All eyes on Sanford

Nation focuses on Seminole County vote tabulation

By Dan Ping
Editor

SANFORD — Ted Cranias strolled across 1st Street about 11 p.m. Thursday. Owner of Angelo's, the popular pizzeria in downtown Sanford, Cranias was drawn by the 40 or 50 people milling around outside the Seminole County Supervisor of Elections office.

"This is history in the making," Cranias said. "The nation is watching Sanford, Fla. to see who is going to be our next president."

That's because Seminole was the last county in Florida to complete the automatic recount required by state law after Tuesday's election showed Republican George W. Bush held less than a one-half of 1 percent margin of victory over Democrat Al Gore.

Under state law Sandra Goard, the county's supervisor of elections, only had to verify the magnetic tapes of each machine in the county's 133 precincts. However, Goard and her canvassing board elected to conduct a full recount of all 137,350 ballots cast.

"We thought it was important because we wanted to ensure the integrity of the system and make sure every vote is accounted for," said Seminole County Court Judge John R. Sloop, who along with Goard and local attorney Ken McIntosh make up the canvassing board. "More than ever, people need to be confident that our process of election is accurate."

During the recount process, Sloop expressed confidence that there "would not be any significant changes."

"Sandy Goard has set up this system and has a very detailed process to ensure its proper implementation," Sloop said.

County receives $12M for road projects

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County's road construction plans for the future received a substantive economic shot in the arm this week.

The State of Florida's County Incentive Grant Program for road construction has awarded Seminole County nearly $12 million for a two-year construction period between now and 2002. The funding represents the largest slice of the program's $38 million awarded to nine counties in the Central Florida area.

"We're happy to get more than our share of the grant money," said Deputy County Manager James Marino. "The additional funding will enhance projects that have been in our construction planning by moving them up higher on the list."

Marino said the county will receive half the grant funds this year and half next year and remains in the running for possible future matching grant funds.

"As a matter of fact the county is preparing to apply for additional matching grant money in March of 2001," explained Marino. "Those

In addition to having a student election, many of them were required to do homework and research various candi-

The project was part of Kids Voting, USA, which sought to increase adult voters and generate better-informed voters.

In all, the Seminole County School Community

Involvement department reported 10,276 students voted. The results, unlike the Florida presidential balloting, were announced immediately on Wednesday morning. Of those participating in Seminole County the results were as fol-

LONGWOOD — Safehouse of Seminole is getting thrifty. The non-profit organization recently hosted a grand opening event for its new thrift store located on 17-92 in Longwood. All proceeds from the store benefit victims of domestic violence and their children.

"We are hoping that we will be able to raise money to support our programs," Safehouse Program Director Betty Spencer said. "Our biggest fear right now, which looks like it's going to be a reality, is budget cuts from county government." Last year, Safehouse received

Sanford's Franny wins national award

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

SANFORD — A year ago Seminole Herald readers learned about "Franny," a once abandoned and sickly mutt who turned her life around.

Wandering the streets and with a near debilitating case of entropion, she wound up on the doorstep of Sanford residents Inez and Bob Parsell.

With lots of tender, loving care, numerous trips to the veterinarian's office, expensive eye surgery to correct the entropion disease, and countless hours of specialized training, Franny not only transformed her life, but has touched the lives of many in Seminole County and Central Florida as a certified Therapy Dog. Since that amazing metamorphosis, she's hardly been resting on her haunches.

Inez and Franny have been named winners in a nationwide competition of a Special Service Award for Delta Society's 2000 Beyond Limits Awards for Service and Therapy Animals of the Year.

"I'm proud to see Franny get recognition for the work she does," reacted Parsell to the national award. "I never envisioned this when Franny showed up on our doorstep."

SEMINOLE SUMMARY

A GLANCE AROUND OUR COUNTY

Remembering our veterans

On the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month, fighting ceased in World War I. It was supposed to be the war to end all wars. Of course it wasn't.

During that war, from April 6, 1917 until Nov. 11, 1918, U.S. troops suffered 53,513 battle deaths, 63,195 other deaths and 204,002 wounded. Of the battle deaths, 50,510 were Army troops, 431 were Navy and 2,461 were Marines. Naturally, the figures were one-sixth of the losses suffered in World War II, even one-third the number of deaths in the Civil War.

Nick Pfeifauf

Now, the event encompasses all wars and is officially known as Veterans Day. In 1970, Congress suggested it be observed on the fourth Monday in October, but state after state objected and put it back to Nov. 11 effective in 1978.

People are often confused over what to observe and when. In addition to Veterans Day (Armistice Day) we have Armed Forces Day (May 19), Memorial Day, which used to be Decoration Day (May 30), and others including D-Day, Pearl Harbor Day, and VJ-Day, (that's Victory over Japan in World War II for those who don't know).

Many of us today, have family members or friends who gave their lives in the service of our country. These are the people who should be remembered and honored on Veterans Day. Perhaps you know of some of the gravesites located in remote cemeteries. Some of them might need a sprucing-up. Some of the markers may be illegible and need cleaning. This is one project you and the family might consider.

Naturally, most cemeteries maintain their own upkeep, but we have quite a few old cemeteries where care is needed.

Then too, attending special ceremonies, such as the one in Sanford at Memorial Park on the lakefront at 11 a.m., Saturday, Nov. 11. Take the youngsters along. While they may not get much out of the speeches, you can take a moment or two to tell them about why we observe this holiday.

For those who say prayers before a meal, remember these veterans, and hopefully, they will be mentioned in church services this weekend.

I will be remembering the losses in my family. I hope you will join me this weekend for your own folks.

Someone once wrote a book about what our nation would be like had we lost World War II. I've never read it, but I could just imagine the freedoms we would have lost had that occurred. Let's give thanks that it never came about and observe this Veterans Day in deed and thought.

Early Thanksgiving

The spirit of the holiday season got off to an early start on Thursday as Lois and Jeni Paulucci were once again sending their holiday gifts of free turkeys and meals to the needy in Sanford and Seminole County. Volunteers and trustees from the Seminole County Jail help load boxes of food and turkeys in trucks and vans. More than 50 agencies and organizations will benefit from the food distribution.

Best post-election one-liner heard Friday morning at the State Market Diner: "Don't tell me those old folks in Palm Beach County got confused by the ballot. I've seen 'em play 25 bingo cards atta time!"

Best post-election movie review, heard Friday morning on WDBO-News Talk. On release of the new film "2005": "The year is 2005. Men have landed on Mars, and we're still waiting for recount totals from Seminole County."

We've got to get him out of the house more often! Political newcomer George McKenzie, one of the nicest and most sincere candidates we met on the campaign trail, was narrowly defeated in his first bid for a Longwood city commission seat. His reaction to a first time run for political office: "It's been the most exciting three or four months of my life." Must be something in the water flowing through Longwood's new sewer connections.

As the Seminole County recount went late into the night, partisans from both parties engage in spirited debate, a couple of times nearing the verge of potential fistcuffs. However, totaling out loud. "Not with my dyslexia," the judge joked. "I'll let each of you read it for yourselves. I don't want to be caught on tape accidentally transposing a number because that could open up a whole new ballgame."

Anyone heard of 4117? Seems a resident in Sanford District 3 has a bone to pick with Commissioner Randy Jones. Recently a sign was tacked up to a utility pole near the intersection of Sanford Avenue and 20th Street.

Sanford Police either solved a VERY old case, or had a serious typo. An arrest report this week indicated both the date of arrest, and the date of booking, as Dec. 30, 1899. Thank goodness the narrative on the second page of the arrest report said it happened on Nov. 8, 2000.

Man suffers burns
Oviedo police investigated a fire Tuesday on Kimble Avenue, just off Geneva Road (CR-426).

A man, identified as Martin Uribe (Ramirez), 20, reportedly was using a propane stove in the kitchen of his double-wide mobile home when the stove caught fire. The man suffered second degree burns to his upper body and possible injuries to his respiratory system. Another man at the residence at the time was not injured. A woman and child who lived there were not at home. There was no significant structural damage.

Uribe was transported by Seminole County's Alert Helicopter to Orlando Regional Medical Center where he was said to be in serious condition, but expected to recover.

Mall thefts
Jacqueline Suzann Ritch, 26, of DeLeon Springs, was arrested by Sanford Police Wednesday at a store in the Seminole Towne Center. She was said to have attempted to take two women's shirts, with a total value of $46.87 from the store without paying. She was charged with petty larceny.

Kalaya Sivaphornchai, 43, of Wexton Court, Lake Mary, was arrested at a store in Seminole Towne Center on Nov. 6. She was accused of attempting to take $383.67 in clothing from the store without paying. She was charged with larceny/theft of items valued at $300 or more.

Domestic case
Steven Ross Kiley, 43, of Rosalia Drive, Sanford, was arrested by police Wednesday as the result of an altercation with a female at his residence.

He was charged with assault, domestic violence.

Man with gun
A Florida Highway Patrol trooper reported driving past a man walking on Airport Boulevard in Sanford Tuesday, with what appeared to be a handgun. When the officer passed him again, he said the man pointed the gun at him in what he considered a threatening manner. Sanford police apprehended the man on Academy Avenue. They found the gun was a loaded .88-gun. Lonnie Andy Fuller, 21, of Seminole Gardens, was arrested on charges of aggravated assault on a police officer, and carrying a concealed weapon.

Open container
Deborah Ann Black, 36, of Castle Brewer Court, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police on Nov. 6. An officer reported seeing a man and a woman with what appeared to be cans of beer. Upon checking, they found the man's beer can was unopened.

The woman however, had an open container. She also gave police a false identity. A further check revealed she was in possession with drug paraphernalia. Black was arrested for possession of an open can of alcoholic beverage, possession/use of narcotics equipment, and resisting an officer by obstruction.

Funerals (Buyer Beware)

A growing trend within the funeral profession is the purchase of funeral homes by large international corporations who own literally HUNDREDS of funeral homes worldwide! Their local funeral home politics are mandated by "corporate headquarters", frequently out of state!

They now have entered into the low-cost funeral market in central Florida. Family Funeral Care in Oviedo and south Orlando are owned and operated by Service Corporation International (SCI). If the Family Funeral Care funeral homes can offer low-cost funerals why can't the rest of the SCI funeral homes in central Florida? The other SCI funeral homes are charging as much as twice what Family Funeral Care charges. These other SCI funeral homes would be the Woodlawn, Carey Hand, Cox Parker, and Garden Chapel groups. The same people make the removals, do the preparation, work the funerals, or do the cremations from a central facility. Why then does SCI only have a few funeral homes offering low-cost funerals.

