Attorney General Appeal Pending

Court May Reverse Homestead Ruling

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Chances are good the Florida Supreme Court will reverse itself on the question of whether residents in the state less than five years should be eligible for a $25,000 homestead exemption on their property.

At least this is state Sen. Richard Langley's opinion. He told Seminole County Property Appraiser Bill Suber, county officials and residents this week that attorneys for the Florida House of Representatives and the state Senate have joined with Attorney General Jim Smith in seeking a reversal of the recent high court decision.

The state Supreme Court in a 4-2 decision recently declared unconstitutional the state law requiring that persons live in the state for five consecutive years before becoming eligible for the $25,000 exemption.

The attorney general's office immediately filed an appeal. A spokesman in Attorney General Smith's office Thursday said the high court has given no indication when a ruling on the appeal can be expected.

While the case is being appealed, Seminole County homeowners, residents less than five years in the state, may still only file for a $5,000 exemption.

Langley R-Clermont, a member of the Seminole County Legislative Delegation, said House and Senate lawyers as well as the attorney general believe the high court decision has many errors. He did not list those errors.

At the same time, state Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, said the opinion of only one justice needs to be changed to overturn the decision since the vote on the issue was 4-2. "The attorney general feels he will win," said the chairman of the county delegation.

Related story is on page 3A

Suber told the delegation that more than 9,000 properties will be involved if the decision is allowed to stand. The owners of those homes have been able to file for only a $5,000 homestead exemption to this point.

Suber has said the decision could wind up causing Seminole County and the seven cities in the county to increase property tax rates.

He said the decision means the cities and county will lose a total taxable value of $182 million and will either have to increase property tax rates or find another form of gathering additional revenue.

To legislators questions Suber said in most cases new construction will make up the loss.

The property appraiser said the state requires property appraisers to appraise property at its just value for fairness and equality's sake. But with the homestead exemption, Suber said, property values for tax purposes are neither fair or equal.

He cited examples. One would be a homeowner with a $30,000 home compared with one with a $90,000 home, worth three times as much. In the first instance, the $30,000 homeowner after $25,000 homestead exemption would pay taxes based on a $5,000 value while the second after the $25,000 exemption would pay taxes on a $65,000 value, 13 times as much.

Langley said he is filing a bill for consideration during the 1983 session of the Legislature to have the $25,000 homestead exemption apply to the first $10,000 of home value, allowing taxing of the second $10,000 of value and home exemption of the remaining value from $20,000 to $35,000.

He asked Suber to work up figures to show the differences in taxable value under this method in Seminole County.

Langley also asked how everyone felt about eliminating the homestead exemption entirely. No one offered an opinion.

The Florida House believes the state Supreme Court overstepped its authority when it threw out the residency requirement for the homestead exemption on property taxes.

A motion filed with the court this week on behalf of the House and Speaker Lee Moffitt asks the justices to hold a rehearing on the case and allow the lawmakers to present their position.

Expansion Of Sewage Plant Is Opposed

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

There's probably going to be a "big stink" about the Iron Bridge Regional Wastewater Treatment Plant at the Seminole County Board of Adjustment's meeting Monday night.

Residents living near the plant say they plan to attend the 7 p.m. meeting at the Seminole County Courthouse in Sanford to protest a plan to expand the plant's capacity from 24 million gallons to 28 million gallons using water hyacinths to treat effluent.

Some residents of the area say the plant produces a variety of "suffocating odors" and noises that have disrupted their lives.

The plant is currently treating about 12 million gallons of sewage per day, with only a small portion of the Seminole County service area now using the plant.

But Orlando officials want to use the experimental hyacinth treatment technique to polish some of the effluent beyond current standards, expanding the plant's capacity by 4 million gallons.

Orlando Public Works Director Robert Haven admits the treatment plant, owned by Orlando, still has odor and noise problems.

Haven said part of the state Department of Environmental Regulation's tentative approval of the experimental plan is proving that the plant can operate for six months without those problems.

Haven said Orlando has spent a great deal of money on chemically treating the sewage that goes into the plant. Most of the odor problems have been eliminated but "we won't be satisfied until they are eliminated entirely."

He said the residents have been invited to a public meeting at 10 a.m. on Jan. 29 to see what efforts have been made at the plant to contain the odors.

"We want to show them that we're a good neighbor," he said.

Haven said the city has committed to spending $200,000 to cover the sludge tanks if chemical treatment fails to eliminate the smells.

But the Oviedo area residents said they won't be convinced until it is proven to them the odors can be eliminated.

One resident says the plant has not been what Orlando officials said it would be.

"It was going to be so nice. They told us 'you should be so glad you're getting it,'" Jeanne Heideimeier said. "It is exactly what we thought it would be — a stinky, noisy mess."

Richard Brunet, another vocal critic of the plant, said, "The thing that bothers us is there's only 12 million gallons coming into the plant. And there's a suffocating smell sometimes. We'd rather see it operate with 24 million gallons on a full-time basis before they expand it."

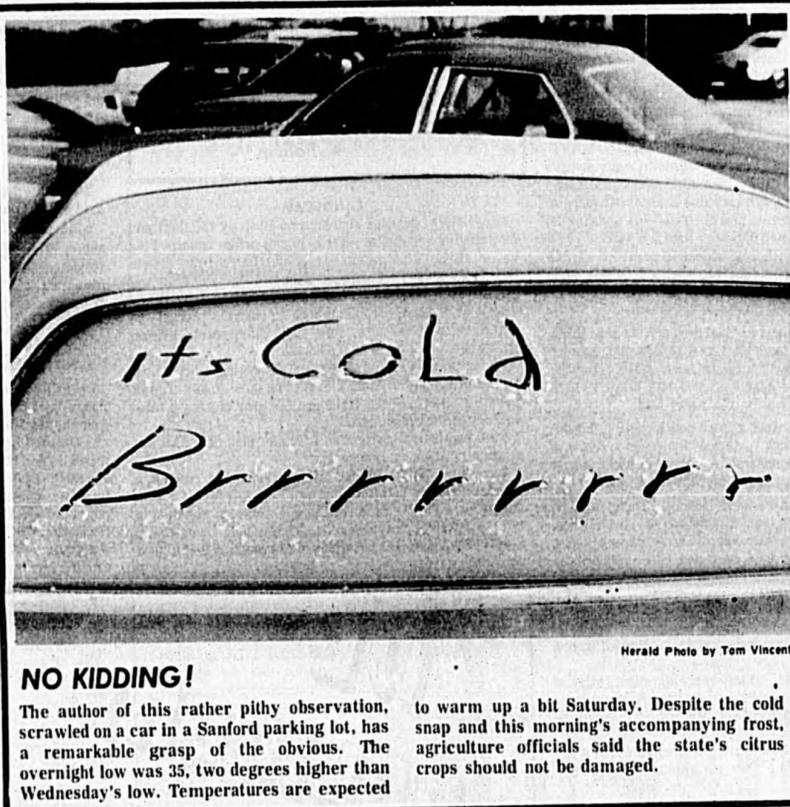

Mrs. Heideimeier said the quality of life has been altered for area residents, particularly for James and Adrienne Jones of Chapman Road, who live about 300 feet from the sewage treatment plant.

Mrs. Jones said her family located in the area because it was serene and quiet with a lot of wildlife. She said the smells and noise coming from the plant have altered her family's lifestyle.

"We are outdoorsy people. We built a house with a big patio and a swimming pool and we entertain out there a lot," she said. "It's horrible to eat a meal with the smell coming in."

Mrs. Jones said wintergreen used to mask the odors makes the area seem like a giant air freshener.

"You close everything up, turn on the air conditioner and all you get is cold stink."

NO KIDDING!

The author of this rather pithy observation, scrawled on a car in a Sanford parking lot, has a remarkable grasp of the obvious. The overnight low was 35, two degrees higher than Wednesday's low. Temperatures are expected to warm up a bit Saturday. Despite the cold snap and this morning's accompanying frost, agriculture officials said the state's citrus crops should not be damaged.

New Development Ideas Sought

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

A performing arts auditorium and convention center atop a parking garage?

A committee to negotiate property swaps between the City of Sanford and Seminole County?

The purchase of the old Ritz Theater for a performing arts theater?

These were some of the imaginative ideas tossed around at a luncheon meeting of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Bankers Committee Thursday.

A sub-committee was appointed by committee Chairman Howard Hodges, president of the Sanford Atlantic National Bank, to develop proposals for property swaps and bring them back to the committee.

Tom McDonald, president of the Lawyer's Title Group, Inc., was named chairman of the sub-committee, which also was asked to look into the feasibility of a suggestion by committee member Walter Gielow that the performing arts center—parking garage be built on the present city parking lot behind the county courthouse.

Others on the sub-committee include Mack Cleveland, Gib Edmonds, Sanford Mayor Lee Moore, Dennis Courson, Joe Justice, John Mercer and Dot Brenner.

McDonald proposed the blue-ribbon committee. "I'm concerned with the fact that the city and county have not been able to work out a property swap," he told the group. "Only an organization such as the chamber of commerce can work out the problem."

McDonald and others were concerned about keeping county administrative offices in downtown Sanford and expressed hope creative exchanges of property could provide the county with needed space for expansion in the area of the current courthouse.

"I went over there (to the courthouse) with hat in hand and offered to do anything I can to keep the courthouse downtown, and they said 'Thank you' and as far as I know that's all that ever came of it," said Mayor Moore.

"No offer was ever made by the county formally, informally or otherwise to give the city the county's health facility on French Avenue," said Moore. "We don't particularly want that piece of property, but nothing was said about it, it was just a rumor."

McDonald said the county's future plans to build administrative buildings at Five Points would not be "in the best interest of the county or city."

"Our problem," Moore said, "is providing parking space in the downtown area, but it is not necessarily the city's responsibility to provide land for the courthouse."

Gielow said a performing arts-convention center is needed and it would solve two problems to build it over a parking facility. He said because the Sanford Civic Center is inadequate, the Mutual Concert Association programs are being held at the Lake Mary High School Auditorium and the Five Arts auditorium at Seminole Community College is too small.

Ex-Talk Show Host Loses Law License

(From Herald News Services)

A former Longwood lawyer and one-time Orlando radio talk-show host has had his law license suspended for 90 days to be followed by one year probation.

The Florida Supreme Court, on a 4-2 vote, ordered the license of John "Jamie" Jameison Jr., suspended on the basis of a complaint filed by the Florida Bar.

Jameison, the husband of nationally-known psychic Robyn Jameison who drew national attention in 1980 when she said she could confirm U.S. Rep. Richard Kelly was set up by the FBI prior to his arrest in the ABCAM investigation, was accused of diverting a $20,000 contribution for a youth foundation he formed in 1978. Jameison, according to the Florida Bar's complaint, used the money to pay law office expenses and for a faith-healing business his wife was operating.

The former Longwood lawyer, who has moved to Arlington, Va., with his wife, today vigorously denied misusing any foundation funds.

"I used $150 a month from those funds toward a $1,500-a-month office rent, so you can see how small that was compared to the total figure."

The court majority concluded that Jameison, while intending no criminal or corrupt acts, failed to see a potential conflict of interest in accepting the $20,000 donation from a client for the foundation he (Jameison) created.

Jameison said the minority opinion issued by the court said there was no clear and convincing evidence that he (Jameison) had done anything wrong and that he and his wife were a young "very spiritual couple interested only in helping people through the foundation."

Jameison said most of the $20,000 went for salaries of half a dozen foundation counselors and advisors as well as to operate a counseling service at the Florida State Prison and to pay for other fund-raising projects to help the poor, elderly and minorities. He said his wife provided counseling, free of charge, to 700 to 800 clients.

Jameison formed the foundation with his wife in 1978 to help troubled youths using the donation from Andrew G. Hvolbek, then 88, of Mount Dora, as "seed money."

The majority adopted the findings of a referee who concluded: "The vast majority of the seed money was consumed to further law office expenses as well as the promotional aspects of the faith-healing business of (Jameison) and his wife. A few hundred dollars were spent directly for the benefit of needy youths."

Jameison disputed that account, saying he had a CPA and bookkeeper and that his office records were never seized or audited. "I tried my best and I guess I'm learning through experience. I wasn't trying to do the guy in. It's been a painful experience for me."

Jameison said he has started a management-consulting business in Arlington and that he and Robyn have just co-authored a book.

"That's what we'll be doing in the future . . . writing books. Maybe we'll write one about this incident."

Hvolbek, had heard Jameison speak on his radio talk show, "Nightline," on WDBO in 1978, and at a meeting at the Masonic Lodge in Mount Dora. Hvolbek, a Mason for 60 years, was impressed by

Sanford Effluent Problems Aired Before DER

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Dr. Donald O'Connor, nationally recognized environmental engineer, was in Tallahassee today conferring with state Department of Environmental Regulation officials on Sanford's effluent disposal problems with the state.

The services of O'Connor of HydroQual, Inc., consultants in water pollution control, a New Jersey firm, were retained by the city for about $4,000.

O'Connor was sought at the suggestion of B.C. "Cal" Conklin, the city's consulting engineer. The city is battling DER over its order that the city must have planning completed to halt the dumping of effluent from its Poplar Avenue sewer plant into Lake Monroe by 1984. Once planning is completed the DER has said Sanford can continue effluent disposal in the lake until 1988.

The city planned to expand its sewer plant to a regional facility, serving the entire north end of Seminole County, at the urging of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. When DER refused to extend the city's permit to dispose of the effluent in the lake, the Sanford City Commission abandoned the regional concept as being too expensive.

The order came from DER six months ago after technicians from the state agency declared the sewer plant was polluting the lake.

DER tests of the lake's water was done last summer when the lake was at its lowest recorded level.

The city balked at going to a land-spreading technique for disposal of the sewer effluent after cost estimates for the property to be purchased, lift stations, pumping and piping reached a total of $20 million. And the city found it could expect no financial assistance from EPA. The federal agency has said it will not fund anything beyond the secondary treatment Sanford already has at its sewer plant.

The city's position has been that the $20 million land-spreading technique for the effluent disposal is not a viable solution because of its cost to the city's sewer customers.

The city has estimated that sewer rates of city customers would have to be tripled to pay the cost of changing its effluent disposal from the lake to land spreading. And the city has challenged DER's conclusions that the sewer plant is contributing to the lake's pollution.

