I-4 lane closing rescheduled

SANFORD — Emergency road work in Orlando prevented state road crews from closing a lane on Interstate 4 at the Lake Monroe bridge Thursday night.

The lane closing had been scheduled to allow road crews to repair a handrail.

Rich Darnell, maintenance engineer for the Florida Department of Transportation district office in Deland, said the work will be rescheduled to an evening next week. The day has not been set, he said.

Planning meetings set

LAKE MARY — The first of several downtown planning meetings has been scheduled for June 29 in Lake Mary. Mayor Randy Morris made the announcement Monday night during the City Commission meeting, urging as many interested citizens as possible to attend. "We hope anyone who won't be able to be there will consider writing to us," he said.

So far, the city has received over 200 responses to an inquiry mailed out earlier this year. The questionnaire asked the citizens for suggestions on how best to deal with the needs of the city, especially in the downtown and historical areas.

The meeting will be an all day event. Citizens may attend at any time between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., at the Lake Mary Community Improvement Association building on Country Club Road.

Don't have a cow, man

NEW YORK — Far out, man — Bart Simpson raised thousands of dollars to fight AIDS.

More than two dozen animation cels featuring the heroes of the Fox network's "The Simpsons" fetched $117,920 at auction at Christie's Thursday night. A cel is a celluloid sheet photographed for the cartoon.

The most popular was one drawn for the cover of Christie's sale catalog. It showed a tuxedo-clad Bart Simpson at an auction holding up his youngest sister, Maggie, and saying, "What am I bid, man?"

The cel was bought for $24,200 by Antonio Francesco, a restaurateur.

Referendum proposed for Lake Mary revived and referred to court by city

By NICK PFEIFAUF

LAKE MARY — Whether or not the citizen-proposed city charter amendment will find its way to the November 5 ballot in Lake Mary will now be up to the court.

The City Commission voted last night to have a judicial decision made to determine if the matter must legally be placed on the ballot.

A motion to that effect was made by Commissioner Tom Mahoney, and seconded by Commissioner Paul Tremel. It reverses a decision made earlier this month that followed City Attorney Ned Julian's suggestion that the city take no action and not place the matter on the ballot.

The vote last night was 3 to 2, with considerable discussion prior to it.

In seconding Mahoney's motion, Tremel said he felt the commission has been placed in a no-win situation. "Whether the court decides in our favor or against us," he said, "the opponents could bring up another suit."

Commissioner George Duryea, who voted against the proposal, said he has not changed his position. "It's a matter of, do we want to play offense or defense. What Tom (Mahoney) has suggested is offense."

Sheila Sawyer, who organized the petition signing that prompted the referendum request addressed the commission. As was the case in previous appearances, she again stressed what

SANFORD — Parents at Seminole High School are upset about the 7:10 a.m. starting time that has been imposed on their children for next year, but they aren't going to make a stink over it, they say.

In order to save money, the school district has decided to consolidate some bus routes next year. High school students would begin classes 20 minutes earlier during the 1991-92 school year.

School board officials have said that the move will be in place for only one year to save money for the school district so that academic and vocational programs will not need to be eliminated due to budget cut backs.

"The parents do not want to be obstructionist, but we would feel better if this change were clearly labeled 'temporary' because of concern over the lack of sleep on their children's health," Patricia Southward, chairman of the Seminole High School Local School Advisory Committee (LSAC) wrote in a letter sent to Supt. Bob Hughes.

Members of the LSAC say that they want to make sure the school district knows that they are not happy with the situation.

'Beatings for fun' investigation ending

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford police say their investigation in the brutal beating of two men June 4 which resulted in the death of one man is nearly over.

Four of the seven youths police say participated in the beatings are now in jail and police say there could be charges against the other three suspects by next week.

"We've pretty much got it wrapped up," said Sanford police Lt. Mike Rotundo. "I'd say our investigation will be done by the first of the week."

Police Thursday arrested the fourth Sanford youth, Antowian Denard Bell, 18, charging him with second-degree murder and robbery for the beating death of James Chester Sims, 44.

Bell, a Seminole High School student, was also charged with the attempted murder and robbery of Leonard Sutton, 44. Rotundo did not release the youth's address, saying his mother feared retaliation.

Already jailed is Anthony Thomas Duvall, 18, 815 W. Valencia Court, and Samuel Cornelius Ayres, 19, 1404 W. Valencia Court. Both turned themselves in to police June 14. They were charged with attempted murder and robbery of Sutton.

Sutton was robbed of $7 in cash and $24 in food stamps. Ayres and Duvall told police the beating was "fun and they enjoyed it," according to police reports.

A minor has also been arrested for Sutton's beating. His name has been withheld by police due to his age.

Police say the beating and robbery rampage began at about 9:30 p.m. near 10th and Locust Streets in Sanford's Georgetown neighborhood when they attacked Sutton. Police report Bell punched Sutton in the face and grabbed a $5 bill from his hand as the man fell to the ground.

Sanford church tackles Expressway Authority

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Christian Church will have to move to make way for the Seminole County Expressway. The church however, says it is going into deep debt waiting for the move.

The church is presently located at 137 West Airport Boulevard, but was informed in September, 1987, that it would have to vacate the property to allow for construction of the expressway.

J.D. Segroves, minister at the church said, "Seldom is a church evicted from its property without adequate time granted for relocation or adequate funding to recover or rebuild." He sees the possibility of the church being forced to eventually conduct its services in a storefront or tent for as long as three years.

In January, 1989, the church was advised to take action to purchase property for relocation. He following month, the church voted to purchase new property, and borrowed $255,000 for one year, with interest and principle due and payable on maturity. The expectation was that the money for the property would be coming within that year. They believed the Florida Legislature would be able to pass the turnpike bill and the money needed could be bonded by late 1989. The legislature had difficulty in approving the measure however, and time became a serious problem.

The minister has submitted a letter to Expressway Authority Executive Director Gerald Brinton. He said it "is written to convey to you the disappointments, anger and frustration felt by the members of the Sanford Christian Church." He also said, "Some of our members now seriously question if we will survive the acquisition process. During the time that has elapsed since the loan was taken out a required additional number of loans plus the interest has grown drastically."

Yesterday afternoon Brinton attended a hearing during which the See Church, Page 5A

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Sheriff's crack-making legal

Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH - While somewhat shady, it was not illegal for the Broward Sheriff's Office to make its own crack cocaine for sting operations, a state appeals court has ruled.

The 4th District Court of Appeal split 2-1 Wednesday against Kevin Kelly Jr., who sought dismissal of a charge that he bought crack within 1,000 feet of a school, saying the crack was made by a sheriff's chemist.

The majority ruled Kelly's rights were not violated but criticized the sheriff's methods, first disclosed in October 1989.

In dissent, Justice Gavin Letts wrote, "I just cannot accept the premise that the Legislature intended such activity to be lawful any more than if law enforcement were to contend it could manufacture and distribute counterfeit money."

Letts noted the sheriff's chemist, who concocted the drug in a seventh-floor laboratory at the county courthouse, admitted some of the sheriff's crack rocks were not recovered after their sale.

"Accordingly, it must follow that quantities of this illegal and evil drug are let loose in the marketplace (because) of law enforcement," he wrote. "I cannot buy that."

Justices George Hersey and Mark Polen wrote for the majority. "We agree as to (Letts)' disapproval of the police practice of creating dangerous drugs, even if it is for the purpose of catching drug users."

Sheriff Nick Navarro reserved the drug-making idea before launching.

"(He) was reassured at every juncture that this was a legal practice," sheriff's spokesman

George Crolius said Thursday. "From a strictly legal standpoint, it has stood up to the test of law, and we'll continue to use it."

With the propriety of Navarro's practice in question, Crolius said, "Desperate times demand desperate measures, and when dealing with the drug traffickers, he's going to employ any tool at his disposal to make the necessary arrests and try to curtail those activities."

Feds seize Miami marina

MIAMI - Federal agents have seized a Miami marina accused of building hidden compartments in three drug boats confiscated in 1988.

Drugs were found "in some elaborate hidden compartments" on the boats, and the work was traced to Able Marina and Boatyard, Drug Enforcement Administration agent Lynn Wheeler said Thursday.

The boats tied to Able were the Thief of Hearts, seized with 267 kilograms of cocaine, Mi Nina seized with 119 kilos of cocaine and the Miss Mary seized with 5,000 pounds of marijuana, said agents of the Joint DEA-Customs Service drug task force.

The marina's land and buildings seized Wednesday are worth $225,000, Wheeler said.

Marina owner John Mario Piccolo faces no criminal charges, but Wheeler noted the investigation is continuing.

County probably will go Republican

FORT WALTON BEACH - Okaloosa County probably will go Republican after a voter purge in August, giving the GOP its first majority in a North Florida county, Republican and Democratic leaders agree.

The purge, conducted every other year, is intended to drop the names of registered voters who have died, moved or haven't voted recently.

Republicans now have majorities in 12 of Florida's 67 counties, all in Central and South Florida.

As of June 1, Democrats had only a 636-voter lead over Republicans in Okaloosa - home to Eglin Air Force Base and Hurlbert Field. Many of Okaloosa's Republicans are active and retired military personnel.

Republicans already hold a majority of the partisan elected offices in Okaloosa as a result of election victories in 1988 and party switching by several former Democrats in 1989.

Raccoon spared from death sentence

WEST PALM BEACH - A fuzzy raccoon facing a death sentence has won a temporary reprieve due to an even fuzzier county law.

Cooner, a 25-pound female raccoon, was under a possible death sentence after Palm Beach County code enforcement officers told its owners, Karl and Cheryl Schmitt, to get rid of their pet by this week.

Animal care workers said there might be little choice but to put Cooner to sleep. Zoos usually don't take raccoons because there already are too many of them, and domesticated raccoons have little chance to survive in the wild.

County officials initially told the Schmitts that raccoons were not allowed as pets in unincorporated areas.

However, when they searched records for rules on raccoons and other exotic animals, officials couldn't find any. The system for determining which animals stay and which go is a little fuzzy, conceded acting Zoning Director Roxanne Manning.

Mrs. Schmitt said her 4-year-old son John-John hasn't asked about Cooner's fate since they gave their three rabbits to friends. The Schmitts also were cited for the bunnies.

Suspect shot, wounded

HOLLYWOOD - A kidnapping suspect who allegedly tried to pull an Uzi machine gun on police detectives in a restaurant was shot and wounded, authorities said.

