Little Can Be Done To Prevent Cataracts

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—My eyes were checked by the ophthalmologist and he says I have bilateral cataracts. I was fitted with driving glasses. The cataract is the hard kind. I asked about removal and he said when I wasn't able to get a driver's license, he would talk to me. I see to read, thread a needle and have no headaches. What could be done about my eyes now? Will this affect my near sight later on? What type of operation will I need? DEAR READER—Cataracts are very common problems. Basically, they are simply opacities that develop in the lens of the eye.

The lens itself is a small globular structure of jelly-like material and it's quite elastic in youth. The cells of the lens regenerate just like the cells in your skin. The problem is that old cells are not shed like those on the surface of your skin. Rather, new cells form at the surface of the lens and the old ones move to the center. Eventually these old hard cells are compacted in the middle of the lens. The lens grows and lives long enough, the likelihood is that he will develop some changes in the lens.

We don't know all the factors related to cataracts but I am sending you The Health Letter number 184, Your Cataracts Are Coming. Other readers who want this book can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1881, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

At the beginning a cataract may involve areas of the lens that don't really interfere with which you desire. Don't let your extravagant imagination rule you. FIBRES (For more info) will be accomplished today if your actions fail to match your ideas. Put muscle into your plans. Be a doer as well as a thinker.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be logical in your involvements today and don't put excessive faith in Lady Luck. She is slightly fickle and could let you down.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to use fantasy today to obtain favors or have others do your bidding. They will see through your play and resent it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're an achiever today, but let others sing your praises. Self-proclaimed gladiators are likely to cost you well-wishers.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) In business matters you are both capable and shrewd today, although when it comes to managing your resources you tend to be extravagant. Be prudent in both areas.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) Should you have to negotiate an important matter today, be careful not to give away the store. Deal fairly, but also realistically.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try not to make hasty promises today in which you offer something far greater in the future for that which you're asking another to do at present.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Oct. 2, 1979
This coming year Lady Luck will give you a hand in projects and involvements that are quite large in scope. Don't be afraid to tackle sizable enterprises.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
You have splendid leadership qualities today. Unfortunately, you may not call on your full potential. Where a firm hand is called for, don't use a loose grip. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 408, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10101. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Everything will be dotted out to you today in its proper proportion. If you do little, don't expect to get a large return.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
The pace you're getting out of the starting blocks today will be admirable. But do be careful not to tire too early and leave half-finished what you've begun.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
In areas where you're knowledgeable the results should be profitable for you today. In situations where you lack expertise, the opposite could be true.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
The price you're willing to pay for what you want today could far exceed the value of that

Lake Mary Considers 1979-80 Budget... Once Again

Lake Mary city council will be adopting a fifth revision to its 1979-1980 fiscal year budget at a 7:30 p.m. meeting Thursday.

The council at a workshop session Monday night plugged into its latest revision $400,000 in funding from the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) even though that funding is in jeopardy.

Approval of the CETA funding to pay the salaries and fringe benefits of four city police officers was approved by the U.S. Department of Labor last week.

Mayor Walter Sorenson said the city was notified of the approval by Leonard Carmwell, the manager of Seminole County CETA program.

But, he said, Carmwell told the city he had recommended to the Labor Department that the approval be rescinded because the city had improperly budgeted local funds for the salaries of

Dr. Ali Offers Temporary Solution To Midge Problem

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

There is hope the blind mosquito problem plaguing downtown Sanford can be solved.

But the solution is only temporary. And the cost will be about $5,000 to $10,000 and last only three weeks or less.

Dr. Arhab Ali, who has headed up a research project in the problem of the midge in Sanford, gave his report to a group of businessmen and public officials this morning.

As guest of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce personality breakfast, he said he will make his recommendations available in written form next week.

The report is to be given to both the county commission and the city commission, and will recommend how the spraying of an adulticide should be done over the water at the lakefront when it should be done and how often.

All emphasized the importance of the spraying taking place as the adult midges emerge from Lake Monroe, saying after two days in the air they are more difficult to kill.

None of the county or city officials present at the breakfast gave any indication if they would be interested in funding such a temporary solution program.

