PGA Championship under way

EDMOND, Okla. — The 70th PGA Championship opens today with five of the 150 players at home on the Oak Tree Country Club course alternately praised and damned for its potential difficulty.

The four-day event was scheduled to begin with the group of Scott Bess, David Glenz and Mike Malaska at 8 a.m. EDT and will wrap up Sunday.

Those hoping the course plays into the hands of the pros that play it the most are David Edwards, Andrew Magee, Gil Morgan, Doug Tewell, Bob Tway, and Scott Verplank. Larry Nelson is the defending champion.

Judge rules against drug tests

SAN JOSE, Calif. — A judge's ruling exempting Stanford University from the National Collegiate Athletic Association's drug-testing program could lead to an end to the tests in all California universities, a lawyer said.

Superior Court Judge Conrad Rushing issued a 28-page permanent injunction Wednesday against the NCAA program, calling it unconstitutional and prohibiting the sports body from testing Stanford athletes.

NASA readies for next step

CAPE CANAVERAL — With the shuttle Discovery's roaring main engine test firing out of the way, NASA managers today focused on plans to fix a leak in a steering rocket system amid preparations for a key full-scale booster test firing next week.

Preliminary data from Wednesday's engine firing indicated the power plants performed without any major problems. And while NASA managers cautioned that complete results had to await computer analysis, they were clearly elated.

"It's a major hurdle. It's a major, major test," said Thomas Utaman, deputy director of the Kennedy Space Center. "It was especially difficult given the nagging problems we've had."

Accidents kill 2 in county

By SUSAN LODEN

LAKE MONROE — Two Seminole County men died in unrelated accidents Wednesday, one by electrocution and one when he was crushed under the car he was working on.

Douglas Thomas Waligurski, 25, of 3051 Narcissus Ave., Sanford, was electrocuted as he re-roofed a house in Lake Monroe at about 3:15 p.m. Wednesday.

About 45 minutes later, Richard J. Sneed, 20, of 5516 Albert Drive in rural Winter Park, was crushed when a hydraulic jack apparently failed and dropped a car onto his chest.

Coworkers of Waligurski, Michael Edward

Moore and William Devon Howard, both of Sanford, reportedly told Seminole County sheriff's deputies they were working with him on a roof on Iowa Street in Lake Monroe, when Waligurski became entangled in a live electrical power line.

Waligurski's boss, Andrew Adcock of Sanford, said "We know, everybody knows, to stay away from those power lines. I don't know why in the world he got nutted up in it." Adcock said this is the first such accident involving one of his workers in his 25 years as a roofer. He called Waligurski one of his top men, and said he had worked for him for about seven years.

A sheriff's report said Waligurski was on the roof when he either stood up or backed into the wire, which led from a street post to the roof. He fell against the wire and, as he fell, the wire wrapped around him.

Florida Power and Light Co. workers and Seminole County firefighters arrived at the scene at about 3:25 p.m. The power company workers cut off the power to the line, but Waligurski was dead at the scene, the report said.

He and the other roofers are employed by Adcock Roofing, 800 French Ave., Sanford, Adcock said. Waligurski was married and the father of a stepchild.

In the other accident, Sheriff's deputies were called to Sneed's house by his mother, Sharon Kay Sneed, 41, of the same address, about 4 p.m.

Passengers in the car suffered cuts and scratches but no one was seriously injured. A CSX Railroad operator called in the accident at 12:26 p.m. It is not known who was driving the car, which sustained front end damage. Leroy Laughlin, 18, Robert Johnson, 17, both of 1113 S. Myrtle Ave., and David Fox were taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital by Rural Metro ambulance and were treated and released. The cause of the accident is not known.

County machines used in copying candidate's case

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Copies of a 1974 criminal case of a candidate for state Republican committeeman were made on Seminole County copy machines under the direction of Seminole County Chairman Fred Streetman for the candidate's opponent, a possible violation of state laws prohibiting a public official using his office in an attempt to influence an election.

A complaint was filed Wednesday afternoon by District 5 candidate Art Davis, a Democrat, with the Seminole State Attorney's Office, naming Streetman, Assistant County Administrator Montye Beamer, Support Services Director Jim Patterson and Republican State Committeeman Jim Stelling as involved in the action.

"If any citizen has the right to walk in and make a copy, I don't have a problem with it," Davis said. "Quoting Mr. county commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, 'I have concerns about the misuse of public funds and the concealment of records.'"

"I also agree with Mr. Kirchhoff in that Streetman should step down and the governor appoint someone to fill in until this is investigated," Davis said.

Kirchhoff made similar comments Tuesday pertaining to Clerk of Court David Berrien over the alleged misuse of clerk's office credit cards by Berrien and his two top assistants.

Altamonte rezoning proposal draws crowd

By CAROL RUMSEY

SANFORD — The proposed rezoning of five acres of residential property to retail-commercial property to retail-commercial property brought school officials, homeowners and parents to Wednesday's Seminole County Planning and Zoning Commission meeting.

The five acres in question sits on State Road 434 at the intersection of Jamestown Boulevard in Altamonte Springs.

A developer wants to build a shopping center, nearly double the size originally planned; a high school is in desperate need of a road to alleviate traffic congestion, which the developer is willing to assist with; and homeowners fear further commercial encroachment on their neighborhoods.

Planning commissioners found no easy answers, after several residents, a county traffic engineer and a spokesman for the developer gave their recommendations, and split 2-2 on a recommendation.

Commissioners Mike Davis, Emory Rosenbluth and Frank Tibbits were absent.

Bill Morrison, president of L.F. Rossignol Commercial Development Corporation, purchased 4 acres, which directly fronts the intersection, back in 1983. Although, the lot is vacant now, Morrison has received site plan approval to build a shopping center.

Homeowners in neighboring Brantley Harbor fear the shops would reduce property values and permanently change the character of their neighborhood. They said they'd had enough because their homes are already surrounded by a heavily traveled S.R. 434, shopping centers and office buildings. To alleviate their concerns, Morrison designed a buffer and landscape plan, which he presented to homeowners, and which they approved.

In the meantime, traffic along S.R.

434 and Sand Lake Road is growing increasingly worse. According to Sam Momary, Lake Brantley High School Assistant Principal, every morning and afternoon is a traffic nightmare as 4,000 students from Lake Brantley, Teague Middle and Forest Lake Elementary — which all front Sand Lake Road and are within 100 yards of each other — pour onto the two-lane Sand Lake. Residents, parents and students say the traffic comes to a standstill, backing up both Sand Lake and 434.

Heathrow Business Center receives board's approval

LAKE MARY — The city's planning and zoning board has recommended approval of the development order for Heathrow's International Business Center after considerable discussion on building heights.

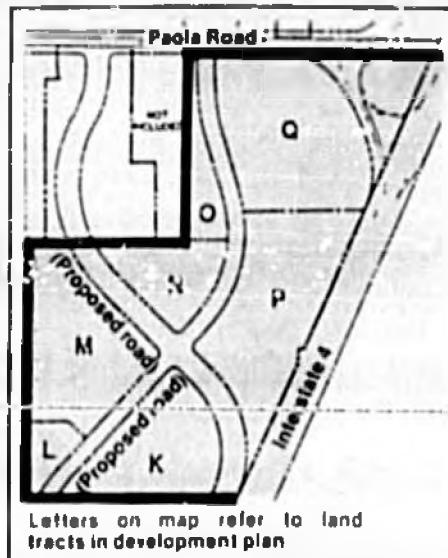

The next step will be the full commission's approval before final adoption at two public hearings, the first of which is scheduled for Sept. 1.

Seminole County and the East Central Florida Regional Planning

Council have already approved the portion of the development which lies in unincorporated areas east of Interstate 4. The portion of the project within Lake Mary's city limits is south of Paola Road along the west side of I-4.

The board is recommending a maximum building height of 70 feet, which would apply only to the tracts labeled K, M, N, P and Q. Three of the tracts border I-4. Heathrow plans a 500-room hotel for one of the tracts and had proposed a maximum building

Natural fireworks scheduled tonight

The most reliable meteor shower, the Perseids, will be easily visible in the moonless sky late Thursday and early Friday according to Mike Murray, director of the Orlando Science Center.

Last year the moon was in the morning sky, washing out all but the very brightest meteors, but this year there will be no moon to interfere with viewing.

Murray said patient observers may see as many as 60 meteors per hour in the early morning hours in rural skies. He said many will seem to radiate from the northeast, but people should look for them all over the sky.

He recommends getting well clear of city lights to get the best view of the meteor show.

Murray explained that the Perseids are believed to be the remains of the shattered comet Swift-Tuttle. As it came apart, the comet left behind lanes of debris consisting of particles, usually smaller than grains of sand.

Prosecutor in protest denies conflict

TALLAHASSEE — The state attorney whose office is prosecuting 128 protesters arrested for blocking an abortion clinic says his involvement in a center that discourages abortion does not create a conflict of interest.

State Attorney Willie Meggs said he has had little direct involvement in the case against the demonstrators arrested for trespass Saturday during a "rescue" mission to prevent pregnant women entering the North Florida Women's Health and Counseling Service.

Meggs said his only direct involvement was in endorsing reduction of bond for the persons arrested from $100 to $50.

Assistant State Attorney C.L. Fordham arranged a plea bargain allowing the defendants to plead no contest, pay $100 in court costs, and be spared a criminal record.

"I feel favoritism is happening here in more ways than one," clinic director Jill Marcum said Wednesday.

Meggs said he opposes abortions and serves on the board of directors of the Tallahassee Pregnancy Center, established by abortion opponents to discourage the procedure and offer alternatives to pregnant women.

Gunter explains aide's dismissal

TALLAHASSEE — A difference in management styles, not hardball politics, forced Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter to remove the head of the commission's fraud investigation division, Gunter says.

Gunter denied politics entered his decision to ask Robert E. McKenna to leave the job he had held since February 1977. Gunter said McKenna had gotten into a "management cross fire" with Assistant Insurance Commissioner Ann Wainwright.

McKenna pushed for an investigation of Ronald Book, a Miami lawyer who raised money for various Gunter political campaigns.

"She (Wainwright) and he were not communicating. He basically ignored directives that she reported to me were given to him," said Gunter, who also is a candidate in the Democratic U.S. Senate primary race.

"I had a prayer meeting with Bob McKenna on that more than once," Gunter said, "and that was a part of the problem where management styles just did not meet."

McKenna resigned June 30 as head of Gunter's Insurance Fraud Division. In 1986, he pressed the investigation of Book for filing a false insurance claim.

Norwegian critical after lightning strike

FORT LAUDERDALE — A Norwegian tourist remained in critical condition Thursday after being struck by lightning as he emerged from the ocean on a Fort Lauderdale beach.

Tor Stølamo, 31, was listed in critical condition early Thursday in the intensive care unit of North Beach Community Hospital.

Stølamo and his wife, Susan Grodal, 31, of Kristiansand, Norway, were struck by the bolt of lightning as they emerged from the water shortly after noon Wednesday.

Both were knocked unconscious, but Grodal was later listed in fair and stable condition at a second hospital, where she was taken for treatment.

The two Norwegians, who had just begun a three-week vacation in the United States, were swimming when lifeguards warned them to get out of the water because of an approaching thunderstorm.

The couple speaks limited English and had trouble understanding the warning, one witness said.

The lightning bolt struck Stølamo first, and then jumped to his wife, who was walking slightly ahead of her husband.

A witness said the bolt appeared to come out of clear skies and sounded like a bomb when it hit.

"The bolt came straight out of nowhere," said Lloyd Christopher. "The sky was clear, no clouds at all."

Martinez gets into speaker's campaign

TALLAHASSEE — Rep. Carl Carpenter, D-Plant City, picked up the support of Rep. Elvin Martinez, D-Tampa, in his bid to deny the leadership of the Florida House to Speaker-designate Tom Gustafson.

Martinez said Wednesday he would support Carpenter for the term beginning in November, to protest a selection system that picks the House's presiding officer up to six years in advance.

He was also critical of attempts by Gustafson, D-Fort Lauderdale, to raise $1.5 million to support the campaigns of Democrats who will support him for speaker.

Carpenter, who has not ruled out forming a coalition with Republicans to gain control of the 120-member House, is trying to raise $50,000 to support Democrats who support him.

"The speakership should be open to all members and it should not be for sale," Martinez said.

Charles Canaday Sr., campaign director for Gustafson's leadership fund, said Martinez previously had committed not to support a coalition speaker.

Canaday said Carpenter still lacks enough support to control the House.

NASA looks to next hurdle

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — With the shuttle Discovery's roaring main engine test firing out of the way, NASA managers today focused on plans to fix a leak in a steering rocket system amid preparations for a key full-scale booster test firing next week.

Preliminary data from Wednesday's engine firing indicated the power plants performed without any major problems. And while NASA managers cautioned that complete results had to await computer analysis, they were clearly elated.

"It's a major hurdle, it's a major, major test," said Thomas Utsman, deputy director of the Kennedy Space Center. "It was especially difficult given the nagging problems we've had. But we feel very, very good that we're through it. It's a clear demonstration that Discovery is a very good bird."

Discovery's cargo, a $100 million NASA satellite identical to one destroyed aboard Challenger, is scheduled to be taken to the launch pad Sunday for installation in the shuttle's payload bay.

A new internal schedule shows Discovery can be launched as early as Sept. 25 if all goes well and no additional problems crop up. While most observers believe the chances of making a September liftoff are remote, NASA is charging ahead with renewed optimism.

"At this time we still, in my opinion, have a shot at September," said astronaut Robert Crippen, chairman of NASA's new mission management team.

Next on the agenda for Discovery: beginning a complicated repair job Tuesday to fix a leak in a steering rocket fuel line aboard Discovery that will require what amounts to shuttle surgery.

The leak, discovered July 15, is situated inside Discovery's left-side orbital maneuvering system pod, one of two such rocket pods mounted on either side of the ship's tail fin that house 15 rocket engines each.

The approved repair procedure calls for cutting two holes in the shuttle's aft payload bay bulkhead and then through the leading edge of the rocket pod to give engineers access to a leaking "dynatube" fitting.

Repair crews then plan to bolt a clamshell-like casing around the fitting and fill the casing up with a silicon-graphite-fiberglass sealant under pressure. Once the sealant "sets," the leak will be isolated and the problem eliminated.

"It is a self-sealing material and our tests indicate that on the order of 10 to 15 minutes after injection it ... sets up and seals," Utsman said. "Your leak is repaired."

He described the leak as "incredibly small" and said, "we've worked out what we feel are adequate protections from contamination and whatever in the payload bay so we feel comfortable with that work."

"It's not a chainsaw massacre," he joked. "While the fuel line surgery is under way at the Kennedy Space Center, engineers with rocket-maker Morton Thiokol Inc. are scheduled to test fire a full-scale shuttle booster Thursday at the company's plant near Brigham City, Utah.

The 14-story rocket, mounted horizontally in a massive test stand, is the last booster required to be fired before Discovery's launch on the first post-Challenger mission.