Police and FBI agents had lured the suspect, Iones Dimitriou, 32, of Hollywood to a Denny's restaurant along Interstate 95 about 6:30 a.m. Thursday.

Two Miami officers had arranged to meet Dimitriou and moved to arrest him as he sat down at their table, said FBI spokesman Jeffrey Lang.

"He attempted to pull an Uzi machine gun from somewhere concealed in his pant leg, and he also had another .45-caliber pistol on his person," said Lang. "At the time of his arrest he attempted to pull a weapon and was shot by one officer."

Only one shot was fired, and no one else in the restaurant was hurt, Lang said.

Court says paternity suit too late

WEST PALM BEACH - An air-conditioner repairman trying to prove '50s doo-wop king Dion is his father got no help from a state appeals court.

Dion Ambrogio wanted to pursue a paternity suit against singer Dion DiMucci, but the 4th District Court of Appeal refused Wednesday to overturn a lower court's ruling that the suit came 14 years too late.

Ambrogio, 34, sued DiMucci in May 1989 to provide a blood sample for genetic testing.

Paternity actions are barred once the child reaches 18, but Ambrogio argued for an exemption because his mother didn't tell him who his father was until he was 20 or 21.

Government cuts off the marijuana supplied to AIDS-afflicted couple

Associated Press

PANAMA CITY BEACH - An AIDS-afflicted couple say federal officials may have had retaliation in mind when they cut off their government-supplied marijuana cigarettes.

Kenny and Barbra Jenks had been receiving the marijuana for the last four months to treat the nausea and vomiting caused by the disease and other medications.

They also have encouraged others suffering from acquired immune deficiency syndrome to apply for the drug through an experimental therapeutic marijuana program.

But Jenks said Thursday that, without explanation, the Food and Drug Administration halted a shipment that should have arrived at their pharmacy a week earlier.

"I guess FDA doesn't want other AIDS patients to know about this program," he said. "I think they want my wife and I to shut up."

FDA spokesman Brad Stone was reported out of his office in Rockville, Md., and unavailable for comment.

Jenks is a hemophiliac who contracted AIDS through a blood transfusion and then passed it to his wife before they realized he was afflicted.

Man pleads guilty to charges of smuggling 52,000 pounds of pot

Associated Press

BOSTON - A Florida man has pleaded guilty in federal court to charges stemming from the seizure of 52,000 pounds of marijuana in May 1986 which was being smuggled into Massachusetts.

Harold Nichols, 42, of Tampa, Fla., faces a maximum of 30 years in prison and $250,000 in fines after pleading guilty Thursday before U.S. District Judge William G. Young to charges of possession with intent to distribute and importation of marijuana.

Robbery getaway car may link suspect to Gainesville deaths

By Associated Press

Associated Press Writer

TAMPA - Robbery charges have against police officers charged with the deaths of two men in Gainesville, Fla., may be linked to the getaway car stolen from a Gainesville student housing complex Aug. 30, two days after the last two murders.

In the Sept. 2, 1989, robbery of a Best and Fresh grocery in Tampa, police officers tried to run the getaway car of the stolen car at the scene of the robbery, and then threatened three deputies with a gun before fleeing into a wooded area.

When the Tampa robbery charges against the officers are not cleared, authorities say they are confident because he was driving a getaway car stolen from a Gainesville student housing complex Aug. 30, two days after the last two murders.

On Sept. 7, not far from the grocery, Roling is accused of breaking into another apartment and stealing the keys to a Ford Mustang.

Later that same day, Roling was captured in that stolen car after the robbery of a Win-Dine store in Ocala. He has been held in Marion County in that robbery since then, but was quietly transferred to the Hillsborough County Jail.

Court: Contra lawsuit should be thrown out

By RICHARD COLE Associated Press Writer

MIAMI - A federal appeals court has refused to reinstate a $24 million lawsuit accusing former CIA officials and Contra leaders of plotting a bombing attack that killed five people in Nicaragua, lawyers said.

Daniel Sheehan, who argued the case for the Washington-based Christian Institute, a non-profit public interest law firm, said Thursday the decision would be appealed to the full 11th Circuit and to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

The suit, filed by two Central America-based journalists, accused Iran-Contra figures Richard Secord and Albert Hakim, along with Contra leader Adolfo Calero and nine others, of a 1984 bombing in La Penca, Nicaragua.

The lawsuit, filed in 1986, said the bombing was aimed at maverick Contra leader Eden Pastora, who refused to accept CIA control of the war against Nicaragua's Sandinista government. Pastora survived, but five people were killed and dozens injured in the blast at a news conference.

The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Tuesday refused to reinstate the suit and upheld a $1 million award.

Attorney Thomas Spencer, who represented some of the defendants, called the appeals court decision another blow against the left-leaning Christian Institute.

Researchers: Ocean pollution special threat to baby turtles

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE - At least 4.5 percent of the sea turtles around the world have been found entangled in ocean debris, according to wildlife scientists studying baby turtles.

Since the baby turtles may spend their first five to 10 years riding on the same currents that sweep up oil spills, plastics and other trash, the species is in constant danger.

"Surface currents in the ocean bring all components together - turtles, plastics, tar balls - everything that floats on the sea," said Karen Bjorndal, director of the Archie Carr

Center for Sea Turtle Research at the University of Florida. "This is disastrous to these little turtles because they feed on anything that comes past their noses."

During their youth, sea turtles eat voraciously to grow from the size of walnuts to more than two feet in length.

Bjorndal and University of Florida wildlife scientist Alan Bolten are directing the only research in the world on young "pelagic" sea turtles - juveniles in the open ocean.

To assist in their work, Bolten has developed a global observation network of more than 800 collaborators who report on turtles they see entangled in marine debris.

Once turtles are sickened or slowed by this pollution, they become easy marks for predators, which further reduces the chances of someone actually seeing an entangled turtle, she said.

"It's safe to say that 4.5 percent is just the tip of the iceberg," Bjorndal said. For example, of 52 dead sea turtles found in the past two years on the Florida coast, half had plastic or monofilament line in their intestinal system.

"These walls of death sweep through an area and everything is killed," Bjorndal said.

County makes move to save upland scrub areas, threatened jays

By J. MARK BISHOP
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County may be forced to inspect development sites to comply with federal requirements to protect the Florida scrub jay.

Florida scrub jay protection may be the first move by the county to begin protecting upland scrub areas of the county, considered prime building areas because of their high, well-drained land. The state has been working on upland protection for two years, but the effort has been largely slowed by developer concerns.

County officials were notified Tuesday that counties and cities must also assure the friendly little birds are not disturbed. Scrub jays have been known to fight on a person. The birds are listed as threatened by the U.S. Department of Interior. Builders and developers need federal permits to build in lands where scrub jay have been found.

David Wesley, the Jacksonville DOI field supervisor who wrote the county, said the federal government recommends that any construction that occurs in a scrub area greater than one acre should not be allowed unless it has been determined it is not a home for scrub jays. Construction will be allowed in scrub jay areas with a federal permit, Wesley said.

"We take it very seriously," Wesley said. "When we issue a permit to build in one of these areas, we're basically saying it's alright to kill a threatened species."

The county's natural resources officer says potential scrub jay habitat includes much of the county not already designated as wetlands. The DOI letter mentions possible habitat as those areas with palmetto and sand pine, common vegetation throughout much of central Florida.

"If it's not wetland, and it hasn't been cleared or built on, there's a pretty good chance it has this type habitat on it," said Tim Clabaugh.

Clabaugh said county attorneys are reviewing Wesley's letter for the impact of the scrub jay protection on the county's construction permitting requirements. The letter suggests counties and cities may have to assure there are no scrub jay frequenting a site before issuing building permits.

Clabaugh said the county has no maps of scrub lands in the county as it does wetlands. Seminole County has received national and state recognition for its 1988 wetlands ordinance.

"We may have to wander out and look at each site before we issue a permit," Clabaugh said. "To map all the scrub habitat in the county would take too long and cost too much money."

Clabaugh said the county's Econlochatchee River Protection Ordinance, which comes to a final vote next Tuesday, will be the first time the county has protected upland areas.

Clabaugh said he has seen scrub jay on the 575-acre site of Plantation, a controversial 420-home development at the southwest corner of Markham and Longwood Markham Roads. Development of the site has not occurred since the downfall of Lincoln Savings and Loan, the parent company.

A portion of the 100-acre site at the county's Yankee Lake property on West State Road 46 is also suspected to be a nesting place of the scrub jay. The county has tentatively agreed to allow the Central Florida Zoological Society to build a new zoo on the site and zoo planners are investigating the site as a possible habitat for scrub jay.

Call results in couple's arrest

A fight between a Sanford woman and her live-in boyfriend ended in the arrest of both Thursday morning.

Sanford police report they responded to 1215 S. Myrtle Ave. at about 3 a.m. and arrested Norma Jean Ridd, 26, for reportedly stabbing her boyfriend, Robert Joseph Whitaker, 37, in the leg. Police then arrested Whitaker when Ridd told them he had been beating her with a cane before the stabbing. Both were charged with aggravated battery and resisting arrest.

Sting operation nets alleged dealer

Donald Robert Tanner, 24, 3714 Washington St., Sanford, was arrested Wednesday on drug-related charges.

Sanford police special investigations unit undercover agents report purchasing crack cocaine from Tanner during a sting operation. When agents approached Tanner to arrest him, he reportedly fled on his bicycle. He was arrested on Highway Avenue. Tanner was charged with sale and delivery of crack cocaine and possession of cocaine and paraphernalia.

Theft scam results in arrests

Two Longwood men were charged with retail theft Tuesday after Seminole County deputies report they stole merchandise from a K-Mart near Winter Springs and then returned it for a cash refund, deputies said.

Richard Jay Farrar, 31, 406 E. Magnolia Ave., and Scott Arthur Merritt, 22, 280 E. Warren Ave., were arrested Tuesday afternoon. A store security guard told deputies he saw Merritt hide electronic scales worth $38 under his shirt and leave the store, arrest reports state.

The guard reported he saw Merritt take the scales to a car where he gave them to Farrar, who returned the merchandise for a cash refund. When the guard and several store employees confronted Farrar, he pushed them, the guard told deputies. Farrar was charged with battery and retail theft. Merritt was charged with retail theft.