Banfield Funeral Home has been in the low-cost funeral market since 1989. We believe in the personal touch, being a local, family-owned funeral home. We carefully guide each bereaved family through the funeral arrangement process. We take the time to learn about the life of the deceased, and strive to accommodate all family desires.

The result is a very personal and memorable funeral service, honoring a life that has been lived. This is always done at the guaranteed lowest price with no monkey business.

Lessons learned from Election 2000

They will be talking about Election 2000 a century from now. After every precinct in every county in every state throughout the land had been heard from, the outcome of the presidential contest was still in doubt. Not for several days, or weeks, after Americans went to the polls would they know who would occupy the White House the next four years.

Joseph Perkins

But it is not only because of the closeness of the presidential race that the "Cliffhanger of 2000" will be long remembered. It is also because of the lessons this historic election provided.

Among them:

1. That every vote does count
 Nearly 100 million votes were cast throughout the nation. But at the end of the day, the entire presidential election turned on less than 2,000 votes in Florida.

Indeed, if just one vote for George W. Bush in each precinct in, say, Miami-Dade County had gone instead to Al Gore, the Democrat would have clinched the presidency on the strength of the Sunshine State's 25 electoral votes.

Outgoing President Clinton summed it up best the day after the election when he remarked: "If ever there was a doubt about exercising democracy's most fundamental right, the right to vote, yesterday it was put to rest. No American will ever be able to seriously say again, 'my vote doesn't count.'"

2. That television has a corrupting influence on the democratic process

The networks disgraced themselves by prematurely and erroneously declaring a Gore victory in Florida. They made the call even before the polls had closed in the Florida panhandle (which is one hour behind the rest of the state). In so doing, they almost certainly depressed late turnout by Republicans in that region of the state.

And who knows if the networks' irresponsible call on Florida had a skewing effect on the electoral results in other states? Indeed, when CNN, MSNBC, FOX, CBS and ABC put Florida in Gore's column — after already declaring him the victor in Michigan — the Democrat seemed a shoo-in to win the Electoral College.

The Republican faithful in key Midwestern and Western states (like Wisconsin and Iowa) had to be far less inclined to vote after they heard the discouraging news (followed by reports that Gore had captured Pennsylvania). And by the time the networks finally corrected themselves, the polls had closed in most states.

And if it was not egregious enough that the networks got the pivotal Florida battle wrong early on, they committed almost the same offense later in the evening. They declared Bush the victor in the Sunshine State and anointed him the next president of the United States.

As the hours passed, it became clearer that the margin of votes separating Bush and Gore was extremely small (less than one-tenth of 1 percent). So they rescinded their call on both Florida and the overall presidential election.

Their credibility may never recover.

3. That the Electoral College is an anachronism
 Even those of us who voted for Bush have to acknowledge misgivings that any candidate could win the White House without winning the popular vote. Of course, it has happened on two previous occasions. But it has been more than a century since the nation has been faced with such an unsatisfying split decision.

That is not to suggest, by any means, that Bush, or any other candidate who prevails in the Electoral College while falling short on the popular vote, is somehow undeserving of the presidency. The Constitution clearly states that the president is chosen by the Electoral College. The question is whether the Constitution should be amended to provide for direct election of the president.

4. That America remains the world's greatest democracy
 Even with the recount of ballots in Florida, even with the outcome of the presidential election hanging in the balance, there is comfort in knowing that, when the process is completed, the American people will accept the final verdict.

There will be no attempted coups by the losing party's leaders; no riots in the streets by the losing party's rank and file. There will be a peaceful and orderly transition come next January, when the nation's 43rd president is sworn into office. On that day, party differences will be set aside — if only temporarily — as we, the people, formally validate the democratic principles for which this republic stands.

O'Neal against Florida revote

To the editor:

It doesn't surprise me to see that many of those who couldn't find the moral capacity to support a Presidential Candidate that stands for Honesty, Integrity and the Rule of Law (George Bush); also failed to have the mental facilities required to locate and mark the proper spot on a ballot.

Some of these geniuses after discovering that they had chosen the "wrong candidate," while still at the polls, then brilliantly marked another spot casting two, or more, votes for President on the same ballot. Others realizing the morning after that they picked the wrong man decided now they deserved another try to "express Their Will" since they missed on their first try.

For example; at a rally staged by an out-of-state liberal to protest Democrats only getting one chance to vote in this election, a woman in the crowd stepped forward with a sign in hand that read "revote." She stated to a reporter that she was "confused," saying that she "thinks" she "voted for the wrong person." I concur with her opinion, I think she voted for the wrong person too. I'm also sure that her confusion is a general state of her condition. But, none-the-less, I do think that she and her friends should get another chance to correct their mistake, and vote again — four years from now.

I'm not an unfeeling person with respect to the condition of these poor whining mutts for I too have voted for the wrong person. In 1992 I voted for Perot, a good man, but the morning after he was the wrong person. I have also marked a ballot in the wrong location. Instead of engaging in a spasmodic moment of multiple marking, I started to ask for a new ballot, but realized that my choice wasn't all that bad and left it as it was. I didn't blame others for my mistakes because I wasn't a victim.

It is not a fundamental precept in America that the government has to assure that all citizens are smart enough to vote. The butterfly ballots that are in question in this case have been used frequently over the years, and I'm sure many people in the past were not smart enough to figure them out even though sample ballots are publicly available before every election.

The points in question here are Honesty, Integrity, and the Rule of Law. Should we disregard these and follow the path of a Banana Republic and start holding elections until we get the result that some belligerent people want?

Or, should we honor the results as is and strive to fix any problems that came up this time in the next election? After all, these are Democrats complaining about a ballot that was designed by a Democrat, shouldn't they be able to influence their own party member to make the ballot simple enough even for the average Democrat to understand?

The real tragedy is the fact that the media called this election here before all the polls in Florida closed. At least those that voted in Palm Beach got a chance to vote; but, I wonder how many of Bush's supporters in the Panhandle left the lines at the polls, or decided not to stop and vote, based on the media's "call." These Panhandle residents were the victims of a media bias that leans toward the "confused" liberal elements in America. Shouldn't these Panhandle residents get a chance to cast their votes in an unbiased circumstance so that Their Will is heard too?

Living as if on an island within a big city

Druscilla answers the door at midday in a worn robe and slippers. Her wispy gray hair hangs to her shoulders. In the dim lighting, her face seems the color of turnips. She can't remember the last time she felt the sun on her skin. Years maybe, she says.

Joan Ryan

Her world is bounded by the walls of her two-room apartment on Jones Street. She's not disabled. Like others on the Meals on Wheels' Route 57, she just doesn't go out any more. Outside her apartment building, young mothers are folding loads of whites inside the Laundromat; a deliveryman is wheeling cases of soft drinks into the corner grocery. The streets are humming with people, but Druscilla lives as if on an island. She's one of the invisible people of the city, the hundreds of faceless ghosts spending their days alone behind the doors and windows we pass every day.

Her face lights up when she sees Meals on Wheels driver

Bubba Daniels in her doorway, holding out a white plastic bag with her low-sodium Salisbury steak lunch and turkey-sandwich dinner. Meals on Wheels stops by every day, feeding her but also checking in. Daniels is often the only human contact for the people on Route 57. Some simply take the bag from Daniels through a crack in the door, but most want to chat. Some ask him to change a light bulb or take their bills to the mailbox. Twice in four years, he has found clients dead.

"You don't all right?" he asks Druscilla. She has no family except a 52-year-old drifter son. She hasn't heard from him in a month. A television drones, her unfeeling companion.

"It's on all day and most of the night," Druscilla says. She also sews sometimes, making dresses and suits for places she never goes. Her husband died years ago. She moved to the Bay area from Kansas City afterward, but it was a mistake, she says.

"I hate this town more than the devil hates holy water," she says. "People are so snotty and mean."

She doesn't know her neighbors, though she has lived in the apartment for 12 years. I ask if she gets lonely.

"That's my middle name," she says. Her voice is flat, the address barely perceptible, as it has been worn smooth over the years. "I've spent most of my life alone."

Over on Eddy Street, 68-year-old Evelyn sits in a wheelchair in a ninth-floor apartment as small and crowded with books as a dorm room. Her right arm is curled at her side, immobile since a stroke two years ago. Two cats roam across the television and bed.

In a halting voice, she says she moved 10 years ago from a large apartment. She doesn't explain why. She says she has four daughters whom she rarely sees. The one who lives in Concord last visited in the early summer. A housekeeper and Meals on Wheels are her only steady visitors. But she says she's not lonely. She's never been much of a people person.

We visit an old man on McAllister Street who's sitting on his bed holding a $40 check for Daniels, a donation to Meals on Wheels. Who knows how long he had been waiting with the check in his hand?

This is where time balances out. The rest of the city rushes through the day, darting into meetings, bolting to school, dashing into stores. But in these rooms, where there's little to distinguish one day from another, time stands still, as if, like so many people on Route 57, it's trapped behind walls, waiting for a door to open.

From A to Z

Art Zielinski asks people what they think ...

In the future I think it should be changed to the popular vote. The problem we're having right now will sour more people on the Electoral College.

L. Millard Hunt, Sanford

We shouldn't keep the Electoral College because it doesn't seem to be working. Each candidate should not accept the presidency until a new vote is taken. The public should be allowed to vote again in Florida.

Little Jones, Sanford

I've always thought the person with the most votes should be the winner — that way the people are more involved. They say it amounts to the same thing (Electoral College and popular vote) but it doesn't seem that way.

William Scott Denton, Sanford

It should be the person with the most votes. The individual's vote counts. The Electoral College is old fashioned. It doesn't take into account everyone's vote.

Larry Piedscelzo, Sanford

We should keep the Electoral College. The popular vote is good, but I would stay with the EC. We don't need to do away with it. The present system works, but it just needs to be refined.

Vihlen family gathers in New Upsala for reunion

By Jana S. Jacobs
Herald Intern

Very few in our community today can trace a family tree to the very roots of Seminole County. In October, about 120 members of the Vihlen family reunited to pay memorial to their ancestors who planted the seeds for a community once known as Upsala, now known as Sanford.

In the late 1800s Upsala was the largest Swedish settlement in Florida. The community was divided into an upper and lower settlement separated by swamp land. The Enroth and Vihlen families settled here, planted groves and set up a shoe shop.

General Sanford donated a parcel of land for the construction of a Lutheran Church and county school. The Swedish Lutheran Society Church was built.

In later years as the younger generations of immigrants became accustomed to this new land and an American way of living, a break in old traditions facilitated the construction of a second church, the Upsala Swedish Presbyterian Church. The church is now recognized as an historical monument.

