Virginian Killed In Car Crash

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A 19-year-old Virginia man who had been visiting his father for the summer was killed when his car collided with a pickup truck then slammed into a cement pole in Longwood.

Killed in the 6:55 p.m. accident Saturday was Albert McGuire Jr. He had been visiting his father who lives at 247 E. Orange Ave., Longwood, according to police. He had also been visiting with his fiancée who was not in the vehicle, said police. Where he was from in Virginia was not available.

McGuire was pinned in the wreckage of the 1973 Chevrolet and was dead at the scene.

Three 17-year-old passengers in the car, a boy and two girls, received treatment at the scene for minor injuries.

According to police, they had just been paid at a truss-making company and were heading to the bank to cash their paychecks.

According to police, a northbound pickup truck attempted to make a left turn into the driveway of a bar and entered the path of McGuire's car.

The front driver's side of the truck wrinkling the side of the two-door car and pushing the door towards the rear. The car then skidded, stopping after the rear end struck a large cement pole. McGuire was killed when he was pinned by the car's steering wheel, police said.

McGuire's father was at the scene, according to witnesses.

Botha Handed Setback

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The Durban branch of the Supreme Court today overruled two key clauses of President Pieter Botha's June 12 state of emergency declaration, possibly clearing the way for the release of about 8,000 people detained without charge.

A three-judge panel said in a written ruling that Botha exceeded his authority in giving police and soldiers the right to detain people for 14 days, subject to indefinite renewal by a Cabinet minister.

State lawyers said they would file an appeal this afternoon and the court reserved a decision until then on whether to enforce its ruling immediately or suspend it until an appeal is heard.

It was the most sweeping court rejection so far of the emergency declaration.

Last month, the same court overturned rules barring lawyers from visiting clients detained without charge.

In other cases, judges have overruled the detention of specific people, ordering them released, but refused to alter the text of Botha's declaration.

The judges also ordered the release of United Democratic Front official Lechesa Tsenoli, who was held without charge following a nationwide pre-dawn sweep June 12 in which police picked up about 1,000 anti-apartheid activists.

The UDF challenged the emergency regulations on Tsenoli's behalf.

The court ordered the costs of the application be paid by Botha, Law and Order Minister Louis le Grange and Minister of Justice Kobie Coetsee.

Road To The Summit

Reagan

MOSCOW (UPI) — A U.S. arms negotiating team headed by special Ambassador Paul Nitze and the chief U.S. negotiator at Geneva, Max Kampelman, opened talks with Soviet experts today that are expected to be a prelude to a second superpower summit later this year.

The U.S. team arrived in Moscow Sunday on board a U.S. Air Force jet.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Moscow refused to disclose any details or even the venue of the meeting with the Soviets and said a news blackout has been imposed at the request of both sides.

The talks, called at the request of the Kremlin, are scheduled to last two days.

On the eve of the talks, the Soviet Union served notice it rejected major parts of President Reagan's latest proposals on reducing nuclear arsenals.

The detailed attack of Reagan's proposal was carried on state television Sunday shortly after the arrival of the American delegation and was repeated by official radio and the Tass news agency.

The criticism, which echoed earlier attacks in the newspapers, said Reagan's letter to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev only "reaffirmed" prior U.S. positions and did nothing to improve chances for a superpower summit this year.

"The question of a summit remains open," prominent commentator Alexander Bovin said. "Neither Moscow nor Washington can say yet if the meeting will be held."

But the Soviet television commentator rejected a key element of Reagan's letter to Gorbachev dealing with U.S. plans to deploy the "Star Wars" anti-missile system, officially called the Strategic Defense Initiative.

"As far as any constructive political solution is concerned, the letter does not signal any advance," Bovin said.

Vitaly Zhurkin, deputy director of the Institute of the U.S.A. and Canada, said Reagan proposed extending the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty for 7 to 7 1/2 years, while carrying out "even the testing of space weapons."

Gorbachev had suggested to Reagan in June that only research on space-based missile defenses be allowed during the next 15 years.

Zhurkin, dismissing Reagan's proposal on intermediate-range missiles in Europe as an old proposal, said, "The U.S. administration has not changed — the same people, the same policies."

The timing of the meeting, a month before arms talks resume in Geneva, lent a sense of importance to the negotiations. U.S. officials refused any advance comment.

Included in the U.S. team was Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Perle, a leading hard-liner in arms control, and Col. Robert Linhard, special national security assistant to Reagan.

The composition of the American delegation covered the full range of the debate within the Reagan administration over the value of arms agreements with Moscow.

Despite the Soviet warnings about the summit, the current talks are the latest step in the accelerating preparations for a summit expected later this year.

Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze are to meet in Washington Sept. 19-20 for what has been billed as the key preparatory meeting.

Although the two countries agreed last November to a Washington summit this year, Moscow has demanded that a Reagan-Gorbachev meeting produce concrete results, especially on arms control.

County To Mull 2 Loans Up To $19 Million From Two Banks

By Paul Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County commissioners will be asked Tuesday to approve borrowing by the county of up to $19 million from two banks. The requests will come during the commission's meeting in the County Services Building, 1101 East First Street, Sanford.

The commission will be asked to approve borrowing up to $8 million from Sun Bank, N.A. for the purchase of a new county-wide, $5.5 million, 800 megahertz radio communications system, county administrator Ken Hooper said.

The balance of the loan would be used for the possible purchase of two parcels of land near the county services building and for capital improvement projects.

The proposed new Motorola radio communications system is needed to replace the old system, which was purchased during the 1970s and "has reached the saturation point," Hooper said.

He added that the new system is projected to be in service through 2010. The old system would be put up for sale, possibly to a city.

Hooper said the new system will be used for county communications, as well as the sheriff's department and the cities of Longwood and Altamonte Springs. He said the city of Casselberry would join the system later, and that the county and the city of Sanford are also discussing joining the system.

He added that the system will be used to provide first response for the public safety departments, and the closest unit to a call will respond, regardless of what municipality the call originates. He said the system is not connected with the planned county-wide 911 emergency telephone network.

The commission will also be asked to approve a loan of up to $6 million from Barnett Bank to complete the 2,000 foot expressway extension north of the Seminole-Orange County line.

The extension will start at Dean Road, and run north to Highway 426, from the planned end of the Orange County East-West Expressway, Hooper said. The money will be used to fund construction and design, pay for right-of-way acquisition.

DEA Busts Two In Cocaine Sale

Two men who allegedly agreed to sell two kilograms of cocaine for $18,000 each to undercover Drug Enforcement Agency agents have been charged with trafficking in cocaine and conspiracy to traffic in cocaine.

