Cluster III meeting. Consequently, the founders of Kappa Sigma Omage Chapter should take heart that the chapter is progressing and is prepared to meet the challenges of the new millennium.

Lastly, since our budget determines our programs, an invitation is extended for you to join us at our next Pink & Green Ball. The ball will be held December 26, 1997, at the Sanford Civic Center.

Thanks again for your support.

Gingrich aims for political rehab

Having so far survived a near-death experience, it's time for House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., to think seriously about his political rehabilitation.

Some of his friends suggest that he lose weight, listen to Democrats as well as Republicans, enact a bipartisan agenda during the next four years, and tone down his "hot" media image.

A few more suggestions: Learn humility, work to clear away the poisonous political atmosphere that he's helped create, and start trying to rebuild public confidence in Congress and the rest of the political system.

No one expects Gingrich to undergo a personality transplant. He'll always be aggressive, passionate, didactic, somewhat gecky, and intellectually pretentious.

But, without changing his political principies, he can stop acting as if the purpose of politics is the annihilation of one's adversary. It's not.

Even though he was re-elected as speaker. Gingrich is not out of the ethical woods yet, of course. If his adversaries can produce proof that he intentionally violated U.S. tax laws and lied to the ethics committee, he deserves to be censured and stripped of his speakership.

Circumstantial evidence strongly suggests that in the heady, triumphant days after his party's 1994 landslide victory, Gingrich was contemptuous of ethical rules when he denied GOPAC's involvement in his college course.

If this can't be proved, then Gingrich faces the choice of continuing to be loved by his friends, hated by his enemies, and profoundly distrusted by the public -- or changing his ways and, perhaps, ending up respected by all.

Gingrich made a good beginning in his post-election inaugural address, sounding almost contrite about his errors, nodding generously toward some Democrats, and pledging idealistic action to fight racism, ignorance, and drugs and to save the District of Columbia.

Then again, the "good Newt" also was on public display two years ago when he was sworn in, only to be replaced through 1995 and 1996 by a bitterly partisan "bad Newt" who grandiosely believed he was a revolutionary leader with a mandate from heaven or, perhaps, History.

The first of the two apologies Gingrich uttered in his recent speech sounded, frankly, phony. He was contrite only "to the degree I was too brash, too overconfident, or too pushy" and "to the degree I brought controversy or inappropriate attention to the House."

Gingrich sounded more genuine when he referred to Lis ethical jam and apologized for making it hard for friends to vote for him: "Some of this difficulty, frankly. I brought upon myself ... and I apologize to the House and the country for having done so."

He certainly did bring most of his troubles on himself. Gingrich isn't required to grovel about it publicly, but he ought to acknowledge to himself, as part of his redemption, that he repeatedly cut close to the edge of legality in building his political empire.

Worse, he was ruthless in cutting down enemies. accusing one after another of "corruption." and seeking the maximum possible punishment for any offense.

He gained power not only by the force of his ideas and personality, but also by trampling on the bodies of foes, holding Congress up to public ridicule, and ducking public disclosure and legal strictures in the financing of his political apparat.

He seems to believe that he is a figure of Winston Churchill-esque stature and that his noble ends - namely, replacing the welfare state with an "opportunity society" - justify whatever means he may employ.

This behavior, which has now come back to nearly destroy his career, is evidence of major character flaws not easily corrected. Still, even Gingrich may be capable of genuine contrition.

Only half-facetiously, one of his friends suggested that Gingrich lose weight - not only to improve his appearance, but to practice and demonstrate self-discipline, a trait he seems to lack. If President Clinton can do it, so can Gingrich.

Owing to his excesses in 1995. Gingrich nearly lost the House majority in November. Now, if he wants to get anything done, he needs to work with President Clinton and other Democrats.

The work ahead -- balancing the budget, saving Medicare and Social Security, reforming campaign finance -- can only be accomplished on a bipartiaan basis. If it is done, there will be plenty of credit for Gingrich.

Gingrich's friends also say that he needs to have staffers who will warn him when he's on the verge of doing something stupid. Equality is won, and feminists should just hang up their hats and get a cold brewsky.

I'm watching "Late Night with Janeane Garofalo." It's not that I don't love Dave and Jay and Conan. It's not that I don't think "Politically incorrect." ABC's post-"Nightline" comedy show hosted by someone named Bill, is very funny. I do. But, perhaps even more than the news desk, the comedy desk seems to be an exclusively male preserve. Yes, there was that woman on UPN for a while. And yes, there was also the short-lived "Joan Rivers Show" on Fox many cons ago. Sorry -- UPN and Fox don't count. I'm not piping down until we see a babe with a clear shot at filling Johnny's shoes.

