For Ambulance Service

County Commission Leaning To Subsidy

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

County Commissioners may make a decision Tuesday on whether to continue its contractual arrangement with Herndon Ambulance Service for emergency ambulance service in the county or to provide the service in-house.

Three of the five commissioners today were leaning toward continuing with Herndon for the remainder of this fiscal year ending Sept.

'I would have to see justification'

30. The deciding factor they said, will be the amount of subsidy Herndon will insist upon.

Commissioners Dick Williams and Bob French said they would favor continuing the arrangement with Herndon at a subsidy of no more than $6,200 monthly. Currently the county is paying Herndon a subsidy of $6,200 monthly on a month-to-month basis.

Commissioner Bob Sturm said he also favors continuing with Herndon "at a minimum subsidy, if any subsidy at all."

"I still feel $6,200 is too high. I would have to see justification, something showing Herndon is really losing that much money," Sturm said. He added, however, the word subsidy may not be appropriate.

"If the county determines it is necessary to contract for an essential service, the amount contracted for is not necessarily a subsidy. In my mind there is a difference between a subsidy and a contract for service."

All three commissioners said it would be impossible for the county to go into the emergency ambulance business in less than three-to-four months.

"If we are talking about advanced level service, it would take eight-to-nine months to train para-medics," Williams said. "There is no way we can go into the service in-house by next week or next month," French said.

Sturm said continuing the program with Herndon would give the county additional time to look not only at an in-house service, but also to seek other alternatives. "If Herndon will agree to a minimum subsidy, I'm not opposed to continuing with the firm through Oct. 1, 1980," Sturm said.

Sturm said he has had numerous calls from constituents expressing views ranging from discontinuing contractual ambulance service entirely to the county providing maximum service regardless of the cost. "The answer is somewhere between the extremes," he said.

Williams said that no matter which way the county ultimately opts to go, "I do not see increasing taxes to do it."

"Right now I'm waiting to hear from (Idus) Willis," French said.

Idus Willis, president of Herndon Ambulance Service, is to let commissioners know today whether his firm will continue the same level of service it is currently providing for $6,200 monthly.

During negotiations with the county over the past six months or so, the firms first request for subsidy, dependent on the degree of service desired has risen from $75,000 annually to $409,852.

The current level of service has three ambulances stationed in the county with back-up provided from Orange County if needed. All three ambulances are used both for emergencies and transport of patients from home to hospital, etc.

County Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser, however, has said the county's code requires three ambulances for emergency use only, saying that Herndon, by using the three ambulances for emergency and transport has not been complying with the contract.

Kaiser's proposal for in-house service ranges from a cost of $643,000 initially for minimum service to $208,571 for expanded service.

WHEN IT BREAKS IT POURS

Steve Gividen, customer service employee for the Sanford Utility Department, is up to his elbow in water trying to repair a broken water main at Eighth Street and Elliott Avenue this morning. Two other breaks in water mains had Gividen flooded with work today. Mack LaZenby, city engineer and utility director, said the breaks were "coincidental" and not related to changes in the weather. "It's Monday morning everywhere," said LaZenby.

Guilty Plea By Dancy In Slaying?

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

The on-again, off-again plea bargaining arrangement with Jacqueline McCann Dancy is on again.

Mrs. Dancy was expected to plead guilty to second degree murder this afternoon at the Seminole County Courthouse, according to her attorney, Roger Berry of Sanford.

The 21-year-old woman is charged with first degree murder in connection with the shotgun and strangulation murder of her husband, 29-year-old Edward Dancy.

Dancy's body was discovered New Year's Day 1978 in a ditch on South Sanford Avenue, about one-half mile south of Sanford. His hands and feet were bound and his body was wrapped in a pink blanket.

Mrs. Dancy's boyfriend, Charles Ira Hackett, 24, has already pleaded guilty to second degree murder and possession of a short-barreled shotgun in the case. Hackett's sentencing was delayed until Mrs. Dancy's case is settled, since part of plea negotiations call for him to testify against his former lover.

Hackett has told authorities he was already at 613 Prairie Lake Drive in Fern Park, where he lived with Mrs. Dancy, when she and her husband arrived there on New Year's Eve 1978.

Mrs. Dancy and her husband had been fighting throughout the evening after she informed him she was living with another man. At the time, Dancy was serving in the United States Coast Guard and was stationed in Staten Island, N.Y.

He had gotten leave after his wife asked him to return to Florida for her birthday which is Dec. 31.