The city commission has said sewer customers and taxpayers should not be put to the expense just because of regulations.

O'Connor said Thursday he will assess the information from city reports and from DER reports and suggests an appropriate method of analyzing Lake

Monroe in great depth. "This may already have been done by DER," O'Connor said.

Within the next couple months, O'Connor said he will submit a preliminary report of his findings and recommendations to the city.

He examined Lake Monroe Thursday. The lake and the St. Johns River were not unfamiliar to him, he noted, since he and his firm did a study on the St. Johns River for the state a decade ago.

While keeping an open mind, he added the whole quandary may be over a mathematical calculation.

He explained that measuring the quality of water to make sure its delicate balance is maintained is a precise science. He noted as one example that there must be nutrients in a lake to maintain fish life and effluent from a sewer plant can provide those needed nutrients.

Reagan Reviewing Package Of Contingency Tax Hikes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, swallowing his abhorrence of tax increases, is seriously debating a package of new tax hikes that would go into effect in 1986 if federal deficits do not drop sharply, top aides say.

Aides said Reagan is wrestling with a series of new proposals, part of a broad long-term, tax-reform program, which reportedly includes a surcharge on income and corporate taxes, an energy tax, a flat-rate tax vs. a progressive tax, as well as other options.

They said it was possible Reagan may call for taxes on health insurance premiums paid by employers and an acceleration of the effective dates of higher Social Security taxes.

'Tex' Watson Denied Parole

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) — Manson Family disciple Charles "Tex" Watson lost his fifth bid for freedom despite his plea that he has reformed since leading the Tate-LaBianca bloodbath 14 years ago.

"I'm not the animal they think I am," the 37-year-old killer told the state Board of Prison Terms at his three-hour parole hearing Thursday. "I'm a changed person."

But Watson failed for a fifth time to convince the three-member board he was any different than the 23-year-old Manson cultist who led the Hollywood Hills slaughter in August 1969.

Would-Be Teachers Flunking

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The head of California's school system estimates almost one-third of the nearly 7,000 prospective teachers failed the state's first licensing test to check their reading, writing and math skills.

"I realize this means some candidates won't receive a teaching credential, but our children have to come first," Superintendent of Public Instruction Bill Honig said Thursday at a news conference.

Reporting an estimated 30 percent failure figure for the 6,943 taking the test, Honig said the failure rate was especially high among blacks and Hispanics.

Unseasonably cold temperatures were expected to accompany the storms. # Architect Sought For Two School Projects

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
 Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County School Board is looking for an architect to develop plans for two school facilities proposed for construction this year.

The projects include a new $2.5 million elementary school in Sanford and an addition to T.W. Lawton Elementary School in Oviedo. Architects may submit proposals for either or both projects.

The repair of roof damage at historic Sanford Grammar School caused by the April 8 hailstorm was unanimously approved by the board at Tuesday's meeting. One of the oldest schools still in use in the state, Sanford Grammar will be used all of this year and half of the next until the new school is completed, Seminole County School Superintendent Robert Hughes said.

Assistant Superintendent for Facilities Benny Arnold said it was the board's obligation and responsibility to re-roof and preserve the integrity of the building which was found structurally sound when inspected by a consulting engineer following the storm.

No cost estimate of the repair work has been made, school officials said.

Plans for lawn sprinkling systems at Lake Mary High School and South Seminole Middle School, Casselberry, were presented by landscape architect Butch Alexander who has contracted with the board for the work, the cost of which is not to exceed $3,000. The board approved the plans in a 4-1 vote with board member Pat Telson the lone dissenter. Mrs. Telson said the same type of systems should be used at both schools so components would be interchangeable. However, Alexander said that would not be practical.

He said different type sprinklers would be required at Lake Mary where they would have to have rubber covers because they would be used on the athletic field. The sprinkler system is a project of the Lake Mary Boosters Club and bids need to go out soon in order to be in place in time for the baseball season.

Also Tuesday the board unanimously approved an environmental grant request by Milwee Middle School in Longwood, to build a boardwalk along and into Trout Lake on the Milwee campus. The school had made the request for the $3,675 in federal funds for the first phase of the environmental studies project at the Dec. 8, 1982 meeting of the board, but it was tabled.

The area will be fenced in and a gate installed. Phase II and III of the project are scheduled to be completed gradually over the next three years and will be funded through Milwee building fund sources. They include construction of an open air study and lab shelter, picnic-type group lab tables, conversation log seats, bird feeding boxes, a windmill, solar heating (water) equipment built by the students, a weather vane, and additional boardwalks.

Students will be able to do on-site collection and identification of lake life, and measuring and testing lake water samples.

Also approved was a request from Sabal Point Elementary School for a perception playground to cost approximately $600. The project will be funded by the Parent Teachers Association.

Landscape architect Butch Alexander explains plans for lawn sprinkler systems at Lake Mary High and South Seminole Middle schools to the Seminole County School Board.

The playground to be made largely of treated beams and tires, will be for the use of the kindergarten, first grade, and Specific Learning Disabilities students needing perceptual training.

Permission was also given to Winter Springs Elementary School to fence in a greenhouse and storage building for security. The $1,053 price tag will be paid by the Parent Teacher Organization.

N. Y. Fugitive Captured After High-Speed Chase

A high-speed chase which began near an Altamonte Springs bar ended quickly when the suspect rammed a police car. No one was hurt in the incident.

Tommy Lee James, 30, wanted in New York state for violating parole stemming from an armed robbery conviction, was being held in Seminole County jail on $10,000 bond after the chase which began near the Club 436 on Lake Howell Road in Altamonte Springs shortly after midnight today.

Detectives Rudy Kramer from the Seminole County sheriff's department, and Gary Brown from Altamonte Springs said they learned that James, who uses five aliases, was living at his girlfriend's apartment at Strawberry Fields Apartments, Winter Park, and followed James to the Club 436.

The chase began when James suddenly accelerated after he left the club's parking lot. The chase ended quickly when James rammed an Altamonte Springs patrol car at the intersection of Lake Howell Road and North Street.

James jumped out of the car he had been driving and ran but slipped and fell in the sand, his arrest report said. Kramer noticed a shiny object fly out of James' hand and fly across the hood of his car. It was later retrieved and found to be a snubnosed .38-caliber revolver, the report said.

When James was searched, a small pouch was found inside his right sock. The pouch contained numerous syringes, a spoon and other drug paraphernalia. Various checks and false identities were also found on James, the report said.

He was charged with reckless driving, driving with no driver's license, fleeing and attempting to elude police, possession of heroin, possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of a handgun by a convicted felon, and being a fugitive from New York state.

COUNCILMAN SUED

Lake Mary City Councilman Charles A. Lytle has been hit with a $29,284 mortgage foreclosure suit by the Barnett Bank & Trust Company.

The suit filed in Circuit Court last week claims that Lytle and his wife, Brenda, owe the money on their Lake Bingham home after defaulting on a 1972 promissory note. The suit claims the couple have made no mortgage payments since October, 1982.

"It is a legal dispute and the issue has been forced so it can be resolved," Lytle said. "We are absolutely not in any financial difficulties."

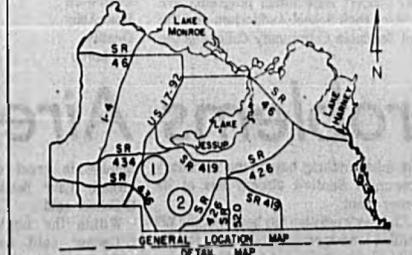

The case has been assigned to Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. No trial date has been set.

Lytle, 33, gained his seat on the City Council in December and works as an account executive with Gulf and Western. He has previously served on the city's Planning and Zoning Board. The council seat is his first elected public office.

LANDSCAM
 A carefully concocted land scheme involving the theft and alteration of courthouse records to defraud an unsuspecting buyer of $900,000 has prompted criminal charges being filed in two states against a Longwood man.

Extradition proceedings have begun to bring John Bruce Vining, 51, to South Carolina to face six charges of forgery in connection with the case, State Law Enforcement Division spokesman Hugh Nunn said Thursday.

Vining has been free on $5,000 bond since being indicted by a federal grand jury in Atlanta Nov. 22 on three counts of mail fraud, two counts of wire fraud and one count of using a false military identification card.

State and federal charges in a similar land deal also are pending in Alabama against him.

According to FBI and SLED officials, Vining is accused in a scandal involving an attempt to sell 2,655 acres in Colleton County owned by the estate of Ralph A. Durham, who died in 1976, to Jewell Tucker of Macon, Ga., last fall. Union Camp Corp. of Savannah, Ga., has a lease on the property that is good until 1986.

MAN WITH GUN ARRESTED
 A 44-year-old Orlando man was being held in Seminole county jail on $5,000 bond today on a charge of possessing a concealed weapon after he had been arrested in the Raffles bar and grill in the Altamonte Mall Wednesday night.

Jailed was Jose Augustin Diaz, who police say was displaying a .25-caliber pistol in the bar.

KIDNAPPING SUSPECTS HELD
 Two Sanford men charged with kidnaping are being held in the Volusia County jail without bond.

Steve Whitted, 20, of 1214 16th Street, and Willie James Miller, 23, of 1822 Coolidge Avenue, are charged with the kidnaping and robbery of the manager of Poppa Jay's restaurant, 312 North Woodland Boulevard, DeLand, at about 11 p.m. Tuesday.

The two men are also wanted by Sanford police in connection with a robbery at Church's Fried Chicken restaurant, U.S. Highway 17-92, on December 18.

DeLand police say the two men followed the manager of Poppa Jay's home to the Lake Helen area about seven miles from the restaurant. When the manager got out of the car he was attacked by Whitted and Miller who had a shotgun. The manager was told to get into his car with Whitted who was handed the shotgun. They were followed back to the restaurant by Miller and then Miller and Whitted took an undisclosed amount of money from the safe. As they walked out of the restaurant, the manager ran away and telephoned police.

About 20 minutes later, patrolman Mike Wilson stopped the two and they were arrested, police said.

Judge Overturns Supreme Court Rulings On Prayer

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — A federal judge today rejected U.S. Supreme Court precedents barring prayer in public schools by dismissing two suits challenging classroom prayer in Alabama, officials said.

U.S. District Judge W. Brevard Hand ruled the Supreme Court had misinterpreted the Constitution in past rulings citing guarantees of separation of church and state as grounds for banning school prayer.

In a 66-page decision on a suit filed by a self-avowed agnostic, Ishmael Jaffree, Hand said the framers of the Constitution never intended to bar states from being able to set up their own laws concerning religions.

"He's rejecting all the Supreme Court precedents," said Hand's legal clerk, Robert Crawford. "He does so on the basis of a survey of the adoption of the First Amendment."

"The judge ruled that the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution doesn't prohibit states from establishing a religion," Crawford said. "He said that is the prerogative of the state."

Hand's ruling came after hearings on Jaffree's claim for damages against the Mobile County school board for allowing teacher-led prayers in classrooms. He said his three adolescent children were subjected to ridicule when they refused to participate in the prayers.

In the decision, Hand also dismissed a pending suit challenging an Alabama statute allowing teachers to lead willing students in prayer. Hand said the question of whether the law violates the Alabama Constitution is a matter to be addressed in state court.

Wholesale Inflation Lowest Since '71

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Producer prices in December increased only 0.1 percent to give 1982 the lowest wholesale inflation rate — 3.5 percent — in 11 years, the Labor Department said today.

Even natural gas prices for dealers stopped skyrocketing in December, going down 0.8 percent after a 5 percent gain in November.

With gasoline down 0.3 percent and fuel oil dropping price by 0.4 percent, the stable oil prices ended as the year's biggest gift to wholesalers, climbing only 0.1 percent throughout the 12 months. The year before wholesale energy prices went up 14.1 percent.

Food prices also were extremely moderate, climbing only 0.1 percent in December and 2.1 percent for all of 1982 at the wholesale level.

The year's inflation rate at the wholesale level of 3.5 percent was less than half the 1981 rate of 7.1 percent, the department said, and the lowest since 1971's 3.2 percent.

The department's Producer Price Index in December for finished goods was 285.1 in December, equivalent to a price of $2,851.00 for goods that cost dealers $1,000 in 1967.

The index measures the price changes experienced by dealers and business in general. It does not include most of the services that are reflected in the department's other major price tally, the Consumer Price Index of retail prices that is expected to end 1982 with an annual rate around 5 percent.

Small increases in wholesale prices eventually benefit consumers while eroding the profits of suppliers, especially

Despite the overall small increase in wholesale prices in December, some categories of goods showed substantial increases. New car prices were up a full 1 percent; tobacco products climbed 5.5 percent in the single month; electric light bulbs were 2.1 percent more expensive.

Among foods, vegetables shot up in price by 12 percent and rice was 10.6 percent more expensive.

Factory Production Slumped In '82

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Factory production fell only 0.1 percent in December, one of the recession's best months for industry production, the Federal Reserve Board said today. But factory output for all of 1982 dropped 8 percent, a setback that took production back to the level of 1977.

The auto industry, defense suppliers and aerospace manufacturers all improved together in December, yet could not quite offset the cutbacks under way elsewhere.

Factory production has fallen for 15 of the previous 17 months, a grim record that has charted the damage done by the recession. The 1982 decline was the most serious since production dropped 8.9 percent in 1975, as part of the most serious recession of the 70s.

So far during the recession factory production has dropped 12.5 percent, the Fed said.

What To Do With Unclaimed Money?

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Legislative Delegation will get an opinion from Tallahassee before accepting or rejecting proposed legislation to allow local unclaimed money paid to county officials to be funneled into the county's general fund.

G. Troy Ray Jr., Seminole County tax collector, requested the legislation after conferring with state Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, delegation chairman.

Ray's request was supported by the Seminole County Commission.

Nothing his office has had to carry on its books sums from issued but uncashed checks for as long as 24 years, Ray said Florida law does not provide a way to dispose of these unclaimed funds.

He said the uncashed checks range in value from a few cents to several hundred dollars and probably amount to no more than $2,000 total.

He said the Sheriff's Department and the Clerk of the Circuit Court's Office have the same problem.

