Court Denies Motion to Quash Indictment Against John Scopes

Raulston Gives Opinion Upholding Constitutionality of State's Statute

Decision Again Upheld by Prayer

Probes Rumor of Premature Publication of Decision

DAYTON, Tenn., July 15.—Every available inch of space was occupied during the spirited argument that marked the day of the trial of John Thomas Scopes for alleged violation of Tennessee's anti-evolution teaching act here Tuesday.

Although the visiting crowds ebbed and flowed in and out of the courtroom, the more fashionably swirling eddies passing the limits of the court house lawn and collecting in talkative groups about the streets, the collection as a whole failed to meet the two-sanguine anticipations of Dayton people. They came by hundreds, not thousands.

Of those who either came early to push their way through the group that blocked the doorway, there were sufficient to occupy every seat in the room, block the aisles and jam five deep around the walls.

Overall occupied seats beside the latest design in men's sweaters, ginghams, and the auditorium chairs beside the more fashionable silks.

Four policemen were kept busy in the court room, keeping the passageways clear, or wielding Judge Raulston's gavel as they called for "order in court."

Clothing grew damp and collars either were thrown aside or they wilted beneath the intense heat and swept the court room during the trial.

Enthusiasm Undiminished
This, however, did not diminish the enthusiasm evoked among the spectators when anything which might be construed as an attack upon fundamentalism was repelled or drew instant fire from attorneys for the prosecution.

Included applause was elicited in the late afternoon when a petition submitted by defense counsel to Judge Raulston calling for unorthodox ministers to be given place with those of more orthodox faiths in the court room to direct the opening prayers, was referred by Judge Raulston to the Dayton Ministerial Association, which said was designating the ministers to conduct services.

Frequent outbursts of applause swept the room during the stormy session when a motion from Clarence Barrow of the defense to dispense with the opening prayers was denied. Clashes between counsel for the defense and the state were imminent when the judge overruled the motion.

MOIST TREATY IS UPHeld BY JUDGE IN TEST ATTACK

New York Court Finds That Document Is Alright And That Liquor Can Still Be Shipped on English Ships

NEW YORK, July 15.—The attack upon the so-called "moist" treaty with Great Britain, which permits vessels of foreign registry to bring liquor under seal into the United States ports, failed Tuesday when Federal Judge Mack ruled that the federal courts are without power to compel prosecuting officers to enforce the laws may be, the treaty is contrary to law and the constitution or not the courts cannot order enforcement of the penal laws.

"The federal courts are without power to compel this," he declared, "whatever the ground of the failure of prosecuting officers to enforce the laws may be. The remedy for invalidity of that kind is the executive and, ultimately, with the people."

The unit was brought by members of the Neptune Association of Masters and Mates in an attempt to have the treaty declared unconstitutional. The plaintiffs, all interested in American shipping, said that ships flying the American flag were being damaged because passengers preferred to travel on British ships in order to obtain liquor beyond the three mile limit.

As to the constitutionality of the treaty Judge Mack said, in his opinion: "While on the motion to dismiss for want of equity both counsel desire a ruling on the constitutionality of the treaty, I find it unnecessary and therefore, in proper to consider that question in view of my opinion that even if the treaty were unconstitutional, it would be inoperative inasmuch as the bill states no cause for equitable relief."

He held that the damage claimant to have been injured, not from the fact that British ships brought liquor into port but from the fact, so it appeared that passengers preferred British ships.

The regular July session of county court, which began last Tuesday morning and adjourned Tuesday afternoon until the October session saw the disposal or continuance of a total of 53 cases. The session, according to County Prosecuting Attorney E. F. Housholder, was very successful from the county's point of view because of the proper disposal of a number of difficult cases.

The term was one of the stormiest in the history of the Seminole county court, as the result of the large number of cases hanging on the sale, disposal and possession of liquor. Nearly all of the defendants tried on liquor charges were either found guilty or their cases were continued.

Approximately 25 of the cases arraigned before County Judge J. G. Sharon, were liquor cases. They numbered 25 out of the total of 53. Big Celebration To Feature Ball Club Benefit On Thursday

Final Plans Are Made For Day's Program, Including Baseball Games, Big Dance

Sale Of Tickets Is Pushed by Officials

All is in readiness for the big booster day celebration to be held Thursday afternoon at municipal baseball park under the auspices and for the benefit of the Sanford Baseball Club. Final preparations for the day's program were made this morning, according to an announcement made today by R. A. Newman, president of the recently re-organized club.

Starting at 1:30 o'clock with a big parade, the day's entertainment will continue throughout the afternoon and will come to a close Thursday night with a dance at the municipal hall on Park Avenue. The parade, it is announced will be headed by the municipal band followed by baseball enthusiasts in cars. The parade will pass through several of the main business and residential thoroughfares after which it will end its way to the ball park.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the baseball struggle between a picked team of "fats" and a picked team of "leans", will get under way. In choosing this feature as a part of the program, officials of the club believe that they will be able to offer one of the best mirth provokers ever billed here. It is declared that the "fats" have been holding secret practices under the tutelage of Tom Meredith while the "leans", anxious to give the laurels, have been receiving some careful coaching from Dr. C. J. Marshall, who is expected to prove a tower of strength to the team.