Dr. Ali has been conducting studies into the midge problem at Lake Monroe and nearby bodies of water for the past 12 months.

Meanwhile County Commissioner Sandra Glenn, special guest at the breakfast, said the county is receiving complaints from property owners on at least three South Seminole lakes where blind mosquito problems have developed only recently.

And Sanford City Commissioner Julian Stenstrom noted and Dr. Ali agreed that the Monroe lakefront problem with the insect has steadily worsened since the city stopped dumping effluent from its sewer treatment plant into the body of water.

Dr. Ali said it has been found that a threshold exists in bodies of water with effluent where it changes from encouraging the breeding of the pest to hampering it.

The exact threshold is unknown, he said.

Dr. Ali, working out of the University of Florida Experiment Station in Sanford, said he has had published a number of reports on his research to date.

In response to requests from Mrs. Glenn, County Commissioner Bob Sturm and Stenstrom, Ali said he will make available to both the county commission and the city commission by next week a report on how and where to spray.

Ali said although observations at first led researchers to believe a serious problem did not exist in Lake Monroe, later sample-taking showed that observation to be untrue.

Dr. Ali said last Spring samples showed 20-30 midge larvae per sample. The number has increased since to 700 per sample, he said.

He said midges have been posing a problem in the United States for many years and research has been conducted on and off the problem for nearly 40 years. The answer lies in long term research, he said.

Dr. Ali discusses midge problem with Sanford businessman Gene Meadors.

Carter Takes Steps To Offset Soviet Troops In Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has won an assurance the 2,600 Soviet troops are not in Cuba to fight — but could not persuade Kremlin leaders to order them home.

The president, in a nationwide television and radio address Monday night, announced a series of steps the United States will take to offset the Russian brigade whose presence he called "a serious matter."

A senior Pentagon official told reporters Carter — as a show of firmness in the Caribbean region — has ordered Marines to the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo, Cuba, and is increasing the readiness of a 100,000-man rapid deployment force.

"I have concluded the brigade issue is certainly no reason for a return to the Cold War... We do not face any immediate, concrete threat that could escalate into war or a major confrontation," Carter said.

The speech ended a month-long series of top-level planning sessions in Washington and negotiations with the Soviets, including an exchange between Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev on the hot line.

In the speech, Carter revealed the Soviets refused to withdraw the brigade — or even admit it is a combat unit.

But Carter flatly rejected the Soviet assertion it is a training unit, saying, "we have persuasive evidence that the unit is a combat brigade."

He listed five steps the United States will take in light of the Russian refusal to withdraw the troops. Among them were:

- Increased monitoring of the troop status in Cuba.
- Assurance that "no Soviet unit in Cuba can be used as a combat force to threaten the security of the United States or any other nation in this hemisphere."
- Establishment of a permanent, full-time Caribbean Joint Task Force Headquarters at Key West, Fla. (Administration officials said it would consist of 60 to 100 staff people, who will be augmented from time to time with other units.)
- Increased U.S. economic aid to countries in the Caribbean area.
- Direction to the secretary of defense to enhance the Rapid Deployment Forces, including a proposed Fire Brigade that could be swiftly airlifted to trouble spots.

Early reaction to the speech indicated the "hawks" felt Carter had been out-punched, while the "doves" applauded the president's turn-away-wrath approach.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who a month ago revealed the presence of the combat troops in Cuba, took a middle road. He welcomed the Russian assurances, but felt they were not enough.

"A confrontation," Carter said, "might be emotionally satisfying for a few days or weeks for some people, but it would be destructive to the national interest and the security of the United States."

A senior American official told reporters, "If the matter is not satisfactorily resolved it could have a serious effect on the U.S.-Soviet relationship."

The president, as well as senior administration officials who briefed reporters, emphasized the unit is not a military threat to the United States.

Carter renewed his call to the Senate to ratify the arms limitation treaty, and said: "The 'doves' applauded the president's turn-away-wrath approach."

He said it remains to be seen whether the treaty — on which the vote was going to be close anyway — can survive the Soviet refusal to withdraw a unit they insist is in Cuba only for training purposes.