After the couple arrived at the house, Dancy, who was also a member of the Breed motorcycle gang, began chasing his wife with a knife, Hackett told authorities. Hackett said he shot Dancy to protect Mrs. Dancy.

Hackett told authorities he left the house to call an ambulance, but the call was never made. Instead he returned to the house to find Mrs. Dancy strangling her husband with a piece of cord.

Autopsy results indicate Dancy was shot in the throat but died of strangulation. He would have died from the shotgun wound had he not received medical attention, authorities said.

Hackett, who has undergone lie detector testing, told authorities Mrs. Dancy convinced him they had to get rid of the body so they drove to the ditch where it was left.

A few weeks after the murder, Hackett was arrested for burglary. While in jail, two indictments in the murder were handed up by the Seminole County Grand Jury. One named Hackett and the other Mrs. Dancy, but by this time she had fled the state.

A nationwide alert was issued for the karate expert and go-go dancer. While on the run, Mrs. Dancy mailed a letter to a friend, to be turned over to authorities, confessing to the murder. In the letter, she said she framed Hackett.

Authorities discounted the letter as an attempt by Mrs. Dancy to help her boyfriend whose trial was nearing.

The letter's handwriting was confirmed by experts to be Mrs. Dancy's. A portion of the letter read: "I, Jacqueline Ann McCann Dancy do hereby confess to the murder of my husband, Edward Eugene Dancy, on the morning of Jan. 1, 1978.

"I stole my boyfriend, Charles Ira Hackett's shotgun and shot my husband in the head and in the neck. I then proceeded to strangle him.

"I confess, I murdered my husband alone and in cold blood."

Only one day after the letter's existence was made public in The Evening Herald, Mrs. Dancy was arrested in Biloxi, Miss.

No Coup, Pledges Top Iran General

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The chief of Iran's armed forces today pledged full support to embattled Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar and repeated his promise that the military will not attempt to overthrow the civilian government.

Gen. Abas Qarabaghi said, "The question of a coup d'etat or any kind of indiscipline in various military units is not true. The army will obey the orders of the government."

Qarabaghi also said steps had been taken to prevent pro-shah elements in the country from threatening anti-shah demonstrators and said those involved in recent attacks would be arrested.

"I assure all countrymen that all units of the armed forces are united and understand the sensitive situation of the country," he said. "The armed forces are prepared to make any sacrifice to safeguard Iran and, contrary to reports, there are no differences existing within the armed forces."

The general emphasized "that no coup d'etat will ever take place and any kind of indiscipline or revolt will be crushed according to the law. The armed forces will support the government."

There was no immediate official reaction in Iran to reports from Paris that Jafar Tehrani, president of the Iranian regency council, had resigned. Nor was there confirmation of reports that two other members of the regency council were considering quitting.

Qarabaghi said he hoped there would not be a clash between the military and the people after religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini returns to Iran later this week after his 15-year exile.

Qarabaghi also denied any tension within the armed services and said a hunger strike at bases in Hamedan in west Iran and Dezful in the south was to protest the quality of food they were getting and not to demand withdrawal of U.S. military advisers.

Khomeini said he will return to Iran on his announced mission of overthrowing the civilian government and installing his own Islamic republic.

Bakhtiar, meanwhile, met with members of Iran's parliament to brace for Khomeini's return and the expected showdown for control.

Shah Goes To Morocco

ASWAN, Egypt (UPI) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran left Egypt today and flew to Morocco on the second leg of an extended vacation from which he may never return to his kingdom.

Outwardly, the shah appeared in better spirits than when he arrived last Tuesday, but his chances of ever returning to power have been reduced to practically nil by the latest developments in Iran.

The royal couple was seen off by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and senior government officials. As the shah's plane took off, Sadat waved to the monarch who was at the controls. Sadat then boarded his own plane which left for Cairo five minutes later.

He Spins Around Casselberry

Eyes turn almost daily around Casselberry when John Mattas goes out for a cruise.

His is not just any vehicle; it's an 8-horsepower replica of a 1901 Ford Quadricycle, a vehicle produced by Henry Ford from 1896 to 1902 before his first auto in 1903.

Sale Price: $200.

Mattas, a retired Army officer, who lives at 218 Brighton Way, rebuilt the replica 1½ years ago. Gas-driven, chain-operated with an electric starter. It has two forward speeds — neutral and reverse.

Also: front and rear disc brakes and a centrifugal force clutch.

It's stingy on gas, too: tank holds only 1¼ gallons. The vehicle has passed inspection for road use, but is prohibited from the interstate.