The deal was reportedly made at Raffle's restaurant, in the Altamonte Mall, State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, and the suspects were arrested when they produced one kilogram of cocaine for the agents in the parking lot.

Another nine kilograms of cocaine was reportedly found in the car of one of the suspects.

Arrested at 10:28 p.m. Friday and being held without bond were: Francisco Jose Soto, 45, of 849 S. Wymore Road #33D, Altamonte Springs, and Alex Cohen-Velasquez, 43, of Ocala.

Law: No Street Ball

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A check of the statute book shows it is no longer illegal to drive cattle down Hollywood Boulevard or shoot a jack rabbit from a trolley car in transit.

But it's still against the law to bathe in used bath water, to blow snuff in someone's face, or to use a water closet for "other than toilet purposes," the Los Angeles Daily News reported Sunday.

A careful reading of the municipal code reveals laws that cover almost every facet of life in a major city.

"Once a law is on the books, it usually stays there unless somebody finds a good reason to change it," said Henry Morris, a deputy city attorney.

But some regulations are rarely if ever enforced, such as one prohibiting ball games in the street.

After peanut vendors at Dodger Stadium heard about a 1967 ordinance banning the throwing of objects for the stands of a sports stadium, they stopped tossing bags of peanuts to customers — which they often did more accurately than the Dodgers throwing the ball on the field, the newspaper

Assailant Faces Murder Charge

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford man is dead of stab wounds inflicted at about 10 p.m. Sunday and a 30-year-old man who was arrested initially on an attempted murder charge at about 11 p.m. Sunday now has been charged with murder.

William "Billy" Harrington, 30, of 2404 Willow Ave., died at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford at about 6 a.m. today. Stanley Richard Kowalczyk, of 2407 S. Willow Ave., Sanford, has been charged in connection with the killing.

He was being held without bond in the Seminole County jail, scheduled to make a first appearance in court today.

The trouble between the men began when Harrington went to Kowalczyk's home to see Sandra Sanders, 28, who lives with Kowalczyk. Harrington and Ms. Sanders were on the front porch talking and after about 10 minutes Kowalczyk joined them and the two men began arguing, a Sanford police report said.

Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said today police were trying to find out what they were arguing about.

Harrington reportedly pushed or hit Kowalczyk and Kowalczyk allegedly chased Harrington to the Bay Avenue Park, about 175 feet from Kowalczyk's home. There, according to the police report, Kowalczyk allegedly stabbed Harrington five times.

Ms. Sanders reportedly told police that she heard Kowalczyk tell Harrington, "I stabbed you five times, you should be dead."

Both men went to the home of Harrington's uncle, Charles Tate of 2404 Willow Ave. Harrington collapsed in the front yard and the suspect ran into the home and told Tate, "I just killed Billy," the report said.

Tate, who is a Sanford police sergeant with more than 20 years on the force, took Kowalczyk into custody and Harrington was transported to the hospital.

A pocket knife, believed to be the murder weapon, was recovered in Tate's front yard, Harriett said. Tate was off duty when the incident occurred.

Harriett said Harrington was wounded in the abdomen, leg and arm. An autopsy will be scheduled for today or Tuesday, Harriett said.

Kowalczyk is a carpenter and Harriett does not know what Harrington's occupation was.

Woman Dies In I-4 Crash

A 20-year-old Tampa woman was killed Sunday when she was thrown from a pickup truck that rolled several times on Interstate 4 south of Lake Mary Boulevard.

The accident occurred around 8 p.m.

Another passenger, the dead woman's husband, and the driver were reportedly seriously injured. They were treated and released from the South Seminole Community Hospital in Longwood.

According to witnesses, the 1983 Toyota pickup truck swerved sharply, crossed the westbound lane and then rolled several times.

Witnesses also said the dead woman was standing up in the truck, waving to people through the sun roof as the truck weaved through traffic, according to Lake Mary Police Lieutenant Sam Belfiore, who said all three were thrown from the truck as it rolled.

The woman reportedly suffered severe head injuries, according to rescuers.

The driver was charged with willful wanton reckless driving, and may be charged with manslaughter, Belfiore said.

Dead at the scene was Paula Dunn Ytuarte, 20, 6828 Caribon Way, Tampa. Her husband, John Ytuarte, no age available, and driver Eric Sundvall, 21, Bestavia Apartments, 42nd Street, Tampa, were treated and released at the hospital Sunday night, a hospital spokesman said.

The woman is the 24th traffic fatality of the year in Seminole County. The 23rd occurred Saturday when a Virginia man visiting his father in Longwood was killed in a two-vehicle accident.

We're All In This Together

Check the label in your suit jacket, the trademark on your automobile. Notice where your shoes were manufactured, your stereo and your VCR — the list could go on. It's evident all around us that what used to be made in Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Cleveland now rolls off production lines in Korea, Hong Kong and Brazil. The numbers confirm the obvious: Halfway through 1986, the United States trade deficit has hit a new high of $83.9 billion. If we continue at the current pace, we will see an annual rate of about $170 billion. Some economists predict that the net United States foreign debt will rise to $650 billion by 1990.

We are in a "difficult and dangerous situation," Paul Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told the House Banking Committee. "Our financial market becomes more and more hostage to the continuing flow of capital from abroad."

Interest payment and amortization of a debt as large as the one we're building is a serious drag on the American economy; eventually they will deduct 2 percent or more from the nation's gross national product. Since real growth has amounted to only 2.5 percent a year in the 1980s, the potential for economic stagnation is starkly obvious — unless a non-inflationary means of spurring growth can be found.

It's easier to articulate the problem than to suggest solutions. Protectionism, for example, is a seductive response to the trade deficit, but protectionist measures are invariably counterproductive. They invite foreign retaliation and set the stage for a breakdown in world trade.

Stimulating economic growth by cutting taxes, increasing government spending and widening the budget deficit would seem to offer a way out of the current dilemma; with record budget and trade deficits those approaches are likely to be both counterproductive and politically unfeasible.

So what's a nation to do? For one thing, we can enact measures to increase savings, which would help bring down real interest rates in the United States, spur investment and growth and help restore competitiveness to American producers. For too long, we've been saving too little and consuming too much. We also can encourage more cooperative efforts by business and labor to improve productivity.

Congress and the administration also must act responsibly to correct the long-term negative impact of that other worrisome deficit — the one affecting the budget. Budget Director James C. Miller III now estimates that the fiscal 1986 deficit will be a record $220 billion, because revenues were overestimated and defense spending underestimated.