Ray suggested the special law permit the transfer of the money after advertisement and after a year has elapsed. The tax collector said the unclaimed funds range from cash bonds to evidence money.

Rep. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, suggested a law on the books for some years appears to give Ray and other officials the authority to dispose of the funds.

"We want to do this for you but we want to do it right so someone won't come back and nail you," Selph told Ray.

Ray said over the years one state auditor instructed him to turn the money over to the county commission's general fund. A few years later, Ray said, another state auditor instructed him to recover the money from the county commission and place it in a trust fund.

Ray noted the publicity generated by his request for the special legislation has resulted in a number of people coming in and asking for their money back.

the attorney and agreed to pledge $25,000 to Jameison if he would run against then-U.S. Rep. Kelly with the goal of later seeking the presidency.

Jameison later told Hvolbek that he had no political aspirations, but agreed to provide legal service to Hvolbek. He also told Hvolbek that he was setting up a foundation for troubled youths. The attorney then suggested that Hvolbek make a $20,000 contribution as "seed money."

Hvolbek made the donation, and Jameison, using another law firm to create the Jameison Foundation, formed an organization to "help people help themselves by more effectively utilizing some basic fundamental principles in counseling hyperactive children and helping troubled youth."

But Hvolbek later contacted another attorney, who demanded an accounting of the money. Hvolbek later filed a lawsuit against Jameison in mid-1980 in Lake County Circuit Court that charged the attorney with defrauding Hvolbek of the money, and started the Bar probe.

Hvolbek died since filing the suit, but his attorney, Michael Jones of Altamonte Springs, said that Hvolbek's testimony was preserved on videotape and that Hvolbek's relatives are pursuing the case. The case is scheduled to go to trial later this year, Jones said, and Hvolbek's family is seeking $25,000 in damages and an unspecified amount in punitive damages.

Jameison said that a year after Hvolbek donated the money and was introduced at several meetings with social-service organizations in Central Florida, he decided that he wanted his money back.

... Homestead Ruling Appeal Pending

"An extension of the exemption to those never intended by the Legislature to receive it ... is outright judicial legislation," House lawyer Barry Richard asserted in the motion.

In a 4-2 decision, the high court ruled Dec. 16 that requiring homeowners to reside in the state for five years before they could claim the $25,000 exemption violated the equal protection provisions of the state Constitution.

If the decision stands, Florida localities will lose an estimated $120 million in revenues this year.

The Legislature already is considering a variety of so-called "impact fees" on new residents to offset the losses.

In earlier petitions to the court, Attorney General Jim Smith has also asked for a rehearing with hopes of reversing the decision while Richard J. Ostendorf, the Daytona Beach lawyer who successfully challenged the law, wants a clarification that the ruling applies to school district taxes as well as general property taxes.

The state Department of Revenue contends the decision affects only general property taxes.

Reagan Considering Social Security Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan could support faster payroll tax hikes if they were combined with curbs in benefit growth to remedy Social Security's cash problems, a top aide says.

But the president's Social Security panel, still trying to agree on a rescue package by its Saturday deadline, appears fractured. Commission conservatives, unhappy with a bailout plan drafted by their leaders, agreed to write one of their own, Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo. said.

The five conservative members who met Thursday, three of them named by Reagan, believe a plan being drafted by commission leaders and White House aides leans too heavily on tax hikes and not enough on curbing benefits.

"The anti-tax increase caucus of the commission is gaining steam," Armstrong said after the group, which also includes Mary Falvey Fuller and Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, Prudential Insurance Co. chief executive Robert Beck and former Rep. Joe Waggoner, ended an all-day meeting and agreed to meet again today.

White House Chief of Staff James Baker's remarks, made before the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco Thursday, publicly disclosed for the first time the conditions under which Reagan might favor using higher taxes to prevent Social Security from rolling up huge future deficits.

"The president's abhorrence of tax increases is well known," Baker said. "However, if tied to reforms on the spending side, President Reagan might consider some acceleration in the effective dates of those tax changes already on the books."

Baker has served as a bridge between the White House and the advisory commission Reagan named in 1981 to recommend reforms that would put Social Security on a sounder financial footing.

His remarks came as the National Commission on Social Security Reform neared its Saturday deadline for its report. An aide to one of the conservatives indicated they may ask Reagan to extend the panel's deadline a few days.

Alan Greenspan, commission chairman, and Alexander Trowbridge, a member of the panel's moderate middle faction, sat in on the session with conservatives.

Commission leaders, including Greenspan and Sens. Bob Dole, R-Kan., and Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., are discussing a package to raise $150 billion or more by 1990 to keep checks going out to 36 million recipients. That is the minimum needed by the retirement program. The group meets again Saturday.

IN BRIEF

'HRS Should Be Stripped Of Licensing Authority'

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—Auditor General Ernest Ellison says the state should continue to license ambulance drivers and X-ray technicians, but the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services shouldn't do the job.

Ellison recommended to the Legislature Thursday that it transfer authority over "allied health professionals" to the Department of Professional Regulation, which already licenses most health care professionals, including doctors and nurses.

HRS Secretary David Pingree agreed to give up control over ambulance drivers and emergency medical technicians, but not over other allied health professionals including X-ray technicians, medical laboratory personnel, paramedics, mid-wives and hearing aid dispensers.

Ellison's staff concluded after a special audit of HRS's licensing programs that the giant department isn't doing a very good job.

Cop Beaten, Stabbed

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—A medical examiner said today the policeman slain by seven zealots who took him hostage died of multiple blows to the head, and had been slashed and stabbed. The seven later were killed by a SWAT team.

Angry policemen claimed Thursday their superiors let officer Robert S. Hester die at the hands of his captors, but a relative of one of the fanatics said he could not have been saved. His statement supported the contention of a police union leader who said "nobody could have come out of there alive."

Dr. Charles Harlan, deputy Shelby County Medical examiner, today released a report saying that Hester died from multiple blows to the head.

Harlan said Hester also had cuts on his legs, arms and hands and had been stabbed in one leg by a dull instrument.

The body diagram released by Harlan said Hester had "pale grooved depressions" on his wrists from the handcuffs he wore while he was tortured by his captors.

The Back Door To The Treasury

The president recently signed a bill authorizing the tax expenditure of more than $30 million in rewards to drug companies for developing and marketing drugs for treating rare diseases.

It is a good cause. So are they all, all the causes for which tax expenditures have been authorized. But all of them open the back door to the federal treasury. The result is to distort the federal tax system, deprive Congress of control over revenue sources for the federal government and throw the federal budget more than $200 billion in the red.

Tax expenditures are revenue losses that provide incentives for certain activities and selective tax relief for certain groups of taxpayers.

In their effect on the federal budget, tax expenditures are identical with direct spending programs, except that tax expenditures are harder to control, harder to reduce and almost impossible to eliminate.

In 1967, tax expenditures amounted to 4.4 percent of gross national product. Now they have grown to 8.3 percent of GNP.

Because the federal government is running such a huge deficit, every dollar of tax expenditure is now financed by government borrowing and inflates the $1.2 trillion national debt.

This fiscal year, tax expenditures are expected to amount to $253 billion — more than enough to balance the federal budget, if they could be recovered.

But they can't be recovered. People have come to depend upon them. Strong constituencies have developed to defend them.

Imagine the furor if Congress decided to save $25 billion next year by eliminating the deductibility of mortgage interest on owner-occupied homes. Or $10 billion by eliminating the deductibility of property tax on owner-occupied homes. Or if it was decided to save $13 billion by making Social Security benefits taxable. Or to save $30 billion by eliminating investment credits and accelerated depreciation for corporations and individuals. Or to save $6 billion by cutting exemptions for oil and gas well drillers.

Tax expenditures become petrified into law. Taxes should be levied for the sole purpose of raising revenue to support the proper functions of government. The tax system should not be used for other social or political or economic purposes, however worthy. If subsidies are needed for the drug industry, or for any other purpose, Congress should enact a spending program for that purpose and appropriate the necessary funds annually to operate the program.

The Art Of Loafing

Motivating workers is the No. 1 domestic goal of the regime of the new Soviet leader, Yuri Andropov.

Everyone works in the Soviet Union, but the standard of living is about one-half that in West Germany. One reason for low productivity is overstaffing—two workers where only one is needed. Another reason is the practice of loafing, which Soviet workers have raised to an art—the art of survival in a system that fails to reward merit with money and diverts energies to an underground economy.

To stimulate the work ethic, Pravda has recently published letters from workers describing conditions at their jobs. A truck driver wrote: "If you want to show up around our place at 8 a.m. that is fine, but if you would rather come in half an hour or an hour later, or not at all, that is OK, too."

Loafing on the job is not isolated to the communist world. But Soviet workers have no incentive to produce. They face no penalty for goofing off. Their inefficiency far outstrips that of the West, whose chronic problem is unemployment.

The Russians brag about their full employment. They condemn us for allowing unemployment. But their solution is no solution. What they have achieved is a system of on-the-job unemployment.

BERRY'S WORLD

"It's something I picked up for you in one of those South American countries whose name starts with a 'B'!"

By VICTOR ASSERSOHN

Don't Drink and Drive — the message keeps being hammered home by law enforcement agencies and yet the number of DUI arrests continue to spiral.

Even though it can cost a driver up to $3,000 if he is found guilty of Driving Under the Influence more DUI arrests were made by Florida Highway Patrol in the last six months of 1982 than in the corresponding period the year before.

In the six months ending December 1982 the FHP made 7,167 DUI arrests compared with 4,357 in the last six months of 1981.

The crackdown on drinking and driving which has netted more drunken drivers is resulting in a drop in traffic deaths involving alcohol.

"In the past, innocent victims of the drinking driver have paid a disproportionate share of the high price of DUI with their lives," said Robert A. Butterworth, executive director of the Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles.

"Now," he added, "we are beginning to see a different trend where the drunken driver is paying a greater price... and alcohol and drug-related deaths are being reduced."

While drunken driving deaths have gone down, the cost of getting caught has rocketed to around $3,000, says Butterworth, and that price does not include almost certain cancellation of insurance and much higher rates, probably two to three times higher, when an insurance company can be found to cover the additional risk.

"Even using the lowest figures, a typical DUI arrest will cost more than $3,000 and there are other hidden costs..." says Butterworth.

A pat on the back goes to Sonny and Kitty West, owners of the Sanford Trophy Shop, who donated a beautiful plaque for presentation to the first annual Consumers Choice Award winners — Brent and Mark Caril, owners of Caril's produce on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford.

The award is sponsored by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the Seminole-Brevard State Attorney's office to recognize outstanding area businessmen.

Infant Formula Dispute

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Nestle, the world's largest producer of infant formula, appears to be slowly moving toward resolution of a long and bitter global dispute over its sales, marketing and promotion practices.

Since the late 1970s, the company has been sharply criticized by members of Congress, religious organizations, consumer groups, labor unions and the medical profession. Nestle's aggressive promotion of infant formula in less developed countries, those critics allege, deprives children of the benefits of breast-feeding and, in some cases, endangers their health.

For years, the company resisted proposals for reform and refused to even discuss the issue with critics whose allegations against Nestle became increasingly strident. As a result, the feud senselessly escalated into a highly emotional and seemingly irreconcilable confrontation.

But Nestle has become far more conciliatory under the leadership of Helmut Maucher, installed two years ago as chief executive officer of the multinational food company.

Late last year, Maucher agreed to meet with Edward Baer, a member of the board of the Infant Formula Action Coalition, a Minneapolis-based organization which has been aggressively promoting a boycott of Nestle products since mid-1977. That meeting was "the first between the head of the company and an active boycott organizer," notes Baer.

"They are definitely getting much better," adds Rick Hoyer, who runs the boycott organization's Washington office. "But there are still mixed signals, especially from middle management, and there are real problems in the field."

Cynicism about Nestle's position on the issue dates back to 1978, when the company first promised to "abide by any uniform code of conduct which comes out of" a World Health Organization conference on infant feeding practices.

But Nestle then sought to undermine efforts to draft a strong International Code of Marketing of Breastmilk Substitutes at the WHO conference and to gain formal approval of that document at the May 1981 meeting of the World Health Assembly, held under the auspices of the United Nations.

In March 1982, the company announced with considerable fanfare that it was promulgating "comprehensive new policy guidelines..." (which) spell out in detail exactly how Nestle subsidiaries and agents are to apply the WHO code.

But that loophole-riddled document was only a restatement of earlier, discredited policies. The executive director of UNICEF, another U.N. agency, expressed "serious misgivings" about Nestle's commitment to abide by "the true spirit and intent of the code."

In May 1982, the company established a 10-member Nestle Infant Formula Audit Commission chaired by Edmund S. Muskie, a Washington lawyer and former senator and secretary of state.

Last October, Muskie's commission announced that the company had finally agreed to meaningful revisions of its marketing procedures to conform with most of the objections raised by UNICEF and other critics.

One important indicator of the company's belated effort to resolve the dispute: Nestle's executive vice president flew to Washington from the firm's headquarters in Vevey, Switzerland, to unveil the new marketing guidelines.

The conflict still has not been fully resolved.

Wine-Escort Caper Has Feds Fermenting

WASHINGTON — The telephone call to the U.S. Park Police in Washington that morning was businesslike. A security officer at the Mayflower Hotel, the dowager of the city's hostesses, asked that a police escort be provided for "a French dignitary" arriving at National Airport.

"They said there was a lot of press involved, and they were concerned for safety," recalled Lt. Ronald Miller. Security is the first priority in requests for a police escort.

Miller obligingly dispatched a motorcycle officer to escort the dignitary from the airport to the hotel. When the officer arrived at National, he found a limousine, two Mayflower employees and "a female VIP with luggage." Presumably, she was the French dignitary.

Off they roared up the parkway, across the 14th Street Bridge and into downtown Washington, the late-morning traffic giving

South African Reforms

NEW YORK (NEA) — The standard liberal position on South Africa holds that that beleaguered country can do no right, so the political reforms now under consideration there are, by definition, unsatisfactory from the liberal standpoint. Minds less imprisoned by dogma, however, will find much to commend in the constitutional proposals recently put forward by Prime Minister Pieter Willem Botha; and now comes news that he is making important headway in selling them to key constituencies in South Africa itself.