The test is every bit as important as the test firing Wednesday of the shuttle's three main engines and it represents a final hurdle for NASA's plans to resume shuttle flights in late September — if possible.

For the first time, major, deliberate defects have been built into a full-scale booster to prove redesigned O-ring seals will work as advertised in the presence of major failures.

Challenger was destroyed Jan. 28, 1986, by an O-ring failure and since then, the joints have been thoroughly redesigned.

Instead of two O-rings, each joint now has three, along with improved insulation to keep hot gas from reaching the seals in the first place. In addition, a metal lip called a "capture feature" has been added to firmly lock joint members together, thus preventing possible leak paths from developing.

But with production verification motor No. 1, or PVM-1 for short, NASA has built in deliberate defects that circumvent all the post-Challenger design improvements except the capture feature flange.

"It is our major flaw verification unit," said Crippen. "There are a significant number of flaws in it. Yes, there are some people who would say there is a certain amount of risk to that but we felt that particular test was necessary to certify the design will do what we have stated it will do."

Abducted pastor safe

LAKE CITY — A man released from prison Monday was back behind bars Wednesday after being accused of abducting a minister in Pensacola and threatening to kill him 12 hours later in a standoff with troopers.

Kenneth Unruh, 18, of Orlando, was arrested Wednesday morning in rural Suwannee County after he was stopped at a rest area on Interstate 10 between Tallahassee and Jacksonville.

Shots were fired but there were no injuries in the 2 a.m. EDT arrest.

Authorities said Unruh had been sentenced five months ago in Escambia County to two years in prison for burglary and was released Monday from Apalachee Correctional Institute.

The man Unruh is accused of abducting in Pensacola — Andrew Spencer Turnipseed, 40, of Florida, Ala. — was not hurt despite being locked in the trunk of his car during part of the trip east.

Turnipseed was expected to speak about his abduction at a news conference Wednesday afternoon.

The incident began around noon Tuesday when Turnipseed was in his car outside Cordova Mall. The minister had just left his wife, Sally, at the entrance to a cafeteria and was parking his car when the suspect confronted him.

Deputies said Turnipseed apparently was picked at random.

Unruh, armed with a 9mm semi-automatic pistol, allegedly commandeered the vehicle and drove away from the parking lot. Witnesses at a nearby restaurant notified authorities.

Lt. Dan Parkton of the Florida Highway Patrol said Turnipseed was placed in the trunk of the car at first, but later was allowed to travel in the back seat of the vehicle.

Maj. Mike Kirby said troopers got a tip around midnight that Turnipseed's Buick had been seen. About an hour later trooper Robert Bostic spotted Unruh and Turnipseed at a rest stop.

Hatching of rare turtle may be first in captivity

United Press International

CLEARWATER — Two tiny Kemp's ridley sea turtles, the world's rarest sea turtles and the first known to have been hatched in captivity, were doing well Wednesday as marine biologists kept watch on two other nests, hopeful of more hatchlings.

The pure black infant turtles, which together fit easily into the palm of the hand, weigh only an ounce apiece and were the only ones to hatch Saturday out of a clutch of 20 eggs at the Clearwater Marine Science Center's natural hatchery at Sand Key.

"Those were the only two, the rest of the eggs were infertile," executive director Dennis Kellenberger said Wednesday. "But we're anticipating some more as soon as next week. We have two other nests of about 20 eggs each, about two weeks apart."

Although the sex of the turtles will not be known for almost six years when they reach maturity, center employees have named them Adam and Eve.

"They're something we're proud of," Kellenberger said. "They are strong and they're trying to eat right now. It's a first. We're keeping our fingers crossed."

He said the turtles are being fed krill, a shrimp-like crustacean, and will be considered "out of the woods" in a few weeks.

"The Kemp's ridley turtles are the rarest and smallest of all sea turtles," he said. "When they are grown they are only about 120 pounds."

Kellenberger said the Kemp's ridleys are known to nest in only one place in their natural habitat and that is off the Gulf coast of Mexico. He said they also are the only sea turtles to nest during the daytime.

DeSillers says she will resist order

United Press International

MIAMI — A defiant Maria DeSillers gets another chance today to comply with a court order requiring her to turn over various personal items she bought using money donated for her late son's liver transplants.

Karen Gievers, trustee for the case, said she offered to meet with DeSillers and her new lawyer at 3 p.m. today, but at the last minute the attorney raised some questions. Further discussions are expected today.

After winning her second delay Wednesday in complying with the order, DeSillers said she would fight to keep one possession she bought with money for the operations: a cemetery plot next to where her son, Ronnie, is buried.

"I would be damned if I would turn it over," a distraught DeSillers said outside the courtroom of Dade Circuit Judge Francis J. Christie. Christie denied a motion by DeSillers' attorney to delay surrender of personal property bought with donations to her son's medical fund, but gave DeSillers until 4 p.m. EDT today to give back the goods, including a BMW car, a car telephone, jewelry, clothing and furniture.

Gievers raised no objection to the extension. Gievers believes DeSillers used about $200,000 from the fund for personal expenses.

Gievers described the two separate delays — from Tuesday to Wednesday, and Wednesday to today — as part of the justice process.

"While it is frustrating that things don't happen the first time, the system does have built-in checks and balances to make sure everyone's rights are protected," Gievers said.

DeSillers, who has fought unsuccessfully to keep control of the fund, indicated Wednesday she may defy Christie's order to surrender the burial plot.

Accused of passing bad check

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A New Orleans couple who allegedly tried to pay for goods at Waterbed Land on State Road, 436, with a $499 check drawn on a closed account, remain jailed accused of attempted commercial larceny. Workers at Waterbed Land notified Altamonte Springs police of an alleged attempt to pay for goods there with a bad check at about 5:45 p.m. Wednesday. Arrested were Kathleen Ramona Aultman, 43, and Stephen Lee Crawford, 37. They are being held in lieu of $3,500 bond each.

Cited for burglarizing truck

LAKE MARY — A man who returned to repair his disabled truck parked on Old Lake Mary Road 12 hours after he left the truck Wednesday, reported confronting a man who was in the truck rummaging through the vehicle. Lake Mary police were notified of the confrontation and the victim, Danny Cox, gave them the tag number of the car driven by the man who had allegedly been in the truck. That led Seminole County sheriff's deputies to Raymond Keith Hosack, 26, of 2412 S. Stevens Ave., Sanford, who was arrested on a complaint of burglary to a vehicle after questioning at the Lake Mary police station at about 9 p.m. Wednesday. Bond was set at $1,000 and he was released from jail to appear in court Sept. 6.

Mam accused of hitting woman

CHULUOTA — A man accused of hitting his live-in girlfriend over a reported dispute over his alleged use of cocaine, has been booked on a complaint of battery. Seminole County sheriff's deputies report arresting Patrick James Long, 31, of 301 Center St., Chuluota, at home at about 9:27 p.m. Wednesday. Deputies reported the victim had apparent injuries to her face and alleged Long had hit her. He is free on $500 bond to appear in court Aug. 24.

Dog shot

MIDWAY — A 9-month-old part pit bulldog owned by Larry Byrd of 2710 Midway Ave., Midway, was shot with a shotgun Wednesday at 2231 Center St., Midway. A sheriff's report said deputies have the name of a suspect. Animal Control officials took the dog from the scene, and deputies reported the dog, valued at $200, would probably be killed, because of its injuries.

Accused of driving under the influence

SANFORD — Isayvette Falcon Berry, 25, of 1228 Logan Drive, Longwood, was arrested at 9 p.m. Wednesday on Crystal Lake Ave., Lake Mary, after her car was clocked traveling 40 mph in a 20 mph zone on Old Lake Mary Road and was booked on suspicion of driving while under the influence.

Burglaries and thefts reported

SANFORD — A 1974 Chevrolet, valued at $600, was stolen from the rear of Jimmy Bryan's Auto Sales, 2913 Orlando Drive, at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday. According to the police report, the vehicle was owned by Mitchell Morris, who had parked the car at the gate behind the dealership.

James H. Williams, of 2575 State Road 436, #2106, Winter Park, reported to sheriff's deputies a $160 radio, two speakers valued at $150 and three cassette tapes valued at $24 were stolen from his car Wednesday.

After a confrontation with two men outside the Cool Breeze bar, 2341 Sipes Ave., Midway, Ivan Robinson of 3400 Dollar Way, Midway, reported to sheriff's deputies one of the men returned in a few minutes. That man, who was armed with a pistol during the second incident early today, allegedly stole a $110 gold necklace from Robinson before fleeing.

A $300 camera, three watches, three rings and a camera lens with a combined value of about $1,600 were stolen Wednesday from the house of Wilson F. Hunt, 480 Country Club Drive, Longwood, a sheriff's report said.

Sheriff's deputies have the name of a suspect who may have stolen the 1986 Toyota of David Brown from Ocean Side, Calif., between July 19 and Wednesday, from Auto Caravan Corp., 2702 Lake Howell Road, Winter Park. The car is valued at $12,000.

Three air compressors valued at $1,450 were stolen between July 15 and Tuesday from McDonald's, 1121 E. Semoran Blvd., Casselberry, a sheriff's report said.

Sheriff's deputies report a $475 grass cutter, a $155 lawnmower, and a $140 blower were stolen Tuesday or Wednesday from a storage shed at the Wekiva Presbyterian Church, 201 Wekiva Springs Road, Longwood.

A $400 air conditioner motor, a $400 well pump motor and a 15 gallon water tank valued at $100 were stolen from 913 Suburban Estates, Lake Mary, between July 25 and Aug. 1, according to a report filed Wednesday with sheriff's deputies. The items belong to Heathrow Land Development, Corp., 250 International Parkway, Lake Mary.

Garfield Simpson of 1575 Sunshine Tree Blvd., Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies $8,000 was stolen from his house Wednesday along with two rings with a combined value of $800.

Sanford police are investigating the theft of four tires and wheels, which were removed from a Nissan pickup truck while it was parked in the rear of the owner's house early Wednesday morning. Andrew Donald Doering, 17, 1516 E. Second St., also reported the theft of a steel tool box from the bed of the truck. Total value of the items was estimated at $1,250.

Jerry Walker, 1616 W. Second St., reported the theft of $450 worth of property from his residence sometime early Wednesday morning. According to the police report, entry was gained through an open porch window.

Man arrested for stabbing his brother

SANFORD — A 22-year-old man is jailed today, accused of aggravated battery, and his 17-year-old brother, whom he allegedly stabbed in the back during a Tuesday morning fight, remains in intensive care in a Longwood hospital.

Lawrence Judson Avery was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies at the Handy Way on Orange Avenue in Longwood at about 10:10 p.m. Wednesday. He is held without bond.

According to Seminole County sheriff's reports, Avery is accused of stabbing his brother, Keith Avery, in the upper right back during a fight in the parking lot of the Brake Clinic and J.R.'s Auto Sales, about midnight Monday.

The brothers reportedly lived in a camper behind that location. They have been in the area about one month and the elder brother works for a tree service, sheriff's reports said.

A sheriff's report said the fight began when Lawrence Avery arrived home and confronted his brother and two other men in the camper. After the stabbing Lawrence Avery reportedly fled and Keith went to a nearby convenience store, where he received help. He remains in South Seminole Community hospital, where he has undergone surgery as a result of the deep wound, the report said.

Lead rules could cost consumers

United Press International

WASHINGTON — New government regulations proposed to control lead in drinking water could affect more than half of all U.S. water suppliers and could cost families as much as an extra $340 in annual bills.

The Environmental Protection Agency has proposed the sweeping new controls on lead in an effort to reduce health risks from the toxic metal for 138 million Americans, particularly children.

EPA Administrator Lee Thomas said Wednesday that the new regulations, which face 60 days of public comment before they can become law, would be worth all extra costs because of the widespread health benefits.

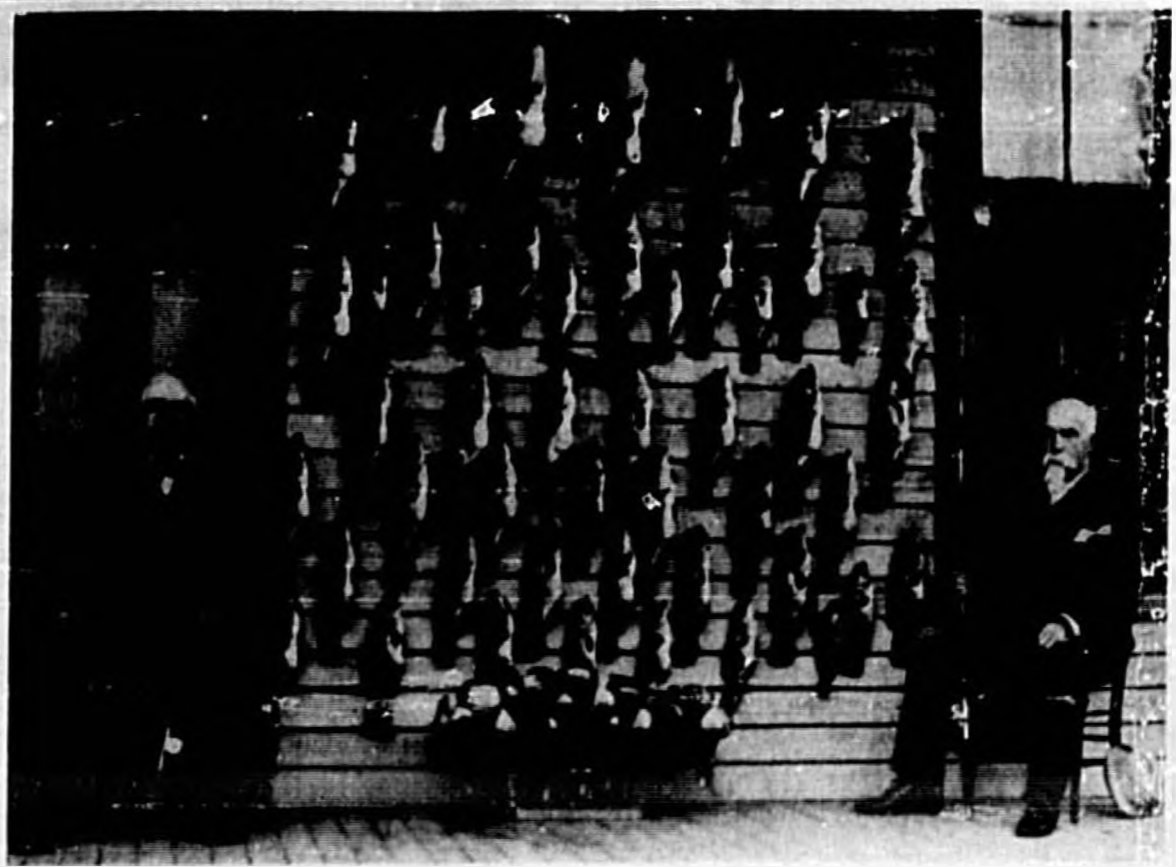

"This proposal will reduce lead in the drinking water of 138 million Americans and will be especially beneficial to young children, who are at much greater risk than adults," Thomas said.