The Vihlen family became well known for their skill with citrus crops but change came in 1895 with "The Big Freeze," which devastated the entire citrus industry throughout the state. Grove after grove froze to the ground and almost overnight, Upsala disappeared as families became discouraged and left the area.

The Upsala school house was removed, the rail road station disappeared, the Lutheran Church, a monument to all the Swedes and their descendants, was torn down and moved away, leaving only a cemetery as a reminder of the strong willed people who wrestled out of a wilderness a happy thriving community. The Upsala

Presbyterian Church, still standing after 100 years, is a monument to the younger generations of Swedes who wanted to feel American, be American and enjoy the freedom of America.

The Vihlen family has been awarded a Certificate of Heritage by the Seminole County Historical Society. In a letter presented to the family the society recognized that "Those who share this recognition as bonafide pioneer descendants are truly of a 'royal line' that is fast fading into the past."

Pictured far right is the grave marker of Carl and Charlotte Enroth, the parents of Emma and Clara Enroth Vihlen. About 120 family members of the Vihlen family gathered recently for a reunion. The Vihlens and other Swedish immigrants helped found the community of New Upsala more than a century ago. The family reunion was held at the Upsala Swedish Cemetery and the Vihlen Homestead. Pictured at right is Sid Vihlen Sr.

The Way We Were: Businessmen of the 1930s

We go back today to the April 29, 1933 special edition of the Sanford Herald which has short biographies and pictures of prominent businessmen of that time.

E.B. Randall, Jr.
Besides supervising the management of the Randall Electric Company located on Magnolia Avenue, E.B. Randall served as Sunday School Superintendent and also chairman of the board of trustees of the Congregational Church. He was past master of the Sanford Lodge number 62 F&AM and was also active in other branches of the Masons, the Kiwanis Club, Chamber of Commerce and Sanford Country Club.

Mr. Randall was born in St. Augustine but came to Sanford at an early age; he attended the local grade schools and was graduated from Sanford High School.

He established his business in October 1922 and also owned an apartment house on West 16th Street. He lived with his wife, Nell Amick Randall, at 213 W. 16th St.

Baseball was his favorite spectator sport and he attended the local games frequently. For his personal recreation, he chose bowling.

Emmett Hunt
Emmett Hunt came to this city in 1916 to make his home and had spent nearly 15 years in the automobile business. He was presently employed as a salesman with Strickland Harris Motors, Inc. after a short stint as a real estate agent. In 1922 he was the local agent for the Oakland and Pontiac automobiles, but was now with a Ford dealership.

Mr. Hunt was born in Harrison, Ga., but spent the greater part of his childhood in Forsythe. He later studied at Satsboro Agriculture College.

He was married to the former Muriel Harold of this city and they had one daughter, Joyce. They reside at 703 Oak Ave.

This local Ford salesman attended both football and baseball games regularly and was also fond of reading during his leisure hours.

W.A. McMullen
With the exception of a few years when he was in the real estate business, W.A. (Lonnie) McMullen had followed the barber trade. But several months before the last election he decided to enter politics and was able to win over a large field of candidates for the office of Seminole County Constable.

McMullen had lived in Sanford since 1911 and for a number of years was co-owner of a barber shop on First Street.

He was born in Perry, but spent most of his early life in Tampa. The Constable was a member of the Sanford Elks Lodge and attended the First Methodist Church. He resided at 604 Elm Ave. with his wife, the former Bertha Estelle Bourguardez, and daughter, Juanita.

Mr. McMullen was a regular football fan, but would rather go fishing than anything else in his leisure time.

E.C. Harper was born in Starke, May 23, 1898, but moved to Lake Butler as a baby where he lived until he enlisted in the army on April 10, 1917. He served for two years in France.

He came to Sanford July 5, 1919 when he began working for W.H. Treadwell and then John Gillon, electrical contractors. In 1926 he purchased the company from Gillon and Platt and renamed it Sanford Electric Company. The business was located at 108 Magnolia Ave.

Mr. Harper was very active at First Baptist Church where he was president of the Big Berean Brotherhood. He was also a member of the Masons and the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce.

He presently was residing at 119 W. 23rd St. with his family which consisted of his wife, the former Pearl Prescott and children, E.C. Jr. and Jean Elizabeth. When not engaged in his business or other activities, Mr. Harper could usually be found on any of the numerous lakes or streams in the area enjoying his favorite sport of fishing.

Picture Identifications
At the recent Seminole High School Class of 1945 Reunion, the Vintage View Published on June 8 of a portion of this class at Southside School was passed around for identification of the unknowns. I had been told that it was a Tom Thumb wedding, but Neil Powell and others corrected this saying that it was, instead, the cast of Sleeping Beauty. Neil had been the Prince and Audrey Bach, the princess.

The unknowns and misidentified included Patsy Abernathy

The first person on the left on the third row is Wilhelmina Niblack and two people over is Jewel Dees. On the right end of the third row is Wanda Hasty, not Pauline Hasty. The first two people on the fourth row are Mary Louise Smith and Marian Pearson. On the back row, Clarence McCrone is just to the right of Bunny McCall.

Kids love the quiet humor of 'Corduroy'

Don Freeman's "Corduroy" PBS; check local listings

Against a city backdrop, Lisa and her teddy bear, Corduroy, navigate their way through daily adventures such as taking the subway and making lunch - adventures that will be familiar to most young viewers. Based on author/illustrator Don Freeman's best-selling series of books, "Corduroy" infuses the series with the myriad details that make the city sing, and that's one of its strongest points. (Granted, it's a rather sanitized version of urban life, but it's a start.) In one episode, for example, Lisa loses Corduroy on the subway when he falls out of her backpack, and she must reclaim him at the lost and found.

What the series sometimes lacks is extra sizzle - a spark that makes the show really come alive. It's sweet and well-intentioned, but not always as exciting as it might be; Freeman's books captured a particular warmth and poignancy that doesn't always come through here.

book," confided Anna, 6. "The girl in the show, I liked her 'cause she lives in a city and so I do. But it's weird that the bear talks." It is refreshing to see diversity reflected in an animated series, to hear different accents. As Anna explained, "It's sort of like where I live, but we don't have any talking bears."

Incumbents pleased with results from Longwood election

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — While controversy continues to swirl around Florida's presidential election results, the dust has settled in Longwood's city commission race with winners Paul Lovestrand and Steve Miller focusing on getting more things done for residents in the future.

Defeated contenders Craig Van Hooven and George McKenzie remain philosophically upbeat.

Lovestrand, also the city's mayor, earned his fourth term on the board by defeating two-time challenger Craig Van Hooven by 265 votes. The final tally in the District 5 race showed Lovestrand with 2,346 votes or 52.99 percent to Van Hooven's 2,081 or 47.01 percent.

"I feel honored that residents of the city have seen fit to return me for a fourth term," said Lovestrand.

"The victory is a product of hard work by myself and my volunteers. We put out a lot of brochures to correct a lot of erroneous information going around."

With the victory Lovestrand said the board's focus will be to get more things done for residents in the future.

"Our road paving projects and building a new community center are examples of getting things done," he said. "We have to show the residents that the commission will take things to completion."

Lovestrand said he doesn't foresee any major changes in the direction of the commission.

"We have a city administrator (John Drago) who has a clear vision and can lead. We plan to follow on most of his ideas."

Van Hooven remained upbeat despite his second unsuccessful try at Lovestrand's seat.

"I'm not licking my wounds, it was a great race," Van Hooven said. "I think both the incumbents got a wake up call this time around."

"This campaign and this election brought about a tremendous amount of good. Longwood's residents are now much more aware and educated about major issues in the city."

Van Hooven said he plans to remain involved in issues that affect Longwood.

"We had a tremendous number of citizen volunteers helping in my campaign," he said. "The citizens of this city went out with increased awareness—good issues came to the forefront. I'm going to remain involved."

District 3 Incumbent Steve Miller earned another term by narrowly defeating political newcomer George McKenzie with a 73 vote margin.

Miller totaled 2,140 votes or 50.87 percent to McKenzie's 2,067 votes or 49.13 percent.

McKenzie said he was genuinely surprised by the closeness of the race.

"I never thought it would be close," admitted the first-time candidate. "I thought either he (Miller) would win big or I would win big. I gave it 110 percent. For an unknown to lose by only 73 votes, well life goes on win or lose. That's just my nature."

McKenzie said he didn't think he could have done anything different to change the outcome.

"It was a nice campaign," he said. "There was no garbage between Miller and myself. I walked the neighborhoods and talked the neighborhoods. It was a rewarding experience."

Asked if he planned to stay active in Longwood politics, McKenzie responded: "I'll wait and see. I might get involved or take a look at one of the volunteer boards."

Attempts to contact Miller for his reaction to the election results were unsuccessful.

Vote

County, Bush's lead, which was originally 16,405 votes, increased by 98 votes to 16,503, not a large change considering the 137,350 votes cast, but significant none the less since it increased the Texas governor's lead in the state of Florida from 229 votes to 337.

While some precincts change slightly — one or two votes — the most significant change occurred in Precinct 28. The recount showed both Bush and Gore received additional votes, Bush gained 254 votes, while Gore gained 166. Election officials did not immediately explain the reason for the increased votes in Precinct 28, and until the canvassing board meets Monday at 8 a.m. to certify the Seminole County election, the vote totals are unofficial. Regardless of what happens in Seminole County, Bush's projected lead of 327 is sure to change as officials in four counties — Volusia, Broward, Dade and Palm Beach — plan to recount at least a portion of their precincts by hand. In addition, there are still some 7,000 outstanding ballots that were shipped to military personnel overseas and residents living abroad. Those ballots must be postmarked by Nov. 7 and received by Nov. 17.

A veteran of many election cycles, Goard has seen her share of recounts, but nothing on the scale of this week's process.

"We've done recounts when we used the punch card system several years ago, but the difference in this election is how close the vote is," Goard said. Because the election is so close, many Americans are showing a renewed interest in the process. Curtis Partridge was in downtown Sanford Thursday night to take his three children — Sarah, Chad and Isaac — to the library.

"Since we were down here, I thought it might be neat to show the kids what was going on," Partridge said. "This is absolutely amazing. It's like a fish bowl. They can watch the workers as they count the votes. It's a little hard for them to comprehend just what is happening, but we they get older, they can say the saw history taking place."

In his final remarks to the canvassing board as they prepared to recess Friday at 5:15

Historical house reopens as real estate office

By Nick Pflauf
Staff Writer

SANFORD — One of the city's older homes, has been converted to a commercial building, while still retaining the original historical significance.