Bear in mind what a fearful mixture of tribes and races South Africa is: almost 5 million whites, divided between English speakers and Dutch-descended Afrikaners in a proportion of about one to two, and represented in parliament by a conservative majority party, a left-liberal minority and a right-wing opposition of uncertain size; 2.5 million "Cape coloureds," of racially mixed origins but Western culture, perhaps 40 percent of whom are stirring restlessly under left-liberal leaders; nearly a million "Asians," of Indian descent, unhappy at white domination but even more afraid of black domination; and about 19 million blacks, divided into nine tribes as diverse, linguistically and culturally, as the white nations of Europe, and ranging in terms of civilization from several million thoroughly urbanized individuals to perhaps twice that many rural primitives, some of whom have not yet fully accepted the principle of the wheel.

Thus far South Africa's all-white government has steadfastly refused to turn the country over to such leaders, undoubtedly black, as would be chosen on a basis of one man, one vote. For this, it has been roundly condemned by "world opinion," ousted from the UN General Assembly and just generally treated as a pariah state — penalties injurious to its pride, but hardly fatal.

In South Africa's own best interest, however, the Botha administration has been preparing public opinion, and especially conservative white opinion, for necessary changes, looking toward some future day on which the present Republic of South Africa will consist of a central multiracial state and a congeries of satellite black nations, more or less one per tribe, associated with it economically and participating on a consensual basis in common arrangements for defense and other major areas of mutual interest.

As a first step, the government has proposed including the Cape coloured and Asian populations in the political process by establishing three separate parliamentary chambers for these two groups plus the whites. The three chambers would each deal individually with matters affecting its group only, but all three would pass on matters of national interest.

This sweeping proposal for changes in the governing system, bringing two more important groups into the political process, was promptly rejected by liberal opinion, both in South Africa and abroad, on the ground that it doesn't provide votes for the blacks — which is to say that it doesn't solve all of South Africa's problems at once, including the toughest one of all.

Now, in fact the Botha administration hasn't overlooked those 19 million blacks. A so-called Black Communities Development Bill is already before parliament which, if it passes as expected, will give urban blacks full control of their local governments and local affairs; and I myself have seen on the drawing boards of the prime minister's long-range planners, tentative designs for "confederal" arrangements which would give South African blacks a much bigger voice in national affairs as well.

But you don't unscramble an omelet the size of South Africa overnight, and the current proposals affecting the Cape coloureds and Asians are an obvious and commendable first step. Having rejected it out of hand, the liberals next concentrated on trying to make sure that the leading spokesmen of the coloured and Asian communities did likewise, so it would never get off the ground. But now comes word that the Labor Party, the largest political grouping of the more militant wing of coloured opinion, has voted overwhelmingly to support and participate in the prime minister's plan. Men and women of good will everywhere will welcome the news. It marks an important step forward for all the peoples of South Africa toward a peaceful multiracial future.

Keeping U.S. Jobs Safe

Is the United States to be deprived of the means of halting a huge new flood of textiles and apparel from the People's Republic of China?

This is the question at the heart of a legal dispute now before the U.S. Court of International Trade.

The issue arises from a complaint filed by a group of exporters and importers who want to end restrictions on the amount Communist China can sell in the United States. The case is the American Association of Exporters and Importers — Textile and Apparel Group vs. the United States.

The complaint is complex in character and involves the procedures followed by the United States in the implementation of the textile import programs.

At present, the U.S. has an agreement with the People's Republic which imposes a certain restraint level, albeit one that allows a vast flow of Chinese communist textile and apparel goods into the U.S. market.

The exporters and importers want the court to knock out the restraint rules and substitute a new process that would open the door much wider to goods from Red China.

The existing U.S. agreement with Peking was negotiated in mid-1980. It is very favorable to the Chinese. Evidence of this is in the fact that imports from Red China grew in 1982 by 25 percent over the 1981 level.

That surge of imports doesn't satisfy those commercial interests that want to import cheap goods from Communist China, regardless of the impact on American textile companies and their employees. Major textile mills have been forced to close this year, with large layoffs, because of the import situation. The complainants seem unconcerned about this serious development in a year of deep recession.

If the court were to make a judgment against the existing quota system, the economic impact on the textile industry and its workers would be enormous. Elimination of one provision of the existing rule system, would permit any exporting nation to speed up exports during a 30 day notice period so that, when quotas were finally established, they would be at substantially higher levels; this sort of legal controversy is both complicated and remote from the experience of most people. However, it is not an issue distant from the interests of the American people. On the outcome of this litigation hangs the economic well-being of large numbers of Americans.

Actually, economic conditions in the country dictate a roll-back of imports from the People's Republic, not an expansion or even a stabilization. With hard times continuing, the Congress and the Executive, should be very mindful of the need to safeguard employment opportunities.

They get more than 100 such escort assignments each year. It was the Park Police, for example, who escorted President Johnson's body from Andrews Air Force Base, Md., to the Capitol to lie in state. Most of the VIPs are both human and alive, but the Park Police often safeguard Very Important Persons for the Smithsonian Institution.

The Beaujolais caper was the first time the Park Police had escorted booze, however. "And it will be the last," vowed Lt. Miller grimly.

NEW AT THE ZOO

Testing out his new home is Teddy, the latest attraction at the Central Florida Zoo west of Sanford. Teddy, a baby African elephant, plays under the watchful eye of his adopted mother Maude who is on loan to the zoo from the Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers Circus. Funds to buy Teddy and build his new home were raised over a six-year period. Chief donors were the Central Florida Zoological Society through its Wild West Auction and Jamboree, WDBO days at the zoo, Seminole County elementary school children, and contributors to the several 'elephant banks' located in malls and shops throughout the area. Elephant shows are conducted at the zoo on holidays and weekends at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

What Use A Used 'Nuke'?

United Press International
The U.S. Navy is about to face a tough problem — how to dispose of its old nuclear submarines.

Capt. Edward F. Wagner, an assistant to the chief of naval operations, said the estimated active life of a nuclear submarine is 25 to 30 years.

"There is no hard fast number right now, but we expect that is somewhere in the ball park," he said.

In the 28 years since the Navy entered the nuclear age, five of its atomic submarines have been decommissioned.

The USS Nautilus, the first nuclear sub, will become a museum. The other four, the Theodore Roosevelt, the Abraham Lincoln, the Halibut and the Trident, are the first of about 100 nuclear subs the Navy will have to scrap in the next 30 years.

Although the Navy hasn't decided how or when to dispose of its old nukes, "It will receive very careful, thorough review before any decision is made," Wagner said, and added it will also be "a very controversial subject."

The Navy announced in January it was preparing an impact statement on three proposals to dispose of old nuclear submarines.

One plan had the subs — minus their reactors — being scuttled far at sea in areas supposedly devoid of life. A second proposal is to bury the radioactive parts of the subs on federal lands. The final plan is to simply keep the subs tied up at Navy shipyards.

The proposal to scuttle the sub is already drawing fire from environmental groups, who fear radioactivity in the subs would harm the ocean and possibly enter the human food chain.

"As the Navy would say, we have not yet begun to fight," said Thomas C. Jackson, vice president of the Connecticut-based Oceanic Society.

The society, which claims 70,000 members, has prepared a 19-page briefing about the sub scuttling proposal to call attention to the draft environmental impact statement expected to be released this month.

"This is the opening salvo so that individuals who are not marine scientists will be aware of the issue," Jackson said.

"We are trying to build a national constituency for the oceans. There are a lot of people who will speak up and lobby against disposal of nuclear wastes in their backyard, but whales and fish don't vote."

The Navy is studying two proposed scuttling sites — one a site 5000 meters deep and 200 nautical miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C., and another site 4,200 meters deep and 180 nautical miles southwest of Cape Mendocine, Calif.

When the draft environmental impact report is released, Wagner said public response will be sought at public hearings and it will probably take six months to a year before a final impact statement is finished.

After that, Wagner said, the Navy will decide how to dispose of the subs.

If the Navy opts for land disposal, 900-ton reactors would be cut out of the subs and shipped to one of two federal sites at the Savannah River Plant in South Carolina or the Hanford reservation in Washington state.

Wagner said if the Navy decides on sea disposal, the Environmental Protection Agency would then select the sites.

"The environmental impact statement has nothing to do with the selection of a site," he said. "It deals with the feasibility of ocean burial and no ocean sites will come from this."

"The Navy does not have the authority to pick ocean sites. That would come from the Environmental Protection Agency if the Navy decides this is what it wants to do. And no such decision has been made," he said.

The California and North Carolina offshore under study by the Navy are only "representative sites" selected to determine the effects of sea disposal, Wagner said.

"There has been some misunderstanding that, because we are studying the areas, they therefore will be the final sites determined by the EPA. That is not necessarily true," Wagner said.

Study guidelines for the offshore disposal sites called for areas that are physically and biologically isolated, geologically stable and available for monitoring.

The Navy has been studying the Abyssal Plain site off North Carolina. A report prepared for a congressional committee said research indicates the site "may be highly favorable" except for its location outside the nation's 200-mile territorial limit.

Preliminary studies have indicated the bottom is tranquil with moderately and relatively constant water movement toward the northeast. The bottom is not fished commercially.

The United States hasn't dumped radioactive waste at sea since 1970, primarily because land burial sites have been available. But between 1946 and 1970, more than 86,000 containers of solidified low-level nuclear waste were dumped at more than 35 offshore sites.

Nine nations are known to have disposed of nuclear waste in the ocean, but only three continue ocean dumping — the United Kingdom, Belgium and Switzerland.

The Oceanic Society, saying there is insufficient scientific data about the deepwater areas, wants the radioactive parts of the submarines buried on land.

"It is a lot easier to deal with a pile of scrap metal in the ground than having to go out miles down and try to correct a mistake made many years before," Jackson said. "It also would be a lot less expensive."

Although the fuel elements will have been removed and the reactor scrubbed, normal operation of the reactor makes the sub's structural components radioactive.

The society, in its briefing report, said key questions still to be answered by the Navy include how much radioactivity will be released from the submarines once they are on the ocean floor and how, and in what quantities, this radioactivity would move through the ocean and into marine life and, perhaps eventually, into humans.

"If the Navy's submarine scuttling proposal is adopted, it will involve unprecedented amounts of radioactivity in the oceans," the society said. "The disposal of each submarine will equal half of the total radioactivity known to have been disposed of in American waters since ocean dumping began in 1946."

Jackson also questions whether the Navy can find a biologically dead area in which to sink the subs.

"People start saying things are dead, but you look at it a little more and you find there are various forms of marine life," he said. "Our position is that not enough is known about these areas for a sensible policy making decision."

"Until the information is known, we will continue to oppose the proposal."

The society said Navy research that may answer some of the questions has thus far not been released and it is not known if it will be included in the draft environmental impact statement.

The society maintains infrequent and inaccurate sampling underestimates the importance of larger animals such as shellfish and fish in the deep water areas.

"Because some of these species tend to accumulate large amounts of radioactivity in edible parts, they could form a direct link from the food chain to humans in the future," the society said in its report.

Whether the submarines are sunk at sea, if the Navy decides to go with that option, is expected eventually to be decided in court.

Reagan Seeks Pay Freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The axe President Reagan is swinging at the 1984 fiscal budget to avoid a possible deficit of $200 billion so far appears aimed at federal workers, military personnel and a variety of defense programs, excluding major weapons systems.

The Washington Post reported Thursday that Reagan has decided to ask Congress to deny federal civilian and military employees — a total of 4.1 million workers — any fiscal 1984 pay raise. If approved by Congress, it would be the first time since 1964 that federal workers did not receive a yearly pay increase of some amount.

"There will be governmentwide policy with respect to government employees, including the military, and when that is formally announced it will result in additional reductions," Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said in a broadcast appearance Wednesday.

The newspaper said administration officials hoped up to $8 billion could be saved by a freeze on raises.

Weinberger announced Tuesday $8 billion, 3.2 percent, would be cut from a proposed $247 billion defense budget.

Half of the cut appeared to be more cosmetic than substantive as it would be obtained through lower fuel costs and lower inflation. The other half would be made through deferring some military construction such as housing and reducing training costs.

Although the White House has been under pressure from both sides of the aisle in Congress to reduce defense spending, there was little cheering after the reductions were announced.

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., said the cutsback proposed would damage the readiness of U.S. conventional forces and insisted cuts should come from such "big-ticket items" as the B-1 bomber, the MX missile and two new nuclear aircraft carriers.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, the conservative chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, is opposed to any reductions in the defense budget requested by Weinberger and criticized what he called "a squalid political approach to the issue."

Reagan also will propose that federal employees work an extra 10 years to age 65 get full retirement benefits and raise their matching contributions to the civil service retirement fund, the Post said.

Citing unidentified sources, the Post said employees with 30 years service still would be able to retire at 55 but their pensions would be reduced by 5 percent for each year they were under age 65. Pension contributions would rise from the present 7 percent of gross salary to 9 percent next year and 11 percent in 1985.

Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Md., a member of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee whose district includes many federal workers in the Washington suburbs, said he has heard some of the proposals and considers them "an outrage."

Teenage Burglars Captured After Taking Hostages

APOPKA (UPI) — Two teenage burglars, surprised when an Orange County family returned home, held the couple and their three children at knifepoint for more than seven hours before sheriff's deputies captured one and a police dog dragged out the other, authorities said Thursday.

The boys, ages 14 and 17, were arrested and charged with false imprisonment and burglary following Wednesday's incident, said Joyce Drazen, Orange County Sheriff's Department spokeswoman. Their names were not released.

The name of the family also was not released, but the five members included the parents and three children — two 4-year-olds and an infant.

The only injuries were suffered by one of the arrested youths, who was slightly injured after being dragged out of the house by a police dog, officials said.

Deputies said the siege apparently began about 2 p.m. when the family arrived at their northwest Orange County home, surprising the burglars. The sheriff's department was notified at 6:30 p.m. by a neighbor, who noticed something was "strange," said Ms. Drazen.

Deputies surrounded the house and arrested the 14-year-old when he walked out the back door. Inside, the family barricaded itself in a bedroom, officials said.

Police ordered the 17-year-old to surrender. When he refused, the deputies sent in a K-9 dog, which dragged the youth out of the house about 9:30 p.m., Ms. Drazen said.