Internationally, we can more forefully remind Japan and West Germany of our economic interdependence. While we've been stumbling under the burden of record trade deficits, they've been pursuing a mercantilist, export-led prosperity. They've avoided domestic expansion. And they've avoided addressing the problems of debt-burdened Third World nations, which have had to cut imports from the United States and other industrialized countries.

None of these measures come with a guarantee. Economist Alan Greenspan, an unofficial adviser to the Reagan administration, warns that "We may be at one of those periods of history where policy has very serious limitations."

He could be right, of course. We can be sure, however, that whatever we do has to be done interdependently — on both domestic and international levels. We're all in this together.

BERRY'S WORLD

JEFFREY HART

The Trick Is Holding The Coalition Together

Jefferson Morley is a young, rising writer on The New Republic, and in a recent issue he put his finger deftly on a potential fissure in the Reagan coalition. The religious right, observes Morley, puts the "social issues" high on its agenda. It desires to curb abortion, pornography, drugs and maybe even contraception. But a large part of the Reagan coalition has a different agenda. It focuses on lower taxes, reduced federal government, and a strong national defense and foreign policy.

In the youngish conservative political culture of Washington, the men and women on the congressional staffs, in the think tanks and foundations, and on the newspaper and magazine staffs, there are undoubtedly the usual percentage of homosexuals. There are enough people who read Playboy and smoke a little grass. There are people who are sleeping with their girlfriends, without benefit of clergy.

These people grew up in the 1960s. They have hi-fis, VHSs and Volkswagens. They are certainly conservative in that they have absorbed the theories of George Gilder, Michael Novak, Milton Friedman and Charles Murray. They do not want their taxes shoveled down the welfare rat-hole. They have read or at least heard about Solzhenitsyn, and they don't want to lose a war to the Soviet Union. SDI makes a lot of sense to them. But they are not about to have their personal tastes shaped by the assumptions of any fundamentalist preacher.

The principle difference between these Reagan conservatives and their liberal counterparts is that the conservatives are more discreet. They don't dress like Jerry Rubin, circa 1968, and they don't blow marijuana smoke in your face. They recognize the religious right as political allies, good foot soldiers who can turn out a vote, but as to buying the whole program, forget it.

For its part, the religious right has some valid points to make. A moral sea-change has indeed taken place in the country, and we are assaulted at the newsstands with a remarkable display of pornography. Roe versus Wade did in fact discern a right-to-abortion in the Constitution which had been invisible to people like John Marshall and Oliver Wendell Holmes. It is manifestly absurd that the Court, in Roe vs.

Wade, simply struck down the laws passed by 50 state legislatures, thus greatly extending the imperial scope of the Court at the expense of the state legislatures. What will emerge from the Rehnquist-Scalia-O'Connor Court will almost certainly not be the outlawing of abortion, as some conservatives hope, but the return of this area of public policy to legislative jurisdiction. Nor will the legislatures outlaw abortion.

President Reagan's technique of holding the coalition together has worked very well. He has focused on the economy, on defense and foreign policy. Those have always been his own priorities. To the social conservatives he has given words, plus a few federal judges. This has been enough to keep them aboard.

His success can be measured in various ways. He smashed the illegal air controllers' strike, blew away inflation, threw the thugs out of Grenada, reversed the tide in El Salvador, reduced tax rates, looked the Kremlin in the eye and deployed the Perahings, launched SDI and is holding steady on that course. We are going to get tax reform and some form of immigration control.

VIEWPOINT

On The Marxist Threat

By Brian Jackson

The recent resumption of U.S. military aid to the Nicaraguan Contras is unlikely to stem the torrent of misinformation, distortion and wishful thinking that so clouded congressional debate on the issue. If anything, the battle will become more intense as innumerable "public interest groups," "humanitarian coalitions" and "religious task forces" trumpet Contra failures and parade evidence of U.S. lawlessness before an all too trusting world.

Unfortunately, far too few congressmen and citizens have questioned just whose interests such groups really represent. They are certainly not those of the Nicaraguan people, who are now suffering far more than under the darkest days of Somoza. Last month's closing of La Prensa, Nicaragua's only opposition newspaper, serves to underscore the Sandinistas' commitment to totalitarian rule without dissent. Notorious neighborhood committees spy on ordinary citizens in their homes, hoping to find evidence of anti-revolutionary activities. One of the nation's Catholic bishops was denied permission to enter his own country recently because of his opposition to government policy. These and other signs of growing repression have led even the most liberal of U.S. politicians to admit that the Sandinistas have not created the pluralistic utopia they promised.

But few of those politicians will honestly admit that, without a fundamental change in the Nicaraguan government, peace in Central America will not be possible. Repression at home is one thing, but when that system threatens other nations through a massive military buildup and support of subversive movements, the problem is an international one. For a time, the Contadora process was the great hope of U.S. liberals. They assumed the Sandinistas to be innocent victims of U.S. aggression who would surely sign a verifiable treaty aimed at decreasing area tensions. Those negotiations are in shambles, and opponents of Contra aid are hard put to offer another solution.

The President has enacted a clear and effective program designed to isolate and destabilize the Sandinista regime. Aid to the Nicaraguan resistance is an integral part of that plan.

U.S., Allies Sell Arms To Iran

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Western allies continue to conduct secret talks and cut secret deals with Iran while the Ayatollah Khomeini's terrorist lackeys control the fate of three surviving American hostages — and several Europeans.

We've reported before on the secret tilt toward Iran by the Reagan administration's top policymakers. We have declined to detail the extent and exact nature of the contacts because they are so closely intertwined with the fate of the remaining hostages.

WASHINGTON WORLD

Politics Of Cocaine

By Ira R. Allen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An estimated 5 million Americans use cocaine regularly, and about 1 million to 1.5 million of these are described by the government as "compulsive" users.

Largely, they are pillars of society — the athletes, show business celebrities and young executives whose dependency can cost big corporations big money through embezzlement and lost productivity.

On the other hand, the invisible users hang out on city street corners, rob people to pay for their habit or wait up to six months to get into a treatment program — for which federal funds have dried up.

An estimated 10 million Americans are alcoholics. While often the pillars of society, they are more often the truck driver, the cop, the assembly line worker, the housewife, the next door neighbor.

Guess which abuser President Reagan has targeted in his public relations war against substance abuse?

While giving mere lip service to alcohol abuse, Reagan has come down hard on drug abusers, abandoning the "supply side" of the equation and arguing that real success will come only from striking the "demand side" — getting people to stop using drugs as a way of drying up the supply.

