DILLINGER IS SUSPECTED IN NEW KILLINGS

2 Indiana Police Are Machine-Gunned To Death During Look-Out For Desperado

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., May 25.—(A.P.)—Two more police officers are dead today in the bloody game of "Get Dillinger". In this city where policeman William O'Malley was slain Jan. 4 by John Dillinger, two officers, Martin O'Brien, 44, an Lloyd Mulvihill, 28, were machine-gunned to death late last night. There was no clue today to the identity of the killers.

Dillinger, a fugitive from the Crown Point jail where he was held for trial for the murder of O'Malley, was suspected but it was only suspicion.

The only two men who might have been able to identify the killers were the policemen, and they died instantly.

Mulvihill and O'Brien, veteran officers who knew Dillinger by sight, had been assigned to guard the road along which it was believed Dillinger might travel last night.

The road patrol was established following word from Indianapolis that a man believed to be Dillinger had been seen there yesterday.

An automobile, believed to have carried four or five men, approached them at high speed. The two officers, traveling in a police squad car, apparently decided to halt the car and investigate.

Just what happened is unclear. The officers' bodies, pistols still in their holsters, heads and necks riddled with machine gun slugs, were found slumped in the car later.

Presbyterian Meet Opens At Montreal In Carolina Hills

MONTREAL, N. C., May 25.—(A.P.)—In a ringing appeal to the 400 commissioners to the annual General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, the Reverend Ernest Thompson, D. D., retiring moderator, last night urged that no time be spent in competing with other Christian forces and denominations, and that clergymen and laymen devote themselves to service.

De Thompson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Charleston, W. Va., delivered his sermon on "Christ's Mission, the Measure of Ours," as a prelude to the organization meeting.

Roosevelt Proposes More New Battering Rams Aimed At Laying Depression Low

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(A.P.)—Three more alphabetical engines of government action are to be set on wheels by President Roosevelt in his home construction and financing program sent to Congress today.

As reconnoitered by the National Emergency Council, the most serious of the depression's ills is unemployment. The National Emergency Council says that much of the second mortgage financing was abandoned because it was at exorbitant rates.

To help employment, it is proposed to set up a $200,000,000 home credit insurance corporation to guarantee up to 20 percent of the loans made by private agencies for home building and renewing. The size of a loan would be limited to $2,000, so that it would be largely for homes.

To loosen credit, the government proposes a system of mortgage insurance, similar to present bank deposit insurance.

This feature is partly aimed at the second mortgage market, in that single mortgages on new homes will be insured up to 80 percent of the assessed valuation, and to batter at the citadel of unemployment and frozen credit.

In the past, officials say, the mortgage rate averaged 10 to 12 percent of the valuation, making second mortgages unnecessary. The National Emergency Council says that much of the second mortgage financing was abandoned because it was at exorbitant rates.

To avoid a reputation of special tax effects, the mortgage insurance would not be available to new construction of a certain type, nor to communities where there is a surplus of modern homes.

Circuit Court J. D. Ingraham, In Adjournment Sanford - Born, Until June 6 Gets Promotion

JACKSONVILLE, May 25.—(A.P.)—The adjournment of the Circuit Court in Sanford, Fla., until June 6, after the grand jury had tendered J. D. Ingraham, B. Smith of Titusville, 12 indictments, two no true bills, and a final presentment which recommended several minor improvements to county properties.

Adjournment was taken for the reason that Herman F. Mohr of Orlando had been assigned to act as state's attorney at this time of court in place of Lloyd E. Boyle for only one week and there is some reason to believe that Mr. Boyle will be able to resume his duties early next month.

JUDGE HOLDS WILCOX PARK THAT FORD IS BILL ON WAY DODGING NRATO PASSAGE

Government Doesn't Have To Buy From Firm That Thwarts Recovery, Is Ruling

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(A.P.)—The blue eagle emerged today from the shadows of a bill that would be submitted to the Ford Motor Company.

Justice O'Donoghue of the District of Columbia, in a ruling today, held that the government is not bound to buy from a firm that thwarts the Recovery Act.

The ruling was made in a case involving the Ford Motor Company's refusal to supply tires to the government for military use.

The ruling is significant because it allows the government to bypass firms that are not cooperating with the war effort.

KILLING OF 2 TOLEDO MEN BEING PROBED

Fixed Bayonets Gleaming In Sun, Guard Troops Hold Back Crowd Of Strikers

TOLEDO, May 25.—(A.P.)—A thousand Ohio National Guardsmen behind fixed bayonets and machine gun nests held back a crowd at the strike-torn Electric Auto-Lite Company plant today as federal and state authorities sought to ease the tense situation with mediation.

A crowd of 1500 strikers and sympathizers, bringing bricks and scattered missiles, gathered at the plant of the Electric Auto-Lite Company at noon and reopened a bombardment of building and troops which had already cost the lives of two men.

The crowd gathered at a street intersection still strewn with the wreckage and debris of three days of rioting.

Guardmen laying a communication line made no attempt to disperse the crowd as bricks and chunks of paving plaster came hurtling up toward the building.

The attack was aimless and less spirited than the fighting yesterday which led to hand-to-hand slugging and bullets. Militiamen had fixed bayonets but didn't use them.

Charles Tait, son of the late president of the United States, headed a group of meddlers trying to bring the strikers and company officials to a common ground.

Progress was slow and hampered by the ill feeling of rioters who haunted the area in disorganized groups.

After announced that preliminary examination of the body of one of the dead led him to believe the wounds were inflicted by shotgun slugs, and not by rifle bullets.

Two men were shot and three others injured last night as a crowd of more than 6000, hurling bricks and bottles, returned to battle National Guardsmen who killed two men in a strike riot a few hours earlier at the Electric Auto-Lite plant here.

Cursing and taunting and throwing missiles, the crowd threw in on May 25 militiamen at the edge of the six blocks strike zone. The guardsmen hurled gas bombs and the angry crowd fell back only to push forward again. The soldiers fired a volley over the heads of the throng, which included many women. The response was more bricks and bottles.

Aiming their rifles at the rioters, the troops and the crowd broke, leaving the wounded on the streets. The crowd surged back several times but at 10 P. M. a heavy gas attack had driven it back two blocks.

The battle was continuing after a full of an hour or more late yesterday, preceding which two men were slain by Guardsmen's rifles.

Some four persons, mostly men, were in the crowd when it was fired upon the troops during the day. It melted to atoms 1000 around the dinner hour. As darkness fell the crowd began to swell again, and by 8:30 it had mounted to perhaps more than 6000 persons.

Missile interperated with taunts and curses constantly flew from the ranks of the rioters toward National Guardsmen especially at the Elm and Champlain Street intersection, where most of the crowd was gathered.

Ambulances plowed through the crowd after the firing subsided, and picked up the injured. The men who were shot were John Sullivan, 30, arm wound, and Edward Scott, 40, shoulder wound. Edward Scott was struck by a rock. George Heininger was the soldier injured, apparently struck by a brick.

NOTABLE TO LEAVE

MIAMI, May 25.—Senora Maria de Rocca, first lady of Nicaragua departed yesterday for Washington, D. C. to attend the graduation of her son, Juan, Jr., from Georgetown university, St. Paul, S. C., accompanied by her daughter, Maria, arrived here last night.

A Fine Achievement

The signing of the Wilcox Municipal Bankruptcy Bill yesterday by the President of the United States marks the enactment of a new law which bears the utmost significance for Sanford and for those other Florida communities which since the boom have found themselves burdened with debts and harassed by bondholders committees and their interminable writs or mandamus.

