Of Watergate, Ehrlichman Says Nixon Asked 8 Times For Truth

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked eight times between September and March for complete reports on the Watergate affair and never received satisfaction, his former top domestic adviser, John D. Ehrlichman, testified today.

Beginning a record-equalling fifth day of testimony to the Senate Watergate committee, Ehrlichman said he was kept in the dark about Watergate planning sessions until April. But he said he notified the President of the meetings within an hour after learning of them.

Ehrlichman said, however, he did not notify the President about the break-in to the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist because "there was nothing the President could do about it."

As senators limited their questions in an effort to speed up the lengthy proceedings, Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked Ehrlichman if Nixon ever asked, prior to March of this year, for information of exactly how the Watergate break-in came about.

"Yes sir," said Ehrlichman. "On repeated occasions the President asked that a complete and definitive statement of the whole Watergate matter, how it was planned, how it was executed, the whole picture be set down on paper and released."

Q Did the President ever receive satisfaction?
A No sir.

Ehrlichman ticked off these occasions:
—In September, he asked campaign director Clark MacGregor.

—In November, he asked for a statement on Donald Segretti's role in the affair.
—Later in November, around Thanksgiving, "he asked in response to a letter that he received from a friend about this, expressing real concern about it, he said he wanted this out and cleared up before the Congress came back."
—Asked White House counsel John W. Dean III on Dec. 8 to do a Watergate summary.
—Did the same Dec. 11 and said he wanted that statement by Christmas.

Orlando Opening Of Fashion Square

By JEAN PATTESON
Herald Staff Writer

Amid flag-raising, speech-making, and the national anthem by the Walt Disney World Dixie Band, the new Orlando Fashion Square on East Colonial Drive was opened today by Leonard L. Faber, developer and owner of Fashion Square.

The U. S. Navy Color Guard from the Naval Training Center raised the American flag, and Orlando Fashion Square.

Merchant's Association president Richard Staub, general manager of Sears-Roebuck, raised the Orlando Fashion Square's flag.

Mrs. Victor T. Nixon, president of the Orlando Fashion Square, presented a bronze plaque to Faber in recognition of his interest in the continued beautification of Orlando as exemplified by the development of Orlando Fashion Square.

Since the location idea was advanced by Clyde West, regional manager of Sears, with the cooperation of many Orlando civic leaders, Orlando Fashion Square has been developed and built in 15 months.

The number of stores opening today under the mall's blue and green parasol insignia is limited due to the rapid construction, but includes the magnificent two-story, 200,000 square foot Burdine's, the newly-expanded Sears-Roebuck, and 11 others. The Hanch, Chess King, Walden Books, The Orange Bowl, Below TV and Sound Town, Thom McAn, Foxmoor, General Nutrition Center, Write Occasions-Hallmark, Lory's and Stuff To Wear.

Stores will open almost daily until 59 are open including the Oct. 15 opening of the new Robinson's of Florida.

Orlando Fashion Square— with 5,000 parking spaces— eliminates three decades of shopping center existence for Faber, one of the pioneers of shopping center development, he said.

Starting to get more and more Letters to the Editor as well as personal calls, all complaining about the increase in numbers of dogs roaming throughout the county.

Sooner or later there'll be a strict ordinance enacted relieve the pressure which is building.

Sorry to hear about former Winter Springs Chief of Police Walter Hatcher being injured by a propeller from a plane. Story we've been told is that he was fulfilling some reserve duty with the military.

Perhaps it escaped your eye... that article buried in the financial section which told of Exxon earnings rising 49 per cent.

This covered the first six months of 1972 and related to a 17 per cent gain in revenues.

Think about that for a second or two... I thought we were almost out of gasoline - just on the verge of rationing, etc.

How can you get an increase in profits when you don't have the products to sell?

When the profit picture does decline, it's usually because of selling same at a lower margin of profit. Could this have occurred during the time those independents were staging their gas wars? And now that many of these smaller merchants have been forced out of business because they couldn't get any gas, do you think that perhaps this helped to raise the profit picture for the "big boys"?

A couple more "speedy" letter deliveries to report to you from nearby Valencia Junior College, our sports department received a letter from SAC on July 29 (it was mailed in Orlando July 11) and it pertained to an event which occurred on Sunday, July 15.

City Property Tax To Remain The Same

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

The city property taxes aren't expected to go up in Sanford next year but citizens may face a 10 per cent hike in utility rates and curbside garbage pickup.

City Manager Warren Knowles submitted a balanced $2.72 million general government budget to city commissioners that won't require any changes in current property tax millage. But Knowles warned commissioners of an anticipated $9,316 deficit in the $1.24 million utility department operations that calls for a 10 per cent hike in utility rates.

Because of chronic difficulties in employing refuse personnel Knowles is recommending curbside garbage pickup, or that the city "get out of the business" and franchise private garbage firms.

"If I have anything to do with it we won't go to private garbage collection," said Mayor Lee Moore, who declined comment on curbside pickup, pending the start of city commission budget hearings Aug. 9.

However, he indicated the commission may consider going to some new $30,000 packer trucks operated by one man in conjunction with curbside pickup.

Presently the city uses $19,000 packers that require three-man crews.

Sixty-six per cent of the proposed general government increase of 25 persons.

Six new employees are sought for the fire department, seven for recreation and parks, two for the utility department.

Knowles has submitted a capital budget for commission discussion. The document shows $10.224 million in needed city improvements.

The capital budget includes a five-year financing proposal to provide a new city garage in 1975. Knowles proposes relocation of the present Sixth Street shop and various service yards to city-owned Celery Avenue property (old experiment station site) or at Sanford Airport.

The state bar has the power to investigate cases of alleged criminal or ethical misconduct. It can recommend penalties up to and including disbarment to the state Supreme Court. Disciplinary matters usually remain confidential until punitive action is recommended.

The story identified the five other California attorneys as John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's former chief domestic adviser; Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal secretary; Donald H. Segretti, former Treasury Department lawyer under indictment for alleged misconduct during the 1972 Florida presidential primary; Gordon Strachan, former aide to resigned White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman; and Robert C. Mardian, former official of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President.

Lawyers To Look At Nixon

'The State Bar of California will investigate them because of the Watergate scandal...'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Nixon and five California lawyers will be told today that the State Bar of California will investigate them because of the Watergate scandal, a newspaper reports.

The San Francisco Examiner reported in Sunday editions that the bar's board of governors voted here Friday "by a slim majority" to initiate formal proceedings against the six, starting with the investigation. Details of the board's resolution were unavailable, but the paper said it learned from unidentified sources the resolution dealt extensively with Watergate.

The newspaper reported that the sources said Nixon and the others would be notified by special delivery letter today.

The Examiner said Bar President Leonard S. Jansky of Los Angeles denied the report as "absolutely absurd." He declined to say whether the matter was discussed during the board's three-day meeting here.

Board member Joanne Garvey of San Francisco said she could "neither confirm nor deny" the report.

Tiny Leak Repaired In Orbiting Station

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Skylab 2 astronauts, interrupted once during their sleep to repair a tiny leak in their orbiting space station, continued to suffer from motion sickness today and said they would have to take it easy on their work schedule.