Even relatively low levels of lead in blood can reduce birth weight, cause premature delivery and impair physical and mental development of children.

In adults, low levels can cause hearing loss and increase blood pressure while high exposure can cause anemia, kidney damage and mental retardation.

The current lead standard was set in 1975, but EPA officials said a tougher standard is needed in view of recent health studies showing humans are more sensitive to lead contamination than previously thought.

The new regulations would be expected to affect more than half of all U.S. water suppliers, officials said, and could cost a family anywhere from an additional $1 to $340 a year on a water bill, with those served by smaller systems bearing the highest costs.

Historic Sanford calendar planned

By WAYNE NIZE

SANFORD — The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce has found a rather unique way to help raise money for next year's Independence Day fireworks display.

The chamber is offering a calendar for 1989 with antique photographs depicting Sanford in its earliest days representing each month of the year.

However, the project will require the assistance of county residents, according to the chamber's executive director, Dave Farr.

"We need people to submit any old photographs of Sanford that they might have," said Farr. "They will then be judged and 11 will be selected for the remaining months of the calendar."

To date, only one photograph has been selected for the calendar. It was submitted by Don Vincent from his deceased father's (Bill Vincent, Sr.) extensive collection of pictures of early Sanford and its residents.

The picture shows two well-dressed men (names unknown) with fishing poles, proudly sitting in front of the Sanford House Hotel, displaying numerous fish and ducks caught during a sporting outing.

The picture is believed to have been taken in the early 1900s, according to Vincent.

According to Farr, similar photographs are needed to fill out the calendar, such as old pictures of downtown Sanford. Farr said photographs should be submitted to the chamber, where they will be judged by a selection committee.

Julie Wert of Wert Printing & Graphics, Alicia Clark, curator of the Henry Shelton Sanford Memorial Library and Museum, and Farr will be the judges.

"We are hoping this will encourage people to get into their attics and look for pictures," said Clark. "At the same time, we would also like to collect old images of Sanford for the museum because this is an important part of our history. If people would donate them or let us reproduce them, we would be very thankful."

Wert originally came up with the idea for the calendar.

"Julie and I were sitting and talking how we could raise money for the fireworks fund," said Farr. "Julie had this idea and did much of the work."

The calendar as designed by Wert will include reproducing the antique pictures in sepia tone effect, which will give them an authentic brownish color.

Historical data of Sanford will also be included with each month, along with a space for individual messages or business logos.

"We are hoping to have at least 2,000 printed," said Farr.

Farr said the "modest" profit from each calendar order would go to the fireworks fund.

Minimum order is 50 calendars for $194 ($3.88 each). The price of each order of calendars to the customer decreases with each additional order of 50.

Anyone with pictures to submit or wishing to purchase the calendars should contact the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce at 322-2212.

Lightning comes through phone

By WAYNE NIZE

OSTEEN — Sanford Fire Department Battalion Chief Ernie Ellenburg was struck by lightning early Wednesday evening while talking on a telephone.

"He thought he had a stroke," said Richard Cohen, a fire inspector and neighbor, who drove Ellenburg to Central Florida Regional Hospital.

"He told me he never heard the lightning. All he knew was he was talking on the phone and then he was trying to get up. The side of his face was numb. He had really thought he had had a stroke."

According to Cohen, Ellenburg was working outside at 350 Duran Ave., where he is building a house, at approximately 6:30 p.m.

Ellenburg was talking on a telephone in a trailer located on the lot and hung up. Then as he was walking away, the telephone rang and Ellenburg said he answered it. That was all he could remember.

Cohen, who was also working outside, said he heard the lightning strike and went immediately inside his house at 270 Carpenter Ave.

Cohen said Ellenburg was conscious and alert when he arrived on the scene. "He was extremely lucky," said Cohen. "He had a severe headache and pain in the neck."

Cohen drove Ellenburg to the hospital, where he was kept overnight for observation.

Judge abandons judicial logic

U.S. District Judge Elizabeth A. Kovachevich of Tampa is not new to the spotlight nor has she been withdrawn from either publicity or controversy. Her first brush with notoriety came a few years ago when she branded University of Florida dormitories student brothels. Her latest venture is a decision involving schooling in Hillsborough County for a child with AIDS.

Fear of AIDS has reached near panic proportions during the past two years. That fear is never higher than when a community or a school is faced with the enrollment of a child who is also an AIDS victim. There are several instances of such parental and community reactions in Florida during recent times and most stand as examples of actions for which we should be ashamed.

We have also witnessed through the past three decades innumerable instances in which federal judges have departed from the strict construction of the Constitution and substituted sociological considerations into interpretations. Many of these decisions made in lower courts were reversed by the Supreme Court.

And now comes Judge Kovachevich whose decision this week is drawing criticism from all parties in the action. She appears to have set some type of record in inane, judicial manipulation.

Six-year-old Eliana Martinez is mentally retarded and is not toilet trained. Her family wants her in school. Judge Kovachevich ruled that Eliana must be admitted to class at a special school for mentally and emotionally handicapped students when it opens Aug. 29.

But the judge said when Eliana is in class, she must be confined with a teacher's aide inside a glass enclosure no less than 6 feet by 8 feet in size — slightly smaller than a king-sized bed — and it must be equipped with a sound system, air conditioning, large window and separate toilet and door.

When the child is toilet trained, and no longer sucks her thumb, the walls may be removed and she can join the seven other students in the class.

According to records, Eliana is in the most-advanced stage of the usually fatal disease AIDS and also suffers from cerebral palsy and congestive heart failure. She is believed to have contracted the AIDS virus during 39 blood transfusions she received after being born prematurely in Puerto Rico.

There has been an immediate outcry from family, doctors, educators and psychologists against the scheme of Judge Kovachevich. The concept of a "bubble-child" in the classroom will only focus the attention of the other children on the "differentness" of Eliana. She cannot join them in play, music or joint study activities. Moreover, the separation appears to be based more on the lack of toilet training than the AIDS infection since the walls fall away when the child can go to the bathroom by herself.

Judicial meddling may now have reached its ultimate in absurdity. The real tragedy is that a small child, already innocently victimized by disease, is being encased in some type of ludicrous experiment.

We hope that as life inevitably ebbs from Eliana's small, young body that she will be able to see more of life than can be viewed through a bubble.

Whistle blown on inadequacies of law

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Enacted only 10 years ago, the Civil Service Reform Act was supposed to protect the rights of government whistle-blowers — but the experience of one courageous, conscientious federal employee illustrates its inadequacies.

In the early 1980s, Bertrand G. Berube was a senior official in the General Services Administration, the federal agency in charge of all government buildings, transportation, communications and supplies.

As administrator of GSA's National Capital Region, Berube was responsible for maintaining almost all government buildings in Washington, from the White House to the Pentagon, but he was troubled by the condition of many of those structures.

Specifically, he was concerned about health and safety deficiencies that included fire hazards, asbestos contamination and crumbling foundations in buildings where thousands of government employees worked.

Berube's superiors not only rejected his appeals to remedy those problems but viewed him as a troublemaker and threatened to retaliate against him if he did not abandon his campaign to publicize the dangerous conditions.

Berube told his bosses that if they pledged to make the needed improvements, he would "stay within the system"; if not, he would "go to the press" with his story. He was fired in 1983.

He then sought assistance from the Office of Special Council, established in the 1978 law as the representative of legitimate government whistle-blowers who have suffered from reprisals after identifying fraud, waste, abuse or other forms of wrongdoing.

If OSC investigations produce evidence that whistle-blowers have been subjected to illegal retaliation, the agency is supposed to represent them in proceedings before the Merit Systems Protection Board.

But Berube was rebuffed by OSC, which instead claimed that he engaged in unlawful "extortion" and "blackmail" when he warned GSA officials that he would take his case to the news media if remedial action was not initiated.

That experience is hardly unusual. In its 10 years of existence, OSC has turned down more than 99 percent of all appeals from whistle-blowers. It has agreed to represent only one of the thousands of government workers who have sought its assistance since it was created.

Instead, OSC has become the whistle-blowers' opponent, characterizing them as malcontents, tutoring government officials on how to fire them without being caught, and turning over to federal agencies confidential materials provided by whistle-blowers seeking help.

The Government Accountability Project, a public interest group that aids whistle-blowers, aptly describes OSC as the federal establishment's "most effective weapon against dissent, identifying wounded dissenters who come for help and then finishing them off."

Congress now has an opportunity to institute needed reforms because both the House and Senate soon will consider the Whistle-blower Protection Act, which would prohibit OSC from acting against the best interests of those who seek its help.

New cover on old data

By Colman McCarthy

WASHINGTON—Before lecturing citizens on what to eat, Surgeon General C. Everett Koop ought to avoid choking them. His 712-page report on nutrition and disease is a hard-to-swallow bulk of informational lard, with a shelf date long expired.

It's old knowledge that Koop provides: American diets are too fatty, salty and sugary and people are dying to eat what prematurely kills them. He's among the last to endorse the established way: choose "vegetables, fruits, whole-grain foods, fish, poultry, lean meats and low-fat dairy products." And his hype that the report is "a landmark in public health" is the intellectual equivalent of a bag of Cheetos washed down with Kool-Aid.

Koop is an assembler of information from several thousand past studies and reports. No supermarket has sufficient shelving for all the documentation published in the last 25 years on diet and disease. Compared with the customary federal temerity in confronting or regulating the meat, poultry, dairy and junk food industries, Koop may believe he's on the cutting edge of boldness by giving the nation what amounts to an anthology of old nutrition studies. Little critical thinking or fresh analysis is in the report.

By merciful coincidence, Koop's counsel arrives at the moment that another nutritional authority—legit—is on the scene. John Robbins, a Ben Lomond, Calif., psychotherapist, fulfills in "Diet For A New America" the promise he makes in the book's preface: to "show you how your food choices can be of tremendous benefit, not only to your own life, but to the less fortunate of the world as well. No self-deprivation is called for, but simply the understanding that the healthiest, tastiest and most nourishing way to eat is also the most economical, most compassionate, and least polluting.... You benefit, the rest of humankind benefits, the animals benefit, and so do the forests and rivers and the soil and the air and the oceans."

Leaving aside the question of why aren't Koop and his food feds writing with that kind of breadth and depth, Robbins has unique credibility. He is the son of Irv Robbins, the founding co-partner of Baskin-Robbins, now the world's largest ice-cream company. Born with a silver ice-cream spoon in his mouth—the family's swimming pool was shaped like an ice cream cone—Robbins thought it normal to gorge a quart of ice cream at one sitting. He worked in the stores as a teen-ager and, being groomed, did junior management work. Having gone to Berkeley in the 1960s, Robbins spent his 20s figuring out that life was more than scooping ice-cream profits. He was on the way to learning the "health implications of consuming globs of frozen fat, sugar and chemicals." He would soon become aware, too, of the inter-connectedness of food-eating and food-growing.

When offered the family business by his father, Robbins declined. He went on to do graduate work in nutrition and health. Now in his early 40s and with all financial ties to his family's ice-cream fortune severed, Robbins has written a book that is the pioneering match of Aldo Leopold's "Sand County Almanac," John Rawls' "A Theory of Justice," and Rachel Carson's "Silent Spring."

Like those volumes, "Diet For A New America" is rich with facts that are astounding but wouldn't be if the federal guardians of public health were on the job:

—Water needed to produce a pound of wheat: 25 gallons.

—Water need to produce a pound of meat: 2,500 gallons.

—Training in nutrition during 4 years of medical school by the average U.S. doctor: 2½ hours.

—The dairy industry tell us: whole milk is 3½ percent fat.

—The dairy industry doesn't tell us: the 3½ percent figure is based on weight, and most of the weight in milk is water. The amount of calories as fat in whole milk is 50 percent.

—The feeding of antibiotics to livestock is banned by the European Economic Community. The feeding of antibiotics to U.S. livestock is fully supported by American meat and drug companies.

—Cost of hamburger meat if water used by the meat industry was not subsidized by tax money: $35 a pound.

By providing that kind of information—which Koop doesn't—not a preachy line is needed by Robbins. Facts scream, not him. His philosophy is Albert Schweitzer's: reverence for life. He is Franciscan in seeking cooperation with God's world of nature, not dominance. His beliefs are those of Thoreau, "I make myself rich by making my wants few."

Everett Koop's dietary message is: Stop doing what's bad. Robbins' is the opposite: Try doing what's right. Koop says: If you don't stop, you'll die. Robbins says: If you try what's right, you'll live.

Why Bush delays VP

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Campaign aides to Vice President George Bush say he will not announce his choice of a running mate for 1988 until the final day of the Republican National Convention.

The reason given for the delay is the GOP effort to maintain suspense during an otherwise predictable convention in New Orleans. But, privately, Bush aides admit the delay will be for very real long-range political reasons.

After the Democratic convention ended in Atlanta, the GOP began polling in a dozen key states. This polling will continue up through the start of the convention in New Orleans. It is designed to give Bush campaign officials data they need to decide who will best help the ticket in the No. 2 spot.

While the Democratic selection of Lloyd Bentsen focused attention on the coming battle for Texas, GOP strategists are more worried about California. They are becoming convinced that whoever wins California will capture the White House. Therefore the key question in choosing a running mate is who will best help the ticket in California.

Central to this question is whether, of the available candidates, only California's Republican Gov. George Deukmejian will make a difference. Deukmejian has already said he would not accept the vice presidential nomination — in part because he would have to resign his California post, and a Democrat, Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy, would become governor.

Turning the California governor's mansion over to the Democrats would so rile the state GOP that California Republicans might abandon Bush. But sources in the Bush camp say that if polls indicate the GOP can only carry California if "the other Duke" is on the ticket, then some way will be found to persuade Deukmejian to accept the nomination.

If, however, polling shows that California can be carried without Deukmejian — or that it is likely to be lost even with him — then the contest for the No. 2 spot becomes wide open.

For the last month, most GOP insiders believed the strongest man for the ticket was former Bush rival Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas. Early polling has shown that Dole would greatly help the GOP hold critical farm belt states — a base Bush must count on in November.

However, for a variety of reasons, Dole is now seen as losing favor as a VP nominee. While the drought continued unabated, it looked as if 1988 was going to be a disastrous year for the farmer. It was considered likely that farmers would take out their discontent on the GOP. Thus, Bob Dole could perhaps have made a difference. But now that recent rains have made it likely that a substantial percentage of farmers will get a crop in, the need for Dole in the Midwest has lessened.

Then, too, many GOP strategists think Bob Dole is too much like Lloyd Bentsen. Both are Washington insiders, and with Dole on the ticket the GOP would be limited in how it can attack Bentsen.

Many believe the front-runner for the VP nomination is now Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y. Kemp is young, attractive, a good campaigner and his selection would make conservatives very happy. He is also well-liked in California and might be almost as big a help on the ticket in the state as Deukmejian.

GOP moderates are pushing former Tennessee senator and White House chief of staff Howard Baker. It is believed that Baker would help Bush almost everywhere, but he is considered anathema to party conservatives.