The new law briefly provides that a city may submit to a federal court a reorganizing plan having the approval of 51 percent of the city's creditors. If this plan, when it is presented to the court and by two-thirds of the creditors in each class and three-fourths of the city's total creditors, it is confirmed, and becomes binding upon all creditors, even those who do not consent to the plan.

Thus it becomes impossible for a single bondholder or for a minority interest of bondholders to defeat a program acceptable to both the city and a majority of the bondholders. The worst problem with which defaulting cities have had to contend in the past has been not the majority group of bondholders, but with selfish minority interests who, perhaps having but a small claim, insisted on a hundred percent payment.

As it stands now any agreement which the City Commission can reach with the Bondholders Committee who in the case of Sanford already control something like eighty percent of the bonds, will with the approval of the court be final. The law vastly simplifies the task of reorganizing and effecting a final settlement as it would have been plainly impossible ever to get all of the bondholders to agree on anything.

In the passage of this law, Mark Wilcox, the young congressman from the Fourth District, deserves unstinted praise and commendation. The bill was opposed, among others by the United States Chamber of Commerce, the American Bankers Association, and the American Bar Association, and only the utmost perseverance and dogged determination of Mr. Wilcox could have succeeded in pushing it through Congress.

Mr. Wilcox went to Washington but little more than a year ago, practically unknown, a comparative youngster from West Palm Beach, who had never held any more important public office than city attorney. But he had an idea, and the ability and force of character to sell it to the country, and he succeeded in enacting in his first term of office a piece of national legislation of an importance which does not fall to the lot of many congressmen even after many years of service.

The Herald joins in praise of Mr. Wilcox's achievement and wishes him continued success as the representative of the Fourth District.

Infantile Paralysis

The movement against infantile paralysis, a disease which it is estimated has marked 200,000 persons in this country with some degree of infirmity, has gained impetus, according to the United States News, through the efforts to raise an endowment fund for the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation.

Since treatment to remedy the effects of the disease taken periods varying from months to several years, the attempt to alleviate the suffering which it causes are being made on a localized basis, rather than with chief emphasis upon institutional care.

Reports from different parts of the Nation show that there is a shortage of facilities for the proper care of victims of infantile paralysis. This lack has been offset in some degree, recently, according to President Roosevelt, through the interest aroused by the efforts to raise the fund for the Georgia Foundation.

Medical science has advanced to the point, said President Roosevelt, where it is possible for it to restore a large proportion of the persons crippled by infantile paralysis to the status of useful citizenship.

One hundred thousands dollars of the $1,000,000 fund raised for the Foundation at Warm Springs, Ga., is to be used to promote co-operative work throughout the United States to combat the effects of infantile paralysis. The fund obtained from the proceeds of the birthday balls held last January to celebrate the President's fifty-second birthday, was received by him and turned over to the Foundation on May 9.

SENATOR BORAH SPEAKS FOR LIBERTY

Notes from the debate on the Senate floor on the reorganization bill (S. R. 1100) on May 23, 1934.

Mr. President, the people and the people alone may change the Constitution. Emergencies cannot do so. The terms and provisions of the Constitution, the very genius of the instrument itself can leave no one in doubt that it was made to deal with great national emergencies. Under it there is no want of power, no want of authority to enable a nation to meet and master all emergencies.

The Constitution was not the handwork of men uneducated in practical affairs, of theorists and dreamers. It was written by men who all their lives had been compelled to look upon, to contend with, emergencies. It was framed at a time when the whole world was in turmoil and strife, when our own colonies were contending with all those problems which spring from disordered finance, from overwhelming debts, from the absence of credit and the complete breakdown of trade and commerce.

A great and overwhelming emergency hovered about and threatened to engulf the whole vast adventure of free government in utter and everlasting ruin, even at the very hour these immortal lawmakers gathered for the purpose of planning a new scheme of government and framing a national charter. This Constitution is the child of one of the great emergencies of all times.

I know it will be said that the delegation of power is for a limited time and is given to one in whom the people have great confidence. But the precedent which Franklin D. Roosevelt established will be claimed and enlarged upon by all his successors, whoever they may be. Precedents established by competent hands for desirable purposes are still precedents for incapable hands and undesirable purposes. Let us see how precedents grow. Mr. Hoover asked power to change tariff rates. It was a vicious power. In my opinion it ought never to have been given. But under the plea of service to the people and under plea of partly loyalty it was given.

Franklin D. Roosevelt succeeds Mr. Hoover and, using that precedent as a stepping stone, he proceeds to change tariff rates. He is a vicious power. In my opinion it ought never to have been given. But under the plea of service to the people and under plea of partly loyalty it was given.

Mr. Hoover and, using that precedent as a stepping stone, he proceeds to change tariff rates. He is a vicious power. In my opinion it ought never to have been given. But under the plea of service to the people and under plea of partly loyalty it was given.

able, the most insidious, the most persistent and most insatiable foe of constitutional government I would say that the enemy is to be found in precedents established outside the Constitution in the name of the people and under the party label. A precedent once thus established, no one can know its ultimate use or effect. A child may play across the Mississippi at its source, but as it flows on, gathering strength, it may inundate territory, submerge farms, destroy property and life and divide a continent.

Mr. President, the integrity of constitutional government has never meant so much to the average man and woman, to the common people, as Abraham Lincoln was wont to say, as it does at this hour. Nowhere on the round globe today do the common people enjoy the blessings of personal freedom except under constitutional democracy—here, and there alone, are to be found free press, free speech, personal liberty, and all those precious blessings which distinguish the citizens of a free country from the hunted, helpless, managed individuals who make up the cogs in the soulless machine of some absolute state.

Fascism, Nazism, Communism, appealing to the forces of terror and fanaticism, have submerged, buried, the individual beneath the schemes of personal aggrandizement. They have challenged democracy and they have challenged the rights of free speech and personal liberty. Neither Fascism, Nazism nor Communism is a form of government that can exist for a fortnight in the pure atmosphere of intellectual freedom. These governments rest upon the political servitude of the masses. They depend for perpetuity upon the economic and political enslavement of the people. They begin and they continue so long as they continue by putting chains upon the limbs and fetters upon the brain.

Constitutional democracy is the only scheme of government which preserves, or pretends to preserve, the rights, the liberties of the average man and woman; it is the only government which makes personal liberty the keystone of the arch, which rests its right to live upon the loyalty and love of its supporters.

Mr. President, let us not be deceived. All these forms of government which disregard the rights and emphasize the dictatorship, realm of possibilities for the most but throwbacks to the days when the great body of the people were regarded as the mudsills of society—when the humble citizen was fit only to work and slave and fight and die for the glory of the king. There is not a principle, not a tenet, not a doctrine of Fascism or Nazism which may not be found in the brutal cruelties of every tyrant who has robbed the people of their liberties from the dawn of history down to the miserable representatives of despotic power who disappeared in the smoke and flames of the World War.

They are all of the same creed, of the same faith, the same beliefs. They have personal liberty. They are conspirators against the most sacred rights of the citizen. The voice of Fascism has lately declared that liberty is a rotten carcass. So it has always been a rotten carcass from the beginning with all those who decide, cry and denounce democracy. These governments are not going forward; they are going back—back to serfdom and slavery, back to intolerance and tribalism, back a thousand years, when the people were lashed into submission by the iron discipline of a dictator.