(Earlier story Page 5A)

Jack R. Louman remained the sickest of the trio, with Alan L. Bean and Dr. Owen K. Garriott reporting lesser degrees of stomach queasiness. Space agency doctors had hoped they would recover completely today so they could complete activation of the space station on this third of their planned 59 days aboard the orbiting station.

The astronauts already were a day behind schedule, forcing a postponement of a planned space walk from Tuesday until at least Wednesday.

Bean, Garriott and Louman slept late today after being awakened early this morning to track down and stop a tiny leak in the station.

Asked by Mission Control if they had taken any medication, commander Bean replied that Louman, who vomited on Saturday and Sunday, had taken another pill for motion sickness.

"Jack is not feeling too good still," Bean said. "He was feeling better yesterday, and then getting up this morning he's a little bit slow. So essentially I think he's not going to be working as fast as we'd like him to."

Dayan Hints He Will Quit; Wants Israel To Be Bigger

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — With a cautious threat that he might resign, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan is campaigning to force the government to create a bigger Israel.

Dayan warned that he would "not be able to run for election with the Labor party" unless the government accepts his program.

Political analysts immediately sniffed a split looming inside the ruling party, with the popular Dayan possibly running independently for the premiership in the national elections three months away. Premier Golda Meir has announced that she will seek reelection.

Hughes 'Hoaxer' Asks For Parole

WASHINGTON (AP)—Clifford Irving, jailed for duping a publisher with a fake biography of billionaire reclusé Howard Hughes, carried a plea for freedom to the U.S. Parole Board today.

The world was startled at Irving's claim in late 1971 that he had conducted clandestine interviews with Hughes and that his book bore Hughes' authorization.

The story gained credence when a leading publishing house, McGraw-Hill, bought the book and turned over $750,000 in advance payments to the 42-year-old writer.

But as publication drew close, Hughes took a rare step from seclusion and issued a public denial of Irving's claims. In the ensuing investigation, Irving's story crumbled and he admitted the hoax.

Overcoming cancer Courage is the beginning of the cure

By John Henry Jones

What do Jack Pardee, Super Bowl star and defensive line-backer of the Washington Redskins, and Mrs. Ida Fleming, a young black mother of three from north Philadelphia, have in common?

Courage.

Both had the courage to face the fact that they had cancer. And both had the courage to beat it in time.

Pardee, who was honored by President and Mrs. Nixon at a recent White House ceremony launching the American Cancer Society's 1973 Crusade, not only overcame an often fatal form of cancer, melanoma, but has also dedicated a lot of time and effort to educate others to have regular checkups. So has Mrs. Fleming.

Pardee traces his life-saving experience to a conversation with a doctor friend after he read a newspaper story about the death of Jim Umbricht, a Houston baseball pitcher. Umbricht had died of cancer in 1964, the first sign of which was a mole on his leg.

"I noticed I had a mole like that on my right arm. My wife, Phyllis, argued me to have it looked at," Pardee recalls. "I had a checkup the next day and it was malignant. The doctors told me to have my affairs in order. They promised me nothing."

In April, 1965, Pardee underwent an 11-hour operation, involving his right hip and the lymph glands of his right arm and chest.

"I was lucky," Pardee says. "The cancer was caught in time. Had I waited much longer, it probably would have spread too far to be stopped."

Pardee got himself ready for July training camp in time, but somehow his 1965 season was a poor one and he decided to retire from pro football. He joined the coaching staff of Texas A. & M. College.

But football was still in Pardee's blood and when George Allen became coach of the Los Angeles Rams, he had little trouble in persuading Pardee to give it another try.

Last year, Pardee, under Allen, led the Washington Redskins all the way to the Super Bowl.

Mrs. Fleming found out through a Pap test during one of her regular visits to the birth control service of the Mothers' Health Center in North Philadelphia. After one visit, the clinic asked her to come in for further tests.

"I was really scared. What if the test was positive? What chance did I have if it was cancer? I asked myself this question over and over before I made up my mind to go back to the clinic," she remembers.

Following more tests, Mrs. Fleming checked into University Presbyterian Hospital for a biopsy. The malignant diagnosis was confirmed and she underwent surgery.

"When I woke up I had a feeling that everything would be fine. First I had confidence in God and my doctor, and then I realized I had done the right thing in having the tests and the operation."

After about two weeks, Mrs. Fleming returned home to resume a normal life as a wife and mother.

Since then, she has encouraged her friends and neighbors to have Pap tests regularly. "I urge every woman to

Skylab 2 Taking It Slow To Shake 'Motion Sickness'

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Space Writer

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP)—Skylab 2's astronauts planned to take it "slow and easy" today, hoping to shake the effects of motion sickness that have postponed a space walk.

Flight surgeons expected all three men to recover today from the seasickness-like illness as they adapt to weightlessness.

"We're feeling a little better," commander Alan I. Bean reported Sunday night. "But we need some slack time to get squared away. Just don't wake us up tomorrow. When we get up on our own we'll start working."

Minutes earlier, Mission Control had informed Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma that, because of the illness, the flight plan was being changed to give them a more relaxing day today.

Mission Control also told them that a space walk scheduled Tuesday by Lousma and Garriott had been delayed until at least Wednesday.

"We couldn't ask for better than that," said Bean, who had suggested the possibility earlier Sunday.

During the 3½-hour walk, Lousma and Garriott are to change film in a solar telescope-camera system and install a new sunshade on the outside of the laboratory to reinforce the protection of a shade deployed by the Skylab 1 crew in May.

"The three astronauts were hit by motion sickness shortly after they linked up with the Skylab station Saturday to begin a record 56-day space mission. Lousma vomited after eating a meal Saturday night and again Sunday morning.

By Sunday morning, all three felt better and continued the tedious job of setting up house-keeping in the laboratory—activating water, air-conditioning, electrical and other systems. But the moving around caused more queasiness.

Space agency doctors said the men were ill because their movements in weightlessness in the huge lab upset their vestibular systems—the sense-of-balance apparatus in the middle ear.

The physicians noted that several previous American astronauts had become ill until their systems adapted to the alien space environment.

Watkins Glen Promoter Hints At A New Festival

By THOMAS S. BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP)—Promoter Shelly Finkel says the Grand Prix race track where his weekend rock festival attracted 600,000 fans. He says he'd like to use it again for another festival in six weeks.

But trying convincing local officials and townspeople of this rural western New York village they need another massive bottleneck of cars and people such as the one caused by the newly named "Summer Jam."

By nightfall Sunday, nearly all the young people had left the track and only 1,000 acres strewn with garbage remained as testimony to the event that surpassed in size the 1969 Woodstock festival and was the biggest ever held in the United States.

A few hundred campers lingered in the earlier confusion. "Summer Jam" started more than a week ago as people began trickling into the track for a leisurely wait for concert time Saturday.

On Thursday and Friday, the trickle became a tide, engulfing nearly all roads in the Watkins Glen vicinity.

When the Grateful Dead band opened the concert with "Sweet Magnolia" Saturday noon, about 600,000 persons had managed to reach the track area. Most of them pressed to get within at least hearing distance of the performers.

Finkel, 28, of New York City, who with partner Jim Koplik, 23, started organizing the concert in February, called the jam a tremendous success.

"We think things went incredibly well in terms of all the extra people we never expected," he said.