A laudable enough goal. It is one enhanced in his view by the fact it doesn't cost as much money to make speeches or make workers give urine samples as it would to fund urban treatment centers.

With Reagan planning a drug abuse crusade in Washington hotel ballrooms and in various locales around the country, his emphasis is on voluntarism by schools, churches and trade associations.

Neither he nor his aides have said anything about him going into ghettos to spread the "Just Say No" gospel among those most affected by drugs and least able to find support for kicking the habit.

The political reality is that street corner junkies might not find Reagan credible in any message he might deliver — although it would be an eye-opener for the president to see a world he hardly knows exists.

The president is considering drug testing for all federal employees, at least those with security clearances — more than 2 million — and has offered himself and his Cabinet as the first to stand in line.

Whether those test results would ever be made public is another question. What would be the lesson if, as expected, the Cabinet turns out to be drug-free, but their bodies show remnants of the cocktail they had at last night's Georgetown dinner party?

Alcohol is legal, the White House drug crusaders argue. Everyone drinks it. And it is out of the system within an hour or two.

Marijuana, however, remains in the body for two or three days, thus presumably affecting productivity longer. And the sons and daughters of government officials — if not they themselves — have probably tried marijuana in high school or college, while only a low-life uses heroin.

That leaves cocaine as the real target of the campaign, as legitimate a goal as any Reagan has set, but despite administration denials, a target that is the direct result of this summer's cocaine deaths of basketball star Len Bias and pro football player Don Rogers.

SCIENCE WORLD

Good ...Not Perfect

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Many transplant patients wouldn't be alive today if it weren't for cyclosporin, a powerful immunosuppressant that protects new hearts, livers and kidneys from bodies battling to reject them.

But even miracle drugs can have their drawbacks.

Dr. Israel Penn, a Cincinnati surgeon, has collected evidence that seems to indicate cyclosporin is responsible for a larger percentage of high-risk cancers than other immunosuppressant drugs. Yet he remains emphatic in his support of the drug.

"Cyclosporin is one of the greatest drugs ever invented," Penn says. "It has revolutionized transplantation. It's the drug of choice in just about all kidney, liver, heart and heart and lung transplants."

Transplant patients need immunosuppressants such as cyclosporin to keep their bodies' defense mechanisms from rejecting new organs as foreign matter. These drugs, unfortunately, depress the entire immune system, making patients more susceptible to opportunistic infections and cancers.

Penn has maintained a registry of more than 2,800 tumors associated with immunosuppressant drugs since 1968, and says his data shows that cancers occur in about 4 percent of all transplant patients as a result of their immunosuppression.

"The gist of my message is that it doesn't make any difference what immunosuppressant drug you use — you're going to run the risk of developing cancer," he says. "All I can say is the pattern we've seen with cyclosporin may be a bit different."

At a meeting of the American Society of Transplant Surgeons in Chicago recently, Penn reported that patients on cyclosporin who developed cancers had non-Hodgkins lymphomas 41 percent of the time compared to only 12 percent of cancers associated with other immunosuppressants. In contrast, 40 percent of patients on other drugs developed simple skin cancers, which accounted for 15 percent of the cyclosporin-related cancers.

The difference is significant, Penn says, because skin cancer is much easier to treat than non-Hodgkins lymphoma, which is often fatal in transplant patients.

Paris has also signed secret deals with Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi for 128 Otomat shipborne missiles (of joint French-Italian manufacture), Mirage jet fighter-bombers and dozens of Exocet anti-ship missiles. Exocets wreaked deadly havoc on the British fleet in the Falklands war, and could endanger the U.S. Sixth Fleet if it maneuvers in the Gulf of Sidra again.

West Germany. Perhaps primarily to make travel safer for its citizens, Bonn has agreed to supply Iran with four Type 209 diesel submarines, among other weapons. The carnage these undersea craft could produce in the Persian Gulf oil-shipping lanes can easily be imagined.

Intelligence sources tell us the extent of West Germany's secret deals with Iran has made Lufthansa safer to fly than any other airline — with the possible exception of El Al, which relies on painstaking security measures rather than Israeli appeasement of terrorist-sponsoring governments.

Austria, Greece, Sweden — and Israel. According to a startling report in this month's Reader's Digest by senior editor Nathan Adams, these supposedly anti-terrorist countries have also put the almighty dollar above the ethical and humane considerations involved in weapons dealing with countries that encourage terrorist activities.

Italy. Nearly half of Libya's $10 billion worth of business with West Europe each year is with Italy, its former colonial ruler. Last May, a former Italian intelligence chief disclosed that he had helped Gadhafi obtain arms and advised him on intelligence matters to secure better deals for Italian firms doing business with Libya. Heavy weapons provided by Italian companies include missile-equipped warships, self-propelled howitzers, missiles and thousands of acoustic mines and torpedoes.

Stockton Gives Tip To Circling Shark

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Dave Stockton experienced a similar situation 10 years ago, so he gave Greg Norman some advice.

"I saw Greg in the clubhouse," Stockton, 45, said. "I told him to go back to his hotel, have a good meal in his room, watch some television and go to sleep. That worked for me."

Stockton won his second PGA Championship at the 1976 event, waiting a day while heavy rain washed out the scheduled final round at the Congressional Country Club in Bethesda, Md.

Norman, on the verge of becoming only the second person in history to win the British Open and the PGA Championship in the same year, had completed just one hole Sunday before heavy rains flooded the Inverness Club course and subsequently caused the postponement of the final round until today.

"The whole deal is a mess, but what can you do?" said Norman, who is 11-under-par through 55 holes and leads Bob Tway by four shots and Peter Jacobsen and Payne Stewart by seven. "Everybody's plans have to be changed."

"But I doubt the delay will affect my play at all. On the first hole, I sunk an 18-foot putt to save par, and that put me in a good mood that will carry over."

Sixty players in the field of the $800,000 event will resume play today at 1:15 p.m. EDT — 13 had finished by the time the rains halted play at 2:31 p.m. Sunday. ABC will nationally televise the round, beginning at 4 p.m.

PGA of America president Mickey

Golf

Powell, whose organization is sanctioning this 68th PGA Championship, said the delay was based on getting the course in "the best possible playing condition."

"In addition, we have an excellent weather forecast for (today)," Powell said. The National Weather Service predicted partly cloudy skies will prevail in the morning with sunny conditions by afternoon.

Tway's eight-foot putt helped him save par on the first hole.