But the disturbing fact is that in the face of this almost universal assault upon personal liberty, upon free government, democracy seems timid, apologetic, distrustful of its own powerful weapons of defense and its still more powerful weapons of advancement. An emergency seems to arise, and we immediately give evidence of a want of faith in our own institutions and in the instrumentalities provided by the Constitution. We seem to doubt the methods and means provided by the founders of democracy.

We have an emergency, and we immediately appeal to measures which cast a doubt upon our faith in our own institutions. We have an emergency, and we employ instrumentalities to discredit our faith in Democratic institutions.

We need something of the ancient faith, something of the ancient vision. You will remember Mr. President, in the history of the American Revolution when the British forces were in possession of the Old Dominion, when the traitor Benedict Arnold was leading his marauding forces up and down the coast, when Tarleton was burning the houses and villages, that Mr. Nicholas, a distinguished citizen of Virginia, surrounded by Patrick Henry, moved that a dictator be appointed for the Commonwealth. Thomas Jefferson, then Governor of Virginia, had just narrowly escaped capture at the hands of the British forces. When this resolution came to his attention he said:

"The very thought alone was treason against a tried and true Republic, as riveting forever the chains which bow down their necks by striking their yug against a rock."

Do not forget that by giving their opposition proof, which they would have triumphed throughout the universe, of the inability of Republican government in times of pressing danger to shield us from harm."

What vision! What trust! What confidence!

Of these things this Republic was built, and of these things alone it will be maintained.

We have had emergencies in the past. We have had more than one hour of peril. The Constitution has been sufficient and efficient in all instances. And now, at all times, we should show our faith in and our devotion to our form of government. Now, more than at any other time in our history, we should by word and deed demonstrate our faith in our own institutions.

strate the faith which made the Republic, and which will preserve it.

In the midst of world turmoil Washington planned his faith in constitutional democracy. That steadfast soul never wavered, never doubted in the midst of the fiercest hour of Civil War. He declared that the government of the people, for the people and by the people should not perish from the earth. There is a noble aside of these two immortal leaders of free government for the brave American who in his place of power accepts the challenge of these apostles of terror and fanaticism; of these enemies, avowed enemies of free government and of personal liberty, and against all comers declares his faith in the efficiency and the worth of Republican institutions and his determination to maintain and preserve them in all their integrity at any cost and at all hazards.

Wool production in 20 northern and southern hemisphere countries which produces 8 percent of the world total, was 2 per cent less in 1933 than the record production in 1932.

Minnesota Solon Gets Fine For Disorder

MINNEAPOLIS, May 25.—(AP)—Congressman Francis H. Shoemaker, arrested Monday in connection with the strike disorders here, was convicted of a charge of disorderly conduct yesterday and sentenced by Municipal Judge Wright to pay a $50 fine or serve 10 days in the city workhouse. Sentence was stayed until July 1. J. K. Scott, a special policeman, testified Shoemaker was arrested after he harangued a crowd in the market place where striking truck drivers rioted Monday. Shoemaker declared he was on the riot scene "in the public interest."

The co-operative movement was inaugurated in 1844 by 28 flannel weavers of Rochdale, England, as a means of relief from existing unemployment and high prices.

"Citrus This Week" Courtesy Florida Farm And Grove

Protest against the proposed assessing (under the Motor Trucking Code) of the "privately owned trucks" which are operated by Florida growers and shippers in their private business operations has been filed by the growers and Shippers League of Florida.

It is proposed to assess such trucks 90 cents each under code regulations. The charge for "for hire" trucks is considerably higher.

In a letter to Chester C. Davis, AAA official at Washington, J. Curtis Robinson, executive vice president of the league, states that "We have been advised that under the motor trucking code all trucks including trucks used in part or exclusively for private business enterprises for the handling of the owners own merchandise are proposed to come under the code and that the latter shall have a registration fee of 90 cents per vehicle imposed."

Protesting against this, Mr. Robinson declares: "The Growers and Shippers League of Florida represents the growers and shippers of probably 80 percent or more of the citrus fruit produced and a substantial percentage of the vegetable tonnage. Many if not all of our members own trucks used in transporting supplies to and from packing houses, farms or groves, and in some instances for shipment by water." Pointing out that truck owners already pay high gasoline taxes, as well as many other assessments imposed upon owners of trucks, of one kind or another, and "are not engaged in transportation by motor truck for hire," Mr. Robinson asks that "in behalf of the many thousands of growers and shippers we desire to be recorded as vigorously protesting against the inclusion of private motor trucks under the code, thereby requiring registration and also against the imposition of any fees on this class of motor vehicles."

Storage holdings of Florida citrus for the latest date procurable, according to figures furnished by the Florida Control Committee, are as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Location, Quantity. Includes New York City, Newark, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Tampa, May 21, Jacksonville, May 19.

Total Cars 263 311. The citrus industry has achieved a measure of co-operation in certain directions "about which we may have heretofore dreamed but which was considered unattainable twelve months ago" in the opinion of William Edwards, former president of the Florida Citrus Exchange.

In a recent address he speaks of the control setup under the marketing agreement "a smoothly operating, planned distribution."

"We must go forward and not go back to the chaos and confusion of the old order... the coming season will bring about further market improvements in citrus distribution. The federal government will place in operation, right here in Florida, the first complete agricultural industrial program in the history of America. That program will deal with citrus alone," Mr. Edwards said.

Mr. Edwards further predicted that "the interest of the government is not, primarily, to benefit shippers and packers, but to aid the grower, the grove owner and to fundamentally improve the basic economic conditions of the entire state."

Growers report a heavy drop in price of young citrus in all parts of the state. Opinions of how this will affect the coming crop are mixed. Some say the yield will be no larger than the 1933-34 season because so much fruit was needed. Others declare the drop is not heavier than should be expected, considering the heavy bloom and predict a heavy crop. It's still a little early to see what the next season will bring forth in the way of production.

T. P. Howes, Orlando, says he has faith in the future of the citrus industry and figures on planting citrus trees on a piece of land of some 25 acres in front on a lake near town. But Mr. Howes is "going in" for fancy varieties. He says he will specialize in Temple oranges and pink grapefruit. "I think the Temple orange is one of the best in the state," he declared.

Texas growers and shippers are strong for an advertising campaign. They figure on assessing fruit 2 cents a box to finance the drive.

From Texas comes word that the grapefruit crop there will be much smaller than expected. One of the Florida citrus industry's best field men, Victor Gentile, vice president of Gentile Bros. Co., who has just completed a survey of the Texas grapefruit deal, estimates the coming grapefruit crop at from 7,500 to 9,000 cars.

Many shippers have been talking 15,000 cars for Texas next season. When ever this 15,000 car talk was heard, gloom descended upon Florida citrus men, for they feared such heavy competition from Texas.

The estimate from Mr. Gentile is good news for Florida. Extracts from his report on the Texas situation follow: "Texas grapefruit is of a later bloom than usual and will move around Oct. 1, instead of Sept. 1."

"The crop is not as heavy as expected. It will total around

7,500 to 9,000 cars. The weather has been dry and quite a drop in price has occurred. "Quite a little acreage was damaged beyond recovery by the storm of last autumn." This damage "beyond recovery" Mr. Gentile estimates at about 25 percent.

He further states that Texas growers "were hard hit and not much money was spent for spraying and fertilizer. Many groves are being neglected. However, the more prosperous growers are taking care of their groves and they look fine," he says.