Asked why the turnout was three times what he anticipated, Finkel credited it to the drawing power of the groups—the Dead, The Band and the Allman Brothers.

"Also people wanted the experience of a big concert," he said. "The memory of Woodstock was certainly there."

Many people who attended said no one at the gates had bothered to check them for the $10 ticket. Finkel said he had suspended ticket checking when traffic started to build at the entrances.

Finkel said he was not yet sure whether he had made a profit. "I hope so," he smiled. He estimated his gross at $1.3 million and his expenses at $1 million.

He admits that a second show awaits further negotiation with the track owner, local and state officials and the entertainers.

Schuler County Sheriff Maurice F. Dean praised the youthful visitors as well behaved. But as for a second concert, he said, "The people will never allow it."

Fiddlers Fiddle Fiddles

By H. F. WOLLENBERG IV
Associated Press Writer

SHELBYVILLE, Ill. (AP)—While 600,000 young people converged on a rural western New York village for a rock music festival over the weekend, folks in central Illinois were leaving their farms for the community of Shelbyville to hear some fiddling.

More than 1,100 farmers, farmer's wives and country music lovers paid $1 each Saturday night to sit in the folding chairs and wooden stands in the gymnasium where the Shelbyville Fiddlers play their high school basketball.

In Watkins Glen, N.Y., the music was provided by three rock groups, one with the macabre name of the Grateful Dead.

But in Shelbyville, the country fiddlers were people like Claude Coverstone of Newton, Cleve Fulton of St. Elmo, Burl Barstad of Shelbyville, and Oddie Griffith of Humboldt.

They stroked out tunes such as "Old Doc Henry," "Lop-Ear Mule" and "Boll Them Cabbages Down."

When it was all over, Bertha Bratton walked away with the state championship. She's a 59-year-old homemaker who sells cosmetics door-to-door.

There were seven contestants for the over-70 division, four for the women and 18 for the Old-Time Fiddling State Championship.

Ernest Ringo, who had parked his 1963 red Chevy pickup truck just outside the front door of the gym, introduced the judges, sequestered in a room out of sight of the stage.

"That way we feel there can't be any prejudice or anything like that, and they'll select the fiddler that plays the best," said the balding, white-haired president of the Illinois Old-Time Fiddlers Association.

Another fiddling contest in Craftsbury Common, Vt., didn't go quite as smoothly.

For 11 years, the tiny Vermont town has hosted an Old-Time Fiddlers contest, drawing fiddlers from throughout New England and eastern Canada. But next year things may change.

There have been no guidelines and anyone with a fiddle and bow could step before the audience and play. Saturday, the contest's chief judge, Earl Wilson, shook his head in disgust at some of what he heard.

"We just haven't got the competition for an old-time fiddlers' contest anymore," said Wilson. He claimed the true fiddle music was being diluted by folk music and bluegrass, popular with the numerous young people in attendance.

"We're going to have to set some standards. We've either got to say, it's got to be a folk festival or an old-time fiddle contest," said Wilson, a retired Craftsbury farmer.

More than 11,000 people crowded the grassy meeting place in the center of Craftsbury, an area with a population of 52.

It is that deadline that prompted, in part, the Senate movement for a review.

Air Act Will Be Reviewed

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate, reacting to government proposals that would sharply restrict automobile use in urban areas, is preparing to order a re-evaluation of the 1970 Clean Air Act.

But supporters of the act deny abandonment of the goal of cleaning the nation's air by the end of the decade.

In fact, a Senate staff member who helped write the act says health standards the law is designed to protect are necessary and in some cases may not be rigorous enough.

The most-disputed section of the act requires that automobile manufacturers produce a virtually pollution-free engine by Jan. 1, 1976.

Today's Thought

At Least The Teapot Domers Were Smart

Once upon a time a wise man observed, and noted, that history repeats itself. And ever since, precedents have been dredged up for every event and every occasion, presumably fortifying a companion adage, that there is nothing new under the sun.

Thus it is with Watergate, which more than once has been referred to as "the Teapot Dome of the '70s."

There are similarities, and there are differences, but the undeniable parallel is that each time the government got itself into a mess. And both situations involved presidents who trusted the members of their political family.

Where Watergate and Teapot Dome come most glaringly to the parting of the ways is in the motivation.

Teapot Dome was real old-fashioned, basic skulduggery, connivance with a profit motive. For sure, money was involved in Watergate, too, but its problems stemmed from a determination to win an election which attained the fervor of a crusade. In Teapot Dome there was shrewdness, however shady; the hallmark of Watergate has been stupidity, misplaced faith and unbelievably bad judgment.

Other Thoughts

Each time an American pauses at his supermarket or filling station he is reminded of the high prices that he is paying because of the growing shortage of things. Cheerful notes are few.

However, perhaps there is one hopeful ray of light. It is found in the anguished cries heard all across the United States of America from Washington to Corcoran Junction that the paper shufflers are running out of paper because it is in such short supply.

Neither outraged wife nor angry husband; neither voter nor wounded taxpayer has yet been able to stay the inexorable advance of that law of Parkinson which says that bureaucracy multiplies at a fixed rate regardless of the amount of work to be done.

At last maybe we have an ally in a weapon that could be mightier than sword or pen — paper.

Warren Harding had taken over as president after winning in 1920 by compiling more votes, popular and electoral, than any president in American history, up to that time. He could have felt entitled to claim a mandate.

Harding named as his secretary of the interior a man with whom he had served in the Senate, Albert Fall of New Mexico. History shows no reason apparent at that time as to why Fall should not have been deemed trustworthy.

But before the first year of Harding's administration was up, Fall had seen to the leasing of giant oil reserves, held for the Navy, to a couple of big oil companies. Two of the reserves were in California, the third was Teapot Dome.

Mercurial Sihanouk Will He Attend Cambodian Talks?

By EDWARD NEILAN Copy News Service

WASHINGTON — Cambodian's former chief of state, Norodom Sihanouk, is the wild card in the Southeast Asia power game. The United States has made it known that it is ready to talk with the exiled prince as a participant in peace negotiations in Cambodia.

State Department officials concede that Sihanouk, who has considerable clout in Peking and Hanoi, must be given a chair at the peace table. But with the running short (Aug. 15 is the congressionally imposed deadline for cutoff of bombing by the United States in Cambodia), it is still not clear if the United States will talk with the United States.

Up to now, Sihanouk has said: (1) He would refuse to meet with any American emissaries, including presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and (2) He would reject any solution proposed by the United States to end the fighting in Cambodia.

Speaking in Pyongyang, capital of North Korea, the other day, Sihanouk denounced alleged U.S. plans to set up a coalition government in Cambodia or, if that did not work, to impose an on-the-spot cease-fire and slice the country in half.

"This or that solution of the Cambodian question, which the U.S.A. and certain West and East European powers want to offer the Khmer (Cambodian) people like a poisoned plate, is absolutely unacceptable," the prince was quoted by the North Korean Central News Agency. But Sihanouk has changed his mind before.

In fact, descriptives like "mercurial," "impulsive" and "high-strung walker" assigned to him by journalists were earned by his fancy diplomatic footwork.