The game is keenly anticipated by local fans, who are sure to be acquainted with the lineup of either team. It appears that neither side is anxious to give out any dope along this line for fear that it might give the opposition too much information as to offensive and defensive power.

Another thing that will help to pass away the afternoon pleasantly will be selections rendered by the band, which will play between innings and after special numbers between the "fat" league game and the regular game between Sanford and Lakeland.

The baseball team returns tonight from the Polk county metropolis to take on the Highlanders for a three-game series. Tomorrow's game being the opening contest. The local team is expected to be reinforced somewhat by the presence of several new members who it appears against the Lakeland outfit. The club has had some excellent exhibitions of baseball and especially tomorrow when "Dinty" Moore's tribe will do its best to annex a victory.

The dance tomorrow night will begin at 9 o'clock. The "Blue Dragon" orchestra from Deland will furnish the music. Those who have heard this orchestra declare that it is one of the best in the state and club officials feel that they are fortunate in securing its services for this occasion.

Results of the intensive ticket-selling campaign have not been given out officially but indications were this morning that the tickets for both the baseball exhibitions and the dance have been going like "hot cakes." The club officials are anxious that a large sum be raised from tomorrow's celebration so that the affairs of the team may be placed on a sounder financial basis.

The support as indicated by the advance sale of tickets has been good, but President Newman issued a last minute appeal this afternoon for more persons to purchase tickets.

The baseball team needs united support and this occasion gives opportunity for everyone to help do his bit, "Mr. Newman declared. "I hope that the grandstand and bleachers will be packed to the limit tomorrow, with loyal supporters of the club," he concluded.

'APE' TRIAL FAILS TO BRING CROWDS TO LITTLE TOWN

Scopes Case Brings Hundreds, Not Thousands That Were Expected; Citizens Unable to Capitalize on "Stunt"

Chinese Delegates In Row Over Parley To Settle Disputes

PEKING, July 15.—There is little prospect of an early commencement of negotiations over the Shanghai affair growing out of the strike in the foreign owned cotton mills and the subsequent rioting.

The deadlock between the Shanghai municipal authorities and the diplomatic corps over the question of jurisdiction which afforded grounds for the French minister's retirement from the diplomatic commission remains unbroken.

Diplomatic quarters profess not to know whether another delegate will be appointed in place of Count de Mastel, but they appear to share the French ambassador's view that it is useless to press for the opening of the conference while the jurisdiction conflict is uninvolved.

On the other hand the Chinese seem to be reluctant to undertake the negotiations while it is uncertain to enforce the possible decisions. Furthermore, there are no indications that the Chinese have receded from their position that there can be no settlement of the Shanghai riot shootings exclusive of questions concerning the contributory ends.

Leakage of parts of the report of the investigator sent to Shanghai has raised the question in diplomatic circles whether it would not be wise to publish the entire report.

CONSERVATION OF U.S. RESOURCES IS THEME OF TALK

Secretary of Interior Asks That Waste: Business Be Done Away With; Speaks At American Falls Celebration

AMERICAN FALLS, Idaho July 14.—Intelligent conservation of the nation's resources, with particular reference to human beings and soil fertility, was urged here Monday by Secretary Work in an address that formed a feature of a celebration at the commencement of construction on the American Falls reservoir.

The interior secretary defined the administration's concept of conservation as "use without waste of our natural resources, and their intelligent distribution as to time." He declared the most pressing study of the government, in which the country's greatest minds could be enlisted, is the larger idea of conservation.

Secretary Work began his address by directing the attention of his audience to the point that America's era of exploitation of natural resources was at an end and governmental economy, a conservation factor, was an index of this. Conservation of time, and the federal and citizens' income, he said, "sounds the keynote in the utilization of our remaining natural resources."

"Conservation should no longer mean locking up these resources by non-use," the interior secretary asserted, "but to encourage their wise use."

"Our economic growth has been advanced only by the liberal and often reckless utilization of natural resources. Its future expansion will depend upon a more thorough and intelligent conversion of our remaining natural wealth to industrial necessities. Nothing can justify reckless use of our people's inheritance from nature or other encroachments upon the capital of our future generations. While the federal government is rapidly reducing its indebtedness, cities, counties and states are mortgaging themselves for the next generation to pay."

"I believe in the extension of government studies, organized to discover and employ our natural resources, and to advise states upon their proper use along sound economic lines against misappropriation and waste. Authoritative teaching should be centralized in the federal government, but responsibility for its application should be decentralized to states."