After estimating this coming season's crop, Mr. Gentile discussed prospects for the next few years and expressed the opinion that the Texas grapefruit production will be less than was expected for several seasons. This, of course, is all good news to Florida growers, although it may be a little tough on Texas.

Housewives in many Florida cities and towns are beginning to "holler for grapefruit," so grocers declare. The shortage is serious. Usually at this time of year there are plenty of grapefruit for the home folks, but not this year.

In the years 1931-32-33, the railroads of the United States received more than $600,000,000 for transportation of gasoline and petroleum products.

Public Guillotining In Louisiana Urged By Catholic Priest

NEW ORLEANS, May 25.—(AP)—Public guillotining instead of hanging in Louisiana was urged today by the Rev. Peter M. H. Wenhoven, one of four Catholic priests who witnessed the execution of John Capaci and George Dalao last week.

The heads of the two men were almost torn from their bodies, and blood spurted over the scaffold when they were hanged at Gretna across the river from New Orleans, for a killing during a holdup.

"After the gruesome experience of last Friday I am convinced that a substitute must be found for hanging in Louisiana," Father Wenhoven said.

"The electric chair is not so sure and immediate, the firing squad is uncertain. For a nice, neat job, the old French method of the guillotine is the best.

Relieves Headache Due To Constipation

"Theford's Black-Draught has been used in my family for years," writes Mrs. J. A. Hightower, of Carthage, Texas. "I take it for sick headaches that come from constipation. When I feel a headache coming on, I take a dose of Black-Draught. It acts and my head gets easy. Before I knew of Black-Draught, I would suffer two or three days—but not any more since I have used Black-Draught!"

There is no physical pain whatsoever with the guillotine. It is clean cut and certain.

"I would have all executions in public and in the community where the crime was committed. As many people as possible should be impressed with the fact that murder is punishable by death.

Mills Assails Regimented State, Bureaucratic Rule He Sees Imposed Upon U.S.

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP)—The regimented state was assailed by Origen L. Mills last night at a dinner of the Economic club at which Bainbridge Colby voiced his opposition to what he called bureaucratic tendencies and institutional reforms of the Roosevelt administration.

"The social and economic planning that has been enacted in the last 12 months," Mills declared, "has been presented to the people as novel, progressive and liberal."

"It is not novel. It is not progressive since it reverts back to the economic despotism of the middle ages. It is not liberal since it means the end of individual liberty. In part or in whole, it has been tried repeatedly throughout the course of history. Everywhere it has failed."

Colby, secretary of state under Woodrow Wilson, said a "vast bureaucracy has been called into being and fastened upon us without our realizing it, much less authorizing it."

"We are startled," the Democrat continued, "to find ourselves subject to bureaucratic rule down to the smallest and most intimate affairs that enter into our daily lives."

"It makes a Democrat thoughtful to behold such a transformation of the United States of America."

Belonging to a party which throughout our history," Colby continued, "has jealously resisted every undue extension of governmental function at the expense of the individual liberty, I feel entitled to question what has happened to my party that its present leaders should be so intent upon crushing every sentiment and garbling every principle, regarded heretofore as characterizing the Democratic party."

Mills, regarded as an exponent for the Republican presidential nomination in 1936, traced what he termed the disastrous results of legislation, beginning with the days of Diocletian in the Roman empire.

Such legislation created centuries of stagnation, he said. Then came the extraordinary progress of the last century or so.

"What has happened?" he asked. "I can give the answer in a few words—freedom, political and economic freedom."

In dwelling on reorganization in government, Colby declared that gradually, it has dawned upon the country, and it is now quite plain, that recovery was only partially the aim of the Administration. A great part of its interest has been in radical institutional overhauls and the new modeling of the state.

"The guarantees of the constitution are dismissed lightly as if they were irrelevant in the present day life of America."

Anniversary Party Lauds Arrival of Papworth in City

be remembered because of the efficient service and high personal character of our friend Harry M. Papworth," said R. F. Haines of Altamonte Springs, vice-president of the organization. "No man is more sincerely liked or more truly loved in this county, and from the bottom of my heart, I wish him and his charming wife the continued health and happiness that they so richly deserve."

Mrs. J. N. Whitton, one of the special guests of the evening and a resident of this city for the past 27 years, spoke briefly as a personal friend of the Papworths. She paid tribute to the intense civic pride which she said had marked the career of Mr. Papworth, and she said that Sanford has had few citizens his equal.

In reminding the guests that Mr. Papworth had not lived in Sanford continuously for 20 years but had left the city to return only once each year for a month's visit, Mrs. Whitton recalled a scene in her home about eight years ago.

Alfred Foster late pastor, was a guest at the Whitton home at the time, and during a conversation, someone stated that Harry Papworth is coming back to Sanford to live.

In his characteristic way, Mrs. Whitton said, Mr. Foster retold the story of Queen Esther who had been sent by her father to plead for the people of Israel who were being oppressed.

Mrs. Whitton quoted Mr. Foster as saying, "Could it be possible that Harry Papworth has come back to help the people of Sanford rehabilitate their wrecked fortunes?" Mrs. Whitton held this statement was prophetic and that it had been borne out in Mr. Papworth's continued efforts on behalf of Sanford and Seminole County.

Frank P. Forster, another pioneer resident who was one of the honored guests, read a prepared statement in which he said, "It is not a remarkable fact that in less than 10 days we should meet in this same room and celebrate the 50th anniversary of those of our leading business men and citizens who have spent the past 20 years in Sanford." Linsley, May 15, at the Rotary Club luncheon, as honored both Chase and Sul Chase and tonight we honor Captain Papworth.

"Let us turn back a few pages of ancient history," he said, "and tell the story of Captain Papworth's achievement while living in Sanford before he left for New York City and upon his return to Sanford."

"He was the junior partner of W. J. Hill and Co., who did a big business in hardware, cash, and bluffs. He was a member of the Board of Aldermen, and chief of the Sanford Volunteer Fire Department.

"While in New York, City he represented one of the largest pump manufacturers in the world. He was always active in promoting the best interests of Sanford, and today, as president of the Chamber of Commerce he has, and is making greater personal sacrifice than any other man in the county. Who is benefited by his personal sacrifice of time and money? You and I, and it is a fact that we should appreciate to the fullest."

S. H. Chase, Sr., who last week celebrated his 50th anniversary, was in the dining room which he had founded and that Mr. Chase of Hays is all of the best, and I have known him since he first came to the city. We have stood up in greeting and social honors up on this occasion.

"It is a real pleasure to be present at the dining room of Mr. Papworth and Captain Allen, Orlando banker who was a leading Chamber of Commerce figure for some years. We honor ourselves in honoring him."

Miss Nona Wally of Lake Mary, member of a family which settled in Sanford in 1822, declared that "It always has been a great pleasure knowing Mr. Papworth. He is one of the finest men that we've ever had in Sanford, and that we've done more for the town than any other man has ever done."

Judge M. H. H. Smith of Titusville was brief in a statement in which he said that "Sanford and Seminole County are blessed in having a man with such a broad outlook as has Mr. Papworth."

"We need to think that Harry Papworth was no more more than a cracker putting on airs," Frank

Evans of Lake Mary jokingly said after he had opened his remarks with an expression of pleasure at being present. "Why Harry was the best dressed man in Orange county. He was immaculately dressed at all times, and it was said that he used to give his mountaineer to help give him that 'lick appearance'."

Mr. Evans, after calling attention to the many evidences of Mr. Papworth's successful efforts in behalf of the city, concluded with a wish for many more years of happy success and best wishes.