Teen arrested in car theft, burglary

An 18-year-old Sanford youth was charged with stealing a car and burglary Tuesday by Sanford police seven hours after the car was reported stolen from a local repair shop.

William Bradley, 50 Lake Monroe Terr., was charged with grand theft, burglary to a structure and a vehicle, fleeing police, reckless driving and driving without a license after police report he led them on a chase that ended with him crashing the car through a fence and into a tree on Fourth Street.

A police sergeant reported seeing a car matching the description of a car reported stolen from Jim's Automotive at about 8:30 a.m. The sergeant reported the car sped off and he gave chase for several blocks before it crashed. The driver ran off, but police got a call from a tipster that Bradley was at a Seminole Gardens apartment.

Police report when they arrested Bradley, he had dust that appeared to be glass in his hair and was cut.

Traffic stop results in arrest

Two Sanford youths were charged with drug possession after Sanford police stopped them for what the police said was having an auto tag not assigned to their car.

When the pair acted nervous, police report they asked the driver, Carl Ruffin, 19, 319 Pecan Ave., for permission to search the car and Ruffin refused. Sanford K-9 "Jammer" was called in and reportedly revealed drugs were in the car. Police report finding marijuana on the passenger's side of the car and cocaine on Ruffin's driver's seat between the pair.

Police arrested the passenger, Michael Denard Mathis, 19, 1700 Bell Ave., charging him with possession of cocaine and marijuana. Ruffin was charged with possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia. They also charged him with carrying a concealed weapon after they found a pair of brass knuckles in the car.

Warrant arrests

The following fugitives have been arrested on warrants:

• Willie O'Neal, 17, 2410 Randall St., Sanford, turned himself in to Seminole County deputies Wednesday morning. O'Neal was wanted for failure to appear at a court hearing for marijuana and drug possession charges.

• Jerome Henderson, 37, 103 McKay Blvd., Sanford, was arrested Thursday morning at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was being held for violating probation for a marijuana possession conviction.

Henderson was wanted on a civil case.

• Mary Martha Tenison, 63, 5415 Lake Ave., Sanford, was arrested early Thursday morning at the Fountain Lodge Motel on U.S. Highway 17-92.

Tenison was wanted for obtaining property with a worthless check.

• Edwin Rosario, 21, 1717 Park Ave., Sanford, turned himself in to deputies at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Wednesday afternoon.

Rosario was wanted for violating his probation sentence for a vehicle burglary conviction.

• Anthony Vanburger, 24, 318 Palmetto Ave., Apt. D, Sanford, was arrested by a Florida Highway Patrol trooper Wednesday night after he was stopped on State Road 46 for having a dragging tailpipe on his car.

Vanburger was wanted for violating probation.

• Michael Anthony Levant, 22, 700 E. 11th St., Sanford, was arrested at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Tuesday.

Levant was wanted for violating probation for a battery conviction.

• Willie Collier, 34, was arrested the day before his birthday Tuesday at his Sanford home, 1600 W. Fifth St., Apt. 98.

Collier was wanted for failing to appear at a Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services hearing.

• Richard Bernard Frederick, 28, 1301 W. Seventh St., Sanford, was arrested at his home Tuesday.

Frederick was wanted for failing to appear at HRS hearing.

• John Raymond O'Rourke, 27, 2824 Central Drive, Sanford, was arrested this week at his home.

O'Rourke had been wanted since last year for violating probation of a violent resist of arrest conviction.

NASA aiming for Florida landings on regular basis

By BARBARA BROWN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA said today it will no longer automatically favor California as the landing site for the space shuttle, and will give equal consideration to Kennedy Space Center's orbiting next month.

Since 1968, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration had referred landing as three shuttles on the dry lakebed at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

Of NASA's 41 shuttle flights, only seven have ended here at Kennedy Space Center. Two of the past five were diverted to Florida a the last minute because of bad weather at Edwards.

NASA saved about 1 million and one week of training time by landing Discovery on Kennedy's 2.8-mile concrete runway in May.

Shuttle director Robert Crippen gave Kennedy Space Center equal standing as a landing site after receiving a report Wednesday on tire and braking performance, runway condition and weather forecasting. He asked the team to compile a list of criteria that would be used on landing day to decide whether to land a shuttle at Kennedy Space Center or Edwards.

NASA spokesman Ed Campion said the prime considerations will be weather and orbiter weight.

"It's always been our intention to get back to Kennedy," Campion said.

NASA designated Edwards as the primary landing site following the January 1988 Challenger disaster, which killed all seven crew members. Flights resumed in 1988.

Discovery had been the last shuttle to land at Kennedy prior to the explosion — the shuttle blew a tire and sustained brake damage during its 1985 touchdown.

Campion said the decision to give equal status to Kennedy resulted from testing of new brakes and other analyses.

Recession, Gulf War hurt Florida tourism business

By Associated Press

ORLANDO — The number of visitors to Florida dropped 1.3 percent in the first three months of the year, the Florida Department of Commerce announced Thursday.

Also Thursday, the Florida Revenue Department reported that spending by tourists on hotels, restaurants and novelties was $7.6 billion, up about 1 percentage point from a year earlier.

Between January and March, 11.65 million people visited Florida, compared with 11.8 million visitors the year before. Tourism officials blame the slight decrease on the Persian Gulf War and the recession.

"We hear we're not setting the world on fire," Bill Peepers, executive director of the Orlando-Orange County Convention & Visitors Bureau Inc., said of the numbers this month. "There's still a recession going on."

About the only part of the industry reporting real improvement in Central Florida are some of the attractions.

Universal Studios Florida in

Orlando, for instance, has reported that attendance is going gangbusters, in part because of the new "Back to the Future" ride that opened in May.

Expensive drugs

As many as 80,000 poor Americans with severe cases of schizophrenia will have a chance to lead normal lives because of a decision by the federal government to provide Medicaid coverage for a new drug treatment. The drug, sold under the name Clozaril, is extremely effective but also extremely expensive.

At present, Clozaril is available to only 9,000 patients. That's because most state Medicaid programs have not yet approved payments for the drug. And, because most private insurers do not pay for medications until the federal government first covers them, Clozaril's cost has kept it out of reach for all but a handful of patients outside the Medicaid system.

Clozaril is one of the most expensive medications on the market. It costs patients $172 a week. Most of the steep price, about $140 of the $172, is due to a blood-monitoring package that the maker, Sandoz Pharmaceutical Corp., sells with the drug. Patients cannot acquire the drug without also paying for the weekly monitoring.

Last December, the attorneys general of 23 states filed suit against Sandoz in federal court, accusing it of price fixing and other trade violations because of the mandatory monitoring program. But the courts historically have ruled that such "tie-in" sales are legal if there is a defensible business justification.

Sandoz's reason for bundling its drug therapy and its monitoring package is that up to 2 percent of Clozaril patients develop a potentially fatal condition that causes depletion of white blood cells. At least 78 Clozaril patients have been taken off the medication because the monitoring system revealed their susceptibility to the deadly blood disorder.

Sandoz says it makes no money off its blood monitoring system. Its object is to save money by avoiding future liability suits if a patient were to die from Clozaril side effects.

In coming years, Americans can expect to see such liability premiums increasingly included in the costs of promising new treatments for AIDS, Alzheimer's disease, heart disease and other afflictions.

Lawmakers at the federal and state levels need to take steps to limit the exposure of pharmaceutical companies to expensive liability lawsuits by the tiny minority of patients who might suffer harmful effects. Otherwise, the majority of patients that benefit from a medication will find it increasingly priced beyond their reach.

Measured punishment

The U.S.-led coalition that defeated Iraq, and pulverized much of its modern infrastructure, faces a dilemma: How to keep pressure on Saddam Hussein's regime with tight economic sanctions without further punishing Iraqis, especially innocent children facing the threat of death by disease as a result of the war's devastation.

Teams of experts — from the United Nations, Harvard University, private relief agencies and the Bush administration — all agree that shortages of medicines, medical personnel, clean water and sanitary facilities pose a threat to the lives of at least 100,000 Iraqi infants this year from diseases like cholera, typhoid and diarrhea. Both electricity and electrical equipment are needed to operate water purification systems, sewage treatment plants, operating rooms and refrigerators for medicines and blood. But allied bombing destroyed so much that 80 percent of Iraq's electricity grid remains inoperative, and the equipment and expertise necessary to restore it must be imported. Somehow this vicious cycle must be broken.

President Bush says that sanctions, which bar Iraq from importing much equipment and from selling oil abroad to earn foreign exchange to buy those emergency supplies that are allowed, won't be lifted until Saddam Hussein is ousted. Yet Hussein's internal security system is so tight, and the fate of his top aides so closely bound to him, that his departure is very unlikely. Meanwhile, the public health threat persists. What to do?

Somehow the United Nations must find a way to keep sanctions in place but still bring in crucial supplies, equipment and personnel so that hospitals, water systems and other essential services can be quickly revived.

Saddam Hussein must be prevented from rebuilding an offensive military machine and from resuming normal relations with the world; at the same time, his people must not be allowed to die by the thousands for lack of the rudiments of a modern civilized society.

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

What are the nation's 'real' issues

One of the favorite complaints of Democratic propagandists is that the Republicans prefer to engage in demagoguery rather than confront the "real issues" facing the nation.

Anthony Lewis is only the latest to sound this theme. He recently told readers of The New York Times that George Bush "won in a landslide in 1988 by inventing such 'issues' as the Pledge of Allegiance and Willie Horton. The real problems facing the country were ignored." And E.J. Dionne Jr., in his recent book "Why Americans Hate Politics," makes precisely the same complaint.

I credit the liberals (who for this purpose amount to the Democrats) with perfect sincerity on this one. They think it's as plain as a pike staff that "the real problems facing the country" are those being paraded before the public by Teddy Kennedy and other defenders of the liberal faith on Capitol Hill: health insurance for all, reversal of Supreme Court decisions in the field of civil rights, etc.

The idea that the case of Willie Horton might resonate deeply among millions of Americans — and not merely as the story of a black rapist, but as a symbol of a vast problem demanding immediate national attention — simply doesn't cross their minds. The thought that many Americans believe that recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance can serve a profoundly important purpose in a child's education would strike them as downright laughable if it occurred to them at all.

No, George Bush, in allowing his 1988 campaign to focus on such matters, simply had to be (so liberals sincerely believe) deliberately ducking the "real" issues.