More Women, Smaller Cars For FHP

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Members of the Florida Highway Patrol will be more apt to be women or minorities, will be wearing safer holsters and could be driving smaller pursuit cars under a package of reforms announced by the agency.

The changes were outlined at a Cabinet workshop Wednesday by Bob Butterworth, the new director of the Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles, and Col. Bobby Burkett, the new patrol director.

Butterworth, a former judge and Broward County sheriff, said the agency endorses "over 90 percent" of the 484 reforms recommended by a management assessment team.

The management review was ordered by Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet in the aftermath of a scandal involving alleged misuse of patrol planes, vehicles and other state equipment.

"Many of the recommendations have already been implemented and others are under way," Butterworth said.

He said the Highway Patrol enjoys a national reputation for excellence in several areas and blamed its troubles primarily on a failure to keep up with the demands of the state's and its own growth.

"Sometimes, in rapid growth times, we do not keep pace," he said.

Butterworth and Burkett said they plan:

- Continued testing of Ford Mustangs as a possible smaller, cheaper and more fuel-efficient substitute for standard pursuit vehicles on expressways and toll roads;
- An intensive effort to recruit women and minority

Brooks: Awful Hard Or Else Awful Slow

NEW YORK (UPI) — Next time some of the guys in the bar start hitting you with a lot of baseball trivia, don't just sit there — fight back.

Ask some questions yourself — like who hit into more triple plays than any other ballplayer in big league history, or which player has had his uniform retired more times than anyone else, or what player, regarded the greatest defensive player of his generation at his position, couldn't go to his right?

The answer to all three of those questions is one and the same.

It's none other than forever smiling, perpetually happy Brooks Robinson, the Greatest Glove in America who was elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame Wednesday the very first time he was eligible, along with Juan Marichal. The San Francisco Giants' former fastballer was richly deserving of the honor long before this but nevertheless was utterly delighted over having made it on his third go round.

Nobody symbolizes the Baltimore Orioles as much as the popular, outgoing Robinson. It isn't only that the 45-year-old, one-time third baseman actually spent more than half his life with them, still does some of their games on TV and makes his home close to Baltimore in Towson, Md., as it is that he and the city seem to go together as naturally as Baltimore and Johnny Unitas do.

Robinson, or "Brooksie," as practically everybody calls him, put in his entire 23-year career with the Orioles, participating in four World Series with them and picking up 16 Gold Gloves along the way. They can tell by looking in the book that although he had a lifetime batting average of only .267, he hit the ball hard enough to total 268 home runs. Despite his batting average, Robinson never was an easy out. He referred to that laughingly Wednesday, when Bowie Kuhn introduced him and Marichal as the newest members to be enshrined in Cooperstown July 31. "I hold the record for hitting into double plays," he said with a smile. "Well, actually I'm second to Hank Aaron. You can look at that two ways. You can say 'he hits the ball awful hard, or he's slow.' You can take your pick."

Aaron hit into 328 double plays and Robinson into 297.

Among those who were on hand for Wednesday's announcement were two men who worked with Robinson at Baltimore, Frank Cashen, now top man with the Mets, and Bob Brown, the Orioles' incredibly efficient PR director. Both of them glowed listening to Robinson answer questions about his career.

"Everybody says we retired his uniform five times," Brown said. "The players still kid him about it to this day. But actually we did it only twice, well, maybe three. We might have to do it again."

Cashen, who ran the Orioles' front office from 1966 to 1973, recalled the first World Series Robinson played in against the Dodgers in 1969.

"He batted fourth behind Frank Robinson, who hit third," Cashen remembered. "In the first inning, Frank hit a homer off Don Drysdale, then Brooks came up and hit one longer and further than Frank did. Right there was when I knew we had a chance."

The Orioles beat the Dodgers four straight in that Series.

Robinson and Marichal both needed 281 votes or 75 percent of the votes cast by the Baseball Writers Association of America to be elected. Robinson made it with ease, drawing 344 votes or what amounted to 91.9 percent, while Marichal collected 313 or 83.6 percent. Harmon Killebrew, the Twins' former home run slugger, fell a bit short with 266 votes or 71.9 percent and trailing him were Luis Aparicio, with 252 votes; Hoyt Wilhelm, 243; Drysdale, 243; and Gil Hodges, with 237, his last year on the ballot.

"Nobody is happier than I am," declared the beaming 44-year-old Marichal, who won 243 games in his career, lost 142 and is called "the best pitcher I ever saw" by former Cardinal Bob Gibson, elected to the Hall of Fame last year.

Marichal said he had tears in his eyes when he was informed of his election Tuesday midnight by Jack Lang, secretary-treasurer of the Baseball Writers. He is the first Dominican-born player ever to make it to Cooperstown and the first Latin American ever to be named in a general election. The late Roberto Clement, a native of Puerto Rico, went into the shrine as a result of a special election in 1973.

Lady Rams Trim Pats On Averill Free Tosses

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald Sports Writer

If you saw Lake Mary play Apopka Monday night you saw Kim Averill in one of her worst games as a Lady Ram. Averill was a frustrating 0 of 13 from the floor and the Rams dropped a 50-47 decision.

However, as most good athletes do, Averill came back from the adversity and was instrumental in leading Lake Mary to a 47-44 victory over the visiting Lady Patriots of Lake Brantley Thursday night. The 5-6 sophomore guard hit five of six free throws down the stretch, two with five seconds remaining in the game, as Lake Mary improved its record to 9-4.

Averill wound up with 11 points for the night while teammate Laura Glass led the Rams with 12 points and 10 rebounds. Michelle Swartz, who has been playing impressively the last three games, added 10 points, hitting five of seven shots and Peggy Glass pulled down eight rebounds.

"It was a sweet win for us coming off two straight losses," Lake Mary coach Bill Moore said. "It was the biggest game of the year for both teams. Lake Brantley proved they were tough when they beat Seminole and I'm proud of our kids for their effort tonight."

Lake Brantley, 5-10, was led by Rhonda Vazquez who tossed in 14 points and pulled down seven boards before fouling out in the fourth quarter. Linda Trimble added 12 points and eight rebounds while Kara Pritchett grabbed six boards.

After a 10-10 first quarter tie, Lake Mary came out and reeled off six straight points to begin the second quarter and take a 16-10 lead. The momentum then shifted in Brantley's direction as the Lady Patriots strung together eight unanswered points to take a 18-16 half-time lead.

Lake Mary got the lead back early in the third quarter by scoring three straight baskets. Averill had a hand in all three hoops, hitting a jumper, and handing out assists to Lisa Gregory and Swartz.

The scrappy Patriots stayed within striking distance though and trailed by only six, 33-27, going into the fourth quarter despite hitting just 2 of 11 shots in the third.

Lake Mary held its six-point lead until Vazquez caught fire with about four minutes remaining. Vazquez hit six straight points, the last coming at 2:52, to cut the Rams' lead to 40-38.

Eleven seconds later, however, Vazquez was whistled for her fifth foul and Lake Brantley lost its best outside shooter.

With 1:11 left, and Lake Mary leading 42-39, Averill stepped to the line and calmly hit the front end of a one-and-one. Averill missed the second shot and Brantley climbed back to within three points, 43-40, as Michelle Brown hit one of two free throws with 54 seconds remaining.

With 41 seconds left, the Patriots sent Averill to the line again. This time, she hit both free throws to give the Rams a 45-40 cushion.

Two free throws by Pritchett cut Lake Mary's lead to 45-42 and, with 12 seconds remaining Brown came up with a steal and raced down court. Brown missed a layup but Kim Longhouser grabbed and hit the follow up shot to bring Brantley to within a point, 45-44, with eight seconds remaining.

With five seconds left, Averill was fouled once again stepped to the charity stripe for a one-and-one situation. When Averill let the first shot fly, there was no doubt, it hit nothing but net and she came back to swish the second shot and the Lake Mary faithful went wild.

"I was real happy with the defensive pressure we put on in the second half," Moore said. "That is really the thing that won it for us."

The Lady Rams host 3A foe St. Cloud Saturday night while the junior varsity battles Lake Brantley tonight at 6:15.

Lake Mary Rips Patriots

Lake Mary played its second straight inspired basketball game and fast-broke to a 73-55 victory over Lake Brantley Thursday night at Lake Mary.

Four players scored in double figures for the Rams with Fred Miller's 18 points leading the way. Billy Dunn had one of his best games with 14 points and six rebounds. Darryl Merthle added 12 points and eight rebounds while Donald Grayson chipped in 10 points and seven rebounds and Jeff Reynolds netted eight points and pulled down seven boards.

"The last two games have been good for us," Lake Mary coach Willie Richardson said after his team's record improved to 9-3. "We're looking better both offensively and defensively and we're improving with every game."

The Rams were doing everything right in the early going, everything, that is, but put the ball through the hoop. The Rams made only 3 of their first 10 shots. On the other hand, Lake Brantley did not even put a shot in the first four minutes thanks to five turnovers.

A jumper by Merthle with two seconds remaining gave the Rams a 13-8 lead after the first quarter. Lake Mary went up by as much as 14 points in the second quarter and managed to hold on to a 33-26 halftime lead.

The Rams made few mistakes in the second half, but Lake Brantley pulled to within six points, 49-43 with 5:04 remaining on a layup by Zullo.

Two straight baskets by Dunn enabled Lake Mary to regain a 10-point lead, 55-45, with 4:09 left to play. Lake Brantley pulled to within eight once more, but it was the closest the Patriots could get. Lake Mary outscored Brantley, 14-5, in the last three minutes of the game.

Seminoles Sink Apopka; Lady Hawks Win

Seminole's Mona Benton and Maxine Campbell peppered Apopka with jump shots in the first quarter Thursday night as the Lady Seminole derailed the Blue Darters, 67-53, in Five Star Conference basketball at Apopka.

The Tribe, 9-5 overall and 6-3 in the Five Star, hosts powerful Evans on Saturday. Evans whipped Seminole three weeks ago for the Lady Hawk Invitational title.

Benton, who led all scorers with 27 points, and Campbell who chipped in 16, paced the 'Noles to a 19-12 first-quarter edge.

"We pressed a little," said Tribe coach Ron Merthle. "But mostly it was just Benton and Campbell hitting from outside." Benton had nine points in the quarter and Campbell eight.

In period two, Seminole blew the game open with a 20-14 edge for a 39-26 halftime lead. Junior Diedre Hillery dominated the backboards during the stretch. The 6-1 center pulled down 20 rebounds for the night, 13 off the defensive boards.

Seminole coasted in the second half with Merthle playing his second team most of the time. Arlene Jones, a junior guard, finished with 12 points to round out the double-figure scoring. Jones also handed out three assists and made three steals. M. Campbell had four steals while Patricia Campbell had six boards.

The Lake Howell juggernaut is tough to stop. Especially in the fourth quarter.

Lake Howell's Lady Hawks exploded again in the fourth quarter to break open a tight game and give Howell its 14th win in 15 starts, a 69-59 victory over Mainland Thursday night at Daytona Beach in Five Star Conference basketball.

"We missed an awful lot of shots," said Hawk coach Dennis Coedry about his eighth-ranked team. "But we got some quickies in the fourth quarter which made the difference."

Lake Howell's Cindy Blocker broke a 47-47 tie with 7:20 to play with a steal and layup as Howell never trailed again. Junior Christy Scott followed with a free throw and Chiquita Miller turned a theft into a layup for a 52-49 lead.

The advantage grew to 56-52 minutes later when Miller added two more three throws and Tammy Johnson turned yet another steal into two points with 3:44 remaining.

The Hawks broke it open for good when Blocker scored six straight points for a 62-52 edge with just 2:18 remaining. The 5-9 senior stole the ball and scored, hit two free throws and took a nice pass from Miller for another bucket.

Miller finished with 21 points and 20 rebounds to lead all scorers. Scott had another good outing with 16 points and 21 rebounds while Blocker added 14 markers and 10 boards.

Miller handed out four assists and Tammy Johnson three. Blocker finished the night with five steals while Mary Johnson had four.

Howell, 7-0 in the conference, hosts Spruce Creek Monday. Mainland is 8-5 overall.

Lake Brantley JV Wins Title

Lake Brantley's Junior Varsity recorded two firsts and two seconds in the final four weight classes to capture the 4th Annual Seminole County Junior Varsity Wrestling Tournament, 163.5-162.5, over Lyman at Seminole High School Thursday night.

For Lake Brantley, it marks the second time in two years it has nipped the Greyhounds for the championship. Lyman won the tournament the prior two years.

"It was a good, tight match. It went back and forth most of the way," said Lyman coach Skip Pletzer. "They had strong upper weights and we didn't have the upper weights. That made the difference."

Oviedo, which won the first four weight classes, finished third with 130 points. Lake Howell (80), Lake Mary (83) and Seminole (88.5) were next in line. For coach John Horn's Lions, it was the best finish ever in the tourney.

In the final four weight classes, Lake Brantley's Ruben Perez (170) dethroned Seminole's Jimmy Davis for the title while the Patriots' Chris Anderson flattened Oviedo's Chris Campbell for the top spot at 225 pounds.

Gary Nelson (180) was pinned by Robert Garza of Lyman at 180 and Curt Mull was stuck by Lake Mary's "Fast Frank" Landrio at unlimited for the Patriot second place.

with consolation champions Tom Wilks (223) and Tim Zimmers (UNL). "Williams wrestled real well," said Seminole assistant coach Stacy Sherman.

Davis, meanwhile, whipped Matt Cirocco in the semifinals before losing to Perez in the finals, 9-6. Davis had beaten Perez earlier this year in a dual match.

Rob Harmon (101), Greg Lockins (106), Dusty Harmon (115) and Jim Prior (123) all took titles for Oviedo. David Collyer (129) and Chris Shanks (141) were the big winners for Lake Howell while Chris Waxler (130), Smith (130) and Garza (180) were title holders for Lyman. Landrio (UNL) was the only Ram winner.

8 p.m. Apopka at Seminole
The Tribe looks to improve its Five Star Conference record (5-11-10-7 overall) against the Blue Darters of Apopka. Seminole is riding a two game winning streak, both over Five Star foes, its last loss, and only conference defeat, was to DeLand last Tuesday.