Mr. J. W. Coates of Oviedo, a vice-president of the trade body, expressed her pleasure at being a guest at the dinner, and she tendered her congratulations to both Mr. and Mrs. Papworth upon having attained such a long and happy success in life.

City Commissioner H. J. Lehman offered his congratulations upon the two anniversaries that were being observed, and declared that a group of few men who do so the tributes which are being paid here tonight.

J. L. Dorney, veteran relay runner, expressed the opinion that "If Harry Papworth had remained in Sanford after the freeze, Sanford would be today a much larger and more prosperous city, and maybe Orlando wouldn't be the town it is. We need more people of his type, and I would be glad to have both he and Mrs. Papworth upon this happy occasion."

As townmaster Shubert introduced Mr. Papworth, "So that he might perhaps speak in a respectful manner, I proposed that another toast be drunk this time to the honor guest and his wife."

Mr. Papworth's first words were of appreciation for the thoughts and expressions which had been tendered him and his wife.

"But," he said, "I have been pointing to me as being the Chamber of Commerce, the only one who has been accomplishing anything. Why, as I have around this table I can see many of men who are equally as deserving of any credit for the present success of the Chamber of Commerce."

Mentioned in this group were Mr. Meach, Mr. Lehman, Francis MacMahon, Roland Dean, J. L. Marcantelle, Linton Allen, Karl Lehmann, Mr. Forster, Mr. Leffler, Mr. Haines, and S. D. Higleyman.

"Those men did the work," Mr. Papworth said, "and I was merely one of the leaders. They are also a full measure of credit."

In recalling that he considered the late S. Whitton, Sr., as "one of the finest characters and friends I've ever known," Mr. Papworth told of having met Mr. Whitton in New York City in the early 1920s.

Sanford, the town he said, plays a big role in the life of the people. Mr. Papworth spoke of the fact that he had spent the past 20 years in Sanford, and upon his return to Sanford.

"Let us turn back a few pages of ancient history," he said, "and tell the story of Captain Papworth's achievement while living in Sanford before he left for New York City and upon his return to Sanford."

"He was the junior partner of W. J. Hill and Co., who did a big business in hardware, cash, and bluffs. He was a member of the Board of Aldermen, and chief of the Sanford Volunteer Fire Department.

"We need to think that Harry Papworth was no more more than a cracker putting on airs," Frank Park, S. D. Higleyman, Linton E. Allen of Oviedo, and L. H. Connelly.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Howell of Lake Mary, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. True of Lake Mary, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Evans of Lake Mary, Judge Millard B. A telegraphic expression of congratulation, as received from several out-of-town passages, are as follows:

"Congratulations Seminole County and H. M. Papworth on the 50th anniversary of your arrival in Sanford. It is a great pleasure to have you in our city. You have been a great service to the State of Florida. Park, Florida, U. S. Senator.

"My wish for you is that at the end of another half century you will be as well as you are today. Your civic and creative faculties as constructive as you have manifested during the past fifty years of your residence in Florida, Sanford, Seminole County, and the State, through your citizenship." Danan F. Fletcher, U. S. Senator.

"You and the other citizens of Seminole County are to be congratulated for having in your midst the Honorable Harry Papworth who came to Seminole County fifty years ago on May 25th. My thoughts are with you and yours tonight, and I am sure that the many congratulations on the occasion of the anniversary banquet in his honor stop here tonight. David Shubert, Governor of Florida.

"Sanford and Seminole County do well to honor such a devoted and faithful citizen. H. M. Papworth whose zeal and activities for your city and county have been an important factor in their growth and development. Please extend my best wishes." Mark Wilcox, M. C.

"Regret that official duties in Washington prevent my attending the banquet at the home of H. M. Papworth in Seminole County. I esteem you a citizen when you have lived in a community for fifty years, and I congratulate you on the anniversary of the 50th anniversary of your arrival in Sanford. WILCOX PARK BILL ON WAY TO PASSAGE only by Yellowstone park in the United States park system.

It will be the only national park of any magnitude located in subtropical climate and as such will preserve flora and fauna found only in this region of the United States and now disappearing rapidly.

The site is unique in that part of the territory is more than six feet above mean tide. It is composed of lagoons, low island and swamp in which luxuriant tropical plants, and rich feeding alligators, ibis, ducks and game fish live in this wild country. There are many white sand beaches, now accessible only by boat.

In addition to egret, which were brought about to extinction because of hunters of the delicate white plumage, the area abounds in spoonbills, rose and breeds of heron and other feathered creatures which many Americans have never seen.

Plant life includes mahogany, numerous varieties of palms, orchids and air plants, and other tropical fauna.

Brand Whitlock Dies After 2 Operations

CANNES, May 25.—(AP)—Brand Whitlock, former United States Ambassador to Belgium, died here today. He was 85, and had been ill some six months.

He was taken to a hospital May 5 and underwent a serious bladder operation. He had been improving since, and friends said they thought he was on the way to recovery. He underwent a second operation and it proved fatal.

Ensign Asks For Systematic Reduction Of Wasteful Way Of Crating Florida Produce

By W. R. ENSIGN

The term "perishable produce" is very descriptive of the traffic in fresh fruits and vegetables, for it conveys the idea of something ephemeral—a product that readily deteriorates and is, therefore, subject to serious waste and losses.

We must then, at the outset, recognize the impracticability of eliminating the waste, yet there are ways of materially reducing it. Some of these methods may require some expenditure while others demand only the adoption of scientifically correct procedure. In any case, the evidence shows that something must be done to underwrite the produce business in Florida if it endures. A systematic reduction of wasteful methods is the surest way of doing this.

Eight years ago I pointed out in the pages of the Florida Grower some reasons for, and the extent of, the losses of vegetable crops in Florida due to diseases and insect pests in the field and in transit. Since that time much progress has been made to overcome such wastes.

We have developed disease resistant varieties, insisted upon disease-free seeds, and have made our seed treatments and spraying more effective. More recently attention was called to the illogical and wasteful shipping, storing and packing methods, particular stress being put on the atrocious bulge pack. It is now my purpose to call attention to some additional leaks that we can stop.

Has no one ever thought of means of reducing the portions of vegetables that are today shipped and sold but never eaten, or has no one had the temerity to suggest it? It is true, of course, that some progress in this direction has been made by plant breeders in developing short topped radishes, carrots and celery, but there is still a long way to go. To show that this is true the results of a few experiments I have just concluded follow:

Four dozen bunches of carrots were pulled and selected for uniformity of size. Each weighed and labeled and then the tops of the odd-numbered bunches were trimmed with a pair of shears thus reducing the original weight by an average of 26 percent. Both the trimmed and the untrimmed bunches were laid on a shelf simulating the conditions commonly met with in any grocery store where they remained for a period of 72 hours. They were then reweighed and the percentage of loss of weight calculated.