The official said the unit has no regular contact with Cubans, and therefore is not training them.

Carter pledged "we shall not rest on these Soviet statements alone," and told other hemispheric nations they "can be confident the United States will act in response to a request for assistance in meeting any threat from Soviet or Cuban forces."

Pope Addresses United Nations

BOSTON (UPI) — Fresh from a day of prayer for peace on two continents, Pope John Paul VI today broke to the United Nations his quest for an end to war and poverty, in justice and indignity.

Spirit undampened by sneaky, rainy, cold, miserable early autumn weather, more than 1.5 million curious and sympathetic New Englanders lined up Monday on the pope's first day in America and cheered his call to "follow me" in a life of love, piety and sacrifice.

The greeting day started for the pontiff in Dublin's rain and fog before dawn and ended a full 20 hours later in almost exactly the same weather conditions in Boston. A spokesman said the pope was "weary but happy" at the end of his trans-Atlantic adventure.

He flew to New York this morning for another day check full of appearances. In addition to 6 1/2 hours at the United Nations, he visits St. Patrick's Cathedral and holds a mass in Yankee Stadium. Then it is on to Philadelphia Wednesday, Des Moines and Chicago Thursday and Friday, and Washington Saturday and Sunday.

The Vatican billed his speech to the General Assembly as the layman's address of John Paul's visit to America.

In it, according to church officials, the pope will set out the essence of his belief that respect for human dignity is the answer to man's social as well as spiritual problems.

John Paul's appeal came almost 14 years to the day after the late Pope Paul VI appeared on the same rostrum and told representatives of 117 nations to "let the weapons drop from your hands."

"No more war. War never again," Paul, in a hoarse but forceful voice, told the General Assembly Oct. 4, 1965.

Like no other pope in modern times, John Paul has seen the ravages of war first hand.

It was during the Nazi occupation of his native Poland and the extermination of that nation's Jews that he first felt the religious call that would lead him to the forefront of world leaders.

It was as a world leader, as well as a spiritual one, that he arrived in the United States.

He was greeted by Rosalynn Carter and Edward M. Kennedy, and bands of joyous, banner-waving, foot-stomping New Englanders who shouted, over and over, "We love you, we love you!"

Mrs. Carter, dressed in the black dress and hat traditionally worn at papal audiences, shook hands with the pope's holiness, we welcome you to our country with love."

His English improving after three days of speeches in Ireland, John Paul returned the welcome by praising the nation and as a cardinal in 1976.

"Today I stand at this gateway to the United States and again I greet all of America," he said in a booming baritone. "I greet you, America the beautiful."

But his first day in the United States was not all so light-hearted. He got down to more serious business in the evening at a mass in the historic Boston Common attended by about 500,000 people, many of them youths.

Saying modern society had driven many people into the despairs of drugs, violence and sexual pleasure, the pope urged brotherly love as the only path toward human dignity.

Lake Mary Considers 1979-80 Budget... Once Again

Lake Mary city council will be adopting a fifth revision to its 1979-1980 fiscal year budget at a 7:30 p.m. meeting Thursday.

The council at a workshop session Monday night plugged into its latest revision $400,000 in funding from the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) even though that funding is in jeopardy.

Approval of the CETA funding to pay the salaries and fringe benefits of four city police officers was approved by the U.S. Department of Labor last week.

Mayor Walter Sorenson said the city was notified of the approval by Leonard Carmwell, the manager of Seminole County CETA program.

But, he said, Carmwell told the city he had recommended to the Labor Department that the approval be rescinded because the city had improperly budgeted local funds for the salaries of

Other recommendations were that $3,000 be budgeted for road materials such as clay and $2,700 additional be allocated to keep a part-time grader operator position full time instead of making it part-time in the public works department; add $2,000 for purchase of fire hose and $1,000 for education and training for the fire department; retain a person on the job in the parks department rather than eliminating the job and placing $4,400 in the contingency fund.