For Seminole, Vernon Law, Calvin "Kiki" Bryant, William Wynn, Willie Mitchell and either Torie Hendricks or Bruce Franklin compose the starting lineup with bench strength coming from Stephen Grey and James Rouse.

8 p.m. Lyman at Spruce Creek
The Greyhounds, 3-3 in the Five Star and 4-5 overall, face a tough opponent in Spruce Creek's Hawks.

Lyman lost a near-breaker to DeLand Tuesday night and needs a victory tonight to stay in the running for the conference title. The Greyhounds are led by high-scoring Alexis Cleveland and floor-tooled Rod Hillman at the guards. James and Greg Pilet are the forwards and Tom Feltner is the center.

Willie Cooks averages over 20 points per game for the Hawks.

7:30 p.m. Black Hawk Junior College (Missouri)

The Lady Raiders are coming off a strong performance against Davison II power North Carolina Asheville. UNCA edged SCC, 49-45, but not before the Raiders put up a heck of a fight.

Seminole's Cathy Jones has been on a torrid shooting streak lately, she hit 23 points against Asheville. Jones is joined in the backcourt by smooth point guard Mindy Patrick who has averaged in double figures in the second half of the season. At the forwards, SCC has two line shooters in KATrina Anderson and Valeria Roessler and both can see the line under the boards. Sue Winterheller is the center and bench strength comes from Evelyn Smith and Missy McLeland.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Panthers 'Stall' Vanguard, Roll To 48th Straight, 48-25

Ocala Vanguard's freshmen tried to take a page out of the varsity's book Thursday night against the Crooms Panthers, but it ended up in the waste basket as the Knights stalling tactics failed to faze the Panthers who went on to a 48-25 rout of Vanguard at Seminole Community College.

The Panthers now stand 13-0 this season and have won 48 straight over the past three years.

"They (Vanguard) came out and held the ball near halfcourt," Crooms coach John McNamara said. "We stayed in the zone, then came out man-to-man but they still kept stalling."

Vanguard's slow motion offense wasn't much for the fans as the first half ended with Crooms leading, 16-9.

The Panthers came out in the second half with a full-court, man-to-man press that forced numerous Vanguard turnovers. Crooms outscored the Knights, 15-5 in the third quarter and took a 31-14 lead into the fourth.

"The full court press made a lot of difference," McNamara said. "We were able to get our fast break going and it looked good in the fourth quarter."

Alvin Jones scored all 12 of his points in the second half and added a game-high 11 rebounds. Daryl Williams tossed in 11 points as did Mike Wright and Melvin Brinson chipped in nine points.

Crooms travels to Ocala Monday night, then plays Lake Brantley at SCC Wednesday night and hosts Lyman Friday night at Seminole High.

Sonics Lose 7th Straight

United Press International

Coch Lenny Wilkens feels his Seattle SuperSonics have finally begun to walk after doing a lot of crawling lately.

So, he wasn't too upset even when they blew a fourth-quarter lead for a 102-90 loss — their seventh straight — to the Suns in Phoenix, Ariz. Thursday night.

"We took our first step tonight," Wilkens said. "We just have to keep at it."

Bennett Fired By Falcons

SUWANEE, Ga. (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons today announced the firing of Coach Leeman Bennett, the most successful coach in the franchise's 17-year history.

Falcons owner Rankin Smith Sr. said he made the move even though Bennett had brought the team to a respected and competitive position in the National Football League.

5 Star Mat Crown Up For Grabs

DAYTONA BEACH — Coach Kevin Carpenter's Lake Brantley Patriots attempt to defend their Five Star Conference Wrestling Championship here Saturday against three worthy opponents.

The Patriots, who won the conference but lost to the Lyman Greyhounds in the district last year, will be challenged by Lyman, Lake Howell and host Mainland in the annual conference matchup.

"The conference should be more evenly matched this year," said Seminole coach Scott Sherman. "Nobody should run away with it like the past few years." In the previous three years, Brantley (1982), Lyman (1981) and Lake Howell (1980) have captured the tournament.

Seminole County has had a headlock on the tournament the past three years, but Mainland — and darkhorse Seabreeze — will try to do something about that Saturday.

The preliminary round begins at 9 a.m. The semifinals will be at 12 noon with the wrestlebacks at 2 p.m. The consolation finals are at 6 p.m. with the championship finals at 8 p.m.

Prep Wrestling

"It should come down to the third and fourth places," said Lyman coach Skip Pletzer. "One guy getting upset, though, could cost you 10 points."

Pletzer has one of the premier grapplers in the tournament in senior Dirk Smith. The strong 189-pounder is unbeaten in 12 matches this year and has the Lyman Christmas Tournament championship belt among his accomplishments.

Another tough Greyhound is senior Mike Hill who was recently named to the 4A All State Football First Team. Hill wrestles at 223 pounds.

Pat Bell (108), Juwan Lee (115), Joey Lockwood (122), Jay Hunziker (129), Robert "Tottle" Quisenberry (158) and Rhett Harwell (170) make the Greyhounds a solid choice for winning it.

The return from an ankle injury of Lake Howell's Dan Rae should help the Silver Hawks' chances. Rae and Hill should meet in the finals at 223 pounds in a blockbuster finale. Rae is defending champion.

Paul Knoblauch, second a year ago at 158 pounds, and unlimited Jeff Bryant could give the three first places with Dan Hutchinson, (122) second in the Lyman Christmas Tournament, another top choice. He and Lockwood could meet in the finals.

Lake Brantley boasts two veterans — Jamie Offenberger (115) and Bill Brucato (148) — who should win or place second. Scott Roth (108) is another top Patriot.

Offenberger, though, faces one of the toughest weight classes at 115. "I hope Ronnie Watson can upset him," said Sherman about his talented senior. "It just depends on how he feels. Mainland's James Free is another tough competitor along with Lyman's Lee.

Along with Watson, Sanford's Vince Clark, who was second in the conference last year but won the district, is a solid choice for a title. Sherman feels Tony Brown (129) will surprise a lot of people.

"Tony's 6-1 and his only loss was a close one to Oviedo's Steve Berg who is real good," said Sherman.

Tony Nathan, Miami Dolphin running back, will be looking for big yardage when the Dolphins take on the San Diego Chargers Saturday for a berth in the final four of the NFL playoffs. The Chargers nipped Miami, 41-38 in overtime, last year in a classic battle.

Shula Credits Bitterness For Turnabout

MIAMI (UPI) — In a strange sort of way, Coach Don Shula gives the San Diego Chargers much of the credit for the success his Miami Dolphins have achieved so far this season.

"I think the bitterness of the loss to San Diego last year has a lot to do with our drive for attainment this year," Shula said of the Dolphins' dramatic 41-38 playoff loss to San Diego last January.

"The off-season conditioning, the good pre-season and the work I'm told the players did on their own during the strike all has to reflect back on the San Diego game.

"It was a tough one to lose. If we could have pulled it off, it would have been the biggest come-from-behind game ever," Shula said.

The two teams go at it again in another playoff game Sunday at the Orange Bowl with a berth in the AFC championship game at stake. The two squads had been expected to meet in a Monday night game in November, but that was wiped out by the strike.

"This is a classic rematch. It didn't happen during the season like it was supposed to, but it's happening now," Shula said.

San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts thinks the dramatic encounter a year ago, called the best ever, benighted the Chargers too.

"I definitely think it helped us. It showed we could come back from adversity and recapture the lead," Fouts said. "And then, of course, we had the disappointment the following week (when the Chargers were knocked out of the playoffs by Cincinnati)."

Charger tight end Kellen Winslow remembers the 1982 Miami game only too well, especially the overtime period.

"The few plays I did play in the overtime, it felt like I was playing in slow motion," said Winslow Thursday by telephone from San Diego. "I watched it the next day on films and during the game it looked like I was in the flow of the game with everybody else. But in the films in the overtime, I'm practically walking when I'm going in motion and when I'm running patterns downward."

Going Fishin'?

Osteen Bridge Fish Camp

Despite the cold weather and wind, Specks continue to bite near the bridge and in the deep water, according to Dell Abernethy, Osteen Bridge Fish Camp owner.

DeLand's James Darby pulled in 22 Specks at the center of the bridge while Kelvin Henderson and his partner hauled in 75 Specks in the old river.

Jake Cogburn and his partner did even better in the old river bed, bringing in 100 Specks, their limit. Keith and Waiva Anonymous got 11 Sunshine Bass and nine Specks in front of the Monroe Harbor Marina.

Marinaiste

Sue and Bill Hill report the Shad continue to run. Despite the wind, one man caught five on Thursday.

Black Hammock Fish Camp

Unlike Osteen Bridge, the Specks have moved to the beds at Black Hammock. The shallow water on the east shore of Lake Jessup is the best place to catch them.

"Everybody's been getting their limit," said Stan Gibbs, owner of the Black Hammock.

For Saturday January 15, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 January 15, 1983
 This coming year there will be a marked improvement in overall conditions which affect your life. You could be lucky now in areas which were previously unfruitful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Conditions should work out to your benefit today, provided you take a hand in your destiny. Be determined regarding end results. Order now: The NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic combinations, compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $1 for your Capricorn Astro-Graph predictions for 1983. Be sure to specify birth date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 Your leadership qualities will be very effective today. You'll know how to get others to do your bidding, yet make them feel it was their idea.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 One of the reasons you have so many friends is because they know that they can count on you to back them up when needed, as you'll do today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Establish worthy objectives for yourself today. You have the ability to achieve whatever you set your mind to. The secret is to want to enough.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Your gracious ways win approval today, especially from members of the opposite gender. More compliments than usual are likely.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Something profitable could develop for you today through one of your social contacts. If a pal starts talking business, listen attentively.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 You're likely to do better through partnerships or joint ventures today than you will be attempting things on your own. Seek strong cohorts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 Rely more upon yourself and less upon your companions today. It's likely that, if something essential has to be done, it will be up to you to do it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Try to balance your efforts and activities today so that you can devote some time to productive endeavors and yet have time left over for the fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 If you have any serious matters to take care of now, you are likely to do better handling them later in the day when you'll be thinking more clearly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 You should be rather fortunate materially today, but your opportunities could be short-lived. Strike while the iron is hot.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 Do not be overly concerned regarding the outcome of events today, especially those of a financial nature. Trends tend to favor you.

Soap Type Key To Controlling Odor

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Our daughter has a bad perspiration odor. Washing does not get the odor out of her clothes. I have tried everything I know of to get this underarm odor out but to no avail. She keeps herself clean, bathes daily, wears clean clothes daily and uses deodorants. Could something be lacking in her diet? None of the rest of the family has the offensive odor. We would appreciate any advice you can offer.

DEAR READER — Of course cleanliness is important in preventing body odors but most people do not know that ordinary soap and water often will not work, even if you bathe every hour. Why? Because the odor is usually caused by bacterial action on normal sweat. These bacteria are inside the layers of the skin. Washing the surface of the skin will not remove them. That is why a cleansing soap that penetrates the outer layers of the skin is sometimes necessary.

A preparation that contains hexachlorophene is the best available, such as pHisoHex. It is a prescription item because it was found years ago to cause damage to babies. Before that it was routinely used in hospital nurseries to prevent staphylococcal epidemics.

Your daughter's doctor can give her a prescription. The hexachlorophene will penetrate the skin and stay there. In a few days it will begin to kill off the resident bacteria and her odor problem will begin to disappear, provided that really is the cause — and it probably is in view of its location. I don't think it has a thing to do with her diet.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 18-2, Sweating, Antiperspirants and Body Odor, to give you more details about this.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been on one grain of thyroid for about 10 years. In that time I have gained 15 pounds. I've tried dieting but can't lose any weight. It came on and stayed on after I started on the thyroid program. Could the thyroid keep me from losing weight? Should I stop taking it to see? I don't know why the doctor put me on them. Exactly what does the pill do for me?

DEAR READER — If you have a normal thyroid, taking a small dose of thyroid will not do a thing for you. Your thyroid gland just decreases the amount of thyroid hormone it produces. The end result of the thyroid you take plus the amount produced by the gland is about the same as the gland would have produced if you have left the thyroid pills alone.

Your doctor must have thought you had low thyroid function. If so, stopping your thyroid pills will only make matters worse. If you really do have low thyroid function, you might need more thyroid rather than none. But I must add that low thyroid function is seldom a cause for weight gain. Usually it is caused by too many calories. Talk to your doctor and see if he wants you to take more thyroid or not.

WIN AT BRIDGE

South were using an extraordinary new variation of the Jacoby transfer bid.

South's 20-point two no-trump was normal in their system. He had two 10s in addition to his 20 points.

North's three-appeal response was a slam try in an unspecified minor suit and ordered South to rebid three no-trump. So far reasonably simple.

North's second bid of four diamonds was the transfer. It said, "My suit is clubs. If you really like clubs bid five clubs — otherwise just bid four no-trump."

Not only did South like clubs, he really loved them. He bid a club slam immediately.

With South as declarer the slam came in easily. He won the diamond lead and lost the club finesse. Then he took the rest of the tricks since he was able to discard one of dummy's hearts on his fourth diamond.

Why do East and West deserve the hard luck prize? The field was either in six no-trump by South or six clubs by North. A heart lead beat North at six clubs. Any lead but a heart beat South at six no-trump because he has to lose two finessses out of two.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby
 If a hard luck prize were to be given at the Biarritz World Championships, it would have to go to the East-West pair in today's hand.
 It seems that North and

Gift Poinsettias Can Enhance Landscape

Last year's Christmas poinsettia can give added enjoyment in the landscape if cared for properly now.

Many of the new varieties of poinsettias will retain their leaves and decorative bracts far into the new year. Eventually the lower leaves will begin to drop and the bracts will lose their brilliant color. At this point the plant should be placed in a cool dry location. Give the plant only enough water to keep the soil from becoming entirely dry so that the stem won't wither.

After the danger of frost has passed, the poinsettia can be planted outdoors in the warmer parts of central and southern Florida. The poinsettia is very sensitive to cold and many years the plants are frozen before they have a chance to bloom.

Choose a sunny, well-drained location protected from north winds and frost for poinsettias. Also select an area where plants will not receive any light at night. Poinsettias must have almost total darkness before flower buds are formed. Plants are prevented from flowering when they are exposed to electric lights from the streets or in the home grounds. Even a brief exposure to electric lights will prevent poinsettias flowering or markedly delay flowering.