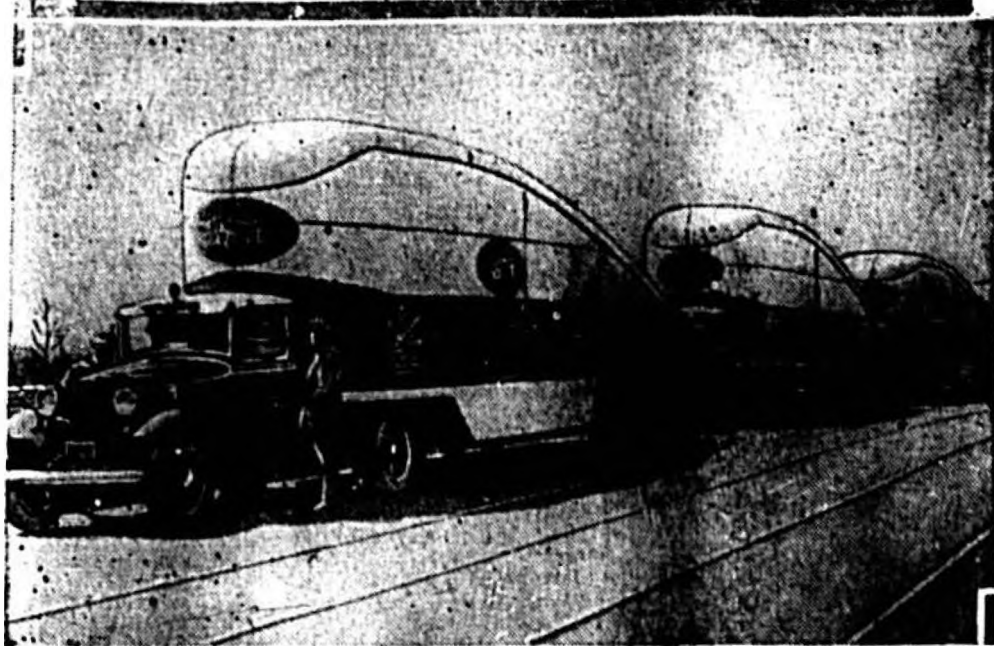

Some legitimate criticism might be lodged against the method by which the trimming was done, for these bunches do have the appearance of having been rather crudely sheared. There is a very simple method of obviating this difficulty, namely, cut the tops of the carrots off with a mowing machine set at a given height, from a week to ten days prior to harvesting so that fresh leaves will form thus effectively hiding the place of severance. In this case the tops were trimmed at different heights six days before harvest.

Calculations show that this reduced the original weight approximately 15 percent, and represented a reduction of about 7 1/2 inches in length of top. Loss of moisture by the untrimmed and field-trimmed bunches was more than by those trimmed after bunching. The necessity for package including the tops of the carrots is practically eliminated where the tops are trimmed, and the temperature would not have to be maintained so low, better yet, the packages would have to be made about 50 percent smaller in cubical content to accommodate the same number of bunches. The saving of space and freight would be enormous, to say nothing of a reduced package cost, as well as an easier job of bunching.

Yet in spite of the advantages, it is a question whether we can stiffen our business custom in the face, reverse the field on certain organized selfish interests, and run for a goal of whether the average was thus reduced to 2 percent in our garment that we shall be pulled down from behind on the five yard strip by orthodox.

Autos Untouched By Human Hands

If you see a parade of shiny, new aluminum trailers coming down the block you can bet that it's a shipment of new Ford cars for your local dealer. They are being shipped like this, today, by the shipping photograph shown. This shipment was recently made in Washington, D. C. where it stopped traffic and attracted much attention. The latest method of transporting cars is replacing the old method. It has led to the suggestion that the Ford Motor Company may ultimately adopt the slogan: "Untouched by Human Hands."

much the same picture. Cutting the tops off 10 1/2 inches above the base removes nearly 50 percent of the total weight (47.6%). This makes it possible to put the same number of bunches, now shipped in the standard crate in a package just half as tall.

It is not only more attractive but the tapered celery has the added advantage of remaining crisp and longer. In 72 hours the tapered celery lost approximately 15 percent of its original weight while the checks (bunches not topped) lost over 20 percent.

The most important step in the tests, however, was the wrapping of the tapered bunches in cellophane. The loss of water on the average was thus reduced to 2 percent in 72 hours. In all these instances the tapered celery was washed and held in storage at 45 degrees F. for 5 days, simulating the transit period to northern terminals. There were 3 crates of 1 dozen each in each lot. Ten individual bunches from each lot were labeled and weighed prior to storage and at 24-hour intervals after storage for 3 days. The post storage conditions were those prevailing in an retailer's establishment.

Another phase of the test was the careful examination of each bunch of celery in the container 72 hours after storage in the standard bulge crate with a large rubber pressure machine to use there were 21 broken stalks per crate on the average, while in an all-bound crate containing the same number of bunches in like size there were but 11 broken stalks. Some were found damaged in the cellophane wrapped lots.

The cellophane wrapped celery may be the answer to the criticism one always hears directed against Florida celery, namely, "It won't stand up. It becomes wilted and unattractive too soon."

The problems of Florida growers for the past nine years have been my problems. A survey was made by the Agricultural Economics Department of the Experiment Station at Gainesville three years ago which showed positive proof that most of the state's vegetable industry was shrinking in volume and returns at an alarming rate, while our competitors were forging ahead. There were but three commodities that were holding their own or making some progress. Simultaneously the farmers have suffered a diminution of income in the past few years, and today they are in virtual bondage.

So I have put this question to growers and shippers of Florida produce: What can or should be done to insure a more equitable and lucrative return to the industry? The answers have been numerous and varied. Some of the most experienced and observant among growers and shippers, those who can see beyond a mere immediate gain, maintain that the quality of much of the produce is not up to par, and propose methods to supply and waste and that the shipment of anything less than a U. S. grade No. 1 should be prohibited.

There are a number of arguments to uphold this view. (1) Cuban tomatoes, for example, usually command a premium, yet they are not put up in a huge bulge in flat contradiction to the arguments of Florida buyers and shippers. (2) Reliable data show that 35 to 40 percent of the tomatoes shipped out of Florida each year are never consumed, for 20 to 25 percent are immature green while an additional 10 to 20 percent are crushed, cut or decayed. (3) There has been agitation for the reduction of acreage because of an alleged overproduction.

Why not limit the quantity of produce going to market by sending only the very best? Some maintain that the established grades in some cases are too strict and that a greater tolerance should be allowed. Others just as stoutly demand a strict adherence to the present standards. I must cast my vote with the latter group, although there may be some cases where changes may be desirable to take care of special situations.

The most vulnerable points of attack lie in the methods of selling the produce. The consignment or "rolling" of cars, if it can be identified by the term "method," is no doubt one of the greatest evils. Conscientious buyers are unanimous in their denunciation of this practice. It will demoralize the best markets, and the sharp practices of some consignment merchants are legion.

Even the honest ones will often sell on a very small margin, when a little effort on their part would otherwise bring a reasonable return, for they naturally do not have a real interest in the produce such as they do when they have paid for it. On a weak market, the auction sales as now operated are also quite disastrous. Callous among the largest buyers prior to the sale will negate the vigorous entreaty of the best of auctioneers. A cash F. O. B. market is perhaps the best of the present methods, although this has its obvious weaknesses.

A few years ago I was idealistic enough to believe in the ultimate success of the mutual cooperative associations, and today I am a cynic on the subject. Ever since I have advanced and have heard others preach the doctrine of high quality, better grades, more attractive packages and the elimination or reduction of waste, these sermons have always been warmly applauded by the growers, yet where are we today?

We must exercise some coercive force to compel certain individuals and firms to act like decent human-

There is always a minority that insist on being hogs, so a ring in the nose and a tight pen are the only considerations they deserve.

Ever since the days of Lincoln, we have been fed a diet of "government of the people, by the people and for the people" by politicians and public grafters, but the nearest approach to an actual realization to this ideal has come with the adoption of codes and agreements. These have afforded some little protection from gold diggers, racketeers and others who live on their fellow men by sharp practices.