Dole is now seen as losing favor as a VP nominee

Stocks open slightly up

United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.
 The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 44.99 Wednesday, was up 3.20 to 2037.34 shortly after the market opened.
 Advances led declines 515-369 among the 1,371 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 17,500,000 shares.
 Prices plummeted Wednesday as fears over the potential for higher interest rates in the United States and abroad rattled a market where buyers remained few and far between.

 Late in the session, as a result of a 50-point move in the Dow, the New York Stock Exchange, under rules adopted in February, requested that member firms refrain from using its automated systems to execute various types of program trades.
 Joseph Barthel, director of technical strategy at Butcher & Singer Inc., said the boost in the discount rate Tuesday "put the lid on any upside move by the market and caught a large contingent of bulls by surprise."

"One, the market could not rally or it would have become overvalued," Barthel said. "Secondly, those that thought the Fed would not act in an election year were caught off guard. They now recognize that the Fed is, in fact, moving toward higher rates."
 "The market is down, not because of the hike in the discount rate, but because of the belief that rates will have to go even higher to slow the economy," said Hugh Johnson, head of investment policy at First Albany Corp.

Rezoning

four-laning Sand Lake would not begin until 1995 and completion would be in 1999.
 Making matters worse, Momary said, Lake Brantley's bus, teacher and student drivers must share one entrance, which current regulations governing construction of new school facilities prohibit. Momary told commissioners, "When Lake Brantley was first built and we had only 1,200 kids, that kind of access was OK, but we're now serving 2,500 students and it's not acceptable."
 Momary said it's a very dangerous situation, which results in at least one student a year getting hit, and many fender benders.
 For the past two years, Momary and Seminole County Traffic Engineer Dave Nicodemus have explored ways to alleviate the congestion. They approached Morrison while he was undergoing the original site plan approval for the four-acre parcel. During this time, an additional five acres became available directly behind the four-acre lot. Morrison agreed to buy the property contingent on its being rezoned commercial, and he agreed to allow an access road from the light at Jamestown Boulevard to the student parking lot at Lake Brantley High.

 Momary says his student lot is filled with 360 cars. He is suggesting that teachers, school bus drivers and parents use the current school driveway on Sand Lake, and student drivers, which make up the majority of the traffic congestion, use the proposed access road. This way, he says, all three schools will not be dumping traffic onto Sand Lake at the same time.
 Nicodemus calls the proposal a good one. He has studied traffic flow in the area and believes it is the best solution given all safety considerations. The developer has agreed to construct a connecting driveway from Palm Springs Drive, which is the only entrance to Brantley Harbor, to the light at Jamestown Boulevard. Residents would benefit by having an easier left turn onto S.R. 434. Currently, a right turn can be made, but the stacked traffic conditions make a left turn nearly impossible. He also said the light at Jamestown Boulevard would be modified so that the school resource officer could manually control the light during peak usage hours.

 Not all Brantley Harbor residents agree that the connecting roadway is a benefit. One resident told commissioners to keep it up and he'll turn his home into a restaurant and hotel. Others said the proposal would only move the current problem a little farther down the road.
 Several residents also spoke in favor of the rezoning on the basis of safety. Most had children attending Lake Brantley High in nearby developments, or simply traveled Sand Lake and knew of the congestion. In addition, a petition with 100 signatures in support of the project was hand delivered to commissioners.
 Planning Commission Chairman Sue Lewis called it an emotional issue which impacts many in the community. She recommended that homeowners and the developer try to reach some sort of agreement before the county commissioners meet to discuss the issue on Aug. 23.

height of 140 feet. City staff had recommended maximum building heights of 85 feet.
 Board members agreed Tuesday night that 70 feet should be the maximum height allowable, but not necessarily acceptable. They recommended decisions on building heights be made on an individual site plan basis.
 There probably isn't one appropriate height, said Board Chairman Jim Talmadge, adding that until an overall site plan is available for study, the height discussion makes little sense. "If the goal is to limit density, I don't think we can target building height only," he said.

City Manager Robert Norris said the board's recommendations further strengthened those of the city staff. "We believe it provides strong protection for the city and its residents," Norris said. "The more the developer is tied down from day one the better."
 City attorney Thomas A. Cloud agreed, saying the development order needs to be specific in addressing building height or Lake Mary would end up accomplishing nothing.
 Several residents from the Markham Woods area spoke of their concerns for the development's effect on the environment, traffic and aesthetics of their rural neighborhoods.
 Further recommendations included:

- A minimum of 35 percent open space where there is a maximum building height of 35 feet, a minimum of 40 percent open space where there is a maximum building height of 60 feet, and 45 percent open space in land tracts where building height is 70 feet. Norris said the recommended open space restrictions exceeded the county's by 10 percent.
- A 200-foot buffer located within parcels L and M was approved, which pleased several residents who attended the meeting. Instead of a brick wall, as proposed, a berm with a minimum height of six feet and a maximum height of ten feet is recommended.

Accidents

AIDS
 Court documents say Eliana is in the most advanced stage of the usually fatal Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, which affects the body's ability to fight off disease and infections.
 The child, who also suffers from cerebral palsy and congestive heart failure, is not toilet trained and sucks her thumb and forefinger. Because of that, school officials banned her from classes, offering instead to teach her through a home instruction program.

Accidents
 A sheriff's deputy reported finding Sneed trapped under a 1974 Dodge Charger in a garage at the house.
 A hydraulic jack under the right front tire of the car was in the down position. Sneed was lying under the car with the right front tire resting on his chest. The hood of the car was up and there was a shovel behind the left rear tire. The report said.
 Rescue workers responded to the scene and Sneed was transported to Winter Park Memorial Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Woman reportedly offered job in return for endorsement letter

By J. MARK BARFIELD
 Herald staff writer
OVIEDO — Margaret Wimberly, president of a south Seminole County Republican women's club, said last week she had been solicited for a county management job by District 1 commission candidate Pat Warren in return for an endorsement letter.
 "I don't think this is the way politics works," Wimberly said. "I believe once upon a time there was a place called Tammany Hall, we don't need that kind of politics."
 Warren's response was to the point.
 "You've got to be kidding," Warren said. "I certainly did not, would not or could not do that."
 The state penalty for a candidate offering a public or private job or to assist in getting a person a job in return for a political favor is a $5,000 fine, five years in prison or both. On conviction, the candidate is disqualified from holding office.

 When told of the penalties if Warren were found guilty of violating the law, Wimberly said "I stand by my statement."
 Wimberly, a founder of SAWTOC, a south Seminole County women's Republican club and active in Seminole County Republican politics for 10 years, said Warren called her on the weekend of July 23. She said she does not remember the specific day because she was studying and not aware of the time.
 Wimberly is currently studying for a master's degree in public administration at the University of Central Florida.
 "She said when she was elected, she wanted me to work with her in the management of the county," Wimberly said.

 "I thought this was ludicrous," Wimberly said. "I have no experience."
 "She wanted me to write a letter in support of her and said that she'd see to it that it got to the right people," Wimberly said.
 "That is not true," Warren responded when told the statement Wimberly had made.
 Although Wimberly admits she is more closely aligned with the political organization which includes Seminole County Commissioners Fred Streetman and Bob Sturm, Lt. Gov. Bobby Brantley, Warren's opponent David Knickerbocker and others, she said her motives in making her allegation public are not intended to cause division of the county's Republican party.

 Streetman said last Thursday Stelling delivered a packet of microfiche reproductions of documents of the 1974 Hillsborough Circuit Court case and conviction of Grant McEwan. Stelling's opponent for committee.
 In April 1975, McEwan was found guilty of buying, receiving or aiding in the concealment of four stolen paintings. The paintings were stolen in early 1974 from a Fort Lauderdale woman by two felons who McEwan had previously bonded out of jail. McEwan was a bail bondsman at the time. One of the felons murdered the woman when she came in during the crime.
 Paid informants alleged McEwan had driven the two felons to the apartment and later assisted in their sale in a Tampa hotel room, witnessed by several state and federal undercover agents and informants.
 McEwan entered a guilty plea and was sentenced to seven years' probation with his rights to vote and hold office intact.

The probation was lifted only four years later.
 McEwan said he was framed because of his involvement with the downfall of Insurance Commissioner Thomas D. O'Malley during the early 1970s. He said he was only attempting to get his bond payment from the two felons and had no knowledge of the burglary or murder. He said he never possessed the paintings.
 After receiving the microfiche from Stelling, Streetman took the microfiche to Beamer at about 3 p.m. last Thursday and asked her if it was a public record and could it be copied on the county equipment which produces paper copies from microfiche. Beamer said she said yes.
 According to Cary Plummer, director of recording for the Hillsborough Circuit Court Clerk's office, a packet of the microfiche was purchased at 9:51 a.m. Thursday by someone paying the $20 cost in cash and signing the receipt "Comptroller."

Beamer said she had not known the copies were used for political purposes until the Sanford Herald informed her Tuesday.
 "It's the season," she said.
 The two copies were delivered to Stelling Friday and a portion of the copies were made available to the Sanford Herald Monday by a colleague of Stelling's, with the encouragement to run the information regarding McEwan's conviction prior to Thursday's Republican Executive Committee debate between Stelling and McEwan.

Groups want warnings on alcohol

WASHINGTON — Claiming the time has come to counter slick advertising campaigns with public education efforts, a coalition of health and civic groups urged Congress to require warning labels on beer, wine and liquor.

But the object of their criticism — the alcohol industry — chose not to testify before the Senate Commerce subcommittee on consumer affairs Wednesday, prompting chairman Albert Gore, D-Tenn., to lambast that decision.

"They've chosen to duck this hearing ... [and] I think that's wrong," Gore said of the beer, wine and liquor industries.

"If they want some kind of compromise, the time is now to come forward," he said as the crowded hearing room burst into applause. "I call on the industry today to demonstrate some commitment to the public interest."

Senate takes up Thornburgh nomination

WASHINGTON — Attorney General-designate Richard Thornburgh, with the unanimous endorsement of the Senate Judiciary Committee, kept an eye on the full Senate today as it considered him to replace embattled Edwin Meese.

Committee members voiced hope that colleagues would act before Congress recesses for next week's Republican National Convention in New Orleans, and that meant Thornburgh's nomination could come up on the floor quickly.

Meese, the veteran friend and adviser of President Reagan who said he would leave office by August, scheduled a news conference this afternoon, leading to speculation that this would be his last day as attorney general.

Thornburgh's expected confirmation would close one of the most tumultuous chapters in the history of the Justice Department.

Calif. nurses vote not to strike

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco's civil-service nurses who complain they are forced to care for too many patients decided against joining private hospital counterparts on the picket line and voted by a narrow margin not to strike.

The final tally in the two days of voting was 320 in support of the contract running through June 30, 1989, and 307 in favor of a strike. Donna Casey Gerber, business representative of Local 790, announced Wednesday night.

The contract covered 1,600 nurses at San Francisco General, Laguna Honda Hospital, the City Jail and several smaller city health facilities.

Gerber said the main complaints were about staffing. She said nurses at San Francisco General often have to attend eight or nine patients each, but feel they should only have to care for at least half that many.

"The nurses are still very unhappy about the staffing patterns at San Francisco General Hospital," Gerber said. "They are willing to accept the recommendations, but if (current) working conditions continue, I don't believe this union will be able to stop a strike."

Under the new contract, she said, an acceptable average for 24 hours was set, but the number of patients per shift was unspecified, she said.

Fires force 200 from homes in Nevada

A fast-moving range fire forced nearly 200 people to flee their homes and shrouded Nevada's state capital in smoke, but firefighters battling a plague of Western wildfires contained Oregon's worst blaze of the year using exploding pingpong balls to set backfires.

Other major wildfires burned out of control in Alaska, California and Wyoming as the parched West continued to suffer an onslaught that has blackened thousands of square miles and cost millions of dollars.

In Carson City, Nev., firefighters ordered the evacuation of at least 50 homes in the foothills about 2 miles from the State Capitol that were in the path of a lightning-caused range fire.

Residents were allowed back into their homes about four hours later, but the flames then threatened a government Indian housing project, and about 10 of the 40 to 50 homes were evacuated until the flames passed.

Senate approves non-military aid to Contras

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate, seeing relations worsen between Democrats and President Reagan, emerged from a political brawl of "White House bashing" and allegations of betrayal with a narrow vote to send non-military aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Democrats, after killing Republican efforts to send new military aid to the Contras expressed shock Wednesday night that Reagan and their GOP colleagues refused even to join them in sending $27 million in food, medicine and other supplies to the guerrillas opposing Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

"We give and give and give! Now at the end I hear we're being told we'll pass it (only) on this side of the aisle!" complained Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, shaking with anger that the coalition he had struggled for a week to build had collapsed.

The Democratic plan passed, 49-47, and was attached to the 1989 Pentagon appropriations bill, giving Republicans another reason to fight because Reagan may veto the underlying measure if it emerges with arms control restrictions.

Byrd was frustrated, however, because he had sought GOP support in order to send the House a Contra aid proposal with strong bipartisan backing.

The House, a stronghold of opposition to providing military aid to the rebels, is not expected to accept a bill that carries no strong political impact after weak Senate passage.

It turns out that would suit lawmakers like Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., who urged colleagues to seek a new military aid plan after their August recess.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas, who fought vainly to renew $16 million in previously approved military aid to the guerrillas that was cut off in February, explained that his party decided it could not accept a plan that provides none of what the GOP considers meaningful aid to the rebels.

Dole said he had asked Reagan's advisers to endorse the Byrd proposal after his own 57-39 defeat; but they refused, perhaps looking to implications for the presidential campaign, where Vice President George Bush has accused Democrats of failing to support the Contras "freedom fighters."

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater insisted late Wednesday, "We indicated that the Byrd amendment ... was minimally acceptable in light of our judgment of the best interests of the freedom fighters."

The Senate vote came after a week of tense negotiations between Democrats, Republicans and the White House on how to signal the Sandinistas that they must work seriously with the Contras toward peace and political reforms.

The effort was engulfed from the outset in presidential election politics and a pervasive distrust on Capitol Hill.

Senate Republicans and the White House questioned whether House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, would let his chamber act promptly on a key provision of Byrd's bill — that once the humanitarian aid was assured, Reagan could come back in September and ask for fresh military aid.

Wright assured opponents that he would allow the vote, but Byrd said angrily Wednesday, "You can inscribe your name in blood — on a shaft of marble — and they still won't believe you!"

He warned sternly, "The White House is going to want some help again (in the future). ... I want to say to the White House I am sick and tired of dealing with a White House that has no more steel in its gut than this White House!"

Dole called such rhetoric "White House bashing" and maintained the Byrd plan provided no realistic way to get aid to Contras inside Nicaragua.

Democrats countered that the bill had $5 million to distribute the aid but merely restricted the CIA from delivering the material.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., a leading opponent of aiding the Contras, warned this time around that without any form of assistance the struggling Central America peace effort could collapse in "chaos."