Japan Moves Into Latin America

By ALPHONSE MAX Copy News Service

MONTREAL, Quebec — Japan is fast moving into the vacuum the United States is leaving in Latin America. The Japanese obviously consider that the countries south of the Rio Grande are both a fertile field for investment and a bonafide source of raw materials and even manufactured goods.

There is nothing treacherous or subversive about the escalating Japanese interest in the other American republics. A combination of several factors has worked to create a situation ripe for the Japanese.

First, perhaps, are the measures taken by the United States and some Western European countries to protect their industries. That protectionism primarily worked to the detriment of Japan, but it also has prejudiced Latin America.

Then there has been incessant Communist propaganda depicting the Western capitalist as the "imperialist exploiter" of Latin America. So effective has the campaign been that even the United States seems to have come mistakenly to believe that, say, International Telephone and Telegraph (ITT) makes and breaks Latin American governments at will.

Vacation Rhetoric This Stuff Is Just Double Talk

By HAL BOYDE

NEW YORK (AP) — Summer is the best season to study double talk. This is the language most vacation resort literature is written in, and it is also the language most returning vacationers use to describe what a fine time they had on their holidays, no matter how bad a time they really had.

The elements in the present Cambodian situation are Sihanouk with the backing of Peking and Hanoi, the Cambodian government of Lon Nol who is ostensibly backed by the United States and the Cambodian insurgents known as the Khmer Rouge (Reds) or the Cambodian People's National Liberation Armed Forces.

When Kissinger makes a scheduled trip to Peking soon, the Cambodia question is expected to be at the top of his working agenda. One scenario discussed at the state department would have Kissinger seeking Peking's aid in imposing restraints on North Vietnam, and the Cambodian insurgents in return for relaxation of U.S. assistance to the Lon Nol government in Phnom Penh.

As a concession, the United States would agree to support Sihanouk's return as the nominal leader of a coalition government. As a concession, the United States would agree to support Sihanouk's return as the nominal leader of a coalition government.

Human psychology being what it is, there's a foolproof way President Nixon could take the wind out of the Ervin committee's sails, cut the ground from under his detractors and bury the subject of Watergate once and for all.

Instead of getting up on his high horse of executive privilege in answer to the committee's request for tapes of White House conversations, and certainly instead of taking it as an attempt to "get" him personally or politically, he ought to command three hours of prime time on all radio and television networks and proceed to play the darned tapes — unedited, just as they were recorded, with all the ums, ahs, ughs, harrumphs, coughs, false starts, penmanship, background clatter of doors opening and closing, pencils drumming on desks and papers being shuffled.

To be sure, listening to a president's private conversations would be a fascinating thing — for a few minutes. But to endure the long stretches of dullness there must inevitably be, to attempt to make sense of cryptic references in White House verbal shorthand to people and things the average person never heard of in hopes of hearing something truly exciting would require the stamina and dedication of a truly born cave-dweller.

Most Americans would be asleep before the first hour was up. And there would be no reruns of the "Watergate Tapes."

"Well, the reason me and my wife went there was because the fishing was so great." "No, we didn't catch any ourselves, but I saw one guy reel in three in a row, each of them at least five inches long.

BRUCE BLOSSAT Idiosyncrasy, yes; inefficiency, no!

A very bright young man pleading for new freedoms said they ought to include "a little more tolerance of idiosyncrasy and a little more tolerance of inefficiency."

This American society of 1973 lives on inefficiency as never before. It may in some curious way represent "freedom" to the people who practice it, but it is surely a deprivation of freedom for their victims. It exacts a heavy price in time and money wasted, in frustration and irritation, in loss of satisfaction and enjoyment.

We all know there are chronic complainers, some demanding impossible perfection. That's not what I'm talking about. I'm speaking of failure to do necessary, routine things in a way you ought, reasonably, to be able to expect.

I just finished a ride on one of the nation's lesser but still key airlines. It involved connecting flights. The ticket seller wrote up baggage tags on which our final destination appeared nowhere. He assured me he had "fixed" that part of the tags actually attached to the luggage.

On the trip the stewardesses ignored the man in front of us who smoked steadily in the nonsmoking section. When my wife told me that her soft drink was "flat" (had lost its fizz), the girl said such a thing couldn't happen.

At the terminal, one of three pieces of luggage was missing. It finally turned up, at a second baggage area a quarter of a mile from the first. The explanation? Simple. The airline uses both. The customer on a given flight apparently takes poll.

A government aviation official told me he handles thousands of every four messages it takes down. In nine years I've moved my office once and my residence three times. In every single instance, telephone installers came with garbled orders. Never did they come at the appointed time, usually a long spin designed for their own convenience.

Ever waited eight hours in vain in an empty house? When my office phone was moved, it was hooked up to a wrong number. The exchange, without authority, they cancelled a credit card which took weeks to get reinstated. Assurances of action daily filled the air.

I know of an answering service which regularly garbles three of every four messages it takes down. Our car has a nagging oil leak. Mechanics have proudly declared "it's fixed" maybe 20 times. Each time, within a day or two, tell-tale oil stains spot the driveway.

It's possible to take lessons in almost anything nowadays, from painting to preserving, to playing a musical instrument (the ancient musical instrument). Name it and someone in the community can teach you, often with no tuition.

There is one notable exception. Virtually no one gives a course in how to prepare. Without authority, they cancelled a credit card which took weeks to get reinstated. Assurances of action daily filled the air.

Many retirees discover they don't know what to do with the never-ending days they suddenly have stretching ahead of them. Not having to get up every morning to go to work is a relief after a couple of weeks. Rare is the man who can happily spend his time doing nothing, or playing golf or fishing — or getting under his wife's feet.

When enforced leisure becomes the reality and not the dream, boredom and depression often set in. One state is doing something about this problem, however. Early this summer Connecticut established an Office of Pre-Retirement Education believed to be the first in the country. Funded with $50,000, it will develop a program to ease the way into retirement, modeled after a successful pre-retirement program that has been conducted since 1964 by Scovill Manufacturing Co. in Waterbury and Local 1664 of the United Auto Workers.

Hundreds of employees of this diversified manufacturer and their spouses have completed the eight-session course in which, with the help of trained leaders, they explored such topics as health, financial planning, leisure, Social Security, Medicare, legal problems, living arrangements and nutrition. The new program will cover much the same ground.

None of these concerns is unique to Connecticut, of course. This pre-retirement education program could become a model for other states.

Nixon overlooks sure weapon

Human psychology being what it is, there's a foolproof way President Nixon could take the wind out of the Ervin committee's sails, cut the ground from under his detractors and bury the subject of Watergate once and for all.

Shootings By Police Questioned

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Memorial services for a young social worker killed by police have sparked appeals for changes in a Florida law that allows officers to shoot at fleeing felons.

"We must seek a way to use the law without taking life, to use the law only as a last resort to prevent killing by those who are crazed or maddened by whatever form of godlessness," said Gainesville City Commissioner Russell Ramsey at the Sunday services.

Ramsey said he could accept situations where lawmen need to shoot to prevent loss of life. But Gerald Thornton, he added, was not one of those who presented a danger to society.

Thornton, 22, remembered as a quiet, respected person who went into social work in Gainesville to help people, was fatally shot in the head while attempting to flee Florida Highway Patrol troopers after an accident.

