Celebrations Bright, Safe

Less people than last year, no frogs, but more kids and lots of fun was the way chairman Jim Jernigan summed up the Fourth of July festivities in Sanford's Fort Mellon Park, where events included such things as canoe jousting, a giant slingshot that fired water balloons at a target, and log rolling.

A frog-jumping contest had to be canceled when no one came forth with any of the small leggy amphibians.

Two children went in the waters of Lake Carolia when their canoe tipped. They were wearing lifejackets, but their excited mothers had to be helped from the water when they ran into the water. In a softball game, Sanford city employees trounced Radio Station WUEZ employees 25-5. A fireworks display on the lakefront went off without a hitch.

A fire was started Thursday at 9:27 p.m. by a lighted three-foot

Mandatory Screening Considered

Medics Fired In Drug Probe

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Suspected drug use by four Care Ambulance personnel has prompted the dismissal of two men, the probable dismissal of two others, and an investigation into the possibility of requiring drug-use screening for all public employees.

Dismissed by Seminole County's medical director Dr. Benjamin Newman were Don Awe, an emergency medical technician and Jeff Gillard, a paramedic. Both men dismissed, and two whose dismissals are pending worked for Care Ambulance-Paramedic Inc.

Care is a private company providing ambulance and emergency medical service in the county under an exclusive contract. The firm receives a $198,000 annual subsidy from the county, according to the county's office of management and budget. The firm employs 40 to 45 emergency medical personnel.

Dismissal was in the form of decertification, Newman said. Without certification, the men cannot work in emergency medical treatment in Seminole County, he said. Further, their dismissals will be reviewed by the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to determine if their certification statewide should be revoked, he said.

Newman stressed that the allegations of drug use involved only the four people out of more than 40 Care employees and 250 emergency medical technicians in the county altogether. "99 percent of the emergency medical technicians and paramedics are good, dedicated straight people who should not be tarnished by this," Newman said. All the EMT's and paramedics in the county, regardless of for whom they work, work under Newman's medical license. Others work for the county and city governments.

Newman said former Care employees said there was drug use on and off the job by those accused, but there's no solid evidence to back up the accusations.

He said however, to avoid any problem in the future, drug screening will probably be a contract requirement for the company and drug screening a condition for employment for employees working for the company.

He said the county's office of public safety is also investigating the possibility of requiring drug screening

Seminole Tax Base Up Unprecedented 14%

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

It's official. Seminole County's tax base — the taxable value of all property within the county — grew by 14 percent in the past year, an unprecedented increase in a year when a countywide reappraisal was not done. Most of the spurt in the property value comes from new construction.

County Property Appraiser Bill Suber declared the county has a total taxable property value of $4.87 billion, up $600.5 million from last year's $4.3 billion.

Preliminary figures issued by Suber's office in mid-June so that the county commission and the cities could begin their budget processes showed an increase of $495.6 million. When the valuations were fine-tuned, however, the higher values emerged.

Newly constructed property over the past year is valued at $358.98 million with the balance of the increase — $243.5 million — from higher property appraisals of some existing properties.

Suber said. The reappraisals were not done in one specific area, but in various spots throughout the county.

"We usually look at sales data on existing properties and try to determine if areas have fallen out of an equitable range," Suber said, explaining that part of his job is not only to keep the values at market level, but also to be sure that all properties are assessed fairly.

The $4.87 billion countywide tax base is used by both the county and the school board to determine their revenues from property taxes in the 1985-86 tax year. The total is from properties both in the unincorporated area and within the cities.

The only governing body in the county to set a tentative tax rate, so far is the county commission. After four intensive days of workshops — some 30 hours — the commission agreed to keep its tax rate at $4.18 per $1,000 assessed valuation. But here is where the importance of the taxable value comes in. At that rate last year, the commission received $17.8 million in revenues from property taxes based on last year's taxable value. With the same tax rate in the new 1985-86 fiscal year with a new tax base, the commission will receive $20.34 million in property taxes, an increase of $2.5 million.

At the same time, the county levies a property tax in the unincorporated areas for fire protection. The tax base in the unincorporated areas is $2.5 billion. The commissioners tentatively agreed to raise the tax rate in the unincorporated areas from $1.81 per $1,000 assessed value to $2.

The tax base in the unincorporated area last year was $2.2 billion. At a rate of $1.81, revenues for the fire protection totaled $3.98 million. With a new base of $2.5 billion and a new tax rate of $2 per $1,000, the revenues will increase by $2.02 million to $6 million. All these figures are based on the mathematics assuming that the county got 100 percent of the revenues from the tax it levied last year and will get 100 percent of the revenues from the tax it is tentatively going to levy in the

Jobless Rate Steady

More Blacks Find Jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate in June remained at 7.3 percent for the fifth month in a row and the economy gained no new jobs, the Labor Department said today.

The number of workers was "less than seasonally expected," the department said, and declined by 590,000 to 106.4 million, after seasonal adjustment. The number of non-agricultural wage and salary jobs remained at 97.5 million — the same as in May.

Unemployment for blacks, 15.6 percent in May, "registered an unusually large decline to 14 percent" in June while the jobless rate for white workers rose from 6.2 percent to 6.5 percent, the department said. The rate for Hispanics remained steady at 10.6 percent.

"As you know, the jobless rate for blacks tends to be quite volatile and we cannot determine if this decline represents a real improvement with only a single month of data," Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of the department's bureau of labor statistics, told Congress's Joint Economic Committee.

Civilian unemployment, which averaged 7.3 percent in 1984, has remained at that rate since February. The number of unemployed workers totaled 8.4 million, the same as in May, the department said.

"Job growth continued in the service-producing sector, though at a slower pace, and there was a further decline in manufacturing," the department said.

Service industries, which have been adding jobs at a rapid rate during the economic recovery, gained 85,000 jobs in June, to a total of 21.9 million jobs. That figure is 1.2 million jobs higher than a year ago.

Moderate employment gains were made in

Parade Caps Rally

Now That It's Over, They'd Do It Again

Under showers of confetti, Sanford's father and son road rally team, Don and Jerry Gross, weary from 11 days of cross country travel, received a rousing welcome from the city of New York Thursday, the final day of "The Great American Race."

Thousands of cheering New Yorkers lined the streets, clapping and greeting the Grosses and the drivers of the 70 other antique cars that finished the race. The drivers were part of the 30,000 people in the city's Independence Day Parade.

Some well-wishers showed the drivers with confetti, while others jumped onto the cars' running boards and offered to buy them drinks and dinner, according to Patty Austin, Jerry Gross' secretary at his Sanford architectural firm.

"Jerry was so happy. They were in such a good mood because they finished the race and it was over," Ms. Austin said.

Don Gross

The "Chicago Connection," as the Gross team called itself, finished 37th in a field of 70 cars. Ms. Austin said. Their 1932 Deluxe Model A "Jenny Steamcleaner" was battered but finished the race in fine form, she reported. They received a plaque for finishing but won no prize money. The winners were a team in a 1914 Dodge but Ms. Austin said she did not know their names or where they were from. A woman in a 1906 Mitchell won $25,000 for finishing the race in the oldest car.

Sprinkler Requirement Near For Sanford

By Rick Branson
Herald Staff Writer

A proposed fire ordinance requiring sprinkler systems in new apartments and condominiums, as well commercial and industrial buildings, is expected to be passed Monday by the Sanford City Commission.

Commissioners gave tentative approval to the measure earlier this week in a work session.

The ordinance, considered by Sanford fire officials to be one of the toughest in Seminole County, would require sprinkler systems only in certain types of new multi-family and commercial buildings. Existing structures, as well as single-family homes, would be exempt.

Under the rule, certain types of apartments, condominiums, townhouses and hotels would have to install sprinkler systems if they:

- Are made of precast concrete or other "fire resistive" material and are more than four stories high.
  - Are made of concrete block and are more than three stories high.
  - Are made of woodframe and are more than two stories high.
- Precast concrete is more resistant to fire than concrete and wood and thus lowers the fire hazard rating of the building, according to Sanford Assistant Fire Chief Ron Neel.

Bowling alleys and restaurants would have to install sprinklers if their total floor area is more than 6,000 square feet, under the proposed ordinance.

Businesses or factories that make or store combustible merchandise would also have to have sprinklers if they are made of precast concrete or other "fire resistive" material and:

- Are more than 12,000 square feet.
- More than two stories high and 10,000 square feet.

More than three stories high regardless of floor area.

Factories or commercial buildings made of concrete, wood, or other less "fire resistive" material, would have to install sprinklers if:

- The total floor area exceeds 8,000 square feet.
- The building is more than one story high and total floor area exceeds 5,000 square feet.
- More than three stories high regardless of floor area.

Public parking garages would have to have sprinklers if they are made of precast concrete and are more than 10,000 square feet or if they are made of other material and are more than 6,000 square feet.

All buildings used for public assembly, such as theaters and auditoriums, would have to have sprinklers, as would all buildings more than 75 feet high or 20,000 square feet. Buildings considered hazardous, such as airport hangars and woodworking, and auto repair shops, would also be required to have sprinklers.

Neel said the Fire Department is trying to include a clause to

Family Of 5 Kidnapped By Town

SEWARD, Neb. (UPI) — Elliot Kessler of Selden, N.Y., said he was approached Thursday at an Interstate 80 rest area and asked if he and his family wished to be "kidnapped."

It was Nebraska state troopers who broached the question. The family first thought they were going to get a speeding ticket.

But Seward, with a population of 5,700 and Nebraska's official Fourth of July city, each year asks an out-of-state family to be its guests on Independence Day. Kessler, 41, wife, Susan, 39, both teach fourth grade in New York City. With their children, Randy, 9, Allison, 13, and Cindy, 14, they were put up in a Seward motel as guests of the city for the night, given free meals, escorted to events in Seward's daylong celebration and featured in the town's 343-unit parade, driving to Boulder, Colo.

"Last July Fourth we spent in the Badlands in South Dakota drowning in mud," Kessler said. "The Fourth is getting to be very memorable."

IN BRIEF

Crews Gaining Ground On Some Western Brushfires

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Cooler weather and lighter winds have helped firefighters battle blazes that scorched 170,000 acres in the West, but assistance offered by California residents to quell one of the worst blazes was so overwhelming most were turned away.

For many firefighters, Thursday marked the end of a full week of battle in tinder-dry California and other western states where fires set by arsonists, careless campers, military weapons fire and illegal trash sites have killed three people and destroyed more than 150 homes.

An appeal for four-wheel-drive vehicles to haul equipment to short-handed firefighters battling one of the worst blazes brought a flood of offers and a traffic jam near the Ojai Rangers Station Thursday.

Battle-hardened firefighters in other areas across the West appeared to be closing in on some of the brushfires that have blackened more than 170,000 acres.

Weather forecasters said a five-day heat wave was subsiding, with the return of cooler temperatures and the usual moist coastal fog expected to help firefighters.

Suspect Shot As Hostage Flees

ODESSA, Mo. (UPI) — A suspected armed robber, who at one point held six law enforcement officers hostage, was shot in the head today as his final prisoner sprinted from the mobile home after arranging his escape over the telephone.

Robert Allen, 25, who escaped two weeks ago from a Kansas City courthouse, underwent surgery early today for a gunshot wound suffered in the shootout with officers outside the rural mobile home, 40 miles east of Kansas City.

Officials at St. Mary's Hospital in nearby Blue Springs, Mo., would not comment today on Allen's condition.

Sgt. Jim Watson of the Missouri Highway Patrol said Highway Patrol Cpl. Dennis Boss, who fled the mobile home about 2 a.m. CDT, was the last of six state or local law enforcement officers held hostage by Allen throughout Thursday afternoon and early today.

Investigators said Boss fled when Watson allowed him to go outside the mobile home to pick up some soft drinks he had ordered from officers. The escape was planned over a battery-powered field telephone Watson allowed into the mobile home for conversations with police negotiators.

Shultz To Meet Eastern Allies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz leaves today for a 13-day tour of Asia, including stops in Malaysia, Australia, Fiji and Thailand and a visit to the Thai-Cambodian border.

The main focus of Shultz's trip will be meetings July 11-12 with the six foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. It is his third visit to the annual session, which also includes non-members Japan, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the European Community.

A senior State Department official, briefing reporters in advance of Shultz's departure, stressed the importance of the ASEAN countries to the United States.

The nations share "opposition to communism, support for free enterprise and open markets" and economic and social development "with an emphasis on self-reliance," he said.

The ASEAN countries are Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand, Singapore, the Philippines and Brunei.

IN BRIEF

OPEC Ministers Divided Over Cutting Oil Prices

VIENNA (UPI) — OPEC oil ministers huddled privately in a hotel room today prior to the start of their regular session, apparently as divided as ever over whether to roll back crude oil prices to defend their share of the world petroleum market.

Gonzalo Plaza, chief of OPEC's official OPECNA news agency, said the ministers were meeting in a room in Vienna's Intercontinental hotel to draft an agenda for their meeting.

Nine of the members of the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries have expressed varying degrees of opposition to any retreat from the current price range of $26.50 to $28.65 a barrel, depending on grade.

But Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer that traditionally adjusts its production to maintain the cartel's output ceiling, is expected to demand a cut of $1 or $1.50 a barrel in the price of heavy crude.

The price of heavy crude is currently fixed at the OPEC minimum of $26.50.

Guinea Coup Quashed

LOME, Togo (UPI) — Army officers loyal to President Col. Lansana Conte de Guineas quashed an attempt by a former prime minister to overthrow the government of the West African nation, Guinea's state radio said today.

Radio Conakry said the army had "taken control of the situation" after rebels led by the former prime minister, Col. Djiarra Traore, declared they had seized control while Conte was in Togo to head a meeting of the West African Economic Community.

Reached by telephone in the Togolese capital, Foreign Minister Fancine Toure said, "The regime has not changed."

The radio said Traore, who has been education minister since December, was being sought.

Radio France International said it spoke to a member of Guinea's Military Committee for National Redemption, who said the military reasserted control at 11 p.m. Thursday.

Rain ... At Last

Drought Broken, But Africans Still Facing Starvation

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Rains have broken a three-year drought in at least eight African countries, but millions of people still face starvation because of poor distribution of food aid, a U.N. report said today.

The report issued by the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization, FAO, said international relief efforts must now concentrate on how to "expedite the delivery of food to remote areas" in the 21 nations worst-hit by famine.

More than half a million tons of food have piled up at the major ports of Sudan and Ethiopia and severe logistical problems are hampering food distribution in Chad, Mali and Niger, the FAO report said.

"Widespread malnutrition and deaths from starvation continue to be reported in Ethiopia and Sudan," it said.

"In several Sahelian countries, the food supply situation is worsening as logistic constraints prevent the supply of food to remote areas. Urgent action needs to be taken in the coming weeks to expedite the delivery of food to remote areas," the report said.

"The FAO currently considers the crisis to be most acute in Chad, Ethiopia, Mali, Niger and Sudan," it said.

But the report noted that good rains had broken the drought in at least eight of the worst affected countries: Burundi, Kenya, Lesotho, Morocco, Rwanda, Tanzania, Zambia and Zimbabwe. It also said better but still below-normal harvests are expected in Somalia and Mauritania.

It listed as the major food aid distribution problems: a lack of fuel and spare parts for trucks and locomotives, inefficiency and general congestion at the ports, and outdated and broken railway equipment.

"New initiatives need to be taken as a matter of extreme urgency by both the international community and the governments of the affected countries to increase port handling and internal distribution capacities in order to reduce backlogs in ports, accelerate the delivery of aid and thus avoid the further deterioration of an already desperate situation," the FAO said.

As a result of the problems, the report said more than 200,000 tons of food are sitting at the Ethiopian ports of Assab and Massawa on the Red Sea and another 300,000 tons are piled up in Sudan's only major harbor, Port Sudan.

The report also said Western donors had managed to deliver as of the end of June two-thirds of the 6.6 million tons of food aid pledged in 1984-85.

The United States promised 3,073,400 tons — just under half of all food aid promised to the 21 worst affected countries — in the current year.

The European Economic Community ranked second, with 1,778,000 tons of food pledged, while the U.N. world food program was third at 730,100 tons.

Tipped Canoe Rescue

Two of three Sanford girls pulled from Lake Carolla in Ft. Melon Park, Sanford, after they were dumped from their canoe at about 1 p.m. Thursday hang on for a ride to shore. Dean Smith of the Sanford Recreation Department paddles the rescue canoe while Sanford Fire Department emergency medical technician Paul Keith keeps an eye on the girls. Angela and Shelia Ashley and Sally Sherman were all wet, but okay after their spill. Jarvis Grant, brother of one of the girls, jumped into rescue them and got a muscle cramp. He was pulled from the lake by Recreation Department Supervisor Mike Kirby.