"Conservation can no longer be limited to looking up the resources of nature whose found but should be interpreted to mean the perpetuation of the human family by the intelligent use of that which nature has provided for it. Water power should be harvested to supplement man power and to save coal; our oil should be located and released from its natural storage with relation to our immediate and weighed against anticipated future necessities. Our ripe timber is being harvested, and our young forests protected."

THIEF OF BAGDAD TO BE SHOWN AT MILANE THEATER

Comes to Local Picture Show For Two Days; Run; Declared One of Best Pictures Produced During Recent Years

The people of Sanford, according to Manager Joe L. Marentette of the Milane Theater, will have the privilege on Wednesday and Thursday of this week to see one of the greatest moving pictures produced in recent years. It is in the nature of a fairy tale, featuring Douglas Fairbanks who takes the part of the hero well.

One of the most surprising and astounding features of Douglas Fairbanks' "The Thief of Bagdad," which comes to the Milane Wednesday and Thursday is the amazing performance of The Flying Horse. Students of mythology are aware of the history of this winged horse, and of its services to Perseus. In "The Thief of Bagdad," Douglas Fairbanks, astride this magic horse, producing shouts of joy and laughter. The story as told in "The Arabian Nights," in brief, is as follows:

A number of princes and rulers visit the palace of the beautiful princess at Bagdad and present their gifts, asking in return the princess in marriage. It is a legend that the one who touches a certain rose tree in the court, will marry the princess. All of the royalty miss completely this tree and the dressed up beggar, known as the Thief of Bagdad, comes upon the scene wearing stolen clothes and falls upon the rose tree.

The princess refuses to marry any of the princes and the king, her father, makes a promise that the one returning with the most wonderful gift within a given month of time will get the princess. A series of interesting events follow and each returns with his gift.

The flying carpet, the mystery crystal and the healing apple are all included in the gifts of the princes who use them in an effort to secure the princess. The Thief of Bagdad, however, returns, after having found the flying horse and rides away with the princess, leaving the others to mourn their loss.

Swiss Rates Enable Many to See Shows

PARIS, July 14.—Profiting by the height of the Swiss franc as compared with the French, entire clubs, chambers of commerce and other bodies of Swiss, with their families, have come over the border to attend the exposition of decorative arts in numbers that compare favorably with the English and American visitors.

Switzerland's contribution to the exposition is one of the most important considering the size of the country, at the Grand Palais. All the old historic cities have sent imposing displays of their burglers' handicraft.

City Commission Approves Nurse For City Schools

The opening of several other streets was discussed. In a report to the commission the Equalizing Board recommended that the following streets be paved: Holly Avenue from Fifth to Sixth Streets, Maple Avenue from Fifth to Sixth Streets, Sixth Street from French to Pecan Avenues, Eleventh Street from French to Holly Avenues and Fulton Street from Park Avenue to Railroad Avenue. No objections were entered. Property owners requested also that Myrtle Avenue be paved from Thirteenth Street to High Street.

Library Fund Enlarged
A. R. Key, cashier of the Seminole County Bank, and Mrs. Anne Van Ness Brown, librarian of the Sanford Municipal Library, appeared before the commission in regard to appropriations for the operation of the city library during the ensuing year. Increased appropriations were asked because of the greatly increased interest in the institution this year over last year and because of the increased work that must be done. More books must also be purchased, it was declared.

Mrs. Brown stated that the library now has over 1,300 members in addition to numerous readers and that the growing amount of work and service necessary are greater than could be cared for in an appropriation as small as that of last year.

The commissioners agreed to increase the appropriation to approximately $5,000 this year instead of $3,000 as was given by the city in 1924 for the support of the library. The increased funds will be used for salaries, the purchase of new books and periodicals, binders and additional filing cabinets.

To Move Lumber Yard
W. C. Hill was present and announced that the Hill Lumber Company is moving its plant to a new location in the Goldsboro section and requested that the city install a number of street intersection lights in the vicinity of the new yards as a matter of precaution and protection. City Manager W. B. Williams was instructed to install the lights at once.

At the request of the owner and developer of the new Highland Park subdivision, the city commission ordered that Scouring Street be opened from Park Avenue to Lake Avenue so that the right of way for the thoroughfare can be secured at once.

Letter of Father Written 37 Years Ago Reaches Son

TACOMA, Wash., July 14.—Haakon Bader, who left his native town in Norway in 1888, recently received a letter mailed from the same place shortly afterwards. During its 37 years wandering, the missive had been handled by the postal services in five different nations, for that time Norway gained her independence from Denmark, under whose flag Bader was born.

The letter written by Bader's father, long since dead, expressed his love and god wishes for sailor son and contained photographs of Bader's parents.

When Bader, a lad of 18 went to sea from his native village of Kragero, Norway, the letter followed him to Cardiff, Wales, but arrived shortly after he had set sail for Buenos Aires. He had also left Buenos Aires when it reached that city and was turned over to the Danish consul there.

There it lay in the consular files while Bader pursued his seafaring life over the most of the world including a visit to his home village. Later he joined the gold rush to Alaska and then came to Tacoma, where he opened a cigar store.