- Meryl Streep plays opposite Matthew McConaughey - and not as his mother. Hollywood has long been pairing fresh-faced young women with men who are, uh, mature. Witness Sharon Stone and Michael Douglas, Julia Roberts and Richard Gere, Julia Ormond and Sean Connery. But we really got a sense of how bad things were when Clint Eastwood, who is 66, paired himself romantically with Streep, 47, in "The Bridges of Madison County." Eastwood was heavily criticized. Streep, his detractors said, was far too old.

- The electronics-store employee making big commissions by selling me overpriced merchandise and bogus warranties is a woman, and the exhausted cashier making minimum wage for ringing up these purchases is a man.

- My friend Mary goes into a four-star restaurant and the maitre'd is a woman. (Mary, a cookbook editor, is the only person I know who actually GOES to four-star restaurants, and she has graciously agreed to keep me posted.)

-- Ivy-league educated first ladies with successful careers don't have to pretend to be Donna Reed.

- We have a first gentleman. Actually, I think this will happen sooner than most of the above examples.

Kindermusik classes and Wee Ones Music and Movement, which will meet weekly at the First Street Gallery, 207 Magnolia Avenue. Downtown Historic Sanford, will begin the week of January 16, 1997.

Built in 1923 but recently renovated by owner and Director Kay Bartholomew, the gallery is part of a planned cultural cluster that will expand Sanford's artistic heritage. "We plan to gather people in innovative ways to develop a cultural existence to the wonderful city of Sanford. Kindermusik fits in beautifully," said Bartholomew.

Free open houses will be held at the gallery for the program, but pre-registration is necessary as class sizes are limited. Parents who wish to have more details concerning the curriculum, or wishing to register for the open house classes, can contact Gonzalez at 323-2712.

college currently has 460 fulltime employees. In other action Tuesday board evening. the unanimously approved the naming of the SCC firearma training facility the "Lieutenant Jim Brantly Firing Range." Lt. Brantly devoted 34 years to serving Sanford as a law enforcement officer. He has served as a firearms instructor at SCC for the last 22 years. both in the Criminal Justice Academics and leisure time programa.

According to Undersheriff Steve Harriet, most of the

Due to recent health problems. Lt. Brantly is no longer able to actively participate as a firearms instructor, said Harriet. "It only seems fitting and proper that we formally recognize Lieutenant Brantly's untiring contribution to the professional development of law enforcement training in our area....in honor of his many years of commitment and dedication to safe and proficient firearms training and skill development.

Guinea hens are birds of paradise

By MARIALISA CALTA NEA Food Writer

If you're lucky enough to go to France, and lucky enough to. have Sunday dinner with a French family, chances are you'll be lucky enough to have a "pintade," or guinea hen. These are small, lean birds resembling chickens (but tastier) that have been popular around the Mediterranean since ancient times. The French now consume 30 million a year.

Recently, I got my hands on some guines hens through a Canadian company, Pinielle. which is the largest North American producer of the birds. Since I had no idea how to cook one, I foraged through French cookbooks, and combined a few recipes. I stuffed the birds with whole onions, lemons, parsley and bay leaves, wrapped them in bacon and roasted them (10 minutes at 425 degrees, 30 minutes at 325). They were delicious and fun to serve. I've since found more recipes.

one developed by Chef Roland Czekelius at the New England Cultuary Institute, and a classic French version from Chris Shaw, sales director at Pintelle.

If you want to get your hands on guinea hens, you may have to look in specialty markets, where they retail for about $4 to $6 a pound. The folks at Pintelle (1-800-746-8233) can help you locate a market near you, or you can order from D'Artagnan (a specialty foods purveyor) by calling 1 800 327-8246.

OVEN ROASTED GUINEA HEN 2 Guinea hens, about 2-1/2 to 3 pounds each

Salt and pepper

6 slices Italian panchetta, thinly sliced, or 6 slices very good quality bacon

4 tablespoons butter

1/2 pound small white onions, peeled

I pound carrots, peeled and sliced into chunks

1/4 to 1/2 pound fresh fennel. trimmed and cut into chunks. Culinary Institute. Montpelier.

depending on your taste I pound small new potatoes, rinsed and drained 1/4 cup brandy

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees.