Lebanon Urges Arab Retaliation Against U.S. For Airport Boycott

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon urged Arab states today to ban U.S. aircraft and ships in retaliation for President Reagan's measures to isolate the Beirut airport, official Beirut radio said.

Lebanon also asked 10 European ambassadors to back its campaign against a U.S.-sponsored boycott of the airport, prompted by the TWA hijacking which ended Sunday with the release of 39 American hostages.

The Lebanese government sent a message to the Arab Transportation Union asking the body to hold a meeting as soon as possible to adopt a resolution banning U.S. aircraft from Arab airports and airspace and U.S. ships from Arab ports, Beirut radio said.

The decision followed consultations Thursday between Fuad Turk, secretary general of the Foreign Ministry, and ambassadors from six other Arab states — Algeria, Egypt, Iraq, Morocco, North Yemen and Tunisia — according to the report also carried by Christian Voice of Lebanon radio.

Lebanese President Amin Gemayel met with U.S. Ambassador to Lebanon Reginald Bartholomew today and said he was "very sad" about the U.S. decision Monday to deny landing rights to the Lebanese national carrier Middle East Airlines, the reports said.

Earlier Friday, Turk met with ambassadors from 10 European nations and urged them to oppose the U.S. measures.

British Ambassador Sir David Miers declined comment on the meeting. Britain and the United States have agreed to promote a ban on flights to and from the airport.

Also today, Christian Voice of Free Lebanon radio said today a member of the Shiite Muslim Militia group Amal and an Iranian mullah from the radical Muslim Hezbollah, or Party of God, died during clashes Thursday night.

A militant Shiite movement Thursday claimed responsibility for the June 14 hijacking and offered to surrender the two original sky pirates to an international court if President Reagan is put on trial also.

In a written statement to a Western news agency in Beirut, the "Organization of the Oppressed" said it would continue its "battle against America and Israel and their allies" while it awaited a reply from Reagan.

The two Shiite extremists who hijacked the TWA airliner had said they belonged to the same previously unknown organization.

"We condemn considering the hijacking and the killing of one U.S. military diver an unforgivable crime," the statement said.

P&Z Backs Rezoning For Warehouse, Showroom

By Donna Estes Herald Staff Writer

A furniture warehouse and retail sales showroom will be built on a tract north of state Road 46 and one quarter mile west of the Chase overpass if the Seminole County Commission follows the advice of its planning and zoning commission.

The P&Z board Wednesday night recommended a change in zoning from agriculture to commercial for the parcel which has 1,000 feet of frontage on SR 46. But not before the property owner's attorney promised several commitments in exchange.

Among the commitments was the donation of a 100-foot wide strip from SR 46 more than 700 feet to Narcissus Street for the county's planned improvement of the Lockhart-Smith Canal, a ditch which drains much of the northwest side of Sanford and the unincorporated areas.

Kenneth McIntosh, representing the owners, Continental Equity, also offered additional right-of-way for Narcissus Street and to participate in its resurfacing even though the rezoning requested extends only halfway between SR 46 and Narcissus. The P&Z commission turned down the offer, saying it was not necessary since the rezoned area would not touch Narcissus.

McIntosh also promised to arrange for a sufficient water supply for firefighting purposes, to improve the appearance at the rear of the property on which the warehouse is to be built, and to provide deceleration and acceleration lanes on SR 46.

One nearby property owner — Tom Jiminez — protested the zoning, but withdrew his objection after the board explained that the rezoning was for half, not the entire width of the Continental property.

Letters of protest from homeowners in the Narcissus Street area were also based on the assumption that the entire tract would be rezoned.

The zoning request was changed by McIntosh at the meeting to include only half of the tract.

McIntosh told the board, however, there "is a real move on north of the Continental property, nearer Narcissus Street homes, to create an industrial area."

In other business, the planning and zoning commission:

- Recommended approval of a change in zoning from agriculture to residential for a 9.5-acre parcel on the north side of Red Bug Lake Road near Dodd Road to permit construction of 1,300-square foot homes on 11,700-foot lots for the Lillian Verkins property.
- Recommended rezoning from agriculture to apartment zoning for 29.85 acres on the north side of County Line Road, west of state Road 434, as requested by William Fulford on behalf of property owner Dr. L. Neall Bottomley. Some 200 apartments are to be built at the site, Orlando's Iron Bridge Regional Sewer Plant is 1,000 feet northwest of the site.
- Recommended rezoning of a 1.3-acre parcel at the northeast corner of SR 436 and Lake Howell Road from agriculture to commercial as requested by Walter Bonder. Bonder said he doesn't know what the property will be used for.
- Recommended rezoning of a 1/2-acre parcel on the north side of Wekiva Springs Road west of Crown Point from apartment zoning to office park, requested

Dozens Sick After Eating Watermelon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California health officials have stopped sales of watermelons and urged consumers not to eat the fruit pending tests for a pesticide thought to have made dozens ill in three western states.

Watermelons were voluntarily recalled by several stores Thursday in California, Oregon and Washington.

Officials said they had received reports of 18 cases of illness in four California counties — Los Angeles, Kern, Alameda and Marin — and at least 15 cases in Oregon and southern Washington.

Tests were scheduled today to determine the extent of the possible contamination, and consumers were told to keep their watermelons but avoid eating them pending the test results.

California Health Director Dr. Kenneth W. Kizer said the illnesses have been tentatively linked to the pesticide Temik, generically known as aldicarb, which is illegal for use on melons.

"It's a highly toxic pesticide. However, concentrations (in watermelons) are small. It can be fatal, but it's unlikely," he said.

A spokesman for Union Carbide, which makes Temik, said the use of the chemical on melons would be a violation of the labeling on the product.

"The label clearly specifies the crops on which it can be used, and watermelon is not one of those," said company spokeswoman Mary Ann Ford in Raleigh, N.C. "It has been extensively tested to determine its safe use on certain crops, and it is not registered for use on crops where there may be a residue problem."

Kizer noted there was no way a consumer would know if a melon was contaminated. "There's no odor or taste or other characteristic," he said.

Watermelon lovers and store owners in the Los Angeles area did not seem overly alarmed at the recall.

Picnic grounds were littered with watermelon rinds around the city, and supermarket produce clerks said there were few complaints.

"Only one customer came back with a watermelon — and they sell real good on the Fourth of July," Ralph's supermarket clerk Elias Gutierrez said late Thursday afternoon.

Man Who Claims To Be Cop Sought In Teen Sex Case

An Altamonte Springs woman has reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that her 16-year-old daughter may have been sexually assaulted by a man who claimed to be a police officer.

In a separate report, the girl informed deputies Thursday that she was raped by her brother between March 12 and June 27. The girl said she told her mother of those alleged assaults, but the mother ignored her claims, a sheriff's report said.

The mother told deputies the man who claimed to be a law enforcement officer, working with the sheriff's department and local police departments, brought her daughter home

Wednesday. The mother had warned the man to stay away from the girl, the report said.

The woman said her daughter's clothing was torn and soiled and "evidence of carnal knowledge" was apparent.

When she confronted the man he laughed in her face and told her there was nothing she could do, because he is a police officer, the report said. He showed her several badges and pulled a handgun from his boot and said that was additional proof that he is a lawman, the report said.

The man and the girl then left and the mother and a witness told deputies that they spotted him at about 10:30 p.m. driving on state Road 436 in Altamonte Springs. He reportedly tried to force the witnesses' car off the road, the report said.

The girl met with a sheriff's deputy and a state Health and Rehabilitative Services counselor at the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center on Thursday, where she reported the alleged sexual assaults by her brother, the report said.

Deputies are investigating the claims made by both the girl and her mother, but no arrests have been made.

BAD DEAL

A man who claims he bought a 1977 Mercury for $125 in November has been charged in Altamonte Springs with the theft of that vehicle.

Altamonte Springs police stopped the car at about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday on state Road 436. Police said the car had an expired license tag and a computer check showed the car had been stolen last year in Memphis, Tenn.

The suspect, who claims he bought the car in Memphis, was charged with grand theft auto.

Jerry Butler, 29, of 440 Village View Lane, Longwood, was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

SICK WITH CONTRABAND

Seminole County paramedics reported to sheriff's deputies that while they were treating a patient they found marijuana and drug paraphernalia in his possession.

The paramedics told deputies they began searching him for medical-related information when he did not respond to questions about his health.

The arrest report said deputies did not know what the man's medical problem was, but after the contraband, over 20 grams of marijuana in three plastic bags and drug paraphernalia, was found on him they were called to arrest him.

Searl Herbert Row, 31, of 903 S. Lake Jesup Ave., Oviedo, was arrested at Beasley Road at Alafaya Trail, Oviedo, at about 9 p.m. Wednesday. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

BATTERED FAMILY

A 38-year-old Geneva man has been charged with battery spouse abuse after allegedly beating his wife and daughter.

Barbara Cole of 1107 Tripp Road, Geneva, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies when they arrived at her home at about 8:25 p.m. Wednesday that her husband had beaten her and her daughter Deborah, striking them several times.

The woman had lumps on her head and her daughter had a swollen face, deputies said.

Thomas Foster Cole was later freed on $500 bond.

Shuttle Challenger Set For Launch To Probe Secrets Of The Universe

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Shuttle Challenger's astronauts, with a milestone pre-launch test behind them, say they're eager for launch July 12 on an astronomy mission to probe "the very secrets of the universe."

"Astronomy is hard to explain in terms of material benefits," civilian shuttle flier Loren Acton said Tuesday after a dress-rehearsal countdown. "But in terms of intellectual benefits... it's really an exciting mission."

Challenger's seven-man crew is scheduled to spend a week in orbit working in two shifts, 24 hours a day, operating a battery of instruments and telescopes to study the sun, Earth's atmosphere and the structure of the universe.

"We're studying the sun, we're studying clusters of galaxies, we're mapping the infrared sky, we're measuring high energy cosmic rays," said Acton, a professional astronomer. "I mean we're probing the very secrets of the universe and who could help but be excited about that?"

Late Tuesday, mission managers completed a formal "flight readiness review" and cleared Challenger for blastoff July 12, but more meetings were scheduled to clear up questions about fuel line contamination found last month.

"This is probably the most complex flight ever undertaken in the shuttle," commander Gordon Fullerton said. "We're anxious to get that payload in the air and turn it on and start gathering scientific data."

Joining Fullerton and Acton for the countdown test were copilot Roy Bridges and crewmates Story Musgrave, Anthony England, Karl Henize and civilian scientist John David Bartoe.

The dress-rehearsal countdown ended on time with the computer simulated ignition of Challenger's three main engines on launch pad 39A at the Kennedy Space Center.

"Down here at KSC, they're doing this so often it's strictly old hat for them but it's a little more of a unique experience for us on the crew," Fullerton said. "Challenger looked brand new inside. It has a lot of miles on it but you can tell this is the best used spacecraft in the country, so we're ready to go."

In a first for the shuttle program the crew will be able to sample Coca-Cola and Pepsi in the first space test of carbonated beverage containers.

"We're going to have both on board," Fullerton said. "The real purpose of this is to look at a couple of different ways to dispense carbonated beverages and we're not up there to run a taste test between the two."

Sulfite-Treated Fruits, Snacks Recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has recalled sulfite-treated dried fruits and snacks because they can cause shortness of breath, hives and even death to people sensitive to the preservatives.

The FDA said Wednesday the products, in violation of federal law, do not warn consumers that they contain sulfite preservatives.

About 500,000 Americans, most of them asthmatics, are sensitive to sulfites.

An FDA spokesman said there have been no reported adverse reactions involving the products, manufactured by the Mountain Man Nut and Fruit Co. of Parker, Colo., and the company's subsidiary of the same name in Salem, Ore.

The spokesman said the recalled products are sold door-to-door and in stores in 16 states: Arizona, California, Colorado, Illinois, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming, Oregon, Washington and Alaska.

The FDA said the undeclared sulfite-treated dried fruits and snacks were discovered during a surveillance sampling by the Oregon State Department of Agriculture.

Nine products are being recalled by the companies. They are 16-ounce packages of Natural Sundried Pineapple, papaya, Natural Sundried Turkish Apricots, High Country mix; Banana Delight; Mountain Munch; Mountain Jubilee mix; M&M Corp and Top of the Rockies Mix.

The Colorado firm is also recalling Thompson's Seedless Raisins and an Apple nut mix, while the Oregon company is also recalling 16-ounce packages of Golden Raisins and eight-ounce packages of Mangoes.

An FDA spokesman said the agency will decide what, if any, action to take against the companies after the recall is completed.

Let's Win War On Poverty ...

How goes the war on poverty, after 20 years of campaigning? Not well. We are not winning. We may be losing. We are spending a great deal of money. It is time for a long look at our present strategy. It is time for a change in tactics, if we can decide what kind of a change is needed.

Let it be admitted in the very beginning that poverty is a greater problem in this country than in any other highly industrialized capitalist country. It is a problem we must be concerned with, and that is why Lyndon Johnson stirred such a positive response in 1964, when he declared war on poverty.

But now, 20 years later, we have spent billions of federal tax money and what have we accomplished?

Much less than we had hoped. A report from the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office in May, titled "Reducing Poverty Among Children," stated that the rate of poverty among children under 18 was declining steadily before 1965 when most of the new poverty programs were enacted, and continued declining until 1969, when most of the new programs had been fully funded and took full effect.

Then what happened? The rate stopped declining. It started increasing slowly. Since 1969, the rate has never been as low as it was then. No gains were made in the war on child poverty during the entire decade of the 1970s. In the 1980s, child poverty has been making sharp gains. The line has been going up as steeply as it went down in the 1960s.

The trend was established while Richard Nixon was president. It continued during the administration of Gerald Ford. Child poverty took a leap in the last two years of the Jimmy Carter administration. So it is inaccurate to blame the recent rise in the child poverty rate entirely on budget cuts by Ronald Reagan, who became president in 1981.

The causes are complicated. Some of them are deep-rooted. For instance, the poverty rate among children is up because the poorest children are those who have no father and the proportion of children who live in households headed by a single woman has risen. It is still rising. The Congressional Budget Office says this seems to be the primary reason for the increase in the poverty rate among children. In other words, illegitimacy and family breakup are the primary causes of the increase in poverty.

What's to be done? We must first determine whether our augmented welfare programs are themselves partly responsible. That is the contention of a book by Charles Murray, "Losing Ground: American Social Policy, 1950-1980," which has been getting a lot of national attention this year. Murray would abolish all welfare programs, calling them counterproductive. He would leave the poor to fend for themselves with what help they could get from private charity.

Few would go that far, and we certainly wouldn't. Nevertheless, Murray has made a necessary point. The war on poverty is not going well, and he brings the bad news right from the front.

It is likely that the welfare programs should be changed. They certainly should be if they encourage dependence rather than independence. It may be necessary to put more money in them, once they are reformed, in order to make them effective.

Any change is going to be opposed by an army of lobbyists representing those with vested interests in the perpetuation of the present welfare system — the welfare rights organizations, the legal aid societies, the social workers' unions, the professional poverty advocates.

They would protect the status quo even if it means the perpetuation of poverty. But most Americans won't accept that outcome. This is one war in which there will never be a substitute for victory.

America: We Swallow Tigers Whole

On this particular Fourth of July weekend, perhaps our thoughts should expand beyond standard issues of patriotic history. Of course we should think of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, acting courageously in the little town of Philadelphia 209 years ago. But we should also think about the recently released hostages. And we should consider the relationship between American history and American hostages — for it is a clear and direct one.

To sense this, think about Adlai Stevenson's wonderful line, "America sometimes gags on a gnat — but we swallow tigers whole." The hostage-history relationship deals with both sides of this idea. Terror against America, for all its well-publicized horror, will end up in the gnat category. And it is caused by our penchant for tiger-swallowing.

Consider: Why is the United States such an inviting target for terrorists? Some, like the Rev. Jesse Jackson, have said it is because we are isolated in the world, because our policies have been unwise and so we are hated.

Wrong. We are a target because we are the most successful, most powerful, most influential, most emulated nation on earth.

Terrorists can go after Indians if they want to deal with a problem that is directly related to India (Sikh independence). They can go after Turks to redress an ancient grievance (genocide of Armenians). But they don't go after Indians or Turks — or Japanese or Englishmen or Frenchmen — if they want to change the essence of the modern world.

For that sort of a goal, it is America that becomes a target.