"It was a good start for me," said Tway, who has won $460,005 and is second on the current money list to Norman. "But the delay won't affect me at all. I just feel sorry for the spectators.

"We pros can adjust to the delay. That's part of our lives, and we've accepted that."

Norman has led all four major championships after three rounds this year and is trying to become the first player to win back-to-back majors since Tom Watson won the U.S. and British Opens in 1982.

If Norman can win the top prize of $140,000, his earnings on the American tour would soar past $700,000.

Stockton, who needed to sink a 13-foot putt on the final hole to edge Ray Floyd and Don January 10 years ago, believes Norman "won't have any problems."

"Greg's on a hot streak, and I doubt this will cool him off," said Stockton, who was one of the players to complete his round, finishing at 8-over 292.

"Besides, his nickname is the 'Great White Shark,' right? Sharks love water, so the rain won't hinder him one bit."

Of the 13 players who completed play, the best 72-hole score had been turned in by Hale Irwin, who won the U.S. Open at Inverness seven years ago. He shot a 3-under 68 Sunday for a tournament total of 3-over 287. That was three shots higher than his winning score in 1979.

The day's best round in progress was that of Ben Crenshaw, who on Saturday had thrown a club into the air only to have it land on his head. Three stitches were needed.

Crenshaw had played 14 holes before play was stopped and was 5-under for the round and 1-under overall.

Rookies Handle Raiders

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — There was concern entering the 1986 season that the San Francisco 49ers pass rush had been waived along with veteran Fred Dean.

However, a pair of rookies — Charles Haley and Larry Roberts — put those fears to rest Sunday as they manhandled the Los Angeles Raiders offensive line for five of the 49ers' 12 sacks to lead San Francisco to a 32-0 triumph over the Raiders.

The loss was the Raiders' first shutout, preseason or otherwise, since a 27-0 loss to the Kansas City Chiefs on Oct. 11, 1981.

"It's probably an understatement, but we played poorly," said Raiders coach Tom Flores. "I don't care if it is the first pre-season game, we can't have that kind of play this season."

Haley collected three sacks while Roberts had two.

"On some of the sacks, the guys just came in free. They were missed assignments," Flores said. "On others, they simply just beat our people. We just didn't do a good job and we don't have a whole lot of time to work on it."

Haley said: "It (the sacks) felt good. All the work I've been doing in camp paid off."

However, Haley said he wasn't ready to proclaim himself a replacement for the departed Dean.

"I know I can't fill Fred Dean's shoes right now," the rookie said. "I'm going to just do the best I can."

Rookie fullback Tom Rathman provided a spark for the 49ers, scoring a pair of touchdowns. Rathman, the 49ers' third-round draft pick from Nebraska, capped a 19-yard drive late in the third quarter with a one-yard TD run that gave San Francisco a 19-0 lead.

CARDS, BELL AGREE

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals have reached a contract agreement with No. 1 draft choice Anthony Bell, the linebacker from Michigan State who was the fifth player selected in the 1986 National Football League draft.

After several hours of meetings with Cardinals attorney Bob Wallace in St. Louis, Bell's agent, Edward Sewell, agreed late Sunday on a four-year deal worth about $1.63 million.

The deal includes a signing bonus of approximately $665,000, and also includes a package of incentives that could increase the value of the contract to more than $1.7 million.

The contract is about 15 percent more lucrative than the deal signed last summer by the team's No. 1 draft choice in 1985, linebacker Freddie Joe Nunn. Bell's signing bonus is $100,000 more than Nunn's bonus.

WILLIAMS, SKINS CLOSE

JACKSON, La. (UPI) — Quarterback Doug Williams, who played with the NFL's Tampa Bay Buccaneers for five years before jumping to the U.S. Football League in a contract dispute, says he is about to sign with the Washington Redskins.

Williams, in Jackson, La., on Sunday to help honor Grambling coach Eddie Robinson, said he has reached a tentative agreement with the Washington Redskins. He expected to sign with the club sometime this week.

Ivan Lendl keeps his eye on the ball after smashing a backhand. Lendl swept Boris Becker in two straight sets Sunday to win the Volvo tennis tournament.

Lendl Squashes Drained Becker

STRATTON, Vt. (UPI) — One day after winning his war with John McEnroe, an emotionally drained Boris Becker finished the final battle of the Volvo International with a shrug and a smile.

On Sunday, the West German lost the first set 6-4 to top seed Ivan Lendl and trailed 0-6 in the second-set tiebreaker after a linecall went against him. Becker, dismayed by the ruling, was slow in changing sides and Lendl met him on the baseline.

As Lendl related: "He said, '(Kevin) Curran had two match points (against me) and McEnroe had four. Do you think I can come back from six?'"

The 18-year-old Wimbledon champion shrugged his shoulders and walked away smiling. On the next point, he sailed a backhand wide to end the two-hour match, the players' first contest on hardcourt in seven meetings.

Lendl played with machine-like efficiency to take the $40,000 first prize and became the first male tennis player to reach $9 million in prize money.

Becker, constantly committing unforced errors, lacked the intensity so evident in Saturday's 3-6, 7-5, 7-6 (10-8) triumph over McEnroe.

"I got out of bed this morning and said, 'Oooff, I'm still in a tournament,' said the teenager who beat Lendl in straight sets for the Wimbledon crown. "I thought the final was yesterday."

"It was difficult to psyche myself up again. I couldn't concentrate on the big points," Becker said. "He wasn't playing so great, I just couldn't push myself to my best."

The Czechoslovakian, ranked No. 1 in the world, now has a 5-2 career advantage over the teenager, seeded second here and ranked third.

Tennis

The victory boosted Lendl's 1986 winnings to $713,663 and his career prize money total to $9,020,501. Martina Navratilova has won more than $10 million in tournaments. Becker's runner-up prize money was $20,000.

In the first set, each player had lost serve once when Lendl broke Becker again for a 5-4 lead and served out the set. Becker dropped his second service game in the second set, but in a 14-minute, 24-point sixth game, broke Lendl on his eighth break-point opportunity to even the match 3-3.

"I felt if I'd won that game I'd have broken his spirit," Lendl said. "I just told myself not to let it slip away."

Both players held serve until 6-6. Becker then made an uncharacteristic five unforced errors in the tiebreaker and Lendl stroked a pair of passing shots. The West German floated a backhand crosscourt wide to end the two-hour match.

SHRIVER SHORT

MONTREAL (UPI) — Whether playing against Helena Sukova or with her, Pam Shriver Sunday came up short.

Sukova, of Czechoslovakia, used bullet-like serves and well-placed lobs to defeat Shriver 6-2, 7-5 in the singles final of the $280,000 Player's Challenge.