The letter, written in his father's hand and still plainly legible, was like a message from another world.

EVOLUTION

I haven't read as much as some Concernin' man and where he's from. So I ain't fixed, I calculate. My own belief to demonstrate For and ag'inst and pro and con On evolution, and so on.

My good old mother and my dad Was all the scientists I had! And, for books, they stuck to one, And, when I asked 'em that or this, Referred me back to Genesis.

Well, maybe they was wrong about The way creation started out; But I don't recollect they spent A lot of time in argument Concern' how the human race First come to settle in the place.

To them what seemed to matter more Was mostly where we're headed for. Not what we was, but what we'll be In life and in eternity— Not where we come from, mo and you, But rather where we're going to.

No matter where we started at, If man or monkey, fish or bat, We're here, it doesn't matter how. The most important question now Is how we read our title clear And where we evolve from here. —Douglas Malloch.

This seems to be one of the times of the year when the road hog flourishes the most plentifully. The road hog, you know, is the individual who wants the whole road. He likes to drive slowly in the middle of the road, so that anyone behind him can slip behind, even if it is at a small pace. He also pines ahead regardless of intersections, and he always makes the other fellows take the ditch on a narrow road.

Since the road hog is too selfish to consider others, the only remedy would seem to be to ram him with an armored car. He ought not to be allowed to drive at all. Tampa Times.

No "Dull" Summer In Sanford

With construction permits for the first six months of the year showing a gain of two hundred and eighty per cent over the corresponding period of 1924, with bank deposits showing an increase over last year of twenty per cent and with realty transactions totaling five millions for the first half of the year, Sanford's continued growth and prosperity thus far in 1925 has been more rapid than ever before in its history.

A year ago only two hundred and fifty-two thousand dollars in building permits had been issued; this year at the close of the six month period the total had passed the seven hundred and fifty thousand dollar mark. All previous construction records have been shattered and meanwhile the building program rushes onward, with ever increasing speed.

Sanford's three financial institutions have more money on hand than ever before. Over four million dollars were on deposit at the close of business June thirtieth. This is more than a million dollars ahead of last year's record, and bespeaks the steady flow of money coming to this section for investment purposes.

June saw the peak in real estate transactions when over twelve hundred thousand dollars worth of property changed hands. Last month's activity in this line of business showed a substantial increase over any previous month this year and the five million dollar total for the first half of the year gives rise to the prediction that between fifteen and twenty million dollars worth of property will change hands during the present twelve months.

All of these things are accurate barometers of the growth of the city. Instead of business dropping off as the "dull" summer season comes on, it shows a big gain. June, the first summer month has set a pace that even the best winter month this year did not equal. And now everyone expects July to surpass the records of the previous month.

With the actual beginning of the paving program in the hotel section, which has been so long delayed, and with the promise of quick work in the dredging operations in the vicinity of the new hotel, Sanford people are looking forward to a balance of the summer being one of great activity and a forerunner of a winter which will bring with it this community's greatest wave of prosperity.

Come With Cash or Ability to Work

It sounds hard, even unkind, but Florida people who have given earnest, kindly thought to the matter know that they are right in warning people of other states to stay out of Florida unless they can come with money enough to pay their way until they have found paying jobs.

Recently a man with his wife and four children, traveling in a dilapidated old car, camped near a wayside filling station in South Georgia, and begged enough "gas" from good natured travelers who chanced to stop at the station, to get them into Florida.

One of these travelers happened to be a good member of a Chamber of Commerce in a thriving Florida city, and he took the trouble to stop and question the man as to his plans for self-support in the new home to which he was going. These plans, he found, were entirely lacking. The family had heard of the prosperity in Florida, and practically penniless had undertaken the trip to that alleged land of plenty.

The Chamber of Commerce man deliberately told the travelers to stay away from his town. "We don't like your kind," he said. "We haven't time nor place for you. It's the fellow with cash, or the trained mechanic, we want. You are going to have a tough time, unless you can get work as soon as you cross the line, and earn your own grub and your own gasoline."

That sounded harsh and undoubtedly was harsh. But it is the sort of talk that many a fellow needs who is traveling blithely toward Florida vaguely expecting manna to fall from free manna trees and warm zephyrs to waft some sort of mystic mantles to take the place of plain every-day blue jeans.

Florida probably has room for every husky, willing worker who comes. But people who cannot or will not work should be compelled to show "visible means of support" when they cross the Florida line.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

Here are a couple of small ones, presented in the hope that one or the other of both of them may appeal to the business man:

A delegation of Easterners—members of the Board of Trade of some seaport city—were touring the West. At their first glimpse of the Bad Lands of North Dakota one of the travelers, a builder and real estate man, remarked as he peered from the car window upon the sterile and forbidding landscape: "Say, it looks to me like the Lord must have been tired when he got this far and turned the rest of the job over to a bunch of subcontractors."