Having credited the liberals with sincerity, however, I am in no hurry to disabuse them. They just don't know what is really bugging the American people these days, and as long as they don't they are unlikely to install one of their number in the Oval Office, which is fine with me.

Probably the biggest single problem on the American people's minds is crime: why there is so much of it and what can be done to reduce it.

Liberals just don't know what's really bugging Americans.

Of that problem, Willie Horton was the near-perfect symbol for a candidate running for president against Michael Dukakis. Horton, if you recall, was a convicted murderer under sentence of life imprisonment without possibility of parole. Under a policy firmly endorsed by Gov. Dukakis, however, Horton was free on his 10th "furlough" from prison when he raped a Maryland woman and brutalized her husband. Yet Dukakis wouldn't even see the couple when they came to Boston to protest.

Nothing there but racism? (Horton is black.) On the contrary, Massachusetts' treatment of Horton perfectly illustrates the indulgent liberal attitude toward criminals. How could a person like Dukakis, holding that view, be expected to lead a nation the overwhelming majority of whose citizens are coldly furious at such an attitude?

Behind and beneath the burgeoning crime statistics, however, most Americans believe that there is a more fundamental problem. They are convinced that a nation must command the respect of its citizens, and they believe that many of America's problems today are traceable to the fact that it no longer does: that contempt for this country and its ideals has replaced, in many minds, ordinary patriotism and civic pride, with devastating results.

Navy owes $3 billion to firms?

WASHINGTON — Two major aircraft builders have sued the Navy, effectively alleging they were illegally deprived of billions of dollars through military appropriations procedures designed to mislead Congress.

General Dynamics and McDonnell Douglas are suing for reimbursement of some $3 billion they spent in excess of what they have been reimbursed. It's the largest suit ever filed against the government in the U.S. Court of Claims.

This highly unusual legal case involves stealth aircraft technology: it revolves around some of the Pentagon's most classified secrets. Almost every document involved in the suit is classified top secret, and most of the case will have to be closed to the public.

In 1987, General Dynamics and McDonnell Douglas entered into a contract with the Navy that called for the eventual purchase of 620 A-12s. The stealth-type attack bombers — to be built over an 18-year period at a cost of $52 billion — were to replace the Navy's aging fleet of A-8 Intruders.

Although the contract called for the eventual acquisition of many of the radar-evading aircraft, it was written in phases, with the initial phase calling for design and production of a working prototype. The design phase carried a price tag of $4.8 billion.

The contract was unusual in that the contractors agreed to do the work for a fixed price. If it cost the contractors more than they bid, they would have to absorb any cost overruns. Previously, the design phases of most weapons systems have been "cost-plus" contracts — open-ended agreements with the Pentagon agreeing to pay the contractor's actual cost, plus a profit.

The A-12 project was a near disaster from the very beginning. Late last year, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney learned that the design phase was at least 18 months behind schedule. He also learned that it was going to cost at least $4 billion more than the agreed-upon $4.8 billion.

Additionally, the A-12 prototype was between 10 percent and 15 percent overweight, a critical problem because a carrier-based plane that is too heavy to take off is not of much use. Reportedly, the contractors and the Navy had wrestled for over a year with key problems: how to make a lightweight airframe strong enough to withstand the shocks of carrier landings; and how to develop the composite material for a radar-deflecting, stealth aircraft skin that could still withstand the corrosive effects of wind and salt water.

Given all the problems with the A-12, Cheney abruptly canceled the program in January.

The resulting suit, filed in open court, does not allege specific grounds. But sources close to the case say that General Dynamics and McDonnell Douglas will attempt to prove that every problem in designing the A-12 prototype was anticipated by the Navy long before the contract was ever signed.

The contractors will attempt to prove the Navy purposely hid the problems from both Pentagon higher-ups and Congress out of fear that they would not get funding for the plane.

The two firms will try to show that now the Navy is blaming them to hide its own guilt.

The contractors will also allege that the Navy reneged on a critical promise to supply them with basic design and metallurgy information, which was used in the successful B-2 stealth bomber and F-117 stealth fighter. Apparently, the Navy was unable to get the Air Force to part with the information. This meant the A-12 program had to start from scratch, almost assuring it would be way over budget, way over weight and way behind schedule.

To show how difficult this case will be to try, the lawsuit itself was in two parts, a highly abridged and censored version filed in open court, and a top-secret version that actually lays out in detail the companies' allegations.

There is a broader perspective to this suit: At its heart is the fact that for years it was standard procedure for the military and defense contractors to enter into agreements both sides knew were impossible to fulfill in order to placate Congress. It was understood that, at a future date, the contracts would be modified so the companies were guaranteed profits and the military got the weapons they needed — all the while evading congressional objections.

Pentagon sources say an attempt will be made to quickly settle the suit. But Congress may get deeply involved, given the nature of the allegations.

In the meantime, the Navy continues to insist that it still needs a new attack plane. Congress continues to agree and has appropriated $100 million for initial design work on a different version of the A-12. And true to the often bizarre world of defense contracting, both General Dynamics and McDonnell Douglas say they will compete for the new contract.

The case involves aircraft technology and Pentagon secrets.

Soviets tightening a grip on Baltics

VILNIUS, Lithuania — Soviet Paratrooper Unit 430 is practicing at a secret base in Russia for what might be a second attempt to mount a coup against the democratically elected government in this Baltic republic.

The paratrooper unit, together with key paratrooper divisions from the city of Pskov in Russia, are being stoked by speeches on the need to suppress the national separatist movement in Lithuania, according to intelligence sources.

The presence of these paratrooper divisions raises the specter of a repeat of "Bloody Sunday" when soldiers killed at least 14 unarmed demonstrators in seizing a 1,100-foot television tower last Jan. 14. It was part of an overall effort to muzzle Lithuania's independence-minded media.

Lithuanians remember that at 1:30 a.m. the paratrooper units in light tanks and armored personnel carriers rolled up Commonaut Avenue and up the hill to the tower, which was roughly barricaded with cars, furniture and hundreds of unarmed human beings. The stunned crowd hadn't expected them to roll right over everything, including demonstrators at the front, without warning. Among the casualties was a high school senior shot in the forehead, and a 22-year-old conscript in the Soviet Navy who had just returned two months before from submarine duty.

President Bush last week granted $1.5 billion in agricultural credits to the Soviets, who have asked for approximately $100 billion in aid. Baltic leaders are adamantly opposed to such a bailout until the reform process has sunk its roots deeper, and believe that the money only serves to sustain Stalinist elements within the government.

Radical reformist Boris Yeltsin, who was recently elected the first president of the Russian republic, was scheduled to meet with Bush at the White House yesterday. Yeltsin has backed the Baltic's independence movement, and is the darling of its people.

The lurking threat of a move against the Baltics underscores a paradox of perestroika: Even as the Communist Party's iron grip on the vast Russian republic is breaking, it may reassert itself elsewhere in the Soviet empire. The man at the center of the paradox is Soviet President (and, ironically, recent Nobel Peace Prize winner) Mikhail Gorbachev.

Last January, paratroopers were the iron hand of a long-developed plot, probably by the KGB and approved by Gorbachev, in which strife was sown using non-Lithuanians, with the military then moving in on cue to restore order. That's the consensus of political officials here, as well as intelligence sources in Washington.

The Soviet Defense Ministry warned on Jan. 7 that they would be sending elite paratrooper units to Vilnius — but for the purpose of rounding up draft dodgers. The next day, a pro-Soviet group made up of hardened Communists from among the substantial minority of Russians and Poles here tried to storm the democratic Parliament during a rowdy demonstration against price hikes. They were successfully resisted by pro-independence demonstrators at the scene.

Then-Lithuanian Prime Minister Kazimieras Prunskiene was meeting with Gorbachev in Moscow. As she was leaving the Kremlin, he instructed her to "Go back home and restore order. Otherwise I will be obliged to do the job myself." She asked him whether she could assure her people that force would not be used against Lithuanians.

"You cannot give them any assurances that I have not given you," he told her ominously.

A high school senior was shot in the forehead.

Appeals court refuses to drop parents' suit

By Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — A Boca Raton elementary school will not be shut down, but children will be kept away from nearby high-voltage lines during recess, following a decision by an appeals court.

The School Board is under a Circuit Court order barring use of playgrounds near the lines and also must obtain monthly reports on power levels from Florida Power & Light Co.

"I think it shows everybody else that we're in the right," said

Lynne Malone, who has kept her children out of Sandpiper Shores Elementary. "It's really an issue of concern, and apparently the appeals court feels so also."

Parents sued in November 1988 to close the school because of the potential harm from radiation fields created by the power lines by the school.

But the school was allowed to stay open — with temporary radiation testing, power level reports and playground limits.

School officials wanted the 4th District Court of Appeal to dismiss the case.

Protest

she had determined to be the illegality of refusing to put the referendum on the ballot, according to a report from a state court. She also asked Commissioner Mahoney why he had changed his mind, when he originally had expressed the desire that the matter be placed on the ballot.

Mahoney responded that after making his initial decision, he had been unable to sleep, and spent most of the night pondering over the situation. The next morning, he wrote a request to the City Manager to have the matter brought back onto the agenda so he could change his approach.

Sawyer cautioned the commissioners. "You are going to be held responsible for this if you take it to court, responsible to the voters."

Mayor Randy Morris, who had been vocal in his support of taking the matter to court, said, "One of the reasons this issue is so important is that it's a democratic functional matter, and I don't think we should be acting as the judge in this." He added, "I know if I was a petitioner, I would certainly want a judge to make the decision."

If the court decides in favor of the petitioners, the referendum as written, will be on the November ballot. If the court decides the petition is not properly written, or makes other findings against the petitioners, in order to have the matter put on the ballot, the group would possibly have to rewrite it. They would also need to obtain petition signatures, prior to resubmitting it. City Manager John Litton said that would have to be done by some time in August, in order to appear on the November ballot. "It has to be ready 60 days before the election," he said, "but before we got to that time, we would also need time to verify the signatures on a new petition."

Commissioners Mahoney and Tremel, and Mayor Morris voted in favor of having the matter taken to court. Commissioners Duryea and Meador voted against it. Also included in Mahoney's motion was the request that the City Attorney go forward in requesting the judicial review, and prepare the matter for presentation in court.