Councilman Pat Southward, the lone official to have voted against the previous tentative budget, said the latest revision is more fiscally sound. She said one of the reasons she voted previously was that the proposed budget was not fiscally sound. "This budget comes closer to being realistic," she said.

Sorenson said he believes the law is being misinterpreted

Nelson expressed bitterness that the city could be penalized for being honest in its previous budget.

He said that because the council has gone to all extremes to keep its police force at full strength, there is a possibility the federal funding could be denied. "In our zeal to be honest, we may have outdone ourselves," he said.

At least six complaints alleging poor maintenance and other concerns have been received by his office in regard to Baytree Village, Rhodes said. He said the number of complaints from owners of units in Liberty Square has been even greater.

When the complaints of three representative of the Baytree Village residents were put into written form, Silvestri filed suit in circuit court against the residents.

Silvestri claimed in his suits that the complaints distorted his character and amounted to a "malicious attack." Silvestri is asking for more than $1 million in damages from the complaining residents.

Rhodes said the meeting will be an attempt to reach an amicable agreement between the parties.

However, he said if the complaints of the residents warrant further investigation and the results of that investigation do indicate deficiencies on the part of Silvestri, the Division could call for an administrative hearing to determine whether or not a cease and desist order should be issued against the developer.

California, Baltimore Battle Wednesday Ryan, Palmer Hold A.L. Key

BALTIMORE (UPI) — California's Nolan Ryan, scheduled to pitch against Baltimore's Jim Palmer Wednesday night, says the American League playoffs, like most short series, will turn on pitching.

Cincinnati, Pittsburgh Tangle Tonight Pirates Go For Broke

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Chuck Tanner, an aggressive manager with a reputation for taking chances, has decided to go for broke in tonight's first game of the National League playoffs.

Baltimore, which won the East Division by eight games with 102 victories, most in baseball, features a deep, well-balanced pitching staff that includes not only Palmer but lefthander Mike Flanagan, the favorite for the Cy Young Award.

By contrast, the Angels are the hitting team in the game, scoring 88 runs or 5.3 per out on route to an 88-74 record in their first-ever divisional title. Nevertheless, Ryan feels pitching is the key.

"I think our pitching is going to have to keep us in the ballgame," said Ryan, the right-hander, who can still fling a baseball close to 100 mph despite his 25 years and a history of occasional injuries.

"Baltimore pitching has been very tough on us all year," he continued. "Our pitching is going to have to give our hitters a chance to score some runs."

Baltimore, which won the East Division by eight games with 102 victories, most in baseball, features a deep, well-balanced pitching staff that includes not only Palmer but lefthander Mike Flanagan, the favorite for the Cy Young Award.

Tanner has decided to start sore-ripped lefthander John Candelaria against Tom Seaver in the opener of the best-of-five series and the Pirates will find money man or merely a one-armed bandit.

"I didn't feel great but I probably needed that," Candelaria said about his relief stint against the Cardinals. "I won't even think about the pain before the game."

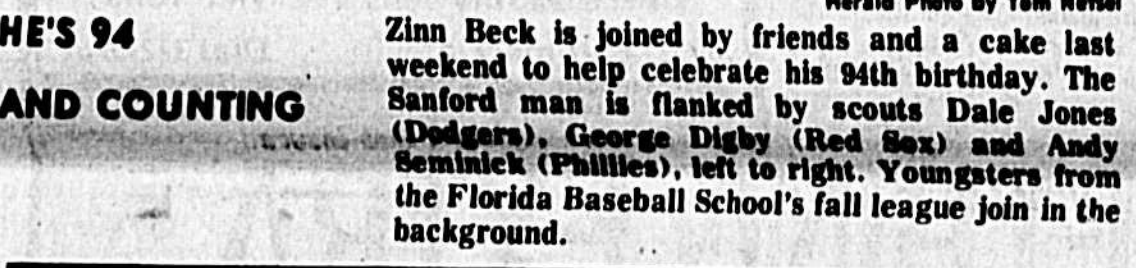

Candelaria has not fared well against them this season. In 10 innings, the Reds have crushed him for 11 earned runs and 24 hits.