Here's the other one, which has to do with a retail clothing merchant and his friend: The dealer was boasting of the sagacity of his head clerk. "That fellow Jake," he said, "is the smartest boy in the world. You don't believe it, huh? Listen: I prove it to you. Only yesterday, there comes in here a poor widow woman whose husband just had died. She wanted to get some clothes to bury him in. And what did Jake do? I tell you: Not only did he sell her the most expensive suit which we had in stock but he got her to take an extra pair of trousers."

WHERE DID YOU GET IT? OWENSHORO, KY., MESSENGER

There is a legend, based either on fact or on the possibility that it might easily be a fact, which says that in Germany years ago a group of monks offered a substantial sum to anyone who could produce five bars of original music. The rest of the legend is that no one yet has seen fit to claim the money.

The tale is recalled by the current researches of various students into the origin of jazz tunes, an activity stimulated possibly by Thomas A. Edison's threat to hire arrangers to synopate the classics thus avoiding royalty payments on new dance tunes. While the Edison project shocked some commentators, others took it philosophically, observing that since many a modern dance theme is paralleled in the classics anyway, Edison might as well do his borrowing directly.

Signum Spach touched the subject in one of his works, pointing out that "I Am Always Chasing Rainbows" was derived from the theme melody of Chopin's Fantasia Impromptu, that the popular "Castle of Dreams" was inspired by the Minute Waltz of the same immortal, and that the Beethoven Minuet was the source of two lullaby tunes, "Rose of No Man's Land" and "Apple Blossom Time in Norway." Other observers discern traces of three other melodies in the well-known "Havana" song, and link the current "Marchetta" with a theme from the overture of "Merry Wives of Windsor." Finally, there is the instance of "Avalon" for an indebtedness to the composer of "La Tosca."

Which leads us to wonder whether these airs and others are always consciously culled from the classics, or whether, since the number of possible combinations of musical notes is obviously finite, the monks were not safe in assuming the supply was already exhausted. There must be a good deal, somewhere on the subject, about, if a musical theorist with a taste for research would like to look into the matter.

As Brisbane Sees It

7 Baptists, 4 Methodists. Great Britain Laughs. A Vast River. Rubber Jumps Again. BY ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright 1925)

SEVEN BAPTISTS, four Methodists are chosen for the Scopes jury as this is written. Darrow for the defense, hunting vainly for a Modernist juror willing to admit that any animal was left out of the Ark, or that any changes have occurred in the animal kingdom through evolution, since the first animals and man were made, all in the same week.

THE BRITISH are much amused by our monkey trial, which is as preposterous as any trial since the French judge tried a sow accused of killing and eating a child, acquitting the sow's little pigs that had helped eat it "because they were too young to know the difference between right and wrong," and sentencing the sow to death.

HOWEVER, THE laughing need not all be done in Britain. To forbid teaching a theory that forms part of civilized education over all the world is no more preposterous than legalizing the great deer forests that monopolize the fertile lands of Scotland, compelling the Scotch to emigrate.

TO DRIVE out fathers, mothers and children so that self-indulgent parasites may have the pleasure of murdering deer on lands preserved for that sport is more idiotic than any monkey trial.

DR. RICE, back from South America, tells stories wonderful and true. He explored and mapped out a river with a mouth as wide as the Hudson river is long. One island in the river is bigger than New England.

He describes savages, gaining power by chewing the plant from which we extract cocaine.

That may be. Coffee does not hurt a strong man. But caffeine extracted from coffee will kill him. Light wine has been drunk for centuries by millions without injury and those millions have been the rulers and thinkers of the world. But alcohol, a recent invention extracted from grapes, destroys thought and leadership.

MOST INTERESTING news brought by Dr. Rice is that, from an airship there has been explored and mapped out hundreds of thousands of miles of territory. That's better work for the flying machines than dropping poison gas.

THERE IS still work for explorers on this earth. In the southern part of South America, 2,000,000 square miles of territory have never been mapped out. Think what that means in the way of opportunities and untold wealth, beyond imagination.

THE OTHER day rubber jumped to 80 cents a pound. Yesterday it was selling above a dollar, and the London market went wild.

Our English friends who control production and know how to make trusts profitable, are getting the benefit. Let us not complain. It will help pay their American debt. Their prosperity means world prosperity.

AN INCREASE in the price of rubber drives manufacturers to plan for smaller tires. Some may of intelligence will find a way to substitute steel springs for rubber and produce a tire better than a rubber tire.

Judge Gary ought to work that out, through the big steel company.

G. W. HINMAN predicts that "the next British supply" will come in oil. Our supplies, he says, have reached the point of gradual decline, Britain has helped British citizens in the rubber monopoly and, according to Mr. Hinman, will help also in exploiting, at high prices, their oil deposits scattered all over the world.

WISE AMERICANS who own wells that can't be drained will conserve their oil. Foolish Americans will buy oil stocks worth nothing.