Julian had said during a previous discussion, that should the commission choose to take it to court, it would probably not be too long before a hearing date could be set. There is presently no indication as to when the matter will be formally submitted to the court.

church property, as well as approximately 30 other parcels were taken over by the state for the expressway. "The price approved for the church property was $650,000," he said. "The Expressway Authority and the DOT consider the amount to be a fair market value." Brinton said a previous property appraisal paid for by the church did not meet uniform appraisal standards. He said he has had discussions with the church's attorney, and was informed that another appraisal would be made.

As for the $650,000, he said, "It has been placed in an account and the church will be able to make withdrawals that will help it to make payments on the interest and other debts." He explained that the amount is not the total to be offered. "We have to consider all of the things that will be necessary for a move to another location that are beyond the requirements at their present site, such as additional paved parking areas, water and sewer, and other needs."

The latest amount requested by the church was $930,290, made on February 24 of this year. The minister had later informed Brinton. "Since the date of that offer we have lost an additional $9,300 in interest waiting for your response and, as noted by the unanimous vote cast at our congregational meeting on April 21, 1991, that offer is no longer valid or acceptable."

At yesterday afternoon's hearing, the church was given until November 1 to relocate. Brinton said, "We are going to try to give them an extension so they can stay in the building at least through Christmas." He added, "After that time, we have offered them temporary free use of space in the Zayres Plaza, should it be needed."

Discussions are continuing between the church and the expressway authority. Both are hoping to resolve the problem soon, and determine how much additional money the authority may be able to obtain for the church, to complete the settlement.

Parents Beatings

example, when the kids have a soccer game in Osceola and don't get home till midnight and then have to get up at 5 the next morning to get ready for school?" asked Judy Williams, a member of the LSAC.

Hughes, whose youngest daughter graduated from high school this month, said he understands the parents' concerns and hopes they will understand the school board's position.

"Of course we understand that they are trying to save money," Williams said, "but they must understand that our lives will be disrupted too much if this is more than a temporary solution to the problem."

The group expressed concerns that the change would become institutionalized and that when parents asked to have it returned to the original schedule it would be viewed as, in Southward's words, "an extravagance."

The parents say that they will go along with the solution to the district's financial woes for one year.

"If they try to impose these hours again next year," Williams said, "we'll have to look long and hard at the situation."

The letter written by Southward was intended to let the board know the parents' position not as a formal protest to the situation.

"We just wanted to let them know where we stood on this issue," Williams said. "That's it."

states the seven youths began punching and kicking Sutton who was covering himself in an effort to try to fend off the blows and kicks to his face, head and body. Brewster reported $2 in cash and $24 in food stamps was removed from Sutton's pockets during the beating.

Once, when Sutton got up, he was pushed to the ground and the beating resumed. Brewster's report states.

"They kicked and beat the victim almost beyond recognition causing his face to swell way beyond normal size, his right eye (was) completely shut with blood draining out, possibly (causing the) loss of (the) eye or vision," Brewster reported.

Sutton managed to get to a nearby house where he called for help and was taken by ambulance to Central Florida Regional Hospital, reports state.

After robbing Sutton, police say the youths next appeared on the 1100 block of Cypress Avenue almost an hour later where they were joined by two other youths, reports state.

As James Sims approached the group on his bicycle, witnesses at the scene later told police investigator Paul Little that Bell stated "I got to have it." Little reported witnesses told him Bell's statement indicated to them he planned to rob Sims.

As Sims rode by the group, Little reported Bell knocked Sims to the ground using a "clothesline" maneuver where he extended his arm the side of Sims' head, causing him to fall backwards. Sims' head struck the pavement, leaving him unconscious, reports state.

Little reported witnesses told him Bell then took a bottle of wine and Sims' wallet and ran from the scene. A short time later, witnesses reported Bell met the group near 14th Street and Locust Avenue where he had a bottle of wine and a wallet with Sims' photograph in it. The wallet was later recovered from a nearby rooftop.

Sims, never regaining consciousness, was taken to CFRH where he was placed on life support. On June 13, life support was removed and on June 15, at 7:15 a.m., Sims died. An autopsy revealed Sims died from a fractured skull and brain damage.

Lawyer: Bus searches may intimidate riders

By JAMES H. RUSH Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A Supreme Court ruling that lets police board buses and randomly ask passengers if they will submit to searches for drugs could make travel "oppressive" for many innocent people, a civil liberties lawyer says.

University of Miami law professor Mary Coombs, representing the American Civil Liberties Union, said Thursday's high court decision "in theory is not bad."

But, she said, what it means is that "in the real world police will keep on making life inconvenient, difficult and oppressive for bus passengers who don't have any drugs."

Sheriff's Maj. Ralph Page of Broward County, Fla. — where Thursday's case originated — said the ruling was a bonus for law enforcement. The searches are "an effective tool in the fight against narcotics distribution," he said.

The justices, voting 6-3, ruled that officers may board buses and ask any passenger to consent to a search.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, in her opinion for the court, said the widespread law-enforcement tactic does not violate the rights of passengers as long as they feel free to refuse the police request.

Police don't need a court warrant or a suspicion that a crime has been committed to ask passengers to submit to searches, she said, adding that the same principles apply to searches on trains, planes and other forms of public transportation.

The dissenters in the bus-search case condemned what they said is the court's growing tolerance of abusive police behavior.

The ruling was no surprise from an increasingly conservative court.

Metamorphosis

"Mom, there's an of' creepy, crawly caterpillar on our porch!"

Mom knows that when the metamorphosis is complete, that "creepy, crawly, caterpillar" will have evolved into a beautiful butterfly, bursting with brilliant colors, no longer crawling, but sailing through the air on gossamer wings.

At times we may feel like that caterpillar... moving slowly, with doubtful direction. Yet, if God has given such caring consideration to the caterpillar, will He not also care for us and guide us?

Have faith in God. Be patient. Allow Him to work in your life as He will. Though life on earth might, at times, not be as beautiful as we would hope, our lives will glow with serenity and faith; and eternal life with our Heavenly Father will be even more beautiful than we can possibly imagine.

This week, worship our Creator as you come with humility, praise, and prayer. Though our metamorphosis is not yet complete, our Maker has promised that we can become a beautiful "new creature" as we finally emerge an eternal child of God.

Soldiers look to the Bible

The Bible was the most sought-after item among troops in Saudi Arabia, says Col. David P. Peterson, who served as the U.S. central command chaplain there.

"We could never get enough of them," he told a recent meeting of the American Bible Society, which had sent 300,000 special camouflage-covered Bibles to the area.

"Never in my life have I seen so many servicemen reading the Bible," Peterson said.

Reform Judaism convention set

FORT LAUDERDALE — Reform Judaism may issue a call for the trial of Iraq's Saddam Hussein as a war criminal.

That proposal goes before the annual convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis in Fort Lauderdale June 24-27. It also is to consider an updated code of ethics for rabbis.

The Church of God's 67th Annual State Convention will be held at the Ocean Center, Daytona Beach, June 25-30.

Special morning worship services will be conducted daily at 11 a.m.; evening worship services will be 7 p.m. nightly. The official opening of the convention will be on June 26 at 7 p.m.

There will be Bible classes on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday mornings beginning at 9:45 a.m.

The Sunday morning messenger will be the distinguished Overseer of the Churches of God in the State of Florida (Cocoa Headquarters), the Rev. Quan Lamone Miller.

Let us know what's going on

The Sanford Herald welcomes news about church activities and news for publication in the Religion page each Friday.

The following suggestions are recommended to expedite publication:

1. All items should be typed or written legibly and include the name of a person who can be contacted and a daytime phone number.
2. The deadline is 11 a.m. Wednesday before publication. There is no charge for publication.

Living life worthy of its calling

By REV. CHARLES B. PITROFF

"As a prisoner for the Lord, then, I urge you to live a life worthy of the calling you have received." Ephesians 4:1 (N.I.V.)

Many years ago as a young Christian, I read a book entitled "In His Steps" (Shelton) that greatly affected my life. It was the story of a preacher and his church that lived their lives according to the promise that in all their decisions they would ask the question "what would Jesus do?" This greatly affected their lives and the lives of their community.

In Ephesians 4:1, the apostle Paul exhorts us to live a life worthy of the "calling" which we have received. We would not send our children to a school which boasts of its failures, nor would we seek out a doctor with a notoriety for malpractice. Instead we look for those that have the best reputation in their field. Why should this be any different in the Christian life? To many Christianity is a religion, but in reality it is a life and as the apostle stated "a calling."

What is this "calling"? It is that divine summons that God gives to each of us as

To many Christianity is a religion, but in reality it is a life and as the apostle stated "a calling."

-Rev. Charles B. Pitroff

sinners to receive His forgiveness for sin and to be reconciled to His fellowship. It implies that men are condemned and need to be redeemed. Through the vicarious atonement of Jesus Christ, we are offered this forgiveness. However, like any offered gift, it is necessary to accept that gift before it becomes effectual in our lives. The apostle Peter states "Be all the more eager to make your calling and election sure." (II Peter 2:10).

Having done this, it is now incumbent upon us to live a life that is worthy of the calling. The Apostle Paul speaks of being a prisoner of the Lord. Although he was being held in a Roman jail, he felt that his circumstances were under the control of his master Jesus. He desired that his life would reflect his relationship to that master.

Paul instructed the Christians to walk "worthy" of that calling. In the following verses, he instructs us to be humble, gentle, patient, and to be bearing with one another in love. He speaks of unity in the Spirit through the bond of peace.

Later in this same fourth chapter of Ephesians, he tells us to put off the old way of living and to put on that which would emulate the life of Christ. To many of us this means a drastic change of lifestyle. Before we received that free gift, our life reflected the embodiment of self will. We wanted to do our thing regardless of what God had to say. Now, to live a life worthy of that calling, we become obedient to the world and will of God.

In conclusion, we need to consider the following questions. Have I made certain of that calling? Is my life that which is worthy of that calling? Can others see Jesus Christ in my life?

Rev. Charles B. Pitroff is a chaplain of the Good News Mission of the John E. Palk Correctional Facility, Sanford.

Jehovah's Witnesses convention scheduled

Jehovah's Witnesses from central and west Florida will again hold a series of five district conventions in St. Petersburg's bayfront area. Four conventions, each running three days, Friday to Sunday, are scheduled back-to-back June 28 through July 28, according to Charles Wöhringer of the Jehovah's Witness News Service Department.