Today, the whole world is shaped by America. It is American science — from chips, to oil drilling, to space shuttles, to nuclear power, to biogenetics — that has set the technological context of the world. It is American culture — from movies, to rock 'n' roll, to literature — that entrances the world. It is the American economy — and no other — that is seen as the "locomotive" that creates prosperity around the world. It is American military might that for 40 years has established the conditions for a balance of power in the world — a balance that has yielded peace, however uneasy.

Not least — and this the signers of the Declaration would understand fully — it is American political philosophy that is now regnant on this planet. We invented freedom for the masses.

In short, America has become the pivot of the modern world. And so, if your complaint is with modernism — and that's what the major complaint of the Shites is — then your target is America. We are — they say — the Great Satan. After all, they say, it is we who brought television to their lands, and permissive morality and alcohol. Of course, the American idea also brought about more open speech, more education, more freedom for women and most importantly, a vision of a new and freer life for oppressed people.

All this, of course, can cause us big problems. Terrorism is a modern evil that must be combated. It will continue to disturb us — as a gnat in the throat does — but it will surely not overcome us.

So there is a message on this weekend that would be nice to send to the signers of the Declaration, wherever their spirits may now reside.

Gentlemen: You were only a very few people, representing a tiny agrarian population, living on a small sliver of a coastal plain in a backward land far from the locus of power in those days. But you set into motion a nation, a culture and a philosophy that not only dominates the world, but has helped it in profound ways.

That nation, honored sirs, is troubled — as ever. We still gag on gnats. But do remember: We've swallowed the whole tiger.

Reagan's Mixed Signals

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Beirut hostage crisis is over and the 39 Americans captured aboard TWA flight 847 are home free.

Now comes the game of winners and losers.

Administration officials blanketing the airwaves putting their spin on the 17-day hostage saga and portraying the president as a winner all the way. He said that he made no concessions, no deals and gave no guarantees.

"President Reagan played a very cool hand," said Secretary of State George Shultz. "He's impressive in situations like this."

But clearly the Amal Shites, rightly or wrongly, believe that they have an understanding that the United States will not seek revenge with retaliatory raids.

Their leader, Nabih Berri, believes in Syria's word that Israel will soon release the more than 700 Lebanese, mostly Shites, who were taken from their homeland and imprisoned in Israel.

The Shites had stipulated that they would release the hostages if the United States could persuade Israel to release the prisoners. Reagan refused to ask Israel to do that, and insisted that Israel already had committed itself to free the men who were seized in occupied southern Lebanon.

So it may not be in writing. The circumlocution of diplomacy permits each side to deny it caved in to pressure.

But the return of the hostages did not come about by Reagan waving a magic wand. It was a combination of intensive diplomacy, pulling all available levers, even to the extent of sounding out and receiving some help from Iran, and threatening the use of force with a naval blockade of Lebanon and the closing of the Beirut airport, which Shultz described as a "safe haven" for hijackers.

Shultz acknowledged that there was "lots of discussion with many governments, including Israel ... and especially Syria."

But as the release of the hostages was beginning to jell, Reagan gummed up the works temporarily by indulging in some name calling by branding the hostage captors "thugs, murderers and barbarians" and implying that he would retaliate with force.

WASHINGTON — The tragedy of the Dalkon Shield intrauterine contraceptive device in this country has been extensively chronicled. But the fact that it is an international problem — and that the United States is partly responsible for it — has received little attention.

Out of 2.8 million Dalkon Shield users in the United States, 18 allegedly died from infections caused by the device and thousands of women were maimed. An uncounted number of spontaneous abortions and stillbirths were also attributed to the shield.

There were 1.7 million Dalkon Shields sold abroad. No one has any idea what the casualty rate was, though there is no reason to believe it was any lower than in this country.

The biggest single customer for the dangerous devices overseas was the U.S. Agency for International Development. From 1970 to 1974,

Lasers Made Obsolete

Laser Made Obsolete

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Advanced technology finally caught up with the Korad laser, an old Apollo moon mission experiment used by scientists for 17 years to measure the distance from the West Texas mountains to the moon.

Scientists from the University of Texas recently held a goodbye ceremony at the McDonald Observatory in the remote Davis Mountains, where the laser has been used since 1969 to determine the distance from earth to moon to within 4 inches.

The Korad laser was one of the world's first high-power, ultra-short pulse systems and the first to be used for scientific lunar ranging, said University of Texas research scientist Pete Shelus, a project manager for the observatory's lunar ranging project.

Shelus said advanced technology has led to a replacement system for the Korad, one of the very last experiments that was still in use from the Apollo moon mission days of the 1960s and early 1970s.

The system is being replaced by the McDonald Laser Ranging System, which will be able to pinpoint the constantly-changing earth-moon distance to within 2 inches, making it twice as accurate as the Korad.

"This is a very big thing for us as we move from the old into the new," Shelus said. "Since 1969, McDonald was the only observatory in the world routinely getting scientifically vital information from this type of observation. The Korad system was the only one able to do this thing."

"The Korad laser did yeoman service," he said.

For most people, it is probably enough to know that the moon is about 225,000 miles from earth, although its orbit brings it closer and takes it farther away at different times of the month.

But for scientists, much more accurate numbers are needed to measure small changes in earth and moon rotations and orbits and the barely perceptible drift of the continents across the earth's surface.

The old Korad system and the new, advanced system work on the same basic principle. A laser beam is fired at a projector left on the moon by Apollo astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin and reflected back to the 107-inch McDonald Observatory telescope.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Soviet Strategy

You had to work your way back to page 9 of the New York Times for June 26 to find it, but there, grudgingly, it was a report on the CIA's latest analysis of Soviet military construction. The report, which is based on the annual National Intelligence Estimate (derived from all U.S. government intelligence services), was presented recently to a special public hearing of two Senate committees.

The story's headline ("Soviet Reported to Build Up Nuclear Arsenal") fairly summarized its gist. Overall Soviet military spending is expected to grow 4 percent annually, over and above the inflation rate, during the next several years. (Tip O'Neill, by way of contrast, has thus far managed to hold U.S. defense spending in the new federal budget at last year's levels, without adjusting for inflation.) Soviet nuclear weapons, in particular, are in the midst of a building boom that "could double its arsenal of nuclear warheads by the mid-1990s." This, to be sure, would violate the proposed limits in the SALT II treaty (which the United States never ratified).

Perhaps most ominous of all, the report notes a new Soviet stress on mobility in its nuclear missiles. The Soviets, it asserts, have made "major strides" in developing missiles that can be transported by rail or road, and it estimates that by the mid-1990s nearly a fourth of all Soviet warheads will be deployed in this way. By contrast, the effort to conceal America's nuclear missiles in various mobile installations in the Western states fell afoul of environmentalist politics and other pressures, and President Reagan is currently battling for funds to produce even 40 or 50 of the new MXs, which will have to be deployed in "hardened" silos whose locations are known precisely.

No wonder the Soviets are appalled at the possibility that Mr. Reagan, by equipping this country with a Star Shield, or space-based defense, against their missiles, might circumvent their lengthening lead in nuclear weapons. But what is a wonder is that America's ever-diligent doves are doing everything in their power to help the Soviet Union block such a development.

Take, for example, Marshall Shulman, who is currently the director of the W. Averell Harriman Institute for Advanced Study of the Soviet Union at Columbia University (an oxymoron rather like "the Neville Chamberlain Institute for Advanced Study of Nazi Germany"). Recently, in two articles in the New York Times, Shulman argued strenuously against Mr. Reagan's Star Shield proposal, declaring that "Mikhail Gorbachev has made clear that his priority is to concentrate on modernizing the economy," and thus is bound to want to spend less on weapons (Apparently Gorbachev neglected to tell this to those in charge of the Soviet military budget.)

available, and Third World countries were soon clamoring for their share of the supposed miracle contraceptives.

They were not told of the dangers of the device. In fact, as late as 1973 — when the company had already been getting complaints about the shield for two years — a Robins official, R.W. Nickless, toured eight Asian nations to promote the product.

Officials in Washington were well aware of the risks involved in the contraceptives they were shipping abroad by the thousands. "There have to be a certain number of case reports before you can do anything," an AID official explained lamely.

The agency kept on sending Dalkon Shields overseas until June 1974, when Robins suspended sales of the contraceptive in response to the FDA's complaints. AID officials insist that current regulations and procedures would prevent a similar disaster from happening again.

Robins representatives quickly spread the word to potential AID clients that the Dalkon Shield was

'You Can't Fight A War If You're Pregnant'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon says it cannot dispute the figures used by a college professor to argue that women should not fight the nation's wars: that one in 10 women in the Army "are pregnant at any given time."

In addition to the continuing 10 percent pregnancy rate, 17 percent of the 77,000-plus women in the Army are pregnant over the course of a year, according to an article by Jean Yarbrough, professor of political science at Loyola University.

Yarbrough, writing in the summer edition of Policy Review, the quarterly journal of the conservative Heritage Foundation, cited the pregnancy statistics to bolster "recognition of genuine physical and psychological differences that are important in battle, such as strength, aggressiveness and sexual attraction."

"The trend of recent history and court decisions is to ignore the natural differences between men and women in the name of social equity," she said. "But when applied to military

'Pregnancy Insurance' Lacking

NEW YORK (UPI) — Poor, minority, or unmarried women are more likely than other women to have to pay for any costs of prenatal care and childbirth, according to a research institute in New York.

Twenty-five percent of women ages 18 to 24, and 17 percent of all women ages 15 to 44 lack insurance to cover recommended check-ups during pregnancy and the $3,500 or more cost of having a baby, researchers at the Alan Guttmacher Institute said based on data from the 1984 Current Population Survey by the U.S. Census Bureau and from federal aid programs.

More than one third of women from families with annual incomes less than $10,000 lack health insurance. About one quarter of all black and Hispanic women, compared to 15 percent white women, must pay for their medical expenses.

affairs, the principle of equity is wrong and dangerous.

"You can't fight a war if you're pregnant," Army spokesman Maj David Russell, after checking Yarbrough's figures with official statistics, said he could not dispute her findings.

He said there are 77,603 women in the Army as compared to 700,803 men, "a larger percentage of women at any time since World War II."

The Army "expects the percentage to grow until about 1990," he said. "We have no ceiling on women."

Women are barred by law from combat roles in the U.S. military, a ban the Supreme Court has refused to tamper with despite claims the distinction amounts to sexual discrimination.

Yarbrough, in arguing to continue the ban, acknowledged women pose fewer disciplinary problems in the armed forces, but said:

"They adversely affect combat readiness in other ways. Ten percent of Army women are pregnant at any given time; 17 percent are pregnant over the course of a year. This creates problems of lost time, child care and deployability."

Yarbrough said the United States is the only major country seriously to consider the question of women in combat, and added that only 10 nations include women in their armed forces — none in combat roles.

She said U.S. feminists support the idea of women in combat "for ideological reasons — they regard it as a measure of equity — while some military professionals see it as a measure of expediency."

"True, women have fought in combat in the past," she said, citing the "heroism of Soviet women during World War II" and "the combat role of women in the Israeli army."

But Soviet women "fought out of dire necessity in all-female units" and Israeli servicewomen no longer engage in combat, Yarbrough said.

Rat Leg Transplants May Lead To Success In Surgery On Humans

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists say their success in transplanting the legs of laboratory rats could spark a revolution in human transplant surgery, and help repair massive damage caused by burns.

Although procedures tested and developed in the 7-year study at the University of California, Irvine, are still in preliminary stages, researchers said the technology could one day replace prosthetic devices and offer plastic surgeons new methods of repairing massive burn damage.

"The most exciting results of this research are that almost anything could be transplanted eventually," said Dr. Bruce Achauer, a member of the research team and UCI's burn unit where some of the techniques are already under further study.

"We don't, however, want people to believe we can transplant a leg from one person to another. There is much more to be done."

Most of the study involved the use of the powerful drug cyclosporine to facilitate the long-term survival of transplanted rodent limbs, said Kirby Black, a co-director of UCI's Reconstructive Microsurgery and Transplantation Laboratories.

The drug, a potent immunosuppressant already used in organ transplants, played a key role in the largely successful leg transplants of about 45 rats because it allows the body to protect itself against serious infection while suppressing that part of the immune system involved in tissue rejection, Black said.

"For the first time we have shown that tissues of this kind can be transplanted for long terms of survival in animals," he said, adding that in several cases, the rats did not reject their new limbs even after the drug was gradually discontinued — a finding Black said may "herald a revolutionary use" for all forms of tissue transplants.

Researcher Charles Hewitt stressed that human limb transplants are still years away, but said animal models used in the experiments apply to most of the situations that might be encountered with the human body.

"For someone who is handicapped, where several of their body pieces are missing or damaged, the use of this technique could someday permit surgeons to selectively replace those pieces and hopefully restore normal function," said Hewitt.

The UCI project, funded by the National Institutes of Health, is one of the first to demonstrate the potential for transplanting groups of composite tissue, including skin, muscle, bone, blood vessels and nerves.

The scientists said their experiments involved the surgical removal of a leg from one rat and its immediate transplant to another whose corresponding leg had been removed.

They said the donor rats adapted to life with three limbs. The recipients, they said, rarely were able to do anything with their new limbs other than put weight on them. Success, they said, was achieved if the muscles remained healthy and responsive to stimulation.

Researchers also included Dr. David Furnas, chief of plastic surgery at the teaching hospital.

Hospital Cost System Unfair: Study

BOSTON (UPI) — The government's system to reduce hospital costs may backfire and drive efficient institutions out of business because reimbursements fail to keep up with the cost of caring for sicker patients, public health researchers report.

In programs called diagnostic related groups, the federal government pays a single price for all patients with a specific illness, without regard for the severity of the disorder. Generally, the sicker the patient, the more hospital care is needed and the higher the cost.

If a hospital accumulates more severely ill patients, it might not be able to afford to take care of them, regardless of its efficiency.

Susan D. Horn, an associate professor at the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health, warned that her research indicates the program does not treat all hospitals equally.

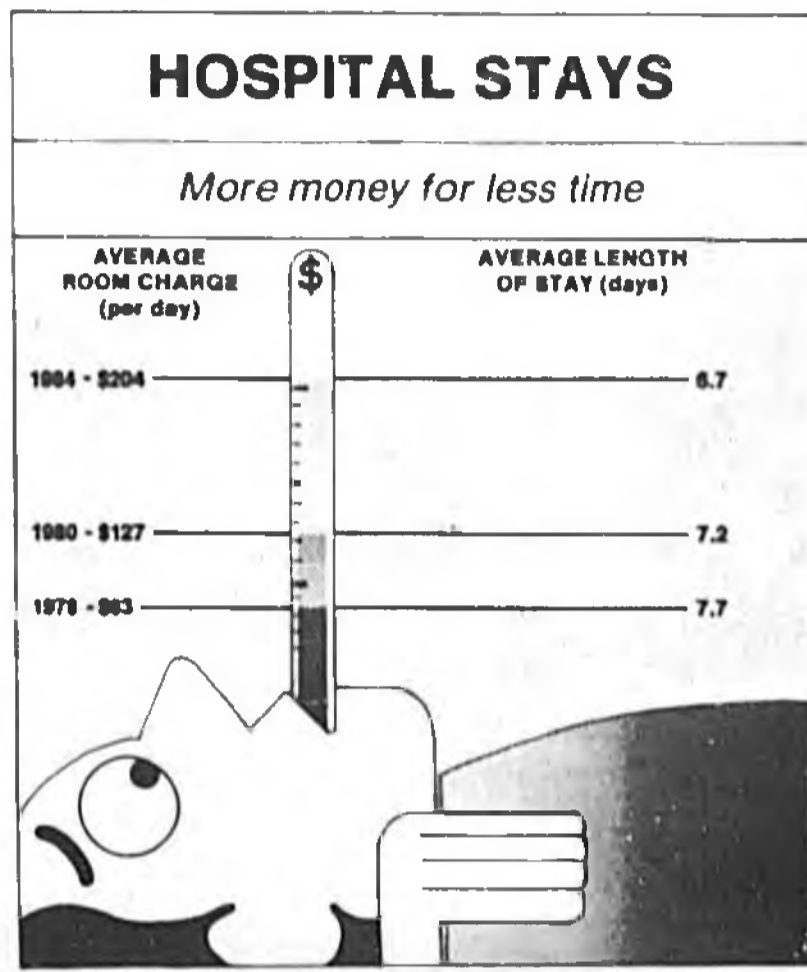

Horn published her findings in the latest edition of the New England Journal of Medicine.

"Taken to the limit, some hospitals will be driven out of business," Horn said. "Most likely they will not be the right hospitals."

"If they were inefficient and they were driven out, that might not be a bad thing. But if they are driven out of business for treating sicker patients, that is probably the wrong thing," she said.