THIS SHOULD be read at the monkey trial. Egyptian archeologists have uncovered Tut-Ankh-Amon's bridal palace, more than 5,000 years old. There the King started a new religion and, by the way, probably had monkeys in it, although the various animals in Egypt were treated as gods, not merely as fetichisms.

Alexander the Great, after conquering Egypt, gained approval and loyalty by bowing and worshipping the sacred god Apis, an ox. All gods looked alike to Alexander, educated by Aristotle.

A "ROUND TRIP" letter, sent to Chicago by air mail, remained in Chicago, was delivered in New York 42 hours later. The flying time was only 16 hours. The rest delay.

Two thousand 100s in 16 hours is progress. I seem slow in sixteen years. Five hundred miles and hour will be "reasonably fast" by that time.

PROFESSOR SHAW tells the world and New York University's summer school that here only women are cultured—by which he means that they alone combine knowledge with refinement and intellectual interest.

THAT ISN'T exactly so. The professor himself is cultured, and so is his way, is Irving Berlin, who writes songs. But there is no doubt at all that women have lead men along the road of knowledge. Without women men would still live in caves hunting and eating each other, and the wild animals.

INNOCENCE ABROAD

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

A passionate interest in American eccentricities, coupled with a fair inability ever to understand them, is one of the most naive as well as one of the most flattering of European characteristics.

Prohibition, which seems to have been received as something half way between an imbecility and an insult, has supplied Continental conversation for years; an almost morbid interest in the "movies" has irradiated the gloom of the British House of Lords, our journalism has shocked all the cultures of Europe and the Russians have discovered an irresistible attraction for the achievements of Mr. Ford. But the trial of Mr. Scopes seems to have surpassed them all.

Even the lesser German country newspapers are reported as carrying full accounts, and the British press appears to have looked unamusedly upon the news of this our latest, our most staggering barbarism. Mr. Lloyd George has one of his serious, inaccurate articles about it. "It seems incredible to us that it ever could arise, but the belief or non-belief in the Darwinian theory bids fair to become the test of orthodoxy in America." Sir Arthur Keith forgives us because we know not what we do; and they are all very cheerful about it.

But it seems necessary also to forgive the British, for they know not what we do, either. "The London Star" has a glimmering of the truth when it remarks that the great thinkers are unnecessarily perturbed; the others appear to have overlooked the fact that with us brass bands and four-column spreads are more apt to mean that we are settling a crisis in our intellectual lives. "The spirit of the Tennessee trial is precisely," according to "The Evening Standard" "the spirit of the ecclesiastical courts of the latter Middle Ages." After reading the reports of Mr. W. O. McGeehan one doubts it.

The British do not understand Tennessee. But it is hardly surprising, because some of us did not seem to understand Tennessee until quite recently.

IDEAS MAKE THE MILLIONS

John W. Van Huse, of Boston, author of the semi-soft collar now worn by many men, was sued by a collaborator for 30 per cent of the profits accruing from their contribution to the comfort of mankind. The latter obtaining a verdict of $1,200,000, indicating that $1,000,000 has already been realized on the idea.

This is an interesting commentary on the reward which awaits the inventor of any device which answers a universal want. Just as interesting is the manner in which Van Huse came to enter the collar business. He had a tender skin even the smoothest stiff collar irritated his neck, and a collar a little worn left cuts which were painful and healed slowly. After bearing up under this burden for years, and being loath to adopt the older soft collar with its propensity of folding up in the heat, it occurred to him that a tightly woven unstarched fabric would make an admirable collar. Knowing nothing of the technique of weaving, he commissioned a textile expert to produce a cloth adapted to his purpose. The present suit has grown out of a dispute over royalties due the man who produced the cloth. Whoever first said "Necessity is the mother of invention," certainly lacks no instances to prove his case. A motorist some years ago got tired of changing tires in the old-fashioned way. Out of his rebellion against the inconvenience of tire changing was born the detachable rim which has netted him a fortune of almost romantic size. An obscure printer in Lowell found that nailing pieces of rubber on his heels relieved the weariness attendant on walking around his shop. He has made millions since in the manufacture of rubber heels.

There are unnumbered roads to wealth, one of the most reliable being to observe one's own wants, to consider whether they are not also the wants of others, and to attempt to meet them.

LET'S WRITE OUR HALF

ATLANTA JOURNAL

Sixty years ago the words "cop-perhead and rebel" were, above the Mason-Dixon line, the ultimate epithets, fighting words. Children of the South grew up thinking "darn Yankee" was one word—Draw the curtain over the lapse of years.

Less than two years ago a Northern statesman, whose own father had died at the bite of a deadly Confederate steel, arose in the halls of congress and delivered a ringing eulogy to the unconquerable heroism of the Soldier of the South.

A congress, the majority of whose members were of Northern and Eastern descent and tradition, passed by unanimous vote this Northerner's bill to authorize the issue of 2,500 Confederate dollars of the most magnificent tribute ever paid by an American congress to any cause or people—coins bearing the imprint, "Memorial to the Valor of the Soldiers of the South."