The building, at 206 Elm Avenue in the downtown historical area; was reportedly built in the 1890s and was the original home of the Lainge family. It was later occupied by their ancestors, the Steele family, (1942 to 1988) who was deeply involved in celery production in the area.

A grand opening dedication ceremony on Oct. 15. In addition to local officials and members of the Sanford/Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, seven descendants of the Lainge and Steele families were in attendance. They included Burke, Christine, Wes, Walter B. Shane and Barb Steele.

Angelia Gordon, president and owner of the company, Angelia Gordon Property Management, Inc. and Real Estate, (AGPM), will use the home as the main office of the company.

"I have managed apartment communities in Sanford and love it here," she said. "The waterfront, the people, it's all very appealing."

Regarding the restoration, it was a special project for her.

"I wanted to keep all of the 19th Century elements, while bring it into the 21st Century," she said. The work was started in May of 1999 and only recently completed.

"We practically built a home in those months," she added, "and in a way, it still feels like one."

The windows are the original ball and weight, and the original hardwood floors in the grand old home were retained.

AGPM has been in the greater Orlando area since 1985, managing condominium and apartment communities as well as homeowner's associations. The company also offers real estate rental and sales services.

New Supreme Court ruling to help with title insurance rates

From staff reports

In a decision that could save Florida's new home buyers millions of dollars, the Florida Supreme Court ruled on Oct. 19 that home builders and consumers have the constitutional right to negotiate title insurance rates on property transactions.

Prior to the ruling, the structure of title insurance rates were mandated by state law with 30 percent earmarked to cover risk, and 70 percent for the commission paid to title agents. The Florida Supreme Court ruled that pricing structure unconstitutional.

The ruling caps a five-year effort by the Florida Home Builders Association and Gainesville developer Clark Butler to overturn the state's title insurance pricing system.

The Supreme Court found that no legitimate public purpose was served by prohibiting title insurance agents from negotiating rebates on the commission portion of the premium. "The effect of this ruling is to make the title insurance market in Florida much more cost-competitive," said Florida Home Builders Association General Counsel Keith Hetrick. "Now, builders will have the leverage they need to get the best price on title insurance for their new home buyers. And the individual purchaser of title insurance will also be able to shop for a better deal."

Title insurance premiums are based on the sales price of a property. The premium on a $100,000 property is typically around $575.

funds would become available in two, one-year windows for projects in 2003 and 2004.

He said Seminole County was in a good position to receive the grant money thanks to a public referendum on a one-cent sales tax approved by voters in 1991.

"We were fortunate to get this grant because we had a number of projects on line because of the sales tax and met grant criteria," said Marino.

Identified projects that will be enhanced by the grant money include the design of a six-lane section of State Road 434 from Maitland Boulevard to State Road 436; the construction of a four-lane section from East Lake Mary Boulevard/Silver Lake Drive from the Sanford-Orlando Airport to State Road 46, and the four-laning of Silver Lake Drive from State Road 46 to the Volusia County line.

State funding appropriations for road construction in Florida's 67 counties may be somewhat jeopardized in the future due to voter approval of a constitutional amendment during this week's election. By a 52-48 margin, electors have approved the funding of a high-speed rail project linking the state's five largest urban areas. Plans call for construction to begin in 2003. Although the amendment was approved, no funding mechanism to build the system has been identified.

Approval of the high-speed rail plan has been met with surprise by opponents of the proposed system. The Florida Transportation System, the Florida Chamber of Commerce, Florida's major newspapers and a host of municipalities and counties state-wide formally opposed the amendment. They claim it forces the state to divert billions of dollars from other transportation, educational, and health care issues already in the works to fund high-speed rail.

Marino, like many government officials was surprised the measure was approved by voters. "It's a nice idea, and one we may see somewhere in the future," he said, "but now the state legislature and local governments are asking where is the money going to come from?"

The voter approved amendment is likely to face a challenge on two legal grounds. State constitutional law dictates constitutional amendments must be passed by a two-thirds majority, and this amendment, if ultimately adopted, would require tax payers to not only fund construction, but for users of high speed rail to pay user fees which also go against state constitutional law.

It was expected the students, hopefully discussing the candidates with their parents, would vote similar to adult members of their families. While they selected both Bill Nelson and Jennifer Carroll, their parents voted otherwise. In the presidential race, the youngsters seemed to agree with the adults, as George W. Bush carried Seminole County.

Actually, Parsell deserves a little two-legged credit herself. The Delta Society stresses the importance of teamwork between owners and therapy dogs both through its national certification program and other training programs. Both Parsell and Franny, a talented and mild-mannered mixed breed, have spent countless hours preparing not only for hospice therapy training, but basic obedience and socialization skills as well.

Delta's Beyond Limits Awards, sponsored by Ralston Purina, recognize companion animals that enrich the lives of people they touch. The Service Animal Award recognizes animals that are specially trained to help people with disabilities overcome barriers and achieve greater independence. Delta's visiting Pet Partners program and Animal-Assisted Therapy services result in development of a human-animal bond.

Franny and Inez were selected for this year's award due to their work with Hospice of the Comforter (HOTC), the only non-profit hospice serving the terminally ill and their families in Orange, Seminole, and Osceola Counties. HOTC has served over 3,000 families in Central Florida since 1990 with physical, emotional, and spiritual support. Franny works with terminally ill patients both in their homes and in nursing homes.

Franny and Parsell were nominated by Hospice of the Comforter and the Florida Living Nurses Association. They were among four national winners chosen in 2000.

Any chance Franny will get a swelled head as her list of accolades continues to grow? "No," chuckled Parsell. "She retains her humility. Her reward is her work."

revenue sources before they heard about the possible budget cuts. More than a year ago, Spencer came up with the thrift store idea.

"We were seeing so many items come in, and we couldn't keep them because we didn't have enough room in our warehouse," Spencer said. "So, we gave some of the stuff to a thrift store on stipulation that our clients could get the items at no cost."

However, the deal began to sour when the thrift store began limiting the amount of no-cost items for Safehouse clients. Looking for other alternatives, the organization's board of directors gave Spencer the go-ahead to open a thrift store.

Safehouse of Seminole's new facility opened its doors almost two months ago. Since then, the thrift store has served both victims of domestic abuse and the community.

"If any of our clients need something, they can come here and get it free of charge," said Kim Bosgraaf, manager of the Safehouse thrift store. "And, anybody in the community can come here and shop. Our prices are very affordable."

Although the store is filled with a variety of items, including toys, clothes, furniture and appliances, Bosgraaf said they are always looking for donations. Currently, several items are needed, including beds. The store also needs volunteers, including sorters, cashiers and people to pick up and drop off donations.

"Right now we have two employees and one volunteer working in the store," Bosgraaf said. "If we had more people helping, we could keep the store open six days a week."

Currently, the store is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Increasing the facility's hours isn't the only goal set by Bosgraaf and Spencer. Eventually, they would like the store to raise the equivalent of one-third of the organization's $800,000 budget, which is about $260,000.

"I've talked to people from other thrift stores in the area, and they said they struggled the first two years after they opened," Bosgraaf said. "But, now some of them are making around $1 million a year."

"But, whatever happens, the store is crucial in keeping our programs open and keeping them going," she said.

To contact the Safehouse thrift store, call 407-696-4306 or e-mail SafehouseofSeminole@yahoo.com.

Safehouse of Seminole is a confidential shelter for victims of domestic violence and their children. During their stay, residents receive individual crisis counseling, nightly support groups, case management, referrals to community resources, children's services and personal advocacy. The organization offers professional training and intervention, court advocacy, a teen and adult program and a children's program.

Safehouse of Seminole's 24-hour hotline is 407-330-3933. The group's administrative offices can be reached by calling 407-302-1733.

An exhausted Sandy Goard, Seminole County Supervisor of Elections, takes a break from counting ballots.

Much like the 2000 Presidential election, a bizarre scene unfolded outside the Supervisor of Elections Office as carnival workers set up for the 3rd Annual Heritage festival in downtown Sanford. More than one person commented that it was hard to tell where the carnival left off and where the election return party began.

Ken McIntosh, Judge John Sloop and Sandy Goard double check ballots.

Election workers run all of the 137,350 ballots through scanning machines. It took workers nearly 29 hours to recount all the ballots.

SANFORD — Just when...

Winter Springs blitzed in state semifinals

By Dean Smith
 Sports Editor

LAKE BUENA VISTA — Winter Springs' hopes of avenging last year's state final loss and pulling off a major upset of four-time defending state champion Boca Raton-Olympic Heights was almost over before it started Thursday night.

Warming up to face the Lions in the semifinals of the FHSAA Class 6A State Volleyball Championships at Disney's Wide World of Sports complex, outside hitter Melina Jakubcin, the Bears' leader, went down with a possible torn ACL in her left knee just 44-seconds into the warm-up period.

It was Jakubcin's first hit of the night. The 5-foot-8 junior lay on the floor for several minutes as trainers tried to ease the pain and determine the extent of the injury. All the while, the rest of the Winter Springs tried to continue preparations, but it was obvious that the injury took a lot of wind out of the team's sails.

"The loss (of Jakubcin) was devastating," said Bears coach Kim Vach. "Playing a team as good as Olympic Heights is tough enough without losing your leader."

Injury to Jakubcin cripples Bears' hopes

When asked if her team knew Jakubcin had been injured, Olympic Heights coach Virginia Kelly said sarcastically.

"Nah (rolling her eyes), we didn't know a thing."

"I think her loss made a tremendous difference," added Kelly. "I think she was their leader."

Once the match did get started, Winter Springs (26-8) lost the first point, but then got a winning serve from Ally Hock.

The Lions then ran off seven straight points behind the play of junior outside hitter Julia Caner, senior middle blocker Michelle Piantadosi and sophomore setter Kim Harper.

Kristen Shrupp gave the Bears renewed hope when she won three straight service points to narrow the margin to 8-4, but Olympic Heights took control again, running off four points, before losing a pair, then winning the final three points, the game-winner coming on an ace from Harper, to win 15-6.

The second game was all Lions as they won the first five points, dropped a point on an ace from Eileen Hatfield, then won six straight points to make the score 11-1, before Shrupp ripped a pair of aces for See Volleyball, Page 3B

36-15 win puts Lake Mary on playoff bubble

By Dean Smith

CASSELBERRY — And now the waiting begins. The Lake Mary football team did what it had to do Friday night, rolling to an impressive 36-15 victory over Lake Howell in an entertaining Seminole Athletic Conference contest on a cool night at Richard L. Evans Field.