Wash the guines hens inside and out under cold running water. Pat dry with paper towels. Season inside and out with sait and pepper. Truss or tie legs together with kitchen twine. Place 3 pieces of panchetta (or bacon) over each bird and tie into place with twine. Set in a Dutch oven just large enough to hold the birds and set aside.

In a large skillet, melt 3 tablespoons of butter over medium heat. Brown the onions, carrots, fennel and polatoes, then cover and cook over low heat for a few minutes until they are about halfway cooked. (They will finish cooking with the hens.)

Heat the Dutch oven containing the birds and brown the birds over medium heat, turning gently to brown on all sides.

Remove the birds from the Dutch oven and, keeping the cooking pan over low heat, pour in the brindy. To deglaze the pan, use a wooden spoon to scrape the bottom so that any browned bits come up. Pour this liquid off.

Put the hene back in the Dutch oven, or put them in a clay rotating pot, and surround them with the vegetables. Pour the deglazing liquid over the top. Cover and roast for about 25 minutes. Uncover and remove the panchetta (or bacon). Baste the birds with the remaining tablespoon of butter, and continue to roast, uncovered, for about 20 minutes more, until nicely browned.

Pour off the roasting juices into a saucepan, and simmer for about 10 minutes to reduce and thicken. Serve the carved hens with vegetables and thickened Juices.

Yield: 6 to 8 servings. - Recipe from Chef Roland

Animal chalt note THE UI J

DEAR ABBY: I work in an animal shelter. Thank God more people are bringing unwanted animals to shelters instead of dumping them by the readaids where they risk being struck and killed by cars or attacked by wild mimals. At least these animain have a chance at life if they are brought to a shelter. There is a poster in the shelter where I work which reads: There aren't enough homes for all of them.

For those who are not lucky enough to be chosen, the shelter pro-vides the most humane death possible, with a loving attendant by their sides as they are put to sleep. But what a waste of basatiful life.

Abby, as I write this, I am in teers. The cate and dop whose capes I clean daily are wonderful, loving animals. It breaks my heart when no one comes to adopt them because then we ran out of space, we must choose which ones will be eaths-se print this so pet owners PL. will think about what happens when our country is overpopulated with animals. If only owners would spay or neuter their pets, there wouldn't be so many unwanted animals that must be put to death. BECGING FOR THE ANIMALS IN ARLINGTON, VT.

DEAR BEGGING: Thank you for writing. For years 1 have encouraged my readers to epay or neuter their pets, and go to shalters to choose an animal

A very dear friend of mine, Rhonda Fleming Mann, went to an animal shelter to get a dog. There she found an adorable "Sparkey," No see could hope for a more loving pet. (Ein lasks like a Pomeranian whose mother had more than a sniffing aintance with a fox terrier. Sparkey is now 14 years old and still going strong. Rhonda's husband, Ted Mann, is also crazy about Sparkey and walks him frequently. So, dear readers, if you want a pet, consider adopting one from an animal shelter, thereby sav-ing a life. ing a life.

DEAR ABBY: As a gentleman, I greet other men with a firm handshake. However, over the years I have found that most women do not care to shake hands with men or onally, a woman will offer a Ottom hand to shake, but in a very feminine way. The woman who do offer a hand tend to be middle-aged or professional women who are accusomed to formality. Older and young women usually do not offer to shake hands. Once I asked a woman why she chose not to, and she replied, 'It's a guy thing.'

Some women roll their eyes and grudgingly give me a light handshake, apparently just to appease

Recently, however, 1 greeted a woman by just saying, "Hello, I'm pleased to meet you." To my surprise, she offered her hand, so I shook it with medium firmness. She said, "Come on, give me a real shake."

Since I have been rebuffed so much in the past, I no longer extend my hand unless the woman does so offer your hand until the lady has indicated the without to use this form of greeting. Then take the middle read and shake her hand with medium firmness.

Cowboys accuser charged

DALLAS - A former stripper who made up a gang-rape accusation against Dallas Cowhows stars Erik Williams and Michael Irvin was charged with filing a false police report.

Nina Shahravan, 23, could face six months in jail and a $2,000 fine if convicted of the miademeanor. She filed a police report Dec. 30 accusing Irvin of holding a gun to her head while Williams and a third man raped her in Williams' home. She also accused irvin of videotaping the attack.