"The Reds have hit me pretty good," said Candelaria, whose overall record this year was 9-11. "Actually, they've handled our entire team. But, David (Parsons) is getting hot (21 of last 31) and he can carry us. This is my month. I want it."

"I can see starting Candelaria," said Reds' catcher Johnny Bench. He comes at a relief appearance against St. Louis last week.

Weaver: All-Time Great?

BALTIMORE (UPI) — You look at Earl Weaver and see how everyone is jumping on his bandwagon now, and it's hard to imagine you're looking at a man who could go into the record books as one of baseball's greatest managers.

What makes it so hard to think of him in that context is because he doesn't fit into the same general mold as the vast majority of great managers before him, men like Connie Mack, John McGraw, Miller Huggins and Joe McCarthy.

For the most part, all of them were austere, solemn and not readily given to laughing or joking around with their players. Earl Weaver does both.

It doesn't seem to impair either his or their effectiveness, though. Weaver begins participating in his sixth American League playoff with the Orioles against the California Angels Wednesday night in Baltimore, in what he hopes will lead to their fourth pennant and second world championship under him in 13 years.

His winning percentage of .587 for that period, representing 1,181 victories compared with only 743 losses, is higher than the figures compiled by Mack, McGraw or Huggins and isn't far off McCarthy's astronomical 614.

Weaver becomes a bit self-conscious whenever someone asks him how it feels to be regarded as the best manager in baseball. "I try not to think about it because there's a lotta people in the country who don't think so," laughs the Orioles' stocky little pilot.

"Generally, the only thing I ever think about is how to win the next one — like tomorrow night's game with California." If Weaver does go on to rate with the greatest managers after he's all finished, he'll have one thing in common with Joe McCarthy: Neither ever played a single game in the major leagues.

Sports Parade BY MILTON RICHMAN

"My Dad was so mad, he didn't speak to him for over a year," Weaver and his father then went over to the Cardinals. Walter Shannon, now with the Brewers, was overseeing the club's farm system.

"Shannon is a helluva salesman," Weaver says. "He took me over to one of the windows in the office where I could look down onto the field, and he said to me, 'See second base out there. You'll be playing there in four years.' That was all I had to hear."

Weaver's father felt they should check the Browns once more, so they did. Jim McLaughlin who was the farm director was completely up front with him. So was Bill DeWitt, who was running the club.

"They told me they didn't know if I could hit good enough," Weaver remembers. "They said 'Your speed is questionable and we don't know if your arm is good enough, but we'll give you a Double A player's contract with San Antonio. That's the best we can do.'"

Weaver decided to sign with the Cardinals, who optioned him to West Frankfort in the Illinois State League. He didn't break down any fences there as a rookie in 1949 nor at St. Joseph or Winston-Salem the following seasons.

When Red Schoendienst, the Cardinals' regular second baseman, held out early in 1952, Weaver was invited to spring training with St. Louis.

"I hit .380 or .370 in spring training and had some outside hope, but after Schoendienst signed, I was sent back to the minors and never got another shot," Weaver says. "Now I look back and say Jim McLaughlin and Bill DeWitt were just being honest with me. As a manager, I appreciate that more than ever now. I'll tell you one thing about my not making the big leagues as a ballplayer: Nobody could've tried harder than I did."

Packers Upset Pats By 27-14

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The mood in the Green Bay Packers' locker room was far different Monday night following their 27-14 upset of the New England Patriots.

"Everybody had a sour taste in their mouths after what happened last week," said quarterback Dave Whitehurst, who completed 17 of 37 passes for 284 yards and a touchdown.

"We just got beat by a pretty good ballclub," said Whitehurst. "We had our opportunity, but we just couldn't get anything done."

The Packers victory, before a crowd of 52,862 and a national television audience, gave Green Bay a 3-3 record. New England, which entered the game with a three-game winning streak, fell to 2-4.

Interceptions by safeties Johnnie Gray and Steve Lake and cornerback Mike McCoy set up three of Green Bay's four touchdowns — played by Starr, Smith and Terrell Middleton and a four-yard run by Whitehurst.

The Packers' overall score came on Whitehurst's 18-yard pass to Andy Thompson.