Shriver and Sukova later teamed up in the doubles championship match and lost to Zina Garrison, of Houston, and Gabriella Sabatini, of Argentina, 7-6 (7-2), 5-7, 6-4.

Sukova, ranked seventh in the world, dominated the singles championship. She fired five aces, compared to Shriver's one.

Rash Of Injuries Thins Miami Line

MIAMI (UPI) — A help wanted sign has been hung on the Miami Dolphins' offensive line.

A rash of injuries has the Miami coaching staff scouring United States Football League rosters and the NFL waiver wire for healthy bodies. Coach Don Shula said Sunday. He also said the team is willing to trade for a lineman.

A severe knee injury suffered by starting right guard Steve Clark in Saturday's 30-16 exhibition game loss at Minnesota brings to seven the number of linemen on the team's pre-season depth chart sidelined by injury. Shula said he was not sure of the extent of Clark's injury, but it appeared he would be lost for the year.

Besides Clark, also out with injuries are: tackle Jon Giesler (knee); center-guard Jeff Toews (knee); center-guard Mark Denard (ankle); tackle Jeff Dellenbach (ankle); guard Tom Taylor (foot); and tackle John Stuart (shoulder).

"The offensive line has really gotten to be a major concern," Shula said at his weekly news conference. "We're exploring any and all avenues. We're going to have to just see if there's anybody out there that teams are willing to make a trade on."

Veterans Giesler and Toews are recovering from injuries suffered last season. Giesler is expected to be ready for the start of the season, while Toews will start the season on the physically unable to perform list.

Second-year man Dellenbach is still a few weeks away from being able to practice, while Denard is likely out for the season after suffering ligament damage in his ankle.

Stuart, an eighth-round pick from Texas, is on a day-to-day basis, and Taylor may be able to resume practicing this week.

In other NFL news:

At Minneapolis, Minnesota Vikings quarterback Tommy Kramer signed a three-year contract extension, reportedly worth nearly $2.3 million. General Manager Mike Lynn said.

Kramer, 31, who led the NFL in interceptions last season with 26, was in the last year of a $600,000 contract.

At Tampa Saturday night, the St. Louis Cardinals used two interceptions returns for touchdowns to manhandle the Buccaneers, 26-10. Tampa's points came on a six-yard TD run by running back Frank Middleton and a 36-yard field goal by Donald Igwebulike.

Coaches Consult

Seminole Savage manager Carlos Martinez, middle, consults his coach Bruce Adams during the regional tournament as daughter Melissa concentrates on her fingernails. The Savages won the regional and finished fifth in the southeast regional. They needed a third-place finish to qualify for the national tournament. Martinez said his 15 and under team would play in the Princeton Softball League this fall.

De Leon Bops Greer In 8th

GIARDINI NAXOS, Sicily (UPI) — World Boxing Council cruiserweight champion Carlos "Sugar" De Leon from Puerto Rico stopped challenger Michael Greer on a technical knockout in the eighth round Sunday to retain the title.

De Leon, 27, a native of Rio Piedras, unleashed a tremendous series of uppercuts and jabs on Greer, 30, from Memphis, Tennessee, knocking him against the ropes on three sides of the outdoor ring until referee Rudi Ortega declared the Puerto Rican the winner.

De Leon, 40-4, was the favorite, but his dramatic victory came as a surprise after seven rounds in which Greer, 22-6-2, led on points.

In the eighth, De Leon suddenly and drastically escalated his attack, blasting Greer with three powerful uppercuts that left the challenger on shaky legs.

De Leon weighed 188 pounds to Greer's 186.

Greer punished De Leon with jabs in the second round, but the champion connected with his right, starting Greer's nose bleeding and partially closing his left eye. In the third, Greer trapped De Leon in a corner and punished him with powerful hooks from both fists.

De Leon, dressed in black and yellow shorts and red and white socks, looked cooler from the first round than Greer, who was clad in black and white shorts and blue and white socks.

Boston Red Sox

The Boston Red Sox have begun to hit.

That fact, even more than their three straight victories over the Detroit Tigers, should make American League East rivals think.

Until this weekend, Boston had not assembled one of those explosive streaks of which the club is capable.

Over the weekend, however, Boston scored six, eight and nine runs in taking three straight from Detroit.

It was a tremendous comeback win for us, Boston manager John McNamara said.

Very big, very big, but we're not gloating, we're not overconfident.

Rich Gedman drilled an 0-1 pitch through the rain for a two-out grand slam in the top of the eighth.

Joe Sambito, 2-0, became the winner under official scorer's discretion.

Reliever Tim Lollar, who was the pitcher of record, was judged to have pitched briefly and ineffectively.

Calvin Schiraldi retired one batter for his third save.

Darryl Evans had a 1-2 pitch for a grand slam with nobody out in the bottom of the seventh to put Detroit ahead 6-4.

In other games, Kansas City crushed New York 13-3, Cleveland defeated Baltimore 6-3.

Telltale Fingernail May Cause Wife To Point Finger Wrongly

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Not Sure in Louisiana," whose fiance — a U.S. serviceman stationed in England — shipped her 203 pairs of dirty socks to launder:

Don't complain, Honey. At least you know what he spent his money on. Also, he'll never have to buy another pair of socks as long as he lives.

I've been married to a Navy man for a long time, so let me give you a little advice. Any woman who is married to a career military man will be expected to do her share of dirty work, from a ton of laundry a week to patching a leaky sewer on a trailer home. (Tar is best, but it's murder to get off your hands and clothes.)

So, you must learn how to: fix a flat tire with a broken jack; cook hamburger 1,000 different ways; move your kids, your home and your life halfway around the world without his help; travel cross-country with three kids, a St. Bernard and a cat in a broken-down station wagon because you want to be there when he comes off a seven-month cruise; be Mommy, Daddy, chauffeur, cook, nurse, tutor and referee; get a part-time job to make ends meet; accept the fact that there's a right way, a wrong way and the military way; be diplomatic, tactful, loving and cheerful if it kills you; and adjust to so many different moves you sometimes forget where you're living — without becoming an alcoholic, a drug abuser or a mental case. You'll be too busy loving him to complain about his stupid socks.

Dear Abby

NAVY WIFE (NEARLY RETIRED)

DEAR ABBY: Are you ready for something trivial? A co-worker took me to task for failing to say, "God bless you," every time she sneezed.

I told her I thought it was silly. Why should sneezes be "blessed"? No other bodily noises evoke a blessing. Not coughing, belching, hiccupping, etc.