The study compared the government's diagnostic related group system with a system developed at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore based on the severity of a patient's illness.

Medical Dilemma

The average hospital stay is a day shorter than it was in 1976, but room charges have risen 145 percent.

Horn suggested the system based on severity of illness be adopted, instead of the government system based on diagnosis.

She said a system such as hers, based on severity of illness, would be no more difficult to implement than the diagnostic related group system and would be more equitable in the long run.

One of the major concerns with the government's system is that teaching hospitals and public hospitals will not be adequately reimbursed for the vital teaching role and charity services they provide.

The federal government places these hospitals in a different category and pays them more, assuming they treat sicker patients. This means that some of these hospitals might be reimbursed too heavily and others not enough.

Yellow, Orange Take The Bite Out Of Skeeters

NEW YORK (UPI) — Home buyers like yellow houses because the color gives off "sunshine, warmth and optimism," and fast food restaurants like orange because it stimulates the appetite, a color consultant says.

Color consultant and author Leatrice Eiseman, interviewed in the July-August issue of Consumer Digest, says yellow homes sell best.

"Most of our perceptions about color come through association," Eiseman said. "Yellow equals sunshine, warmth and optimism. As a result yellow homes have the most 'curb appeal'."

Orange affects the autonomic nervous system, which stimulates the appetite, the color consultant said. Eiseman said orange, a favorite among fast food restaurants, makes you eat a lot and quickly.

Eiseman, of Tarzana, Calif., wrote the book "Alive with Color."

Consumer Digest says insects are also affected by color. "Mosquitoes are less apt to do a nosedive on you if you're wearing yellow, orange or white. They will descend upon you in droves, however, if you're wearing dark blue, burgundy or brown."

Flies have an aversion to pale blue, and barn swallows are often painted that color to keep them away from the animals, Consumer Digest said.

Color also carries messages that sometimes are not true, the magazine noted.

"For example, we tend to feel cooler in a blue room, and warmer in a peach one," the magazine said. "A black box weighing 10 pounds will seem heavier than a white box weighing the same," it said.

UCF Offers Computer Hook-Up To Library

Special To The Herald
When an Orlando attorney couldn't find the reference he needed to put together a case, he let his fingers do the walking. He called his local university library and got a complete text of the material he needed by return mail.

When a major corporation needed information on where to locate a local outlet, the information came from the same source, wrapped in pages of population studies at a bargain price.

The source in both cases is the newest service provided by the University of Central Florida library — Library Information and Network Exchange (LINE), the only service of its kind in the state.

The reference material available with a phone call (UCF-LINE) boggles the mind. In addition to the half-million volumes and thousands of periodicals in house, LINE has access to 200 data bases on a wealth of subjects.

The need for LINE was a case of natural progression for the UCF library, which serves nearly 17,000 students and more than 1,000 faculty with a limited staff. It became apparent to new library director Anne Marie Allison, when she was named to the post 18 months ago, that something had to be done to cut down costs of borrowing by the growing number of off-campus users. The result is a price list which is calculated to balance the costs of library loans which are not readily apparent.

For $50, the library offers one-year individual privileges, which permits borrowers to check out books. The annual fee covers basic overhead. The average book in an academic library now costs $46; in some sci-tech disciplines, it averages more than $90. A $5 charge is levied on any article from the library collection that is reproduced and mailed; library research runs $40 an hour; and a microfiche copy of the library's complete on-line catalog runs $90. Special arrangements can be made for corporate and organizational borrowing privileges, said Meg Scharf, who is the on-the-scene coordinator for LINE.

Ms. Scharf, who holds an MBA from UCF, is bullish on her operation. She sees a rush to library services over the next few years as the Orlando area continues to grow and more individuals and companies realize the importance and need for professional and technical information in the normal course of doing business.

"We also have to be prepared for a lot of people who have never used libraries, or have little knowledge of our operation," she said.

For those who prefer to use the library but are not familiar with its inner workings, Ms. Scharf and her staff offer an orientation. In fact, she strongly recommends it. "I suggest it because many have never used an on-line (computerized) catalog, for example, and are not aware of all the basic reference tools in their particular fields."

As the influx of high tech in the UCF area continues, Ms. Scharf said she expects a lion's share of requests from adjacent Central Florida Research Park tenants.

For those who opt for a library closer to home, she said, university library staff also will be available for consultation on how it's done.

Clipped And Cropped

A vacant lot at 13th Street and Mellonville Avenue, Sanford, was mowed and cleared of debris Wednesday after the city commission told the lot's owner she had to clean it up or face the wrath of the city's Code Enforcement Board. Ruth Stamm and her daughter, Kathy, both of 850 Grove Meadow Drive, told the commission in June the lot was not an "eyesore" but a "typical, naturally wooded lot." The commission disagreed and ordered them to clean up the lot.

Red Cross Refuses County's Offer

The Central Florida Chapter of the American Red Cross has turned down an offer from Seminole County to lease the former county motor vehicle inspection station on 25th Street in Sanford for $1 a year.

The Seminole County Commission made the offer after Gene Keltner, executive director of the Central Florida chapter, indicated an interest in using the facility as a distribution point and warehouse for surplus food.

However, Keltner told the commission in a letter this week he appreciated their consideration but the state and federal offices of the Red Cross, from whom a grant has been approved to operate the program, did not approve the county-owned facility because it is not "ample to meet their criteria."

Keltner said the program will continue to use Crooms High School in Sanford as a distribution point.

The Central Florida Chapter has an agreement with the school board to use the Crooms site until December.

The 25th Street station has not been used since the Legislature repealed the law calling for annual inspection of motor vehicles in 1981.

An Effect, Not Cause

Alzheimer's Disease Linked To Lack Of Brain Chemical

BOSTON (UPI) — Memory-eroding Alzheimer's disease is strongly linked to levels of a brain chemical that transfers signals from one cell to the next, British researchers reported Thursday.

Researchers at London's Institute of Neurology who studied small samples of brain tissue from 17 patients with the disease found that the lower the levels of acetylcholine in the samples, the worse the symptoms of the disease were.

Researchers have found similar results in autopsies of patients with the disease, but this was the first study conducted on living patients.

Lower-than-normal levels of the neurotransmitter acetylcholine are not thought to cause the disease, but are believed to be an effect. The disease is believed caused by the demise of brain cells that release acetylcholine and other neurotransmitters.

The finding was reported in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Although the neurotransmitter acetylcholine is the chemical system most profoundly affected by the disease, it is not the only chemical involved. For this reason, researchers question whether attempts to inject acetylcholine into the brain will result in significant improvements in Alzheimer's patients.

"The question is, why are these cells dying off?" said Neil R. Sims, a biochemist who worked on the project. "We will need to know this if we are going to be able to do anything therapeutic or be able to block the progress of the disease."

Alzheimer's disease is the fourth most common cause of death among the elderly, affecting perhaps as many as 3 million Americans. About half of all elderly Americans with dementia are believed to have Alzheimer's disease.

Its effects are even more profound than its large numbers of victims suggest. The failing mental capacity it causes greatly stresses families, experts say.

In its initial stages, even close families often become alienated because they are forced to face problems they have not previously encountered. In later stages, Alzheimer's victims require expensive nursing care that can put a severe economic burden on the family.

Acetylcholine was one of the first neurotransmitters discovered. One of its functions is to transfer messages from nerve cells to muscle cells in the rest of the body.

In the brain, acetylcholine is only used as a neurotransmitter in a small number of brain cells. But those cells seem to be important in the storage and collection of events in memory.

Sacks Slips Chevy Past Elliott To Win Firecracker

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — When Cale Yarborough left the Firecracker 400 after 24 laps with transmission troubles, he said that Bill Elliott had no competitors left in the race and should have no trouble winning.

The Fords driven by Yarborough and Elliott had been posting the fastest speeds all week at Daytona. But at least one driver on the track thought someone driving a Chevy could catch Elliott.

And in the end that driver, Greg Sacks, 33, from Long Island, New York, did beat Elliott to the checkered flag.

Sacks picked up $45,350 for the win and had an average speed of 158.730 mph in winning his first NASCAR event. Sacks' speed was far off the race record of 173.473 set by Bobby Allison in 1980, but the slow speed was a result of the six yellow flags that popped up in the first 79 laps, causing 26 of the first 82 laps to be run under the caution.

After the sixth caution was lifted, there were no more yellow flags through the remainder of the 160-lap race.

Sacks, who passed Elliott on the 152nd lap and led the remaining eight laps to clinch the win, said he thought the research and development car he was driving for Bill Gardner had a good chance of winning.

"We actually knew that if we could stay out of trouble and be there in the last lap, we could make a run of it," he said. "We thought we had a strong car from the first day we got down here."

Going into lap 153, Elliott pulled in for a gas pit stop and then couldn't catch up to Sacks, who won by a 23.9-second margin.

"We had a fuel pick-up problem," Elliott said. "We could only get 17.175, 18 gallons into the car instead of the full 22," he said.

But Elliott, the leader in the standings, did not want to detract from Sacks' performance.

"Greg ran a good race. He deserved to win. He came on real strong," Elliott said. "It just goes to show you how competitive it is right now. If you make a little mistake or have a little something go wrong with your car, that's all there is between winning and losing."

Darrell Waltrip came in third, followed by Ron Bouchard, Kyle Petty, Buddy Baker and Ricky Rudd.

"I am absolutely thrilled to finish third at Daytona twice in the same year," said Waltrip, who finished third at the Daytona 500 in February. "I think we're ready to make our move and go for the championship." Waltrip's 2205 points trails only Elliott, who has 2306. In the race for the Winston Cup, Richard Petty and Tim Richmond both escaped injury when their cars hit the wall heading to turn one after Richmond's car blew a tire in lap 65.

"Tim blew a tire and I overreacted," said Petty, winless since last year's Firecracker. "When I recovered, I was into the wall."

Connie Saylor and Morgan Shepherd, who had to leave the race when their cars bumped on the sixth lap, had different views of what happened.

"I was passing Richmond and Saylor on the inside," Shepherd said. "Next thing I knew, my car was heading right into the wall. I thought I had blown my right front tire, but actually Connie had hit my right rear and pushed me into the wall.

"I came into the pits looking for him, but I never could get to him," Shepherd said.

"I don't know what he (Shepherd) said, but when we look at the film, I think we'll see I was correct," Saylor said.

Rusty Wallace, the first driver out of the race, said: "That's about the 17th engine we've blown this year. That's the fifth straight race we've blown with engine-related problems."

Lucas: Opponent Doesn't Matter

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

PORT ORANGE — It's a good thing Sanford manager Jim Lucas doesn't care who he plays in the Florida Junior Major League District 4 championship game Saturday morning.

No one knows who will play in the semifinals tonight at Ray Gant Jr. Field anyway. Not the Sanford Recreation Department. Not the Port Orange Recreation Department. Not the New Smyrna Beach Recreation Department. Not the Daytona Beach News-Journal.

This much is known, however. It will be New Smyrna Beach, Ormond Beach or Holly Hill. Those three teams were left in the losers' bracket Wednesday night. Two of them will play tonight to determine who Sanford will meet in Saturday's 10 a.m. final. The survivor will need to beat Sanford twice for a trip to the state tournament.

Baseball

Lucas, meanwhile, doesn't really care who emerges because he feels his team has already beaten the best Volusia County has to offer. "I thought Port Orange was the best team besides us," said Lucas. "I was surprised when they got eliminated Tuesday night."

The Juniors knocked off Port Orange, 6-2, Monday and came back to thump New Smyrna Beach, 9-4, Wednesday. Lucas said he will go with ace right-hander Willie "Sugar Tex" McCloud to wrap up the title. McCloud falters, Lucas can call on Sammy Edwards, Dwight Brinson or Ronald Cox.

The Juniors, though, are looking to wrap it up in the morning, though. "This is the first time I've ever been on a good all-star team," said first baseman Bernard Mitchell. "I want to go to state (at Key West). I like our chances."

Sanford utilized its blazing speed to steal eight bases Monday as Cox shut down Port Orange on four hits with 13 strikeouts. Dwight Brinson rapped three hits and stole two bases. Cox, Edwards and Mitchell also swiped a pair.

The Juniors didn't need their wheels Wednesday as they banged out nine hits en route to an easy win. McCloud unwound his big club for a pair of doubles and three ribbies. Cox hammered a homer and Mitchell supplied a key two-run triple. Edwards added a double while Brinson singled and stole two more bases.

Lucas said the tournament has worked out as planned concerning his pitching rotation. "We're good with 'Sugar Tex' Saturday," said Lucas. "He needs a good workout before we go down south."

Americans Like Odds; Nationals Need A Win

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Writer

The Sanford Little American League all-stars don't need Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder to tell them what the odds are on them winning the Florida Little Major League Sub-District 3 Tournament.

The Americans know they are in good shape.

Sanford American will await the winner of tonight's loser's bracket final between Sanford National and host Tavares. Tonight's victor will take on the Americans Saturday morning at 10 with a second game, if necessary, Saturday night at 7.

If the Americans win one more, they go on to the District 4 Tournament and a shot at the state tournament. This year's state tournament is being held in Leesburg.

Meanwhile, the Nationals have to win three straight for a berth in the district tournament. Manager Al "Skip" Mitchell thinks it can be done after watching his team sweep its first two games before losing to the Americans, 4-0, Wednesday.

"We can come back," Mitchell said. "We could have won that game (Wednesday) if that play at the plate went our way. That had a lot to do with what happened."

Mitchell was referring to the top of the fourth inning when Alonzo Brundidge tapped one in front of the plate. Pitcher Al Perkins threw wildly and the ball rolled to fence in the right field corner. While right fielder Floyd Henderson was retrieving the ball, Brundidge was waved around third base. Henderson threw to cutoff man Erskine Howard who gunned a perfect relay to Lorenzo "Lo" Polk to get Brundidge at the plate.

But the Nationals can't look back now. And they can't look ahead either.

A rematch between the two Sanford teams is a good bet, but the Nationals first have to get by Tavares tonight. Sanford will most likely go with either Scott Sestak or David Dunn on the mound but Mitchell said he has many pitchers from which to choose.

Tavares used its number one pitcher, Darrell Davis, against

Baseball

Orlando and will probably go with Tony Marellia tonight.

Sanford American will go with Eric Washington on the mound Saturday. Washington tossed a two-hitter at Tavares, allowing no earned runs.

"He's had a tendency to give up a lot of walks," Sanford American coach Duane Lalollette said of Washington.

He walked six on Monday but they didn't hurt him. He pitched a good ballgame."

The Americans players are looking forward to a rematch against the Nationals.

"We've wanted to play them all along," shortstop James Jackson said. "They were talking a lot so we wanted to show them."

Polk, the biggest player on the two teams, put it more candidly. "They (Nationals) just never shut up."

Will Adherence To Boundaries Shackle Altamonte Success?

Little League Baseball, often imitated but never duplicated when it comes to rules or controversies, opens its District 14 Division 2 District All-Star Tournament tonight in Deltona.

Hopefully, this year, all the excitement will be between the white lines and not in closed-door sessions between District 14 administrator Don Crawford and Altamonte Little League officials.

A Junior League between Altamonte and Deltona opens the tournament opens the card. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. On the surface, the game appears to be a mismatch. Altamonte, boasting seven players from his World Series runnerup National League 12-year-old team and seven more from last year's American League stars, should have too much firepower for Deltona.

The Juniors' ultimate goal is Taylor, Mich., the site of the 13-year-old World Series. The Majors' dream, of course, is legendary Williamsport, Pa. The Seniors' challenge is Gary, Ind.

The Altamonte league has been to all three destinations in the past two years. The Seniors won it all at Gary last year while the Majors were finishing second at Williamsport. The Juniors finished second at Taylor two years ago.

Although Altamonte has been "there" three times in the past two years, this year presents a different scenario. In years past, there has not been stringent adherence to league boundaries. It was not uncommon for youngsters in Oviedo, Maitland and Apopka West Seminole territories to play for Altamonte.

Altamonte, it should be pointed out, was not at fault here. District 14 did not enforce the zone jumping. After the two-pronged success of last year, though, officials from Oviedo, Maitland and Apopka decided it was time to stop Altamonte from dipping into their talent and the youngsters were made to go where they belonged.

Thus, Jimmy Muschelwhite, the top pitcher from the Majors' USA champions will play for Apopka West

Sam Cook
HERALD SPORTS EDITOR

Seminole this year. He was the only all-star from a "grey or fringe" area for the Nationals.