VD Testing Sought In High School Years

MIAMI (AP) — Florida should require all high school students to submit to yearly tests for venereal disease unless their parents object, a Miami state representative says.

"Parents do not want to believe that a child as young as 14 may be involved in sexual activity, but statistics prove differently," State Rep. Ruth Gordon said Sunday in announcing her proposal. "Young people from 13 to 25 years old are in the group with one of the highest rates of venereal disease."

The Miami Democrat said she will introduce her measure to require tests for students from the ninth through the 12th grades during the 1974 session of the legislature.

"I am not proposing this because it's a popular idea but because it is a necessary one," she said. "I don't want to see a 14-year-old mother of three teenagers said."

Mrs. Gordon said she was sponsoring the legislation because of a serious venereal disease epidemic in this country. She said she "wouldn't be late" to have her own children take such tests.

But she said that her bill would include a provision so that parents could have their children excluded by writing a note to school officials.

Vietnam Vets Will Plead Cause Of 'Gainesville 8' On Streets

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War plan to plead the organization's case in the street when the trial begins Tuesday for eight antiwar activists accused of plotting to disrupt the 1972 Republican National Convention with violence.

Spokesmen say they plan to demonstrate during the first week of the trial "to give a true picture of what the VVAW really is."

'Stilt City' For Wealthy Irking Conservationists

MIAMI (AP) — About seven miles off Miami in shallow bay waters teeming with bonfish, snapper, sponges, and coral is the nucleus of a subdivision-at-sea — a tentative still house village for the rich.

Keith Heaton, manager of a rejuvenated exclusive country club, talks of a grandiose plan to build up 200 still houses reached by yacht while the wealthy can live with the ocean under their doorstep.

The plans could resurrect speculators' dreams of making the area "the Venice of the West."

But conservationists say there is no possibility the state will allow more of the once-fishermen cabins now turned luxurious retreats to meek up Biscayne Bay.

Ownership of Islandia, a string of tiny islands, extends into more than 240 acres, but the man's blonde 15-year-old daughter said dragged her off her front porch and tried to rape her. "I'm so angry," McNamara said, "but this has turned my stomach."

Neighbors saw a knife-wielding assailant drive off with the struggling girl and called police. The girl escaped, her clothes torn and her face bruised, and gave her father and police a description of the attacker.

McNamara said he was glad he "didn't do anything more serious."

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The presiding judge at the trial of eight antiwar activists is known as both a liberal and a conservative.

In the conservative Panhandle of Florida where he has sat for four years, U.S. District Judge Winston E. Arnow has a reputation of being a bit of a liberal.

In Pensacola, a town proud of its southern traditions, Arnow has become known for his liberal views on the federal bench the past four years.

Some close his eyes to the field of criminal law, Arnow is conservative.

He believes in keeping a tight rein on his courtroom and cited CBS News for contempt for violating a ban on broadcasting sketches of courtroom scenes made from memory during a pre-trial hearing for the Gainesville Eight.

The Gainesville Eight — seven members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War and

"We view this as an open attack on our organization," said John Musgrave, a spokesman for the veterans organization which claims a membership of 30,000.

The government indictment charges the eight with conspiring in Gainesville in May 1972 to attack police cars, police stations and businesses in Miami Beach with semi-automatic weapons, shotguns, crossbows and bombs.

Defendants have said the meeting was to plan peaceful demonstrations. The trial has been delayed since last fall at the request of defense attorneys.

U.S. District Judge Winston Arnow, who will preside at the trial, denied during pre-trial hearings defense attempts to link the prosecution to the Watergate burglary and cover-up.

Arnow said the defense had not shown any evidence of governmental misconduct in the case and has refused to allow them to look at files they say will prove misconduct. The first indictments in the case were returned by a grand jury in Tallahassee July 14, 1972, nearly a month after the Watergate break-in.

Arnow has imposed tight rules to be enforced during the trial, including restricting the number of people who can enter the courtroom and forbidding attorneys, witnesses and defendants from making public statements.

He had banned sketching in the courtroom or from memory, but a federal appeals court in New Orleans suspended the order last Wednesday.

Last month Arnow cited CBS News for contempt of court for violating his ban on making courtroom sketches from memory and broadcasting them.

Arnow has also ordered that jurors be sequestered during the trial, which he estimates will last three to four weeks.

Weekend Accidents Kill 10

The Florida Highway Patrol reported a truck driver failed to see Alfred Palumbo on his tricycle and struck and killed the man as the light changed at an intersection in the Oakland Park area.

Pedestrians losing their lives include Cleveland Davis, 42, of Woodville; Charlie Coleman, 64, of Plymouth; and Patricia Ruth Billel, 2, of Del Rio Springs, officers said.

Three persons were killed in a head-on collision on a rural road in Putnam County Friday night.

Fowler McCaskell, 32, of Pensacola, died early Sunday when his speeding car left the road and struck an abandoned vehicle.

Brenda Tucker, 24, of Tampa, was killed and her husband and 2-year-old daughter injured in a two-car crash just outside Tampa Saturday night.

John Williams Jr., of Webster, was killed in a head-on collision on State Road 471 just south of Webster in Sumter County.

Outraged Dad Collars Suspect

MIAMI (AP) — Construction worker Frank McNamara is nursing a swollen face today after he hunted down and battered a man charged with attacking his daughter.

"I went out looking for him at 4 a.m.," said McNamara, who lost several teeth and was cut in the Sunday fight.

McNamara told police he went "berserk" after he found the man his blonde 15-year-old daughter said dragged her off her front porch and tried to rape her. "I'm so angry," McNamara said, "but this has turned my stomach."

Neighbors saw a knife-wielding assailant drive off with the struggling girl and called police. The girl escaped, her clothes torn and her face bruised, and gave her father and police a description of the attacker.

EDITORIALS Program teaches retirement living

By Don Oakley

It's possible to take lessons in almost anything nowadays, from painting to preserving, to playing a musical instrument (the ancient musical instrument). Name it and someone in the community can teach you, often with no tuition.

There is one notable exception. Virtually no one gives a course in how to prepare. Without authority, they cancelled a credit card which took weeks to get reinstated. Assurances of action daily filled the air.

Many retirees discover they don't know what to do with the never-ending days they suddenly have stretching ahead of them. Not having to get up every morning to go to work is a relief after a couple of weeks. Rare is the man who can happily spend his time doing nothing, or playing golf or fishing — or getting under his wife's feet.

When enforced leisure becomes the reality and not the dream, boredom and depression often set in. One state is doing something about this problem, however.

Early this summer Connecticut established an Office of Pre-Retirement Education believed to be the first in the country. Funded with $50,000, it will develop a program to ease the way into retirement, modeled after a successful pre-retirement program that has been conducted since 1964 by Scovill Manufacturing Co. in Waterbury and Local 1664 of the United Auto Workers.

Hundreds of employees of this diversified manufacturer and their spouses have completed the eight-session course in which, with the help of trained leaders, they explored such topics as health, financial planning, leisure, Social Security, Medicare, legal problems, living arrangements and nutrition. The new program will cover much the same ground.

None of these concerns is unique to Connecticut, of course. This pre-retirement education program could become a model for other states.