Convention programs consist of talks, discussions, true-to-life presentations, called demonstrations, experiences on how some have met the challenge of Christian living, and a drama in ancient and modern day settings.

The theme, "Lovers of Freedom" accentuates the belief of Jehovah's Witnesses that only Jehovah has absolute freedom. Those who willingly serve him receive the freedom and blessings the Bible described in Isaiah 60:13, 14.

District conventions, 144 total, are being held in 81 different cities throughout the continental United States during the summer. Of these, 14 will be held in six Florida cities with approximately 77,000 attending. Total U.S. attendance is expected to exceed 1,400,000 people. Two hundred five congregations from west and central Florida will send delegates to these St. Petersburg conventions.

Each Witness is ordained as a minister at the time of his baptism, which is accompanied by a formal ceremony. A Witness ministers to family, friends, and public by preaching under the direction of his local congregation. A baptism and ordination ceremony will be held on Saturday mornings.

The principal talk, designed to appeal particularly to the public will be Sundays at 2:10 p.m. on the subject "Hailing God's New World of Freedom." All convention sessions are open to the public and free of charge. No collection is ever taken.

Jehovah's Witnesses today are just the culmination of a long line of Witnesses of God that started with Abel, the son of Adam and Eve. They acknowledge God's Kingdom under Christ as a government soon to rule all the earth in righteousness. They trust in this Bible based promise and are therefore neutral toward all human governments.

The modern organization has been closely associated with the Watch Tower Bible & Tract Society, which was incorporated in 1884.

Speaker from down under

The public is invited to join the congregation of Family Worship Center, 2451 Airport Blvd., Sanford, to listen and learn from Trevor Yaxley, from New Zealand, as he ministers from June 28-29 at 7 p.m. If you are in the ministry or want to be, this is your opportunity to go forward in the things of God. For more information, call 322-6222.

Local Assembly of God recognized for attendance

Trinity Assembly of God, 675 Elkam Blvd., Deltona, is one of the largest Assemblies of God Sunday schools in the U.S., according to reports compiled by the church's national Sunday School Department.

Phoenix, led all Assemblies of God churches in Sunday school size with 10,077 in attendance, according to the list. The Rev. Tommy Barnett is pastor of the church.

One hundred Sunday schools were named by the national department as the largest in the Assemblies of God denomination. The Rev. Charles Evans is pastor of the local church which placed 45th. Pastor Evans attributes the strength of the local Sunday school to the faithfulness and the Christian walk of the teachers and departmental superintendents.

The top ten each have an average attendance of over 2,000, including seventh ranked Assembly of God, in Pace, Florida, with 2,529 in attendance. Glyn Lowery Jr., pastor.

Total enrollment in Assemblies of God Sunday schools in the U.S. is over 1.4 million. The fellowship now has over 30,000 ministers and 11,353 churches in this country.

The denomination is headquartered in Springfield, Mo.

Focus on violence, gun curbs

By AMANDA ROYALEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration dropped two of the most controversial elements of its anti-crime package as the Senate began debate on measures to reduce street violence and curb illegal use of guns.

The administration abandoned a proposal to conduct essentially secret trials with secret evidence to deport aliens suspected of terrorist activity.

It also jettisoned a provision that would have allowed firearms illegally seized by police to be used as evidence in federal criminal trials.

The last-minute changes, however, failed to win Democratic votes for President Bush's crime package. A Republican motion to substitute the modified Bush bill for the Democratic crime package failed on a 50-40 vote Thursday night, largely along party lines.

Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said the vote showed that Democrats have discovered that "President Bush's crime bill doesn't really curb street crime."

Democrats are pushing a series of gun-control proposals, including a seven-day waiting period on handgun purchases.

Bush has indicated he would sign gun-control measures if Congress enacts his proposals to expand the federal death penalty, make it more difficult for state inmates on death row to challenge their sentences in federal courts and give federal agents more leeway in conducting searches.

Biden also proposes the death penalty for more than 30 federal crimes, but his bill contains less strict provisions on defendants' rights.

His bill would codify recent Supreme Court decisions to admit evidence seized by police who made an honest mistake executing a valid search warrant.

Republicans are expected to seek a separate vote on the president's plan to change the so-called exclusionary rule that bans trial use of illegally obtained evidence. Bush's bill would allow use of such evidence seized during a warrantless search if the officers thought they were acting legally.

"We need to make these reforms," Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, said in urging support of the Bush bill. "We have people getting off on technicalities today and being put right back on the streets."

One proposal deleted Thursday would have allowed firearms to be introduced as evidence in any federal criminal case even if police conducted a search they knew to be illegal.

Baptists elect president

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — Delegates to the American Baptist Churches convention on Thursday elected the Rev. James Scott as their new president.

American Baptist Churches, which split from the much larger Southern Baptist Convention over the issue of slavery before the Civil War, has about 1.3 million members in nearly 5,800 churches, spokesman Richard Schramm said. The group is based in Valley Forge, Pa.

About 2,000 delegates attending the American Baptist Churches biennial convention elected Scott for a two-year term. He was nominated by a national committee and ran unopposed.

Manson follower returns to California

BRIDGPORT, Vt. — Sandra Good, a follower of cult leader and mass murderer Charles Manson, has left Vermont and moved back to California to live near the prison where Manson is serving a life sentence.

Good served 10 years in prison for mailed threats to industrialists she accused of polluting the Earth. Under terms of her 1985 parole, she was not to contact Manson or other members of the so-called Manson family.

Her parole expired in December. But Los Angeles Deputy District Attorney Steven Kay said Wednesday he doubts Corcoran State Prison officials will let Good see Manson. "He's allowed no visitors with felony convictions," Kay said.

Yeltsin's words welcome

WASHINGTON — Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin mouthed all the right words to win friends in Washington this week, but the Bush administration would have preferred to have heard them from Mikhail S. Gorbachev, President Bush's ally and Yeltsin's chief rival.

For three days, the newly elected president of the Soviet Union's largest republic pledged his commitment to democracy, free enterprise, private property and land reform to return farmland to the farmers.

He found other touchstones as well, telling his American audiences the Soviet Union needs not their handouts but rather their ideas, their expertise and their investment. He said Soviet aid to Cuba should be cut off, and the Baltic republics should be given their independence.

The Washington Post editor retires

WASHINGTON — Benjamin C. Bradlee, the tough, blunt-speaking executive editor of The Washington Post, is retiring from the newspaper he steered to national prominence through its Watergate coverage.

He will resign Sept. 1, six days after his 70th birthday. Bradlee's successor in the job, one of the best in American journalism, will be Managing Editor Leonard Downie Jr., 49.

Government alerts public to new scam

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Americans who think they will win a dream vacation by calling a number on a postcard often discover later that they lost more than a great trip. Also gone, sometimes without their consent, is a piece of their checking accounts.

The latest fraudulent scheme by unsavory telephone marketing firms has triggered special alerts to banks by the FBI, the Federal Reserve, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Comptroller of the Currency.

The trouble begins when the telephone sales person, hawking a vacation, low-interest credit card or other product, lures the customer into providing his checking account numbers.

The unethical operator then encodes the account number on a demand draft — forms that can be used to withdraw funds quickly. Meanwhile, the promoted product is rarely delivered.

Victims often don't learn of such a withdrawal until they spot it on a monthly bank statement. Or, if they have orally agreed to a charge, they become furious when their account was charged but the product wasn't delivered.

The firms send out postcards to generate return calls or do direct dialing to hawk their promises of easy credit, grand prizes or services such as help in selling a used car.

In each case, there's a charge which — in the case of promised prizes — often is called a processing fee. The companies say they'll take care of the transaction if the customer will provide his checking account number.

Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., chairman of the House Small Business subcommittee on regulation, said the businesses possess "an impressive array of electronic and computerized tools which literally unlock the bank's safe."

Germany decides to move its capital back to Berlin

By KEVIN COSTAGALE
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN — Celebrations welcoming the federal government's return to Berlin gave way today to sobering predictions on the huge expense and work ahead to bring the seat of power back to Germany's historical and sentimental heart.

With the nation already strained by the costs and problems of reunification, moving federal offices from Bonn is expected to cost up to $41 billion and take at least 10 years.

"Now we have a lot of work to do," said Berlin Mayor Eberhard Diepgen today.

"It's only right that the seat of government come to Berlin," said Matthias Mueller, 28, an east Berlin resident. "It's going to cost a lot, and money is something that everybody needs right now."

In eastern Germany, many residents have complained that Chancellor Helmut Kohl has not fulfilled promises to rapidly integrate the former Communist nation into the prosperous west. Since unification, obsolete factories have closed and German officials have gradually raised the price tag for its goals to improve the eastern economy.

This year, $59 billion was budgeted for the effort.

It was not immediately certain whether the expenses of moving the capital will slow economic plans. But many residents in the east expected the government would move to Berlin and welcomed the new investment and jobs.

Yet higher prices are also likely in a city that's already becoming too expensive for some residents. The rent for a two-bedroom apartment in west Berlin can go for $1,400 a month. Diepgen has promised curbs on land speculators.

Both houses of parliament hold sessions in Berlin occasionally, but the immense project of building permanent government and parliament offices is in the early stages. Planners have shown a model with parliament and government buildings on both sides of the Spree River in the center of the city.

The Bundestag, the lower house of parliament, and the chancellor's office are expected to move to Berlin in about four years, after the renovation of the Reichstag, the old parliament building. The transfer is expected to take between 10 and 12 years.

Can't Sleep? You're not alone

By LARRY NEUMBIESTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Feeling pooped? If it's from lack of sleep, you're in the same bed with more than one-third of U.S. adults.