It's Carter Budget Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today kept a promise he made last fall to propose a deficit under $30 billion in the budget he submits for the fiscal year that starts next Oct. 1 and ends Sept. 30, 1980.

Carter submitted the package to Congress today.

The budget is only a set of proposals. Congress will write the definite federal budget — first a target version in May, then a final one in September.

All legislation enacted for the fiscal year is supposed to fit within this budget, although that does not always happen.

Carter's Budget; What, Why, How in '80

Defense: 3% Boost Sole Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today asked Congress for a 3 percent increase to $125.8 billion in 1980 defense spending — the sole boost in his anti-inflation budget and a certain target for those who would restore cuts in social programs.

Carter said the nation needs more firepower in Europe, more new weapons to maintain nuclear equality with the Soviets. "We must and will do our share," he said, of the 3 percent anti-inflation spending increase agreed by NATO allies.

The U.S. share of the increase is in Proposed Defense Department spending of $127.7 billion, up from $111.9 billion this year. Add-ons of $3 billion for Energy Department work on nuclear warheads and small programs such as civil defense and mobilized draft machinery bring the total to $125.8 billion listed under "national defense" in budget documents.

Carter warned in his budget message "we cannot make major reductions" in defense, but he faces angry criticism from liberals, blacks and special interest groups who have pledged to fight his efforts to hold down growth in domestic programs.

His military spending plans also pose tough questions for Congress, which in the recent past has agreed modest defense increases are necessary but is now under marching orders from voters to trim government spending.

In addition to 1980 spending, the complicated defense budget also includes additional funds to be spent in 1979, raising total budget "obligations" beyond $139 billion — 22 cents of every budget dollar.

Carter reduced these "obligations" by $2 billion from his earlier projections to keep his overall 1980 budget deficit down.

So while actual defense spending would go up 3 percent, the Pentagon's full budget would rise only about half that much, leading to a possible crunch on more budgetary problems in later years when the discrepancy either has to be made up or spending reduced.

Navy: No Nuclear Ship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today proposed a $1.6 billion midsize aircraft carrier powered by steam not nuclear energy, but defense sources say the Navy is not through fighting for a bigger ship.

The 60,000-ton carrier, biggest vessel in a $6.1 billion shipbuilding program in Carter's 1980 budget, would replace the $1.9 billion nuclear supercarrier he vetoed last year when Congress approved it against his wishes.

"In recent years there has been a trend toward building fewer, more expensive ships," the budget said. "This trend must be changed or the Navy in the future will have so few ships that our continued naval superiority may be jeopardized."

Navy admirals, who wanted the nuclear carrier last year, convinced Defense Secretary Harold Brown during drafting of

Jobs: More Hiring Effort Pushed In Private Sector

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today proposed drastic budget cutbacks in summer jobs for young people and public service employment, redirecting the government's unemployment effort toward the hard-core jobs.

Carter urged switching much of the responsibility for hiring the unemployed to private industry through tax credits and other federal incentives.

"Continued high structural unemployment in an inflationary economy requires a redirection in our efforts," Carter said in his message to Congress.

He said general employment programs, not directed toward the most needy, "must be reduced to reflect improvements in the economy and our need to establish priorities."

summer employment for youths. It is not targeted to the needy or to the basic underlying causes of unemployment," said the budget document.

Funds for public service jobs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act were proposed to be reduced from the current $1.3 billion to $9.6 billion, a 7 percent reduction.

That move would allow a cut of CETA public service jobs from 625,000 in fiscal 1979 to 467,000 by the end of fiscal 1980, although the average over the year would be $46,000.

"Our youth employment and CETA programs reflect my continued strong commitment to fight unemployment of the needy," Carter said.

The administration has projected an unemployment rate of 6.2 percent for 1979. The CETA program was created in 1974 to meet rising unemployment, and expanded significantly by Carter when he took office.

The new budget proposal reflects an effort by the administration to cutback on public service employment funds while trying to reduce the hard-core, structurally unemployed that find it difficult to get a job even in a strong economy.

Positions for the structurally unemployed would comprise 57 percent of the 1980 public service jobs, compared to 43 percent this year.

Food: A Hike In Fed Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Increased food stamp benefits and rising costs of food would raise overall spending for food programs under President Carter's proposed fiscal 1980 budget sent to Congress Monday.

Millions of children would have to pay more for school lunches.

The budget would boost spending for food stamps by $801 million over current fiscal 1979 spending, partly as a result of a program overhaul.