All three interceptions came off Green Bay, who completed 17 of 37 passes for 284 yards and two touchdowns before being shaken up in the closing moments.

Wambaugh Finds Producing Can Be Tough Work

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Author Joseph Wambaugh, the ex-Los Angeles cop who wrote five best-selling novels, all of which became movies, is producing his own picture now and loathing every moment of it.

"I'm not taking producer credit on screen (Frank Capra Jr. is) because I made too many cheap jokes about producers in the past. On the set I have two titles — Excellence and Divinity," he added derisively.

"There will be no cop-outs on these two films. I'll stand or fall by them. I wrote the scripts and have enormous authority to Becker. I deferred to him on casting. He made the editing. But I accept the responsibility."

Wambaugh, a feisty, compact police detective-turned-novelist, has produced and written the screenplays for two of his books, "The Onion Field" and "The Black Marble," somewhat to his regret.

Dissatisfaction with the movie versions of his first three books, "The New Centurions," "The Blue Knight" and "The Choirboys," convinced the writer he could make better movies than professional filmmakers.

Wambaugh became a multi-millionaire from the sale of his novels which he turned out almost at the rate of one a year, guaranteeing him a million bucks per book. He loved his work, the fame, the lifestyle it afforded him.

But it rankled him to see how Hollywood butchered his stories. Wambaugh was especially incensed by the screen treatment of "The Choirboys," directed by Robert Aldrich for Lorimar Productions.

Father than let anyone lay hands on "The Onion Field," based on the murder of a Los Angeles policeman, and his latest novel, "The Black Marble," Wambaugh set about producing them himself.

He invested $1.1 million of his own money in both films, financing the rest with loans of $2.7 and $3.5 million. For the first time in his life he is deeply in debt and frustrated by the daily hassles of making movies.

Why Wambaugh was asked, and has deserted the typewriter for more than two years to work on screen plays, which may break him financially?

"I'm a fanatic," he replied sardonically. "I'd like not to be a fanatic but I can't help it. I'm nervous. I like to see things through to the end. Also I wanted to prove I could make a picture artistically."

"After Lorimar, Aldrich and Universal hitched up 'The Choirboys' I learned that movie is power in Hollywood. If you want power, you've got to get the money. That's why I borrowed financing on my own."

"I had power producing 'The Onion Field.' And I made it exactly as I wanted with a fine director, Harold Becker, making his first American movie.

- "But it's hell dealing with the egos and the irrelevant problems of actors, producers and technicians which have nothing to do with the film on the set every day. It's exhausting and uncreative. Thank God, I didn't have to deal with any superstars in the casts of either picture."
- "I was on the set all the time putting in my two cents worth at every chance. Becker accepted some of my suggestions and denied others. I made dialogue changes and other improvements as we went along."
- Wambaugh enjoyed larding both casts with small roles for his buddies in the Los Angeles police department. His ex-partner Dick Kalk has a part in both "The Onion Field" and "The Black Marble," due for release next Easter.
- But Wambaugh has paid a price. While his self-deprecating sense of humor is still in demand, he is not without bitterness at having had to tackle the movie business on his own terms.
- "I've never experienced so much rage and frustration as I have making movies," he sighed. "I got furious with the people I had to deal with on all levels. I like to see things through to the end. My director is all that saved my sanity."

DEAR ABBY: To get right to the point, my dad is having an affair. It's not just my imagination. I'm sure of it. Dad works nights and Mom works days, and I work five days a week. When I'm home on my day off, Dad turns the radio on my bed, takes the phone into the bathroom, closes the door and calls someone. He talks real low during these conversations. I put my ear to the door yesterday and heard him say, "Don't worry, Honey, I'll tell her, but you've got to give me more time." Then he said, "I love you, too. Goodbye."