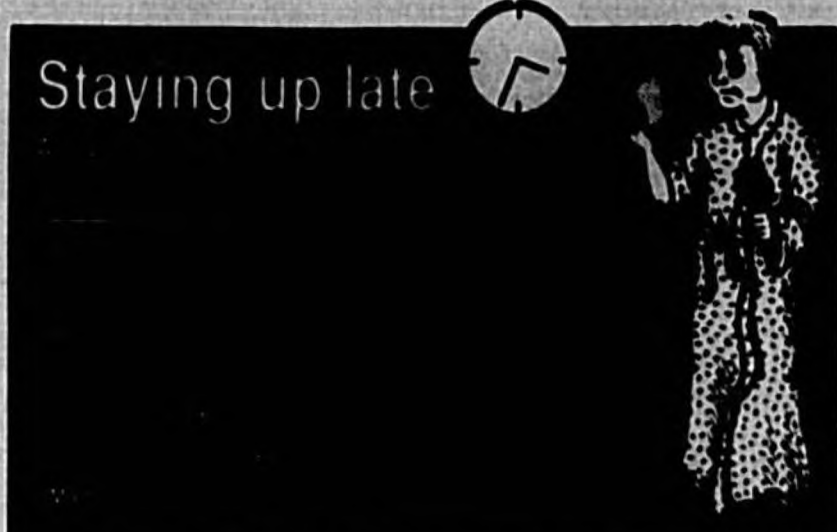

A Gallup Poll released Thursday found one in three Americans can't sleep — and that affects concentration, memory, daily tasks and relationships.

The poll also found that few insomniacs seek professional help even though insomnia cripples their abilities, including conversation.

Sleeping disorders affect 36 percent of American adults, with 27 percent of them suffering occasional insomnia and 9 percent reporting chronic problems snoring, according to the poll.

The insomniacs among 1,000 adults interviewed in the study during the second week of May most often complained that they woke up in the morning feeling drowsy or tired. A majority of them also said they awoke during the night and had difficulty falling asleep.

The study also found that insomniacs struggle to remember and that they have significantly more difficulty with minor irritations.

Other findings:
• To try to get to sleep, 28 percent of insomniacs have used alcohol, 29 percent tried over-the-counter medication, 12 percent used both and 40 percent have used neither. One in five have taken prescribed medications.
• One in 10 chronic insomniacs fall asleep while visiting friends.

Here's what to do

- The foundation recommends:
- Avoid caffeine within six hours of bed time.
- Avoid alcohol and smoking one to two hours before bedtime.
- Exercise regularly. Get vigorous exercise in the late afternoon. But strenuous exercise before sleep may impair sleep.
- Don't nap.
- Establish relaxing pre-sleep rituals, like a warm bath or a few minutes of reading.
- Do not use the bed as an office or a place to watch television.
- Get up about the same time every day, regardless of when you fall asleep.

SOUTHERN LEAGUE

Charlotte rallies by SunRays

FORT MILL, S.C. — Fernando Ramsey tripled in the bottom of the ninth to score Rusty Crockett and lead the Charlotte Knights to a 3-2 victory over the Orlando SunRays Thursday night. Ramsey led off the scoring in the third inning when he doubled and then scored on a double by Alex Arias. Arias then scored on Doug Welch's sacrifice fly. The SunRays scored in the fourth on an RBI single by Ray Ortiz, and then again in the eighth when Knights catcher Mike Knapp couldn't handle a throw from center field, which allowed Shawn Gilbert to score. The game was held up by a one-hour and 15-minute rain delay.

Heat narrow choice to three

MIAMI — The Miami Heat may not get much input on the upcoming NBA draft from their new head coach Kevin Loughery, who remains a lame-duck assistant coach with Atlanta, but they feel confident in their first-round pick. Miami's braintrust has narrowed its top choice for the No. 5 lottery pick to one of three players: Georgetown's 7-foot-2 center Dikembe Mutombo; Missouri's 6-10 forward Doug Smith; and Michigan State's 6-foot-7 guard Steve Smith. "All three will be career NBA players. I'm not smart enough to know which one will be great," said Miami player personnel director Stu Inman. Miami also owns the 29th pick and has an option on Los Angeles Lakers' 52nd pick. If Miami doesn't opt to use the pick up to 48 hours prior to the draft, then they'll receive the Lakers second round pick in 1992. Miami received the option as compensation for not selecting Kareem Abdul Jabbar in the 1988 expansion draft.

Rundle grabs share of lead

BOYNTON BEACH — Emma Rundle of Boca Raton fired a two under par 70 that included five birdies, a bogey and a double bogey on her last hole Thursday to share the lead after two rounds of the third annual Florida Ladies Amateur Championship. At 146, Rundle is tied with Diane Thompson of Ormond Beach and Lisa Nedoba of Plantation heading into the final round Friday on the 5,547-yard south course at Hunters Run Golf Club. Thompson and Nedoba each had a second straight 73. Andrea Dornin of Miami Springs, winner of the Florida Women's State Amateur Championship two of the last three years, is two strokes off the lead in fourth among 100 women at 74-74-148. Rounding out the top 10, all of whom qualified for the championship flight Friday were: Susan Cohn, Palm Beach Gardens, 74-75-149; Peggy Brass, Orlando, 73-76-149; Debbie Adams, Palm Beach Gardens, 75-75-150; Mary Dunne, Lauderdale-by-the-Sea, 79-72-151; Taffy Brower, Ocean Ridge, 76-75-151 and Stephanie Comstock, Jacksonville, 81-74-155.

What's a Hinny Minny?

Local All-Stars in St. Louis for tourney

By BRAD BERRY
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — Because of hard work and the generosity of several local sponsors, a team of 15 and 16-year-old baseball players are on the trip of their lives.

The team — playing as the Seminole Colt All-Stars — are in St. Louis today to start play in the Hinny Minny Tournament. There will be six teams left in the round-robin tournament, which runs through Sunday, by the time the local team arrives.

"Each player had to go out and get a sponsor before they could go," said manager Rod Ferguson. "They worked very hard to make this dream a reality and it should be a lot of fun."

The group, made up of 13 players and three coaches, hopes to take in a St. Louis Cardinal-San Diego Padre game while in town. They will complete the trip by stopping in Marietta, Georgia to play a game against the Marietta Colt All-Stars.

On the team's roster are six players from Seminole High School, four from Lake Mary and three players who have not yet started their high school careers. The young men have been together for several years in various leagues of the Seminole Pony Baseball Association at Five Points.

Five of the six players from the Tribe — David Eckstein, Scott Ferguson, Matt Freeman, Robbie Morgan and Jeremy Chanut — were starters on this year's varsity team as sophomores. The other Seminole

Beland fires Bullets past Oviedo

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — Chad Beland drove in three runs with a pair of doubles to highlight a six-hit attack, leading the Bullets to an 11-5 win over Oviedo in a National Amateur Baseball Federation game played Thursday night at Lyman High School.

The Bullets, 3-3 overall and 2-1 in NABF play, are a team of Lyman underclassmen. For Oviedo, 3-1 and 2-1, it was the first loss of the summer.

Tim Ruckdeschel (1-0), who pitched for the Lyman junior varsity team this past school year, picked up the win in his first start of the summer. He finished with six strikeouts and just one walk in four innings of work.

Jason Goodpastor, who will be a senior next year, pitched three innings to notch his second save of the summer.

Oviedo got to Ruckdeschel for three runs in the top of the third as starting pitcher Chris Stokes stroked a two-out two-run single. But the Bullets took advantage of three Oviedo errors, a walk, Beland's first double and a pass ball to score four runs in the home half of the inning.

The Bullets added three more

'Mom' throws wet blanket on Babe Ruth playoff game

By ROBBIE STOCK
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Mother Nature postponed the crowning of a second-half champion of the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth League when rains halted Thursday night's one-game playoff between the Rotary Club Royals and Prestige Lumber Expos at Chase Park.

The Royals trailed 4-2 in the bottom of the third but had Eric Ingram on second and Terrance Jenkins at the plate with just one out when rain and lightning forced the contest to be postponed until tonight at 6:30 p.m.

Because the game did not get through three complete innings, both squads will be allowed to use last night's starting pitchers.

Despite striking out the side in the second and third innings, Royals pitcher Eric Roberts couldn't keep the Expos off the scoreboard, who scored a single run in the first and three in the third.

Expos pitchers Andre Rawlings helped his own cause by beating out a grounder to the shortstop in the first inning. He crossed the plate on Todd Braden's double to left field.

The Royals countered in the second. Bo Pearson walked, took second on an error, went to third on Albert Williams's single and scored when Robert Barns singled.

In the top of the third, Rawlings started things again, doubling a 1-0 offering to right field. After stealing third, he crossed the plate on a two-out single by Derek Brinson. Braden scored right behind Rawlings when the attempted throw to nail Brinson skipped past the Royal first baseman. Brinson made it 4-1 after another Royal error.

Willie Williams walked, stole two bases and scored on a fielder's choice by Roberts to cut the lead to 4-2 before the rain came.

The winner will take on the first half champion, the Cardinals, in a best-of-three series for the city title beginning Saturday at 9 a.m.

Peterson-Richardson

SANFORD — Mrs. Gwendolyn Dixon Morgan and Mr. Jimmie Peterson, Sanford, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Keesha Yvette, to James Kevin Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Richardson, Sanford.

Born in Elizabeth, N.J., the bride-elect is the maternal granddaughter of the late Theresa M. Dixon and Frank Dixon Sr., Washington, D.C. and the paternal granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Peterson, Sanford.

Ms. Peterson is a 1990 graduate of Seminole High School, Sanford, where she was active on the volleyball team and a member of AAU. She is presently employed by Florida Polymers.

Her fiance, born in Sanford, is the maternal grandson of Viola and Heale Durham, both deceased.

He is a 1989 graduate of Seminole High School, where he

Keesha Yvette Peterson and James Kevin Richardson

Pastor deserves compensation

DEAR ABBY: One would think that after 34 years of pastoral experience, I would have been prepared, but when asked by a professional adult, whose father's funeral I had just conducted, "What do you charge?" I answered, "Nothing!" The reply I received was, "If you will give me the name and address of your church, I will send a check in your honor."

I should have said, "Nothing, but I am accustomed to receiving an honorarium — especially from non-church members." And I could have added, "Today is my third trip to this city, totaling 240 miles. At a mere 20 cents per mile, that would be almost $60 for expenses alone — not including the six to eight hours spent in travel and preparation."

Last month I was asked to conduct a funeral service for a non-church member who lived in our community. I received an honorarium of $100, which was greatly appreciated and set aside for a future vacation.

The majority of pastors are underpaid and taken for granted. My wife reminded me of the time I was paid $10 for a wedding with the suggestion that I split it with the pianist!