The victory gives the Rams a final regular season record of 6-4, putting the team on the bubble as to whether they will get the opportunity to return to the playoffs for a second consecutive year.

Dr. Phillips defeated Gainesville, 19-15, Friday to earn an at-large bid and will be at Apopka next week. One more spot is available and it is expected to be decided between Lake Mary, Oviedo and Winter Park, all of whom would finish 6-4 with wins Friday night.

A rumour floating around the Rams fans Friday was the possibility that if Lake Mary is invited to the playoffs, it would have to travel to Tallahassee to take on defending State Champion, and current No. 8 Nationally ranked, Lincoln next Friday night.

Lake Mary took control of the game on the opening kickoff, taking 6:03 off the clock and getting a seven-yard touchdown run from sophomore Reggie Campbell. Kris Kessler added the extra point.

Lake Howell was impressive in its own right, moving the ball up and down the field with its single-wing and multiple-set offense, but when they got close to scoring position, the Rams' defense would step up.

FHSAA Florida Football Pairings Show to air live statewide

Special to the Herald

GAINESVILLE — Coaches from Seminole, Lake Mary and Oviedo high schools, as well as their faithful fans, will be glued to the television today (Sunday) when the SUNSHINE NETWORK provide live coverage of the Florida High School Activities Association's (FHSAA) announcement of this year's Florida high school football playoff pairings beginning at 5:30 p.m.

This marks the second consecutive year that Sunshine Network has provided the state's first look at the pairings and is a component of the network's new multi-year partnership with the FHSAA.

The live special will offer fans not only the pairings as they are announced, but also analysis and previews from Sunshine's high school analyst Sean Aiveshire, and NEXTEL Florida Sports News hosts Barry Milligan and Tom Block. They will be positioned across Florida providing live reports and interviews with key coaches.

Last year the Fighting Seminoles, Rams and Lions all made the playoffs, but were all 6-4 this season and are on the "bubble" as to whether they will be invited back to the playoffs again this year.

Oviedo pulls out all stops in playoff bid

By Tony DeSornier
 Herald Correspondent

OVIDEO — Going into Friday night's homecoming contest with the Winter Springs Bears, most casual observers would have said that the Oviedo Lions had only a slightly better chance than a Hades snowball of making the Class 6A football playoffs again this year.

But any chance is better than none and the Lions weren't going to waste it.

Overcoming a nightmarish first half that saw them give the ball away five times and fall behind 9-0, the Lions strung together 24 unanswered points over the game's final 25 minutes to register a 24-9 come-from-behind win that kept their faint playoffs hopes alive.

Whether or not the Lions make the playoffs as a wild card for the second consecutive year depended largely on how Dr. Phillips, Winter Park, and Lake Mary fared Friday night.

Oviedo needed at least a pair of those teams to lose to earn a post-season berth.

SCC women crush St. Pete

SANFORD — Eight different players scored at least three points each in a 52-point first half as the Seminole Community College women's basketball team rolled to its third straight road victory, 84-38, over St. Petersburg Junior College Tuesday evening.

Braddock, Pa. freshman Yolonda Johnson led the way with 11 points in the opening 20 minutes, while fellow freshmen Gabrielle Blankenfeld (Naperville, Ill.) had nine, Katrina Morame (Bradenton) had eight, Brandi Davis (Bushnell) had seven and Shannon Cotton (Oviedo) had six.

The Raiders' defense was also very strong, holding the Spartans to only six first half field goals and 20 points.

The second half was almost as dominating for SCC as the visitors outscored the hosts, 32-18.

Blankenfeld led five SCC players in double figure scoring with 16 points and also had eight rebounds, five steals and three assists.

Also scoring in double figures for the Raiders were Johnson (14 points, five steals, three assists), Davis (11 points, 10 rebounds, four steals, two blocked shots), Cotton (10 points, five steals, three rebounds, one assist) and Morame See Hoops, Page 3B

Things are getting good in the NFL

Welcome to Week 11 fans, this is getting good. The talk this week has been about the amazing Monday Night Football catch in overtime. Brett Favre's magic gave the Packers a victory only The Crystal had predicted. If you didn't get to see it, try to. It amounted to an incredible turn of events in a game that had been a back and forth battle all night. Remember Franco Harris' 'Immaculate Reception'? This catch is the only one equal to it I've ever seen.

Once again the National Football League has proven itself to be the greatest show in sports. This election mess has the Crystal a bit confused. In politics, as in football, a loser should graciously step off the field. The Crystal Ball is off to Charleston for a summit with my brothers on the subject so we don't have time for a lot of idle chat.

We've got a few good games to talk about this week so let's get right to the schedule and find some winners.

TENNESSEE (-4) VS. BALTIMORE
The Ravens and the Titans hate each other. This game will be a war that literally pits convicted criminals against convicted criminals. Extra security and ambulances will be on hand for this blood-bath. Can anyone believe that Trent Dilfer got another job? Titans 24, Ravens 9.

MINNESOTA (-13) VS. ARIZONA
The Vikings will destroy the Cardinals as they look to vent frustrations of the last two weeks. Poor Arizona is feeling good about themselves after a victory over the Deadakins but it won't hold up in this one. I look for a thrashing Plummer and Company won't soon forget. Vikings 42, Cardinals 13.

DETROIT (-7) VS. ATLANTA
The Lions are in disarray after their coach quit last week, so many think they will fall apart. What people are forgetting is that the Falcons are in disarray because their coach DIDN'T quit last week. Lions 31, Falcons 14.

NEW ORLEANS (-1) AT CAROLINA
The Aints are rolling, but I'm afraid they'll stumble here. Remember, I lived in New Orleans. Just when you think this team has arrived, they drop a game like this and collapse. I'm hoping it will change with Sanford native Jeff Blake at the helm. Aints 31, Panthers 28.

BUFFALO (-6) VS. CHICAGO
Humpty Dumpty.....My beloved Bills are quietly putting their season back together. I said all along our best chances were with Flutie and they finally got the word. This team is young and exciting. Bills 23, Bears 17.

PITTSBURGH (-3) VS. PHILADELPHIA
The Steelers won't be taking the 6-4 Eagles lightly. McNabb has continued to impress the League but will get a lesson today. The Steeler fans will confuse the youngster with deafening noise which will allow the blitzing defense to find its target. Steelers 17, Eagles 13.

MIAMI (-5) AT SAN DIEGO
Miami gets to go pound on a Charger team that has been an embarrassment to the League. Junior Seau is the only player on the team that belongs in the N.F.L., a few others could play Arena ball. Call me crazy but I think Seau will beat the Dolphins single-handed. Upset Special! Seau 27, Dolphins 17.

TAMPA BAY (-9) VS. GREEN BAY

The Battle of the Bays. Tampa has to win this game and their next two to get back in the hunt. Favre showed last week that the Packers have no intention of laying down, but they can't win here. I like the Bucs' chances. Bucs 24, Packers 13.

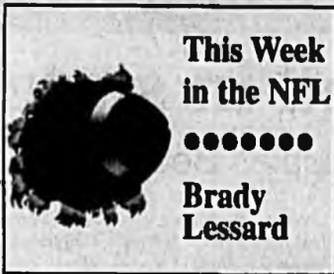

INDIANAPOLIS (-6) VS. NEW YORK JETS
The Colts need to get their confidence back. The Jets secondary will suffer second degree burns as Harrison and Manning take them to school. There is no way in the world that New York will stop this offense. Colts 61, Jets 12.

DENVER (-4) VS. OAKLAND
This will be a heck of a Monday Night Football game. A.B.C. has had some great matchups to work with this season, and they've seen their ratings soar. I like Dennis Miller. The Broncos shouldn't be a four point favorite, but as much as I hate to admit it they'll probably beat the Cheaters. I take that back, I'm going with Oakland. Cheaters 23, Broncos 21.

Each week The Crystal Ball of Football releases his patented LOCK OF THE WEEK. This is the game that after research and contemplation I feel most comfortable giving out as a sure thing. History has proven The Crystal to be extremely accurate with these selections and they have been the primary reason for my rich syndication deal overseas.

Last week the Jets stumbled after a slow start and I felt terrible. Many of you have come to count on me with the same trust that you place in the mailman and law enforcement. I broke that trust by rushing my selection last week and I intend to make it up to you.

Today I'm going with the INDIANAPOLIS COLTS (-6) OVER the NEW YORK JETS. This should be one of those games that you can go to sleep at halftime and have no worries. B-L-O-W-O-U-T. Enjoy your football and remember, everything else can wait!

Oviedo team, Vanderlende finish in Top 10 at Girls State Golf meet

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

VERO BEACH — While the Oviedo girls team and Lake Mary's Andrea Vanderlende did not bring back a state title, they still represented the Seminole Athletic Conference very well at the Florida High School Activities Association (FHSA) Class 2A Girls Golf Championships on the Dunes Course at Sandridge Golf Club in Vero Beach.

The Lions squad of Sarah Davis, Stephanie Thomas, Stephanie Delgado, Amanda Smith and Jennifer Shouldice recorded a 725 over the two days to finish in eighth place, just four strokes behind seventh place Ft. Lauderdale-St. Thomas Aquinas High School.

Tampa-Chamberlain was the team champs, posting a remarkable 628 score with identical 314's on each day. Gainesville-Buchholz, Niceville, Ft. Lauderdale-Western, St. Augustine-Nease and Estero completed the top six.

Individually, Vanderlende went 76-75 — 151 to tie for fifth place, just 13 strokes behind champion Catherine Cartwright of Estero, who went three-under 69 in both rounds to finish at 138.

All five of Oviedo's scorers finished in the top 51 overall, with Smith leading the way with a 170, good for 23rd place.

Other scorers for the Lions were Delgado (30th at 175), Davis (49th at 188) and Thomas (51st at 192).

period, Lake Mary took over on downs and, starting from its own 15, went on a eight-play, 85-yard drive highlighted by consecutive runs by Campbell of 8-, 10-, 32-, and 19-yards to set-up a three-yard touchdown by Justin Komondreas. Kessler added the extra points and the Rams led 14-0 with 2:19 left in the half.

The touchdown by Komondreas seemed to fire up the 6-foot-2, 230-pound senior as he had a 6-yard sack of the Silver Hawks quarterback on the first play after the kickoff and later evidently 'scared' the Silver Hawk signal caller as he fell down for a nine-yard loss as the big linebacker closed in.

The Silver Hawks took the second half opening kickoff and moved from its own 39 down to the 20, but a bad snap lost nine yards and an incomplete pass gave the ball back to Lake Mary with only 6:22 left in the quarter.