In order to keep plants bushy and compact—thus yielding more flowers—pinch the top one-half inch from new shoots when they reach the length of four to five inches. The branches that are pinched will develop two or more shoots.

When these shoots grow to four or five inches, pinch them. Repeat the pinching process when there are enough shoots to do so. However, do not pinch poinsettias after the first week of September. To do so will delay or prevent flowering at Christmas time.

After the plants have been in the ground about a month, apply one or two tablespoons of a complete garden fertilizer such as 6-6-6 or 8-8-8. Usually, three applications per year are recommended—the first when growth starts in the spring, the second in June and the last in late fall after the bracts have set. This last application promotes large bracts with good color and aids in promoting root growth during the winter months. Water well each week during dry weather.

All Extension Programs are open to anyone regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

Needlework Revives Lost Judaic Art

The first Thursday of each month at 10 a.m. will be the new meeting time for the Pomegranate Guild of Judaic Needlework in the meeting room of Sears, Altamonte Mall.

"Every culture developed its own needlework and our own Jewish heritage is filled with our responses to instructions in the Bible which are continued through today, Ozzie Gaines says.

Chapter 28 in Exodus has details for preparations of garments for the High Priest, Aaron. God gave instructions to Moses on how the Sanctuary was to be built. We were told what colors to use and what fabrics and yarns to use. We even know that Joseph's coat had many colors. References in color and design abound throughout the Bible, Mrs. Gaines adds.

"Weavers, dyers, embroiderers — anyone doing handwork — all gave us the expression, 'the work of my hands.'" We had a great loss during the Holocaust with not only artisans being murdered, but works, ancient and modern were destroyed or lost," Mrs. Gaines says.

Today, the Pomegranate Guild, a national organization, is trying to revive art forms that have been forgotten or neglected. Men and women are actively trying to translate their Jewish Heritage into the needle arts, according to Mrs. Gaines.

Classes where beginners can learn various stitches, techniques or types of needlework are taught in the hope that these skills will be translated into intelligent and creative works expressive of feelings, secular and religious, that are appropriate to time and place.

Everyone is welcome to the meeting in Sears Altamonte Store on the upper level, on Thursday, Feb. 3, at 10 a.m. For further information call: Ozzie Gaines, 862-2872.

Man Not Sick, But Slick With Fiancee Kept Hidden

DEAR ABBY: My fiance is divorced and has two children who live with his "ex." We've been engaged for a year and have been living together for over six months. In the last year I've seen his children only once. His ex-wife does not want them near me, so I am not allowed to see them. My fiance does nothing to correct this. He doesn't realize how hard it is for me to handle being treated like I'm invisible.

I don't let me answer the phone, and he won't let me put my name on the mailbox. When I complain about the situation, he either doesn't want to discuss it or he changes the subject.

I don't think his ex-wife and children know that I still exist. I would like them to know that I am still a part of his life, love him very much and do everything in my power to make him happy.

Why does he keep me hidden? Is he sick, or am I just a fool?

FOOL IN THE CLOSET

DEAR FOOL: He is not sick, he's slick. He has all the benefits of marriage and none of the responsibilities. You're a housekeeper, bed partner and obedient servant who lives in the closet because your "fiancee" wants it that way. Demand to be acknowledged, recognized and treated like a fiancee. If he refuses and you continue to live in the closet, you are indeed a fool.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my son, Tony, got a speeding ticket while giving me a ride to a bingo game. He is angry about the ticket because he didn't want to do this in the first place. He says that's the reason he was speeding and, therefore, the reason he got the ticket. He insists that I go to court and say that he wasn't really speeding.

Abby, I don't want to be a liar, but with neither of us working, we just don't have the money to pay for a ticket. Also, I'm afraid of losing my son's friendship if I don't.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Don't lie for your son. What you lose in "friendship," you will gain in respect.

You need to get your priorities in order, Mother. Since you are unemployed, bingo is an extravagance you can ill afford. Think about it.

DEAR ABBY: Thirteen years ago, I underwent psychotherapy regularly for two years. Today I would like to have access to (and review) my files, but I do not wish to return to the same psychotherapist. Whose files are they? Mine or his?

What is the proper way to handle this?

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: Although you are entitled to know what is in your records, your psychotherapist has the right to withhold them from you if he believes that reading them might injure you psychologically.

However, he is ethically obligated to send your records (or a detailed summary of what they contain) to another qualified psychotherapist of your choice if you request it in writing.

A Whale Of A Find

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) — University of Illinois officials are not sure what their unique copy of "Moby Dick" is worth, but they know it is a rare edition.

The first American edition, in two volumes, of Herman Melville's novel — with a title page displaying the book's English title, "The Whale" — was found in 1977. But it wasn't until late last year the professor of English who discovered it learned of the book's authenticity.

Professor George Hendrick discovered the book in the trunk of a home two blocks from his office. This fall, a noted Melville scholar, G. Thomas Tanselle, published results of an exhaustive study in the "Book Collector," confirming the discovery is a unique copy of the novel.

A clipping in one of the volumes indicated it had come from the library of the author. A signature of Melville's brother also appeared in the book, Hendrick said.

The current value of the book is unknown, but in 1977 a different copy, signed by Melville before he gave it to one of his old shipmates, sold at auction for $53,000.

Michelle's 4-Legged Dream Came True

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Michelle Feldman had always wanted a horse of her own, but owning an Arabian yearling was beyond her wildest dreams.

Michelle's dream came true recently when she won an Arabian yearling in a contest for Seminole County 4-H horse club members. The filly was donated by Carolyn and Eli Pietrack, owners of an Orange County Arabian horse ranch, because she was not expected to grow to the size they wanted.

They were familiar with the 4-H program and what it offers young people, so they decided they wanted to contribute to a 4-Her's fun, learning, and sense of responsibility.

"There are many 4-Hers in Seminole County who are very interested in horses, but can't afford them," according to Barbara A. Hughes, Extension 4-H coordinator. "In fact, this year we have implemented a "Horseless" project book so that those that want to know more about horses, but don't have a horse can still be involved in a 4-H horse club."

Letters went out to all 4-Hers in the county currently enrolled in a horse club informing them of the contest. Those entering had to fill out a questionnaire including why they should win the horse and why they are in 4-H. The parents also had to agree to be responsible for their youngster's looking after the horse and working on the "Horseless" project book.

A panel of three judges familiar with both horses and 4-H but who were not currently involved with 4-H youth was named to pick the winning entry. Judges included Ginger Brumley, a teacher at Hopper Elementary School and a former 4-Her; Mike Beha, Evening Herald staff writer and former national 4-H contestant; and Mrs. Pietrack.

In her entry she wrote, "I go to a private school for a learning disability. This means that I don't have many friends in my neighborhood.

"But instead of being lonely I take lessons at a nearby stable. However, the only horse they will let me ride is a lazy pony. If I had my own horse, I will give it a good home and make sure it is well taken care of. My father used to drive and train harness horses. I will ask him to help me take care of my horse if I win.

"I will fall in love with the horse as I brush and groom it. I would have to promise to keep up with my school work even though my heart will be at the stable. You asked the question, why I should win this horse over other 4-Hers. My answer is that most people say I have a good way with animals and no one could love this horse more than I."

A member of the Seminole Centaurs Horse Club, Michelle joined the 4-H two years ago so that she would have a chance to ride more often. "I also like being with other girls who like horses," she wrote.

The entrants were originally told the winner would be notified by Oct. 22, but the judges were late in making their decision. "When I wasn't notified, I thought I hadn't won and I was caryng the whole day," Michelle recalled.

When she was presented the horse and told she had won, Michelle said, "I was shocked, I couldn't believe it." Her out-of-town relatives came here just to see the expression on her face when she got the news.

She dubbed the roan filly, which became a two-year-old on New Year's Day, "Sweet Pea" and thinks her coat will eventually be gray.

"We're going to break her as soon as we can," said Michelle, who is teaching Sweet Pea to lead with a halter.

Michelle, the 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Feldman of 248 Coble Drive, Longwood (Wekiva), is a student at Pace School, Forest City.

Powl sockol

Batman is back. In recent weeks, the former caped crusader (also known as actor Adam West) has seen a flurry of television activity. His resurrection has been a long time coming. Page 2.

Beauty and brains

Old-time movie mogul Cecil B. DeMille is no doubt twirling wildly in his grave. More and more of today's actresses are not only talented and beautiful, they have a head for business, too. Page 5.

Dreams come true

It's bound to be a daytime TV winner. Take a genial game show host, add a portion of maudlin sentiment, a hefty dose of greed, shake briskly, and ... Ta Dah!... you have "Fantasy." Page 7.

Adam 'Batman' West Resurfaces

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Tom Selleck of television only 14 years ago was Adam West, star of the "Batman" series, which became a national rage for almost three years.

But when the caped crusader and his sidekick, Robin, were trashed by ABC in March 1968 it was as if West and Burt Ward (Robin) had been swallowed by a black hole.

From the summit of fame and adulation, West plummeted to near obscurity. He was so intimately associated with Batman it was difficult, if not impossible, for audiences and producers to think of him as anyone else — all this despite the fact much of his time on screen was spent in a mask.

The emotional and financial trauma of going from overnight idol to overnight anonymity is a genuine occupational hazard in Hollywood.

Some performers are stunned into retirement. Others take to drink and drugs. Not a few suicides result.

But West, a big, strong, healthy specimen with a sense of humor and more than a little common sense, has survived with only a bruised ego and an education in the vagaries of Hollywood.

In recent weeks West, who had become a stranger to television and movies, enjoyed a flurry of activity.

On Jan. 4 he starred in the CBS-TV movie, "I Take These Men," followed two days later by the release of the feature film in which he co-starred, "One Dark Night."

He will be seen driving a car at high speed off a ramp and through the van of a semitrailer truck on "Celebrity Daredevils" Jan. 16. He guest starred earlier this month in an episode of "Laverne & Shirley."

Chipper about resurfacing in Hollywood, West is an older, wiser man who has overcome resentment of his Batman persona and is anxious to extend his newfound momentum.

"I take any kind of work that comes along," he said cheerfully. "I don't scoff at any project anywhere in the world. If they want me, and the work is worthwhile I'll take it."

"After 22 years in show business I'm on a little roll again and I'd like to keep it going. I'm not doing all the things I'd like to do, but then what actor does?

"My attitude has changed. For a time there — about 10 years ago — I was frustrated by the Batman image when I hung up my cape. After all, I was the Tom Selleck of the time."

"The aftermath played a real number on my gourd. So I licked my wounds on the beach at Malibu for a couple of years. After a while, it occurred to me that I couldn't stay mad at the world."

West accepted his Batman identity and began making personal appearances around the country.

He strides into the spotlight in costume and mask, recites a monologue, stages a stunt fight, talks to the audience, answers questions, and then signs photographs of himself in Batman regalia.

West has also hit the road performing in dinner theaters. His continued association with Batman may have a big payoff in the future.

There is a Batman feature film in the works, doubtless inspired by the success of such films as "Superman" and "Star Trek." But it is not certain whether West will be asked to reprise his performance.

"Ever since word got out about the picture, I've heard from fans who want to be sure I'm starring in it," West said.

"I'm still very much alive in the role. 'Batman' is playing on television in 108 countries for about 400 million viewers right now. He's a hero everywhere but here in Hollywood."

"There's talk of a nationwide talent hunt for a new guy. But the fans want to see me as Batman again."

"I've submitted an outline of a script to Warner Bros. and Polygram, who own the property. If they come up with a class production, I'd love to play the part again. I'm too young to hang up my cape."

West is as trim and athletic as he was during his salad days in the series.

"There was a time when Batman was as big as E.T. is today," he said. "I understand the merchandising came to $5 billion. I've received a pittance of that over the years."

"People think I made millions from 'Batman,' but salaries weren't what they are now. I've got to keep working to make a living. But I don't mind that. I love the work."

Gene Wilder is the mad scientist who unknowingly creates a monster, played by Peter Boyle, in the comedy "Young Frankenstein," to air Sunday, Jan. 16 on NBC.

Singer Melba Moore will appear as herself in a guest-starring role on the daytime serial "All My Children," to air Monday, Jan. 17 on ABC.

'Little House' Cast Has Real Family Ties

DEAR DICK: I want to know if Willie Oleson on "Little House" (Jonathan Gilbert) is a brother to Melissa Gilbert, who plays Laura on the same show. S.J.T.D. Hamilton, Ill.

Yes. They are siblings by adoption, not by nature. Both children were adopted by comic Paul Gilbert and his wife.

DEAR DICK: Won't we ever have Lawrence Welk's show on anymore? I have listened to him ever since he started performing in Yankton, S.D. His show on TV is greatly missed. MRS. O.S., Austin, Minn.

Welk will make no more of his weekly shows. He may possibly make a special from time to time, although even that is doubtful. But his old shows will probably be rerun, and you might ask your local station to buy them, for your continuing joy and pleasure.

DEAR DICK: I have been baffled ever since seeing "Looking for Mr. Goodbar." The name of the character who is the killer in the movie is never told, so I could never find the actor's real name in the credits. Could you please tell me who he is? A.M.E., Bordentown, N.J.

Tom Berenger was the man who killed her. Another actor, who's gone on to bigger and better things, got his big break from that film — Richard Gere. He played the man she picked up in the bar who later threatened her with a knife in her apartment, but he was not the man who ultimately killed her.

Henry Mancini In Central Florida

Most composers write a lot of songs to sell a few. Henry Mancini writes a lot of songs, and sells them all before he writes them. The moguls of movies, television, and recording keep him very busy composing music to order.

Music lovers in the Orlando-Daytona area will be treated to an evening of Mancini's musical magic in a pair of concerts, at 8 p.m. at the Tupperware theatre on January 28, and at 7:30 p.m. at the Peabody Auditorium on January 30. Mancini will direct and perform with a concert orchestra of 35 musicians, in a program of his own award-winning musical scores.