The tare weight on most of the containers now commonly used is far above what it should or could be. Wire-bound containers show from 20 to 50 percent less weight than other containers of equal carrying capacity, for wires are lighter and stronger than wood.

Excessive weight is undesirable for two important reasons. (1) The transportation costs of packages from the factory to the growers to the market is waste so long as lighter weight and equally as efficient packages can be secured. (2) When one tree will make a given number of packages of one type, and another three trees to make a like number of packages of another type, both of equal strength, our forestry products are obviously being consumed three times as fast when the latter type are used.

When we ship out of Florida each year about 20 million boxes of citrus and a like number of vegetables, an enormous number of these must be cut.

In this connection it is pertinent to present a few facts about the carelessness of growers responsible for the loss each year of thousands of field boxes. One tomato packing house last year alone lost 1,600 such boxes that cost about 30 cents each. Since the boxes did not belong to the growers, they felt no direct re-

Brooklyn Doctor Who Lost Larynx Now Uses Muscles of Stomach, Gullet To Talk

YORK CITY, May 25.—Laryngological section of the academy, where he was introduced by Dr. William Wallace Morrison, of 89 E. 50th St., who was responsible for the experiment. The case was related thus: The larynx, the organ of voice, is a tube through which the breath passes, making a sound as it passes the vocal cords. This sound is shaped by muscular contractions. Persons made voiceless by the loss of the larynx have been enabled to speak only by having a clumsy artificial larynx, usually a contraption centering around a tube stuck in the neck. The voice produced by these devices sounds nothing like natural voices. Dr. Morrison, who has been experimenting for years, persuaded the larynxless physician to try to make a new voice for himself instead of using an artificial larynx. The patient, following Dr. Morrison's instructions, took daily exercises, learning to swallow air and expel it from his stomach, contracting and expanding his esophagus to control the air in a manner similar to the air control in a larynx. Dr. Morrison said that within two weeks the patient could make himself understood. Now, after several months, the new voice closely resembles his old voice. The only difference noticeable was that the key is pitched lower, than the patient's normal voice and that the voice sounds hoarse, as a normal voice might sound when a man was recovering from a severe cold. Except for the hoarseness, doctors said a stranger would detect nothing unusual in the "stomach voice."

Marble Monuments Mark Graves In Cemetery for Cats and Dogs

One of the many memorials in an unusual burial ground. This is a typical scene on Memorial Day. A CEMETERY for dogs and cats and other pets, with real marble monuments is situated just outside Philadelphia. Unlike many animal burial grounds, this one is maintained as a modern cemetery, and the wares of flowers on the graves attest the frequent visits of those whose pets are buried there. A part of the Franciscan Home for Smaller Animals, it was founded 27 years ago, by the late Mrs. George McClellan in memory of Francis, a stray dog. Since then some 3,000 pets, most of them dogs, but including cats, monkeys, tanagers, parrots, a horse and even a lion, have been buried there. On the graves of dogs and cats are marble monuments, some of them more pretentious than those erected in memory of human beings. And the inscriptions on them bespeak the strong bonds of affection that bond dumb animals to his master or mistress. "In the hope of a blessed immortality, Prince, dearly beloved and faithful friend," reads one inscription. "Our Darling Snookie, Full Asleep October 29, 1927, aged 14 years, 3 months—This we meet again," reads another. Memorials on the graves of a dog and Jack, two dog manes buried with military honors, record that they "served their country in the World War," while another monument says the dog that lies beneath it sold Liberty Bonds.

TEACHERS WHO FIGHT LIVES BILL ROUNDLY SCORED

New York City, May 25.—Any school teachers who do not approve of the present-day form of American government, and who wish to utilize the public schools as a field for their campaigns against our Constitution should resign or be put out of the service. This was the declaration Wednesday by Arthur Bowe, president of the New York Principals' Association, one of the most powerful groups of educators in this state when he discussed the lives bills which is now in the hands of Governor Lehman. The lives measure would compel every teacher in the state school system to take an oath of allegiance to the State and Federal Constitutions, under pain of losing his or her position. Bowe, who is also principal at a school in Brooklyn, said: "At least once a week our teachers direct their pupils to stand and recite their oath of allegiance to our government and our flag, and there is no reason why the teachers themselves should be willing to do the same thing. If a teacher doesn't believe in the great things our government is doing, it is time for him to get out of our public school system. Let those teachers who are fighting the lives bill look toward Russia, Germany, or Italy, and note what happens when the free principles which characterize our own government are abandoned. These teachers are, in effect, protesting against the very kind of a government which has made our great school system possible. The public schools are certainly no place to wage a battle for a new form of government, or any teaching which is such destructive factors. They should be guilty of taking the money from a government they are seeking to help overthrow."

RFC REPORTS ON LOANS MADE TO CLOSED BANKS

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—A report of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation today said that 2,110 banks for liquidation purposes, totalling $788,827,177 were made public recently by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Chairman Jones said $250,000,000 more would be about all it could lend on collateral in banks which have not yet asked for or received loans. There are between 700 and 800 banks which have not applied for receivers' or conservators' loans. There still is $3,500,000,000 owing by closed banks to depositors, but Jones expressed the opinion that $2,500,000,000 of this was "lost" and not represented by frozen assets. The largest loans were to receivers and conservators of the First National Bank of Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce of Detroit. The First National has received a total of $83,000,000, of which $18,000,000 was lent to the receiver and the remainder to the conservator. The Guardian received $36,891,000 of which $4,391,000 was to the conservator and the balance to the receiver. The Guardian Trust Company of Cleveland received loans totalling $27,753,474 and the Union Trust Company of Cleveland, $48,845,576. The corporation also reported that it had made commitments to 32 mortgage loan companies which are being formed to liquidate closed banks. These loans include $1,018,977 to a proposed company to handle the Tennessee Valley bank at Decatur, Alabama; $36,000 to the St. Tammany Holding Company, Inc., of Covington, La. In connection with the Commercial Bank and Trust Company; $35,000 to a company that would take over the Citizens National Bank at Newmarket, Va., and $4,506,278 for mortgage companies proposed to take over the assets of 25 closed Michigan banks. It is estimated that 25,000,000 persons live in the 133,700 square miles of the Punjab region of India.

NEW FIREPROOF STOCKYARDS TO RISE FROM ASHES

Water Was Available In Entire Area Of Blaze It Is Learned

CHICAGO, May 25.—(AP)—A new fireproof stockyard, yet one with fireproof features, will rise from the ashes of the one almost destroyed by fire last week.

The nine-story Exchange building, will probably not be raised. The walls and foundations are intact. At the time of the fire, 127 commission firms had offices there—the nerve center of the stock industry.

One of the little ironies of the fire was the fact that the 80 acres across which the conflagration raged was literally lined with water. The vast acres of the stock pens were filled with metal and stone water troughs from which beasts might drink and these troughs were supplied with water from an intricate network of pipes and metal conduits which passed almost on top every foot of the ground.

Records for 68 years, from 1865 to 1933, inclusive, show the following receipts of livestock: Cattle 187,725,510; calves, 20,000; hogs, 451,450,022; sheep 194,918,540; and horses, 3,883,089. A grand total of 228,118,954 head. The total value reaches the astounding total of $19,671,667,437.

Shipments of livestock from the yards in the same period totaled 225,931,198, making a total of 1,854,049,247 head of livestock handled by employees of the yards.