The Altamonte Seniors suffered a double blow. They lost the Martinez brothers — Ernest and Eric — who would have been 15-year-olds this year. They live in the Maitland district but opted for American Legion with Trinity Prep.

Since the Martinez brothers were not allowed to play in the Altamonte district, Anthony Laszalc, who was also on that 13-year-old runnerup, decided not to play either, according to his father, Tony Laszalc. Anthony plays Legion, too, but for Lake Mary.

The big downfall, however, came later when over 20 of Altamonte's best Seniors chose to play Legion and forfeited this year's all-star eligibility. The move turned out to be a poor one for some, who gained little playing time with the Legion.

But enough of rules, controversies and ill-advised decisions. It's time to play ball and start the second season. Altamonte should have a legitimate threat for a return trip with its Juniors. Altamonte's Seniors and Oviedo's Juniors will have a tough time. The Majors — who knows? American League manager Mike Morro and National League skipper Duke Pleicones are both optimistic.

But Oviedo Major League manager Wayne Jacobs and coach Louie Tulp also have a promising club. All three are legitimate contenders. They previewed what classic might develop in the all-star competition with several exciting matchups in the Top Team Tournament. Morro's Tigers eventually won that competition. The Oviedo Juniors play with the Senior League all year so this is just a learning process for them. They have only a dozen or so 13-year-olds in the league. If Altamonte whips Deltona tonight, Oviedo will get a first-hand look at the best Saturday at 7:30 at Oviedo.

In the Senior Division, manager David Austin's Oviedo boys have a very solid club. It's kind of a shame that Altamonte is not fielding its best team because these two towns have had some real donnybrooks in past years.

There were several occasions when Oviedo was second-best to Altamonte and maybe no one else. But Oviedo will never have an opportunity to beat Altamonte's best due to the defections. It will have to be satisfied to set Gary as its ultimate goal.

The double-elimination tournament trail reads like this: It opens with division 2 play, then advances to district, section, state, southern region and World Series.
 Play ball...between the lines.

Henderson Keeps M's Afloat, 7-1

United Press International
After getting off to the fastest start in club history, the Seattle Mariners faded into the depths of the ocean, threatening never to be heard from again. All of a sudden, the Mariners are again visible, surfacing above sea level.

Dave Henderson ripped a three-run homer and drove in four runs Thursday night to guide Seattle to its 11th victory in the last 13 games, a 7-1 decision over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Mariners, 39-38, pushed themselves over the 500 mark for the first time since April 22 and remained within five games of first-place California in the AL West.

Seattle, which opened the season 6-0 only to find itself in sixth place by the end of April, is now within striking distance of the leaders. One of the keys to the Mariners' surge has been the pitching of Mike Moore.

Moore, who won his third start since coming off the disabled list June 21, stymied the Brewers on four hits. He held Milwaukee hitless until Ben Oglivie lined a single to left with two outs in the fifth.

Yankees 3, Twins 2

At New York, Ron Guidry tossed a six-hitter for his ninth straight victory, leading the Yankees, 10-3, equalled his season high with eight strikeouts and is tied with Detroit's Dan Petry for the AL lead in victories. John Butcher, 5-8, took the loss.

White Sox 5, Indians 0

At Cleveland, Britt Burns fired a four-hitter and Carlton Fisk's RBI single drove in the go-ahead run to lift Chicago. Burns was the winner to improve to 8-6. Bert Blyleven, 7-8, pitched his 11th complete game in defeat.

Rangers 4, Tigers 1

At Arlington, Texas, Pete O'Brien's two-run single highlighted a four-run first inning that backed the six-hit pitching of Burt Hooton, lifting the Rangers. The victory snapped an eight-game losing streak to Detroit dating to July 8 of last year. Hooton, 4-2, fanned a season-high seven in recording his 150th career victory.

Orioles 5, Royals 3

At Kansas City, Mo., Floyd Rayford and Eddie Murray knocked in two runs apiece to carry the Orioles. Baltimore reached starter Bud Black, 5-9, for three runs in the third. Rick Dempsey led off with a double and took third on a single by Rich Dauer. Rayford doubled home two runs and later scored on Murray's single.

Angels 5, Red Sox 4

At Anaheim, Calif., reserve catcher Jerry Narron delivered a three-run homer with one out in the seventh inning to lift the AL West-leading Angels before 62,951, the largest crowd to view a major-league game this year. Pat Clements, 5-0, was the winner and Donnie Moore recorded his 16th save.

A's 3, Blue Jays 2

At Oakland, Calif., Dave Collins singled home the tie-breaking run in the bottom of the ninth to lead the A's. Jay Howell, who relieved in the ninth inning, boosted his record to 8-4 while Bill Caudill, 4-4, suffered the loss.

Mets Outlast Braves In 19 Innings

United Press International

Atlanta and New York picked the country's birthday to set the national pastime back 100 years. In a game that took 19 innings to play, consumed 6 hours and 10 minutes, and included two rain delays Thursday night, the New York Mets downed the Atlanta Braves 16-13.

Ray Knight doubled home Gary Carter with the go-ahead run, triggering a five-run 19th. New York's Keith Hernandez hit for the cycle. New York outfielder Darryl Strawberry and manager Davey Johnson were ejected for arguing with home plate umpire Terry Tata in the 17th inning.

Tom Gorman, who allowed two game-tying home runs in extra innings, pitched six innings to improve to 4-3. Ron Darling, normally a starter, went the 19th inning and allowed a two-run, bases-loaded single by Terry Harper.

N.L. Baseball

Carter led off the 19th with a single off reliever Rick Camp, 2-4, who had tied the score 11-11 in the 18th with a two-out homer. John Christensen sacrificed and pinch-hitter Rusty Staub was walked intentionally. Knight followed with his RBI double and Howard Johnson was intentionally walked.

Danny Heep then lifted a two-run single to right. Johnson scored on an error by right fielder Claudell Washington, Heep taking second. One out later, Wally Backman singled home Heep.

Hernandez doubled in the first off Rick Mahler, hit a two-run triple in the fourth off Jeff Dedmon, socked a solo homer in the eighth off Steve Shields, and completed his cycle with a single in the 12th off Terry Forster.

A.L. Baseball

At Chicago, Bob Brenly pounded a two-run homer and Jose Uribe's two-run single snapped a 3-3 tie in the seventh to help San Francisco win despite hitting into five double plays, a league-high this season. Winner Scott Garretts, 3-3, pitched 2 1/3 innings. Greg Minton notched his second save.

At Pittsburgh, Garry Templeton went 3-for-3 and drove in four runs and Eric Show scattered seven hits to pace the Padres. Show, 7-5, struck out five for his second complete game. Rick Rhoden, 5-8, was the loser.

At Philadelphia, Juan Samuel and Von Hayes hit first-inning home runs and Ozzie Virgil clubbed a sixth-inning blast to back the three-hit pitching of Kevin Gross and lead the Phillies. Gross improved to 7-7 while Mario Soto, 8-8, dropped his fifth straight decision.

Howe Seeks To Leave Fast Life, Purple Hair

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Steve Howe, whose six-year career as a Los Angeles Dodger crumbled under the pressure of fighting cocaine addiction and the spotlight of professional baseball in a big city, says he's looking forward to a quieter life.

"I just couldn't take it anymore," the 27-year-old reliever told the Los Angeles Herald from his home north of the city. "I had had enough. The city... the fast life... the media hype."

Howe, the 1980 National League Rookie of the Year, has made it clear he wants to continue in baseball, but with a team located in a smaller city.

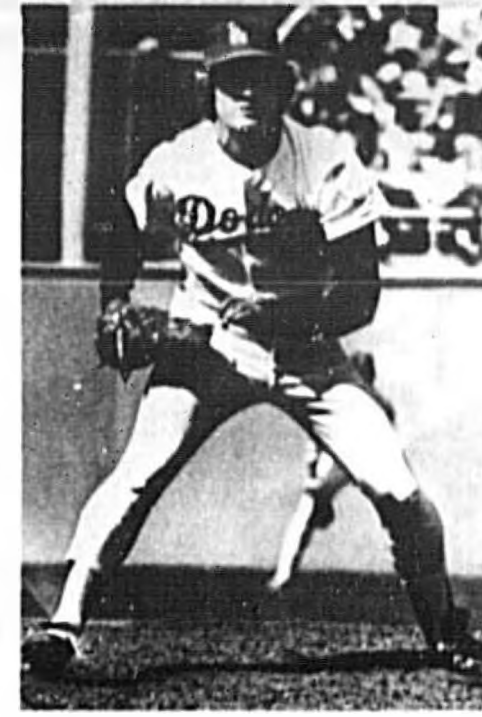

"I'd like to raise my daughter where the teenagers don't walk around with pink, yellow or purple hair," Howe told the Herald. "And someplace where there are trees that aren't buried in 20 feet of cement."

After his mandatory six-day waiver period expires, Howe will become a free agent and be able to sign with any team that seeks his talent.

In effect, the Dodgers grew steadily impatient with the 27-year-old southpaw and fired him, though the organization offered to continue providing him medical treatment or assistance, and are obligated to pay the remainder of Howe's $325,000 salary for the 1985 season.

Although the pitcher missed the entire 1984 season for repeated drug violations, Howe leaves the Dodgers with a lifetime record of 24-25, a 2.35 earned run average and 59 saves — fifth on the all-time Dodgers list.

This year, he has struggled, posting a 1-1 record and a disappointing 4.91 ERA and three saves and in the last few weeks he showed up three hours late for one game and missed another.

Steve Howe follows through. Howe said he is fed up with the Los Angeles lifestyle and wishes to play elsewhere. The Dodgers released him Wednesday.

O-Twins Win, 3-2

Bobby Ralston's ground-rule double in the top of the eighth inning snapped a 2-2 tie and pushed the Orlando Twins past Knoxville, 3-2, in Southern League baseball Thursday night at Knoxville, Tenn.

Orlando's win enabled it to keep a one-half game lead in the second half of the East Division standings with a 7-4 record. Tonight, Orlando travels to Charlotte for a 7:30 game.

Jeff Straker went the distance to earn his seventh win in 11 decisions for the O-Twins. He allowed eight hits, struck out seven and walked just one. Jeff Trout doubled home a first-inning run for the Twins who scored twice in the opening frame.

In other minor league baseball, the Osceola Astros dropped an 11-6 decision to Lakeland at Joker-Marchant Stadium in Lakeland. Osceola, 50-36, holds a 2 1/2 game lead in the Central Division.

The Astros play at Lakeland again tonight at 7:30. Bob Parker, who leads Osceola with a .285 batting average, singled in two at bats.

Lakeland scored five second-inning runs and added three more in the seventh to put the game out of reach.

Shark Rediscovered His Bite

Norman Fires 67 For 1st-Round Tie At Canadian Open

OAKVILLE, Ontario (UPI) — "The Great White Shark" may have his bite back.

Greg Norman, a blond Australian who emerged as a fresh, flashy new face on the tour last year, shot a 5-under 67 Thursday to share the first round lead in the $650,000 Canadian Open with unknown Jim Gallagher Jr.

Lurking a shot back of Norman, who earned the "Great White Shark" nickname with his blond hair and two 1984 tournaments victories that included the Canadian Open, was revitalized Johnny Miller.

Miller has his game smoothed out like his "alpha waves" and is trying to relax his way to his first tournament victory since 1983 after a 35-33-68.

"I was thinking about retiring — but it looks like golf will have to put up with me a while longer," said Miller, who has won $102,237 this year and had four top-10 finishes.

"I can't wait to hit the ball," he said. "When you're playing bad, you never want it to be your turn."

Golf

the opening round of the $300,000 LPGA Hall of Fame tournament at the Sweetwater Country Club.

"It wasn't even fun for the ducks today," said Pat Bradley, one of three golfers two shots behind Amy Alcott, who fired a 3-under par 69 Thursday to take the opening round lead.

Palms Add Tropical Touch To Surroundings

When northerners think of Florida, most of them visualize the surf rolling in on sandy beaches, with palms waving in the background. But, palm trees are not limited to the coastal areas. Of the world's approximately 4,000 palm tree varieties, about 500 native and imported types are found in the "sunshine state." And, as you know, many of these are adapted to inland locations as well as seashores.

One of the first palms that comes to mind is our official state tree, the Sabal or Cabbage palm. This hardy, long-lived palm is found in all parts of our state, with the exception of the extreme western portion. It's an upright, single-trunked palm (yes, there is an occasional double-trunk — a freak), with fan-shaped leaves or fronds. You can easily recognize this tree by the crisscross design along its trunk. These crisscrosses are called "boots." They are what is left after decayed fronds fall off the palm — a process that continues until very old age.

Other common single-trunked varieties include the Washington, Queen, Canary Island Date and Pigmy Date palms. The Washington is very tall, with a slender trunk as it gets older, and fan-shaped leaves. It's often planted as a street tree in residential neighborhoods. The Queen palm is also a tall growing variety with a smooth trunk and feathery leaves. It is sometimes known as Cocos plumosa.

The Canary Island Date palm, which also has feathery leaves, somewhat resembles a giant pineapple. It's also used as a street tree. The Pigmy, a date variety, also, is a dwarf species with beautiful dark green foliage.

Besides these popular single-trunk palms, there are quite a few that grow in clusters, with several stems or trunks. Probably the most common of the cluster types is the Areca palm. It's a low-growing variety, with smooth, slim, yellow-ringed stems and feathery foliage. It can be grown indoors or out in protected, somewhat shaded spots.

The Paurotis is another multi-stem palm, usually found in swamps and undrained soils of south Florida. It will do fine in central Florida, except in very cold areas. This palm has fan-shaped leaves and may grow to a height of 40 feet.

Another cluster type is the Rhaps palm or Lady palm. It's a low growing, fan-leaved variety, having many reed-like stems. This variety likes semi-shaded locations, and can be grown in tubs as specimens.

There are many others, both native and imported, that can be used as ornamentals in our area. From this wide selection, you're sure to find some that are well-suited to your landscape needs. They'll add that tropical touch to your surroundings.

Most garden centers and retail nurseries have collections of palms available, or if you're ambitious, you can try to grow your own from seed.

The seeds of most Florida palms ripen in late July and early August. That's when they're ready for harvesting and germination. The trick to growing palms from seed is to use only really fresh seed selected from handsome, healthy trees. Palm seeds are relatively short-lived — about two to three weeks.

When gathering seeds, do not pick up those that have fallen to the ground. By the time the seeds drop, you're usually too late. You can recognize old palm seeds by their color. They're darker than fresh ones. It isn't difficult to tell fresh seeds from old ones.

Don't store collected seeds for any length of time as they lose their viability with time. And, don't expose the seed to hot, dry conditions. Before the seeds are planted, the fleshy pulp must be removed. Besides aiding germination, it lessens the chance of fungus infections. Before planting, carefully examine the seeds for insects. Weevils can attack many palm species, even before the seed matures.

Germinate the seeds in flats or boxes containing equal parts peat, sand, and perlite or vermiculite. Some species germinate well in plastic bags filled with sphagnum moss. If you try this, be sure to remove the seedlings as soon as possible after germination. Carefully remove them with a tweezer, and put them in containers of growing media.

Palm seedlings grow rapidly downward and can be damaged if they strike the bottom of a shallow container. So, you should transplant the seedlings from germinating flats as soon as possible. With care, palms can be transplanted at almost any time. With a little patience, you can grow your own palms from seed. It's an interesting and rewarding project.

Happy gardening!

Key Opens Door To Trouble

DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents live next door. We gave them a key to our house in case of emergencies. This was the worst mistake we ever made. Before they had the key we had a good relationship, but no more.

His father is a very early riser, so he lets himself into our home while we are still in bed. He reads our mail and invades our privacy. His mother also lets herself in and looks around. Last Sunday morning I walked into our kitchen stark naked and my father-in-law was standing there! We never know when they are going to surprise us. When we have company, they walk in as though they lived here.

We hate to hurt their feelings, so we haven't said anything to them, but we will not feel comfortable until we get our key back.

Have you any suggestions?
NEEDS PRIVACY

DEAR NEEDS: Yes. With as much diplomacy as can be mustered, your husband must tell his parents that their surprise visits are disturbing and often inconvenient, so would they please return the house key. It won't be easy, but it's the only way you can regain your privacy.

DEAR ABBY: A good friend came to visit me with her two children, both under 3 years of age. By the time they left, my stereo was damaged, my carpet stained, an antique clock broken — and that was just in the living room. The rest of the house looked like a tornado went through it. All this occurred while my friend sat and talked, apparently oblivious to the whole thing.

I was afraid if I asked her to control her kids or leave, our friendship would be over because she is very sensitive about her kids.