"If it fails, it falls apart, you will be here in September, voting on Contra aid," he warned opponents.

Republicans indicated that is just what they want to do, but Byrd said it would be futile. "I am sorry the handwriting on the wall cannot be seen by some," he commented bitterly.

Republican critics said all along that the Byrd plan was fashioned to give Democrats the chance to vote for some form of aid while trying to obscure the division the issue causes within their presidential ticket.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, the White House nominee, has denounced the U.S. arming of the Contras and has called for negotiations to resolve the regional problem. His running mate, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, has supported arming the Contras to fight what he sees as a Sandinista communist threat.

Reagan signs drought aid bill today

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, a witness to the ravages of the 1930s Dust Bowl, waited nearly a week for his chance today to sign a $3.9 billion plan to help farmers survive the worst drought since the Great Depression.

Congressional leaders finally sent the drought relief bill to the president after gathering to celebrate the most generous disaster package ever as an effort to help neighbors through tough times.

"We're holding out a hand, not a handout," declared House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, before sending the bill to the White House Wednesday.

Reagan, who had promised to sign it as soon as it reached his desk, arranged an immediate Rose Garden ceremony today. He had urged the bill's passage last week after House and Senate negotiators worked out final details.

The legislation's centerpiece is disaster payments to farmers who lose more than 35 percent of a crop. The measure covers all farmers, even those who grow crops such as fruits and vegetables that usually are not eligible for farm benefits. There is a $100,000 limit on aid to each farmer.

The legislation gives an extra dose of help for farmers faced with total or nearly complete crop losses. The package also raises the milk support price — the guaranteed price for milk — by 50 cents for three months beginning next April, and it consolidates livestock aid into a single program that covers everything from cows to calves.

Congress needed only 30 days to deliver the bill to Reagan, a speed rarely given to major legislation. The House gave final approval to the plan Tuesday on a 383-18 vote.

Agriculture Department officials say it will take about 60 days to implement the plan. That means aid would reach farmers at the start of the fall harvest season, when they normally begin seeing profit from their work. Congressional leaders said that is when the help will be needed most.

By coincidence, the department planned to release its monthly crop report today, giving the most accurate look yet at drought damage. Observers said the report would indicate how much drought aid may cost.

The administration has pegged the cost at $3.9 billion, but Wednesday the Congressional Budget Office said the price tag may be $5.1 billion. The CBO calculations are based on a corn crop smaller than the 5.2

billions bushels projected in mid-July.

Rep. Edward Madigan of Illinois, ranking Republican on the House Agriculture Committee, said the $3.9 billion estimate "is an indefinite figure because no one alive can say at this point how many people will have a 35 percent loss" or worse losses that will require larger federal checks.

About 43 percent of the United States is suffering severe or extreme drought. In the drought of 1934, regarded as the worst ever, 61 percent of the country came under severe or extreme drought. But this year's drought was the most intense early season drought, as measured by lack of rainfall.

For losses that exceed 35 percent of a crop, the package calls for disaster payments figured at 65 percent of the usual price for crops, as set either from federal farm programs or the average price in the past.

By coincidence, the department planned to release its monthly crop report today, giving the most accurate look yet at drought damage. Observers said the report would indicate how much drought aid may cost.

The administration has pegged the cost at $3.9 billion, but Wednesday the Congressional Budget Office said the price tag may be $5.1 billion. The CBO calculations are based on a corn crop smaller than the 5.2

Navy captain is relieved of command

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A Navy captain has been relieved of command while the service investigates his decision to turn away a boatload of Vietnamese refugees who then reportedly resorted to cannibalism to survive.

The Navy's office with the U.S. Pacific Fleet in San Diego confirmed late Wednesday that Capt. Alexander Hahn, skipper of the amphibious ship Dubuque, was asked to step aside temporarily pending completion of an investigation into the June 9 incident.

The Navy also confirmed that Battalion 48, from Los Angeles, gave the "boat people" water and food and then turned them away because he judged their vessel to be in no danger of sinking.

The refugees reportedly resorted to cannibalism on board their overcrowded junk.

Only 52 of 110 people survived the trip from Ben Tre in southern Vietnam.

FAA probing report Eastern allowed jet to take off 1,000 pounds over limit

United Press International

WASHINGTON — It was moments before Eastern Airlines Flight 195 was to take off for Miami when the company's shift manager was alerted the plane was overloaded.

During the next 40 minutes, while the crew and 149 passengers sat waiting on the Boeing 727 at Washington National Airport, some cargo was removed — but airline supervisors allowed the jet to depart still apparently 1,000 pounds over allowable federal weight limits.

The Federal Aviation Administration, told a United Press International reporter had witnessed the incident at the terminal Wednesday, promptly initiated an investigation.

The incident occurred even as a source familiar with an FAA investigation of the troubled airline disclosed that agency officials Monday undertook new enforcement proceedings against Eastern that could lead to fines of up to $250,000 for alleged violations of weight restrictions.

Wednesday's incident began when Eastern shift manager Jack McPhearson, standing by the passenger ramp in the terminal, was advised the plane was 1,595 pounds overweight.

"Remove 700 pounds of cargo," he ordered.

Within 10 minutes, a truck backed up to a conveyor belt near one of the plane's cargo doors and five large, orange bundles rolled out to be tossed into the vehicle. McPhearson then was told 563 pounds of cargo had been unloaded, and he proceeded to the cockpit for a discussion with the pilot.

After further consultations, the truck pulled away from the plane, the cargo door closed and the aircraft was towed away from the ramp area.

After the 8 a.m. flight departed 40 minutes late, McPhearson was asked why the plane was allowed to take off with more than 1,000 pounds in apparent excess cargo. He asserted 700 pounds of cargo had been removed.

Reagan signs internees bill

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, apologizing on behalf of the nation to Japanese-Americans imprisoned during World War II, signed into law legislation to pay $20,000 tax free to each of the 62,000 survivors.

"Yet no payment can make up for those lost years," Reagan told the visiting Japanese-Americans gathered at the White House complex Wednesday to witness the historic event. "What is most important in this bill has less to do with property than with honor. For here we admit a wrong."

With that pledge, Reagan signed the bill that, 45 years later, acknowledges "the fundamental injustice of the evacuation, relocation, and internment."

Hundreds detained after demonstrations

SEOUL, South Korea — Police held more than 500 people for questioning today after street demonstrations demanding that the government approve a direct meeting between students from South and North Korea next week.

Police were on alert across the country to quell violent protests by youths who want to push their demand for the South-North students' meeting set for Monday at the truce village of Panmunjom, 35 miles north of Seoul.

Disident students said they will defy a government ban and try to march to the truce site. A similar attempt on June 10 was crushed by police.

Government and opposition parties, meanwhile, were seeking a political truce starting next week to ensure peace for the Seoul Summer Olympic Games scheduled for Sept. 17-Oct. 2.

Students in Seoul and major provincial cities Wednesday tried to start out on "pilgrimages" which they hoped would end at the truce village with the proposed meeting with North Korean youths.

But the government mobilized more than 35,000 police, including 6,000 in Seoul, and blocked attempted gatherings sponsored by students and dissident organizations to promote the unauthorized North-South talks, officials said.

Soviet shuttle pilot dies of brain tumor

MOSCOW — Cosmonaut Anatoly Levechenko, who died last week of a brain tumor, had been scheduled to fly the new Soviet space shuttle.

Levechenko, 47, died Saturday but the announcement came only Tuesday. The exact cause, a brain tumor, was supplied Wednesday after a funeral attended by fellow cosmonauts.

"Who knows?" the government newspaper Izvestia said Wednesday. "Maybe Levechenko would have been given the captain's chair on the first manned Soviet space shuttle."

The official Tass news agency said "Levechenko had taken part in space technology research and was slated to be a crew member of a future Soviet space shuttle."

The Soviets announced in March that their space shuttle would be tested "in the nearest future" but would be unmanned, unlike the maiden U.S. shuttle flight in 1981.

Levechenko's death appeared to be a blow to Moscow's program for an early manned shuttle mission. Western sources had identified Levechenko and cosmonaut Igor Volk as having conducted test flights of the shuttle.

Five youths detained after raid

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Soldiers stormed a Roman Catholic rectory and detained five youths holding a vigil to protest the military government's expulsion of a Canadian radical priest, radio stations reported.

Haiti Inter said there was "a climate of tension" following the raid before dawn Wednesday in the southwestern town of Grand Goave, and reported it appeared to be "under military occupation."

Radio Metropole and Radio Haiti Inter said the youths were arrested during the raid on the home of the Rev. Rene Potrier. The rectory had become the headquarters of local Catholic lay groups organizing protests against the priest's expulsion Aug. 5.

The conservative archbishop of Port-au-Prince expressed "deep shock" at the priest's summary deportation, which sparked protests outside his home last Saturday. Troops dispersed the crowd and banned further demonstrations.

"The brutal way Father Rene Potrier was taken from his residence to the airport, put on a plane and sent back to his home country is unacceptable," said a statement Wednesday by Archbishop Francois Ligonde and three senior aides.

Angola acknowledges firing at plane

GABERONE, Botswana — Angola acknowledged one of its jet fighters mistakenly fired at and crippled an airplane carrying Botswana President Quett Masire, slightly injuring the leader, the official Botswana Press Agency said.

The agency said in a brief dispatch Wednesday the Angolan jet fighter had mistaken the presidential jet for an "enemy aircraft" during the incident Sunday.

"Investigations are taking place in both countries to determine the exact circumstances in which the shooting took place," it said, quoting an announcement from the presidential office.

"The government of Angola has officially informed the government of Botswana that the executive jet in which President Quett Masire was traveling was mistaken for an enemy aircraft while flying over Cuito Cuanavale and shot by an Angolan jet fighter," the agency said.

Masire, who was on his way to the Angolan capital of Luanda for a meeting of southern African heads of state, was injured slightly when the starboard engine of the twin-jet British Aerospace HS125-800 exploded at an altitude of 35,000 feet and the plane was forced to make an emergency landing.

The presidential jet's pilot, British Aerospace captain Arthur Ricketts, was part of the plane's crew because the aircraft only recently had been delivered to Botswana, the agency said. He "played a major role" in bringing the crippled jet to a safe landing, it said.

Argentina fought with defective weapons

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Argentine forces in the Falkland Islands, on the eve of their surrender to advancing British troops, fought with defective artillery and a Canberra bomber dating from 1948, combat veterans have testified.

The naval port chief testified that three of Argentina's supply ships were either sunk or disabled.

The veterans, giving testimony Wednesday afternoon, were among 100 witnesses the prosecution is calling in an appeals trial of six senior commanders accused of negligence and misconduct in the 1982 island conflict with Britain over the disputed South Atlantic island group.

The appeals court trial represents the first time in Argentine history that military officers are being tried in civilian court. It is also the first public hearing on the Falkland Islands conflict, which led to the downfall of the deposed military junta and the restoration of democracy in Argentina.

One witness, air force Maj. Roberto Pastran, 42, asked about the quality of the British-made Canberra bomber that he flew on the last Argentine air combat mission of the war, replied laconically, "It is a plane that dates from 1948."

Ecuador leader promises to end crisis

QUITO, Ecuador — With Cuba's Fidel Castro and Secretary of State George Shultz in the audience, President Rodrigo Borja Cevallos pledged at his inauguration to impose an emergency program to end "the most dramatic economic, social and moral crisis" in Ecuador's history.

Borja, inaugurated Wednesday evening, also vowed to renew diplomatic ties with Nicaragua, severed by his predecessor, Leon Febres Cordero, in 1985 after an argument with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega.

Ortega was expected to arrive in Quito today to join Borja and visiting Latin and European leaders in a "mini-summit."

Eight European and Latin leaders, including Castro, watched as Borja delivered his inauguration speech Wednesday evening before the packed chambers of Congress.

Shultz, who left for Washington later Wednesday after a diplomatic farewell tour of nine Latin nations, kept a frosty distance from Castro.

Protesters capture another police station

United Press International

RANGOON, Burma — Anti-government protesters erected barricades today and troops patrolled the Burmese capital paralyzed by three days of violence that has killed at least 70 people and undermined the authoritarian regime, witnesses and official radio said.

Young men, clad in traditional, sarong-like "longyis," labored in the pre-dawn darkness to barricade roads with cement blocks, uprooted trees and burned-out cars.

Heavily armed troops of the 22nd Light Infantry Division, known for their particular loyalty to embattled President Brig. Gen. Sein Lwin, patrolled the streets in trucks and armored personnel carriers.

"The violence is going to go on," said an international official with five years experience in the Southeast Asian nation. "It is not going to stop until Sein Lwin is ousted."

Suban Nakprom, chief of Thailand's Ranong district near the Thai-Burmese border, said today some 5,000 Burmese protesters captured the police station at Victoria Point, the southernmost town on the Burmese mainland.

He said the police surrendered the station without a fight on Wednesday. The demonstrators also seized the town post office and city hall.

Suban, quoting intelligence sources, said the crowd acted after police arrested eight student leaders. He said a Burmese military unit in the town refused to intervene saying they were not paid to kill their own people.

The report brought to five the number of police stations captured Wednesday, apparently with along with the weapons stored in the stations.

Earlier, official Rangoon Radio said furious protesters captured and burned three police stations in Rangoon suburbs Wednesday suburbs and beheaded three security policemen.

"They overturned and burned down vehicles, burned down family quarters of police stations, and destroyed traffic lights, railway lines, cooperative warehouses, petrol pumps and telephone posts," the radio said.

Protesters armed with gasoline bombs, captured guns and stones fought running battles with the estimated 8,000 combat troops in the capital.

The radio said troops opened fire on crowds in at least 15 different incidents in the city.

Protesters also attacked a police station in Moulmein, 124 miles east of Rangoon, the radio said, seizing guns and killing one policeman.

"According to incomplete reports received today, 33 people died and 59 were wounded" in the capital, a city of 2.5 million, Rangoon Radio reported Wednesday. That brought the official death toll since Monday to at least 71 killed and 151 wounded in disturbances that spread to at least 27 cities and towns.

But diplomatic sources said with nearly 100 believed killed Wednesday, they believe the death toll was about 300 — 180 in Rangoon and 120 in the central Burmese cities of Sagaing and Mandalay, 375 miles north of the capital.

Israelis kill Arab, vow more anti-Palestinian actions

United Press International

JERUSALEM — An Israeli soldier shot and killed a 17-year-old Arab hours after Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir vowed to maintain military control over the occupied territories and suppress with an "iron fist" any attempt to create a Palestinian government.

Shamir Wednesday told a special one-hour session of Parliament, convened to discuss recent measures by King Hussein of Jordan, that Israel would work toward a peaceful solution of Palestinian claims.

But he specified there would be only two states in the contested area — Israel with its capital in Jerusalem and "an Arab state" with its capital east of the Jordan river, or east of the occupied West Bank.

Shamir repeated his vow to never negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Hussein cut ties with the West Bank because he said the administrative and financial links hindered the creation of an independent Palestinian state. Hussein implied it was time for the PLO to assume more of its responsibilities as "the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people."

Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi said in a radio interview broadcast today that his country will take over payments to the 21,000 Palestinian workers in the West Bank whose salaries are being cut under Jordan's decision to sever ties with the Israeli-occupied territory.

In the West Bank town of Tubas Wednesday night, an army truck delivering water to soldiers came under attack by stone-throwing Palestinians and the driver opened fire, wounding Ahmed Daraghmeh, an army spokesman said.

The 17-year-old, who Palestinian sources said was shot in the chest, died at nearby Nablus hospital. The army clamped a curfew on Tubas.

At least 231 Palestinians and three Israelis have died during the 8-month-old Arab uprising against 21 years of Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

In Ramallah Wednesday, Palestinians threw two gasoline bombs at an army vehicle in the central section of Ramallah, wounding a 34-year-old soldier and a 60-year-old Arab woman standing nearby, military sources said.

Israeli policy will continue unchanged as it has since 1967,

GOP accused of locking doors to blacks; evangelists get Ga.

United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — The Republican Party, moving smoothly toward next week's coronation of George Bush as its 1988 presidential candidate, fled a pair of potential trouble spots — one with an age-old history and the other brand new.

Neither issue is expected to mar the 34th GOP National Convention that opens Monday and that Bush hopes will give him enough "bounce" in public opinion to pull even with Democrat Michael Dukakis as the campaign gets fully underway.

Nevertheless, with the old and the new, the party was accused Wednesday of locking the doors of its highest councils and its convention to blacks, a charge that has hounded it for years, while the Republican National Committee was pushed into giving the evangelical insurgents of newcomer Pat Robertson control of the Georgia convention delegation, ending a bitter dispute.

The principal focus in New Orleans remained centered on the party platform, which the platform committee hoped to finish up today with enough conservative polish to please the GOP right wing next week.

The committee ran through some emotional battles Wednesday on abortion and other issues, as the conservative-dominated 106-member panel rejected changes proposed by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn.

Weicker, leader of the party's tiny liberal faction, salvaged only one proposal, an endorsement of catastrophic illness insurance for children.

Meanwhile, in an obviously more painful decision, the RNC agreed by voice vote to throw out the competing Bush and Robertson delegations from Georgia and to meld some members from both into one state slate.

Though the actual counts differed slightly, both factions said the delegation emerged controlled by Robertson forces. GOP regulars said the count was 28-20 while Robertson aides claimed only a 23-22 edge for their candidate.

Robertson was the last Republican challenger to throw in the towel against Bush during the primary campaign that won the contest for the vice president.

Before approving the new delegation, the RNC Wednesday rejected, also by voice vote, a substitute proposal to allocate seats in direct proportion to the votes each candidate received in Georgia's primary. Bush took 54 percent of that vote to Robertson's 16 percent.

State GOP Chairman John Stuckey called the compromise a "gross miscarriage of justice" that created a delegation "heavily favored for a candidate who earned 16 percent of the vote."

Stuckey said he would leave the convention, though he was named a delegate, and indicated he might quit his party post. He said he would not challenge the RNC decision further, however, telling reporters: "I am a regular,

I am not going to embarrass the party."

Asked if he still would back Bush as strongly, Stuckey said, "I'm going home, saddle up my horse and go riding with my daughter."

The issue, he concluded, was not a Georgia dispute but whether the GOP "will resist a takeover, state party by state party, by a radical fringe group."

Though the Robertson takeover attempt was limited to Georgia — with the delegates bound to vote for Bush eventually — the acrimonious feud could hurt the vice president in a Southern state that could be crucial to the election.

"I hope we get over the Robertson problem," said delegate Ernest Angelo of Texas. "If we don't, we're not going to win in November."

In another potential trouble spot Wednesday, three representatives of Freedom Republicans, a 1,500-member organization of mostly black GOP members in New York, urged an expansion of the RNC and a 1992 revamping of delegate rules to give blacks a better "statistical chance" of getting in the party hierarchy.

The national committee, with scant dissent, rejected the idea by voice vote.

"Today black Americans feel alienated from the Republican party," said a disappointed Lugenia Gordon. "It seems to me the Republican National Committee feels like we are limburger cheese — a little bit of us goes a long way."

Bush still mum on his running mate, says Reagan won't overshadow him

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Vice President George Bush, playing his political cards close to the chest, says he has not made up his mind on a running mate and does not expect to be overshadowed by President Reagan at the GOP convention.

With the Republican conclave formally opening Monday night in New Orleans, the president has stepped up his personal involvement in Bush's campaign and the two men decided to include their wives in their weekly White House lunch.

Bush, however, at a brief news conference in which he handed a top campaign post to a longtime Reagan confidant, former Nevada Sen. Paul Laxalt, brushed off the notion that his boss's shadow might smother him in the weeks ahead.

"I won't be trying to run away from Ronald Reagan," he said Wednesday. "But for the last six weeks we've been spelling out in considerable detail specific proposals, and people are beginning to say this is what George Bush is for and the convention will help on that. I think a lot."

Bush was similarly upbeat yet restrained about the issue of a running mate, insisting he had not chosen a vice presidential candidate and still planned to keep the matter a secret until the convention.

The Washington Post reported today that polls conducted for Bush have found none of the prospective running mates he has considered would boost the GOP ticket substantially on a national scale. Sources told the newspaper that two big state GOP governors, James Thompson of Illinois and George Deukmejian of California, would not even fit Bush significantly within their own states.

In discussing his campaign plans Wednesday, Bush told reporters he brought Laxalt on board as campaign co-chairman to help in the West — generally a Republican region — and to coordinate Reagan's activities after the usual Labor Day kickoff to the fall general election race.

"When I look at the goal ahead, the West is very, very important," the vice president said, and Laxalt will work alongside James Baker, who is resigning as treasury secretary to steer the entire Bush campaign.

Bush rejected suggestions that every move Reagan makes these days appears to be targeted exclusively at assisting his loyal deputy politically.

"I don't think it ever had a non-George Bush look to it," the candidate said of the Reagan administration. "It's just being put into a focus of George Bush because I'm the nominee, soon to be, of the party."

Laxalt's selection should appease some conservatives who fear Bush after nearly eight years at Reagan's side, may be too moderate. Laxalt, at Bush's side for the announcement, said he looks forward to working again with Baker, who maneuvered Bush into place for the vice presidential nomination in 1980.

Asked if he feared Reagan's popularity could overshadow Bush, Laxalt echoed the vice president in predicting he easily "will develop his own aura and independence" after the convention.

"I'd be the last one in the world to try to diminish one Ronald Reagan," said Laxalt, chairman of Reagan's 1976 and 1980 White House campaigns. "But I don't think that's going to be a problem at all."

Moderate Republicans lose out on platform

United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — Moderate Republicans met with little success in their efforts to alter conservative-backed language in the GOP platform on such volatile issues as abortion, the equal rights amendment and AIDS.

As the platform committee worked through a day of easy economic agreements and more stratified social concerns, the moderates led by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., lost in a series of votes Wednesday when conservatives held tightly to positions taken in the 1984 and 1980 party documents.

Weicker's only significant victory came when the panel approved by voice vote an amendment pledging the Republicans to "work toward" providing catastrophic illness insurance for children. The 106-member committee made plans to resume work today on the draft platform of more than 150 pages.

Earlier, during consideration of economic issues Wednesday, the committee reinforced the party's pledge — ballyhooed by its White House nominee, Vice President George Bush — not to raise taxes. Delegates then backed a plank that calls for lowering of the long-term capital gains tax to 15 percent.

"While we wouldn't believe Democrats even if they took the (no tax) pledge, they haven't taken it," said the platform in one of many lines attacking the opposition and its nominee, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

The most spirited debates Wednesday came when the platform committee moved into the family issues section of the document that is being prepared for the party's national convention next week.

By a resounding voice vote, the committee rejected Weicker's amendment to have the party endorse the recommendations of President Reagan's commission on AIDS, something the president has not done himself.

Evert impressive in return

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. — No. 1 seed Chris Evert, returning to action after a month layoff, used a near-flawless baseline game Wednesday night to defeat Eva Pfaff of West Germany, 6-2, 6-2, and advance to the third round of the $300,000 Virginia Slims of Los Angeles.

Playing her first match since her July 30 wedding to skier Andy Mill, Evert needed just 59 minutes to eliminate Pfaff and move on to a Thursday meeting with No. 13 seed Halle Cioffi.

Zina Garrison, of Houston, won 10 of the last 11 games to eliminate Monique Javer.

Stephanie Rehe, who won last week's Virginia Slims of San Diego, played a steady baseline game in dispatching unseeded Ann Henricksson, 6-3, 6-3.

Sutton released by Dodgers

CINCINNATI — Don Sutton's second stint with the Dodgers ended abruptly Wednesday when he was released by Los Angeles one day after being activated from the disabled list and losing to the Cincinnati Reds.

Sutton, a 43-year-old right-hander who began his career with the Dodgers in 1966, stands 11th on the all-time list with 324 victories, fourth with 3,573 strikeouts and tied for ninth with 58 shutouts.

"I'd like to catch on with another club," he said. "I can still pitch in this league and I want to stay in baseball. I hope somewhere there's a place for me."

To fill Sutton's roster spot, Los Angeles recalled promising young right-hander Ramon Martinez from Albuquerque of the Pacific Coast League.

Eagles sign No. 1 draft pick

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Eagles Wednesday signed tight end Keith Jackson, their No. 1 draft choice from Oklahoma, to a series of four one-year contracts.

Neither the Eagles nor Jackson's agent, Gary Wichard, would discuss contract specifics but estimates were that Jackson accepted a deal worth at least $2.2 million, including an $800,000 signing bonus.

Wichard also said the contract called for Jackson's base salary to increase if he meets certain performance guidelines that he refused to specify.

"If he does what we know he can do, the contract becomes a different contract," Wichard said.

Amateur field narrowed to 16

MINNEAPOLIS — The field in the 88th U.S. Women's Amateur Golf Championship was narrowed Wednesday from 64 to 16 after two rounds of match play.

"It's getting down to the nitty-gritty," said medalist Pearl Sinn, who set a tournament record when she shot 140 in the qualifying rounds. "Everybody who is left is really tough competition."

Sinn of Bellflower, Calif., won her both her matches 4 and 3, over Sophie Louapre of France and Nadia Ste-Marie of Lake City, Fla.

Michiko Hattori, who qualified second with 143 and has been medalist for the past three years, advanced to the third round.

In other matches, Kelly Robbins, Mt. Pleasant, Mich., will face Kim Saiki, Redwood City, Calif. Delphine Bourson of France, will meet Kate Hughes of White Bear Lake, Minn. Caroline Reggi of Waterbury, Conn., will play Leslie Shannon of Plantation, Fla.

Grid recruiters flock to Florida

United Press International

TAMPA — College football recruiters visit this state so often, they might as well start asking for a group rate.

Texas boasts a tradition of high school stars, Ohio and Illinois offer prime football beef and California simply has everyone else outnumbered, but the state of Florida is emerging as college football's major pipeline.

When Miami and Florida State finished the 1987 season ranked 1-2, it marked the first time two schools from the same state accomplished that feat in the 37-year history of UPI's college football ratings. Both schools, along with the University of Florida, have tapped into an apparently bottomless well of high school talent within the state.

"We've got the toughest league in the nation right here in our own boundaries," Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden said. "This state just has great football and is really rich in athletic happenings. You've got a state that is growing in population, so you have to build more high schools and bigger high schools. These kids come through bigger senior classes and are more likely to be ready when they come out."

I think the high school pool (in Fla.) is as talented a group of athletes as I've seen.

— Jimmy Johnson

Along with Florida's three major universities, other schools have found ample high school talent to pursue in the nation's fourth most populous state.

"Florida is a very productive area for us," said East Carolina Coach Art Baker, a former FSU assistant. "We've played those Florida teams over the years and we're getting great exposure in the state. When we go to a high school in New Jersey and mention East Carolina, the kid just scratches his head. We go to a high school in Florida and the kid knows our university."

Two such kids are Seminole High graduates Jeff Blake and Earnie "Sackman" Lewis, who will be freshmen at East Carolina this year.

When East Carolina faces Miami Oct. 29, it will mark the seventh game between the Pirates and Hurricanes this decade. Florida State and East Carolina will meet (Oct. 15) for the sixth time since 1980.

"One of the reasons behind the growth of Florida high school football is it is one of the few states which allows spring practice," Baker said. "In four years, a kid gets 80 more practice days in pads, which is how the game is played. At one time, Texas might have been better, but it's not practical for us to recruit there."

An average of 255 Florida high school players per year have signed Division I and Division I-AA college football scholarships since 1977. Sixty-two of the 98 players profiled in Miami's media guide come from Florida, including 16 of the 22 projected starters for the upcoming season.

Florida State, expected to contend for a national title again, will feature eight players from the state starting on offense and nine of 11 in-state starters on defense.

"All the schools in the state have been successful and now other teams are coming down to Florida in increasing numbers," Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson said. "I think the high school pool is as talented a group of athletes as I've seen. Fortunately, we've been able to keep them at home and that's why we've had

Altamonte keeps rolling

Tolbert, Elliott, Bullock lead 10-5 victory

WINDERMERE — The Altamonte Springs Junior League All-Stars, behind the pitching of Steve Tolbert and the hitting of Marcus Bullock and Mike Elliott, defeated Jefferson County, West Virginia 10-5 Wednesday night in the winners' bracket final of the Junior League Southern Regional at the Dr. Phillips-Windermere Little League Complex. Altamonte moved within one victory of advancing to the Junior World Series next week in Taylor, Mich.

Altamonte will now play Friday night at 7 p.m. against the winner of tonight's game between Jefferson County and Dunwoody, Georgia. Dunwoody earned the right to play Jefferson by scoring three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to eliminate West University, Texas, 3-2, in the first game Wednesday night.

Coach Baird Lyons was unsure who his starting pitcher would be Friday, but said it would be either Pam Davis or the winner of Tuesday night's game, Frank Harner.

Tolbert kept Jefferson County off balance all night with a variety of slow curves and fastballs and did not allow a hit until there was two out in the fourth. He finished the night allowing only five hits while striking out eight and walking only four. Only two of the runs were earned.

Altamonte had their hitting shoes on as they collected 17 hits. Bullock led the way as he was 3 for 4 with a double, a grand slam home run, and drove in four runs. Elliott was 3 for 4 and drove in four runs. Mike Lyons and Tolbert also were 3 for 4. Andrew Thompson had two hits, one of which was a double. Pablo Abreu, Frank Harner, and Scott Johnston had one hit each.

As is typical of Altamonte they had a big first inning that got them going. Abreu and Thompson started the first inning rally walks. Abreu advanced to third when Harner hit a long drive to right that the right fielder reached over the fence to catch. Thompson stole second and when the catcher's throw went into center Abreu raced home with the game's first run.

Elliott got an infield single and Johnston walked to load the bases. Bullock then drilled a grand slam well beyond the left field fence to make the score 5-0 after one inning of play.