Tickets for the Orlando concert are $16 for all seats. Daytona prices are $14.75, $12.75, and $10.75. In Orlando, tickets for both concerts are available at the Fashion Square and Altamonte Malls. Tickets for the Daytona performance are also available at the usual Concert Showcase Ticket outlets in the Desert Inn, Volusia Mall, Belk-Linsey in DeLand, Music Gallery in New Smyrna Beach, Brass & Reed Music Center, Merritt Island, Flagler Palm Coast Travel Agency in Palm Coast. They may also be ordered by phone: (904) 255-1314.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Please let us know who does the voice of the computer K.I.T.T. on the new show, "Knight Rider." P.P., Vancouver, Wash.

That's the fine actor, William Daniels, whose face as well as voice are part of the "St. Elsewhere" staff this season, too.

DEAR DICK: Ian Ogilvy did a TV series as "The Saint" and my family and I have seen him in several mystery movies of late. What has happened to this good-looking and very talented actor? B.E., Ventura, Calif.

Nothing extraordinary. He is based in England, works a lot, but many things he does are not exported here.

Karen Valentine plays an American designer of western wear who becomes involved in a chilling mystery after her husband is murdered in "Illusions," to air Tuesday, Jan. 18 on CBS.

Ann Murray's New Special

Ann Murray's last prime-time special on CBS, "A Special Anne Murray Christmas," did so well in the ratings that not only was she nominated for a People's Choice award but she was asked by CBS to do another musical-variety program this winter.

But a Christmas extravaganza, it won't be.

"I didn't want to do another Christmas special," says Miss Murray, in a phone interview from her native Canada. "I don't want people looking at the TV set and saying, 'Oh, look, there's Anne Murray. It must be Christmas.'"

So there'll be no sleigh bells and red-faced Santas on Miss Murray's newest special, airing Wednesday on CBS. Quite the contrary — palm trees and sailor suits will be the most common sights.

"Anne Murray — Caribbean Cruise" features the award-winning singer and her co-stars, singers Eddie Rabbit and Jose Luis Rodriguez, aboard the S.S. Norway for a musical journey around the hot, lush Caribbean islands.

"I've always wanted to go on a cruise," says Miss Murray, who's earned 3 Grammy awards, six gold albums, two platinum albums, and 18 Juno awards. "Ever since I was a little girl, that's been a dream of mine. I've always thought I'd like to get on a boat and sing for a couple of weeks."

And that's what she does. Both the ship itself and the island of St. Thomas are backdrops for the steel bands and musical numbers — from rock to reggae — of the special. Songs from Miss Murray's latest album, "Hottest Night of the Year," will be included.

If this special does nothing else for Miss Murray — which is doubtful — it will have, at the very least, warmed the bones of the Nova Scotia native. And that's nothing to make light of.

Carlin's Show Lot Of ! % & ★ SATURDAY

January 15

By Jack Carry

In a way, all artistic creativity is a mixture of inspiration and the artist's particular set of neuroses. When the balance is off, however, and the artist becomes more neurotic than inspired, the result is an embarrassing performance that serves as a Rorschach blot depicting the man's demons. Such is the case with HBO's "Carlin at Carnegie," an hour in which the stand-up comic reveals his immature obsession with profanity.

At its best, Carlin's humor, as he says, "reminds you of things you already knew, but forgot were funny." In that, the comic belongs to a long tradition of respected observers of the human comedy whose insights are both provocative and funny. "Do you realize," he asks in a typical line, "that somewhere in the world there is the worst doctor? And someone has an appointment with him tomorrow morning?"

GEORGE CARLIN

Such perceptions, coupled with his gift for making everyday words sound bizarre, are the elements of Carlin's inspiration. Unfortunately, some repressed need to "talk dirty" plagues the comic and turns his monologue into a foul-mouthed diatribe of obscenity for its own sake. His dependency on these gutter-mouth cheap shots is so thorough in this HBO special, that it quite nearly obliterates the few humorous gems he does offer.

The obscenity mania, an irritant throughout the special, attains a disturbingly warped level during Carlin's final segment. Made famous for his "Seven Words You Can Never Say on Television" sketch, Carlin decides to go for broke reading aloud a litany of over 200 below-the-belt phrases. As the credits roll by, Carlin goes on and on with his list of no-no's in what amounts to a nationwide playing out of one man's hang-ups.

In a phone conversation recently, Carlin was asked why he chooses to include such low-grade material when he is capable of more intellectual wit. "I want to show all my different sides," he said. The reason for the special's climactic blue streak, he says, was "to present how absurd it is that a list this long exists of words that can get people aroused." And how absurd to waste viewers time letting them know each and every one.

Anne Archer Steps Into Movie Making

ANNE ARCHER

Terry more or less handles the business end of things — contracts, deals, etc. — while Anne's prime responsibility is the creative aspect. When they work on scripts together, Terry supplies the action sequences, Anne provides relationships.

Anne is also involved in a coming NBC series, "The Second Family Tree," from the same people — Nigel and Carol McKeand — who brought us "Family" and wrote many of "The Waltons" episodes.

"I have been averaging a series offer a week," says Anne, "but I didn't want to do any of them — but this one touched a nerve. It deals with a family comprised of parents, each of whom has been divorced, each of whom has children of his or her own. And it's how they all get along."

"I have a son — Tommy is 10 — from an earlier marriage, so I know what it's like to have that kind of family situation. It is a subject that really interests me."

Frank Converse is Anne's leading man in "The Second Family Tree," which NBC will trot out to replace any failure later this season.

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — In Hollywood's good old days, actresses knew their place — to look beautiful, say their lines and keep out of trouble.

Anne Archer looks beautiful, says her lines and keeps out of trouble, but that's only part of what she does. She's a sample of Hollywood's new breed of beauties — women who are as much concerned with the business of movies as with the acting in them.

Anne and her husband, Terry Jastrow, have their Aster Productions. Lots of actors have production companies but generally they are tax dodges — designed as a way to cut their taxes legitimately.

But Aster Productions is a working corporation. Anne and Terry have just completed their first feature, "Waltz Across Texas," and the story of how they managed it is worth a movie itself. Maybe they'll film that story some day.

"Waltz Across Texas" started out across the Jastrows' kitchen table. Anne and Terry were talking one evening and they started telling a story and pretty soon they felt they had the stuff of which movies are made.

"It's a story about Texas oil folks," says Anne, "and that's an area Terry knows well because he's from Texas oil folks himself. He comes from Midland, which is an oil town."

They took their idea and went to Texas, where Terry knew a lot of rich people. Their goal was to raise the money to make the movie. It wasn't easy, despite knowing all the right people.

"We made our pitch to some 200 people," Ann Archer says. "And we wound up selling 17 units. It was hard work. Sometimes we'd spend hours with some man and think we had him sold and he'd say no. Other times somebody would only give us five minutes, and be very brusque, and then he'd buy a unit and surprise us."

They raised enough money to make the movie. They co-star in it, supported by Richard Farnsworth, Noah Beery, Mary Kay Place and others.

They made it, but they watched every penny. They cut more corners than a professional corner-cutter.

Fresh off his 15-year stint as host of "Hollywood Squares," genial Peter Marshall is now on the air as ringleader of "Fantasy," a new hour-long NBC daytime program that manages to accommodate both the debasing greed of "Let's Make a Deal" and the maudlin sentiment of "Queen for a Day."

"Fantasy," which bills itself as "a show where dreams do come true," marks a bold step forward in the game show genre. No game. Just prizes, prizes and more prizes. It's really quite extraordinary.

Members of the studio audience fill out cards detailing their ultimate fantasies. Whatever they wish for, Peter grants, as long as it isn't dirty (Jackie Smith and I are the sole inhabitants of a South Pacific island) or impossible (I would like to know the secret of Oil of Olay).

If you want to be reunited with a sister you haven't seen in 42 years, it's done — right here, right now on our "Fantasy" stage (a spangled, multi-tiered affair that must be what a Russian factory worker thinks a Beverly Hills Cadillac showroom looks like).

If you want to do something nice for your self-sacrificing parents who never had a chance to take a vacation, consider it done.

If you're a teen-age girl whose fantasy is to go off to Las Vegas for a weekend with a hunk of soap opera star, it's done. If what you really want to do is fly to Honolulu to meet Jack Lord, it's taken care of.

A solution to the plight of the elderly? An end to racial inequality? Sorry, sorry. Can't accommodate you. But if its money you want, it's money you'll get.

How about the Fantasy Fountain, a big tank with glass walls and a floor covered with $50 bills? An air gun blows the money up into the air and two audience members have 20 seconds to grab as much as they can while everyone cheers them on. Whoever grabs the most gets to keep it. The loser keeps $100.

"Nobody goes home empty-handed on 'Fantasy,'" beams Peter.

And let us not forget that one member of our audience has his or her fanny parked in the Fantasy Seat, entitling them to $500.

Want to air your biggest gripe on national TV? You got it. Fantasy Soapbox allows three audience members to air their pet peeves, which so far have run the gamut from people who walk slowly in shopping centers to the price of candy in movie theaters.

Want a shot at songdom stardom? Fantasy Spotlights gives you a studio orchestra and a nationwide forum to show your stuff.

Meanwhile, filmed bits offer famous stars' own fantasies, such as Sylvester Stallone's dream to turn boxer Lee Canalito into a real-life Rocky.

And then there's the Fantasy Truck, which may be in your neighborhood soon! In one episode, the truck pulled up in front of an average suburban home to deliver a piano to a housewife who had to sell her piano to help put her husband through real-estate school. They parked the piano in the driveway and rang her doorbell. Boy did she start blubbering.

Then she played us a song — not well. "It's been a while," she confessed through her tears. Peter is an energetic, enthusiastic host who interacts well with average folks and keeps the mood light, though I must admit I find it hard to tell him apart from Bill Cullen.

The Different Moods Of Lainie Kazan

By Dick Kleiner
HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

The old college connection, so important in the world of business, is having an impact on Hollywood these days. In fact, it just could lead to an Oscar nomination for Lainie Kazan.

We all know Lainie Kazan as a singer, a big-voiced, big-busted singer who is a top performer in clubs and concerts. For a long while now, she has successfully combined her fine voice with her good looks to create a sexy package.

But, look! Would you believe that is the same woman, the Lainie Kazan who plays the obese, cheerfully obnoxious Jewish mother in the hit movie "My Favorite Year"? Most people see the movie and come out wondering who played the part of Belle Carroca, and search the credits and see that the actress was Lainie Kazan, and wonder if it can be the same Lainie Kazan.

It can be. And it is. Lainie Kazan says she has long been "a closet actress," and acted whenever she could.

"People in the business knew I acted," she says. "I had acted in school and in a few plays here and there. But nobody else knew — until recently. That's when I started working for Francis."

That's Francis, as in Francis Ford Coppola. The connection is that the two of them, Lainie and Francis, are old college pals. They went to Hofstra, on Long Island, together. And when Lainie was a freshman there, she starred in a play that was written and directed by Francis.

"He's very loyal to his old college friends," she says. "His own company — Zoetrope — is so full of his Hofstra college buddies that they laughingly refer to themselves as the Hofstra Nostra."

So Francis Ford Coppola put old college buddy Lainie Kazan in one of his pictures

— "One from the Heart" — and it was a good part and people noticed her. And she decided to do more acting and so, when she heard about "My Favorite Year," she applied for a job.

Norman Steinberg, who co-wrote "My Favorite Year" with Dennis Palumbo, decided the part Lainie was up for her was the wrong one. It was Steinberg's idea that she could play Belle, the prototypical Jewish mother.

"Why not let her play the mother?" Steinberg suggested. But Richard Benjamin, the director, didn't think so. He couldn't imagine the beautiful Lainie Kazan playing a large, fat and basically unattractive part.

"But," says Lainie, "I put on 20 pounds. When they asked me if I could put on 20 pounds, I said, 'No problem.' I just ate a few meals. Then they put some padding over that. Then they did three hours of makeup every day."

The result is that even some of her good friends don't recognize her in the part. Belle is about as un-Lainie as you can get and still be a woman.

So now there is talk of an Oscar nomination for her. She not only looks great, but she does a terrific job of playing a part that could have just been a cliché.

Lainie Kazan, the singer, is still with us. She isn't about to abandon her singing career. But, she says, if she was faced with a choice — a good part or a good singing engagement — she wouldn't hesitate a second.

She would opt for the acting role.

She started her career when she was only 3 years old, dancing on a kid's show in New York. And she has been working pretty much ever since, except for her high-school years.

"When I was going to high school," she says, "I wanted to be a regular person, so I stopped working then. But when I went to college — Hofstra — I started up again."

She laughs at the idea of all the different Lainies there have been.

'Les Ennuis de Marie' Loses In Translation

By JOEL RUIMY

MONTREAL (UPI) — JeanPierre Brosseau says he doesn't much care for the television series "CHiPs," and canned laughter in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" made his job "really hard."

Brosseau is a dubbing specialist with Sonolab Inc., one of seven Montreal firms translating English-language television shows into French for the Quebec market.

"CHiPs," a show about the California Highway Patrol, gives the 37-year-old Brosseau a hard time because "there isn't always very much to work with."

"One episode had absolutely no plot and it took me days to get something out of it. It came out as boring in French as it was in English.

"I did 20-odd episodes of that one last summer and I can tell you at the end of it I really deserved my vacation."

Then there are the situation comedies.

"Those don't really work in French because they tend to be regional and because they make reference to U.S. personalities or events that are unknown in Quebec."

"Mary Tyler Moore (translated as "Les Ennuis de Marie," or Mary's Problems) had canned laughs and the problem with that is timing," Brosseau said.

"Sometimes a joke just isn't as funny in French and you have to work around 60 seconds of laughter. To make it worse, during that laughter, Mary would have her mouth open and she wouldn't say anything, which meant I couldn't say anything."

The only way to fit that, the 10-year-veteran of the $3-million-a-year trade says, is to "hire 60 people to come into the studio and laugh but no one could afford that."

Only "The Odd Couple," rendered as "Felix et Oscar," worked in French, he said.

"There were no canned laughs in that one and the story was more universal."

But such popular series as "M-A-S-H" and "All In The Family" couldn't work "and no one's ever even tried them."

Brosseau prefers made-up TV movies or mini-series because "you've got a lot more to work with."

"My favorite was 'A Woman Called Moses' (a mini-series about a black American woman starring Cecily Tyson)."