Colts' owner dies

INDIANAPOLIS - Robert Irsay, who on a snowy night in 1984 packed the moving vans and sneaked his Baltimore Colts away to Indianapolis, died at Indiana University Hospital a year after having a stroke. He was 73.

In 1972, Irsay purchased the Los Angeles Rams and swapped ownership with Carroll Rosenbloom, who owned the Colts, Irsay kept a low profile in Indianapolis, turning over most of operations to his son Jim.

White Sox sign Drabek

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago White Sox signed former NL Cy Young Award winner Doug Drabek to a $1.3 million, one-year contract. Drabek, 34, who won the 1990 Cy Young while going 22-6 with Pittsburgh, spent the last four seasons with Houston, compiling a 38-42 record. He was 7-9 last year.

Anderson cleared of rape allegation

Associated Press

ORLANDO - Orlando Magie guard Nick Anderson was cleared of a rape accusation Tuesday when the state attorney's office said it would not prosecute the case because of insufficient evidence.

"I am pleased that this is over and I have been cleared. The past three months have been very difficult for me and my family." Anderson said in a statement released through his attorney.

Anderson, who had maintained his innocence and passed a polygraph test, said the rape complaint was filed after he rejected an attempt by her to extort the $600,000.

State Attorney Lawson Lamar concurs with the Orlando Police Department that there are insufficient facts to establish probable cause," prosecutors said in a statement. "Therefore, the investigation into the accusations against Nick Anderson is terminated."

Investigators cited these inconsistencies by the woman:

- not I itially disclosing a letter from her attorney to Anderson seeking $600,000;

- she apparently had slept with Anderson in February, a week prior to the sexual battery allegation:

- she didn't report the alleged crime for months, saying her attorney told her not to, but refusing to cooperate with police in verifying this information.

The woman complained to police Oct. 8, alleging that she was raped Feb. 26 at her home in Orlando.

Anderson is the only remaining member from the Magic's first team in 1989. He is in the last year of a contract paying him $3.5 million per year.

That was before Oviedo's Lindsay Wyneger got rolling.

Wyneger ended with a game-high 20 points and scored six straight to cut the Lions' deficit to 35-24 at the half and she wasn't through yet.

Oviedo continued to pick at the Seminole lead and, after a Tamara Gilchrist layup made it 40-28, Wynegar had two buckets and two melets ot cut it to a four-point game.

The lead was evaporating and Wynn called several timeouts to try to stop the bleeding.

on wins and losses." Peters told the group of parents, players, and special guests. "But this team has a lot to be proud of. It's been a very emotional year. We graduated 24 seniors last year, four of whom are playing in college, and that left us with a very young team. You can be disappointed but you must be proud of your accomplishments. "This (the banquet) is the stage we use to get our family back together after the season and let you all know how proud our entire coaching staff is of you."

The defensive coaching staff, which includes Doug Petit (defensive coordinator), Allen Tuttle (defensive backs coach), and Scott McCaskill (defensive line coach) followed by introducing the players and reminding the audience of the defense's impressive statistics from the season.

That portion of the team allowed an average of 150 yards rushing per game and 89 yards passing. The defense caused 12 fumbles and 13 interceptions and blocked seven kicks.

Petit related how the defense stayed motivated.

"With chocolate bars," he said. "Small bars were given at practice whenever a great play was made and big bars were given for game plays. It's amazing what teenagers will do for chocolate."

For a line that was outsized in most of their games, the defense racked up some impressive numbers and all of the coaches agreed that the shoes of the seniors would not be easy to fill.

Petit left them with a life lesson. "No matter how good or how hard you work on the field and go to class and you must get the grades. Without that, nothing you do for football will matter."

killed us."

The offense followed with coaches Steve Katz (offensive line coach) and Scott Underwood (offensive backs coach) at no loss for words in praising their players.

Totaling 2,057 yards rushing and 1,175 yards passing, this unit averaged 323 yards per same and ranked second in the county in total offense. Kats was able to relate how this group stayed so powerful.

"We call our linemen 'Dog Soldiers.' A dog soldier." he explained, "was the highest level of worrior in the Cheyenne tribe. They were the protectors of the tribe and would aacrafice themselves for their families to survive. We made sure that each of our players earned their title by working together and doing what was expected of them for the good of the whole team. The players are proud of their titles because they know that they didn't come easily.'

Seven awards were then given by the coaching staff to those players who stood slightly above the rest.