Abby, I don't know what to do. I can't stand by and let Dad do this to Mom. If she catches him, and finds out that I knew

Nominations Sought For Hero Cat Award

Nominations are now being accepted for the 12th National Hero Cat Award, sponsored annually by the Feline Cat Council, to honor cats in the U.S. whose courageous actions have protected or aided other creatures, human or otherwise. The Council, which is devoted to the welfare of cats, will present the winner with a year's supply of cat food, an engraved silver feeding bowl and a $100 Savings Bond. Documented evidence of the animal's heroism should be submitted to the Feline Cat Council, 866 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90061.

Last year's hero cat, the 11th feline to be honored by the Feline Cat Council, was a fluffy white cat from Denver, Colorado, called Melissa. According to police in that city, Melissa attacked a burglar who threatened her mistress as she worked alone late one night in a bookstore. The customer's screams and splashing distracted the thief long enough to allow Melissa's mistress to run for help. The burglar fled.

Other past winners of the award include: Funky, a cat who saved the life of a two-month-old infant when the child was abandoned by a burglar who threatened her mistress as she worked alone late one night in a bookstore. The customer's screams and splashing distracted the thief long enough to allow Melissa's mistress to run for help. The burglar fled.

Miss Berguson, Gary E. Vogel Exchange Vows

Cynthia Ann Berguson and Gary Edward Vogel were married Sept. 15, at 2:30 p.m., at All Souls Catholic Church, Sanford. Father William Ennis performed the candlelight and double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan E. Berguson, 107 Loch Arbor Court, Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Vogel, 6051 Via Hermosa, Sanford.

The organist was Lorraine Devine. The mother of the bride was vocalist and sang "Ave Maria," "The Lord's Prayer," and "The Wedding Song."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows, an ivory chiffon over bridal taffeta gown, fashioned along the empire silhouette. The Queen Anne collar was accented with Venice lace. Venice star flowers outlined the waistline and cuffs of the sheer full sleeves. Matching Venice lace trimmed the hemline of the A-line skirt and sweeping chapel train.

Cheryl I. Berguson attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a sandstone colored gown fashioned with a scooped neckline, blouson sleeves, full elbow length sleeves and an A-line skirt. She carried a French hand bouquet of solia roses, coral carnations and yellow, orange and orange pompano with natural dried fern and long coral velvet ribbons. Her floral headpiece was identical to her bouquet.

Ellen Fitzgerald attended the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Dawn Berguson and Tracy Berguson, sisters of the bride, Sandy Vogel, sister of the bridegroom and Cynthia I. Serrano. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's except for the roses in the matron's honor bouquet.

Thomas E. Helms served the bride as best man. Groomsmen were Allan Berguson, brother of the bride, Frank Dunn, Jim Talmadge and Mark Gadsen. The bride carried a formal Edwardian bouquet of ivory tiara roses.

Who Needs A Mandarin, Anyhow?

NEW YORK (NEA)—One benefit to being a mandarin's wife in China — besides not having to dice your own scallops — was that you could wear a fancy robe like his. Like the emperor's, in fact. One look dressing was big there even the same-shape tunics and robes, same hair-styles, no matter who you were or where you lived. But you wouldn't call it, "Oh, pal, to a passing mandarin thinking he was a barber. For one thing, the mandarin greets his fingernails out to here just to show he's trimmed. He's caught dead if his fingers under his sleeves go figure that out."

For another, he wore certain colors and designs and fabrics because the emperor said he had to. That was so the emperor could tell the nine grades of military and civil mandarins apart at a glance — at the jewel on top of their hats. If that's all he caught a glimpse of, it made it easy on everyone, actually. Nobody mistook anyone for anyone else because he wore a fancy robe like his. He wore a fancy robe like his. Insects May Be Source To Feed World's Hungry

By JOHN VIRTUE MEXICO CITY (UPI) — For centuries Mexico's Indians have been dining on worms and other edible insects.

Now, entomologist Julia Ramos Elourdy is cataloging Mexico's more than 60 varieties, which she thinks could help feed the world's hungry. She says they're all rich in protein.

"The key science fiction," says Mrs. Ramos Elourdy of the Biology Institute of the National Autonomous University of Mexico, "is that insects are being used to produce protein."

Mrs. Ramos Elourdy admits she had to gag down the first worm she ate but now says she and her family fight over the insect delicacies she prepares.