Half of the tribute has been written. And it was written by the sons and grandsons of brave men who fought and died in combat against the Southern soldier whose valor they have recognized so gratefully. Only half of the tribute to the gray clad hosts has been written. The remainder must come from Southerners themselves, Southerners in sentiment and Southerners in their undying devotion to the heroes of the Confederacy. The South's half of the tribute will have been accomplished when Southerner's push to glorious completion and sale of every single one of the 2,500,000 Confederate Memorial coins and this cannot be done unless Southerners themselves absorb the coins. The pride of Southerners in their Southern and their veneration of their heroes have been loudly acclaimed. They have been heretofore, never been questioned, but a challenge has been issued. A profusion of zinnias made the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Zachary unusually attractive Tuesday night when Miss Margaret Zachary and Miss Margaret Cox delightfully entertained at bridge.

The places were marked by tables in the shape of hearts, diamonds, spades and clubs. After a pleasant evening of cards, scores were counted and Miss Mina Howard was presented a lovely Spanish fan for high score among the ladies. Among the men, Robert Thrasher held high and was awarded a deck of cards enclosed in a leather case. Consolation fell to Miss Marion Hand, who was presented a miniature deck of cards.

Selected Immigration Urged In Queensland

BRISBANE, July 15.—The need for the selection of immigrants, deportation of convicted aliens and the keeping of a record of all aliens in the commonwealth is stressed in a report by T. A. Ferry, under chief secretary and commissioner of prices, who was recently appointed head of a Royal Commission to inquire into the social and economic effect of the increase in number of aliens in North Queensland.

Mr. Ferry suggests a stricter medical examination and expresses the view that the existence of foreign clubs is undesirable. The present alien influx is largely from Sicily and Northern Italy, the emigrants going into the sugar industry.

Large Growth Vocational Education In State Shown Report Recently Published

TALLAHASSEE, July 11.—Growth of vocational education in Florida from 163 pupils in 1918-19 to 4,085 in 1923-24 is shown in information made public by the state department of education, and there are now more than fifty high schools in the state where vocational subjects are taught, including five for negroes.

The principal aim of the training is to fit the student for useful employment in the vocation, it being generally considered that a boy should be 14 years of age before he is guided directly into any vocation.

Vocational training, under provisions of the Smith-Hughes act, is divided into three major activities: Agricultural education for high school boys preparing for agricultural service, and on a part-time and evening trade extension basis for those already at work in agricultural pursuits; trade and industrial education for boys and girls who have left school and have gone to work at an early age, employed persons who wish to learn a trade, and employed persons who wish to extend their knowledge in the trade they are already engaged in; and home economics for high school girls and for girls and women at work at home.

Florida's allotment of federal money in 1926 to carry on this training, when matched by state money, makes available next year and each year thereafter except as influenced by the United States census the sum of $131,141.96. Congress appropriated $7,354,000 for apportionment among the states next year and annually thereafter.

The money available for use in Florida is apportioned for use in the agricultural or trade and industrial field on the basis of the rural or urban population compared to the whole population of the state. For home economics education a maximum of 29 percent of the trade and industrial fund is allowed.

In discussing the possibilities of this class of training in Florida, the state board of vocational training, which is identical with the state board of education, says in a published document: "There are approximately 25,000 boys between the ages of 14 and 20 who have dropped from school and are working on farms in Florida. This condition indicates the need for part-time education in our schools. In most cases these boys who are eligible are victims of circumstances and are hard to teach or inspire.

"We have only begun to realize the problem of training girls and women in home-making. There are comparatively few girls reached at present through the home economics course in the public schools. Even with this requirement we cannot reach all the high school girls who need it, for not all high schools are accredited." It is estimated that there are 136,000 girls in the state who may be reached through the vocational training in home economics.

USE ELECTRIC STOVE SHOWN BY MRS. BERRY

Delights Sanford Housewives Monday and Tuesday With Cooking Demonstrations

Much interest was manifested Monday and Tuesday afternoons by the women of Sanford in the electric cooking demonstrations of Mrs. Clara Berry at the Sanford Electric Company on Magnolia Avenue. Mrs. Berry, representing the Westinghouse Electric Company of Atlanta, Ga., will give her third and final demonstration this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and expects a larger number of local housewives to attend than were present at either of the first two demonstrations.

Mrs. Berry stated this morning that an attendance prize, a Westinghouse automatic electric iron, will be given away at this afternoon's demonstration. Tuesday afternoon was spent in making cakes cooked by Mrs. Berry on electrical apparatus manufactured by the Westinghouse company. Today, it was announced, she will cook a complete dinner, showing that with the use of electrical stoves, a housewife can prepare a meal without becoming overheated.