During the peak of prosperity, it was estimated that one-eighth of Chicago's population was employed in the yards and in construction and supplementary industries.

Mr. Preston has the ability and necessary qualifications to make an ideal man for this office. He has promised to fairly and honestly represent this county on the commission. He will appreciate your vote and support in the June Primary.

again, I take my motherhood seriously; and realize that it depends upon me what sort of a man my son will become. People are regularly trained for other important callings; but there is no school or apprenticeship for mothers, who must depend upon people like you for guidance. All the suggestions you gave worked; do you wonder I want to tell you, as well as ask more questions?

ANSWER: That's the kind of a letter that warms the cockles of the heart. Do you wonder that I like to receive one like that; and that I give space here?

QUESTION: My little boy of eight has to leave the room several times during the school session; yet he can go for several hours during the afternoon, and the doctor who has examined his water tells me that he finds nothing the matter with it. What would you advise me to do about this?

ANSWER: I am inclined to believe that the fault is not with the youngster's physical apparatus at all; but that you are dealing with a situation in which he is trying to escape from something unpleasant in the classroom. I should keep him home for a few days, and notice whether it is less troublesome over the week-end. If so, go down to the school and talk into the teacher's ear where the treatment is needed.

75,000 FLORIDA CHICKS "FLY" TO LATIN-AMERICA

Miami, Florida—The 75,000 mark has just been passed in baby chicks purchased from Florida poultry farms, chiefly at Avon Park, and shipped by air express to Venezuela, Colombia, Cuba, Mexico, Jamaica, Haiti, Puerto Rico, Trinidad, Panama and other Caribbean countries. They travel comfortably at 100 miles per hour in the express compartments of the Pan-American flying boats of the Pan American Airways system. They reach their new homes in most other types of air transport, from false teeth to automobile parts. Above are two Pan American flying airplanes looking over their "new little friends."

YOUR CHILD
BY DR. RICHARDSON

"The home isn't what it used to be," groans the pessimist. "The young folks don't feel about it as we used to do. And the parents don't have the authority that they used to have. No, the home has changed."

Well isn't it fine that it has! The rheumatic fever has become a V; the dim carbon lamp has blossomed into the Mazda; and women's skirts no longer trail voluminously along Main Street, but have become of sensible length and thickness,—well, anyway, more sensible than they once were. Wouldn't it be just too bad if the home were the only thing that remained unimproved with the passing of the years?

For it is better to have Father be one of a democracy, than to have him the autocrat who decides everything according to his personal whim. It is better to have Mother with some outside interests, to bring a fresh point of view to her task inside the four walls of home. And it is better for the children to have some choice in the doings of the family, learning to make wise choices when they get outside in the big world.

But home need not lower its standards; it need not be affected by the whirl and confusion of contemporary life; it need not give up its privacy in determining the "set" of the lives of the children within it. Father and Mother can if they will make home just the best place in the world,—as it has always been. The power lies in their hands,—they have only to exercise it.

Land Bank Loans Near 10 Million Mark; Many More In Mill

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 25.—A total of $9,905,608 had been paid out to Florida farmers by the Federal Land Bank of Columbia on land bank and land bank commissioner's loans on farm mortgages from Apr. 30, 1933 to May 1, 1934, according to figures given out by Julian H. Scarborough, general agent for the Farm Credit Administration of Columbia, for the Third District.

In addition to loans already paid, Mr. Scarborough said that the land bank had on hand on Apr. 25, loans already approved for Florida farmers but not completed totaling $3,733,852.13. This will run the grand total for Florida up to nearly $13,600,000.

"This money has unquestionably been paid in every line of business endeavor in Florida," said Mr. Scarborough, who announced that a study just completed by the Farm Credit Administration showed that in the country as a whole, 89 cents out of every dollar paid out by the land bank and land bank commission on farm mortgage loans has been employed in refinancing of farmers' indebtedness the money, he said, has been used in the payment of taxes, debts to merchants, insurance companies, commercial banks, joint stock land banks, private mortgage lenders and others. The remainder, he said, was used for the purchase of land and equipment, the construction or improvement of buildings and for general agricultural purposes.

"The land bank," Mr. Scarborough continued "is now using the bonds of the new Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation instead of cash in closing loans. These bonds bear 3 1/2 percent interest and they are exempt from all taxation except the usual inheritance, estate and gift taxes and they are not only readily marketable but are equivalent to bonds of the United States. These bonds have found instant favor with the investing public as indicated by the fact that they are already bringing over par.

"In this connection it is our desire to emphasize the fact that the Farm Credit Administration has no been set up to lend government money. The object is to set up machinery through which farmers may obtain funds for financing their farm business at the lowest possible cost. The land bank is using farm mortgage bonds to complete its loans and the federal intermediate credit bank, which furnishes production and marketing credit, sells debentures to obtain the money it lends, these debentures being secured by farmer's notes and by warehouse receipts covering staple agricultural commodities in storage. The intermediate credit bank discounts the notes of the production credit associations, the machinery whereby farmers collectively may go into investment markets and obtain money at the lowest possible cost."

Mr. Scarborough said that credit must be extended by the various agencies of the Farm Credit Administration on a business basis if funds from investors are to continue to be available. The success of the system, he declared, depends on the reputation of the

Cakes That Can Go to Picnics

HERE is a cake that can stay at home or can go to a picnic—with its luscious chocolate icing as well! This is how you take a Holiday Cake to a picnic: After it is baked, remove from the pan and let it cool. Then return it to the pan, wrap pan in waxed paper and tie it up.

Make the frosting a few days ahead of time, if you prefer. Put it in the ice-box in tightly covered jar. Pack it with the picnic lunch and frost cake at picnic grounds. But—if you are asked to bring the cake for a big picnic, a Chocolate Nut Loaf is the cake to take, for it is a big cake.

Holiday Cake
2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons combination baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
1 cup nut meats, chopped
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add nuts. Add flour, alternately with milk, small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased pan, 8x8x2 inches, in moderate oven (325° F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Serve plain, or spread Chocolate Frosting thickly on cake.

Chocolate Wonder Frosting
3 ounces (1 package) cream cheese
2 to 3 tablespoons milk
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted

Dash of salt
Soften cream cheese with milk. Add sugar, one cup at a time, blending after each addition. Add chocolate and salt and beat until smooth. Makes enough frosting to cover tops of two 8-inch layers, or top and sides of 8x8x2-inch cake, or about 2 dozen cup cakes.

Chocolate Nut Loaf
2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup butter or other shortening
2 cups sugar
5 eggs, well beaten
1 cup walnut meats, coarsely broken
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
2 teaspoons vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add salt and soda, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together, until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Add nuts and chocolate and blend. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased loaf pan, 13x3x3 inches, in slow oven (325° F.) 1 hour, or until done. Serve plain, or spread Chocolate Frosting on top of cake. This frosting is sufficient to cover only the top of the above cake.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—Bound for Jacksonville and a tour of the route of the proposed cross-Florida ship canal, a committee of engineers appointed by President Roosevelt to study the cost of the project left here yesterday.

The board was named to look into the divergent report of cost estimates by the army and public works engineers. It was understood the engineering corps placed the cost at about $200,000,000 while the public works figure was about $115,000,000.

Members of the committee are Maj. Brehan S. Somervell for the Army; Clarence McDonough and M. H. Fowler, representing public works, and Walter J. Douglas, New York, consulting engineer.