Taking over on their own 29, the Rams quickly marched down the field on four runs each by Campbell and Anthony Ballerino. Campbell got the final 26 yards on a beautiful run around the left side. Kessler again added the extra point and the game appeared to be headed for the Lake Mary win column.

But Lake Howell was not ready to quit, covering 61 yards in only five plays, with John Williams capping the drive with a seven-yard run. Robert McClintock's PAT was good and the score was 21-7 after three periods.

The Rams got the touchdown right back as Campbell ran for six- and 11-yards and Derrick Grayson carried once for 10-yards before Campbell broke loose on a 45-yard touchdown scamper. Jason Hadley then added a 2-point conversion on some razzle-dazzle to give Lake Mary a 29-7 lead.

The Silver Hawks looked like they had answered immediately as Williams took off on a 64-yard run on the first play after the kickoff, but it was called back on a clip.

Lake Howell would still get the touchdown, marching 81-yards in eight-plays, with Wilson scoring on a four-yard run. But the drive took four minutes off the clock, all but ending the hopes of a comeback.

Williams added the two-point run, making the score 29-15.

The Rams took only three plays to put an answer on the board as Campbell ran for 38 yards and Ballerino six, before Campbell again burst into the end zone on a 17-yard run. Kessler again added the extra point, making the final score 26-15.

The diminutive Campbell, who's only 5-foot-5 and weighs 145-pounds, was still the biggest man on the field Friday night, carrying the ball 19 times for 260 yards and the four touchdowns.

Ballerino chipped in with 61 yards on nine carries and also had 50 yards in receiving.

For Lake Howell, which finishes the season a respectable 3-7, Wilson and Williams both rushed for 100 yards in the game, Wilson carrying 18 times for 156 and Williams 19 for exactly 100 yards.

destiny, but by winning last week at Apopka and beating Winter Springs tonight, we're still in the hunt. There are some things that have to happen that aren't in our control, but at least we're there if they happen."

Trailing 9-7 at halftime, the Lions scrapped mightily in the third quarter, attempting two onside kickoffs and a fake punt. Oviedo peppered the fight, a fake punt to keep a drive going that led to its second touchdown of the game.

Steve Asby put the Lions ahead, 10-9, with a 30-yard field goal with 4:31 remaining in the third stanza.

On the ensuing kickoff, Mike Carroll recovered Asby's onside attempt to retain possession of the ball for Oviedo. Six plays later, Carroll took a short snap on a fake punt and sprinted 45 yards to the Winter Springs' 7-yard line.

It took the heads-up play of offensive lineman Mike Beilenson to make sure that opportunity wasn't squandered. On third-and-goal from the five yard line, the ball got loose and bounced into the end zone. Beilenson fell on it for the touchdown and a 17-9 Oviedo advantage.

The Lions came right back with another onside kick attempt, but Winter Springs' Tommy Lubrano was able to cover the ball.

After forcing the Bears (2-7) to turn the ball over on downs deep in Oviedo territory, the Lions put together a nine-play, 92-yard touchdown drive capped by freshman Will Harrison's 29-yard touchdown scamper at 3:55 of the fourth quarter.

Oviedo's first score also came as the result of a 92-yard drive. That one, which came in the final minutes of the second quarter, began with Tyler Little's interception and ended 15 plays later with Matt Ford's 1-yard scoring plunge.

Winter Springs jumped out to a 9-0 lead thanks to defensive back Josh Gathers. Just 16 seconds into the second quarter, Gathers intercepted an Oviedo pass and returned it 41 yards for a touchdown and the game's first score.

Three plays later, Gathers intercepted another Lion aerial and carried it back 32 yards to the Oviedo 11-yard line. That time, the Bears had to settle for a 22-yard field goal by Andrew Barch.

Led by Harrison (just recently promoted to the varsity after the end of the freshman season), Oviedo accumulated 299 yards rushing balanced by 106 yards passing. Harrison had 83 yards on just five carries while Dreggors added 73 yards on 12 attempts.

Nick Tenekedes completed nine of 20 passes for 106 yards. Asby caught four passes for 48 yards. Jason Raulerson (another recent call-up), filling in at wide receiver for his older brother Bobby (out with a concussion), had two receptions for 32 yards. Harrison also had two catches for 21 yards.

Darryl Wright had a 72-yard run for Winter Springs among his eight carries and finished with a game-high 106 yards rushing.

At halftime, it was announced that Oviedo senior football player Sammy Hughes, who suffered a spinal cord injury in a game against Lake Brantley earlier in the season, had been elected homecoming king by the Oviedo senior class.

Winter Springs.

But that would be the last hurrah for the Bears as Caner, easily the best player on the floor, served the final four points as the Lions won 15-3.

Olympic Heights (32-1), which has been to the Final Four in every year except 1995 since the school opened in 1991, will face Miami-Sunset (27-3) in Saturday's 2:30 p.m. final.

The Knights advanced with a hard-fought 15-11, 9-15, and 16-14 victory over the Plant City-Durant Cougars (28-5) earlier Thursday.

The Lions, who won the Class 4A title in 1993, the Class 5A crown in 1996, the Class 6A title the past three years, and was runner-up in 1991 (Class 2A) and 1994 (Class 4A), already have a win over Sunset this season as they look for their fifth straight state title and sixth in eight years.

And don't expect Olympic Heights to suffer a letdown anytime soon as this year's team only has one senior (the 6-foot-3 Plantadosi) and one junior (Julia Caner) on its roster.

Harper led the way for the Lions with 21 assists and one kill, while Julia Caner had nine kills, three digs and one block, and Plantadoski had eight kills, three digs and one block.

Sophomore Amanda Stemer chipped in with three kills, two blocks and two digs, freshman Summer Weising had one assist, one kill, one block and three digs and sophomore MaryEllen Caner had two kills and four digs.

For Winter Springs, which features just three seniors, the sophomore Hock had six kills, one block and four digs; junior Jennifer Forst had three kills and one block; junior Schrupp had eight digs; freshman Noells Marquez had seven assists; senior Hatfield had six digs; junior Becki McLarnon had five assists; freshman Lorin Lukas had four kills; senior Richella King had two blocks; junior Tiffany Kitaoka had one block; and senior Michelle Solano had one assist.

City now has its own Web site

By Nick Pfeiffauf
Staff Writer

Everything you want to know about the city of Sanford is in your home (or office) computer — that is, if you have one. Not only is

Sanford information available through various searches, but the city itself is now undertaking a web site address.

Keep in mind, this is about two different information sites, what's already there, and what the city itself is doing.

John Stuart is managing the Data Processing Department at Sanford City Hall.

"We just started our local address last week," he said. "We'll be putting more and more information on it in the weeks to come. People will be able to find any information about the city they wish."

At the present time, entering "Sanford, Florida" in browser will produce a great deal of information. Actually, there are approximately 19,955 entries in the internet which contain the words "Sanford, Florida." Most people will immediately obtain 15 "most popular" sites packed full of information.

Of course, there are some in the 15 which don't exactly pertain to the city. One is entitled "Welcome To the Jewish Museum of Florida." There isn't a Jewish museum in Sanford. It's actually the Sanford L. Ziff Jewish Museum, located in Miami. Nonetheless, it does contain the word "Sanford" and is in Florida.

Another of the 15 involves Tom Sanford, in Gainesville, who has a web site on bee keeping.

But overall, there is information on the Sanford Police Department, Chamber of Commerce, American Bronze Fine Art Foundry (1650 E. Lake Mary Blvd.) weather, the DAV, Seminole Community College, and information on businesses, shopping, festivals, golf courses, and other items.

"This isn't what the city is doing," Stuart explained. "We are establishing a web site that will have a breakdown of the various city departments, a city calendar, a message from the mayor, and in the near future, we'll be adding job opportunities with the city.

"We're keeping it simple," he continued, "and easy enough to use that it will even work on lower resolution screens." He added that the city's site only started this past week, and few people may know about it yet.

He also hopes to include color photos of various areas within the city. There are several pictures on the site now, including a photo of some of the downtown shops and the marina. Stuart said his site will have an even broader photo display.

For what is already on-line, it's a simple matter of searching for "Sanford, Florida." For the city's operation, managed by Stuart, the address is www.ci.sanford.fl.us.

Pirates from Penzance invading Sanford

By Nick Pfeiffauf
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Pirates will be invading the stage of the Helen Stairs Theatre in downtown Sanford on Saturday, Nov. 11, as the Central Florida Lyric Opera presents "Pirates of Penzance", one of the most musical and hilarious Gilbert and Sullivan comedy operettas ever staged.

The pirates have their share of difficulties in ever completing any raid. They are also lonely when they arrive at a port where there are a number of eligible and beautiful daughters of a retired Major General. But, to tell you more would spoil the plot and possibly give away some of the funniest material ever put in a presentation of this type.

Millicent Barimo, President of the Board of Directors of Central Florida Lyric Opera is extremely excited about appearing in Sanford. "In fact," she said, "we have an agreement where we'll be presenting programs for a long time to come." For example, next January they will present the opera La Boheme, and in March, the Elixir of Love.

But right now, the focus is on the Pirates of Penzance. The company has all professionally trained voices, and all are members of the Residential Artists' Program.

While there are many presentations throughout the state by this company, the two lead rolls in the Pirates are held by Fernando Varela and Julie Ruth, both of the Longwood/Lake Mary area.

In addition to the performances, musicians from the Orlando Philharmonic will be on hand.

Tickets for the Pirates of Penzance are $20 for regular admission, or $18 for students and seniors.

Tickets are available for all performances, including the two next year, for $45.

"Join us in celebrating our inaugural season of opera at the newly renovated Helen Stairs Theatre in beautiful, historic downtown Sanford," Barimo said.

For reservations, phone 407-321-8111. Master Card, Visa and American Express are accepted.

The Pirates of Penzance performance is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 11.

Sanford Heritage Festival-goers with arm bands will receive a discount on admission.

Parents warn children to wait

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and have been seeing a 21-year-old college man for the past two years. Both of us were the products of teen-age marriages. Our parents met in high school, married shortly thereafter, and had children in their 20s. Our parents are happy and have stayed together. However, both sets of parents have tried to "warn" us not to be tied down so young; that we should have more experience before selecting a mate. It's like they are saying, "Don't do what we did."

My boyfriend and I have discussed this and decided we're very happy together. I don't see the point in playing the field when I am already with the man I wholeheartedly love and enjoy.

Are our parents bestowing their wisdom upon us — or are they voicing midlife regret?