Swedish Fleet To Stage Maneuvers In Baltic Sea Soon

STOCKHOLM, July 15.—As a preliminary to plans for reorganizing the navy, there will be held in the Baltic this summer the most extensive Swedish naval maneuvers since 1914. The king will be in command.

The Swedish fleet at present consists of 11 vessels, of which 42 belong to the coast defense; 37 to local units and 32 to the reserve. Included in the main fleet, designed entirely for defensive purposes, are 12 battleships, 10 destroyers, one armored cruiser and a number of torpedo boats and submarines.

In view of the impending reorganization, appropriations for this year were limited to the continuation of the building program decided upon last year. The future policy will depend partly on the

FLORIDA FACTS

Twice as many wives bring divorce suits as do husbands in the state of Florida.

In 1772 Florida shipped 40,000 pounds of indigo to London where it brought high prices.

Expenditures for the first six months of this year by the State road department amounted to $1,182,706.41.

Two-thirds of the couples getting divorces in Florida have no children, according to a report of the state statistician.

The northern boundary of Florida was fixed at the 31st parallel by treaty between the United States and Spain in 1795.

The divorce average among couples in Florida that have children is only 1.91, it is shown in a survey of the divorce courts records.

The State road department had to its credit with the State treasurer at the close of the fiscal year, June 30, the sum of $1,096,221.31.

West Florida's first governor was George Johnstone. He served during 1764-1766. Pensacola was the capital. Johnstone was a Scotchman.

The first governor of East Florida under British control was James Grant who served during 1763-1771. St. Augustine was the capital. Grant was a Scotchman.

The year 1901 was Florida's coolest with a mean temperature of 68.8 degrees. The warmest year was 1911 with 72.3 degrees as the mean temperature.

Records show that most of the divorces are among city couples. It is shown that Central Florida which is mostly rural has fewer divorces than northeast and southern Florida where there are cities of good size.

The first large sales of the Everglades land under Governor N. B. Broward was made in 1907 to R. J. Rolfs, who died in 1917. The contract called for a payment of $1,000,000 by Mr. Rolfs, who would receive 500,000 acres. Three fourths of this amount was to be used for drainage by the state and one fourth to be turned into public school fund.

Naval stores totaling 40,000 barrels were shipped from St. Augustine in 1779. The value was 36 shillings per barrel. The government added a bounty of ten shillings per barrel.

No lands were granted railroads during Governor Jennings' administration and when he left office there were in the Fund four million acres of land and $600,000 in cash.

Governor William D. Bloxham, who served during 1897-1901, sold four million acres of the Everglades and other overflow lands to Hamilton Diston for one million dollars.

Pancho Villa Dies While Undergoing Operation Tuesday

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., July 15.—Pancho Villa, fly-weight champion of the world, died at a hospital here Tuesday, while undergoing an operation for an infection of the throat that developed from an infected tooth.

Dr. C. E. Hoffman said the boxer suffered under the anesthetic. Dr. Hoffman was preparing to operate when Villa's heart stopped. Artificial respiration failed to revive the patient.

Villa, whose real name was Francisco Gilledo, went to the hospital Monday night to have a glandular affection of the throat attended to. The throat swelling was a complication of a jaw infection caused by ulcerated teeth, the affection having first become apparent a few days before he met Jimmy McLarin here on July 4.

He was unable to go in the ring against McLarin until after a doctor removed one of his wisdom teeth. Against the advice of the physician, the swollen jaw that was plainly discernable to the ringsiders, Villa entered the ring. While showing little of his old spirit he weathered the rounds but lost the decision.

U.S. Fleet To Soon Disburse $2,000,000 Among Australians

HONOLULU, July 15.—The cargo of $2,000,000 in gold which the United States fleet is taking to Australia, to pay the men and defray some of the expense of re-fueling and re-provisioning, will be transferred bodily to the Australian government in return for Australian gold coinage at an ounce for ounce rate.

The American money then will be melted down and transformed into Australian coinage. The American government will pay a mintage fee of three pence an ounce, but will save $30,000 in exchange on the deal, naval officers estimate. If American dollars were exchanged for Australian currency, the rate would be approximately $4.91 to the pound, while the present once-for-ounce arrangement plus the small mintage charges results in a saving both to Australia and the United States, it was pointed out.

The gold arrived from the mainland aboard the transport Chaumont, and $1,200,000 was transferred to the flagship California of the battle fleet, the remaining $800,000 to the U. S. S. Omaha, flagship of the destroyer squadrons.

Reconstruction Of Tokyo Now Hampered By Ground Softness

TOKYO, July 15—The softness of the ground upon which Tokyo is built is interfering considerably with the reconstruction work now under way. Recently Dr. Kishi of the Reconstruction Bureau recommended that all work on paved streets in the districts where the layed until after the underground project has been completed. He based his recommendation upon observations made during the recent sewer construction.

In some places, it was found, the sewer excavations have caused the streets to sink more than a foot. Many houses and paved roads Dr. Kishi discovered, have been seriously damaged because of the settling of the earth.