Please don't think I'm an old fuddy-duddy who hates kids. I'm not. I love kids, and hope to have my own someday. However, my husband and I have worked hard to furnish our home and don't appreciate it being destroyed by kids like hers. I'm beginning to wonder if the friendship is worth it.

Surely I'm not the only one with this problem. A printed solution might help.

READY TO SCREAM

DEAR READY: Screaming will not restore your clock, repair your stereo and clean your carpet. Kids usually tear around like tornadoes because they are bored. A few toys and some coloring books in full view of you and their mother might be helpful. And should the child get out of line, a firm reprimand would not be out of order.

DEAR ABBY: I have one child who is 8 years old. We live next door to a family with six kids. (I'll call them the Joneses.) My daughter plays with the Jones girl, who is also 8. Whenever I give the kids a treat and one of the other Jones kids sees it, the news spreads like wildfire, then Mrs. Jones sends one of her kids over here to get treats for the rest of her kids who are in the house watching TV or whatever. They say, "Our mom says one of us can't have anything unless we all have it, everything has to be fair and equal!"

Abby, I came from a family of nine kids, and when a playmate's parent gave one of us a treat, we said "Thank you" and felt grateful, we'd never dream of asking for eight more of the kids at home!

I am raising my daughter to know that she can't have everything her playmates have — that life is not always "fair and equal," but Mrs. Jones is putting me in a terrible position.

So how do I handle this?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Tell Mrs. Jones that you admire her for treating all her children equally, but a neighbor who gives one child a special treat should not be expected to provide all the brothers and sister with identical treats. And if Mrs. Jones doesn't understand, don't give her child treats where she will be seen and envied.

Depression May Cause Post-Surgery Weight Loss

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have not been able to eat much since 1982, shortly after I had an aneurysm operation. I have gone from 180 pounds down to 127. Food tastes right, but I have to force everything down.

DEAR READER — I don't know why you lost so much weight in three years; it's worrisome. Some weight loss is natural after surgery, but you seem to suffer from a loss of appetite that has more serious implications. If I were you, I'd seek out a good internist, a doctor who specializes in difficult diagnoses. Your eating problem may be due to a condition called masked depression, but I certainly would want to make absolutely certain that your loss of appetite — and weight — is not caused by a physical abnormality.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My best friend's father was hospitalized for cirrhosis. I know that alcoholism usually causes this, but he drank only moderately, when he was out with friends one night a week. He never drank secretly or at home. Could this still cause cirrhosis?

DEAR READER — People respond in different degrees to the effects of alcohol. We have all heard of old curmudgeons who drink a fifth a day and live full and long lives. They are definitely the exception; alcohol is highly toxic to almost every organ in the body and some drinkers develop serious liver problems after having drunk only sporadically for a few years.

This is not to suggest that your friend's father has alcohol cirrhosis. There are many causes of liver scarring, or cirrhosis, including malnutrition, congenital malformations, hereditary diseases of metal metabolism, and congestive heart failure. A particularly virulent form of cirrhosis can complicate viral hepatitis. There, also, is a rare form of cirrhosis for which no cause has been found.

Statistically, alcohol cirrhosis is the most common type in the United States. However, even nondrinkers can die from cirrhosis if the disease follows hepatitis.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What does low blood pressure mean?

DEAR READER — I'm not at all sure there is such a thing as blood pressure that's too low in healthy people, regardless of age. I agree with you that low blood pressure is usually a sign of normalcy. Doctors like to quip that no one dies of low blood pressure. Yet, there are individuals who have blood pressure so low that they faint or become dizzy when standing up. This problem, when it causes symptoms, is usually secondary

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
 South got to his shaky slam by himself. North's close-out bid of four hearts showed good trump support, initial points, no more than an outside ace, and probable shortness in a side suit.
 South blasted past game with his cue-bid of five clubs and North had nothing to lose by showing the diamond ace. That cue-bid was enough for South, who immediately bid the slam, but now he had to find 12 tricks.
 Dummy's diamonds look useful, but on closer inspection probably cannot be established. Not only is there a shortage of entries to dummy, but there's the threat of an overruff at trick two or three. With Q-J-10-8 of trumps missing, declarer can't allow an uppercut without losing an eventual trump trick.
 The opening lead of the diamond king was covered by dummy's ace, declarer noting the fall of East's 10. With a diamond ruff threatening, declarer cashed the A-K of hearts to pull trump, played the club ace and ruffed a club in dummy.
 A spade was led, won by East's ace, and South won the spade return. He trumped a third club in dummy, returned to his hand with a diamond ruff and cashed the king of clubs. The established club 10 and the two remaining trumps brought the slam home.
 What are the odds of clubs splitting 4-3, hearts 2-2, and the spade ace being onside? Pretty poor (about seven to one against). As my father once said to an overbidder like today's South, "You shouldn't be proud of making that slam; you should be ashamed of bidding it."

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...
YOUR BIRTHDAY JULY 6, 1985
 Ways will be found in the year ahead to put your artistic, literary or musical talents to profitable uses. There is a market for your talents.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Projects that permit you to use your artistic and imaginative faculties will be the ones that prove to be the most rewarding today.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Pay heed to your commercial instincts today, even if your logic dictates otherwise. Your intuition may be more accurate.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you like very much may require tender treatment today. Don't use a practical approach; an emotional touch will be more appealing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It won't be necessary for anyone to peer over your shoulder today to see if you're doing a good job. You'll take pride in doing things well.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may be in love with love today, and there's nothing wrong with that. There's room in this abrasive world for a romantic.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although there will be several other interests vying for your attention today, it's best that you give family matters top priority.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your telephone could be a rather busy instrument today, either because you'll be trying to reach friends or there will be people hoping to get in touch with you.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Rifle through the advertisements today or check out your other buying sources. Your instincts for spotting a bargain are keener than usual.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Being able to function as a free and independent spirit today will be important to you. Avoid involvements that restrict your mobility.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your compassion and responsive instincts will be easily aroused today by people who require your help. To aid them, you'll not mind making sacrifices.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The friendly vibes you emanate today will be obvious to all you encounter. The world will see you as a friend and treat you like a pal.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A goal that appeared to be too difficult yesterday could turn out to be a snap today. Where obstacles existed, you should now find stepping stones.

Celebrating The Fourth

'I Don't Think Americans Realize How Much Freedom We Do Have'

United Press International

Americans across the nation celebrated the Fourth of July with traditional fanfare, including fireworks, parades and outdoor concerts, and a former TWA hostage urged his countrymen to count the blessings of freedom.

Some tragedies marred holiday festivities, including a man who died from a heart attack while running a race.

While President and Mrs. Reagan viewed fireworks Thursday from the Truman balcony of the White House, Vice President George Bush spoke out against terrorists at a July Fourth celebration in Bristol, N.H., saying the United States is "determined to defeat terrorism."

Victor Amburgy, 31, of San Francisco, a former hostage of Moslem gunmen in Lebanon said "I don't think Americans realize how much freedom we do have. You should really count your blessings."

Another ex-hostage, George

Lazansky, of Algonquin, Ill., spent his day living out a dream. A Chicago Cubs fan who had his Cubs cap stolen by his captors, Lazansky led the crowd in the Pledge of Allegiance at Wrigley Field, then threw out the first ball in a Cubs-Giants game.

Dave Huber, 24, of Issaquah, Wash., had his own idea of how to celebrate the holiday. He set a world record by completing his 250th jump from an airplane in 24 hours.

Tragedy struck John Cervantes, 42, of Moline, Ill., who was running a Fourth of July 5-kilometer race Thursday when he died after suffering an apparent heart attack, officials said.

And in Greeley, Colo., a team of horses pulling a covered wagon in a Fourth of July parade stampeded through a crowd of onlookers, injuring 10, including an elderly woman dragged for several feet.

An elderly couple sitting in lawn chairs along the parade route was hospitalized in serious condition. No one else was badly injured.

Participants from 50 states marched in a parade in Washington, D.C., and an estimated 1 million people crowded The Mall for a Beach Boys concert and a grand fireworks display at the Washington Monument.

Actress Debra Winger added some Hollywood glamour to the parade in the small town of Seward, Neb., when she and her companion, Gov. Bob Kerry, rode together in the city's Fourth of July parade.

New York City saw the annual fireworks show sponsored by Macy's department store and the start of a 100-mile triathlon.

The U.S.S. Constitution, the nation's oldest commissioned warship, made its annual turnaround in Boston Harbor, stopping by Castle Island for a 21-gun salute.

The ship turns each year on Independence Day so that both sides weather evenly.

Reagans Head For Camp David

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan watched from his balcony a glorious Fourth of July fireworks display illuminating the Washington Monument Thursday night then packed his bags for a long weekend at Camp David, Md.

Reagan planned to leave the White House at 10 a.m. today for three days at the mountain retreat where he and first lady Nancy Reagan were going to celebrate her 64th birthday Saturday.

With the Beirut hostage crisis — the reason he passed up a third straight Independence Day vacation in California — now in the back ground, Reagan was turning his attention to more mundane fiscal and tax problems and starting to prepare for the November summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

After dining with friends in the White House, the Reagans watched the fireworks from the best view in town — the Truman Balcony on the South Portico of the executive mansion.

Mass Ceremony Gives Citizenship To 501

SEATTLE (UPI) — Some 500 immigrants ranging in age from 17 months to 80 years became U.S. citizens in a mass ceremony intended to show "there's a lot more to the Fourth of July than eating hot dogs and shooting off fireworks."

The participants, representing 65 countries, became American citizens on Independence Day at the Seattle Center Flag Pavilion as the Stars and Stripes blew in the breeze alongside the flags of their homelands.

The ceremony for the 501 new citizens was organized by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service at the suggestion of the Seattle Ethnic Heritage Council.

"The reason we did this is because we want people to know that there's a lot more to the Fourth of July than eating hot dogs and shooting off fireworks," said JoAnne Rudo of the council.

A U.S. District judge administered the oath to the group en masse, which then heard patriotic speeches from Seattle political officials.

One of the new Americans, Sheila Taft, migrated from Scotland 16 years ago but tears came to her eyes this Fourth of July.

Taft could have claimed citizenship when she married, but needed time to think about it.

It was a very emotional decision for me," she said. "I had been prepared for what was going to happen today, taking the oath and getting my papers. But I found it very emotional once it started."

Fears started when the flag was going up.

The swearing in of the 501 was the largest citizenship ceremony in Washington state, outnumbering a similar Seattle event for 420 people on the nation's bicentennial celebration in 1976.

Miguel Mejia, 50, said he had wanted to be a citizen since 1979 but was rejected by the INS because he took a phony name after illegally entering the United States in 1956 from Mexico. Not even the fact that he was honorably discharged from the Army after nine years of service could persuade the INS to bend its rules.

After six years of appeals, Mejia won court approval for citizenship in the country where he has raised a family.

"It's very exciting," Mejia said after taking his oath of citizenship.

Conwell: Punish TWA Hijackers

HOUSTON (UPI) — Allyn Conwell, former spokesman for the Americans held hostage in Beirut, said he has "absolutely no sympathy" for hijackers who commandeered a TWA jet but the Reagan administration should re-evaluate its Middle East policies.

"I at no time requested the American administration to acquiesce to terrorist demands. I do indeed feel now, as I did then, that the number of people held in Israel by the Israelis are wrongly held," Conwell said.

Speaking at a news conference Thursday, four days after the hostages were released by Shiite Moslems, Conwell stopped short of openly criticizing the Reagan administration, but he said American support of puppet governments in the Middle East only leads to acts of terrorism and violence. He said a change in U.S. policy might be in order.

That's something I think we need to look at and acknowledge that what would appear initially to be to our best advantage may not be to the best advantage of the people who live there."

Conwell, 39, who has been criticized by other hostages as being sympathetic to his captors, called for punishment of the hijackers.

"I would demand we find these criminals and punish them accordingly," he said. "I have absolutely no sympathy and no understanding for the act of murder and have no compassion and have never voiced any compassion for or understanding of murders or the hijackers."

"At all times I have been hostile and will continue to be hostile toward the people who committed the hijacking and the murders," he said.

I wanted to get the record straight and express my appreciation to President Reagan and our administration and all of our relatives and friends for all they've done to effect our freedom. I think President Reagan showed an inordinant amount of courage, self-restraint — in ending this thing," Conwell said.

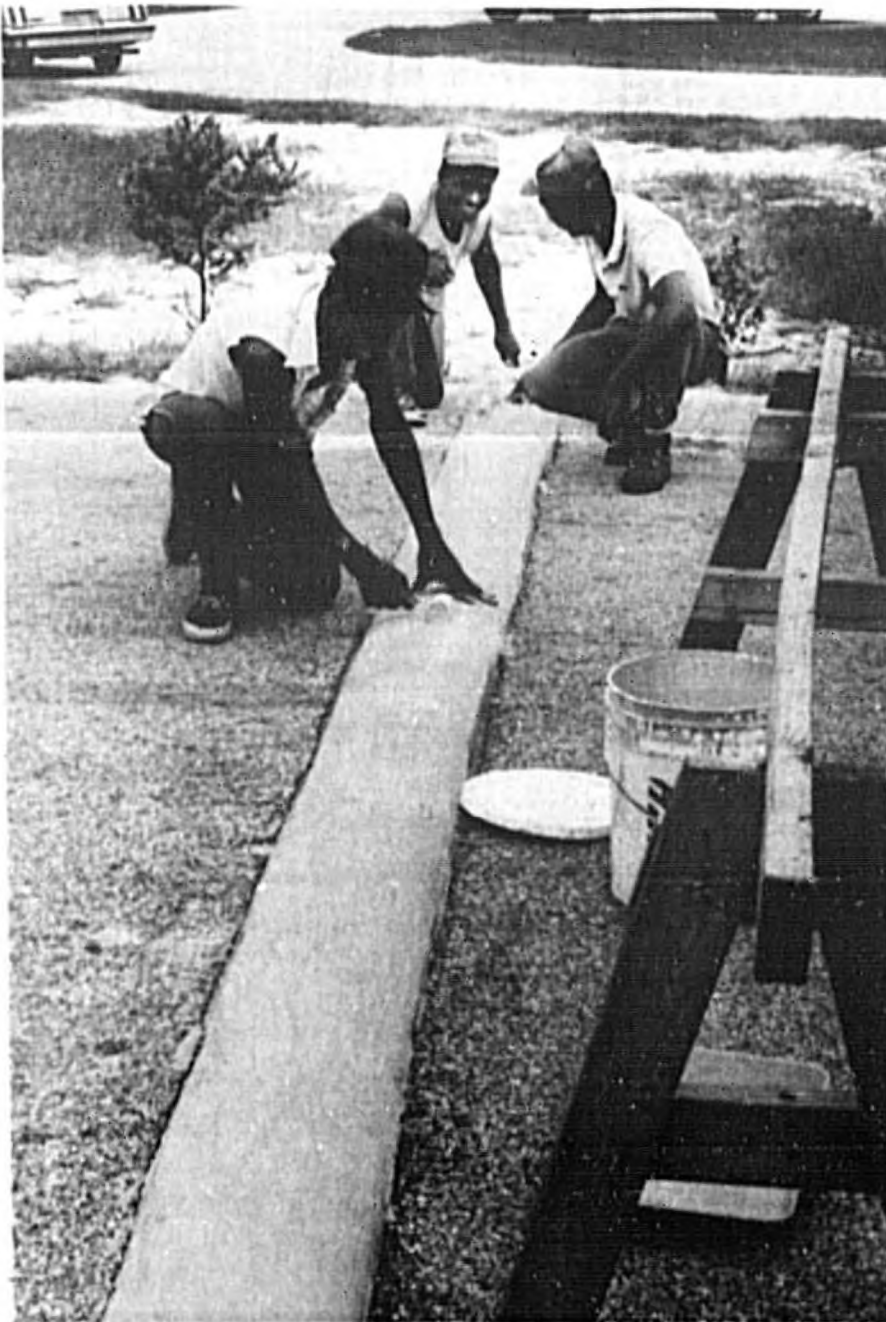

As for the seven other Americans who were kidnapped in separate incidents and are still being held in Lebanon, Conwell said he would do anything he could to gain their release.

Conwell was released Sunday along with 38 other Americans who had been held since June 14 when the jetliner was hijacked as it left Athens for Rome.

"I'm extremely proud of the behavior of every man I was with. I stand by that. I'm proud of those guys because they behaved. They acted with maturity. They survived. That was the name of the game, and we did it," Conwell said.

Conwell said he abandoned his job as spokesman after the hostages were released because he believed each could then speak for himself.

He added, "There were some strong indications someone in the (Reagan) administration did not want me to give remarks upon arrival at Edwards Air Force Base because of statements I had made."