This friend makes a regular conversation out of a sneeze:

"Ah, choo!"

"Bless you!"

"Thank you!"

"You're welcome."

As far as I'm concerned, the sneezer should say, "Excuse me for spreading germs." Why did sneezes come to be blessed in the first place?

NO BLESSED IN NORTH CAROLINA

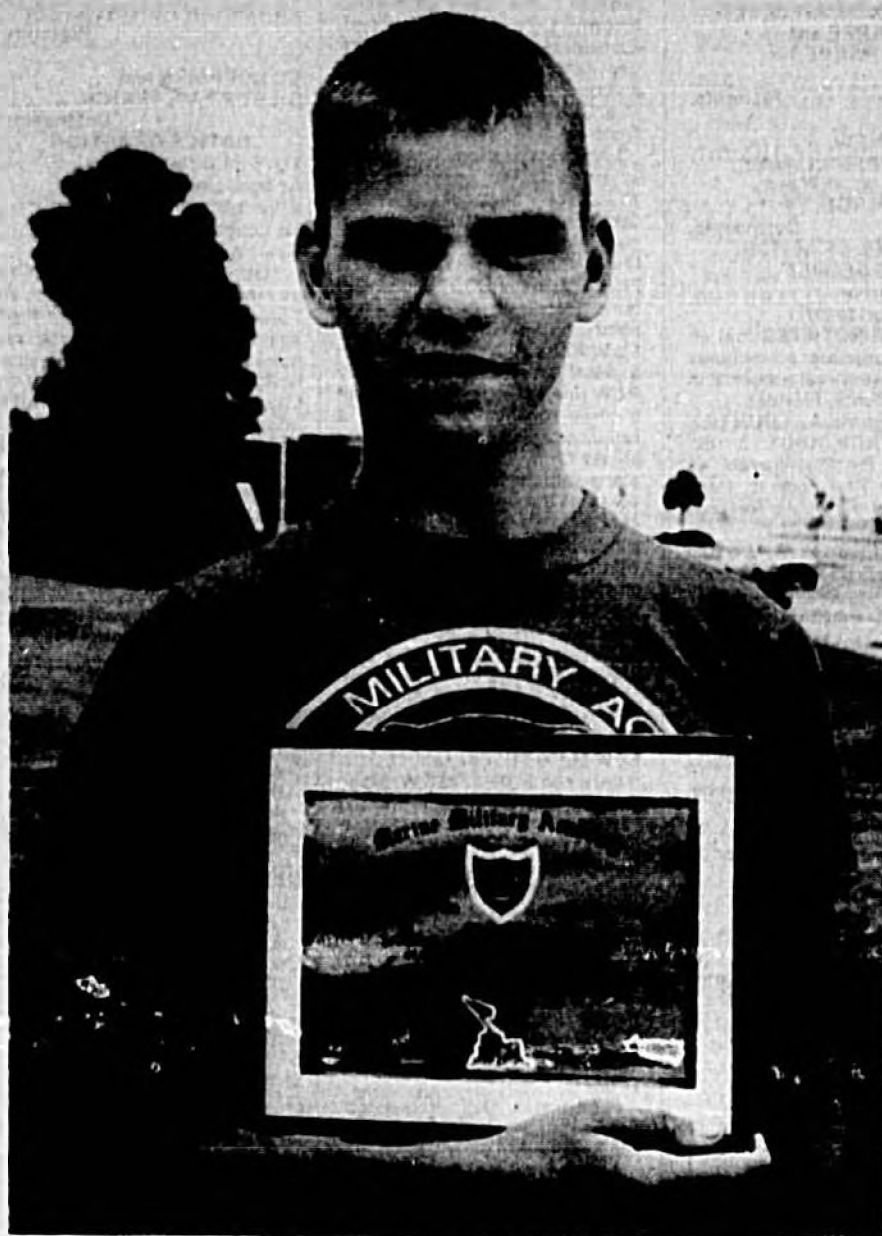

DEAR NO BLESSED: In the Middle Ages, legend had it that when a person sneezed, his soul temporarily left the body. However, saying, "God bless you!" prevented its being snatched away by the devil. (It may not help, but, like chicken soup, it can't hurt.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl. Ever since I can remember, I've had three things hammered into me: Don't drink, don't smoke, and don't get pregnant.

You see, my parents want to protect me from every harm they can because they love me. The only way I can get drunk is if I drink. The only way I can get pregnant is if I have sex. That's only logical. But can someone tell me where the logic is in telling me not to smoke because it's bad for my health, when I live with a mother who has a cigarette in her hand every time she turns around?

I don't smoke and I don't plan to start, but I might just as well because I suffer the same eye irritation, allergic reactions and lung damage as I would if I smoked two packs a day.

Youth Named Honor Cadet

Summer Camp Cadet Gary Wayne Thomason, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey G. Thomason, 2255 Palm Way, of Sanford, has been named Honor Cadet after completing a 2-week adventure at the Marine Military Academy in Harlingen, Texas.

During his stay, Thomason participated in a variety of activities including marksmanship, swimming, boxing, soccer, and physical fitness training. The Academy program is also heavily structured around military history, drill, first aid and patri-tism. Boys attending the summer camp are supervised by retired Marine Corps Drill Instructors assisted by senior cadets who attend the academy during the academic school year.

The Marine Military Academy, located in Harlingen, Texas, is a private, military, preparatory, boys boarding school offering grades 8-12. Post high school specialized instruction is also offered.

Thomason has been accepted to attend the academy this fall.

Scouts Plan Weekend For Single Parents

There is a group of people whose number grows larger every day and yet almost no programs or activities are designed especially for their needs. They are the single parent families. The Central Florida Council, Boy Scouts of America has at least partially solved the problem of what to do for an inexpensive program geared especially to their needs. On Sept. 13 and 14 single parent families will have an opportunity to take part in a weekend of activities outdoors.

What exactly will happen during the weekend? Quite a bit, according to Scout Executive Ron Carroll. "This is a weekend of camping in tents, swimming, canoeing, camp cooking demonstrations and much more. Our archery and rifle range will be open. Evening activities will include entertainment and fellowship of songs and skits around the camp fire."

The program will begin at 9 a.m., Sept. 12, at the Central Florida Scout Reservation's Camp, LaNoche (about 50 miles northeast of Orlando, near Paisley). Bring a picnic lunch. Provided for the families is a Saturday evening cook out and breakfast served Sunday morning in the camp's dining hall. The council provides the facilities including wall tents, cots, two meals and a well-trained staff.