Altamonte added two more in the second. Thompson doubled to left and went to third on a single by Harner. Harner stole second and both runs scored on a single by Elliott.

WINDERMERE — With their 14th consecutive tournament victory, the Altamonte Junior All-Stars moved within one win of a trip to the Junior World Series starting next Tuesday in Taylor, Mich.

Marcus Bullock spearheaded a powerful offensive attack that pounded out 17 hits and produced a 10-5 victory over West Virginia Wednesday night in second round action in the Junior Southern Regional Tournament.

Altamonte will return to action Friday night in the finals and will face the winner of the West Virginia-Dunwoody Georgia game. Dunwoody scored three runs in the bottom of the seventh to come from behind and oust West University from Houston, 3-2, in the double elimination tourney.

Bullock led Altamonte with a first inning grand slam while adding a double off the center field fence and a single. Bullock's first inning blast, which sailed well over the left field fence, gave Altamonte a lead it would never relinquish.

"I was seeing the ball well tonight and they (West Virginia) were throwing fastballs right down the middle," Bullock said. "I got the kind of pitches I liked and I met the ball well. I think we had a strong team hitting effort and Steve (Tolbert) pitched a great game for us."

Bullock and Mike Elliott each drove in four runs to lead Altamonte's high powered offense that has scored 29 runs in two games. Altamonte has connected

Florida-Georgia pact to help seniors

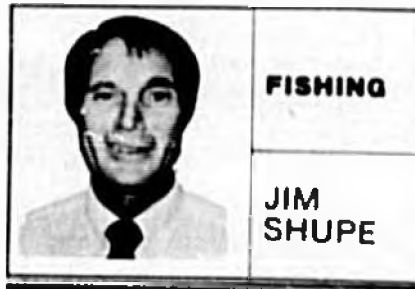

Senior citizens who live in Florida or Georgia soon will be able to hunt or fish in either state without having to buy a license.

That is the gist of an agreement between the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission and the Georgia Department of Natural Resources.

Col. Robert M. Brantley, executive director of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, stated that "This agreement will benefit senior citizens from both states. It will enable them to hunt or fish in either state without having to bear the added financial burden of a nonresident license."

Currently, Florida and Georgia residents who are 65 or older can receive no-cost licenses to hunt or fish in their home states. According to the agreement, no other license will be required for Georgia senior citizens to hunt or fish in Florida. Florida senior citizens wishing to hunt deer in Georgia must obtain a Georgia Honorary Deer Tag at no charge.

To fish for fresh water trout, Florida senior citizens must purchase a $10.50 Georgia trout

Traditionally, many Georgia senior citizens have to come to Florida to fish, while numbers of Floridians have traveled to Georgia to hunt.

Col. Brantley said that the agreement will be implemented August 1, 1988.

Bass fishing is fair for this time of year. The August Osteen Bridge Fish Tournament was another record-setter with 64 boats participating! Paul Hanna and Ralph Curry took first place honors with 19 pounds, 2 ounces, while Danny Oip and David Gaines came in a close second with 18 pounds, 5 1/2 ounces. Joe and John Kremer held down third place with 17 pounds, 6 ounces, and Frank Dodson and Charlie Davis snagged fourth place with 16 pounds, 4 ounces. The father and son team of Durwood Day and Durwood, Jr. took fifth place with 15 pounds, 13 ounces. Durwood Jr. also captured Big Bass honors with a 7 pound, 4 ounce hunker. Dodgers stay afloat with win over Reds

United Press International

The Los Angeles Dodgers were sinking fast and facing a fall to second place. Their seven-game lead in the National League West a week after the All-Star break had been trimmed to a half-game over Houston, with San Francisco 3 1/2 back and Cincinnati, Wednesday night's opponent, within six games.

Even with ace Orel Hershiser on the mound, the Dodgers had to worry about their slumping offense, coming off two shutout losses.

"So what happens?" The All-Star right-hander gets hit hard, permitting four runs on 10 hits, including three homers. But the offense, led by Mike Marshall, breaks out, collecting 11 hits and two four-run innings in an 8-5 triumph over the Reds.

"I was very fortunate to win, because I didn't throw the ball very well," Hershiser said. "The heat (temperatures in the high 80s) got to me and I was tired after warming up. After the first inning I was still tired, but after we scored four runs (in the fifth) I got a little breather, a little life in me."

"I just knew we needed to win," he said. "We'd lost three in a row (and 9 of 12) and a lot of people were thinking we were fading. But this club's been there before and there's still a long way to go in the season."

The Astros lost to the Giants, moving Houston 1 1/2 back and leaving San Francisco 3 1/2 out. Cincinnati is seven back.

"It was hot out there and he pitched a tough game," Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda said. "The heat took a lot out of him but he kept battling. That's the second time he's stopped a three-game losing streak for us."

Hershiser, 16-6, went eight innings before Jay Howell finished. The Reds used six hurlers, with starter Jose Rijo, 11-8, enduring the first four-run inning.

Los Angeles batted around in the fifth, erasing a 1-0 deficit when Marshall, who went 3 for 4, led off with his 16th homer.

Cincinnati made four errors in the game, two in the ninth when the Dodgers opened an 8-2 bulge by scoring four unearned runs. First baseman Ken Griffey dropped a throw to load the bases with one out. One out later, third baseman Chris Sabo threw away Mickey Hatcher's grounder, permitting three runners to score. Marshall hit an RBI single.

"If we don't make those errors, we win the game," Reds Manager Pete Rose said. "We scored enough runs to win, but we just gave up too many."

Griffey, Kal Daniels (twice) and Paul O'Neill homered for Cincinnati.

Molitor, Brewers bomb Bosox, 8-3

United Press International

After three weeks with a near-perfect record that brought a share of first place, the Boston Red Sox for the past week have looked like the team that spent half the season out of the race.

Boston built a three-run lead then gave up the next eight runs, including two homers by Paul Molitor, Wednesday night in the Milwaukee Brewers' 8-3 triumph. Molitor provided the go-ahead, three-run shot in the fifth inning as the Red Sox fell to 2-6 in their last eight games since last Thursday.

Boston had gone 10-1 under new manager Joe Morgan to temporarily tie Detroit for first place in the American League East. Boston currently is in second place, four games behind the Detroit Tigers.

The Red Sox grabbed their 3-0 lead off Milwaukee's Teddy Higuera, with Boston starter Mike Smithson appearing to be in command when the Brewers rallied behind Molitor's home runs.

"The way that game started and the way Smithson was throwing, I wouldn't have bet a dime that he didn't pitch a shutout," Morgan said. "He had good life on the ball. We were one hit away from breaking it open several times."

Molitor's leadoff homer in the fourth cut Milwaukee's deficit to 3-1 and his ninth homer of the year capped a four-run fifth that put the Brewers ahead 5-3. Molitor marked his first multiple homer game since Aug. 19, 1986 against Cleveland.

"I've never been a home run hitter in my career," said Molitor. "The times I have hit them, they've come in bunches. I really can't explain it. ... Sometimes you get a pitch that you're able to drive and that's what happened tonight on a couple of occasions."

Higuera, 8-8, won for the first time in five starts, despite allowing three runs on 11 hits in seven innings. He struck out six and walked one. Chuck Crim pitched the final two innings.

Smithson, 6-4, pitched 6 1/3 innings, giving up eight runs, seven earned.

"I've had pretty good success all year against my fastball. I just wasn't able to get the strikes with my fastball tonight," Smithson said.

Jeffrey Leonard's sixth home run of the year, a two-run shot to left field, gave the Brewers an 8-3 lead.

Elsewhere, Toronto blanked New York 5-0, Minnesota decked Cleveland 10-4, Oakland nipped Chicago 2-1 in 10 innings, Detroit edged Texas 2-1, Kansas City beat Baltimore 4-3 and California shaded Seattle 2-1.

At Minneapolis, Kent Hrbek drove in three runs, two with a home run, and Frank Viola won his major league-leading 18th game against four losses, pacing the Twins and giving them a three-game sweep of Cleveland.

Athletics 2, White Sox 1

At Oakland, Calif., Carney Lansford singled home Mike Gallego with one out in the 10th inning to spark the Athletics to a three-game sweep of Chicago. Greg Cadaret, 4-1, pitched a perfect 10th to earn the victory. Rick Horton fell to 6-10.

Tigers 2, Rangers 1

At Arlington, Texas, Jack Morris, 10-11, gave up four hits over eight-plus innings en route to his third straight victory, and Luis Salazar singled to break an eighth-inning tie, leading Detroit.

Royals 4, Baltimore 3

At Kansas City, Mo., Bo Jackson singled home Danny Tartabull with one out in the eighth inning, giving the Royals an 11-0 record against Baltimore this season. Jeff Montgomery, 4-2, pitched one inning, as did Steve Farr, who earned his 13th save. Jose Bautista dropped to 6-10.

Angels 2, Mariners 1

At Anaheim, Calif., Willie Fraser allowed one hit — a leadoff home run by Seattle's Alvin Davis in the seventh inning — to pace the Angels. With the Angels leading 2-0, Davis homered off Fraser, 8-10, who entered the game with a 6.01 ERA.

Pitching puts Astros back in race

By RICHARD L. SNOOK

Touching Some Bases:
 Are the Los Angeles Dodgers fading like stone-washed jeans in a bath of bleach? You can laugh at Fernando Valenzuela's 84 mph fastball all you want but at least he took the ball every five days and Los Angeles won half his starts or better. Hitters tried so hard to hammer Valenzuela it made his other pitches retain somewhat of their effectiveness. And he still had his good control.

Houston's pitching has come around to enable the Astros to make a run at Los Angeles while San Francisco, whose starters still aren't up to par, is scoring enough runs to keep it in the race.

It could make for an interesting finish in the NL West.

Baseball is missing a good bet. Jerry Glanville, coach of the NFL Houston Oilers, has the right idea — leaving Elvis a ticket on the 50.

Imagine — the Seattle Mariners leaving two box seat passes in Elvis' name — and he shows up! P.T. Barnum would have done it.

Who cares if it's a fraud or not (at least from the attendance point of view)? Imagine the walk-up ticket sales when word gets out Elvis picked up his tickets. They might even sell out the Kingdom in advance.

Peter Ueberroth might even want to schedule "Elvis Night" promotions in all major league cities where attendance needs a boost.

Detroit manager Sparky Anderson had a good idea last week, so good he's going to repeat it.

Anderson sent all five pitchers who were starting against the Boston Red Sox during the weekend back to Detroit from Kansas City a day early. Teams often send the opening game pitcher in advance of the team so he can get a good night's sleep. But never a whole rotation.

Can't say if it was a factor or not, but

Detroit went on to win the first two games and got nine shutout innings of pitching from Jeff Robinson in the fifth game.

So Thursday, Anderson will send the three pitchers who will start at Fenway Park against the Red Sox this weekend on ahead to Boston ahead of the team.

Boy, who would have guessed it? The New York Yankees changing pitching coaches.

It's only the 28th pitching coach change since George Steinbrenner bought the club in 1973. Of course Clyde King, Art Fowler, Billy Connors and Stan Williams account for most of those changes.

Man, that'll get those Yankees pitchers back on the track. Whichever ones are starting this week, that is.

We knew all along it was a new pitching coach they needed. Not somebody like Mike Boddicker.

Next thing you know, they'll think about changing managers.

runs in the fourth. With two out Reggie McDaniel doubled to left center and Cory Grantham walked. McDaniel scored when Eddie Kerns' grounder was thrown away at first. Grantham ended up on third on the play. Kerns stole second and Grantham scored when the catcher's throw went into center.

West Virginia added another run in the fifth when Mike Wilson beat out a bunt and stole second. Wilson scored when Shawn Wilks hit a double just out of the reach of Harner in left center field. The score was now 7-3.

Altamonte pulled back out to a comfortable lead by scoring three in their half of the fifth. Tolbert singled and Abreu walked and both runners advanced a base on a wild pitch. Thompson hit a liner to center that the center fielder made a shoe string catch on and when Tolbert strayed too far off the bag he was doubled off third by the center fielder.

Abreu then went to third on a wild pitch as Harner walked. Harner scored on a single by Elliott. Elliott wound up on second when the center fielder bobbled the ball. Johnston then hit a ball over the first base bag that two umpires called fair and one called foul. On the play Elliott scored but injured an ankle crossing home plate. After a long discussion by the officials it was decided the ball was foul. Elliott was replaced at second by William Ramirez and Johnston back at home plate. Two pitches later Johnston ripped a single to right to score Ramirez to make the score 10-3.

Jefferson County came back with two in the sixth. McDaniel walked and stole second. Chris Boyd walked. Tolbert struck out Kerns but Brett Lewis singled to load the bases. Steve Carroll hit a grounder to Thompson who flipped to Abreu to force Lewis. Abreu threw the ball to first but Carroll beat the throw. McDaniel scored on the play and pinch runner Grantham also scored when Johnston tried to dispute the call with the first base umpire.

That was as close as Jefferson would get, though, as Tolbert would finish with a flourish by striking out the side in the seventh.

My fastball was my best pitch tonight and I was getting the calls on my curve," Tolbert said. "I was a little angry when we made some of the errors but I knew I couldn't let them get to me so I just went after the next batter."

Altamonte will now have a day's rest and hope it can heal some injuries it has piled up in the past two games. In the opening round of the tourney Bullock and Frank Harner each had minor injuries but came back with brilliant games against West Virginia. Elliott twisted an ankle while trying to score against West Virginia and is questionable for Friday night.

for 23 hits in the tourney, 10 of which have gone for extra bases.

Altamonte also used the clutch pitching of Steve Tolbert who fanned eight batters while walking four and giving up five hits. Tolbert gave up just two earned runs in the ballgame as the Altamonte defense wasn't as sharp as it was in the first game, committing four errors, and keeping West Virginia in the ballgame.

Tolbert, though, managed to keep his head up and concentrated on getting the batters out. Tolbert was extremely effective as he was able to get most of the West Virginia batters to pop up or ground out.

Tolbert kept the West Virginia batters off balance all night with his deceiving fastball and effective curve. Tolbert's prowess on the mound advanced Altamonte into the finals on Friday.

Brooks, Smiley fined

United Press International

MONTREAL — Hubie Brooks of the Expos and John Smiley of the Pirates each said he was fined $300 for fighting during a game last Wednesday in Pittsburgh.

Benches emptied after Smiley hit Brooks in the back with a pitch. The incident followed a home run by Andres Galarraga.

"I think there is an automatic $100 fine for just going to the mound," Brooks said. "So I expected some sort of punishment."

Brooks charged Smiley and landed a few punches. Both were ejected and Smiley missed his next start though he denies he was hurt in the fight. He said he aggravated a rib cage injury.

Brooks said this was the third time in his career he had been fined.

"I was thrown out of a game when I was with the Mets in 1982 and another time they tossed me for throwing equipment after I had struck out."

●The suspension of Expos

pitcher Floyd Youmans will end Aug. 24 if he continues to comply with baseball's drug policy. Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said in a statement released Wednesday.