Brighter Bumps

As part of their job with the Seminole school board's summer youth employment program, Willie Thomas, left, Ricky Jones and Luke Wooden paint speed bumps at Lake Mary High School. The young men work a four-day week, nine hours per day. Their jobs will end in August when school begins.

Aquino Didn't Die As Believed

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A doctor testified today that Benigno Aquino died instantly from an August 1983 gunshot at Manila airport, contradicting a prosecution theory that claims soldiers shot and killed the opposition leader.

"Aquino would have collapsed like a log" the way the bullet severed his brain stem, said Dr. Constantino Nunez, who also is a lawyer.

Several prosecution witnesses had claimed during the trial of Armed Forces Chief Fabian Ver, 24 soldiers and a civilian that they saw Aquino walk briefly after they heard a shot.

The prosecution contends Aquino — President Ferdinand Marcos' chief political rival — was shot by a soldier on the airplane steps following his Aug. 21, 1983 return from three years of self-exile in the United States.

Defense attorneys say the former senator was gunned down by Rolando Galman, a small-time criminal hired by communists who was killed moments after Aquino in a flurry of military gunfire.

The 26 men on trial face a variety of charges, including murder, in the deaths of Aquino and Galman.

To help back up the witnesses, prosecutors called medical experts who said that after the gunshot Aquino began suffering from a condition known as "decelerate rigidity," in which the body gradually loses its motor functions.

As a result, the prosecution claimed, Aquino was able to walk away from the stairs after the shot before slumping to the tarmac.

Nunez, however, said decelerate rigidity could have occurred only if vital parts of the medulla — the lowest part of the brain and the center of the body's nervous system — were intact.

But the official autopsy showed Aquino's brain stem was "macerated" — that is, broken apart — when he died on the airport tarmac, Nunez said.

"With a massive maceration of the brain stem there is no possibility of decelerate rigidity," Nunez said. "...

Legal Notice

NOTICE FOR HEARING BEFORE A PUBLIC NUISANCE

IN RE: Lot 04 and 07, MIDWAY, according to the plat thereof as recorded in Plat Book 1, Page 41, of the Public Records of Seminole County, Florida, presently owned by Robert Chambers and Dorothy Evans and all parties having or claiming to have any right, title or interest in the property described above.

WHEREAS

the Board of County Commissioners of Seminole County, Florida, did on the 28th day of May, 1985, find and declare a structure located in Seminole County, Florida, to be unsafe, un sanitary and a public nuisance; that the owner of the property according to the property records in the Seminole County Property Appraiser's Office on which the structure is located is Robert Chambers and Dorothy Evans of 1401 Valencia Court, Sanford, Florida 32711. That the public nuisance is a residential structure located on Water Street Sanford, Florida and further described as set forth above and that corrective action is required to abate the public nuisance; and the Board of County Commissioners found that the following conditions constituted a public nuisance: (1) The building has been severely damaged by the elements of nature due to abandonment. (2) Foundation and exterior walls, steps, floor framing and floor joists, roof rafters and sheathing ceiling joist, exterior and interior doors, roofing materials, roof flashing, window glass, window screens and window shades are damaged beyond reasonable repair. (3) Electrical service, electrical panels, electrical receptacles, electrical lights and switches are damaged to the extent that they are a hazard. (4) Plumbing fixtures, plumbing drain system, hot water heater, gas distribution system and hot water heater are damaged beyond reasonable repair or nonexistent. (5) There is no evidence of a septic tank or drainfield. (6) There is garbage and rubbish in and about the building. (7) This condition constitutes a potential fire hazard and the following corrective action necessary to abate the public nuisance is to demolish and remove the building, garbage and rubbish from the property.

WHEREAS

NOW THEREFORE

notice is hereby given to the said Robert Chambers and Dorothy Evans and all parties having or claiming to have any right, title, or interest in the property described above to appear before the Board of County Commissioners of Seminole County, Florida, at 10:00 a.m. at its regular meeting on the 13th day of August, 1985, at the Seminole County Services Building, Room 130, 1101 East First Street, Sanford, Florida, to show cause if any why such structure should not be declared a public nuisance and the corrective action of abatement specified in the Notice of Public Nuisance should not be paid for by Robert Chambers and Dorothy Evans, their heirs or assigns, or cause, if any, why said cost should not be assessed against the property.

WITNESS

my hand and seal this 24th day of June, 1985. DAVID BERRIEN, Clerk of the Board of County Commissioners.

IN BRIEF

Drug And Alcohol Tests Sought For Metrorail Drivers

MIAMI (UPI) — Dade County's transit chief wants to conduct unannounced drug and alcohol tests on Metrorail drivers as the result of a test on a driver involved in the $1.6 million train collision June 26.

Tests made 16 hours after the crash that injured 13 people disclosed that Joseph McRae, the driver of a Metrorail train that rammed into another, had traces of cocaine, marijuana and Valium in his system.

It was not known whether McRae, 44, was under the influence of drugs at the time of the accident. The blood and urine samples can turn up traces of drugs taken weeks before.

In a sworn statement, McRae denied being under the influence of drugs during the accident and said he had not taken any drugs between the time of the crash and the time the samples were drawn.

Upon learning of the test results, county transportation chief Joseph Fletcher asked County Manager Merritt Suterheim to authorize random drug and alcohol screenings for all drivers on the $1 billion system.

Blaze Destroys Condo, 9 Injured

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Fire officials believe electrical wiring caused a pre-dawn fire that destroyed a 38-unit condominium in suburban Wilton Manors and sent nine people to hospitals Thursday.

The fire spread so quickly that most of the residents, many of them elderly, lost everything but the clothes they wore.

Fire officials speculated the 4 a.m. blaze may have started in a first floor room that housed the Manor Grove Village Phase II condominium's electric meters. The blaze was not brought under control until 7 a.m.

'Mercy Killer' Who Shot Daughter In Her Crib Had Drug Problems

MIAMI (UPI) — Charles Griffith had drug abuse problems and his estranged wife and a nurse sought to keep him away from his comatose daughter six months before Griffith shot and killed the 3-year-old child in her hospital crib, court documents show.

In petitioning for divorce, Rebecca Griffith, 24, said she feared her daughter, Joy, was in danger and that "harm would befall her" unless Charles Griffith was prevented from visiting her at Miami Children's Hospital.

Cheryl Wright, an assistant head nurse at the hospital, also filed an affidavit Jan. 7 charging that allowing Charles Griffith to help care for the child "could be life-threatening."

Joy Griffith suffered irreversible brain damage and fell into a coma in October when she became entangled in a reclining chair and was nearly strangled.

Last Friday, her father sat by her crib in the intensive care nursery for more than two hours, then drew a handgun and shot her twice in the heart, police said. Griffith said he killed his daughter because he could no longer stand to see her suffer. He is being held without bond in the Dade County Jail on first-degree murder charges and has been ordered to undergo psychiatric examination.

In the divorce petition, Rebecca Griffith asked to be named sole custodian of Joy and asked that her husband be barred from the hospital. She said she and the hospital staff feared Griffith, who has a propensity for violence and who is presently on felony probation for the possession of narcotics.

Circuit Judge Donald Stone limited Charles Griffith's visitation to between 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. daily. He made Rebecca Griffith solely responsible for all medical decisions, and sent Charles Griffith for counseling.

Wright's affidavit said Griffith disobeyed medical orders, did not follow "sterile techniques" and has done other acts which could lead to infectious or other complications for the child.

The nurse said Griffith showed up intoxicated, offered marijuana and cocaine to nurses, and asked her to steal a narcotic for his use.

Mark Krasnow, Griffith's lawyer, said Griffith denied those charges, but he acknowledged that Griffith often intervened in his daughter's medical care.

"They would slap the baby in the back to dislodge phlegm. Charles would become hysterical and cry. He was convinced they were hurting her," Krasnow said.

It was clear that Charles was deeply, emotionally involved with the baby, perhaps too much, Charles wanted to be there every minute. Generally, he saw himself as protecting her from the doctors even if that was not rational, and that's when the judge intervened. The judge told him it was time for Charles to get back to his own life. He tried to do that, but he never really succeeded.

Griffith, a projectionist at an adult movie theater, has never served jail time, but has pleaded guilty during the past six years to several counts of cocaine and marijuana possession, burglary, and firearms violations.

Krasnow said his client "obviously has a drug problem" but was not drunk or drugged when he visited his daughter.

Suspect Tried To Clean Up After Crime

ORLANDO (UPI) — The person who stabbed four people to death in a suburban home showered and attempted to scrub away bloodstains for three hours after the crime. Jerry Correll, 29, has been arrested and charged with four counts of first-degree murder for stabbing his 5-year-old daughter, his ex-wife, her sister and mother.

Sheriff's Cmdr. John Guempe said the killings occurred around midnight. Detectives believe Correll showered and tried to wipe up blood before leaving around 3 a.m. Monday. Guempe said the suspect took a 1979 black Ford Mustang belonging to one of the victims and drove it about two miles away.

A motive for the stabbings has not been established, but neighbors said Correll was upset by family problems and had a quick temper.

The auto mechanic went to work after the killings Monday, then later showed up at the murder scene in what investigators said was a shabby, theatrical attempt to mask his guilt.

for all public employees as a condition of employment.

In the ambulance company case, Gilliland was dismissed after being accused of drug use and grand theft of jewelry from a patient, said Newman. Awe was dismissed after a drug use test yielded a positive result, Newman said.

Since the EMTs and paramedics work under his medical license, Newman said all he needs to revoke a person's certification to work in the county is probable cause. He said the accusations by employees and former employers were sufficient for him to revoke the men's certification. He said the other two accused medical personnel have not been dismissed because their cases are still under investigation by the sheriff's department.

A paramedic is an EMT with more training and is allowed to administer certain drugs in emergency situations.

The president of Care, Everett Gilliland, has used polygraph tests to determine possible drug use but has not used drug screening tests, Newman said. He said employing the polygraph indicates that Gilliland thought there was some problem. He said Gilliland has resisted the use of drug screening test on the advice of his lawyers.

But Newman said drug use screening tests are reliable, whereas the polygraph is not. He said screening can detect traces of marijuana up to 30 days after use and other drugs for such as cocaine for varying times after use.

The drugs the individuals have been accused of using are marijuana and cocaine. He said no one has been accused of using the drugs carried aboard the emergency vehicles.

Barbara Smith, the county's manager of emergency medical services, said her office has also looked into accusations by former Care employees regarding wage and labor practices of the ambulance company.

Ms. Smith said ambulance companies are exempt from certain wage laws such as overtime because of the nature of their business which includes 24-hour shifts. She said an employer does not have to pay overtime if other benefits are provided such as housing, a place to sleep, numerous breaks for meals.

At least one former Care employee has said there have been accusations of wage and hour infractions and sexual harassment against the firm.

Smith said she was not aware of any accusations against Care regarding sexual harassment.

sparkler tossed on the roof of Zayre Department Store at 2938 Orlando Drive, Sanford, by an unknown culprit. Spotted by an employee of a nearby restaurant, the fire was quickly extinguished by the Sanford Fire Department, keeping fire damage to the minimum, but there was some water damage in the store.

Otherwise the Fourth of July celebration was a safe one according to law enforcement agencies around the county. No accidents related to firecrackers and fireworks were reported by local hospitals.

An estimated 150,000 persons were gathered in a one and a half-mile radius of the Altamonte Mall Thursday night to view the SkyBlast '85 fireworks display according to Altamonte Springs Police Sgt. Robert Merchant. He said there were no major traffic problems except when traffic was tied up after the show on Palm Springs Drive and emergency crews responded to the area of North Street when a woman broke her leg.

In Oviedo between 5,000 and 6,000 spectators turned out for the fireworks display put on by the fire department.

...Rally

3,300-mile rally was an accomplishment, Ms. Austin said. About 20 cars dropped out of the race since it started June 24 in Hollywood, Calif.

Even though the race was grueling, Gross reportedly told Ms. Austin he would enter it next year.

"It was so much fun I can't believe we made it the whole way," Gross reportedly told Ms. Austin. "Dad was very sad it was over." Don Gross, an antique car enthusiast from Chicago, owns six antique cars. It was his first Great American race.

The drivers were honored Thursday night at a banquet at the Top of the World restaurant in the 110-story World Trade Center.

"He said there were fireworks but they were above them. They had to look down to see them," Ms. Austin said.

Gross plans to return to Sanford Saturday while his father is scheduled to return to Chicago by car, towing the Jenny.

WEATHER

AREA FORECAST: Today partly cloudy with a good chance of afternoon thunderstorms. High in low to mid 90s. Variable light wind. Rain chance 50 percent. Tonight and Saturday partly cloudy with chance of mainly afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms. Low in mid 70s. High in low to mid 90s. Wind south 5 to 10 mph tonight and Saturday. Rain chance 30 percent tonight and 40 percent Saturday. Outlook for rest of holiday weekend partly cloudy with a chance of afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms. Little temperature change.

NATIONAL REPORT: Sea breezes cooling the California coast provided some relief today from record heat and raging brushfires in the West, while severe storms raked the central United States with tornadoes, high winds and large hail. Triple digit temperatures in the West this week helped spread fires that have charred more than 170,000 acres. Six record highs were reached in Nevada, Wyoming, Montana and California Thursday, but the California coast cooled. In California, where three people have been killed and more than 150 homes destroyed by brushfires, a moist coastal fog helped firefighters battling a blaze that has blackened more than 78,000 acres near Ojai, officials said.

new year. Actually revenues come in at about 97 percent.

Among the seven cities, only Sanford City Manager Frank Faison has announced a tax rate. He is recommending — an increase from $3.44 per $1,000 assessed valuation to $4.94, a $1.50 increase per thousand. That is a 43 percent jump.

Showing a growth rate of 15 percent in its tax base — the taxable value of real property — from last year's $344.3 million to the new year's $396.2 million, Sanford's tax base has grown by $51.9 million.

The city levied a tax rate of $3.44 per $1,000 last year on a tax base of $344.3 million, bringing revenues, if 100 percent were collected, of $1.18 million.

With a new tax rate of $4.94 with a tax base of $396.2 million, revenues of $1.95 million can be expected, an increase of more than $700,000.

Meanwhile among the other six cities, Longwood shows the highest rate of growth in the county over the past year. The taxable value of property within the city rose nearly 23 percent from $236.2 million to $290.5 million, an increase of $54 million.

The tax bases of the other cities are as follows with the figures in round numbers:

- Altamonte Springs, $842.9 million, up 14.1 percent from last year's $737.9 million, an increase of $104.9 million
- Casselberry, $318.7 million, up 11.7 percent from $285.1 million, an increase of $33.5 million
- Winter Springs, $318.3 million, up 12.9 percent from $281.8 million, an increase of $36.5 million
- Lake Mary, $127.2 million, up 14.9 percent from $110.7 million, an increase of $16.5 million
- Oviedo, $74.9 million, up 14 percent from $65.7 million, an increase of $9.2 million the ordinance stipulating that if any existing buildings that fall under the above categories renovate or remodel 50 percent of the structure, sprinklers will have to be installed.

Neel also said single family homes could not be included in the ordinance because enforcing it would mean violating the residents' constitutional rights of privacy.

Sprinklers control 96 percent of a fire, Neel said.

Sanford Fire Chief Tom Hickson, who drafted the ordinance, said in a memo to the city manager that the ordinance exceeds national and regional fire safety codes.

"In view of the rapid growth and development taking place in the city of Sanford and the fire service resources being stretched, I believe that it is timely for the city of Sanford to consider a life safety measure such as this," Hickson said.

Hickson also told the city commission earlier this week that the ordinance would not slow construction, a common complaint from building contractors.

The Tube Helped Liberate Women

DURHAM, N.H. (UPI) — The "feminine medium" of television helped liberate women by shattering the informational barriers that separated the sexes, a University of New Hampshire professor says.

Joshua Meyrowitz, who contends TV was the single most important catalyst of the modern women's movement, said most researchers have failed to look beyond the medium's sexist content.

He said TV focuses more on the traditionally feminine attributes of emotion and intuition than on the "cool rationality" assigned to men.

The funny thing is, television is a feminine medium. It's much, much more emotional," said Meyrowitz, an associate professor of communication who has written about TV's impact on behavior in a new book, "No Sense of Place."

Television is one of the few public arenas where men routinely wear makeup and are judged on the basis of their manner rather than their accomplishments," he said.

Television tends to blur the difference between the male thinking style and the female thinking style."

For centuries before television, society operated on two distinct levels — "the woman's world of home and the man's world of social life, with its male domain of sports, politics and business," he said.