Sunburned Pilot Whale Found Dead

GHASSY KEY, Fla. (AP) — Susie the sunburned pilot whale was found dead, dashing hopes of marine biologists throughout the world who monitored her unique recovery after a suicide attempt 45 days ago.

Susie had been nursed and tended at Flipper's Sea School in this southern Florida town after being rescued from a suicidal beaching attempt June 13.

Since Susie was the first pilot whale known to have survived a beaching, marine biologists and veterinarians all over the United States and Europe requested daily information about her progress.

The Smithsonian Institution's Short Lived Phenomena Department issued weekly progress reports on two-year old Susie.

The whale's body was dissected by Florida Marine Patrol divers at the bottom of her huge enclosed pool Saturday.

And Jim Lewis, manager of the school, said it appeared Susie made a second attempt to beach herself because the body was in the shallowest area of the pool.

Susie is one of nine whales that beached off Florida Bay in 1967 in a suicidal manner similar to the huge mammoth Susie was debilitated and badly sunburned when rescued by Florida Marine Patrol.

Cubs, Pirates Reach 'Break-Even'

By HERSHEL MISSIONSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates reached a couple of "break-even" points Sunday which they hope will help them come out on top of the National League East in October.

The Cubs, whose losing ways reached 13 of 18 games when they bowed to the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 in their double-header opener, salvaged a split by taking the nightcap 5-4 with a three-run rally in the seventh inning capped by Billy Williams' RBI single.

"That's the happiest I've been to split a doubleheader in a long time," said Manager Whitey Lockman. "I wouldn't call it a disaster if we had lost, but it would have been pretty bad. We'd have been 4½ out instead of 2½."

The Pirates, meanwhile, used home runs by Willie Stargell in the first game and Bob Robertson and Manny Sanguillen in the nightcap for a pair of 5-2 victories over the Philadelphia Phillies and reached the 500 mark—36-50—for the first time since June 5. They have won nine of 11 and trail the Cardinals by four games.

Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Dodgers dethroned the San Francisco Giants 6-2, the Cincinnati Reds lost their opener to the San Diego Padres 7-1 but won the nightcap 4-2, the Houston Astros beat the Atlanta Braves 6-5 and the Montreal Expos

Petty Takes Penn 500 Flag

By BLOYD BRITT

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP)—Richard Petty had to leave his Southern habitat to win the third round of his racing career, but he took the trophy home the same.

The 38-year-old second-generation driver from Hanover, N.C., came from behind to whip a tough contingent of United States Auto Club pros in Sunday's Pennsylvania 500-mile stock car race.

Poco International Raceway.

And, while he steered the red-and-blue STP Dodge, it was his crew that made the difference as he overhauled both Roger McCluskey and Butch Hartman in the final 100 miles to take home the $5,520 first-place check from a $50,000 purse.

McCluskey drove a Plymouth to third place. Rame Stott was fourth in another Plymouth.

In another racing development Sunday, driver Massimo Larni of Italy died in a Liege, Belgium, hospital of injuries suffered in the 24 Hours of Francorchamps one week ago.

England's Brian Redman won the 100-mile L&M Formula 5000 road race at Elkhart Lake, Wis., as South Africa's Jody Scheckter placed second, only 13 seconds back. Third place went to Eddie Wieser of Canada, fourth to David Hobbs of England and fifth to Bob Muir of Australia. The speed was 111.245 miles an hour.

In a Trans-Am event for production line sports cars at Elkhart Lake Saturday, first place went to John Greenwood of Belgium, hospital of injuries suffered in the 24 Hours of Francorchamps one week ago.

But the Scott's success was marred by a fatal accident early in the race that killed British driver Roger Williamson.

Williamson died after his STP March and that of fellow Briton David Purvis collided in a fast corner on the eighth lap. Purvis managed to stop his car at the left side of the track, but Williamson's auto crashed into the track-side rails and overturned.

shaded the New York Mets 6-4.

Dodgers 6, Giants 2
Willie Crawford drove in three runs with a homer and a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning and Steve Garvey added a three-run homer to power Andy Messersmith and the Dodgers to victory.

Trailing 2-0, the Dodgers snapped a 17-inning scoreless streak in the bottom of the first game and Joe Ferguson walked and Crawford hit his ninth homer of the year.

Padres 7-2, Reds 1-4
The Reds trotted out a couple of no-name pitchers and got a solid performance from Roger Neron and a spotty showing from Gary Nolan.

Nelson, who was unable to pitch from May 28 until July 21, hurled seven strong innings, allowing one unearned run, to win the nightcap. The Padres spoiled Nolan's 1973 debut by scoring three runs on only one hit in the first inning of the opener.

Astros 8, Braves 5
Tommy Helms delivered a tie-breaking two-run double in the eighth inning and then scored on Tommie Agee's double.

Darrell Evans blasted his 26th home run, a two-run shot in the seventh, to put the Braves ahead 5-4 but the Astros tied it in their half in Cesar Cedeno's double and Bob Watson's single.

Expos 6, Mets 4
Ron Fairly's tie-breaking two-run single capped a three-run eighth-inning rally. The Expos tied the game when Ken Singleton singled and Bob Bailey doubled, then loaded the bases against Ray Sadecki on two walks before Fairly singled.

In the American League, Milwaukee took a doubleheader from New York 7-2 and 6-3. Detroit trounced Baltimore 8-3. Cleveland beat Boston 8-2 and 6-3. Oakland lost to Texas 3-0 but bounced back to win the nightcap 7-4. Kansas City took two from California 7-0 and 7-0 in 11 innings and Chicago dethroned Minnesota 8-6.

Fainting Spell Saves Lou Brock For Baseball

By MARTY HENDIN
Copley News Service

ST. LOUIS—Except for a fortunate fainting spell, Lou Brock might today be working with his father as a laborer in El Dorado, Ark., instead of as the left fielder for the St. Louis Cardinals.

"As a freshman in 1956, I spent the first few weeks of practice for the Southern University (Baton Rouge, La.) baseball team without the coach even knowing I was there," Brock recalled. "He had a set team of juniors and seniors and wasn't really paying attention to anyone else."

"One day during practice the pressure and other things just caught up with me and I fainted," Brock said. "It was a very embarrassing performance was no fluke. Brock never batted under 350 in four years of high school ball. In his senior year he hit a robust .436 as a switch hitter. That performance was not enough to earn him an athletic scholarship, however, and he entered Southern University on an academic grant."

"I was a very disappointing time when no scouts came to the door," Brock said. Brock started his college career as a pitcher but wound up in left field after injuring his arm while warming up.

"I've never really recovered from that arm injury," Lou confided. "I've never thrown in professional ball like I did in my first year of college."

Outfielder Brock hit only 180 during his freshman year, but rebounded the next season to hit an NAA record 345.

He was invited to participate in the Pan American Games in 1959 and met many other eventual sports stars, including a 17-year-old kid named Cassius Clay.

Brock's exposure in the Pan Am Games and a junior year batting average of .352 created much interest among scouts for a major league team. During a summer vacation spent in Chicago, Lou worked out with the Cubs and White Sox and signed with the Cubs in the fall of 1960.