ANOTHER GEORGIA PASTOR

DEAR PASTOR: Perhaps your letter will remind readers who require the services of a clergyman for happy occasions (weddings, christenings) as well as sad ones (funerals, last rites, etc.) that Hoover is no longer in the White House, and the clergyman should be appropriately compensated for his/her automobile use, gasoline, dry cleaning, haircut — not to mention the effort and the time spent in preparing and delivering the service.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter and her husband are separated. Their children — an 8-year-old daughter and 11-year-old son — spend one weekend with their father and the next with their mom.

When they are at their father's, both children sleep in the same double bed with him. I think this is a bad idea and I told him so. His reaction to my protestations was, "Well it's not as though I sleep in the nude — I always wear shorts!"

Abby, both children are developing rapidly and our whole family is concerned about their sleeping arrangements when they're at their dad's. Are we overreacting? Or do you think our concerns are valid?

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Your concerns are valid. Not only should your grandson and granddaughter not be sleeping with their father — they should not be sleeping with each other.

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh when I read the letter from "A Lusting Guy in Indy" who roamed the malls lusting after slim maidens in tight jeans.

After 23 years of marriage, like a lot of other women, I've put on a few extra pounds. Try as I may, I can't get them off.

One day, my hubby asked me — with a sad expression, "Whatever happened to that little 24-inch waist I married?"

I replied — with an equally sad expression, "Well, Dear, I left it in the '60s with your hair!" (He's bald!)

NOBODY'S PERFECT

DEAR ABBY: Re a recent letter in your column concerning a convicted felon's right to vote: While it is true (as you said) that a felon may not vote while he is serving time, ex-felons can vote — at least they can in California. Being an ex-felon myself, I know how embarrassing it can be to reveal that one is an ex-felon.

Serve community through volunteer opportunities

The Volunteer Center is a clearinghouse for volunteers in Orange, Osceola and Seminole counties. Call 321-5739 for more information.

Friendly visitors are needed by Visiting Nurses Association to visit frail elderly clients and help with shopping for clients.

Clerical helpers to answer phones and screen applicants for Legal Aid Services of Seminole County.

Volunteers needed to assist in the placement of volunteers at the Volunteer Center of Seminole County.

Ann Young Wildbird Refuge to help care for orphaned birds with feeding, cleaning and running errands.

Temporary Living Center needs people to cuddle, rock and give affection to babies whose mothers are in treatment for chemical dependency.

Volunteers to help in the assistance of constructing nature trails and maintaining existing trails for Lower Wekiva River State Preserve in Sanford. Must enjoy outside physical work. Saturdays available.

Thus, many ex-felons do not ask if they may register to vote after their sentences are up. Many believe that they have forever lost their right to vote, which is not true.

Ex-felons can vote, take out loans, and even become lawyers in many places. Please make this clear.

A LOYAL READER, SACRAMENTO

DEAR READER: Thank you for making it clear that after convicted felons have served their time, they regain their right to vote in California.

DEAR ABBY: From time to time you print letters about some small act of human kindness. I submit the following:

A little over a year ago, my husband, a staff sergeant in the Marine Corps, was leaving to spend a year away from his family. This was a very difficult time for us. His flight left from San Francisco, so my brother (who lives in the Bay area), met my husband at the airport and took him out for a real nice dinner before putting him on the plane.

While they were enjoying their dinner, the waitress came up to them and informed them that a gentleman a few tables away had already paid for their meal! Neither my brother nor my husband knew this man. When the anonymous benefactor stood up to leave, my husband stood up, walked over to him, shook his hand and thanked him.

The man replied, "Thank you, Marine!"

SANDRA GALLAGHER, MATHER A.F.B., CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: The copy of

"Please God, I'm Only 17" appeared in today's Chicago Tribune, and its appearance was very timely. Just yesterday, I confiscated my 17-year-old son's driver's license after overhearing a conversation with a friend in which he boasted of doing 60 in a 45-mile zone on a small residential country road. (I didn't know yet how long I would keep it or what else I might have him do in order to make an impression.)

I decided upon the following course of action after reading your column. I clipped it and gave it to him with the following:

"Dear John: When you copy this little piece, 'Please God, I'm Only 17,' 25 times in your neatest writing and on good paper, and prominently display all 25 copies in your bedroom (nope, make an extra two copies, one for each car), you may have your license back. John, this is called tough love. Remember it. You may have to use it some day with one of your own children. I love you. Mom"

Hypoglycemia can usually be corrected through diet

DEAR DR. GOTT: Would you please comment on hypoglycemia? My doctor tells me there is no such thing; it is just a symptom. If that is so, why do I have attacks of hunger and weakness?

DEAR READER: For many years, hypoglycemia was a popular diagnosis used to explain the weakness and hunger experienced by people several hours after a meal.

attacks or emotionally maladaptive behavior.

Fortunately, the non-surgical treatment for most hypoglycemia and the post-prandial syndrome is the same: frequent small meals, avoidance of refined sugar products and

Within the last decade, authorities have come to believe that, based on scientific studies, hypoglycemia is actually quite unusual and should not be diagnosed unless two criteria are met: The patient must have symptoms at the time the blood sugar is low (less than 45 milligrams per deciliter), and the symptoms must be relieved by raising the blood sugar. When it appears, hypoglycemia is a symptom (not a disease) that often indicates the presence of an insulin-secreting tumor in the pancreas. Such a tumor must be surgically removed.

Many normal people have occasional blood sugar readings below 45 mg/dL, but they don't have symptoms or any health problems.

Conversely, some adults with normal blood sugars experience sweating, nervousness, hunger, thirst and weakness — the symptoms of "hypoglycemia" without hypoglycemia. This has become known as the "post-prandial syndrome," meaning that symptoms occur after eating, for no apparent reason.

Therefore, your doctor was probably correct, providing he or she checked your blood sugar at the time you were experiencing symptoms — and the reading was normal.

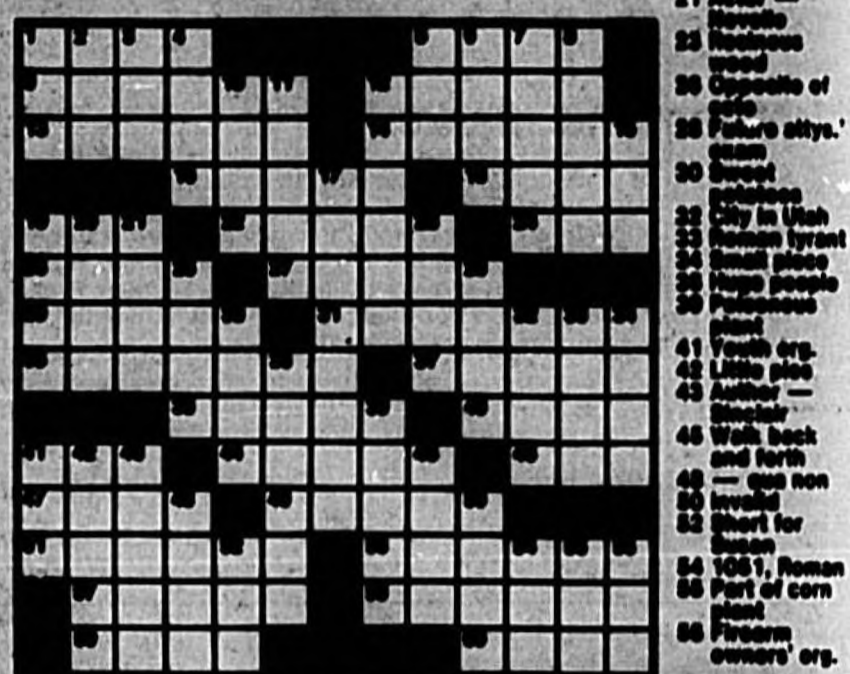

When given this information, patients may become disappointed because they no longer have a "disease" to explain their symptoms. This is especially true when knowledgeable doctors then suggest the person may be suffering from anxiety hunt assiduously for an alternative line that will work even if the key finesse is going to lose.

Temporarily obliterate the East-West cards and decide on your line of play in six spades. West, who opened three clubs as dealer, leads his singleton trump 10.

Here South spotted an alternative line. As long as West's clubs were headed by the A-Q-J, the contract was ensured. Declarer won the trump lead in hand, drew three rounds of hearts ending in the dummy, and called for the club 10.

It isn't clear how to bid a hand like South's. Many would double and then bid four spades, hoping to convey the message that the hand is worth a little more than an immediate four spades. Here, though, it didn't matter, since North decided he had enough to take a shot at the slam.

At first glimpse, the slam seems to depend on a successful diamond finesse. But experts hate to rely on finesses. They

When East played low, declarer discarded the diamond five. West won the trick but had no winning play. If he cashed the club ace, dummy's king would be established to provide a discard for the diamond queen. If instead he led a diamond, it would be into South's A-Q. Of course if East had produced a club higher than the 10, declarer would have been forced to ruff and fall back on the diamond finesse.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 23, 1991

Involvements in imaginative and creative endeavors could help enhance your earnings in the year ahead. When you feel you've got something good, get it to those who have pipelines to the marketplace.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It could prove unwise today to take an outlandish gamble in the hope of recouping a previous loss. Instead of getting even, there's a possibility you may fall further in the hole. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3429.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be willing to help others today, provided the ideas originate with you. Conversely, if you feel that demands are being made of you, you could turn a deaf ear.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may become involved in a situation today that will require bold action on your behalf in order to bring it to fruition. Don't let self-doubts override opportunity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be careful today to avoid misunderstandings with friends over money or material things. Financial involvements with pals could be like mixing milk and mud.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It would be a shame to waste your time and energy today fighting an uphill battle for something rather insignificant. Carefully evaluate your objectives and toss out the losers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instead of worrying about how much others will do for you today, be honest with yourself by asking, "How much are you prepared to do for them?" If you come up short, reduce your expectations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) People you're socially involved with cannot be relied on today to assist you in feathering your nest in the commercial world. You're on your own when you step into that arena.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your chart shows that you may be too attentive to those who offer you faulty counsel and not attentive enough to those who offer you sound advice today. This could spell trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Problems in relationships can be avoided today — if you're not too critical of friends or apt to remake them over in your own image. Look up to pals, not down on them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Abide by the ideals in which you firmly believe. Don't let companions or associates pressure you into abandoning them today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may not have adequate faith in your own judgment today, and this could cause you complications — if you have to deal with a forceful individual. Remember, a big mouth doesn't make anyone right.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may have to work in close proximity with someone who is both careless and temperamental today. Be extra watchful if this individual has to use unfamiliar tools or materials. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