Most of the distinctions evaporated in the 1960s and 1970s, when the first generation that grew up with television reached adulthood.

For the first time, Meyrowitz said, women were exposed to parts of the culture they had never experienced and observed roles played by men outside the home and away from women.

Television allowed both sexes to share similar information, including the traditional strategies each uses in interacting with the other.

"Whenever the strategies used by one sex are known to the other sex, the strategies become ineffective," Meyrowitz said.

Television also created a "shared arena" where topics considered off-limits were presented publicly and to both sexes simultaneously, he said.

A husband might not discuss a certain subject with his wife, and vice-versa, because "one

How Else Could The Masses Afford Fine Art?

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Most of us collect and deal with prints every day — when we spend greenbacks or stamp an envelope, but few realize the dollar bill and postage stamp, though not Rembrandt etchings, are objects of the printmaker's art.

From the exquisite etching to the newspaper you're reading right now, the printed image comes in many packages. Long before artists realized the expressive potential of multiple images, prints had caught on with all sorts of people.

In 14th Century France, woodcuts were popular souvenirs for pilgrims visiting the popes at Avignon, while German artists printed playing cards and religious folks embellished bandages with saintly portraits in the hope of speeding recovery.

From the time an unknown medieval goldsmith elevated the craft to a fine art when he inked a newly engraved metal plaque and printed it on paper, prints, because of their easy-to-reproduce character, have been an artistic alternative to more costly paintings and sculptures.

Bob McGee, who teaches printmaking at Sanford's Seminole Community College, said a major reason prints are popular is their price. Because there may be many impressions of a single image most prints cost less than one-of-a-kind artworks. Many fine prints, even those by famous artists, are within the price range of the modest collector. Unsigned, unnumbered prints from an unlimited series may sell for as little as $10, he said.

An unsigned Picasso print might be a bargain at $100, McGee said, while a similar drawing by the same artist, a one-of-a-kind, would sell for $5,000 or more. Prints, he said, give the general public the opportunity to possess fine art which might otherwise be

ABC Settles In Sexual Harassment Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former ABC employee who claimed she lost her job when she complained about sexual harassment from her boss reached an out-of-court settlement with the network in her sex discrimination lawsuit.

Attorneys for ABC and Cecily Coleman said Wednesday they had agreed on a settlement in the case, which was in the second day of a federal jury trial.

Details were not announced and lawyers declined to answer questions on the matter.

The network would only say the settlement "incorporates among its various provisions a payment to Coleman by ABC."

In her suit against former ABC vice president James Abernathy and ABC, Coleman complained of sexual harassment, retaliation and assault and charged she was fired in May 1984 as a result.

Coleman worked for more than a year as director of a voter participation project run by the network with Harvard University.

The network and Abernathy, who left ABC late last year, denied Coleman's charges, maintaining she lost her $60,000-a-year job after demanding too much from ABC.

In its statement, the network said, "ABC acknowledges Coleman's contributions ... which were never at issue in the litigation. ABC also states that it does not condone sexual harassment or unlawful discrimination in any form."

A jury was selected in the case Friday but testimony, scheduled to begin Tuesday, was postponed while lawyers engaged in intensive negotiations. U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker told the jurors.

"On the eve of trial, (the lawyers) responded they were closer to settlement than they had been for the last year and a half," Parker said in dismissing the jury.

The settlement came four

Tom Wopat Enjoys Life After 'Dukes'

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — You will be happy to learn that, yes, there is life after "The Dukes of Hazzard."

That long running CBS series has finally crashed its way into the history books. Boss Hogg has fattened his way into obscurity. And all the Duke boys and girls are gone and will soon be forgotten.

But, says Tom Wopat, who played Luke Duke for all those merry years, life goes on and so does he. And life after the "Dukes" is, he says, a lot calmer.

"In the seven years we did the show," he says, "I got pretty hectic a lot of the time."

The rule of thumb around Hollywood is that if a show lasts five years or more, its regulars are financially set for life. That's because residuals keep rolling in, like the surf at Malibu.

"I'd heard that story, like everybody else," says Wopat. "So I expected that my residuals would be worth $3 million or maybe a bit more. But it's

"If I live modestly and don't go off the deep end, I believe I can exist for the rest of my life on my income from 'The Dukes of Hazzard.'" less than that. It's not exactly chicken feed — I figure I'll make a quarter of a million a year for the next five years — but it's not what I'd expected.

- Tom Wopat

"Still, if I live modestly and don't go off the deep end, I believe I can exist for the rest of my life on my income from the show and what that money is earning for me."

But, no matter what his income from "The Dukes of Hazzard" might be, Wopat will keep working. At the moment, he's concentrating on his music. He always was a singer as well as an actor, but presently it's music first.

He specializes in country rock. He has a deal to make some singles for a Nashville company and if one makes it, the company will do an album.

That's exciting to him. He's also excited about his fairly recent marriage. He was married last October to Vickie Allen, who he met in Tennessee while making a movie opposite Barbara Mandrell. Vickie was the sister of the film's paramedic.

"It was pretty much love at first sight," Wopat says. "All the other guys in the company had been hitting on her, but she kept telling them all that she already had a boyfriend. But when I asked her out, she said yes."

Tom took her to New York — she'd never been — and showed her the sights.

"We rode the Staten Island ferry," he says, "and we had a suite at the Plaza. Then we came out here, to California. She'd never been west of the Mississippi River before. But she isn't crazy about California. Actually, neither am I."

"Now that I am free from 'Dukes,' I guess I can pretty much live any place I want to live. So now both of us are thinking about going back to Tennessee. It would be a better place to bring up kids, and a nicer way of life for both of us."

Naturally, since the "Dukes" went off, other Hollywood producers have been knocking on Wopat's door, wanting him to read their scripts. His name would be a big plus for any potential project, since the home audience knows and loves him.

"But most of those scripts," he says, "are for sitcoms, and I don't know that I would be any good in a sitcom. Anyway, there's been nothing that I really want to do. I'm in no hurry to do another series."

Like most stars, he has his own production company now and he feels if he does anything else, it will be through that company. That way, he would be assured of getting the kinds of parts he wants to do, and a chance to do some more directing. He directed five episodes of "Dukes," and has a contract with Warner Brothers TV to direct some other shows.

Between all this, life goes on for Tom Wopat. "The Dukes of Hazzard" may be dead, but Luke Duke is still going strong.

Willie's Picnic Draws 30,000 July 4th Revelers

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — More than 30,000 fans show up for Willie Nelson's annual Fourth of July Picnic, billed as an extravaganza of country music by such artists as Waylon Jennings, Johnny Cash and Kris Kristofferson.

Gates to the 11-acre outdoor concert site opened Thursday at 10 a.m. and the music lasted past midnight.

The concert — dubbed the "Texas Woodstock" — returned to the state last year for the first time since 1980.

In addition to Nelson, this year's lineup of 22 artists selected by Nelson included Neil Young, Jerry Jeff Walker, David Allan Coe, June Carter Cash, Jessi Colter, Farron Young, Asleep at the Wheel and Bonnie Bramlett.

Nelson's picnics began in 1972 in Dripping Springs, near Austin.

Look for Sue Ellen Ewing to fall off the wagon and maybe even end up in jail again on "Dallas."

Linda Gray and other cast members like Barbara Bel Geddes, who is returning to the series as Miss Ellie this year, and Howard Keel, who plays her husband, Clayton Farlow, and several production people crowded onto the closed set — a hallway and the old Dallas jail — during the weekend.

"It's all very secretive," said a production crew member who refused to give his name. "I can't tell you anything. It would cost me my job." Another crew member said: "You won't see that many famous faces. Except Linda Gray. She (Sue Ellen) is on another drunken binge."

A breach in security provided a glimpse of the filming and indicated Sue Ellen was drinking again and had been arrested. The scene showed a police officer telling Miss Ellie and Farlow that a woman matching Sue Ellen's description had been taken to the drunk tank.

Political Right Claims Media Refusing Its Ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A conservative group says it is having trouble getting television stations to air its ads attacking what it claims is the liberal bias of the nation's major news organizations.

"Hemorrhoids get better treatment than what we get," said Terry Dolan, chairman of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, in discussing the difficulty NCPAC's non-profit subsidiary, the National Conservative Foundation, is having getting its two 60-second ads on the air.

The foundation this week announced a $1 million campaign, including at least $250,000 for advertising, to describe what it believes is a liberal bias of the nation's television networks, major newspapers and wire services. It unveiled two television advertisements being used in the campaign.

He said the campaign has targeted five states — Florida, Texas, North Carolina, South Carolina and Louisiana — but only two stations so far have agreed to run one or both spots.

days after a federal appeals court ruled against former television news anchorwoman Christine Craft in her sex discrimination suit against Metromedia Inc. and reversed a $325,000 jury award. Craft had sued Metromedia, former owner of KMBZ-TV in Kansas City, Mo., saying station officials had demoted her from co-anchor to reporter because they considered her "too old, too unattractive and not deferential to men."

was never quite sure what the other knew," said Meyrowitz, who described it as giving someone "the benefit of potential ignorance."
"Because television exposes people, both sides to the same information, it's impossible to give a person the benefit of potential ignorance. They know it and you know they know it," he said.

"So it becomes impossible to ignore these topics that were once taboo in mixed company. That includes the sex role instructions themselves. With television, there's a type of people-to-people negotiation where the same information is used to be assumed."

Roy Rogers Outshoots 'Beaver'

SHOOTING STARS: Not surprisingly, the king of the cowboys outshot the Beaver. The straightest shooter at a weekend trap shoot in Chino, Calif., was Roy Rogers, 72, who won the Celebrity Cup with a 25-year-old rifle he bought from Clark Gable. "I haven't shot for years but you never lose the touch," said Rogers, who is also a spokesman for the National Rifle Association. Other shooting stars competing were Jameson Parker of "Simon & Simon," Robert Stack and "Leave It to Beaver" star Jerry Mathers. Mathers said he has collected weapons since his "Beaver" producer gave him a Winchester when he was 12. "Since that time, I have gathered bayonets, swords, London pistols," he said. "I'm more of a collector. Besides, it's hard to beat Roy Rogers."

OL' BLUE EYES IS BACK: Fear not, Atlantic City. Frank Sinatra says all is forgiven and his feud with a member of the state Casino Control Commission is over. Sinatra issued a statement thanking Commissioner Joel Jacobson for coming to his defense over a series of "Doonesbury" comic strips that lampooned him. But don't think it was an apology from Jacobson, who had called Sinatra an "obnoxious bully" after the singer and Dean Martin forced a blackjack dealer at the Golden Nugget to break a state law by dealing from her hand instead of the shoe. Jacobson said he thought the Garry Trudeau comic strip offered an inaccurate portrayal of the incident and Sinatra was so touched that he's canceling his vow never to play Atlantic City.

Checkbook Journalism

NBC Blasted For 'Paying' Hostages For Interviews

NEW YORK (UPI) — Other networks have accused NBC of "checkbook journalism" for flying the families of some TWA hostages to West Germany in exchange for interviews, but NBC officials say their rivals are just "looking for excuses."

"It's like the loser at a poker game saying 'deal the cards again,'" Steve Friedman, executive producer of NBC's "Today," said in response to criticism by ABC, CBS and Cable News Network.

"We beat them (the other networks) with good hard work and now they're looking for excuses," Friedman said.

One executive at ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" said NBC's decision to fly the eight people to West Germany was "not a moral thing to do," while the show's spokeswoman, Jacheline DeMave commented, "It seems crass."

"In a way, it's checkbook journalism," DeMave said.

The issue arose when the "Today" show flew eight people first-class to Frankfurt, West Germany, where they were to meet with four of the freed hostages. The show also paid for the families' accommodations at first-class hotels, network officials said.

Friedman would not name the families flown to Frankfurt. However, among people interviewed on the "Today" show Monday were hostage Allyn Conwell of Houston, his wife Olga and mother Lois; Axel and Susan Traugott, brother and sister-in-law of hostage Ralf Traugott of Lunenburg, Mass.; hostage Robert Brown of Stow, Mass., his wife, Jill, and daughter, Melissa, and hostage Stuart Darsch of Dorchester, Mass., and his girlfriend, Terry Swack.

A similar flap arose earlier this year when the "Today" show flew Gary Dotson and Cathleen Webb, the woman who accused him of rape and later recanted, to New York City for an interview, paying for their stay at a posh Manhattan hotel.

In this case, CNN charged it was prevented from interviewing some of the hostage families.

"If a network comes up with extra bucks to buy a family and to deny that family to our cameras... I think it's most unfair," CNN correspondent Peter Arnett said on the "CBS Morning News" show Monday.

"It's like buying favors," said Jane Maxwell, CNN director of special events. "People feel obligated to who's paying that fare."

Friedman denied the interviews were exclusive and said the other networks talked to some of the families who appeared on the NBC broadcast.

"We didn't exploit these people (the hostage families)," he said. "We tried to help them, and hopefully they helped us."

DeMave said ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" made "a conscious decision" not to fly families of hostages to Frankfurt because "we just didn't feel it was right to intrude on people at a time like this by giving them promises that their expenses would be paid."

The show did charter a plane to bring Mrs. Conwell from Corfu to Cyprus for an interview Friday, but that was because "we couldn't televise from Corfu," DeMave said.

Jon Katz, executive producer of "CBS Morning News," sent a memo to his staff deploring the NBC decision.

The "Morning News" did, however, pay for one night hotel accommodations for the families that appeared on its show, a decision later criticized by CBS officials.

...Art

continued solely to museums or the private collections of the wealthy.

And depending on the quality of the print, its rarity, and the artist, as well as the prevailing mood of the art-buying market, print owners may see a great appreciation in the value of their buys as years go by. McGee said some prints bought for less than $20 two decades ago are valued at $5,000 or more today. And the death of the artist may contribute to the value of his prints, because, McGee said, he will produce no more.

Prints encompass a variety of art forms including woodcuts, etchings, aquatints, lithographs and silkscreens. The basic idea for each technique is the same: an image is created through acid or engraving techniques on some surface, such as a piece of wood, metal or stone, which is then inked and printed on paper, perhaps many times.

Prints have always been popular with collectors and today's technology has generated new ways of creating prints, leading to a wider selection from which to choose.

In days long past, before public museums gave the average person a peek at the works of the masters through reproductions, prints were valued as records of historical events. But now much of their appeal is based on admiration of the skill required to produce a successful image as well as for the aesthetic value of the art work itself.

"Even though the print is usually produced mechanically on a printing press," Alan Fern, director of the Smithsonian Institute's National Portrait Gallery, said, "the hand of the artist is an important aspect of each impression. It adds something indescribable. The artist adjusts the image over and over, and when he wants it, he pulls the print in finished form. It's a very different intellectual approach from the accretive process of painting and sculpture."

Although an artist with the stature of Picasso likely wouldn't go through the mechanics of "pulling" his own prints through the printing process, McGee said, the artist will, in a limited edition series, number and sign each print, thus increasing their value over subsequent images made from the same plate which won't be numbered or signed.

Plates may be destroyed or defaced following an initial run to ensure the value of the existing prints, he said. And in some cases "trial proofs," prints produced as the artist fine tunes the design while working with the plate, are sought by collectors for their few-of-a-kind quality.

In selecting a print with an eye to future value, McGee advised the buyer to choose a low numbered print in a large edition, numbered and signed series. For example, a print numbered 1/150, would be the first one printed (indicated by the number 1) in an edition of 150.

The low-number prints will be of higher quality, because as additional prints are made from a plate, McGee said, the plate begins to wear and the image becomes less sharp.

That advice given, McGee then tries to discourage the novice from speculating in the print market.

"The most important thing on a modest budget is to find something you can live with and that you can afford," he said. "Don't worry about speculation until you know about the market. Don't buy something you won't enjoy. If it doesn't communicate it might as well be put in a bank vault."

McGee suggests reputable galleries as sources for quality prints, or art shows where the works can be bought directly from the craftsman.

He cautions that Florida doesn't provide the ideal climate for prints. They must be checked frequently for signs of mildew. If they suffer mildew damage they must be treated by a professional to remove the mold.

Also, direct sunlight can cause the image to fade. And paper that is not of an acid-free type may turn yellow and crumble with age.

J.R. Becomes A Grandfather

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — "Dallas" star Larry Hagman, 53, became a first-time grandfather and actress Mary Martin, 71, a first-time great-grandmother when Hagman's daughter-in-law had her first child.

Hagman's son, Preston, 23, and his wife, Starla, 24, welcomed the baby Wednesday morning at St. John's Hospital. They named the 7-pound 15-ounce girl Mary Noel after her great-grandmother, Mary Martin.