"I was approached by several big clubs but thought I could make it quicker with the Cubs," Brock said. "The Cubs were struggling at the time and needed outfield help. They showed me who in their organization was ahead of me. It was a very thin line between Class C and AAA."

The line proved to be even thinner than Brock expected. He went to spring training with the Cubs in 1961, joined their Class C team at St. Cloud, Minn., in May, was hitting .390 in August, and was called up to the Cubs in September.

Lo spent all of 1962 and '63 with the Cubs and was traded to the Cardinals on June 15, 1964, with pitchers Jack Spring and Paul Tost for pitchers Ernie Broglio and Bobby Shantz and outfielder Doug Clemens.

The same player who averaged .255 with the Cubs hit a .348 clip during the rest of 1964 and sparked the fledgling Cardinals to their first pennant in 18 years.

A long-ball hitter in high school and college, Brock became a different hitter in professional ball and it paid off in numerous base stealing records. He has led the National League in stolen bases in six different years, and has tied Ty Cobb's Major League record of eight seasons with 50 or more thefts. Brock already owns the Major League mark of seven consecutive 50-theft seasons.

"My speed was never that noticeable when I turned pro and the Cubs tried to make me into a base stealer."

Land Of Rising Sun Taking To The Links

Kyodo—Copley News Service

TOKYO—More than a generation ago professional baseball swept across Japan as a spectator sport. Today golf is beginning to rival baseball in popularity, but as a participating sport.

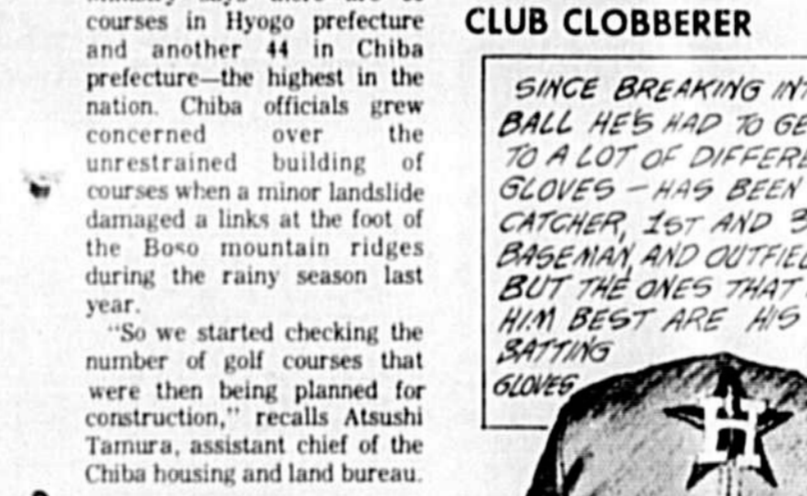

Matter of fact, the recent golf boom on the crowded Japanese archipelago has caused a light tremor of alarm among Japanese government officials. They fear the 600 golf courses already open and another 750 being built or planned might be a threat to the environment.

In some regions officials already have moved to prevent overbuilding of golf courses where conservation areas have been set aside for rare birds and animals or for natural parks.

The Japanese Construction Ministry says there are 55 courses in Hyogo prefecture and another 44 in Chiba prefecture—the highest in the nation. Chiba officials grew concerned over the unrestrained building of courses when a minor landslide damaged a links at the foot of the Boso mountain ridges during the rainy season last year.

"So we started checking the number of golf courses that were then being planned for construction," recalls Atsuhisa Tamura, assistant chief of the Chiba housing and land bureau.

Golf Tips from the Old Masters

Bob Watson, Houston left fielder, is much happier behind the plate than behind the bat. The Astros might become the League's first expansion club to boast a batting champ.

Putting jitters stem directly from lack of confidence, or fear of missing, says Julius Boros. This fear is most prevalent when a great deal is at stake. Boros is convinced that it is why most golfers get most nervous on putts that are very important.

"To eliminate tension in putting you must eliminate fear of missing," Boros advises. "Fill your mind with positive thoughts like making solid contact with the ball or moving the putterhead along your line. Once you make up your mind about how you want to putt, set yourself over the ball and putt decisively."

"Above all, you must do away with any indecision about the correct direction of the putt. Once you line up the putt, don't second-guess yourself. Putt quickly and decisively."

'Players Like To See Records Broken' Greenberg Spared Racial Slurs In '38

By Ira Berkow

NEW YORK (NEA)—Even today, after 35 years, taxi drivers and shopkeepers and guys on the street fan the legend. "It must happen a hundred times a day," said Hank Greenberg. "I hear, 'Hank, if they hadn't stopped pitching to you because you're a Jew, you could have broken Ruth's record.'"

"And I tell them, 'None sense. They pitched to me. I just didn't hit over homers. Anti-Semitism had nothing to do with it.'"

Hank Greenberg, like Hank Aaron today, came close in 1938 to breaking a Babe Ruth home run record. Greenberg hit 58 homers that season, two short of the single-season record set by Ruth in 1927. Aaron has career homer record of 714.

Greenberg has been openly disgusted by the racial hate mail he receives, some of which begins, "Dear Nigger." The writers of these letters are incensed at Aaron's iconoclasm, that he is stepping on the toes of a spiked shoe deity in Ruth.

Greenberg says he received very little hate mail or even catcalls from the stands during the 1938 season.

Although it was a time of open anti-Semitism in the United States—many major firms refused to hire Jews, and much housing was also closed to them—there was a surprising degree of sympathy for the Jewish player.

Recall, in June of 1938, Joe Louis knocked out Max Baer in one round. Greenberg was the darling of Hitler Germany. This was hailed as a victory over the Nazi "superman" theory. Americans also sympathized

Dear Abby

To her way of thinking, she's got a 'whole' man

By Abigail Van Buren
A 1973 by CHARLES FRIEDMAN & NEW YORK, INC.

DEAR ABBY: This is concerning "Heartbroken Parents" whose beautiful 26-year-old nurse daughter was marrying a young man who had lost both his legs when he stepped on a mine near Saigon. She could easily have gotten a "whole man," her mother roared.

DEAR ABBY: What a coincidence! My husband also stepped on a mine in Viet Nam and lost both legs. After spending a year in the hospital, Gary went to law school, where he was elected president of the student bar association. His other honors are too numerous to mention here. He is a partner in a prominent law firm, and is very active in community affairs. He plays golf, drives a car, and does everything every other normal, healthy man does. He's a good provider, and we have a lovely home and three healthy children. The youngest two were born after his accident.

DEAR ABBY: This is for Heartbroken Parents. About 10 years ago a gentleman at a party asked me to dance. I recall thinking that I had danced with better dancers. That is all.

DEAR ABBY: You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box 69766, L. A., Calif. 90063. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69766, Los Angeles, Cal. 90063.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 31, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when a considerable amount of confusion exists as to how best to let others know you take them to be some thoughtful things for them. A friendly smile is what your associates expect of you gives you better answers than you could think of.

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr 19) Improve order in your surroundings now and do kind things for others without making them feel beggared. Add new items to your wardrobe. Have a delightful time with persons you like a great deal.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be firm with persons you like a great deal. Bring first refusal on a steadily small business deal with everyone. Creative work as excellent if you plan each step wisely first.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't get into any arguments at home, or there could be serious trouble. Using care in all you do is excellent. Don't discuss that strange situation today with kin, since another day would be better.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 31) Get at that slitting and errands without further procrastination. But use care in motion and with finances. Read some communication over twice so you get the true meaning. Avoid one who talks nonsense.