DONE SHOPPING

DEAR DONE SHOPPING: Probably a little of both. Your parents are also conveying an important message. People grow and change as they mature. What attracts someone as a teen-ager may not seem as important at 35. That's why I advise couples to wait until they have completed their educations and are self-supporting before they marry.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 years old and looking for a girlfriend. I can wash up — dress up — but when it comes to asking a girl out, I choke up.

When I see a girl, I turn red and run the other way. What should I do?

FEELING BLUE IN SOUTH DAKOTA

DEAR FEELING BLUE: Most people your age feel awkward asking for that "first date," so forget about it for a while. You've placed too great an importance on "dating" and psyched yourself out.

Get involved in clubs or activities that appeal to both sexes. Learn to be part of a group of friends. Start making casual conversations with girls you like.

Examples: Talk about the weather, a recent news event, a classroom assignment, or a new movie opening this weekend. Maybe she and others would like to see it, too.

If she doesn't want to go — or has other plans — don't take it personally. Ask another girl. Suggest some other activity. Soon you will be part of a group, feeling more comfortable and less shy.

Then, when you want a date for a school dance or sporting event, you'll naturally ask someone you've gotten to know, and you won't turn red and run away again. Trust me.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: The other night I went out alone to eat at a national seafood chain restaurant. I took along my newspaper, and as I sat there reading, with my paper spread out across the table, it occurred to me that what I was doing might be considered bad manners.

I'm pretty sure that reading a newspaper at the table in a diner or fast-food restaurant is permissible. But how about at an upscale restaurant? Can I read Dear Abby anywhere?

WILLIAM IN GLENDALE, CALIF.

DEAR WILLIAM: As far as I'm concerned, you may read my column anywhere, anytime — and I'll defend to the end your right to do it. However, sometimes it's not what you say or what you do, but how you do it. If you're eating alone in an upscale restaurant, instead of spreading the newspaper like a blanket over the tablecloth, fold it neatly and inconspicuously and enjoy it. That way there will be fewer smudges from the newsprint — and no dirty looks coming your way.

Abby shares her favorite recipes in two booklets: "Abby's Favorite Recipes" and "Abby's More Favorite Recipes." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 per booklet ($4.50 each in Canada) to: Dear Abby Cookbooklets I and II, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. (Postage is included in price.)

Italian Feast once again a success

The Lake Mary Woman's Club has yet another successful Italian Feast under their belts. The feast, which was held last Saturday, is an annual fund-raising event for the club.

This year's feast had great Italian food, salad and dessert. The Italian Feast was also a great place to pick up beautiful Christmas crafts at ridiculously low prices. The club also had two gourmet baskets, which were raffled off.

The proceeds from the fund-raiser go, in part, to the club's annual scholarship. Each year in the spring, the Lake Mary Woman's Club provides a scholarship to Seminole Community College for a displaced homemaker. It's just one of the many things the club does as service to the community. The club also participates in Holiday in the Park, the city of Lake Mary's annual tree lighting.

They provide cookies and a drink to any attendee donating a non-perishable food item for Safehouse of Seminole County.

Holiday in the Park is scheduled for 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 1.

Girl Scout Talent Show A Success

The fifth annual Stardust Talent Show was held last Saturday. Stardust is the name of the Girl Scout Service Unit in Lake Mary. More than a dozen acts sang, danced or joked for the audience. There was some outstanding talent at the show. Bianca Mendez and Danielle Corrao did a wonderful job dancing to the song "Aaron's Party." (Aaron is, evidently, the little brother of one of the Backstreet Boys.) Sara Ricci and Jennifer Knurik were impressive as they danced to Janet Jackson's "It Doesn't Really Matter."

There was also a great tap dance by Melissa Kunkel and Carly Flynn. Had there been a contest for cutest troop act, it would have been a toss up between Brownie Troop 2021 singing "The Little Muffins" and Brownie Troop 1966 singing "G for Generosity."

The show was sponsored by Senior Girl Scout Troop 148. The troop also held a bake sale and silent auction in conjunction with the show. Among the items auctioned were gift certificates from Panera Bread in Lake Mary, and an autographed football from the UCF football team.

The talent show was held as a fund-raiser. Troop 148 is raising money to support their Black Culture Festival, scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 3, at Lake Mary City Hall. The festival, which is geared toward school-age children, will have a lot of hands-on activities. The girls are raising the money so that all of the activities will be free.

Ashley Williamson and Morgan Hill play a flute duet during the recent Stardust talent show.

Wilma Heaton celebrates 90th birthday

There is never a dull moment in the life of Wilma Heaton who recently celebrated her 90th birthday. The charming nonagenarian, described as the hat lady, is well-known for her spontaneous wit and humor. She always has a snappy comeback to a wise-crack, of which she hears many.

Wilma was recently asked, "Are you still setting the world on fire?" She retorted with, "No, but my pacemaker sets off alarms at airports."

Her niece, Vesta Rhymer of Sanford, showered her aunt with deserved plaudits. "She outworks and outplays all of us," Vesta said. "She is a positive light in this world."

Arriving in Sanford about three years ago to be near her family, including a great niece, Colleen Goehrig, Wilma immediately began making her mark on the community. She participates in senior affairs including line dancing and playing cards. At 90, Wilma is still driving night and day, is an active member of the First United Methodist Church, and volunteers in several areas including the Grace and Grits Program for the needy. She is also an active member of the Sanford Woman's Club and supports the Helen Stairs

Theatre. On top of all this, Wilma writes lovely verse and still sews.

A take charge person, Little Wilma was born Nov. 7, 1910 in Ravenswood, W.Va. and has been running the show since. Her grandfather was the first blacksmith in Ravenswood and later was elected the mayor. Wilma, her parents and sister lived at a dam on the Ohio River where her father was an engineer. She spent 43 years as an executive secretary for Gulf Oil and was later president of Desk and Derrick, an international organization of women working in the oil industry.

A weekend in the life of Wilma goes like this: an overnight trip to St. Augustine and arriving home in time for a surprise birthday party that afternoon followed by entertaining family and friends until about midnight. Then it was up bright and early to attend church the next morning and go the theater that afternoon.

The surprise birthday party in Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church was in honor of Wilma. Hosted by her niece, Vesta Rhymer, her son and his wife, Terence (Terry) W. (and) Lynda Heaton of Northville, Mich., and Stacy Webb, the celebration attracted about 75 friends and relatives from Michigan, New York, Chicago, Florida and Pittsburgh, where Wilma still owns a home.

Guests arrived carrying a silk flower for a floral arrangement and index cards bearing a memory message to Wilma. A highlight of the event was Terry serenading his mother with "Take Me Home, Country Road."

The tables, overlaid with lavender cloths, featured runners of purple and blue hydrangeas accented by tea lights. The huge birthday cake was accompanied by a variety of luscious finger foods, coffee, tea and punch. Balloons, interspersed with satin bows, floated overhead creating an eat, drink and be merry ambience.

Overwhelmed at the party given in her honor, the feisty and spry honoree extolled, "I have never been so surprised in my life." For a moment, Wilma couldn't say a word.

Annual prayer breakfast held for scholarship fund

God's People United in Prayer and Worship was held Saturday, Nov. 4, at 9 a.m. This annual prayer breakfast of the St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church Christian Education Committee was on behalf of the Castle Brewer Scholarship Fund.

The fund is to assist young people to continue their education. Students apply for and are awarded a scholarship from this fund based on academic merit and need. To date, more than $20,000 has been awarded to Seminole County students.

Sister Betty Washington presided at the high-spirited worship service.

A musical prelude was led by Minister Vernon Jones, "Oh what a Sweet Hour of Prayer" as the audience joined in the hymn of praise.

A rendition of "What God has for me, it is for me", was delivered beautifully by soloist Minister Jones.

After a delicious breakfast was served to more than 100 prayer worshippers, we were blessed with the selection "Change My Heart O God" by Betty R. Washington and Sylvia H. Stallworth. Deacon Curtis Jackson of the Mount Olive Baptist Church led the call to prayer.

The speaker for the occasion was introduced by her husband, Brother Vaughn K. Riley. After a beautiful mime presentation by the St. Matthew Baptist Church Youth Praise Team, they mined the selection, "His Eyes Are on the Sparrow" and "I am just a Prayer Away."

Our speaker for the morning, Sister Juanita Larry Riley, is a native of Tampa and a graduate of the local school, and received her B.A. from Clark/Atlanta in Sociology and an M.S. in Mental Health Counseling. She is employed as a licensed mental health counselor and national certified counselor.

Sister Riley, as a Christian, has the gift of exhortation and healing. She is an active member of the New Covenant Baptist Church of Orlando. A woman of God inspired spiritual leadership, she has written three Christian Plays, has also facilitated Christian workshops, namely, "Soul Food", "Puberty, Oh My God!", "Spiritual Gifts," "Dare to Dream It" and "Spiritual Growth".

Riley, a woman of spiritual power, spoke on the topic, "He will do just what he said". She challenged all believers to do just what he says.

God has not changed nor has He forsaken, nor has He left our side. She reminded us that He watches over us, He knows our grief, fear, He always rekindles our minds, and renews our spirit. When you give it up, that's when He will bless you.

This spirit-filled message was received by the audience with the feeling of being fed a spiritual meal good for the soul, body and mind.

Indeed the message was one of food for thought, as Minister Vernon Jones led the selection "Somebody Prayed For Me"

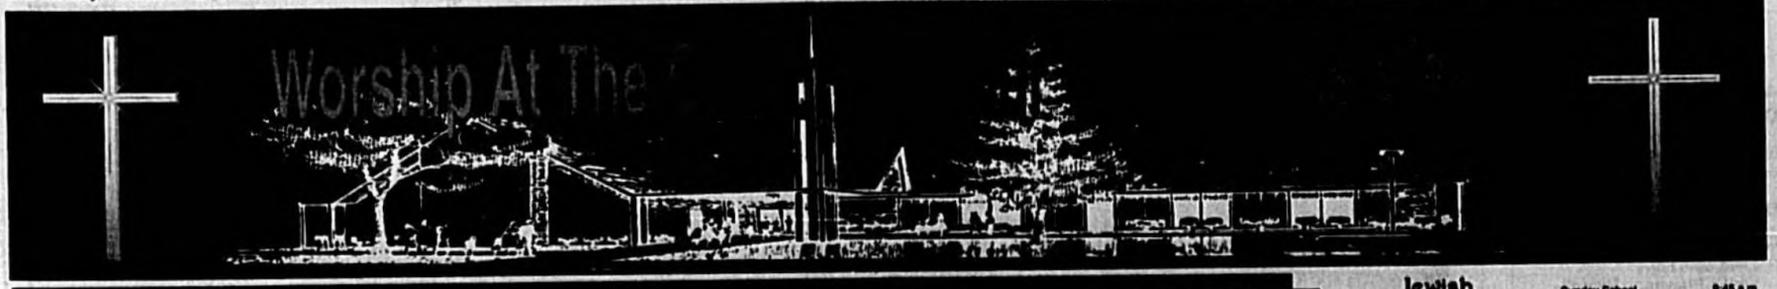

The annual prayer breakfast of the St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church Christian Education Committee was held on behalf of the Castle Brewer Scholarship Fund. Entertainment was also held during the celebration, the including St. Matthew Baptist Church Youth Praise Team and Pastor Elijah Caffey extended the open door.