Drew Young was named most valuable offensive back while the most valuable offensive lineman award went to Danny Johnson. On the defensive side. most valuable lineman was awarded to Richard Badger and Mike Stephenson was named most valuable linebacker. Outstanding underclassman honors went to Justin Wright.

Two awards that are close to the hearts of the Lake Mary team were also given at the banquet.

First, and maybe most heart-

Doug Peter's late father, this award is given to the team member who exhibits high standards, high ideals, and the right attitude. The honoree for this season was Brian Pinckney. Guest speaker, Larry Jones ("The Voice of the Rams,"), who spoke briefly to the audience before Peters announced the recipient, told the audience that the scholarship award honored three things in addition to the player: Ronald Peters, Doug Peters, and the Lake Mary football program. Jones closed by teiling the team members that they should always reach for their goals and their dreams.

Award. Named in memory of Petit is mainly responsible for the emergence of the Unsung Hero award, the last award given. This award is given to the player who consistently gives his all but may not get recognized by those other than his teammates and coaches. This is the most dependable member of the team since week after week he is where he needs to be, doing what he needs to do. Center Jeff Norton was named the unsung hero of the 1996 scason.

Never one to forget his trainers and managers, Peters had many compliments for the members of the team that hold it all together. As each trainer and manager came up to receive their letters and pins, Peters had one final compliment.

'It's like the Miss Lake Mary pageant in here tonight," Peters joked.

In closing, Peters once again addressed his players, some of them for the final time as their coach. He wished all of the senior great success in their endeavors and let all of the returning players, trainers, and managers know that he looked forward to having at least another year with them.

Perhaps the most poignant moments of the evening came when seniors Pickney and Young spoke on behalf of the entire team in thanking their coaching staff. Peters and his assistants were reminded of how much they mean to the players and the lessons that the team would take with them.

Next year there will be a mixture of new and returning players to join the Lake Mary family. For the night, though, this was one of the closest fam-Sizes in the area.

Is mental disorder a threat?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 46-year-old son has been diagnosed with schizophrenia. He refuses to take medication. He believes that everyone is after him. He hallucinates almost constantly. As his heartbroken mother, what can I do? What will happen to him if he doesn't take medication? I've been told that patients with men-tal illness have to seek help willingly, yet he desparately needs the medical attention that he refuses to accept.

DEAR READER: This is a truly difficult situation, because - as you stated -- the involuntary treatment of mental disorders is no longer the standard practice. However, there are two exceptions to this principle: If the patient is a threat to himself or to others.

Your brief comments indicate that your son is paranoid. He believes that he is in danger from the people around him. This is an exceedingly hazardous situation, because when a schizophrenic feels threatened, he often harms himself or others.

Therefore, I believe that you are entirely within your rights to involve the legal authorities. If your son's paranoia is increasing or taking on dangerous overtones ("I'm going to get them!"), report him to the police. Ordinarily, they will detain him for psychiatric evaluation and probable treatment; he will get "plugged" into the legal system. If his behavior seems relatively stable, ask your lawyer to guide you.

I should add, in all fairness, that most schizophrenics do not pose a danger to themselves or to others. This mental disease, which is marked by cognitive impairment, is often associated with hallucinations and feelings of depersonalization. But it is primarily the paranoid schizophrenical that are worrisome, because they may perform unpredictably violent acts, especially during fits of agitation.

Your son evidently needs help before a tragedy occurs. I believe that the actions I mentioned would be totally appropriate under the circumstances drinks, such as Gatorade, are rich in minerals and sugar to supply energy to athletes. To my knowledge, these beverages are safe -- in moderation -- for children as well as non-athletes. However, I think that parents should appropriately vary the drinks given to their children, substituting juice and plain water rather than relying solely on sports drinks.

For your part, try a local support group for parents of patients with mental disorders. See your Vellow Pages

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 64-year-old man with polycythemia vers and uncontrollable itching that has stumped my doctor. He has been unable to find a cause or prescribe effective therapy. I have no rash, and the itching is most troublesome at

DEAR READER: I'm surprised your physician didn't tell you that itching is a major consequence of polycythemia. This disorder, which is marked by an over abundance of red blood cells, is ordinarily treated with periodic removal of blood (phiebotomy),

However, even this therapy may not affect the itching, which - in some cases - can be extreme, especially at night. The reason for this is not known

Assuming that you are receiving adequate treatment for your blood condition, I suggest that you consider using anti-itch pills (Temaril, Atarax and others). These are available by prescription. Ask your doctor about ihis.