Youmans was suspended indefinitely without pay June 25 for failure to follow the drug policy set forth by the commissioner's office. It was never disclosed what Youmans did to prompt the action.

●Pitching coach Larry Bearnarth says he's very happy with his job with the Expos, though he'd like to gain another position someday.

"Being a manager is a great job with much prestige," Bearnarth said. "It pays much better than a coaching job. I have four children, two of them in university, so that is quite expensive."

Bearnarth earns $60,000 a year with Montreal.

He said he'd like to follow the same path as San Francisco Giants Manager Roger Craig.

"Roger became famous as the Tigers' pitching coach."

school football staffs are well-prepared and coaches get out to as many clinics as they can attend. At Miami, we've got seven coaches that recruit in Florida and two that recruit exclusively out of state. That's our ratio."

And who can argue with Miami's emphasis on in-state recruiting? Certainly not Hurricane opponents, who have lost 32 straight regular-season games to Johnson's juggernaut.

"This state can hold its own with any when it comes to athletes," Scott said. "For some reason, the Midwest still produces those big, heavy offensive linemen, the kind you have to have on a food scholarship. Here at the University of Miami, we're gonna get the best players — no matter where they might be."

Lewis-Johnson duel could be spectacular

Lewis looks for more than medals at Seoul

By JOE ILLUZZI
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Carl Lewis won more gold medals than any athlete at the 1984 Olympics but is still trying to win over the American public.

Gymnast Mary Lou Retton, the darling of the Los Angeles Games, earned national endorsements for a breakfast cereal, batteries and a hamburger chain. Lewis received practically nothing from corporate America for his four gold medals.

He is popular in Europe and in Japan and received lucrative endorsements there, but the American public has not taken him to heart as it has Retton and such sports stars as Michael Jordan.

Some say the fault lies with Lewis or his manager, Joe Douglas. Some still criticize Lewis for failing to take all of his six allotted long jumps in the Olympics. They wanted to see Lewis break Bob Beamon's record that August day in the Los Angeles Coliseum and they booed him when he didn't try.

Others thought him aloof. Some frowned on the way he cut his hair and wore his clothes. But nothing hurt more than rumors he is gay.

This took place around the time of the Olympics. While Lewis withstood the pressure well enough to duplicate Jesse Owens' 1936 feat of winning four golds, the damage to his image was done.

"People caught attention of the few negatives," Douglas said. "But he proved he's a winner. He handled the adversity of the Olympics and won. He didn't seclude himself."

"The people hurt most by it all was his family. He was much more mature. It's not so much what was written, but what they wrote was untrue."

Once those rumors spread, however, major endorsements were withdrawn. Even though Douglas and Lewis turned down numerous offers, the one they wanted with a soft drink company fell through.

"There was a major company we were negotiating with at the time and I felt the deal was about 90 percent closed," Douglas said. "Then they came to me and said they had changed their focus and that they were going to do a different campaign. I'm not going to reveal their name because I hope we can get the same offer."

Lewis receives another chance to win over the American people when he competes at the Seoul Olympics. He holds no animosity toward his critics.

"I've always been the kind of person who cares about how Carl Lewis feels about Carl Lewis," he said. "I've always felt that it's important to be happy within yourself."

"I think the media has tried to create something that is not true, but it's funny, through it all I've continued to grow."

Lewis, 27, says he believes he has matured since the '84 Olympics. Athletics no longer rules his life. He has traveled the world, started a family travel agency, out some record albums that are popular in Scandinavia and taken up acting.

"Now I'm less intense off the track and more intense on the

Carl Lewis and Canada's Ben Johnson figure to lock up in a heated battle for the 100 meters gold medal at the Seoul Olympics.

Canada's Johnson eyes showdown with Lewis

By LAURIE WATSON
UPI sports writer

OTTAWA — Against the uncertain backdrop of a country torn by political tension, the fastest man in the world will take his place in the starting blocks at Seoul, South Korea, and attempt to shatter his world record in the 100 meters.

The race for an Olympic gold medal in September is a bookmaker's dream, one of the classic rivalries in sports history, between Ben Johnson, a shy, muscle-bound man with a slight speech impediment, and American Carl Lewis, a brash speedster who won the gold at the 1984 Olympics.

Despite Johnson's number one ranking in the 100, he is still haunted by Lewis' presence and the American's ability to galvanize the public's attention.

"I'm still the bad guy here," said Johnson, adding his main goal was to win the gold medal. "Carl says he is going to be the man to beat. We will see."

Since Johnson made history a year ago, smashing the world record for the 100 meters with a brilliantly run 9.83 performance at the World Track and Field Championships in Rome, he has learned a thing or two about the persona of sports figures and the public's expectation of its demigods.

There was the unrelenting pressure of appearances for Italian sportswear and Japanese electronics companies, an auto manufacturer and a credit card conglomerate, endorsements that will net Johnson an estimated $1 million a year.

There was also a highly publicized rift between Johnson and his personal trainer, Charlie Francis of Toronto, that destroyed a close personal friendship, allegations of drug abuse and more important, a hamstring muscle injury that forced Johnson to the sidelines for nearly eight weeks.

"I think he's a little wiser, has learned to make more of his own decisions. He knows not to respond so emotionally to events or things people might say," said James Christie, a Canadian sportswriter who has just completed an authorized biography of the world champion.

The Jamaican-born Johnson, at 26 just reaching his stride as a sprinter, was unbeaten in the 1988 indoor season and had set a world-best time of 6.15 seconds in the 50-yard dash when he tore a muscle in his left leg during a meet in Tokyo on May 13.

Johnson and his long-time trainer clashed over the best method of treatment and the sprinter, a close friend observed, "for once made a serious decision" to leave the Canadian team and fly to the Caribbean island of St. Kitts for help.

Although the professional relationship between Johnson and Francis was later resolved, the close personal friendship was severed.

Johnson recently told reporters he is fully recovered from the injury — he had a wind-aided 9.90 performance at the recent Canadian Track and Field Championships in Ottawa, his first race since the injury.

Biondi breaks own record in 100 free

United Press International

AUSTIN, Texas — Matt Biondi broke his own world record in the 100-meter freestyle Wednesday night at the U.S. Olympic swimming trials and qualified for his third individual Olympic event.

Biondi, of Moraga, Calif., won the race in 48.42 seconds, breaking his previous world-record mark of 48.74 set two years ago. His performance clearly established him as the gold-medal favorite at the Seoul Olympics.

Biondi, 22, has qualified for the Olympics in the 100 and 200 freestyle, and 100 butterfly.

He hopes also to qualify in the 50 freestyle and swim on all three relays for the U.S. team, giving him an opportunity to win seven medals.

Three other finals were held Wednesday at the University of Texas Swim Center. The competition to determine the U.S. Olympic swim team continues through Saturday.

Janet Evans, of Placentia, Calif., won the 400 freestyle in 4:06.43. She is the world-record holder in the event, as well as the world-record holder in two other events. Tami Bruce, of San Diego, qualified by placing second.

Betsy Mitchell, of Marietta, Ohio, won the 100 backstroke, winning in 1:02.01. She is the American record-holder in the event and was a silver medalist at the 1984 Olympics. Beth Barr, of Pensacola, Fla., was the runner-up and second U.S. team qualifier.

Dan Veatch, of Boca Raton, Fla., won the 200 backstroke in 2:01.70. Steve Higlow, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was the second U.S. team qualifier.

RECORDS
Matt Biondi, Moraga, Calif., men's 100 meter freestyle, 48.42 seconds, breaking the world record of 48.74 he set June 26, 1986.

OLYMPIC QUALIFIERS
Men's 100 meter freestyle: Matt Biondi, Moraga, Calif.; Chris Jacobs, Livingston, N.J.; Tom Jager, Topanga, Calif.; Troy Dalbey, San Jose, Calif.
Men's 200 meter backstroke: Dan Veatch, Boca Raton, Fla.; Steve Higlow, Fort Wayne, Ind.
Women's 400 meter freestyle: Janet Evans, Placentia, Calif.; Tami Bruce, San Diego.
Women's 100 meter backstroke: Betsy Mitchell, Marietta, Ohio; Beth Barr, Pensacola, Fla.

Biondi broke away from the field near the 50-meter mark, and made his turn in 23.25, putting him on world-record pace, and was strong down the stretch.

"I felt like I was out pretty quick and I didn't feel like I was dying at the finish," said Biondi, who qualified to the finals with a 48.99.

"I kept my stroke good. I don't think I can say I was expecting to do it (set world record). Because of my performance here, I think I'll carry a little more confidence in my back pocket when I get on the plane (to Seoul)."

Should he qualify in the 50 freestyle, he would have a chance to match Mark Spitz, who won seven gold medals in world record times at the 1972 Games in Munich.

Biondi was a silver medalist at the 1986 World Championships in the 100 butterfly, and a 1984 Olympic gold-medal winner in the 400 relay.

Chris Jacobs, of Livingston, N.J., placed second in 49.45, followed by Tom Jager, of Topanga, Calif.

CFRH giving sample of weight class

SANFORD — A free introductory offer to "Weight Management," a nine-session course being offered by Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, is set for 5:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 15, in the Cardiopulmonary Rehabilitation Center behind the hospital.

"It's your chance to see a sampling of our proven weight-loss techniques without cost or obligation," said Nicole Reeves-Baulch, R.D., speaking of the introductory class. Reeves-Baulch, a CFRRH dietitian, is the instructor. Based on medical and behavioral research, the full "Weight Management" course treats the root causes of overeating and being overweight, not just the symptoms, Reeves-Baulch said. It replaces pills, fad diets and other short-term solutions with a step-by-step weight management method, she said.

The skills development classes will be held from 5:30-7 p.m. on Aug. 22, 25, '29 and Sept. 1. Following will be the maintenance sessions on Sept. 8, 15, 22, 29 and Oct. 6 from 5:30-6:30 p.m.

The $100 fee for the nine-session course includes free attendance to repeat sessions held after Oct. 6. All printed materials, including manuals, are provided in the course.

To register, call CFRH at 321-4500 or 688-4441, ext. 607. Pre-registration is encouraged.

Green acres is the place to preserve

Fred Streetman (left), chairman of the Seminole County Commission, presents a resolution of appreciation to Hazel Cash, president of the Sanford Woman's Club, upon the club's donation of 2.4 acres of land for environmental preservation, while immediate past president of the woman's club, Bettye Smith (far right), looks on. The presentation took place at the Tuesday meeting of the commission in Sanford. The Sanford Woman's Club donated the acres-road frontage along State Road 427 on the west side of U.S. Highway 17-92 for the state and county's environmental conservation efforts of the marshy Spring Hammock area, said Jeri Kirk, chairwoman of the club's real estate committee.

Nature cries: 'Don't fence me in'

DEAR ABBY: I recently vacationed in the North Woods of Wisconsin and was shocked at the number of "No Trespassing" and "Keep Out" signs I saw there.

I love nature and there were many birds, trees and flowers I wanted to see more closely, but, nature knowing no man's legal boundaries, they often lay within someone's fence, tangible or implied.

This hoarding of nature's gifts provokes me to suggest a different sign for these landowners:

WELCOME UNINVITED GUESTS, please feel free to enter my property and share my natural resources. You are welcome as long as you take nothing away, leave nothing behind, and defer to my wishes should I ask you to leave. Thank you.

It's a little wordier than "Keep Out," but it shows a much more generous attitude concerning something that no one can ever truly own—the beauty of nature. JENNIFER MORALES

DEAR JENNIFER: Bless you. Thy name is Generosity! However, I doubt if many landowners would post such a sign. But those who do should station a nurse with smelling salts beside it.

These days, "No Trespassing" and "Keep Out" signs are written in two or three languages. And pit bulls are on the property to remind those who can't read.

DEAR ABBY: This rather nice-looking widow I know plays bingo with a widower who always pays for her cards. Recently she won the big one—$1,500! She was thrilled, gave the man a kiss on the cheek and said, "Thank you!" I think she should have given him half her winnings, don't you?

She sees a younger man who can't afford to spend money on her, so she takes advantage of this bingo widower who gets nothing in return for his generosity but a kiss on the cheek when he takes her home. Don't you think he deserves a little more than that? A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: If you are suggesting that the widow should express her appreciation in a more generous show of affection, I could not agree with you less!

However, when it comes to sharing the bingo winnings, I think an appropriate gesture of appreciation would be to share the winnings, but she is under no obligation to do so.

DEAR ABBY: My ladyfriend and I are senior citizens, having both lost our mates. We each maintain our own apartments. When we go out for dinner or the theater, I pay for both of us. Now for the $64,000 question: We also go on trips together—some for a weekend, others are

See specialist about blisters on eyelids

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been getting blisters on the edges of my eyelids for years, and lately they have been getting worse. Now I'm noticing them on my 3-year-old son. What are they and what can I do about them?
DEAR READER: From the information given, I am unable to diagnose the condition that you describe. Various viral skin afflictions come immediately to mind as a diagnosis in any person with recurrent crops of skin blisters, yet this must be substantiated by medical examination and testing. I suggest that you make an appointment for you and your son with an ophthalmologist at a time when the blisters are present. This way, you may be able to discover a cause for the blisters.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a recent column you gave some advice to a woman who wanted to pay for a friend's liver transplant, and you said that Medicare or the hospital would pick up the bill. Surely you jest! Two hospitals told us to raise $200,000 up front before they would even consider my son for a transplant. He was already on Medicare, but our state only allows 12 days hospitalization a year. So please be a little more realistic in your advice.

DEAR READER: Fair point. I should have mentioned the tremendous variation from state to state with respect to medical reimbursement. There are some government-funded medical plans that would pay a major part of the enormous cost of organ transplantation; on the other hand, many state/federal agencies would not. The pattern of coverage is inconsistent. Many hospitals do require that funds be raised in advance before a transplant will be done. However, I must add that hospitals and doctors do play a vital role in the financing of organ transplants because most hospitals and doctors will, on a case-by-case basis, perform charity work. Of course, this varies

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

After a few decades of playing bridge, it's easy to get carried away by the nuances of bidding. South was sniffling around for a grand slam when he bid four and five no-trump. When North's response to five no-trump showed one king, it was certainly possible that the king was in clubs rather than in the trump suit. Thus, six hearts was a manufactured bid of convenience suggesting that North might bid seven with the spade king. North not only had the right king but also had four trumps, and for all he knew, his heart queen might be a good card. So he bid the grand slam.

The play had interesting elements. If declarer drew three rounds of trumps before attacking diamonds, he would come up short, since the diamonds did not split. If he ruffed two diamonds with the king and jack of spades, he might lose a trump trick to the 10-spot. Finally he hit upon the safest all-round play. After ruffing the club lead, he played dummy's spade king and then three rounds of hearts, discarding a diamond from dummy. Next came the ace of diamonds and a diamond ruffed with a low trump. Back to the queen of spades and another diamond ruffed with dummy's spade jack. A club ruff now enabled him to draw the last trump, and the king of diamonds made all the diamonds good.