Under a 1977 law implemented this year, more very poor people are expected to receive food stamps because recipients no longer pay cash for food stamps. Officials expect elimination of the cash requirement to slash the average number of food stamp recipients from 16.5 million to 17.4 million per month.

Food prices last year rose 10 percent and are expected to rise 6 to 10 percent this year. And with grocery costs expected to continue rising, average monthly benefits per person are expected to increase from $29.87 to $31.10.

The Agriculture Department budget calls for $10.8 billion in federal food programs, an increase of $1.3 billion over fiscal 1979, with $6.9 billion going for food stamps.

Officials said they hoped to cut benefits to offset $253 million in higher food costs for school lunches and breakfasts and summer and preschool feeding programs.

The budget proposed reducing federal school lunch subsidies for about 14 million children from middle and upper income families by a nickel per lunch, from 17 to 12 cents. Children now pay about 50 to 55 cents extra a lunch.

It proposed making it harder to get free or reduced price school lunches and breakfasts and meals for preschoolers.

The changes would require legislation.

Presently, 9.4 million children from families of four with incomes of $8,070 or less receive free lunches. Under the proposed changes, the income ceiling would be dropped to $7,880, forcing 1.4 million children to pay 20 cents per lunch instead of getting free lunches.

But the full scope of 1980 health spending — part of the allocation to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare — will remain hidden until the administration unveils its plan for national health insurance later this year.

In the preface to his budget, Carter told Congress the money he is seeking now is geared to passage of the health insurance plan, which will be designed to safeguard citizens in the event of catastrophic illness.

the 1980 budget to accept a "compromise" — a conventionally powered, 87,000-ton supercarrier similar to the already built USS John F. Kennedy at a cost of $1.7 billion.

Brown went along on grounds the bigger ship would be easier to get from Congress. There was also concern the "mild" carrier might suffer overruns as the first ship of any design often do, and wind up costing more than a supercarrier.

Carter turned down Brown's recommendation and a last-minute appeal from the Navy, but defense sources say the debate is not finished.

They say Navy admirals began quietly sounding out supporters in Congress as far back as last summer and there may be another effort there to replace Carter's proposal with a Kennedy-class carrier.

Health: Abuses Targeted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's budget for fiscal year 1980 calls for spending more than $52 billion on health care, with a special emphasis on reforming past abuses and ensuring adequate treatment for every American.

The proposed budget gives HHS Secretary Joseph Califano a broad anti-smoking crusade a boost, raising its funding to $45 million instead of the present $39 million. The budget also includes cuts for some major health-related programs.

But the full scope of 1980 health spending — part of the allocation to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare — will remain hidden until the administration unveils its plan for national health insurance later this year.

In the preface to his budget, Carter told Congress the money he is seeking now is geared to passage of the health insurance plan, which will be designed to safeguard citizens in the event of catastrophic illness.

On defense: 'We must and will do our share'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today proposed a $1.6 billion midsize aircraft carrier powered by steam not nuclear energy, but defense sources say the Navy is not through fighting for a bigger ship.

The 60,000-ton carrier, biggest vessel in a $6.1 billion shipbuilding program in Carter's 1980 budget, would replace the $1.9 billion nuclear supercarrier he vetoed last year when Congress approved it against his wishes.

"In recent years there has been a trend toward building fewer, more expensive ships," the budget said. "This trend must be changed or the Navy in the future will have so few ships that our continued naval superiority may be jeopardized."

Navy admirals, who wanted the nuclear carrier last year, convinced Defense Secretary Harold Brown during drafting of

Energy: First $ Cut Since Oil Embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, calling for the first cut in U.S. energy spending since the 1973-74 oil embargo, today proposed an $8.2 billion plan to reduce the cost of federal energy programs by almost $1 billion.

The only major increases in Carter's energy budget for fiscal year 1980 were for programs designed to tap the power of the sun. Total solar spending under the new budget would hit $600 million, a 26 percent increase.

"I have given special emphasis to developing advanced solar power technologies," Carter said, urging increased efforts to produce electricity from sunlight and to convert crop wastes or wood into synthetic gas or solid fuel.

Conservation programs got added emphasis, with spending proposed to climb from this year's $487.6 million to $628.3 million. Among the major increases were con-

What's In It For Vietnam...?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — So you thought you stopped paying for the Vietnam War just because the fighting is over?

The $61.1 billion budget President Carter sent Congress today for fiscal 1980 includes $497,000 under the heading, "Military Assistance, South Vietnamese Forces."