Pastor Albert Covington gave words of thanks to the speaker, to the Christian Education Committee, Victor Dargan, committee chairperson, Sheralyn J. Polk, Prayer Breakfast program chairman, Earl E. Minott, Scholarship Fund Administrator, and Altermese S. Bentley, founder.

Special thanks to Hamilton Elementary School food service manager, Publix foods, the Gideons International, Seminole Gardens Apartments. Youth sponsorships were Sanford Ace Hardware, Inc., Sanford Electric Co., Inc., Barnes Heating and Air Conditioning, Inc., Clouse Goodyear Car Care Center, Inc., Golden Rule Affordable

Purucker celebrates first year serving First Baptist Church of Winter Springs

From staff reports

Reverend Steven L. Purucker recently celebrated his first year as pastor of the First Baptist Church of Winter Springs. He had previously served as Minister of Education and Administration for the First Baptist Church of Altamonte Springs.

Purucker serves as a bi-vocational pastor, and is employed as a Senior Engineer for Siemens Corporation. He and his wife Nancy have four children.

Pastor Purucker believes that the church should be active in the community so he was delighted when he was asked recently to be chaplain for the Winter Springs Police

Delivering a prayer

Presbyterian church establishes prayer box

By Mary Rowell
Herald Correspondent

A group of women from the River Oaks Presbyterian Church were visiting Savannah, Ga., when they saw something that struck them as a great idea.

A church had what looked to be a mailbox, but was actually a community prayer box. The women liked the idea so much, they brought it back to their church. Parishioner Ron Brown built the community prayer box for the church.

The box is located in the church parking lot, located at 358 Washington Ave., right off Longwood-Lake Mary Road one block down from Lake Mary Boulevard. The community prayer box is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The Rev. John Montgomery said all prayer requests are welcome, no matter what a person's denomination is. It can be an anonymous prayer request or people can leave their name and phone number and someone from the church will contact each individual to offer assistance, if needed.

If a person can't travel to the community box to drop off a prayer, call the church at 407-330-9103.

Sharing time usually makes happy home

"BILL AND FRANCES ARE PLANNING TO GET MARRIED!"

I was shouting because Eleanora Wheeler, who is 90, is mostly deaf.

"It won't work out," Eleanora said. I was surprised to hear her say that because I would have said the two young people were ideally suited for each other. So I asked, "WHY NOT?"

Bill, of course, fishes only on weekends in the summer or when he is on vacation, but Eleanora has a rule of thumb for anybody contemplating matrimony: "Always marry someone who likes to do the same things you do on vacations." Her theory is that if a man and wife like to spend their leisure time doing the same things, they are happily matched.

There may be something to it. A couple we know has just come back from taking "separate vacations." They have been doing this for some time now. He goes off to some mountain retreat where he can put on old clothes, forget about shaving every morning and just sit lazily in a rowboat and wait for a nibble.

His wife, meanwhile, goes to a romantic seaside resort where she can enjoy the luxuries of hotel life and eat food she doesn't have to prepare.

They both have a wonderful time and come back rejuvenated. But — YOU'RE RIGHT, ELEANORA! — you wouldn't exactly call Fred and Olga happily married.

Still, there is something mismatched couples who married in ignorance of Eleanora's rule of thumb can do. They can take "alternate vacations."

The first week, the husband goes where his wife wants to go and lets her enjoy herself to her heart's content — if not to his.

The next week, it is the wife's turn to give in. She goes wherever it is her husband would be the happiest and does the best she can to help him live it up, even if it means frying up the fish he's caught.

After the vacation is over, he will have the same warm, happy memories of catching fish that his wife will have of sitting on the hotel veranda with the luxury classes. But this is the important thing — in his mind, along with "the big one" he caught, he'll see his wife. The trout and the missus will be synonymous with contentment and pleasure.

A man is happiest doing the things he likes, and if his wife is along, she becomes part of the picture of satisfaction that flashes through his mind whenever he recalls the pleasant moments in his life. The same goes for his wife.

Liking people — even our spouses — is largely a matter of association. We tend to like those who were with us when we had a good time.

Maybe we could get children to like church "by association." If more churches passed out crayons and coloring books to preschoolers who come to church, the youngsters would associate church with a good time. As it is, sitting still and having to be quiet makes them dislike church.

The reason children prefer hot dogs and hamburgers to steak and roast beef could be that they associate hot dogs and hamburgers with picnics — where they had a good time.

Spice Revival

Breathing aroma and sensation into our cooking

Spices, in those small jars at the supermarket, have more names than we can possibly know what to do with and create total confusion in regard to what spices go with what foods and at what stage of cooking. Because they are widely available and cheaper than they have ever been, we tend to take them for granted and ignore their long and colorful history.

Sica Nacu

Every time I am at the supermarket or at a gourmet international foods store, I dream of past times when people regarded them with reverence — ordering small silver engraved boxes for good keeping or creating a minuscule grater for the nutmeg. Famous porcelain houses manufactured mortars and pestles to pound down the garlic or curry.

In Victorian times, spices were treasured by people. Various spices were carried in small pill boxes, trimmed with gold filigree and hand painted motives, and kept close at hand to help with any bland dish that might be served.

The use of spices flourished in medieval England, though only the rich could afford them. Savory sweet dishes were seasoned mostly with ginger, saffron and cardamom. New spices from Southern China and India — nutmeg and mace, cloves and ginseng (in the same family with ginger) — came into Western Europe slowly. Moorish Spain grew rice, sugar, saffron, and licorice and exported them to Northern Europe.

Back then, sugar was considered a spice and given great value, for it was still rare and costly. Our sweet tooth probably originated within draughty castles and manor halls where sugar created energy and warmth.

Most people bought their spices throughout the land. Prices fluctuated according to supply, with cinnamon, ginger, and pepper the least expensive and most common. You could, after all pay your rent in peppercorns. Saffron, even when grown in England, was expensive because of the labor involved in gathering the crocus stigmas. The same is true today.

As medieval recipes are often for a hundred people, it is impossible to imagine what a half of pound of cinnamon or four ounces of pine nuts would do to a haunch of beef. These days, when used in small quantities, spices do not override the natural flavor of the other ingredients. They fuse the mixture into something unexpected and delicious.

I don't know how spicy you like your food to be, but I enjoy my food best when spices are used in moderation — only suggesting flavors and enhancing foods. That is why I doubt whether medieval revelers ever tasted the clear freshness of vegetables, for they also were cooked with ginger, saffron, and sugar.

Colored food was immensely popular, which partly accounts for the avid use of Saffron. Red was the fashionable shade of winter, so sandalwood was used. Black food was also appreciated, achieved by using cooked blood as in "boudin noir," which is still with us, especially in the north of England and the Caribbean Islands.

However, the poor had none of this trendy stuff, making do with pepper, garlic, fennel and mustard seed. As in Roman times, mustard was pounded to a paste with vinegar. Spices continued to be very expensive well after the advent of the East India Co. It was the colonization of the Far East, India, and Africa by European countries that slowly brought down the cost. England, along with France, Portugal, and Spain, could plant and harvest in their colonies the spices they needed. Around the 18th century, English borrowed from France the habit of flavoring a dish with an onion stuck with cloves. Capers imported from the Mediterranean also became popular.

Soon, British began to pickle nasturtium seeds (native to the Americas) as an economical substitute for capers. By the time Soy Sauce reached England in the 1660s, pickling liquors was already a trend. Made of vinegar well flavored with cloves, mace, nutmeg, pepper, salt, and vinegar, these liquors were reportedly named ketchup after a Chinese fish-brine pickle, which must have been similar to the favorite Roman condiment "liquamen." From this, we made ourselves an anchovy ketchup and a walnut ketchup, both of which preceded the pre-popular Worcestershire sauce by about 150 years.

Piccalilli came from India in 1964. Named after "to pickle like" (an Indian pickle), it is a concoction of sauced vinegar flavored with ginger, garlic, pepper, and bruised mustard seeds, all made yellow with powdered turmeric and containing pieces of cabbage, cauliflower, onions, and celery.

The more general spicing of food declined just as spices became less expensive. The reason — the highly addictive substance known as sugar, which could make bland foods enticing while sweetening the bitter ones. However, it also resulted in poor teeth and obesity. Sugar became the new colonial crop in subtropical countries and integral part of

Pictured above, during the past, societies revered spices and used special containers and serving dishes for the different flavorings. At left, various spices add flavor and color to food. the slave trade with the West Indies. Spices were then recast as the adjunct to the meal, the spiced side dish, or part of an array of condiments and pickles, as opposed to being the main course on the supper table.

Pickles And Spice

From the time the East India Co. flourished from the mid-17th century, pickled vegetables, ketchups, and sauces were used extensively to garnish stews, roasts, and pies.

Meanwhile, the jam of pickled mangoes brought back by the voyagers started a craze. Any English vegetable that grew abundantly — onions and cucumbers in particular — and the nearest imaginable fruit to the mango, the peach, was pickled and was found in every country-woman's kitchen.

The mixed curry powder we are so familiar with first appeared in 1780. Today, many of the older spices are back in the kitchen again.

Ginger began a revival a decade ago and is still flourishing, while the stir-fry method of cooking is healthy and can turn a few vegetables into a feast with a little help from sesame oil, ginger, garlic, and chili.

This particular fusion of spices calls up something near to paradise for me. Its very distinct aroma and flavor is evocative of Far Eastern food and is central to my cooking.

The range of Oriental spices are huge, but there are particular favorites that signal one cuisine more than another such as lemon grass in Thai and red chilies in the Szechuan/Hunan cuisine.

Several essential spices can now be bought at supermarkets and others can be found in health food stores or international delicacies shops.

As when making curry dishes, the spices must be sautéed in oil before other ingredients are added, but watch temperatures. The dish will be ruined if the spices burn. Spices must lose their volatile oils into the cooking medium before other ingredients and stock are added.