LEO (July 22 to Aug 21) You want to add much to present holdings and can do just that by wise investments. Check that bill you do not feel sure about. Make certain your home is in excellent order and is clean.

VIRGO (Aug 22 to Sept 22) You find it difficult to make those decisions of an important nature so stick to less vital matters. If you show others you like them all works out to your benefit. Think constructively.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct 22) Sit down and reflect upon the happenings around you, but do not state your views. Handle all those duties that are yours with dispatch. Go over your idealistic concepts in the evening. Put them to rest.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov 21) Some friend may state ideas now that are not correct about you, so be sure you correct them immediately. Plan to attend a social function that can lead to interesting conversations. Benefits do some trend a big favor.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY - I really need help. During a storm the very strong wind blew off the indoor-outdoor carpet that was pasted around all four edges to our concrete porch. I do not intend to use the carpet again but do want to remove the paste that was left on the concrete. This is the paste that was recommended for such use. I wonder if anyone knows what will remove it. - BETTY

When an artist signs such china, the piece is then awarded or may be certainly not take the risk of trying to fire hers again. She would probably break or crack the china so she had better take out a list of how much she is taking and do it in a separate place with her descriptions and instructions and then place this with her other inventories or her will. - HELEN

DEAR POLLY - My Pet Peeve is for young mothers who find themselves selling or threatening their children if a task is not done. The child's mother thinks it should be. When mine were small, I set my clock timer every time I was to do something. The job was to be completed by the time the timer rang. If it rang and I was not there, I would be so small a penny like not watching a favorite TV program. Do not make the penalties too harsh, allow enough time for the child to complete the job and then carry out the penalty if the child does not obey. In time mother's nerves will be calmer and the child will be doing what he is told. Learn to reward or punish. By reward I mean only to praise or thank. By punish I mean only to withhold something that the child likes. Do not use anything else. Have timer where the child cannot reach it and be tempted to move it back. We always remember to say nothing while the job is being done as children do not like not hearing us when they do not want to. - VIRGINIA

MR AND MRS. John D. Thomas of Geneva were honored on their 40th wedding anniversary at a small reception for family and close friend's given by their only child and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas of Bethesda, Md. The couple was married July 14, 1933, in Jacksonville, and have four grandsons, Scott, Brian, John David and Samuel who also attended the celebration.

Cardin Mixes Plaids, Furs At Show Of Fall Fashions

AP Fashion Writer PARIS (AP) - Pierre Cardin returned to the fashion couture fold today with his first showing in two years. As usual, it was a long show. Cardin is known not only for the diversity of his ideas but also for the variety of his fabrics. He likes horseblanket plaids, tweeds, and fur. Mink is for shoulder bags and huge pockets and collars, not coats. Long circular plaid coats sometimes come with colored collars. They go over printed pants and a long smock, for example. Sleeveless jackets in all shades of suede are belted over turtleneck sweaters and suits with straight skirts at the knee. The couturier takes hats in velvet cut and stitched to resemble wide-brimmed corduroy. In contrast, enormous fox

Working Woman

There is one newcomer to the couture week, more of an intruder than a couturier. Lying in wait for the buyers leaving from Dior, Daniel Le Bret showed his clothes in a cafe on the Avenue Montaigne. His models wore circuit makeup, removed their tops, and exposed normally hidden parts of the anatomy. The eyes of the viewers kept their eyes on their feet.

Worry Clinic

Thelma's atheism is an example of mere back-passing. "And I begged God to give me a husband. But he didn't!" So I know that there is no God and religion is just the masses' cry.

'Black Projects' Payments Made Before 1972 GOP Convention

By MICHAEL PUTZEL Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Former presidential chief of staff H. R. Haldeman testified today that he approved a $80,000 campaign budget for "black projects" prior to the Republican national convention last year.

questions of the Senate Watergate committee after testifying Monday that he listened to two White House tapes he said re- futed John W. Dean III's testimony about two key meetings with President Nixon.

work, because Colson was an advance man. Former campaign aide Robert C. Marland testified earlier that he was told the Nixon re- election campaign had an ex- tensive budget for "black ad- vantage" work, which he de- scribed as political sabotage.

Nixon said he learned of it. The former White House chief of staff said his recollection of the meetings, refreshed by listening to the tapes, con- firmed that many of the sub- jects Dean said came up at that meeting actually were dis- cussed a week later.

FTC Opens Hearings On Glenn Turner

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE WASHINGTON (AP) — The government planned to call its first witnesses today in a hearing on a Federal Trade Commission complaint accusing Florida promoter Glenn W. Turner of deceptive business practices.

GLENN W. TURNER... Kosco founder

Michael J. Delaney of Orlando, Fla., a former business associate of Turner, was scheduled as the first witness. Delaney, now a business consultant, is a former executive of Kosco Interplanetary Inc.

Turner is the founder of Kosco, an Orlando-based cosmetics firm. The commission seeks an order restraining Turner from engaging in chaus-referral sales of Kosco distribution-ships.

The hearing on the commission's four-count complaint opened Monday. Opposing lawyers spent most of the day arguing a defense motion that would have required the government to produce the grand jury testimony of another witness this week.

The witness, former Kosco executive Raleigh Mann, testified before a federal grand jury in Orlando that he had indicted Turner on mail fraud charges in connection with the sale of Kosco products.

Defense lawyer Jerris Leonard argued that the issues were the same in both the mail fraud case and the commission complaint. Mann's testimony before the grand jury

Crew In Motion, Mending Continues

By RICHARD SALTUS Associated Press Writer SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — The Skylab 2 astronauts, still struggling with debilitating sickness but pronounced on the mend, hoped to finish today their space lab today.

ALAN L. BEAN... Working okay

Skylab commander Alan L. Bean, IV, Owen K. Garriott and Jack L. Louman managed to work steadily Monday. The three are taking stomach-softening medicine.

For the first time since the planned 59-day mission began Saturday, the trio at most of their food and no vomiting occurred.

"Generally speaking, everybody feels pretty good until meal time, and it gets pretty tough then," Bean said. "If you get through meal time, you're okay."

Misuse could bring criminal and civil penalties accompanied by injunctive relief and the right to sue for damages.

Yesterday's high 90 low this morning 72 and there was 1.90 of an inch of rain. Partly cloudy to occasionally cloudy through Wednesday with a chance of thundershowers more likely during afternoon and evening hours.

Sears Separated In Vesco Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Government lawyers have agreed to try Harry L. Sears separately from former U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans.

JOHN MITCHELL... Hit with perjury

Mitchell, Stans and Sears, a former GOP leader of the New Jersey Senate, are accused of attempting to influence a federal probe of financier Robert L. Vesco, a fourth defendant in the Watergate case.

Vesco left the country before he was indicted and has rebuffed U.S. efforts to have him return and face the charges.

Vesco's $200,000 contribution, which has been under investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission, was not reported at the time by Nixon's re-election committee but was returned to the financier.

The indictments claim that the defendants attempted to interfere in that SEC investigation after the $200,000 contribution was received.