That is less than the $580,000 the budget documents said is expected to be spent for that purpose in fiscal 1979, or the $1.4 million actually spent in 1978.

The only explanation given in the budget concerning the loss is:

"Support for South Vietnamese forces was funded prior to 1975 from appropriations to the military departments. In 1975, the last year of the program, funds for this activity were appropriated to the secretary of Defense. The savings from any appropriations for claims outstanding against that appropriation."

Taxes: No Relief; —Maybe '81 SS Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans will find no income tax relief in the "auster" $31.8 billion President Carter sent Congress today.

If Congress were to enact the budget as submitted — which it will not — Americans would have to pay $27.3 billion in income taxes in fiscal 1980 — $2.7 billion more than in 1979.

But that's not all. They also would have to pay $18.5 billion, equally divided between employers and workers, in social security taxes. That is $9 billion more than this year.

The budget does project $2.5 billion in individual tax credits under the administration's real wage insurance plan. Part of Carter's anti-inflation program, it would reward employee groups that keep pay increases within the administration's 7 percent guidelines. But it faces probably death in Congress.

There is a bare hint some relief might be granted — in 1981 — for Social Security taxes, which Congress increased sharply this year as the system would not go bankrupt.

And Carter conditioned any individual income tax relief in fiscal 1981 and 1982 on progress in the fight to contain inflation.

It was a different story last year. With congressional expectations in the offing, Carter first called for a $30 billion tax cut, which aides said would perk up the sagging economy.

Later he became convinced that was inflationary, and trimmed it to $20 billion. Congress then dumped Carter's plan completely, and the president signed an $18.7 billion tax cut bill.

Looking ahead, the new budget predicts Americans will pay $280 billion in income taxes in fiscal 1981, $211 billion in 1982, $206 billion in 1983, and a staggering $200 billion by 1984 due to economic growth, inflation, and faster tax collections.

Conservation emphasis would be shifted toward reducing pesticide and soil runoff into streams by allocating $70 million to the unattended Rural Clean Water program.

Transit: Safety Yes, Beautification No

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Safety in the air and on the highways is in — and roadway beautification is out — in President Carter's proposed 1980 Transportation Department budget.

The proposed $30 billion Transportation Department budget calls for increased spending to prevent aircraft collisions and to reduce the highway death toll through enforcement of the 55 mile per hour speed limit.

The department's Federal Aviation Administration budget calls for an increase in air traffic controllers as airports as well as increase the amount of air space at individual airports under controller direction.

As a result of the collision last September over San Diego between a private aircraft and a jetline which took 137 lives, the FAA also proposed creation of air traffic control centers at an additional 63 airports throughout the nation.

Farming: An End To Some Projects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reduced spending for farm price supports, conservation and timber sales would cut Agriculture Department spending President Carter's budget for fiscal 1980.

The proposed $18.4 billion budget would be $1.8 billion less than current spending.

Officials said average yields and average weather would bring farm support costs to $2.6 billion, down $2.3 billion from the current fiscal 1979 estimate.

They conceded they could not predict costs.

"We've talked about a crop we haven't even planted yet and weather we've predicted," one official said.

The budget proposed that farm credit programs be reduced $2 billion. Officials said a two-year program of emergency loans for farmers will be mostly utilized in the current fiscal year.

Officials said they would cut Forest Service personnel by reducing timber sales from national forests by 6 percent to 11.7 billion board feet.

The budget proposed to save $1.5 billion by phasing out the Resource Conservation and Development program, authorizing no new projects and completing only projects authorized in the past.

Among RCD projects are flood prevention and water resources for recreation, wildlife, agriculture, municipal or industrial use.

Conservation emphasis would be shifted toward reducing pesticide and soil runoff into streams by allocating $70 million to the unattended Rural Clean Water program.

Death Benefits Ended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In his budget, President Carter would end death benefits that have gone to families of Social Security recipients at an estimated saving of $231 million.

Welfare payments to families with dependent children would drop $30 million.

In addition to cutting out the death payment, Carter would phase out post-secondary student benefits, although the minimum benefit to future retirees, cross disability-pending, and a parent's benefit when the dependent child reaches 18 instead of 22.

Babysitter Knocked Unconscious

By DENNIS FEOLA Herald Staff Writer

A 17-year-old Casselberry youth reported he was knocked unconscious while babysitting near Altamonte Springs.