One aim of the program is to expose the participants to Scouting's values — character, physical fitness, and citizenship. Emphasis for the weekend is on families having fun and communication together.

A new and well-received method by the community is the Single Parent Family Weekend. This special weekend enables the Central Florida Council, Boy Scouts of America to serve many youth that we may not reach with the traditional program.

For further information contact Central Florida Council, Boy Scouts of America, P.O. Box 531084, Orlando, FL 32853 (305) 896-4801.

Exhibition For Dog Fanciers Announced

What popular breed is known as the little lion dog? Why are golden retrievers so eager to play fetch the ball? What was the practical origin of the fancy French poodle cuts? Why are terrier breeds so determined to do things their own way?

And how does a family choose the dog breed that will best suit its lifestyle?

It won't take a lot of research to learn the answers to these questions — just a short trip to the Eighth Annual Seminole Dog Fanciers Association Purebred Dog Exhibition from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Aug. 23, at the Interstate Mall in Altamonte Springs.

Representatives of many of the more than 120 breeds recognized by the American Kennel Club will be on hand all day for petting and visiting with the crowd, providing many opportunities for cute people-dog interaction shots.

Obedience demonstrations are always a popular part of the program. Dog and handler teams at all levels of proficiency will show heeling, retrieving, jumping over hurdles up to 36 inches tall, scent discrimination (picking out items the handler has touched), group exercises, recalls (coming on command) and other exercises and tricks.

The club's exhibition touches on many aspects of the world of purebred dogs, from responsible ownership to having mannerly pets, to participating in dog shows and obedience trials.

There is a ready-made audience for this type of event in hundreds of thousands of animal lovers, pet owners, exhibitors and breeders, and the support network that provides services and goods for the thriving pet industry in this country.

There are more than 5,500 entries over a 3-day weekend of dog shows and obedience trials on a typical Central Florida circuit. Dog show exhibitors also travel all over the country — some internationally — to pursue their interest in dogs.

Seminole Dog Fanciers Association is a non-profit club sanctioned by the American Kennel Club.

Exhibition Chairman is Betty Vaughan, 559 N. Country Club Road, Lake Mary 32746. 323-2286.

The Pill Poses Hazards For Long-Time Takers

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 47 and was on birth-control pills for 21 years. I've been off them for six months, feel lousy and am getting conflicting stories about what would happen if I started to take them again. If I go back on them, will I go through menopause? Is there any reason I couldn't continue the Pill? I never had any problems with it. My husband doesn't mind using protection, but I hate it.

DEAR READER — While you were taking contraceptive pills, they were supplying hormones that not only prevented you from becoming pregnant, but also prevented menopause. Going off the Pill at age 47 makes you depend on your own hormones. If you are scheduled, by your genes, to go through early menopause, you will do so when you stop the Pill.

Because of the risks — especially from blood clots that can form in veins — many doctors discourage women from taking contraceptive pills for long periods of time. The older you get, the greater the hazards, particularly if you smoke cigarettes.

I think that it would be unwise for you to continue birth-control pills. However, there are alternative methods — such as vasectomy, tubal ligation or barrier methods, like diaphragms — that you and your husband might consider. Ask your gynecologist for specific advice.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report on MENOPAUSE. Others who would like a copy should send $1, plus their name and address, to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on Menopause.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Ever since I had lung surgery two years ago, my heart speeds up and I get dizzy whenever I feel anxious. I've cut out caffeine. I'm not as active as I used to be, since I have a 6-month-old baby. I seem to feel anxious a lot. Do you have any suggestions as to how I could learn to relax? Are these heart palpitations serious? DEAR READER — Without knowing the precise nature of your lung surgery, I cannot speculate as to whether your symptoms are due to the operation. However, anxiety is common in new mothers, and I suspect that your palpitations and dizziness are caused by the stress and fatigue of your added responsibilities. Check with your obstetrician to make sure that there is no physical cause for your problem, such as anemia or an overactive thyroid gland. In otherwise healthy women, palpitations are, by themselves, no cause for concern. Perhaps you need to learn some ways to relax — like getting more rest or trying meditation. In any case, the place to start is with your doctor.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio, 44101.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

South wasn't really certain what kind of hand North was describing when he opened with one club and next bid two diamonds. Such a reverse bid shows extra strength, but it is sometimes predicated upon additional length in both of opener's suits. Particularly if North were void in spades, South did not want to insist upon a spade contract. However, the next bid by North — two no-trump — confirmed relatively balanced strength and a high heart honor, so South bid four spades with confidence.

Since declarer was off two aces, making the contract required losing only one trick in the trump suit. The best approach is to lead the spade queen from dummy. If the suit divides and East holds the king, or if either defender holds the jack guarded only once, South can succeed. However, he cannot be careless. After East won the diamond ace, he returned the six of hearts. West won the ace and played another heart. Now declarer was ready to go after trumps, provided he remembered to first make an essential play. He needed to cash the A-K of clubs, shedding his good remaining heart. That eliminated the danger of West's winning the spade king and playing a third heart for East to ruff.

Lesson for declarer: Before going after trumps, see first if you need to discard a loser or a possible loser.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY AUGUST 12, 1988

There will be a number of happy changes in the year ahead that will improve your basic lifestyle. They aren't apt to be of your own making, but they'll work out as well as if you had planned them yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Lady Luck won't ignore you today, provided you let events run their natural course. Trying to force issues could create avoidable complications. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your initial impulses today could lead you to focus on life's darker side. However, if you take a hard second look, you'll see a lot to be grateful for.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Financial trends continue to look good, but you'd be wise not to earmark your profits to appease extravagant whims.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could take advantage of someone else today, but, much to your credit, you won't. Your unselfish decision will later produce a nice surprise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't let a dominating personality force his ideas on you today. The plan you've made for yourself is the better one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Enjoy yourself while socializing today, but don't try to mix business with pleasure. This could turn out to be a combustible combination.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Lady Luck remains in your corner, financially. However, just be absolutely sure you're doing all you can to help her today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Early in the day you are likely to discover that being too forceful with others is counterproductive. Fortunately, your good judgment will get you back on track.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might not get everything you want in a commercial arrangement today. However, don't do anything hastily, because it'll eventually work out reasonably well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may have to contend with a bit of extra pressure early in the day. If you maintain your sense of humor, you'll lighten the spirit in your household.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you are performing work or service for someone else today, go a few extra steps. Good intentions will yield good rewards.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In most areas of your life today, you should be quite lucky. The exception might be with your finances, so don't do anything foolish there.