The incident occurred Sunday at 12:05 a.m. at 100 Pineapple Lane in The Springs. Dennis Brown told sheriff's deputies someone tried to get into the house by breaking down the front door, according to records.

He said when he went outside to investigate he was hit from behind. The only description of the assailant was that he was dressed in black and had on a white mask. The man ran away after hitting the youth, records indicate.

VALIUM FOUND
Two men who were reportedly living in a car were arrested on a variety of charges after one of them was taken into custody for shoplifting.

The arrests occurred Saturday at 6:30 p.m. after a security guard reported a man in a white mask in the car was driving away with an fm converter. A sheriff's deputy reported while patting down Russell Scott Cheek, 18, he found a bottle containing 12 valium tablets. The deputy said he received permission to search the man's car and found $82 worth of merchandise stolen from a K-Mart store and $19 worth of merchandise stolen from a Zayre's store.

Slender, in the car was Charles Edward Wood, 19, records indicate. The deputy also reported finding a wooden

Cable TV Rate Hike Public Hearing Set

By MAX ERKLETTIAN Herald Staff Writer

A decision is expected today on Orange Seminoles Cablevision's request for a $1.50 per month rate ceiling hike. Information supporting the firm's request will be presented to the Sanford City Commission during a 7 p.m. public hearing at city hall.

The commission must approve any rate increases. The $1.50 increase would not be instituted immediately, according to Kevin Rorke, general manager for Cablevision. Instead, it will probably be instituted in increments over the next one to two years. If approved this month, the first step increase would come in late February or March, commented Rorke.

The initial increase would probably be 75 cents, Rorke said. Cable officials say the firm is losing $150,000 in its Sanford operation. However, city officials, led by Mayor Lee F. Moore, have asked that Cablevision document that claim with a certified audit by a certified public accountant.

Members of the commission have indicated they are waiting to see that documented information before making up their minds on the increase request.

Rorke will present unaudited certified figures showing the company's losses in Sanford, he said today. The company is in the process of having their financial records audited by certified public accountants and expect that audit to be completed by the end of this week or early next, according to Rorke.

When the idea for an increase was originally proposed last August, the commission said they would not consider a rate hike until customer service was improved. Specifically, the commission noted customers have complained of delays in service calls and a failure to pipe with resin in the car. Cheek was arrested for shoplifting, possession of a controlled substance, grand larceny and possession of stolen property. His bond is $5,355.

Wood was arrested for possession of narcotic paraphernalia, possession of stolen property and grand larceny. His bond is $5,355.

A farm worker who was beaten with an iron pipe is reported in satisfactory condition today at Seminole Memorial Hospital.

Paul Green, 45, was staying at a labor camp on Pine Way in Sanford when the incident occurred Saturday at 3:30 p.m. He told sheriff's deputies he became involved in an incident with two men and one of them hit him with the pipe on his back, wrist and chest.

Green suffered a collapsed lung and fractured wrist in the incident.

...And The Lights Will Go On Around Lake Monroe

By MAX ERKLETIAN Herald Staff Writer Citing supportive newspaper editorials as signs of community desire to reinstate the lights along the lakefront, Sanford City Commissioner Julian Stenstrom has persuaded fellow commissioners to go along.

The 3-2 vote taken Monday night reversed the vote two weeks ago. At that time, Mayor Lee P. Moore and Commissioners John Morris and Eddie Keith opposed the lights.

Undercover Agent Infiltrates Former Sanford Policemen

By DENNIS FEOLA Herald Staff Writer A Sanford police undercover agent assigned to sit in on meetings of ex-police officers to determine if a criminal conspiracy aimed at Police Chief Ben Butler was in the works has finished that assignment.

Fagan: He Went To Governor

The governor's office today confirmed that Sanford Police Capt. Charles Fagan attempted about six months ago to get that office to conduct an investigation into alleged improprieties at the Sanford Police Department.

Hall Picks Mays

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Mays, the most electrifying performer of his era, was the only player elected to the Hall of Fame today in a landslide vote by the Baseball Writers Association, although he was not a unanimous choice.

After 22 Years, Takes Trip Home To Unknown Land

HONG KONG (UPI) — Daniel Kelly, an American patriot who spent two-thirds of his life in Chinese prisons rather than renounce his citizenship, today boarded his first jetliner bound for America — a motorized bus known only through books.

He described China as "a prison. Within there are smaller prisons that have even smaller cells inside." He said the vast changes Westerners have observed in China are barely noticeable to the Chinese in the street, but he acknowledged the nation's new political openness was responsible for his freedom.
